At Mud Springs, a village a few miles from Placerville, they met a large delegation of citizens from Placerville, who had come out to meet the celebrated editor, and escort him into town. There was a military company, a brass band, and a six-horse wagon load of beautiful damsels in milk-white dresses, representing all the States in the Union. It was nearly dark now, but the delegation was simply provided with torches and bonfires all along the road to Placerville.

The citizens met the coach in the outskirts of Mud Springs, and Mr. Monk reined in his foaming steeds.

"Is Mr. Greeley on board?" asked the Chairman of the Committee.

"He was a few miles back!" said Mr. Monk; "yes," he added, looking down through the hole the fearful jolting had made in the coach roof—"yes, I can see him! He is there!"

"Mr. Greeley," said the chairman of the committee, presenting himself at the window of the coach—"Mr. Greeley, sir! We are come to most cordially welcome you, sir——why, God bless me, sir, you are bleeding at the nose!"

"I've got my orders!" cried Mr. Monk, "My orders are as follows:

"Git him there by seving. Stand out of the way."

"But, sir," exclaimed the committee man, seizing the off leader by the reins—"Mr. Monk, we are to escort him into town! Look at the procession, sir, and brass band and people, and the young women, sir."

"I've got my orders!" screamed Mr. Monk. "My orders don't say nothin' about no brass bands and young women. My orders says get him there by seving. Let go them lines! clear the way there! Woo-ep! Keep your seat, Horace!" and the coach dashed wildly through the procession, upsetting a portion of the brass band, and violently grazing the wagon which contained the beautiful young women in white.

Years hence gray haired men, who were little boys in this procession, will tell their grand-children how this stage tore through Mud Springs, and how Horace Greeley's bald head ever and anon showed itself, like a wild apparition, above the coach roof.

Mr. Monk was on time. There is a tradition that Mr. Greeley was very indignant for awhile; then he laughed, and finally presented Mr. Monk with a bran new suit of clothes.

Mr. Monk, himself, is still in the employ of the California Stage Company, and is rather fond of relating a story that has made him famous all over the Pacific coast.—But he says that he yields to no man in his admiration of Horace Greeley.

The New Haven Railroad Case.

Lame as Justice is said to be, she travels steadily and surely—at all events in some cases. It lacks but a few months of twelve years since the financial community was paralyzed by the news that the President of the New Haven Railroad Company had been flooding Wall street with spurious certificates of stock, and had run away to hide his guilt and his shame in foreign lands. So vast was the extent of the fraud, and so high had stood the character of the criminal, that people at first refused to believe the news. Schuyler was not only a member of the church and a scion of our "hereditary nobility," but he was a man personally well known in Wall street, universally esteemed and respected, a king among railway men, a potentate among financiers. Yet this Schuyler, as it was soon proved, had issued fraudulent certificates of stock in the New York and New Haven Railway Company to an amount exceeding two millions of dollars, had foisted them on his friends and acquaintances the bankers, brokers, and money-lenders of Wall street, and had run away, leaving no trace behind.

After the first shock, Wall Street turned its attention to the practical consequences of the development. There was $3,000,000 of genuine stock of the New Haven Road, and $2,000,000 or more of stock fraudulently issued by Schuyler. The stock had been active, and on the morning when the fraud came to light, there was hardly a banker or broker in New York who did not hold directly or indirectly some shares. How could the so-called spurious stock be distinguished from the genuine? The brokers studied the subject, and finding that all the certificates were alike, all duly signed and registered, and all to outward appearances equally valid, concluded that no distinction could be made between them, and that the Company—being bound for the acts of its officer—must be equally responsible for all. This was the sense of the New York Stock Exchange, and of the bankers and brokers throughout the country. They therefore summoned the New Haven Railroad Company to recognize all the certificates, whatever their origin, and to transfer them on their books.

The Company refused. Its counsel took the ground that though the Company was responsible for all acts of its officer performed within the scope of his official duties, it was not responsible for acts committed beyond that scope, much less for crimes committed by him. And some of the subordinate clerks of the Company undertook, by a process never clearly explained, to separate the so-called spurious stock from the genuine, and to pronounce two-thirds of the floating certificates of New Haven stock absolute waste paper.

Naturally indignant at this proceeding, the brokers clubbed together and instituted legal proceedings against the Company to compel them to recognize the so-called spurious stock. More than half the leading lawyers of the city were retained on their behalf. The Company accepted the issue, retained able counsel on its side, and prepared for a long fight. The stock was struck from the list of the Stock Exchange, and has never since been bought or sold at the Board.

The suit began in the fall of 1854. It took many shapes, and came up in various ways. There is hardly a leading lawyer at the bar who has not been engaged in it at some time or other, either for or against the Company. As a rule the press and public sentiment were throughout in favor of the brokers. People generally took the common-sense view of the case, and decided that as a loss must fall upon somebody, it was more equitable that it should fall on the Company, which had erred in the choice of an officer, than upon innocent holders of stock who had been guilty of no negligence, and could not, by any possibility, have protected themselves against the event. But the Company stood unmoved. It had a long purse, an obstinate Board of Direction, and an ingenious party of lawyers. Year after year dragged on, and but little progress was made. Every technical difficulty was urged by the Company; every side-issue was elaborately discussed; every possible motion was made; every point of law raised; and thus, as we said, year after year passed; the law costs of the injured brokers were steadily on the increase, and they seemed to be no nearer judgment and redress. At last, some six years after the commencement of the suit, a judgment was obtained in one of the cases. It was substantially in favor of the Company.

This was so discouraging to the litigants that many of them, worn out by long waiting, loss of time, and heavy law costs, concluded to accept a compromise which was judiciously offered by the Company. On condition of withdrawing their suits and giving no further trouble, they received one share of real stock for every two shares of so-called spurious stock. Thus at least one-half of the claims were adjusted at the cost of all the net earnings of the Company for several years.

But there was one man among the prosecutors of the Company who was not discouraged. This was Cornelius Vanderbilt. He had lent money to Schuyler on the so-called spurious stock. He had examined the stock before he lent his money, and had proved the certificates correct. He was not now willing to admit that they were otherwise. The adverse judgment did not dismay him. If the Company had patience, so had he. If they had a long purse, so had he. If they could fee able lawyers (one of the Company's counsel is said to have received no less than $100,000 for work in this single case), so could he. He rejected the proffered compromise with derision, and bade his lawyers appeal, and prosecute the appeal with vigor. Encouraged by his example, other victims of the fraud declined to accept the compromise, and appealed their cases likewise.

Then followed more tedious years of postponements, arguments on side issues, motions and countermotions, and all the legal manœuvres which are so profitable to lawyers and so heart-sickening to needy seekers after justice. There is no doubt but the Company based its hopes in great part upon the probable death of Commodore Vanderbilt. If he died, there was every reason to believe they might succeed in wearing out the other suitors, and either inducing them to accept the proposed compromise or defeating them altogether. And he was an man, over seventy, with heart-disease (so 'twas said), with a fondness for fast horses, and a habit of being dashed out of his wagon from time to time. The New Haven Directors each morning carefully examined the deaths under the letter V, and nutely prayed for the release of their relentless prosecutor.

Their prayers were not heard. The Commodore did not die. On the contrary, in spite of heart-disease, fast horses, and up-sets, he seemed to grow most pertinacious at the very time other men's patience would weary; and at the very moment the Company expected a season of repose he was upon them more furiously than ever, with new motions and arguments, and fresh reinforcements of lawyers. And so, at last, after over eleven years of waiting, he fought the suit to judgment in the Court of Appeals, and won it—obtaining a decision against the Company for the whole amount claimed, with eleven years' interest and costs.

There is something quite refreshing in the statement published by the Board of Directors in which, after reiterating their opinion that the judgment is unjust, they offer for sale $2,000,000 of new stock in order to meet the claims of the Commodore and his faithful adherents. No reliable statement has been published of the amount of money paid—directly or in the shape of stock—to the parties who accepted the compromise three or four years ago. But we judge that the Company would have saved not much less than a million dollars in one way and another had it pursued an honorable course at the start, and acknowledged itself responsible for the frauds of its agent.

A healthy public sentiment has thanked Mr. A. T. Stewart for having promptly preferred a complaint against a newspaper which had seemed to charge him with improper conduct in private life. And a like tribute is due to Commodore Vanderbilt for having had the patience and constancy to pursue this railway Company through the mazes of a twelve years' lawsuit. It would be well if we had more such men. As for the Company, we trust we shall never again hear of a wealthy concern, officered by respectable men, trying to shift to innocent shoulders the burden of the crimes of its own officials.—Harper's Weekly.

[From the Washington Star.]

Remarkable Adventures of a Corpse.

Not long since a native of the Emerald Isle, one of the victims of the late arsenal explosion, died in this city, and immediately preparations were made to give him a nice, genteel funeral. It was at first arranged that he should be buried here, but some of his kindred, being buried at Parkersburg, West Virginia, it was finally determined that what remained of poor Johnny M——should be sent to that place. Accordingly, after a "wake," (one of the good old sort,) the remains were accompanied by his sorrowing friends and relatives to the depot, to take the cars for the place of burial. The funeral procession arrived at the depot some time before the departure of the train in which the remains were to go, and the mourners spent the intervening time in assuaging their sorrows at the neighboring bars, so abundant in that vicinity, the corpse meanwhile remaining on the platform ready to be placed on the 9 P. M. train which would connect at the Relay House with the western train.

The party meanwhile drank so many libations to the memory of the departed that they returned to the station in a very mellow condition, and the railroad officers being apprehensive that they would be incapable of taking care of the corpse, telegraphed to the agent at the Relay to see that the corpse was taken off at that point. Shortly before the time of starting the corpse was placed on the train, and an attempt was made to muster the mourners when it was ascertained that one or two had become so obfusticated as to have taken the New York train. The rest of the party, however, managed to get aboard, and ere long Johnny M——'s body was again "marching on." At the Relay the corpse was transferred to the western train, but two or three of the mourners were too far gone to get out in time, and so proceeded to Baltimore, while the balance of the party with the corpse was hurried on with extra speed westward.

At the points along the road where the engine stopped "to water," the mourners as invariable stopped "to wet," and not being up to time, quite as invariably a brace or more were left behind at each watering and wetting place and by the time Grafton was reached, where the corpse was to change cars for Parkersburg, but few of the mourners remained with it, and these were so bewildered that they failed to get in the proper train, and Johnny's corpse went on to Wheeling without them. From thence, by some means, it was sent to Columbus, Ohio, the corpse thus having got into the wrong State, and the mourners being scattered through Maryland and West Virginia, and along the line of the Baltimore, Wilmington and Philadelphia and Camden and Amboy Railroads. By this time the telegraph was put into excited operation, and various messages were whisked over the wires in various directions in regard to the missing corpse and scattered mourners, making confusion doubly confunded for awhile.

From Grafton an anxious mourner inquired, "Where in the d—l is the corpse?" This dispatch was crossed on the road by a loud inquiry from Columbus as to the ownership of a stray corpse arrived there unconsigned. A Baltimore scattered mourner telegraphed to "postpone the funeral till I get there;" and the squad of mourners by the New York train were sending wildly confused messages to Parkersburg, Relay House, Grafton, and Washington, all helping to intensify the prevailing muddle. The corpse, meantime, had resumed its travels, and, like poor Joe, not being wanted in any locality, had been kept moving on, until it arrived at Little Miami depot, where it created no little excitement, being without any mark for identification, and foul play being at once suspected. A coroner's inquest was held without throwing any light upon the mystery, which was, however, cleared up by a telegraphic despatch for the missing corpse. The railway officials then got the corpse in motion eastward, and the mourners headed westward, and finally, after the most eventful history of any corpse or set of mourners on record, Johnny's body was duly committed by them to mother earth, where we trust it may rest in peace.

AN EMIGRANT'S FAREWELL.

Farewell, dear Scotia's shore, farewell—
An exile far from thee I roam;
But, tho' in distant lands I dwell,
I'll sigh for thee, my native home.

Nae mair I'll climb the brecken lea,
Or wander thro' thy flowry dells,
Or o'er thy braes, wi' careless glee
I'll gather bonnets and blue-bells.

Nae mair the thistle waves for me
On rocky steep its tasseled head—
Nae mair the yellow broom I'll see,
Or tread o'er hills wi' heather spread.

Nae mair, sweet Teviot—gentle stream—
When on thy waters moonbeams play,
I'll loiter on thy banks to dream
Of future joy and by-gone wae.

Nae mair upon thy graves I'll weep
The sad yet soothing filial tear;
Yet, treasured in my soul, I'll keep
The memory of my parent's dear.

Tho' seas divide, each well-known scene
Around auld Hawick weel I'll mind—
Tho' fairer landscapes greet my een,
Yet nae mair dear I canna find.

But, ah! the friends I love and leave,
I canna say to thee farewell;
The sad word makes my bosom heave
Wi' rising sobs I canna quell.

Tho' others may around me thraw
The rays of friendship's cheering smile,
Yet frae my heart they canna draw
The dear ones left in Scotia's isle.

Scotland, companions, friends, farewell—
An exile far from thee I roam;
Yet, tho' in distant lands I dwell,
My heart shall turn to thee and home.

JESSIE DAVIDSON

HAWICK, Sept. 20th, 1861.

.....One day Freddy's little sister Carrie, hearing her mother talking about a name for a new little baby-brother that had been given to them a short time before, said; "Mamma, why don't you name him Hallowed? It says in my prayer, 'Hallowed be thy name,' and I think it a very pretty name, too."

THE ends of a belt should always be cut off square, not guessed at by the eye, but laid off with a tool. The holes ought to be made with a small punch at a proper distance from the end—the size of the holes and the distances of them depending on the width of the belt. The use of an awl is reprehensible, for the holes are apt to be made irregular by it, and much larger than there it need of. The end of the lace should be tied with a square knot in the middle of the outside, for the corners of the belt where it is cut are most exposed and apt to whip out. Tieing a belt lace does not look so neatly as where the ends are put through an incision, but tieing saves the belt from having extra holes made in it. The laces ought to be of the same thickness from end to end, or as nearly so as possible. It often happens that laces have very thin spots in them; such should be kept for short belts, and never used for long ones. Moreover, the holes must be made at equal distances apart and not too many of them; every hole weakens the belt, and none that are not absolutely essential should be cut. All new laces, as well as new belts, should be stretched by hanging weights on them before they are used—petroleum, sawdust, rosin, and similar substances should never be used. When a belt gets harsh or dry, neat's-foot oil is the best thing to apply to it.

ENGLISH PEA SOUP.—Take half a shin of beef, some beef and ham bones, and, if possible, a knuckle of veal, and boil all together in a gallon of water, with a little salt. Clear it of the scum, as it rises, and have ready a quart of split peas, which have been soaked in cold water over night. Boil the meat very slowly for two hours, then put in the peas, which will have absorbed the water, with a root of celery, and two or three carrots, scraped and cut in pieces. Sift in, also, a little dried mint, and season to taste. Cook slowly, stirring often with a wooden spoon, for four hours.

BAKED APPLE DUMPLINGS.—Select smooth, even-sized apples; peel and core them, and fill the cavity with sugar and a little cinnamon. Divide your paste into as many parts as you have apples. Roll each one out square, and inclose the apple in it, slightly wetting the edge to make it stick. Bake them in a shallow pan, and eat with a dry sauce made of butter and sugar beaten together.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.
COTTON—Middling	$ .45	@	—
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	8.50	@	8.60
WHEAT—Amber Mich. new		@	1.57
BARLEY		@	1.15
CORN—Sound Western	.77½	@	.81
OATS—Dull		@	.56
PETROLEUM—Crude	.31½	@	.32
PORK—Mess new	29.12	@	29.31
BEEF HAMS	41.00	@	42.00
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	13.50	@	17.50
HOGS—medium to heavy	.13¾	@	.13¾
DRY GOODS—Merrimacs	.25	@	.29
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville	.40	@	—
Brown Sheetings—Stark	.30	@	.31
Delaines—Manchester	.29	@	—
Denims "	.40	@	—
GOLD—1.39.

CHICAGO, February 12, 1866.
BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$100.00	@	$150.00
BEEVES—Stock to prime	$ 3.50	@	$ 6.25
BEANS	.75	@	1.25
BRAN		@	9.00
BUTTER	.15	@	.25
CHEESE—Western	.17	@	.19
COFFEE—Rio	.29½	@	.33
Java	.44	@	.45
EGGS	.27	@	.31
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	3.00	@	4.50
Malaga Lemons	12.00	@	13.00
Dried N. Y. Apples	.15	@	.16
" Peaches	.30	@	.32
Raisins, M. R	5.15	@

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan.

One of the best filled Establishments!

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South Side Chicago St, Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS,

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY, WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH, COTTAGE, COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP, WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Show Cases, Stands, Book Cases, Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short notic by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pic. ures framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VanTine,
G. Smith.

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

TECUMSEH, - - MICH A

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions,

I keep the largest and best assortment of

ROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
FRUITS,
SALT
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,
&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had eleven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the busines If you dont believe it, ask your neighbors where they get their Groceries and where they buy them the e and judge for yourselves.

CHEAPEST.

A. JAMES.

☞ Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the Herald.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New Yisnow opening a new stock of

Groceries, Paints, Oils &c

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago street.

L. DREW'S NEW HARDWARE!!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz:

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass. Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a

Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron. and Zinc,

Also the Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

Agent for the sale of the UNIVERSAL

CLOTHES WRINGER

the easiest and most reliable Wringer ye invented. Warranted to give satisfaction.—Take one and try it.

L. DREW.

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co. are now prepared to present to the public, every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART,

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and ellegance to the figure. India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite

in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices.

and a general assortment of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

Real Estate for Sale.

Our old friend John Davenport wishes to dispose of the following property:

60 acres of fine timbered land lying near Franklin Centre.

120 acres of timbered land on Evans Lake.

Saw mill and 20 acres of land near Franklin Centre.

Brick House and 4 acres of land known as the Stitts property in the village of Tecumseh, now occupied by A. Hood

House and lot on Logan St. known as the Mrs. Bissell property.

Also—House and lot of J. E. Merritt Malden Lane, in the village of Tecumseh.

Terms easy or to suit purchasers. For particulars call on or address the subscriber at Tecumseh, Mich.

JOHN DAVENPORT.

Dated Jan. 18th, 1866.

Tecumseh Union School!

C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.

The Fall term of this Institution, of sixteen weeks, commenced on Monday, Sept. 4th, 1865.

THE WINTER TERM, of twelve weeks will commence on Monday, January 8th, 1866.

Scholars will be received at any time and placed in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.

CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

C. H. ADAM & Co.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct 2tf TECUMSEH, MICH.

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government,

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.
n790lysmp

☞ Have you job printing done at the Herald Office.

For Sale.

A house and lot situated on Pearl st., near the railroad depot, formerly owned by J. W. Wellman. For terms apply at this office.

---

18 Pronunciemento. 65.

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see

How well we can do For them

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd est Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholesale or Retail.
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
Fine Midlings, B. W. F our,
Ship Stuffs, B. w. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed.

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE.

They will always also ussally find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE,

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL,

Corn In the Ear and Shelled.

A goo assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantible Lumber

Wm. HAYDEN

GREAT DECLINE

Boots & Shoes

ARE DOWN! not in New York or Boston but at

E. H. HOAG'S

Mammoth Shoe Store,

Returning the public thanks for liberal patronage during the past year, I shall offer during the next

SIXTY DAYS,

BOOTS & SHOES

AT PRICES WHICH WILL

DEFY COMPETITION.

The attention of sewed Boot customers is called to my stock of fine

French & American Calf Skins,

which are being made up

In a Style unsurpassed for

WORKMANSHIP AND DURABILITY.

LADIES AND MISSES

Congress Gaiters, Balmorals and POLISH BOOTS,

made to order from all materials.

E. H. HOAG.

Tecumseh, Jan. 1st, 1866.

D. NOTEMAN, M. D.

Practical Physician, for the treatment of Chronic Diseases. will isit Tecumseh the

1st & 2d of Every Month,

for Consultation with patients. Cancers and Scrofulous Tumors removed without the use of the knife. Bronchitis, Catarrh, and Incipient Consumption cured in three to five months. Liver Complaint. Dispepsia, and Constipation cured in 2 to 4 months. Piles Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration and diseases of the Genital Organs yield readily to his treatment. Prolepsus Uterine is master of. Charges reasonable according to ability to pay: the really poor will be treated grates. He will be at Comstock & Noteman's Drug Store, Adrian, the last week in each month. Residence on Budling Street. All letters with stamp enclosed will receive prompt attention. For further particulars (See Circulars.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM,

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

☞ All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Prices.

F. R. Stebbins, Adrian piano Rooms,

I am selling, and keep on hand at my Furniture Store,

Steinway & Sons, Wm. B. Bradbury, Weber and Vose Pianos from fifty to one hundred dollars cheaper than any dealer in the West.

Call and see or address me. I have also the largest and best assortment of

FURNITURE

WINDOW SHADES, PICTURE PHOTOGRAPH FRAMES &c.

In Southern Michigan. All Pianos and Furniture guaranteed just as represented, and shipped safely by railroad to any point

STEBBINS' FURNITURE ROOMS.

Adrian, Mich. n742tf

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL

IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor, show room the same 8 doors east of A. Hood & Co's. clothing store.

With the improvements she has made in the last year—which warranted the Judges at the State Fair, to award her the first prize and Diploma for pictures exhibited at that time—she feels anxious for those wanting likenesses, to call and examine her specimens of work.

To those who have six photographs an additional one will be given. She has 24 varieties of photograph frames, which will be sold cheaper than they can be found elsewhere.

New Meat Market!!

Bidwell's Warehouse, Railroad st.,

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

HUGH McGEE, Proprietor.

Who is now prepared to furnish the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity with FRESH MEATS OF ALL KINDS, at the lowest possible rates. Thankful for past patronage he would respectfully solicit a continuance of the same.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at

A. JAMES

1866. 1866.

MERRITT, MEEKER & Co

SUCCESSORS TO J. H. WHEELER.

Have just received a large additon to their

STOCK OF GOODS,

And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of

DRY GOODS,

YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Particular attention is called to their stock

of BUFFALO ROBES and LADIES AND GENTS FURS,

which they are now selling

At Cost.

We would announce to his numerous friends that we have secured the services of Wm. VanCamp, and he will take pleasure in waiting upon all.

It is no trouble to show goods; should you wish anything in our line give us a call before purchasing elsewhere and we will do our best to give satisfaction.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee s,s —At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian on Friday the 26th day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six.

Present, Robert R Beecher, Judge of Probate In the matter of the estate of William B Whitnah, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified of Jacob G. Roberts, one of the executors of the last will of said deceased praying that the final account of the executors of said will may be allowed and that said executors may be discharged and that distribution may be made of the estate of said deceased in their hands.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday the 19th day of March next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted:

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioneer give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing,

ROBERT R, BEECHER, Judge of Probate
(A true copy) n790w4

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.

Published for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supploing at the same time the means of Self Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a post paid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, mby be had of the author

NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Brooklyn,
n790lysmp Kings Co, N. Y.

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still lounted in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the

Nicest, Best and Strongest,

WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS,

and in fact everything in his line from a aby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition. So call and ave your orders.

NEW SKIRT FOR 1866.

THE GREAT INVENTION OF THE AGE IN

HOOP SKIRTS.

J. W. BRADLEY'S New Patent DUPLEX ELLIPTIC (or double) SPRING SKIRT.

This invention consists of Duplex (or two) Elliptic Pure Refined Steel Springs, ingeniously braided tightly and firmly together, edge to edge, making the toughest, most flexible elastic and durable Spring ever used. They seldom bend or break, like the Single Springs, and consequently preserve their perfect and beautiful shape more than twice as long as any Single Spring Skirt that ever has or can be made.

The wonderful flexibility and great comfort and pleasure to any Lady wearing the Duplex Elliptic Skirt will be experienced particularly in all crowded Assemblies, Operas, Carriages, Railroad Cars, Church Pews, Arm Chairs, for Promenade and House Dress, as the Skirt can be folded when in use to occupy a small place as easily and conveniently as a Silk or Muslin Dress.

A Lady having enjoyed the pleasure, comfort and Great Convenience of wearing the Duplex Elliptic Steel Spring Skirt for a single day will never afterwards willingly dispense with their use For Children, Misses and Young Ladies they are superior to all others.

The Hoops are covered with 2 ply double twisted thread and will wear twice as long as the Single yarn covering which is used on all Single Steel Hoop Skirts. The three bottom rods on every Skirt are also Double Steel, and twice or double covered to prevent the covering from wearing off the rods when dragging down stairs, stone steps, etc., etc which they are constantly subject to when in use.

All are made of new and elegant Corded Tapes, and are the best quality in every part, giving to the wearer the most graceful and perfect shape possible, and are unquestionably the lightest, most desirable, comfortable and economical Skirt ever made.

WEBB'S BRADLEY & CARY, PROPRIETORS of the Invention, and SOLE MANUFACTURERS, 97 Chambers, and 79 and 81 Reade streets New York.

For sale in all first-class stores in this City, and throughout the United States and Canada, Havana de Cuba, Mexico, South America and the West Indies.

BILL-HEADS,
CARDS,
CIRCULARS,
HANDBILLS,
BLANKS,

And every discription of Job work neatly executed at this office.

Get your Hanbills, Cards, Blanks, and all kinds of printing at this Office.

GLORIOUS NEWS,

The Confederacy gone up! But

GEORGE HEESEN'S

CLOTHING EMPORIUM

Is in full blast, and has not yet surrendered to young america. I would say to my friends and customers that I have just received a large stock of clothing which were purchased at panic prices, and I will sell them at a very small profit, for they must be sold within ninety days. I

Sell Cassimere Pants at 6.50.

Broad cloth and cassimere, coats very cheap, Linen coats cheaper than any other house in town, wool, en and Straw

HATS, CAPS!

Linen and Paper Collars,
Neck Ties, Shirts,
Gloves, Hosiery,
Traveling Bags, &c.

It is easily understood that I can sell goods cheaper than my neighbor for I save great expense, being a tailor and having followed the business for the last 17 years I know how work ought to be done.

Please come over on the Canada side for you can buy goods cheaper than you can on the American, for all expense of importing is saved, which amounts to considerable.

Cutting Done at Old Prices.

Those wishing garments made would do well to call on me and have an honest job done.

Geo. Heesen.

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartnership in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE & FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions,

Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected stock of

Crockery and Glass-Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

HALL'S

Vegetable Sicilian

HAIR RENEWER,

As the name indicates, not only RENEWS the growth of the hair when thin and falling off, but positively renews the color to its original shade when it is turning grey or white, whether caused by disease, grief or old age.

It will certainly do what is claimed for it, a fact to which hundreds, nay thousands, who have used it, are ready and willing to testify. Where one bottle is fairly used, in any community, its reputation "spreads like wild fire," and is the best advertisement and recommendation we desire. In the Eastern States, where the "RENEWER" originated, the young ladies use it as a hair dressing; it is found on the toilet tables of young men, (also at their barbers), while older men and women who desire a Renewer and Restorative for their grey locks and bald heads will not be without this article, which gives in every instance, entire setisfaction.

CAUTION.

Don't let any druggist or dealer urge upon you a different article, as there is no preparation in the world like this. Beware of any article purporting to be the same.

Try HALL'S HAIR RENEWER according to Directions, and you will use no other.

If not sold at druggists in your town, a trial bottle will be sent you by express, upon receipt of one dollar by mail, thus giving you an opportunity at once of testing its excellent qualities.

Orders for trial bottles must be addressed to

C. A. COOK, Chicago.

Gen'l Agent for Northwestern States.

R. P. HALL & CO., Proprietors, Nashua, N. H.

Sold at WHOLESALE, in Chicago, by FULLER, FINCH & FULLER, BURNHAMS & VAN SCHAACK, LORD & SMITH, SMITH & DWYER, J. H. REED & CO., CHAS. G. SMITH, DIETZSCH, BLOCKI & CO., H. SCOVIL, W. D. HARRIS & CO., POST & RADBAU, and all druggists and dealers generally.

WHEREAS, my wife Emma Brown has left my bed and board without just cause or provocation, I hereby forbid any person trusting or harboring her on my account for I shall pay no debts of her contracting after this date.

WILLIAM HENRY BROWN.

Janurary, 27th, 1866.

CO-PARTNERSHIP

A. Hood & Co.

are now receiving at the Old Stand of A Hood, Anderson's Block,

A LARGE STOCK

—OR—

NEW GOODS

Direct from New York consisting of

Ready Made Clothing

A splended assortment of THE LATEST STYLES of cloths that could be found in the Eastern markets, Consisting of

BROAD CLOTHS, DOESKINS, FREFCH, SCOTCH and ENGLISH CASSIMERES, COATINGS, VESTINGS, OVER COATINGS, &c. Also a heavy

STOCK OF WOOLEN SHIRTS

Of all styles, UNDER SHIRTS and DRAWERS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, HOSIERY,

A nice assortment of

HATS & CAPS!

Furnishing Goods!

Of all kinds for mens wear, We mean to keep on hand as good a selection of goods in our line as can be found in any one establishment in the County and for CASH we will sell them as low, or a little lower than any other establishment in the County.

Our Tailoring Department is in full blast. We are prepared to get up Suits on SHORT NOTICE, in as GOOD STYLE, and at as low figures as any other establishment.

CUTTING DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

H. M. GRAY. A. HOOD.

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS,

is the place to get good grinding done. I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING,

I keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Mill Feed, of all kinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Piles of hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shal endeavor to do as good work, and even better, if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

GREAT CENTRAL.

United States Mail Route.

THREE EXPRESS TRAINS leave Windsor (opposite Detroit) daily for the East, on the arrival of Trains of Michigan Central, Detroit and Milwaukee, and Michigan Southern Railways from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati and all points West North-West and South West.

This is the only route via Niagara Falls and suspension Bridge, and is the direct route to Buffalo, New York, Boston, London, Paris, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Prescott, Ogdensburgh, Montreal, Quebec and Portland.

☞ Passenger Cars are furnished with Patent ventilators.

Luxurious Sleeping Cars attached to all night trains, and Smoking Cars to all day trains.

☞ United States Currency taken at par for through fares, sleeping Car berths and meals at Refreshment Saloons

CHARLES McCABE,
Western Passenger Agent, Detroit.

THOS SWINYARD, General manager, Hamilton, C. W.

JAS. CHARLTON, General Agent, Hamilton, C. W.

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL XVI. NO. 40. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN. THURSDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 22, 1866. WHOLE NO. 794.

G. T. KETCHAM'S
BOOK STORE,
Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.
(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)
DEALER IN
CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER,
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.
—o—
I will sell any of the above goods as
Cheap or Cheaper than any other dealer in the country, and
WARRANT
all goods sold as good as recommended.
—o—
CASH FOR RAGS!
—o—
Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.
J. D. Robbins.
TECUMSEH, - - - - - MICHIGAN.

The PEOPLE OF TECUMSEH!
WE HAIL,
But do not conceal, the fact that
GOULD & WALDO
Have just opened a first class
Drug & Grocery Store,
Where will be kept constantly on hand a choice supply of Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Dye Stuffs, Domestic Dyes, Patent Medicines, Family Groceries, Kerosene Oil, and
in fact everything usually kept in Similar Establishments,
Where they are prepared and bound to sell from ten to fifty per cent. lower than can be sold elsewhere in Southern Michigan.
STORE 1 DOOR EAST OF A. James' and opposite the Post Office.
PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY PREPARED. Liberal discount to Physicians. 793

PHŒNIX
INSURANCE COMPANY

E. C. STACY,
RESIDENT AGENT,
TECUMSEH, MICH.

GREAT
CLEARING OUT SALE
OF
DRY GOODS
FOR THE
NEXT THIRTY DAYS
WE WANT TO
CLEAR OUT THE OLD STOCK!
WE WANT TO MAKE ROOM FOR
A New Stock!
We want to get a
Pile of Greenbacks!
And in order to do so we offer our present stock of Dry Goods at
VERY LOW PRICES.
DRESS GOODS,
PRINTS, DELAINES,
HOOP SKIRTS, SHAWLS,
NUBIAS, HOODS, SHEETING
FLANNELS, CLOTHS,
CASSIMERES, WOOLEN
SHIRTING & SHIRTS,
UNDERSHIRTS, DRAWERS,
&c at Cost and
Less than Cost
We Mean
WHAT WE SAY
DO NOT FAIL TO CALL and SEE Us at
NUMBER ONE
BIDWELL'S BLOCK!
TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.

Express Freight,	6:15 A. M
Mail and Express,	1:15 P. M.

GOING NORTH.

Mail and Express,	9:28 A. M.
Accommodation,	6:38 P. M.

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S,
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND,
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD C. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich,

ALFRED JAMES,
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT,
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilets, &c.
Chicao St: Tecumseh, Mich.

P. N. CURTIS,
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER,
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St: Tecumseh, Mich

EDWIN B. WOOD.
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER.
Attorney's, Councellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT,
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & McCOWEN,
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWARD H. HOAG,
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EMLAY & COURTER.
Dealers in Saddles, Harness and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HORACE BREWER.
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

TINDALL, SLAYTON & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS.
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

O. G. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and worker in Jewelry.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. C. SATTERTHWAITE,
Insurance Agent and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT.
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS,
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich,

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL,
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE.
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentists.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT,
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR L. BARNES,
(Late Surgeon in-chelf 3d div 10a. c.)
Physician & Surgeon,
A practitioner of years experience and two years extensive surgical practice in the U. S. Army. Office and residence 2d door north of the M. E. Church. Tecumseh. Mich.

A. J. HOAG,
Successor to WM. REITERMAN & Co,
WHOLESALE DEALER IN
Ambrotype and Photograph Stock,
235 Summit St. - - Toledo, O.

The Tecumseh Herald.
C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.
(One inch of column constitutes a square.)

	1 wk	2 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$ 2.00	$ 6.00	$ 7.50	$10.00
2 Squares	1.75	3.50	8.00	12.00	15 00
3 Squares	2.75	5.00	11.00	16 00	20.00
¼ Column	5.00	9.00	12.00	18.00	25.00
½ Column	7.50	12.00	18.00	25 00	36.00
Column	12 00	15.00	20.00	35.00	60.00

☞ No advertisement considered less than one square Transcient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted one year $3.50 per year.

☞ Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

☞ There are some of our subscribers who have never paid us a cent since we commenced publishing the 'Herald.' To those we would say, we must have our money or we shall place the accounts in an officers hands for collection immediately. A word to the wise is sufficient.

☞ The Universalist Sabbath School will hold their regular monthly Sabbath School Concert in the Universalist church on Sunday evening next, Feb. 25th at 6 1-2 o'clock.

☞ We would advise those who are fond of a good cigar to get one at Gould & Waldo's drug store. We have tried them and found them worthy of "puffing."

☞ Dr. Curtis is selling the best quality of Groceries a little cheaper than anybody else in town. Best Rio Coffee for 35c.; Sugars and Teas equally low and everything else to correspond.

☞ It is understood that the entire stock of the proposed First National Bank of Adrian has been taken and that the bank will commence operations within two or three weeks. The officers have not yet been elected.

☞ President Johnson's emancipation proclamation created a great deal of interest So did C. H. Adam & Co.'s gift entertainment. They would say to their friends that they have again adopted the gift sale system, and are selling their goods at greatly reduced prices. Here is the place to buy, where you can get your goods cheap and a prize "free gratis."

A Big Pile:

The old Phœnix of Hartford paid in losses during the year 1865 the sum of $410,613.31 and paid every loss promptly. It has paid $67,057 in losses in the state of Michigan alone. It's total assets now amount to over one million dollars. All who desire first class reliable insurance should insure with the Phœnix.

DRY GOODS.—Now is the time to buy Dry Goods. For bargains go to R. C. Moore's. You will find the largest and best assortment of Dress Goods, Broadcloths, Flannels, Balmoral and Hoop Skirts, Stripes, Tickings &c., in the market. Go where you can get your money's worth.

Special attention is called to the above mentioned stock of goods before you purchase elsewhere.

A Remarkable Sign.

The Drawer of Harpers Magazine has contained, during the past few years many anecdotes and descriptions of quaint and curious business signs, but a magnificent shingle has recently been put up in our villlage which will challenge comparison with anything of its kind in the State. As we were wending our way the other day toward the Depot, when opposite the livery stable our eyes struck a gorgeous sign on which were blazoned these words "CABNET SHOP REPARING AND UPPOLSTRING DONE HERE." We have heard of a great many different kinds of strings, but we humbly confesss that this article is entirely new to us.

☞ We should apply for a City Charter immediately. A police court is almost a necessity here. We are frequently treated with cases of assault and battery, African pow-wows and the like, but recently we have been regaled with the sickening details of a seduction case.—The offender was Mr. Charles M. Baker of Macon, and the victim a young girl about 14 years of age whose name we refrain from mentioning. The case was brought on for examination before Justice Hewitt, but the matter was compromised by Baker's paying a round sum of money and the prosecution was dropped.

☞ A good time and good place to buy gooks "cheap for cash" is at J. D. Roppins' Jewelry Store, his stock of goods is large and no end to the variety.

The Woolen Factory

The question of a Woolen Factory is being canvassed quite thoroughly here just at present, and we have strong hopes that before another spring comes round we shall have a first class woolen factory in Tecumseh Some of our ablest capitalists have become interested in the matter, and what is still more encouraging, a large number of our best farmers are getting waked up upon the subject. Three different propositions have been talked over. It is proposed either to purchase the Globe Mill property or the Red Mill property or put up a new building. We urge upon our citizens generally the importance of pushing this matter through. We understand that $60,000 have already been subscribed for the purpose of erecting a factory in Clinton, and that one will undoubtedly be built there the coming summer. It is high time therefore that those who are interested in this thing at Tecumseh were at work.

A Fire.

Last Friday morning about 9 o'clock the dwelling house of Wm. VanCamp situated in Potawatamie street in the rear of Judge LeBaron's residence, was discovered to be on fire. The alarm was immediately given, and after much exertions the flames were checked, but not however until it had been damaged by the fire and water to the amount of two or three hundred dollars. The heavy fall of snow upon the roof was undoubtedly the means of preserving the building. Luckily Mr. VanCamp was insured and hense his loss will be slight. This should be a warning to all who are uninsured. No one is exempt from liability to fire.—It is positively the duty of every man to protect himself from loss, in case of fire by reliable insurance. Go then and get the genuine article. Insure without delay in the old Phœnix of Hartford.

S. C. Stacy, Agent.

Sleighing

The heavy fall of snow which the clerk of the weather kindly vouchsafed to us last week has been reinforced by two or three quite respectable storms since, until we now have an abundance of snow and sleighing that can't be beat. The Farmers and the villagers, the young and old, the staid and gay are all bent upon improving the sleighing. Scarcely a night elapses without a sleighing party, and all the available livery rigs command a decided premium. We are doing a flourishing business also in the amusement line, being favored last week with no less than five evening parties, three singing schools, at least ten religious meetings and sleigh rides without number. Well, our advice is to "go in" Such sleighing as this doesn't come but once a year.

Dissolution.

The partnership of Hause & Pelham being dissolved; Dr. E. Hause would hereby say, to his old friends and patrons he has in readiness new Dental Rooms, over Gould & Waldo's Drug Store, opposite the Post-Office, where he is prepared with every facility to do all new, and improved styles of work.

Office hours from 8 to 12 A.M., 1 to 5 P.M

TELL YOUR NEIGHBORS.—It is a duty which every one has suffered from the terrible ravages of that most horrible of all diseases, Dyspepsia, and who has been cured by Coe's Dyspepsia Cure, to tell their freinds and neighbors of it. "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you" is the golden rule.

Every one that has ever used it, knows of its wonderful curative powers Dyspepsia Indigestion, Fatulency, Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Cholera Morbus and we might say, every disease that arises from a disordered state of the stomach and bowels.

☞ A. S. Mathews sold out his meat market and would give notice to all who are indepted to him that he must have his pay immediately.

Corporation Election.

Notice is hereby given to the electors of the village of Tecumseh, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, that the next ensuing general corporation election for said village, will be held on the first Monday of March next, being the 5th day of said month, at Union Hall in said village at which election the following officers are to be chosen to wit: A President, six Trustees, Recorder, Treasurer, Marshall and two Assessors. The polls of said election will be open at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, and will be continued open until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, unless the Board shall, in their discretion adjourn the polls at twelve o'clock, noon, for one hour.

Dated Tecumseh this 17th day Feb 1866.

Charles Burridge, Recorder.

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Mich: Feb. 22, 1866.

Bruce Robert G.	Blood Mrs. Wm.
Blood Mrs. A.	Donly Mrs. C.
Fitch Ensign	Marshall Thomas
Morgan Mrs. J.	Marshall Franklin
Mead A D.	Miller G.
Riley Charles	Tilden & co.

W. ANDERSON, P. M.

☞ The Friends of the Rev. J. Burnham will pay him a Donation visit on the afternoon and evening of Thursday March 1st. All are invited.

The World Renowned Steinway Piano.

The following article from the pen of Wm. Cullen Bryant, the venerable editor of the New York Post, in an editorial in that paper is respectfully submitted to all looking for the best Piano.

THE STEINWAY PIANO.—A marked phase of the literature of the last few months has been the publication of books of musical biography. The letters of Mendelschen and Beethoven have made thousands of readers familiar with the private lives and histories of those remarkable men. And in reading these works one cannot fail to observe the marked disadvantages under which even as recent a musicians as Mendelssohn labored in comparison with those of the present day. The piano-forte artist who is so particular about the instrument on which he expects to perform his new concert polka or his variations on the leading melodies in the latest opera would be horrified if requested to to play on the quaint old-fashioned instrument which the great German master had to use.

A man like Thalbeng, who has been a pianist for nearly a generation, could write an interesting account of the progress made in the art of piano forte making during his experience, and we believe he would acknowledge that in this country this branch of manufacture has develope with the greatest rapidity and the most felecitous effect.

So prominent among the manufactures are Steinway & Sons, that the great majority of cultivated persons in this county, if asked what firm made the best pianos would at once quote this one. The Steinway family seems to have a special "mission" for the manufacture of first-class pianos A father of long experience in the business aided by four sons, formed the firm as it was in 1850 when the elder Steinway emigrated from Europe to this country. He found that in the old ducal town of Brunswick his progressive ideas in regard to the piano-forte were impeded and restricted by the laws of guilds and corporations. He gave up his old establishment to his eldest son, Theodore, and with his other sons began the business in this city. Most of our readers remember the humble, unpretending establishment in Walker street, which was occupied by the Steinways for several years after their name had become a real musical power in the land.

The Steinways of course, at first met with much opposition. They had to make acquantances, and to overcome prejudices They also found so many good piano-forte makers already established here and enjoying a deserved reputation, that they felt the necessaty of further improvements in their own instruments, to made way against the lively competition. They conceived the happy idea of placing the wrapped bass wires diagonally over the middle register in their square pianos, thus bringing the two bass-string bridges toward the middle of the sounding board, and thereby obtaining a quality of tone remarkable for beauty, clearness and sonorousness, and an equality throughout the whole scale never before attained, This improvement was the turning point in the Steinways' career toward fortune and distinction. This invention which which was applied also to their grand pianos in 1859 caused a complete revolution in the manufacture of pianos, not only in this country but al over the work.

The square or horizontal pianos of the Steinways are distinguished, in addition to other advantages, for their remarkably sweet and pliable tone—a quality excluded from the guard on account of the thickness of its strings and their direction in a straight line, which of necessity, conditions an unwieldy massiveness of sound. The peculiar beauty and mouldable character of tone in the square pianos is the result of the rotary vibration of the strings produced by the blow of the hammer (transversal vibration); whereas the straight lined strings of the grand admit of but an up and down motion. In order, therefore, to overcome this disadvantage, the Steinways adjusted the strings in their grands in such a way that the treble [which would loose in tone by a rotation) retains the original direction of its strings, paralell to the blow of the hammer-head, while toward the middle and bass their course gradually assumes a transversal position, and that they run over and above the others diagonlly at a point where from the want of room consequent upon the shape of the instrument, such a course becomes desiragle. In addition to the increase of tone thus gained by the throwing the strings over the middle of the sounding-board, thre important advantages were obtained:

First, the bridges were by that means removed from the sides of the instrument towards its middle producing a greatly increased volume of tone

Lecond, the sweet and pliable tone peculiar to the square were thus permanantly secured to the grand piano

Third, the aditional length of string, so important in some positions and unattainable in the itraight stringed grand, was satisfactorily arrived at

The Steinways have won prizes at many great fairs and campetive exhibitions: but their most splended triumph was realized at the last World's Fair in London in 1862, when they bore off the first prize—a gold medal. This prize was awarded by a jury which included Stendale, Bennett, Pauer and Fétis; and the name of Steinway became as prominent in Europe as in America. A trans Atlantic demand for their pianos sprung up at once Agencies were established abroad, and the Steinway piano is now to be found in the most refined homes of England, Germany, France, Holland Spain and even in Turkey To show their celebrity in far-off Rusia, we quote the letter the Lteinways received from the court pianist, the celebrated Dreyschock:

"St Petersburg, September 29, 1865.

"Messrs. Steinway & Sons; I cannot refrain from expressing to you my undisguised admiration of your in every respects matchless grand pianos, (which I used at my last concert in Bounswick,) and I desire nothing in the world so much as to be able to perform upon one of these masterpiece here.

"Send me, therefore, care of Johann David Hoerle & Co., in St. Petersburg, one of your Concert Grand Pianos, of course at most moderate artist's price, and inform me without delay, in which manuer I can best remit the purchase money to you.

"Respectfully youro,
"Alexander Dreyschock"

The most eminent American pianists and musicians in this country—such men as Mills, Mason, Goldbeck, Heller, Anschutz and Bergmann agree with Dreyschock in their admiration of the Steinway Piano.

True to their once adopted motto—"Progress,"—the Messrs. Steinway never for a single moment halted in their onward march of improvement, and have, quite recently, still further perfected their instruments.

By their "patent agroffe," arrangement viz, their bebuliar application of "agrofees" to the treble strings of their pianos, by attaching these to the solid iron frame [which is intact] of the instrument, instead of a separate piece, the greatest possible firmness is secured, together with a vastly increased quantity of tone, as well as a highly sympathetic, pure and sonorous quality.

A new grand piano played upon by Mr. Mills at a late concert of the Philharmonic Society [at the Academy of Music] which was constructed upon an entirely new scale —by its wonderful capacity and grandeur of tone challenged anew the admiration of the musical world, and that to an extent which cannot fail once more to stimulate attempts at imitation on the part of other makers.

In the meantime the Steinways will continue to avail themselves of all possible improvements in the construction of their pianos. When pressing the keys of their superb "grands," it is difficult for the player to imagine anything superior in the piano-forte line. The foture is, however teeming with possibilities; and the energy and skill of the Steinways prove that, if further improvements can be made be made, they are the men to make them. While the greatest pianists of the age, as well as the myriads of amateur players, are more than satisfied with the Steinway piano, we have but one regret—that Mozart, Mendelssohn, Beethoven and the other great masters, could not have enjoyed them too

F R. & F. G. Stebbins at Stebbins' Furniture rooms at adsian, are sole agents for this city and county, and are selling cheaper than any other parties in the west.

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Navy, and Bridget Navy, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March. A. D. 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber 'M' of Mortgages, on folios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] two, on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village, (now city] of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid. Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriett A. Bradbury on the twenty-first day of March, A D. 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 17th day of February, A D 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, which said mortgage, was afterwards, to wit: on the eighth day of February, A. D. 1866 duly assigned by said Harriett A Bradbury to Addison J Comstock, which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money; and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents, [$573,12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty third day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage.

ADDISON J. COMSTOCK,
Assignee of said mortgage.

M. N. HALSEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb. 21, 1866.

What is the Matter!
The Fact is the new firm of
SLAYTON TINDALL & Co.
are selling
FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT!
By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff. And all the people are rushing for it. Come on we have a large stock of such wheat on hand yet, also
BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,
CORN MEAL,
PLASTER,
WATER LIME.
CLOVER SEED,
TIMOTHY SEED,
CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF
Grain and Seeds!!
TINDALL, SLAYTON, & CO.
Tecumseh, Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

THIRD VOLUME.
A Paper for the Soldier, the Sailor, and for the Family Circle.
HARRY HAZEL'S
YANKEE BLADE,
PUBLISHED WEEKLY.
Devoted to facts, fiction, and the romance and spice of the universal yankee nation.
Each number of the Blade will be stored with a choice collection of interesting, amusing exciting instructive, first class stories, tales of battles and adventures at sea and on land, marvelous legends, drum head sermon, comic sketches, wit and humor, poetry, news and general information for millions.
Terms, $3 a year, or $2 for 8 months, in advance. Single copies may be obtained of Newsmen, and at Periodical Depots throughout the United States and the British Provinces, at 7 cents per copy.
Address, JONES & Co., Publishers,
32 Congress Street, Boston.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

Communication between New York and Brooklyn was nearly suspended by the ice on the 16th and 17th. One vessel was stove in and sunk, destroying a valuable cargo of tobacco and cotton.

Advices from China say that the arrival of Sir Rutherford Alcock, British minister, in Pekin had caused the Chinese empress to abandon the throne, and yield control of the empire to Prince Kung, who has heretofore favored the policy of opening the celestial empire to foreign intercourse.

The agricultural societies of 10 states have memorialized the president to remove Isaac Newton, commissioner of agriculture.

Wm. Dodson, an old and respectable citizen of Cass county, residing near Mendota, was murdered by his son-in-law, Samuel Mitchell, in his own house, on the 16th. Mitchell has been arrested, and will be tried for the infamous offence.

A Washington special says the freedmen's bill will certainly be vetoed by the president.

The House was in session as usual on the 17th, for purposes of debate. Only some 20 members were present, with about 100 spectators. Three speeches were made, by Cook, of Illinois, Lawrence of Ohio, and Culloch, of Illinois, on reconstruction. All three opposed the present admission of southern members.

During a quarrel between the Speaker of the Tennessee House of Representatives and one of the members, yesterday, the former hurled his mallet at the latter's head.

General Lee is in Washington, and was to-day examined by the Reconstruction Committee of Congress.

A messenger of the United States Express Company was garroted and robbed of $40,000 in St. Louis, this morning.

The storm of Feb. 14th was for severity unprecedented since Jan. 1st, 1864. Every railroad out of Chicago, except the Northwestern, was blockaded by snow, and the cold, weather and gale was felt as far south as New Orleans, where the mercury stood at 24 degrees; at St. Paul 40 below; Chicago 20 below; Washington 8 above, and St. Louis 13 below. The severity of the cold was greatly intensified by the violent winds.

The bank of Liberty, Mo., was robbed by bushwhackers of $72,000, on Tuesday, the 13th inst.

Carl Schurz has been chosen editor of the Detroit Post (soon to be started), at a salary of $6,000 a year.

The Kentucky Senate has adopted the House resolutions requesting the removal of the Federal troops from that State, condemning the Freedmen's Bureau, asking for the restoration of the habeas corpus, and rejecting the emancipation amendment to the national constitution.

There have been but 200 cases of small pox in Buffalo, instead of 2,000, as previously reported.

A Washington despatch says that an attempt is being made to effect a compromise on the Freedmen's Bureau bill—the Tennessee delegation to be at once admitted into Congress, in consideration of the signature of the bill by the President.

The safe of the Treasurer of Berks Co., Pa., in Reading, was blown open on the night of the 15th, with gunpowder. It contained $10,000. The burglars were disturbed before they secured the money, and fled, leaving their tools and implements behind.

The Spanish successor to the late Admiral Pareja has been instructed to annihilate every habitation on the South American coast within reach of his guns, and to immediately regain possession of the Chincha Islands.

Having dates to the 9th, report the arrival of Napoleon's commissioner at that place en route for Vera Cruz. The Imperialists have gained a success by the surrender to them of Rapaatta by Liberal Generals, but have met with reverses in Mazatlin and Sinlo. City of Mexico papers are demanding reparation of the United States for the seizure of Bagdad.

The Republicans of Connecticut have nominated General Joseph R. Hawley of Hartford as their candidate for Governor.

The Union Republican State Convention of Indiana meets at Indianapolis on the 22d.

The Richmond Examiner office was closed on the 13th, by order of General Grant. In the course of conversation since then he hinted that it was his determination to squelch all other treasonable sheets in the South.

European dates by the steamer Bremen are to Jan. 31,—three days later.....The Italian Ministry has prepared a bill for the suppression of religious corporations..... Several vessels bearing Chilian colors have appeared of Valencia, Sprin, and pursued Spanish Tripping.....The cattle plague is still on the increase in England.

The manufacture of the new Atlantic telegraph cable has begun at Birmingham, England. The new cable will be the same as the last in size, material and quality. The company intend to pick up the cable already partially laid.

In consequence of expressions employed by Mr. Bancroft in his address on Mr. Lincoln, the Austrian Minister has refused an introduction to him, and the British Minister declined to attend a dinner party at which the orator was to be present.

Missouri objects to the sum apportioned to her by the Congressional Committee on the War expenditures of the loyal States—claiming $8,000,000 more than she is allowed.

In the Circuit Court of Effingham county, Illinois, on the 5th inst., five men were sentenced to be hung on the 16th prox., for the murder of David M. Shepherd. An effort is being made to secure a commutation of the sentence.

The race between the Winooski and Algonquin had to be abandoned on account of a storm on Long Island Sound. The Winooski was 65 miles ahead at the time,—her average speed being 12 knots and that of the Algonquin 9½ knots.

The House Judiciary Committee have rejected the bill fixing the death penalty for counterfeiting fractional currency.

G. B. Lamar, Sr., the cotton swindler, has been sentenced, by the Military Commission to three years imprisonment and to pay a fine of $20,000.

Services in commemoration of President Lincoln were held at the National Capitol on the 12th, before both Houses of Congress the President and Cabinet, the Supreme Court, the Diplomatic Corps, and other dignitaries. The address was pronounced by George Bancroft, who spoke for about two hours and a half. All the Governmental departments were closed during the day, and Congress transacted no business not connected with the solemn ceremonial.

Mr. Bancroft, previous to the delivery of his oration on Mr. Lincoln, caused an intimation to be given to the English and French Ministers, that the address would contain passages relative to their Government, to which they might consider it unpleasant to listen.

There is a rumor at Washington that the Hon. George Bancroft will be appointed Secretary of State "at some future period."

The fate of Mr. Jenckes's bankrupt bill is now considered doubtful,—Mr. Stevens of Pennsylvania having taken ground against it, alleging that it would benefit disloyal men at the expense of loyal ones.

A severe storm of snow and wind prevailed throughout the West on the 14th, and an intense degree of cold was experienced. At Leavenworth, Kansas, the thermometer indicated a temperature of 16 degrees below zero. Railroads were much obstructed. On the same day at San Francisco, California, the mercury was 73 degrees above zero,—Summer weather.

The Ohio House has passed a bill fixing eight hours as a day's labor. The vote stood 70 to 14.

The State Department has received proofs of a conspiracy in Canada and Europe against United States finances. The plan of the conspirators is to create a panic in European markets in regard to United States securities, and, by forcing home our bonds held abroad to bring on a financial crisis here and prostrate the financial interests of the country. The principal conspirator in Canada is one Vernon, who is in correspondence with the Rothschilds, Hope & Co. of Amsterdam, Earl Russell and the London Times.

A new steamship company for the New York and San Francisco service, via Panama, in opposition to the Pacific Mail, has been organized at New York with a capital of $4,000,000.

Right Reverend John B. Fitzpatrick, Catholic Bishop of Boston, died on the 12th inst., aged fifty-three years.

Jennison, the Kansas jayhawker, it is reported, has become a brigadier in the Fenian service, and is going to Canada.

It is reported that several heavy cannon have been purchased for Gen. Sweeny, the Fenian Secretary of War.

A letter from President Juarez says that the Imperialists are consuming their last resources, and are becoming demoralized. He is very hopeful of the success of the Republican cause in Mexico, even without the military aid of the United States.

A natural cave, 1,000 feet in length, has been discovered under the Minnehaha brewery in St. Louis.

A gang of seven horse thieves were recently hanged by a vigilance committee at Saltillo, Miss.

The Kentucky, Legislature has passed a bill taxing the negroes of that State $4 each for the support of the colored paupers.

Colts, the alleged Lake Erie pirate, was brought before a Court in New York on the 12th, on a writ of habeas corpus,—the Government making no return,—and was discharged.

One-Armed Berry, the guerrilla, has been found guilty, by a military commission at Louisville, of eleven different murders, and has been sentenced to be hung on the 3d prox.

Gen. Osband contradicts the report of his murder, and asserts that Mississippi is loyal.

The President of the Texas State Convention, Mr. Throckmorton, is stated by a New Orleans telegram to have been a strenuous opponent of secession. A despatch from Austin says that, after organizing, the first move of the Convention was to vote down, by 41 to 39, a motion to take the amnesty oath prescribed by President Johnson.

The Concord (N. H.) Railroad Company has discovered that conductors and other parties have been engaged extensively in embezzlement of its funds and issue of spurious tickets, and has attached property of the parties to the amount of $10,000.

The citizens of Michigan City, Ind., at the head of Lake Michigan, are still "agitating" the subject of making a good harbor at that place. Of the $200,000 that will be needed to insure the success of the enterprise, about $100,000 has already been subscribed, and the citizens are sanguine of their ability to raise the remainder.

The proposition to amend the Constitution of Minnesota, making intelligence instead of color a qualification of suffrage, has been rejected by the lower House of the Legislature.

CONGRESSIONAL.

In the Senate, on the 13th, the credentials of Lewis C. Parsons as Senator from Alabama, were presented, and laid on the table. Mr. Fessenden, from the Reconstruction Committee, reported a constitutional amendment, as follows: "Congress shall have power to make all laws necessary and proper to secure to the citizens of each State the privileges and immunities of citizens of the several States equal protection in the rights of life, liberty, and property." A resolution was adopted, instructing inquiry as to what legislation is needed to protect passengers on Western steamboats from the dangers incident to tubular boilers. The bill fixing the military peace establishment was reported. The constitutional amendment fixing the basis of representation was discussed, and Mr. Sumner offered an amendment exempting disfranchised classes from all taxation.

In the House, on the 13th, a resolution was offered, and referred to the Committee on Foreign relations, reaffirming the Monroe doctrine, and requesting the President to take steps to secure an alliance with all the republics on this continent, for the purpose of resisting the encroachments of foreign powers. A motion to admit a Representative elect from Arkansas to the privileges of the floor was defeated by eight majority. The Reconstruction Committee reported the constitutional amendment referred to in the synopsis of Senate proceedings. The Committee on Elections reported relative to the contested election case in the 5th District of Michigan,—the majority in favor of Mr. Trowbridge, the occupant of the seat, and the minority in favor of Mr. Baldwin, the contestant.

In the Senate, on the 14th, a petition was presented from the Representatives elect from Tennessee asking that the present State Government be recognized as the true and proper Government of the State. A bill was introduced making an appropriation for the survey of the Upper Mississippi and Minnesota rivers, with a view of improving the navigation of these streams. The constitutional amendment relative to the basis of representation was considered.

In the House, on the 14th, a bill was passed authorizing the placing at the disposal of the New York Quarantine Commissioners such vessels not needed by the Government, as they may require. A bill was introduced establishing a National Bureau of Education. The Committee of Ways and Means was ordered to inquire into the expediency of graduating or ad valorem taxes on cigars and other manufactured tobacco. In the contested election case from the 5th district of Michigan, Mr. Trowbridge (Republican) was confirmed in the possession of his seat.

In the Senate, on the 15th, a bill was reported authorizing the erection of a bridge over the Mississippi at St. Louis. Mr. Sumner presented a protest of the colored delegation which waited upon the President against the constitutional amendment fixing the basis of representation. The bill to prevent and punish kidnapping was passed.

In the House, on the 15th, the bill authorizing the Postmaster General to deposit postage stamps and stamped envelopes with such persons as he may select was discussed. The miscellaneous appropriation bill was considered. In the evening, speeches on reconstruction were delivered by Messrs Newell, Strouse and Defrees.

In the Senate, on the 16th, a bill was passed allowing appeals from the Court of Claims to the U. S. Supreme Court. The constitutional amendment was taken up, a speech made by Mr. Hendricks of Indiana. A bill was introduced to prevent the delivery of letters to fictitious addresses, and to punish the mailing of circulars to induce investments in lotteries.

In the House, on the 16th, a bill was reported to reimburse the loyal States for their war expenditures. The total amount of such expenditures is about $475,000,000, —those of Illinois being $30,000,000. The committee reporting a bill recommend that the claims be settled by the payment of 25 per cent. thereof, or $55 for each man furnished, on the three years' basis. A bill was introduced providing punishment for the throwing of railroad cars from the track. Objection was made to the introduction of a resolution proposing a constitutional amendment, that no person who held office under the rebel Government shall ever be eligible to office under the Government of the United States.

INCIDENTS AND ACCIDENTS.

A conductor of a horse car in New York city, while drunk, lately stabbed three of his passengers.

Annie Gibble, a young girl in St. Louis, poured kerosene from a can on the fire, on Monday, to kindle it, when the contents of the can exploded, burning her terribly, but not fatally.

Mrs. J. A. Gaylord, wife of a prominent banker of St. Louis, was badly burned on the 18th by her clothes taking fire at a grate in her residence, and died on the 15th.

Four young men of Evansville, Ind., while attempting to cross the Ohio river at that place, on the evening of Feb. 14th, during the storm, were drowned by the swamping of their boat.

During the snow storm on the same day at LaCrosse, Wis., a stage coach, full of passengers, came in collision with a gate, the balance-pole of which ran through the coach, seriously injuring six persons.

A passenger train on the Rock Island road collided with a freight train near Moline on the 14th, by which two persons were killed and several injured.

A train on the Rochester & Syracuse road was thrown down an embankment near Whitehall, N. Y., on the 14th. Six passengers and one employee of the road were injured—two of them severely.

Geo. Kile, living near Freeport, Ill., a few days since accidentally killed his little brother under the following circumstances; George was loading his gun, intending to go to a neighbor's some distance off. Lucian ran into the house in great haste, passing by the muzzle of the gun just at the moment that George was letting the hammer down on the cap. In some unaccountable manner the gun went off and lodged the contents in Lucian's neck, killing him instantly.

A young man attempted to leap on a train moving slowly across the bridge at Rockville, Pa., but he missed his step, and fell through the open bridge to the canal below, his head striking the ice. His brains were dashed out and his body horribly bruised—he having fallen more than 50 feet.

The other evening, at Bloomington, Ill., the daughter of Mr. Peter Whitmer, accidentally pushed a kerosene lamp from the table where she was reading, and as it broke it set fire to the oil. Mr. W. instantly smothered the fire with shawls, pillows, etc., thinking he had a narrow escape from conflagration. To his surprise, in a few minutes he heard a fire behind the plastering of the wall, roaring like a chimney. Some of the liquid fire had crept through a crevice in the floor, not over the twentieth of an inch wide, and ignited the woodwork in the ceiling. He broke it through, put out the lower part of the fire, and was then obliged to break through from the outside, and also in the second story, before he could save the house.

The Great Western Railway freight house at Detroit took fire on the night of the 9th. The fire was shortly extinguished, but the damage to freight was considerable. The Merchants' Despatch Company were the greatest losers.

A school teacher named Pierce, at St. Omer, Decatur county, Indiana, was murdered on the 7th inst., by a young fellow named Favors. Pierce was correcting a younger brother of Favors, for some misdemeanor, when the latter struck the teacher on the head with a stick of wood, breaking the skull.

Lions and tigers "at play" are not comfortable companions, as John D. Hurlbut, a Connecticut farmer, found to his sad experience on paying a visit to Danbury, last week, where a menagerie is in winter quarters. He visited the barn, on invitation, and ventured to put his hand upon a lion, being assured by the keeper who was handling him, that he could do so with safety. Instantly the lion seized Mr. H. by the right wrist with his teeth, and pulled him with such violence and rapidity to the grates of the cage in which the animal was confined, that Mr. H. received a large and severe bruise just below the shoulder. With rare presence of mind he offered no resistance, and in this manner probably saved his hand. He was held by the lion in this position a full minute, until some one procured a board and struck the animal over the head, when, partially releasing its hold to growl at the assailant, Mr. H. was enabled to withdraw his hand—but in so doing the under tooth of the lion raked the flesh open from the wound on the wrist to the center of the hand. The wound is a very bad and poisonous one, and Mr. Hurlburt has suffered intensely from it.

Thirty or forty prisoners made an attempt, on the 11th, to break out of the jail at Louisville. While an officer was engaged in locking them up for the night, as usual, they seized him, took from him the cell keys, threw them into the cistern, and then set themselves to work with clubs, stones, sticks, and anything else they could lay hands upon to break down the doors, windows, walls, etc. The city jailor, assisted by a number of policemen, quelled the mutiny by firing a volley into the midst of the rioters, hitting the ringleader, named Beauvoint, in the forehead. The prisoners were then locked into their cells, and heavily ironed.

Mr. Isaac Eaton, of Antrim, N. H., committed suicide on the 4th inst., by cutting his throat with a razor. He was the last of three brothers, all of whom have taken their own lives.

Robert Remphill was accidently killed at a charivari, at the house of Jacob Turnbaugh, near Bayville, Pike county, Ill., last week. He was shot through the head by some one of the crowd with which he was, and died instantly.

A fire, on the 14th, destroyed the car house of the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad Company, opposite St. Louis. Loss $40,000.

A man was removing the ice from a waterwheel in Rochester, when it started, killing him instantly by crushing his head against a beam.

Eleven men were frozen to death in the vicinity of Hamilton, Fillmore county, Minn., on the night of the 20th ult. Six of them were frozen in a sleigh while passing along the road. Another man was found frozen in a standing posture with his hands over his face, and only three or four rods from a house.

The Old World in a Crisis.

FLORENCE, Jan. 2, 1866.

The dictionary definition of the word crisis is, "the period in a disease when nature makes an effort to save the patient." After mature deliberation I have arrived at the conviction that not only Italy, but the King, his ministers and the members of the Chamber of Deputies are all sick, and that Dame Naturp will have a hard task to cure them all.

A rapid glance at the different countries of Europe will suffice to show that all the nations are very sick and laboring under crisis induced by various causes, according to position.

Austria, our cherished friend and neighbor, is at present suffering from a Hungarian, Venetian, Croation, Slavonic, Germanic, Polish and financial crisis, and in order to save herself she must either possess an iron constitution, or have a miracle worked in her favor.

England is under a crisis owing to the death of Lord Palmerston and the coalition between Earl Russell and Mr. Bright, from which the tories may have to suffer. With regard to the Fenian movement this is worse than a disease—it is a frightful plague, which is spreading with a loathsome and alarming rapidity.

Prussia is suffering from indigestion caused by having devoured Schleswig-Holstein in too great haste, and Dr. Von-Bismark finds that his pills are not sufficiently efficacious to give her ensement.

The crisis in Russia is due to the enfranchisement of the serfs, in consequence of which the aristocracy, the Poles and the Caucasians are giving considerable trouble.

Spain, although an orthodox Catholic country, has undergone a succession of crises, and doubtless, the circumstance that she is still alive is to to be attributed to the fervent papers of Sister Patrocinio and Father Claret; but, having incurred the displeasure of the Holy See by recognizing the kingdom of Italy, she is likely to grow worse, and even to perish utterly notwithstanding that she has twenty five frigates at command, which are now being got ready to proceed to sea and destroy the republic of Chile.

Greece has been sick for a long while, and appears almost incurable. Every week at least the demise of a Cabinet is announced, and the creation of a new one from its ashes occurs.

With the death of Leopold I.—the shrewdest sovereign of Europe—Belgium has lost a ruler who was ever able to prevent the liberal and Catholic parties from coming into collision. The new sovereign has a strong partiality for the clerical party, and the interests of the country may suffer unless he possesses the talent, tact and firmness of his father.

The new Emperor Maximilian—despite the patronage of La Grande Nation, and the aid of Austrian, Belgian, Saxon, Bavarian and Egyptian volunteers—is on the verge of a crisis which threatens serious danger to himself and to Mexico. It cannot last much longer, and the least unfavorable result that can ensue will be that he may be obliged to return for safety to Miramon, notwithstanding that he is protege of La Grande Nation.

France is not in a healthy condition, owing to the determination of the government to cut down the old trees in the Luxemburg Gardens, and supply their places with buildings and erecting new ones in their stead.

In the Danubian principalities Prince Couza meets with little favor. In Turkey the Sultan is reckoning how much longer his race will last in Europe. Without describing the crisis existing in Persia, Japan and China, and other countries more or less civilized, I would call attention to the crisis in which the potentate at Rome finds himself at present. If he does not break away from the idea of temporal power he will find his spiritual supremacy greatly impaired.

As the whole world seems to be in a state of crisis, it is not surprising that the kingdom of Italy should also be in a disordered condition; and as it is but a very young kingdom it must of course pass through all the diseases of infancy, conformably with the law of nature.

The State physicians should, however, take care not to administer too much medicine to the youthful patient, for fear that the existence of Italy might be imperilled. The symptoms are alternate heat and cold at the extremities, and malignant tumors near the middle; and as the doctors called in differ as to the nature of the disease and the proper mode of treatment, it seems most politic to leave the patient for a few months at least to the care of the greatest of all physicians—Nature.

The condition of Italy is most serious, and that which renders it still more grave is that we are not certain of the future action of our public men, or even of their continuance in office. The partisan press contributes not a little towards keeping up this state of confusion, and instead of being a beacon, its object at present seems to be to mislead public opinion.

At Turin there is very little security for either property or life. It is actually dangerous to walk the streets with a watch or money in one's pocket after dark, and yet the citizens pay a tax of seventy-eight thousand francs for police protection.

The owners of houses are undergoing a crisis, because, owing to their avarice and stupidity, they prefer to have their houses empty rather than to reduce their rents.

There is a crisis among the newspapers also, the number of subscribers and readers having fallen off considerably of late, in consequence of the eternal monotony of the political articles.

H——, of Yale, Professor of a dead language yet fully alive to his own, gave this advice to the tobacco chewers of his class: "Those who expec-to-rate on the floor, cannot expect to rate high in my estimation!" —Harper's Monthly.

CLEANINGS.

—The Queen of England is now sovereign over, it is said, 1 continent, 100 peninsulas, 600 promontories, 1,000 lakes, 2,000 rivers and 10,000 islands. Her subjects number more than 150,000,000. By a wave of her hand, she can summon an army of 500,000 soldiers, and a navy of 1,000 ships of war. But prudent Britannia will not let her wave her hand.

—A member of the national House of Representatives sent a resolution to the Clerk's desk to be read. That individual was unequal to the task, and upon asking the member to send his copy, writing, the worthy member failed.

—A Maine paper says if the wells are not replenished by rain soon, the Maine Law must be repealed, to allow the people something to drink.

—The Muscatine (Iowa) Journal reports the discovery, by some choppers in that vicinity, of a plow, clevis deeply imbedded out of sight in an oak tree which was fifteen inches in diameter.

—Donald McKay, the distinguished shipbuilder, of East Boston, has lately returned from Europe, where he thoroughly inspected the iron-clad navies of France and England. He says that our Navy Department has constructed, built, and equipped since 1861, an iron-clad fleet more powerful than all the iron-clad navies of the world combined, and decrees the Dunderberg, built by Mr. Webb, in New York city, to be equal to all the French iron-clads, of which we have heard so much praise.

—Chester B. Churchill, living near Canton, Ill., has buried five children within forty days. They all died of typhus fever. A sixth child was attacked with the same disease, but is now convalescent.

—The Church of the Puritans, Union Square, New York, of which Rev. Dr. Cheevers is pastor, is about to be sold, and the congregation intend to move further up town.

—Old wall paper, several layers thick, gets blamed for numerous cases of typhoid fever at Rochester. That is what makes the White House unhealthy; paper which was laid in Madison's time was lately stripped off.

—A burglar stole $7,000 worth of jewelry from Nathan Matthew's house in New York, the other night, and $3,000 reward was offered for its return. The thief wrote a polite note to Mr. Matthews, accepting the terms and arranging the details of the exchange, which were scrupulously carried out, no questions being asked.

—Since the census of 1860, the population of Rome has increased 30,000. The city has now 207,338 inhabitants, 2,368 of whom are cardinals, bishops and priests, 2,736 monks, and 2,117 nuns.

—There are in San Francisco, according to the directory, 119,000 inhabitants. Of these, there are 376 lawyers, 58 apothecaries and 248 physicians. There are 23 printing offices, 1,722 liquor shops, and 29 breweries.

—A letter was received at the Executive Mansion a day or two since, from Michigan, directed to President Johnson, of which the following is a literal copy, the name of the writer only being suppressed:

DUPLAIN, Jan. 30the, 66.

MR. PRESIDENT SIR.....

I want to ask a small favor from your excelency, which you hang Jeff. Davis please send me his glass eye for a marble for there aint a union boy in Michigan better entitled to it.....and I will remain your affectionate friend. P. H.

—Moses Heard, of South Thomaston, Me., is 74 years of age, has not drank a drop of liquor since he was three years old, and has risen before the sun every morning for forty years.

—A breach of promise suit was tried in Wilkesbarre, Pa., recently, which attracted much attention. The plaintiff was an attractive lady, 23 years of age, named Bradley, and the defendant a well-to-do widower of 62 years, named Reynolds. The jury gave a verdict in favor of the lady for $24,000, the whole amount claimed.

—The number of steamboats lost in the western and southwestern rivers since December 18th last is twenty-five, valued at $1,140,000.

—There are thirty-three Senators in Wisconsin and thirty employes. A motion was recently made to hire three more employes, so that each Senator can have one.

—A prisoner recently escaped from Sing Sing by putting on citizens' clothes, coolly appropriating a team in the prison yard, and driving through the gate.

—A man named Roy, 102 years of age, was chopping wood, last week, near Watertown Junction, Wis., by way of recreation.

—The London Times mentions a romance of Colney Hatch Asylum. Some years ago, there were in Colney Hatch a young man and a young woman, who made each other's acquaintance at one of the monthly balls given for the amusement of the inmates. Mad though they were, they carried on an innocent courtship, and, despite the vigilance of the officials, managed a written correspondence. Both recovered after their discharge, having renewed their courtship, married happily. So far as is known at the asylum, neither has had a relapse of insanity.

—Two hundred and eleven millions one hundred and twenty-five thousand five hundred and twenty-nine dollars and seventeen cents were collected by the Internal Revenue Bureau in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1865. This amount was contributed by the various States as follows: Maine, $2,408,867.11; New Hampshire, $2,424,917.21; Vermont, $773,658.27; Massachusetts, $28,250,866.96; Rhode Island, $3,946,856.68; Connecticut, $6,009,998.84; New York, $48,940,566.60; New Jersey, $7,157,012.52; Pennsylvania, $27,811,537.63; Delaware, $766,208.13; Maryland, $4,066,085.36; Virginia, $219,863.36; West Virginia, $598,276.51; Kentucky, $4,591,346.32; Tennessee, $1,516,967.73; Louisiana, $1,616,188.54; Ohio, $15,296,123.44; Indiana, $4,571,521.39; Illinois, $9,174,370.81; Michigan, $2,544,025.01; Wisconsin, $1,775,200.19; Minnesota, $240,949.78; Iowa, $1,669,161.54; Missouri, $5,243,540.89; Kansas, $209,578.63; California, $3,840,876.95; Oregon, $158,191.14; Nevada, $286,278.27; Colorado, $130,052.01; Nebraska, $56,054.50; New Mexico, $15,092.58; Utah, $41,525.93; Washington, $76,740.63; Montana, $36,022.93.

The largest tax from a single source was from manufacturers and productions, exceeding $104,000,000. Cotton and woolen manufactures each paid about $8,000,000; distilled spirits, $16,000,000; tobacco, $7,000,000; licenses, $12,000,000; incomes, $20,000,000; dividends, $14,000,000; and stamps, $11,000,000.

—The streams and wells are very low in New Hampshire, and in many places the farmers have to carry water long distances for the use of their families and stock. Such scarcity of water in the winter time was never known before.

—Evidently the old order of things on the Mississippi is restored! People must begin to feel at home, for the steamboats are blowing up every day, just as they used to in the good old times of peace.

—Work on the Hoosac tunnel, which was suspended last fall on account of the flow of water, has been resumed again. The new shaft has been sunk 40 feet, and the central 255 feet.

—A niece of Mrs. Polk, widow of ex-President Polk, was married in Nashville recently, at a day wedding, with twenty-four attendants—twelve ladies and twelve gentlemen.

—There is a great deal of religious excitement in the University of Middletown, Conn. All the students but six have experienced religion. Never was such a work known in that institution.

—[illegible] nothing except the money is in your pocket. Have no account current at the grocer's or butcher's. Go without new clothes until you can pay for them. Give your note to no hand to nobody. Eschew credit. Deal for cash only.

—Boston ice is now used daily in Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Hong Kong, Whampoa and Batavia.

—A girl at Manchester, Vermont, has six grandmothers, whose ages range from 40 to 80.

—During December fifty Post-mistresses were appointed.

—The Unitarians have subscribed $121,429.39 for the endowment of Antioch College. In Providence, alone, the sum of $29,500 was raised.

—Under the title "Clergymen for sale Cheap," the Round Table lectures the clergymen who recommend pianos, washing-machines, pills and other commodities, "for a consideration," and it gives a list of more than twenty clergymen whose names are advertised as indorsing various notions. How many of these are paid for the use of their names is not said.

—A noted spiritualist, Dr. Randolph, says now that after an experience of five years as a medium, it is his candid opinion that spiritualism is one-third imposture, one-third insanity, and one-third diabolism, and that insanity is the usual fate of trance mediums.

—There is a woman in Charlestown, N. H., who has a collection of tame toads in her yard. They know their mistress, follow her, and hop in her lap to be fed, and are tenderly cared for.

—The Luzerne Union tells of a breach of promise case in which a lady, 23 years of age obtained a verdict of $14,000 against a repudiating lover of 62.

—The famous "Damascus blades" are proved, previously to grinding, by striking them upon stones, ramrods and gun-barrels. They may even be struck violently upon wheel tires, or heavy pieces of iron, without injury to the hammered edge.

—Eighty thousand well to do Germans emigrated to this country during the last year, according to the London Times.

—The expense of lighting up the Hall of Representatives at Washington with gas is $150 a night, and the cost of heating is $25 additional.

—No less than thirteen persons were hung in different parts of the United States, during the month of January.

—A few years ago a druggist of Portland purchased a lot of rhubarb at 50 cents per pound. Last week he sold a large quantity of the same to a Boston firm for $5.50 per pound. A snug little margin for profit, that.

—29,000,000 of people in America read more paper than the 30,000,000 millions of England and France together, and one American read more than four Frenchmen.

—The Archbishop of Paris stated in the Senate two years ago, that the suicides in France averaged ten a day, and the infanticides as many.

—Damascus is the oldest city in the world. Tyre and Sidon have crumbled on the shore; Baalbec is a ruin; Palmyra lies buried in the sands of the desert; Nineveh and Babylon have disappeared from the shores of the Tigris and Euphrates. Damascus remains what it was before the days of Abraham—a centre of trade and travel, an island of verdure in a desert, "a predestinated capital," with martial and sacred associations extending beyond thirty centuries.

—Two sharp boys in Waterbury, Conn., twelve years old each, have started a local newspaper. They do the editing, composition and press-work themselves, and sell their own paper on the street. The sheet measures seven inches by nine.

—The Altoona Tribune reports the shooting of a gray eagle near that place, measuring 7 feet 2 inches from tip to tip of its wings.

—Seven burglars entered M. Arsene Houssaye's house, at present unoccupied in Paris; they were heard by neighbors, information was given the police, the house was surrounded, and when the police entered, they found the burglars seated around a fire made with the costly furniture, roasting a chicken, and drinking the best wines.

—Polygamy is not very fruitful of revenue, whatever it may be in other respects. Utah, with 100,000 inhabitants, only pays $30,000 into the United States treasury this year, whilst Colorado, with 30,000 inhabitants, contributes $106,000.

—Many colored women and children are making $1 a day by digging out bullets in the soil about Petersburg and selling them for old lead.

—There are in the United States sixty-four towns and villages by the name of "Liberty." Maine, Michigan, Illinois, and New York have one each, containing 1,116, 891, and 2,612 inhabitants. Arkansas has three, with 1,300 inhabitants. Iowa has two, with 1,811 inhabitants. Pennsylvania has seven, with 5,781 inhabitants. Missouri has five, with 2,089 inhabitants. Virginia has sixteen, with 14,205 inhabitants. Ohio has twenty-five, with 20,697 inhabitants. Total 64,579. The smallest "Liberty" is in Keokuk county, Iowa, which has a population of 5. The largest "Liberty" is in Highland county, Ohio, which has a population of 4,075.

—Judge Russell, of New York, got a reputation a few years ago for sentencing a garroter to 40 years imprisonment. It has recently come out that the next week after the judge saw his friend, Gov. Seymour, and got the man pardoned out.

—During the progress of a conflagration at Pithole, on the 8th, a very astonishing circumstance occurred. There are two water wells on the hillside, about fifty feet above Holmden street. Several parties were engaged in pumping water and throwing it upon the fire, when it was discovered that the flames were increased instead of diminished by the application. Upon examination, it was found that in one of the wells the water had been exhausted, and the pump was yielding a stream of pure oil. The operation was continued, and, when our informant left, the well was producing and the rate of one hundred barrels per day.

—A new Roman Catholic Church is to be built in Pekin, China. It is to be of magnificent dimensions—300 feet long and 150 feet in breadth. Its spire will overlook the loftiest of the palaces of the imperial city.

—The editor of the Sunday Mercury says that a few Sundays ago he heard a clergyman, in illustrating a point in his discourse, state that during the late war a New York merchant at Alexandria, in Egypt, having occasion to furnish a ship with freight homeward, was led, partly through fear of pirates, to load her with mummies from the famous Egyptian Catacombs. On arriving here, the strange cargo was sold to a paper manufacturer in Connecticut, who threw the whole mass, the linen cerements, the bitumen, and the poor remains of humanity, into the hopper, and had them ground to pulp. "And," added the speaker, "the words I am now reading to you are written on some of this paper."

—The widows in India are growing sensible. They are beginning to marry again, instead of burning themselves on the funeral pyres of their deceased spouses.

—An exchange truly says "you may insert a thousand excellent things in a newspaper, and never hear a word of approbation from its readers; but let one slip in not suited to their taste, (though by accident,) and you will be sure to hear of it." There is more trouble in keeping a newspaper afloat from an objectionable thing than filling it twice over.

—The Sunday Mercury says the most depth of depravity we ever heard of being reached is that of walking four miles on the ice, after dark, and stealing cannon balls to sell for old iron. This is no fiction either. The cannon balls in the Fort on Johnson's Island have been disappearing so rapidly of nights that it has been necessary to lock them up.

—In Palgrave's recent work on Arabia, there is an amusing and suggestive story of a man who complained to the Amir's son that one of his neighbors smoked. "How do you know it," asked the Amir. "I smell it," said the man. "Then you entered your neighbor's house without permission," was the reply. "I just put my nose in." Whereupon the Amir ordered the executioner to snip off the complainant's nose, so as to save it from the temptation of sniffing in another man's harem in future.

—One of the inconveniences of a double bedded room, is the uncertainty as to the character of your room mate. In Cincinnati, on Sunday night, the occupant of such a room, in a boarding house, was startled from his sleep by a misdirected blow at his head with a slung-shot, and had a desperate battle with a stranger who had occupied the other bed, and who was a professional thief. After a sharp fight the thief escaped, but without any booty.

—On Sunday, two men drove rapidly through Rochester, each holding in his arms a child wrapped in buffalo robes. The screams of the children induced a policeman to stop the men. Throwing aside the robe, he discovered that the clothing of the child about the arms and waste was on fire, and that it had received several severe burns. It took fire, probably, from a pipe one of the men was smoking; it had not occurred to the men as possible that the child could be crying from anything but cold, with the thermometer marking 16 degrees below zero.

—The king of Denmark has recently given unrestricted religious liberty to the Methodist Episcopal church in his dominions.

HANDKERCHIEF PREACHING.—I notice in some cases a handkerchief habit in the pulpit, which has led me to inquire if the use of the very necessary article is a part of their training. I notice some ministers take it out of their pockets as they do their sermons, and lay it on the pulpit. Some spread it out lengthwise through the middle of the Bible; some roll it up and tuck it under the Bible; some shake it over their heads, some clinch it in either hand as if they were going to throw it at the audience; and some keep crowding it in their pockets and pulling it out again, with a nervous movement, as if they did not know what use to make of their hands. I went once to hear a popular young preacher, and as much as half of his sermon was made up of pocket handkerchief, and the most of the other half was gold watch and scraps of poetry.—Christian Reflector.

A message was sent from Pittsburg some time since to a gentleman in New York, as follows:

"Your son is dead. Be at the depot to-night! But the telegraphic chap copied it and sent it to the fond parent thus: "Your son is dead beat. Depot to-night."

A SAFE in the railroad office at Binghamton, N. Y., was robbed on the 14th of $7,000 belonging to the American Express Company. The robbers left untouched a package of $50,000.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.
COTTON—Middling	$ .45	@	—
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	8.50	@	8.65
WHEAT—Amber Mil. new	1.60	@	1.65
BARLEY		@	1.15
CORN—Sound West'n	.87	@	.88
OATS—Dull		@	.56
PETROLEUM—Crude	61.00	@	61.00
PORK—Mess new		@	28.75
BEEF—Mess		@	18.50
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	12.00	@	17.00
HOGS—Medium to heavy, dressed		@	—
DRY GOODS—Merrimacs	.27	@	.28
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville	.40	@	—
Brown Sheetings—Stark	.30	@	.31
Delaines—Manchester	.29	@	—
Denims " "	.40	@	—
GOLD 137¼

CHICAGO, February 15, 1866.
BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$100.00	@	$150.00
BEEVES—Stock to prime	$ 3.50	@	$ 5.50
BEANS	.75	@	1.25
BRAN	8.50	@	9.00
BUTTER	.16	@	.26
CHEESE—Western	.17	@	.19
COFFEE—Rio	.29½	@	.33
Java	.44	@	.45
EGGS	.26	@	.30
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	8.00	@	4.50
Malaga Lemons	12.00	@	13.00
Dried N. Y. Apples	10.00	@	11.00
" Peaches	.30	@	.32
Raisins, M. R.	6.15	@	5.30
FLOUR—Winter White	11.00	@	14.00
Spring Extra

Miscellany.

Baby owns my tiny castle
On the carpet-plains of home,
And its walls are woven willow,
Fine within, from floor to dome;
Snowy curtains at the window;
Downy couch where baby dreams;
Love, too, that softly glimmer
In the soft light, and calms.

That's the heritage of baby,
And it's held in state so grand,
Mother says—if no one else does—
Here he bravely fights his battles,
When old puss would slyly creep
Over guarded meat and barret,
Just to cart herself in sleep.

All is still in baby's castle,
Not the slightest noise we make;
Surely, now the rogue is napping;
Peep! the blue eyes wide awake!
See the dimpled hands extended
Near the "cooing" mild and low;
May the angels keep you, darling,
Everywhere your feet may go!

Baby's man-at-arms is mother,
And she watches all day long:
When his babyship would slumber,
Then she sings a loving song.
Soon comes "papa" home at evening,
Then the castle is gay;
Kiss the sleepy baby,
Sent the fairy away!

A CHECK FOR A CARPET.

BY LOUISA CHANDLER MOULTON.

"Did I think about the carpet?"

Pretty little Mrs. Lane spoke coaxingly, with her hands clasped on her husband's arm. He looked down at her a moment before he answered. She had been his wife for five years, but her face was as sunny and as girlish as when he first wooed her. Her blue eyes had scarcely shed a tear in all those years, except the lazy, luxurious tears such happy little souls weep over the ideal woes of story-book heroines. Her monthly rose in the French window was not pinker than her cheeks—her scarlet geranium was not brighter or redder than her lips—and the pet canary chirping above the blossoms was no gayer or merrier than the little bird-like woman who waited for John Lane's answer. He smiled as he looked at her, and brushed back her soft, brown hair with an unconscious tenderness.

"Yes, about the carpet, Annie. If I thought we needed it, I would get it, of course. But we use the drawing-room so little. The carpet that is on it now is almost as bright as it was the day we chose it, and you know how pretty we both thought it then."

The young wife pouted her dainty lip—

"Well, John, but it's been down five years, and its only nice because I've taken such nice care of it. If I'd been careless and let it get spoiled, you'd have got another without grumbling, you know you would. It's too bad, if I've got to see things round forever, just because I'm careful of them. Don't you get tired of seeing the same things always, John?"

"Not easily, so long as they are the same, fresh and bright as ever. I am not tired of you, yet."

She laughed, and her pink cheeks flushed a little.

"But I'm not a carpet. Ours is only a Brussels, you know, and I did go want a Wilton, like Mrs. Mayne's."

"So Mrs. Mayne is the serpent in our Eden. Well, Annie, give me till night to think about it," and he bent toward her for his good-bye.

After he had gone, she went into the drawing-room, and took a survey of her possessions. The carpet was that soft, many-shaded moss-like green, on which everything looks so well. She confessed to herself that it had a more refined air than Mrs. Mayne's large-figured Wilton, which held your gaze, like the eye of the ancient mariner, from the moment you entered the room. But then she thought, she needn't buy a great, gaudy thing; and a Wilton was really so much more elegant, so much more in keeping with her rosewood and brocatelle. Then she began dusting some of her books and ornaments.

While she stood there she heard the bell ring, and a short parley at the door—a child's voice, apparently asking for food, and the cook's answer that to-day there was nothing to spare. A sound in the young, sad voice, a short of uncomplaining hopelessness, struck her, and she stepped down stairs just as Bridget was about to shut the door.

"Come back a moment, little girl," she said, in those gentle tones that John Lane liked so well to hear.

The child turned, an eager light coming into her face for a moment, and then going out. Mrs. Lane was acting on impulse. She almost always did; it was a good thing, therefore, that most of her impulses were sweet and gentle and true.

"Are you hungry?" she asked, pityingly.

"It doesn't matter so much about me, ma'am, I could bear to be hungry, but I don't know what to do for my mother. I have tried to find a place to work, but no one will take me. They say a child ten years old is more plague than profit. Mother had to work so hard to keep us, and now she's been sick a while, and she can't work, and so we've eaten up everything. So I came out to see if anybody would give me something for mother, and I've asked at every house in the street, and everywhere they said just the same, and that they had nothing to-day."

"Where do you live,—is it far?" Mrs. Lane asked.

"Only a few steps, ma'am—three streets off."

"Well, then, I'll go home with you, and see your mother. Come into the house, while I put on my bonnet, and Bridget will give you some bread and butter and cold meat."

Mrs. Lane's sweet young face was full of pity, as she hurriedly packed a basket with bread and tea and sugar, for the sick mother. Then she ran up stairs and tied on her pretty summer hat, and down again while the hungry girl was finishing her breakfast.

"Come little girl," she said, "what is your name?"

"Ellen Stanton; but my father always called me Nelly, and so does mother."

"And is your father dead?"

"Oh, yes! that's the way our trouble began. Father died, and mother wasn't used to hard work, and she had to work so hard to keep the baby and me."

Mrs. Lane asked no more questions, just then. She was thinking more seriously than she had ever thought in her life, remembering how she had been born to ease and luxury, shielded all her days from care—how her deepest discontent had been when some other person's carpet was handsomer, or her cashmere shawl had a deeper border. And now she was going where hunger and sorrow were tenants. Had she been living all this time for herself? She questioned, with a sudden pang of terror and self-reproach, whether ever in her life she had done really one unselfish act—whether, if the great harvest day were come, she would have one sheaf to show to the Master. She had given of her abundance now and then, of course, when charitable subscriptions had been presented to her; but she had thought it a bore and a burden, not a privilege. Of her own accord, what good had she ever done? What man, woman, or child was there to rise up and call her blessed?

"Here we are, ma'am," said the child, breaking the silence.

It was a two-story, wooden house before which they had stopped. They went up stairs and the little girl opened a door.

"Mother," she said, "a lady has come home with me to see you—a kind lady, who has given me my breakfast, and brought you something."

Mrs. Lane stood a moment on the threshold of the room, and took in such a picture as in her young, happy life she had never seen before. The apartment was almost bare of furniture—no carpet was on the floor—there was only the bed, three chairs and a table. But everything was as neat as hands could make it; and against the wall, at the foot of the bed, hung a framed photograph—the portrait of a man with kind, honest eyes, the features of which the child Ellen's were almost a copy.

"I have come," Mrs. Lane said, with the sweet grace which had made her a welcome guest in far different scenes, "to see if I could arrange something for your comfort; but, first of all, you must have some toast and tea," and giving her little guide some money, she sent her out to procure fuel, and sat down herself, in the meantime, beside the bed where the sick woman lay, with her baby asleep upon her arm. The wan, pale face upon the pillows was not beautiful—Annie Lane could not be sentimental or romantic about this woman—could by no means idealize her into a heroine. Yet there was something good and true in her expression, and when she turned to place the baby more comfortably, a light and glow of motherlove illumined her features till they were better than pretty. Mrs. Lane was not long in learning her history.

She had been used all her days to self-dependance. Before she was married she had worked on a sewing machine in a shop, and she understood that business thoroughly. But when James Stanton married her she had given it up. He was a good mechanic, a carpenter, and his wages kept them comfortably. They had not laid up much, however, for during the eleven years of their marriage three children besides the two she had left now, had come and gone—poor, feeble little things that cost a great deal for doctors and medicine. Then, just before this last baby came, a scaffolding had given way where her husband was at work—he had fallen from the fourth story of a house, and had been brought home to her dead. She had sold almost all her furniture, and got along by that means until she was able to be about, and then she had left baby with Ellen, and gone out to day's work of washing and cleaning. It was labor for which she was not strong enough, but it was the only occupation she could get, and after awhile she had taken a severe cold, and had grown so ill that she could not go out at all. They had eaten up everything they had; and this morning for the first time, she had sent Ellen out to try to get something, somewhere, to keep them alive until she could work again. "And it must have been God, ma'am, that sent her to you," she concluded.

Mrs. Lane, helpless, pretty little thing, scarcely knew what to say. Her heart beat with tumultuous throbs of pity—her eyes were full of tears; in all her sunny life she had never before been brought in contact with actual, gaunt misery and destitution. At last a thought occurred to her, and she uttered it eagerly—

"If you only had a sewing-machine now, you could take work home when you get better, couldn't you, and support yourself and children so very nicely?"

The woman sighed a deep, unconscious sigh of heartfelt longing.

"Yes, ma'am, I could, but you know that's an impossible if. I can never get one. I'll be only too thankful if I can get well enough to go out again by the day. If I don't, I don't know what will become of the children."

"But God knows," whispered Mrs. Lane, softly. "He pities us, you know, as a father pities his children."

Then came Ellen with coal and kindlings, and the subject was not alluded to again.

When their five o'clock dinner was over, that afternoon, John Lane went gaily into the sitting-room with his wife. He had a pleasant surprise for her, and he laid it in her lap, in the shape of a check for two hundred dollars.

"There, humming-bird," he said, lightly, "there's for your carpet. Business has prospered this year, and what is it good for but to make home bright and wife happy?"

She turned her face and touched her lips silently to the kind hand resting on her shoulder. Perhaps John was disappointed that she expressed her pleasure so quietly. He had anticipated her gay laugh of merry exultation, her delighted chat about colors and patterns. Her new mood surprised him. He sat down beside her gravely, and waited for her to speak.

She told him, the story of her day, leaving out nothing. He could see how deeply she had been moved, by the color which came and went on her cheeks, the tears which gathered unheeded in her eyes. When she was all through, she said hesitatingly—

"John, we are happy, aren't we?"

"Yes, dear."

"And we owe something, don't we, to those who are less so? Think, John, if I had lost you as she lost her husband! And if I had not only lost you, but had, afterwards no way to live!"

She paused, as if for encouragement, but she received none. John Lane was beginning to get a glimpse of a new phase in his little wife's character, and he meant she should bring out her own ideas unaided. She began to fear that she could not interest him. She went on timidly enough, but very earnestly:

"A part of two hundred dollars, John, would buy that woman the necessaries which would make her comfortable, and she would soon be well again, for her disease is only the result of exposure and over-work. Then the rest of it would buy her a sewing-machine, and she could get along nicely with that. She wouldn't need any more help."

Still Mr. Lane was silent, and she drew a little nearer to him, and began smoothing his big fingers with her own little ones.

"I know, John, dear," she said, coaxingly, "that two hundred dollars would be too much to ask you for, in any one charity; but I have so set my heart on really and substantially helping this poor, bereft woman. Our drawing room carpet really looks very nicely—you know you thought it would do, this morning. And it just this once, I might have the two hundred dollars to do this good deed with, and keep the old carpet down, it would make me so happy. Just think, John, that poor widow, and those little children, would say your name every day in their prayers, and they would be made comfortable for life. May I, John?"

John Lane bent down and kissed the tender, eager face—I'm afraid his eyes were too dim just then to see all its brightness.

"Are you sure, dear," he asked, gently, "that you would be satisfied with the old carpet?"

"Quite sure, John. It shall last as long as the Wilton would. Oh, John, I never did any good in my life. Let me do this little one now!"

"Annie, you shall."

That great, manly heart was too full just then, for many words, but by the firm clasp which held her so tenderly, Annie Lane knew that her husband was not displeased.

She carried out all her plans. By August, Mrs. Stanton was well again, and the sewing machine stood at the window of her comfortably-furnished room. To her the face of Annie Lane seemed like the face of an angel—God's messenger she has indeed been to the widow and the fatherless. I think there is one woman whose heart will never be moved to envy by Wilton carpets or wide-bordered shawls, since she has tasted the luxury of doing good. John Lane loved her well when she was his gay, laughing child-wife; but he loves her now with a holier, deeper tenderness that reaches through time and takes hold on eternity.

.....Can a temperance meeting be called a collection of water-spouts?

Winans' Cigar Ship.

The present condition of Winan's "cigar ship," now building in London, and of which accounts were published a long time ago, is is thus described by the London Morning Herald:

"The general form of the cigar ship has been, as her name shows compared with that of a cigar, pointed off at both ends instead of one. A more homely, but, perhaps, more effective illustration, is that of the unpleasant but favorite plaything of our street boys, the 'tipcat.' More of our landsmen readers will be more or less familiar with this simple but ingenious instrument of annoyance, and if they will fancy a brobdignag 'cat,' of slender make, and tapering to an absolute needle, point at either end, they will have before their eyes the exact representation of the hull of the cigar ship. This hull, which is, of course, hollow, and formed of iron, presenting a perfectly smooth and even surface, supports upon the upper side a small deck, occupying about half, or something less, to the extreme length, the tapering extremities projecting beyond it at either end. Unlike the hull itself, the deck is not exactly the same at each end, presenting a wedge-shapen front toward the bow, while at the stern it is rounded off, American clipper fashion. Above the deck are to be seen the funnels, companion-houses, &c., but neither mast nor rigging of any kind whatever, the only means of locomotion possessed by the cigar ship being her engines, for which she can, according to estimate, carry coal enough for five days' consumption. Her extreme length is about two hundred and fifty feet, and greatest diameter about sixteen feet, tapering gradually as we have said, to a point almost as that of a needle. The amount of accommodation is therefore extremely limited; and we believe it is not proposed to make any attempt at carrying cargo of any description, but to confine the vessel strictly to passenger trade. Even then it is difficult to imagine, after due allowance for saloon and sleeping apartments, stores, berths for crew, &c., what space can be left for engines estimated to work up two thousand horse power.

"The means of propulsion employed are two large screws, one at either end of the vessel, and placed within a very short distance of the extreme points, or at a distance of about one hundred and twenty feet from the machinery. These propellers are to be of great diameter and sharp pitch—the one pushing, the other pulling the vessel, and each half of its surface above the water. The estimated extreme speed is about twenty-seven miles per hour. A short distance from the propeller, and nearer to the centre of the vessel, is the rudder—at each end—a broad iron plate like the rudder, or rather steering paddle, of the ancient galleys. These are also rather more than one hundred feet from the steeing apparatus.

"Such is the general external appearance of this remarkable vessel, now almost ready for launching. In the water her line of flotation, according to the model of which we have before spoken, is exactly parallel with her longitudinal axis, the sharp point at either end being just level with the surface. Allowing sixteen feet as her extreme diameter, she will thus be raised in the centre eight feet above the water's edge; or, with two feet more of bulwark, ten feet in all. We are free to confess that, with every possible desire to believe in the good qualities of a vessel which promises to bring us our American news in some three or four days, and to limit that dreadful channel business to within the hour, we are at a loss to understand how, under these conditions, the cigar ship purposes to keep afloat. In perfectly smooth water we can imagine that she might, if successfully ballasted against the chance of rolling over and over, as would be of course her natural tendency, make something very like the estimated speed, though with what degree of comfort to the passengers, deprived by the construction of the vessel of all light or ventilation except such as can be obtained from the deck by means of skylights and windsails, and with two enormous propellers of severe pitch lashing the water at either end, is another question. The advantages, too, of being cooped up in such extremely close quarters, with an engine of this enormous power, may also be open to question, even under the most favorable circumstances.

"But the real difficulties of the cigar ship, as of most others, must commence with the first symptoms of a breeze. Imagine a vessel of this construction traveling at the rate of five-and-twenty miles an hour—the minimum rate, be it remembered, for the New York passage, on account of the consumption of coal—meeting in mid-ocean one of the westerly gales now careering across the Atlantic. In front of her is a wall of water twenty feet high, traveling at the rate of a dozen miles an hour. Between them they meet at a speed of forty miles. There is no 'bow' to lift her over the obstacle. Right into it she plunges, like a harpoon into a whale's back, the whole force of the blow being met by the propeller, which, however severe may be its pitch, cannot present anything very much better than an almost flat surface to the shock. What chance the blades would have of surviving any very long succession of such shocks is a matter of simple calculation, and one into which the engineers have no doubt fully entered."

INTRICACIES OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.—The construction of the English language must appear most formidable to a foreigner. One of them, looking at a picture of a number of vessels, said, "See, what a flock of ships!" He was told that a flock of ships was called a fleet, and that a fleet of sheep was callidd a flock. And it was added, for his guidance in mastering the intricacies of our language, that "a flock of girls is called a bevy, that a bevy of wolves is called a pack, and a pack of thieves is called a gang, and a gang of angels is called a host, and a host of porpoises is called a shoal, and a shoal of buffaloes is called a herd, and a herd of children is called a troop, and a troop of partridges is called a covey, and a covey of beauties is called a galaxy, and a galaxy of ruffians called a horde, and a horde of rubbish is called a heap, and a heap of oxen is called a drove, and a drove of blackguards is called a mob, and a mob of whales is called a school, and a school of worshippers is called a congregation, and a congregation of engineers is called a corps, and a corps of robbers is called a band, and a band of locusts is called a swarm, and a swarm of people is called a crowd."

A STRANGE STORY is told of two sisters at Berlin. About three years ago one of these young ladies was engaged to be married, but on the bridal morning became so ill that she could not possibly go to church. The bridegroom was a desirable one, and he was a fish who, it seems had not been easily hooked. There was, therefore, great danger in delay, so instead of postponing the marriage the second sister, covering herself in a long veil, personated the first, and duly went through the ceremony. The moment it was over she transferred the bridal dress and ornaments to her sister, who was thus considered to have all proper claim to this husband she married by proxy. It is only recently that a discovery has been made of the real facts, and proceedings are about to be commenced not only in the civil, but also in the criminal courts of Berlin.

—The French people are indulging in all sorts of sarcasms and witticisms upon the Emperor's address to the Chambers, announcing his intention to back out of Mexico. The police and spies are on the alert, hanging around places of public resort, and hovering about the crowds collected in the streets where the Imperial address is posted on the walls; and their reports of the state of public opinion are said to interfere greatly with his Majesty's customary pleasures.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

THE Rev. J. P. Gulliver, of Norwich, Connecticut, who recently accepted a call from a congregation in Chicago, was offered a salary of five thousand dollars, and a present in cash of ten thousand dollars, if he would remain with his old congregation, but declined the offer.

"JOSH BILLINGS," Mr. Henry W. Shaw, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is a native of Massachusetts, born in Lanesborough, Berkshire. He has resided in the West, been ruined several times, been a man of many inventions, descending gracefully at last from the pedestal of the auctioneer to the writer and lecturer, where we trust he will stick and realize. He is a man of family, large-framed, large-hearted, with a pleasant shake of the hand and a face full of good humor, looking in all respects as Billings ought, with a hat outdoing all previous attempts in that line. He has written really more good things than any writer of the mis-spelt school.

MRS. OSBIAN E. DODGE, wife of the well-known vocalist, died at St. Paul, last week, and her funeral took place last Friday.

MISS ADELINA PATTI is now singing at the Italian opera in Paris, at the rate of $700 a night, and is about to strike for a thousand.

OF Shakspeare, it is said by Richard Grant White, that he never retouched or amended one line of all his works: he wrote for money, and having got his pay he left his words to take care of themselves. He never wrote anybody a letter, and when he died, left but four signatures behind.

ENGLISH papers announce the death of Dr. George Petrie, the eminent archæologist. He was about seventy-six years of age.

LIEUTENANT CUSHING, the daring naval hero, recently broke his arm at Honoluiu by falling from a horse.

THERE is one instance of a person holding a College Presidency even longer than the late Dr. Nott, of Union College. Rev. Martin Joseph Routh was elected President of Magdalen College, Oxford, in 1791, and so continued until his death in 1854, at the age of 99. The Senior College President in this country is now, Rev. Mark Hopkins, of Williams, who was elected in 1836.

ON Sunday, 11th inst., Rev. John S. C. Abbott, the distinguished clergyman and historian, who for years past has occupied the pulpit of the Howe Street Congregational Church, New Haven, Ct., preached his farewell sermon.

IN the billiard tournament at Memphis, on the 15th, Choate of Cincinnati beat Barret of Memphis by 57 points in 500, and Melvin Foster of New York defeated Guthrie of Memphis by 348 poinnts.

THE Hon. E. J. M. Hale, of Haverhill, Mass., has purchased a site and donated the money for a splendid building, which will contain a reading-room and a lecture-room, as well as a library, and given the money for the books for a free library for Haverhill. The donation will not fall short of $100,000.

HENCEFORTH Adelina Patti will demand five thousand francs, or one thousand dollars per night for her singing. No discount on her notes.

A NEW YORK letter writer says that the Round Table has about paid expenses thus far, and that the Nation has been a loss to its proprietors of about $8,000.

SOMEBODY who has been to the Rothschilds' country house, in France, says the most comfortable chair in the salon de famille was once the throne of a Chinese Emperor, presented by that celestial to a Rothschild. A sofa in this said room is covered by Oriental embroidery bearing the imperial dragon. The Baron's private study is furnished with Gobelin tapestry, worked from designs by Boucher. The walls of the smoking-room are entirely covered with Russia leather, exactly the tint of a cigar, and on this costly material Eugene Laury has painted exquisite frescoes. The family dining-room is decorated with sporting subjects, executed by Phillippe Rousseau. It opens on a small and very plain synagogue. It was in the large dining-room that the Emperor and his suite partook of the celebrated luncheon in 1862, served on Bernard de Palissy china, and plate chiselled by Gotieres.

THE death of Sir Charles Eastlake has been followed by that of another eminent English artist, Mr. John Gibson, the sculptor. He was born at Conway, North Wales, in 1791, and was apprenticed in 1805 as a cabinet maker, and soon afterward as a wood carver. His talent as a sculptor attracting the attention of Mr. Roscoe, a fund was raised in Liverpool to enable him to prosecute his studies in Italy, and in 1817, he left for Rome, where he resided until his death. He enjoyed the patronage of Canova and Thorwaldsen. He was the first of modern sculptors to introduce color into his statuary. His "Hero and Leander," in the possession of the Duke of Devonshire and his "Sappho," "Hebe," "Venus," and kindred works, are noble monuments of his genius, as well as his statues of Queen Victoria, Huskisson, Peel, and Stephenson.

GENERAL BUTLER is reported to have purchased extensive mill property on James river, near Richmond, Virginia, with the design of erecting cotton factories thereon. He also contemplates the purchase of the tract of land through which his famous Dutch Gap Canal runs, for the settlement of New England families and factory operatives.

RANDOLPH, being asked to play chess on one occasion, refused, and gave the following reason: "I have not played at chess for the last 17 years; the very sight of the board and men gives rise to painful reminiscences, for the last game I played lost me a personal friend forever. I was on the most intimate terms with Mr. Jefferson, as you may have heard, it being now matter of history, and I soon found out that, politician and philosopher as he was, he took more pride in his skill at chess than in anything else. Very few could beat him, and at last he could not endure defeat. Knowing this, and feeling that I was his match, I had always declined playing, as I did not want to quarrel with him, until one unfortunate evening, when he touched my Virginian pride in so pointed a way that I could no longer refuse with honor, and we sat down to the game. It was a warm contest, Greek met Greek, I at length cried checkmate,' and he never forgave afterwards."

AT the close of a recent Sunday evening's service at Plymouth Church, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher suggested that an adjourned meeting should be called for the purpose of considering the desirability of having an assistant pastor to attend upon the sick, dying and dead, thus relieving Mr. Beecher from other duties than speaking and writing.

MOST of us have read, and all of us have heard of "The Adventures of Baron Munchausen," a volume of such stupendous lying that any monstrous story has ever since been termed a Munchausenism. The author of the work is said to have been a German named Raspe, who was a runaway from justice in Germany, and a store-keeper of a Cornwall mine in England. The first portion of the Adventures was published in 1785.

THE announcement has been made that John Morrissey is to be a Democratic candidate for Congress from New York city next fall.

WM. B. ASTOR is held greatly responsible for the awful rise of rents in New York. He owns about 1800 houses. One of his small houses rented for $800. Last year he raised the rent to $1 00, and charges this year $2500 for the same

THERE were 4,496 new books published in England last year.

Agricultural and Scientific.

A FAMILY in Portland rejoices in the possession of a hen twenty-four years old. She performs her egg-laying regularly.

PROF. CLUM, of Rochester, the inventor of the elioscope, or storm viewer, is in England, and one of storm instruments has been placed in the Greenwich observatory.

A LEATHER belt 192 feet long, 30 inches wide and of double thickness, is one of the curiosities on exhibition at Boston. It took the hides of more than 80 oxen for its manufacture.

CHARLES ARNOLD, of Columbia Co., New York, says that before he was aware of it his fowls were covered with lice. Taking a swab, he applied a little kerosene oil under their wings, and has noticed none of the vermin since.

PROF. HOUGH, of the Dudley Observatory, speaking of the comparative changes of the barometer and thermometer during the cold snap of last month, says that in January the barometer attained the greatest elevation ever known in the United States.

GLASS MOLD BOARD FOR PLOWS.—Messrs. O. F. Burton, of New York, and L. B. Hoft, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, obtained a patent on the 9th ult., for making mold boards for plows, of glass! The idea is quite novel, but we are told that on the prairies they have been tested with the best practical results.—Scientific American.

SEVERAL extremely curious experiments have been made in Paris on the effects of a safonic acid (an extract of the flowers of santolino). When a dose of about ten centigrammes is taken, a kind of intoxication is produced, which causes all objects to appear yellow to the patient, and when about fifteen centigrammes are taken the same objects appear violet colored.

PLUMBAGO, which has heretofore ruled quite high in the markets of the world, for the reason that a good quality of that mineral has heretofore been found in only a few localities on the globe, is now being found in large quantities in various parts of the earth. Large discoveries of this valuable mineral are stated to have been made in the inland districts of the Cape of Good Hope.

NOTWITHSTANDING the abundance of oil strikes the petroleum prospect is far from good. The expense of sinking a well has increased in a year from $5,000 to $10,000, while the cost of working one has increased from $10 to $20 per day. At the same time the price of oil at the wells has decreased from $10 to $5 a barrel. No well is therefore worth much unless it yields twenty barrels a day, and not one in fifty does that. About Pithole not one in twenty of the wells pays at all.

FATTENING CALVES.—A sensible, practical farmer told us the other day that he had often noticed that calves would thrive better on milk that was not rich in butter, than on what was commonly called very rich milk. That is a fact in accordance with what we recently stated, that the nutritive elements of milk reside chiefly in the casein. If you have a cow that gives particularly rich milk, and one that gives a quality poorer in butter, it is better in every way to feed the calf on the milk of the latter. The calf will thrive better and you'll get more butter from the milk of the first cow.—Massachusetts Plowman.

BUILDING HOGS.—We built three hogs a few years ago, that when completed, greatly astonished our gulf state neighbors for a considerable distance on every side of us. Our nearest neighbor, S. S. Phillips, a first class farmer for that latitude, had a litter of ten pigs ten weeks old, from a pure Chester county sow and an imported Berkshire boar, and the day that the pigs were six weeks old the doctor said to us:

"I am going to select three of these pigs to make hogs of. Then I shall make you a present of three next best—we will keep them till a year from next Christmas, and let us see who will make the most pork. They say you Yankees do beat all nature in making hogs."

So the selections were made; that was in September; the doctor putting his pigs into a close pen. And from that day till the day of their death, they were continually kept up, and feasted with everything a hog is supposed to like.

Our three were put into a tolerably fair pasture, and had skimmed milk for three months, about a quart each three times a day. At the end of that time they were put into a warm pen to pass the Winter. Their diet was a quart of corn-meal mush made with milk, three times a day and for three meals every week they got boiled potatoes and parsnips. The pen was cleaned and washed out every day, and twice a week piggies got a thorough scrubbing down with soap-suds and a stiff brush. They liked that.

In April they were returned to the clover pasture, and their milk rations increased to two quarts each, three times a day, by mid-Summer to three quarts, soap suds practice continued regularly.

On the first day of October we put up our pigs to make hogs of. The regular feed then was corn-meal mush with milk—four feeds a day, and about two quarts at each meal. The pen and trough was washed clean every morning, and the animals as usual twice a week.

On the twenty-fourth day of December we slaughtered our hogs, and on Christmas day we weighed—first the doctor's pork, ranging from about two hundred and sixty pounds to two ninety. Ours ran, according to the figures made at the time, and now within three inches of the point of our pen—429—413—398.

Those three hogs hung in state for planters to wonder at, as long as Mississippi Christmas weather would permit.—Saturday Evening Post.

UNION STOCK YARDS OF CHICAGO.—The yards are provided with unequaled facilities for weighing stock, by the single head or by the car load. The scales used are Fairbanks, Greenleaf & Co's patent, six or seven of which are erected on the grounds. The principal apparatus stands near the center, in a building made for it. These scales are the largest manufactured, and are capable of weighing forty tons. They are marvel of nicety. The huge beam plays as easily as the penny-weight balance of the jeweler or the apothecary. They weigh a bank bill as well as an ox or a car load of cattle. The smallest bit of paper causes the beam to vibrate, so beautifully are the bearings constructed, and so nicely does the whole operate. It is something of a compliment to the manufacturers of these model scales, that the Stock Yard Company have adopted them for use in their yards.

INCIDENT OF THE WAR.—During the severe bombardment of Atlanta, a lieutenant of one of the Alabama regiments was surveying the lines, accompanied by two privates. Suddenly the well-known cry of "mind the shell" is heard, but rather too late, and, as the shell struck the parapet, the lieutenant and his two men jumped in one of the rifle pits on the other side of the parapet, but had hardly reached that place of fancied security when another cry is heard: "Lieutenant, mind the shell," as the shell bounded from the parapet into the very pit where our three men were squatting. At that moment one of the privates, who was over his lieutenant, seeing the death dealing missile reaching its exploding point, extended his arms over his officer and murmured, "Lieutenant, we are gone, but I can save you." These were his last words. The shell burst, one of the privates had a leg shattered, and the lieutenant held in his arms the mutilated body of the other, whose death had saved his life.

—There are now nine thousand shoemakers in New York.

COMICAL.

....."No pains will be spared," as the quack said when sawing off a poor fellow's leg to cure him of the rhematism.

.....What is the difference between a honeycomb and honeymoon? A honeycomb consists of a number of "small cells," and a honeymoon consists of one "great sell."

.....A young man was fined the other day twenty dollars for kissing a pretty girl when she didn't want him to. It often costs ten times as much when they do want him to.

....."How is your husband, dear?" asked one lady of another. "Oh! he is in a very bad state," was the reply. "And, pray, what kind of a state is he in?" persisted the other. "In State Prison."

.....The following question is now before the Sand Lake Debating Society:

"Which do women love the best—to be hugged in a polka, or squeezed in a sleigh?"

We shall issue the decision in an extra.

.....A man buying furs in Arkansas, while conversing with a woman at whose house he had called, asked, "If there were any Presbyterians around there?" She hesitated a little, and said, "She guessed not; her husband hadn't killed any since they had been there."

.....A waiter at a recent "grand party" in Washington, in carrying a tray through the crowd of guests, accidently hit a lady a severe blow with it on the elbow. "The deuce take the tray!" petulantly exclaimed the lady. "Madam," said a senator, noted for his whist playing, who was standing near, "Madam, the deuce can't take the treф!"

....."There is a difference in time, you know, between this country and Europe," said a gentleman in New York to a newly-arrived Irishman. "For instance, your friends in Cork are in bed and fast asleep by this time, while we are enjoying ourselves in the early evening."

"That's always the way," exclaimed Pat, "ould Ireland never had justice yit."

.....There is a certain law book whose index contains the following reference to Mr. Justice Best:

"Best—Mr. Justice—his great mind."

Surprised that anything great should be imputed to that irascible judge, the inquirer looked down letter B of index, and found:

"Mr Justice Best said that he had a great mind to commit the witness for prevarication."

.....DUBUQUE RETAIL MARKET.—Butter, 5c a lick; lard, 10c a taste; apples, 3 rotten ones for 5c; coal oil, 10c a drop; cider, 5c a smell; chestnuts, 3c a pinch; overcoats cost like ($60); boots down at the heel; eggs, 10c for looking at a fresh dozen; jewelry, $1 a grab; dishcloths, 25c each; old ropes, 3c a pound; rags, plenty and cheap; lemons, 2c a taste; waterfalls, $2 a dozen; house rent, 10c a minute; knock-downs, $5 and costs; dog fights, free; clean shirts, 25c; hot swill, 10c a barrel; pork steak, 5c for enough to grease a griddle.—Herald.

.....The "local" of the Troy Press, takes the loss of his overcoat coolly. He says: The chap who stole our overcoat on Wednesday night is informed that he is welcome to it, until we find him out. But our wallet in the left side docket, containing $2,300 in greenbacks, or thereabouts, and letters from Washington, including one from President Johnson, urging upon us to accept a foreign mission, and asking our opinion about his plan of "reconstruction," &c., &c.—the thief will please return to this office. No questions asked. If we are not in leave them with the boy.

.....Not long since, our friend Brown was on a visit to Lookout Mountain, Georgia, and was much struck with the fact that a fine jet of water was thrown up, above the top of an eminence on which the hotel stands. Walking around the jet admiringly he accosted a plain countryman with:

"My friend, is this water forced up by a ram?" meaning, of course, the hydraulic contrivance so named.

"A ram?" exclaimed the countryman.

"Yes, a ram, I say."

"What on earth—no, sir; it's a darned big mule! and it's tremendous hard work for him. Come here, and I will show him to you."

Brown saw the mule, and left.

.....A PATENT PULPIT.—Some years ago, according to the London Punch, a benevolent and ingenious Englishman contrived an excellent article in this line. It is to be introduced into this country:

"It was proposed that the patent pulpit be built in the usual style, but suspended over the preacher's head was to be an apparatus something in shape like a candle extinguisher. This was to descend so as, in exactly 15 minutes, to completely extinguish the clergyman, and of course his sermon could never exceed that period in duration. Eight minutes after the sermon had commenced a loud permature snap or click was to announce the commencement of the extinguisher's descent; and it is stated that upon several private trials no clergy could be found who had the nerve to continue his sermon, after hearing this snap or click, over three minutes longer, such was the fear in his mind that his light would be hidden under the suspended bushel."

....."What do the Arabs of the desert live on, pa?" asked a roguish girl of her father.

"Fudge, Nelly, that's an old conundrum. They live on the sand which is (sandwiches) there."

Yes, but, pa, how do they get 'em?"

"Well, really, Nelly, you have me there, I give it up."

"Why, pa, don't you know that the sons of Ham are bread and mustered in the wilderness?"

"Come, come, my daughter, that is too killing; don't say another word."

"O, yes, do tell me what they eat on their sandwitches?"

"Eat on 'em; why, what do they eat on 'em?"

"Butter to be sure."

"Butter! how do they get their butter?"

"Why, you know, pa, that when Lot's wife was turned into a pillar of salt, all the family but her ran into the wilderness!"

.....POETICAL.—We hasten, says the Chicago Tribune, to print the following poetic gem. It is a genuine morceau, disiinguished even among its fellows, scores of which come to our table daily. The writer evidently possesses that rare modesty which is the surest mark of true genius. In his dedicatory to the editor he says:

"If you wish eny more written on eny interesting subject either Prose or Poetical please send me word and how much you will pay for so meny words."

Health is a blessing to us all that live on this terrestrial ball
We ought to sing with sweet accord
To think that health prevails abroad.

Health thou art above all gold and treasure
Thou were never surpassed by wealth or pleasure
Thy loveliness extends throughout the land and sea
How kind thou art to all the earth thou art a friend to me.

In former years we loved thee then
We will love thee when old for thou hast been our soldiers friend the gallant and the bold.

Health I admire thy beauty
I beg that thou wil stay
For as long as thou art with me
The doctor keeps away.

There! Is not that delicious? Has it not the genuine ring with it? We ask for information. We have not yet answered our poetic correspondent, for fear that however high a price we should set on his abilities, it might be too little. Will not some of our friends aid us in the dilemma, and say what it is really worth "for so many words," if not more?

Business on the N. Y. Central.

The New York Central Railroad extends 800 miles, from Albany to Buffalo, most of the way with double and often with quadruple track. From 52 to 56 trains pass one way or the other daily, though its heaviest season is from September to November. Twenty-six conductors, each with a different special ticket punch, ply between Albany and Syracuse. It has 258 engines, 366 passenger and baggage cars, and 2,254 freight cars. It carried 3,783,266 passengers last year, at an average of about two cents fare a mile and an averaged rate of 28 miles an hour. It has a capital stock of 24½ millions and a funded debt of 14½ millions of dollars. Its earnings last year were $13,875,524, and its expenses $10,882,358.

THE RAILROAD AND TELEGRAPH IN AUSTRALIA.—This fifth continent has a total length of railroad measuring 478 miles, viz: In New South Wales, 139 miles; in Victoria, 255 miles; in South Australia, 58 miles; and in the New Province, Queensland, 26 miles. Besides these, New South Wales has 158 miles, and Queensland 40 miles in course of construction. Sidney and Melbourne have street and neighborhood railroads on the American principle. Of telegraph lines there are about 10,000 miles, including those projected; and in a short time the Australian system will be connected with the Asiatic lines, and via the Indian and Russian lines westward, and the Amoor and American lines eastward.

WHEAT TRADE OF MINNESOTA.—Our previous statement exhibited the amount shipped from all points in this State on the Minnesota and Mississippi rivers except La Crescent, making a total of 3,012,565 bushels. Add Mr. Huntoon's estimate of 100,000 bushels for Washington county, not previously included, and we have a total of 8,112,565 bushels shipped from Minnesota during the season of navigation in 1865. The large amount of Minnesota wheat shipped from Iowa ports would swell this amount to 8,500,000 bushels.

This is a pretty good showing for a State which in 1858 imported food, and which in 1859 only began to produce a surplus.—St. Paul Press.

Railways in Italy.

In 1867 the proverb which says that "All roads lead to Rome!" will be literally applicable, as the railway lines all arrive there. Thus, besides the line from Ancona to Rome, which will be finished in three or four months, Florence will also be connected with the Eternal City by the Aarezzo line, which runs to Perugia, and by the Siena one, which crosses the Appenines to Ficulla. From Leghorn, a railway along the coast already reaches the Pontificial frontier, and lastly, Naples has been for a considerable time in direct communication with the Pontificial capital.

—The Directors of the New York Central have resolved that the Sleeping Car Company shall hereafter pay 40 per cent. of the gross receipts to the railroad for the transportation and privileges they have heretofore enjoyed free of cost. When the stockholders of the railroads in the country get a fair show of the earnings of express companies, sleeping car companies, eating-houses, propeller lines, &c., the stock of the railroads will be quoted higher, and their dividends be more satisfactory.

—The Muscatine Journal says the committee appointed to secure subscriptions of stock in the Muscatine, Tipton and Anamosa Railroad are about to give up the job as a failure. They say they have canvassed diligently for the

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan.

One of the best filled Establishments!

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied
Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South Side Chicago St., Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS,

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY,
WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH, COTTAGE,
COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP,
WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Show Cases, Stands, Book Cases, Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short notice by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pictures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VanTine,
G. Smith,

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

TECUMSEH, - - MICH A

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions,

I keep the largest and best assortment of

ROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
FRUITS,
SALT
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,

&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had eleven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the business. If you dont believe it, ask your neighbors where they get their Groceries and where they buy them the

CHEAPEST.

Come and judge for yourselves.

A. JAM

☞ Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the Herald

---

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New Yi now opening a new stock of Groceries, Paints, Oils &c.

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago street

---

L. DREW'S.

NEW HARDWARE!!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass. Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a

Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron, and Zinc,

Also the Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

Agent for the sale of the UNIVERSAL

CLOTHES WRINGER.

the easiest and most reliable Wringer ye invented. Warranted to give satisfaction.—Take one and try it.

L. DREW.

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co. are now prepared to present to the public, every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART,

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and elegance to the figure. India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite

in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices.

and a general assortment of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

Real Estate for Sale.

Our old friend John Davenport wishes to dispose of the following property:

60 acres of fine timbered land lying near Franklin Centre.

120 acres of timbered land on Evans Lake.

Saw mill and 20 acres of land near Franklin Centre.

Brick House and 4 acres of land known as the Stitts property in the village of Tecumseh, now occupied by A. Hood

House and lot on Logan St. known as the Mrs Bissell property

Also—House and lot of J. E. Merritt Maiden Lane, in the village of Tecumseh.

Terms easy or to suit purchasers. For particulars call on or address the subscriber at Tecumseh, Mich.

JOHN DAVENPORT.

Dated Jan. 18th, 1866.

Tecumseh Union School!

C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.

The Fall term of this Institution, of sixteen weeks, commenced on Monday, Sept. 4th, 1865.

THE WINTER TERM, of twelve weeks will commence on Monday, January 8th, 1866.

Scholars will be received at any time and placed in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.

CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

C. H. ADAM & Co.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct 2tf TECUMSEH, MICH

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government,

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.

n790lysmp

☞ Have you job printing done at the Herald Office.

For Sale.

A house and lot situated on Pearl st., near the railroad depot, formerly owned by J. W. Wellman. For terms apply at this office.

---

18 Pronunciemento. 65.

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see

How well we can do For them.

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd best Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholesale or Retail.
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
Fine Midlings, B. W. Flour,
Ship Stuffs, B. W. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed.

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE.

They will always also usually find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE,

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL,

Corn In the Ear and Shelled

A good assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantable Lumber

Wm. HAYDEN

GREAT DECLINE

Boots & Shoes

ARE DOWN! not in New York or Boston but at

E. H. HOAG'S

Mammoth Shoe Store,

Returning the public thanks for liberal patronage during the past year, I shall offer during the next

SIXTY DAYS,

BOOTS & SHOES

AT PRICES WHICH WILL

DEFY COMPETITION.

The attention of sewed Boot customers is called to my stock of fine

French & American Calf Skins,

which are being made up

In a Style unsurpassed for

WORKMANSHIP AND DURABILITY.

LADIES AND MISSES

Congress Gaiters, Balmorals and POLISH BOOTS,

made to order from all materials

E. H. HOAG.

Tecumseh, Jan. 1st, 1866.

D. NOTEAN M. D.

Practical Physician, for the treatment of Chronic Diseases, will visit Tecumseh the

1st & 2d of Every Month,

for Consultation with patients. Cancers and Scrotulus Tumors removed without the use of the knife. Bronchitis, Catarrh, and Incipient Consumption cured in three to five months. Liver Complaint, Dispepsia, and Constipation cured in 2 to 4 months. Piles Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration and diseases of the Genital Organs yield readily to his treatment. Prolepsus Uteri he is master of. Charges reasonable according to ability to pay. the really poor will be treated gratis. He will be at Comstock & Noteman's Drug Store, Adrian, the last week in each month. Residence on Budling Street. All letters with stamp enclosed will receive prompt attention. For further particulars (See Circulars.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM,

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

☞ All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Prices.

F. R. Stebbins,
Adrian piano Rooms,

I am selling, and keep on hand at my Furniture Store,

Steinway & Sons, Wm. B. Bradbury, Weber and Vose Pianos from fifty to one hundred dollars cheaper than any dealer in the West.

Call and see or address me. I have also the largest and best assortment of

FURNITURE.

WINDOW SHADES, PICTURE PHOTOGRAPH FRAMES &c.

In Southern Michigan. All Pianos and Furniture guaranteed just as represented, and shipped safely by railroad to any point

STEBBINS' FURNITURE ROOMS.

Adrian, Mich. n742tf

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL

IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor, show room the same 3 doors east of A. Hood & Co's clothing store.

With the improvements she has made in the last year—which warranted the Judges at the State Fair, to award her the first prize and Diploma for pictures exhibited at that time—she feels anxious for those wanting likenesses, to call and examine her specimens of work.

To those who have six photographs an additional one will be given. She has 24 varieties of photograph frames, which will be sold cheaper than they can be found elsewhere.

New Meat Market!!

Bidwell's Warehouse, Railroad st.,

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

HUGH McGEE, Proprietor.

Who is now prepared to furnish the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity with

FRESH MEATS OF ALL KINDS,

at the lowest possible rates. Thankful for past patronage he would respectfully solicit a continuance of the same.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at

A. JAMES

1866. 1866.

MERRITT, MEEKER & Co

SUCCESSORS TO J. H. WHEELER.

Have just received a large additon to their

STOCK OF GOODS,

And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of

DRY GOODS,

YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Particular attention is called to their stock

of BUFFALO ROBES and LADIES AND GENTS FURS,

which they are now selling

At Cost.

We would announce to his numerous friends that we have secured the services of Wm. VanCamp, and he will take pleasure in waiting upon all.

It is no trouble to show goods; should you wish anything in our line give us a call before purchasing elsewhere and we will do our best to give satisfaction.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee s.s.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian on Friday the 26th day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six.

Present, Robert R Beecher, Judge of Probate In the matter of the estate of William B Whitnah, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified of Jacob G. Roberts, one of the executors of the last will of said deceased praying that the final account of the executors of said will may be allowed and that said executors may be discharged and that distribution may be made of the estate of said deceased in their hands.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday the 19th day of March next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted:

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ROBERT R. BEECHER, Judge of Probate

(A true copy) n790w4

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.

Published for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supplying at the same time the means of Self Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a post paid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, may be had of the author

NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Brooklyn, Kings Co., N. Y.

n790lysmp

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co., that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the

Nicest, Best and Strongest,

WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS,

and in fact everything in his line from a baby carriage to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition. So call and save your orders.

NEW SKIRT FOR 1866.

THE GREAT INVENTION OF THE AGE IN

HOOP SKIRTS.

J. W. BRADLEY'S New Patent DUPLEX ELLIPTIC (or double) SPRING SKIRT.

This invention consists of Duplex (or two) Elliptic Pure Refined Steel Springs, ingeniously braided tightly and firmly together, edge to edge, making the toughest, most flexible elastic and durable Spring ever used. They seldom bend or break, like the Single Springs, and consequently preserve their perfect and beautiful shape more than twice as long as any Single Spring Skirt that ever has or can be made.

The wonderful flexibility and great comfort and pleasure to any Lady wearing the Duplex Elliptic Skirt will be experienced particularly in all crowded Assemblies, Operas, Carriages, Railroad Cars, Church Pews, Arm Chairs, for Promenade and House Dress, as the Skirt can be folded when in use to occupy a small place as easily and conveniently as a Silk or Muslin Dress.

A Lady having enjoyed the pleasure, comfort and Great Convenience of wearing the Duplex Elliptic Steel Spring Skirt for a single day will never afterwards willingly dispense with their use. For Children, Misses and Young Ladies they are superior to all others.

The Hoops are covered with 2 ply double twisted thread and will wear twice as long as the Single yarn covering which is used on all Single Steel Hoop Skirts. The three bottom rods on every Skirt are also Double Steel, and twice or double covered to prevent the covering from wearing off the rods when dragging down stairs, stone steps, etc., etc which they are constantly subject to when in use.

All are made of new and elegant Corded Tapes, and are the best quality in every part, giving to the wearer the most graceful and perfect shape possible, and are unquestionably the lightest, most desirable, comfortable and economical Skirt ever made.

WEST' BRADLEY & CARY, PROPRIETORS of the Invention, and SOLE MANUFACTURERS, 97 Chambers, and 79 and 81 Reade streets New York.

For sale in all first-class stores in this City, and throughout the United States and Canada, Havana de Cuba, Mexico, South America and the West Indies.

BILL HEADS,
CARDS,
CIRCULARS,
HANDBILLS,
BLANKS,

And every discription of Job work, neatly executed at this office.

Get your Handbills, Cards, Blanks, and all kinds of printing at this Office.

GLORIOUS NEWS,

The Confederacy gone up! But

GEORGE HEESEN'S

CLOTHING EMPORIUM

Is in full blast, and has not yet surrendered to young america. I would say to my friends and customers that I have just received a large stock of clothing which were purchased at panic prices, and I will sell them at a very small profit, for they must be sold within ninety days. I

Sell Cassimere Pants at 6.50.

Broad cloth and cassimere coats very cheap, Linen coats cheaper than any other house in town; woolen and Straw

HATS, CAPS!

Linen and Paper Collars,
Neck Ties, Shirts,
Gloves, Hosiery,
Traveling Bags, &c.

It is easily understood that I can sell goods cheaper than my neighbor for I save great expense, been a tailor and having followed the business for the last 17 years I know how work ought to be done.

Please come over on the Canada side for you can buy goods cheaper than you can on the American, for all expense of importing is saved, which amounts to considerable.

Cutting Done at Old Prices.

Those wishing garments made would do well to call on me and have an honest job done.

Geo. Heesen.

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartnership in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE AND FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions,

Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected stock of

Crockery and Glass-Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

HALL'S
Vegetable Sicilian
HAIR RENEWER,

As the name indicates, not only RENEWS the growth of the hair when thin and falling off, but positively renews the color to its original shade when it is turning grey or white, whether caused by disease, grief or old age.

It will certainly do what is claimed for it, a fact to which hundreds, nay thousands, who have used it, are ready and willing to testify. Whereever it is fairly used, in any community, its reputation "spreads like wild fire," and is the best advertisement and recommendation we desire. In the Eastern States, where the "RENEWER" originated, the young ladies use it as a hair dressing; it is found on the toilet tables of young men, (also at their barbers), while older men and women who desire a Renewer and Restorative for their grey locks and bald heads will not be without this article, which gives in every instance, entire satisfaction.

CAUTION.

Don't let any druggist or dealer urge upon you a different article, as there is no preparation in the world like this. Beware of any article purporting to be the same.

Try HALL'S HAIR RENEWER according to Directions, and you will use no other.

If not sold at druggists in your town, a trial bottle will be sent you by express, upon receipt of one dollar by mail, thus giving you an opportunity at once of testing its excellent qualities.

Orders for trial bottles must be addressed to

C. A. COOK, Chicago,

Gen'l Agent for Northwestern States.

R. P. HALL & CO., Proprietors, Nashua, N. H.

Sold at WHOLESALE, in Chicago, by FULLER, FINCH & FULLER, BURNHAMS & VAN SCHAACK, LORD & SMITH, SMITH & DWYER, J. H. REED & CO., CHAS. G. SMITH, DIETZSCH, BLOCKI & CO., H. SCOVIL, W. D. HARRIS & CO., POST & RADBAU, and by druggists and dealers generally.

WHEREAS, my wife Emma Brown has left my bed and board without just cause or provocation, I hereby forbid any person trusting or harboring her on my account for I shall pay no debts of her contracting after this date.

WILLIAM HENRY BROWN.

Janurary, 27th, 1866.

CO-PARTNERSHIP

A. Hood & Co.

are now receiving at the Old Stand of A Hood, Anderson's Block,

A LARGE STOCK

—OF—

NEW GOODS

Direct from New York consisting of

Ready Made Clothing

A splended assortment of THE LATEST STYLES of cloths that could be found in the Eastern markets, consisting of

BROAD CLOTHS, DOESKINS,
FREFCH, SCOTCH and ENGLISH
CASSIMERES, COATINGS,
VESTINGS, OVER COATINGS,
&c. Also a heavy

STOCK OF WOOLEN SHIRTS

Of all styles, UNDER SHIRTS and DRAWERS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, HOSIERY.

A nice assortment of

HATS & CAPS!

Furnishing Goods!

Of all kinds for mens wear, We mean to keep on hand as good a selection of goods in our line as can be found in any one establishment in the County, and for CASH we will sell them as low, or a little lower than any other establishment in the County.

Our Tailoring Department is in full blast. We are prepared to get up Suits on SHORT NOTICE, in as GOOD STYLE, and at as low figures as any other establishment.

CUTTING DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

H. M. GRAY. A. HOOD.

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS,

is the place to get good grinding done. I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING,

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. GROUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Mill Feed of all kinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Bills of hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shall endeavor to do as good work, and even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

GREAT CENTRAL

United States Mail Route.

THREE EXPRESS TRAINS leave Windsor (opposite Detroit) daily for the East, on the arrival of Trains of Michigan Central, Detroit and Milwaukee, and Michigan Southern Railways from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati and all points West North-West and South West.

This is the only route via Niagara Falls and suspension Bridge, and is the direct route to Buffalo, New York, Boston, London, Paris, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Prescott, Ogdensburgh, Montreal, Quebec and Portland.

☞ Passenger Cars are furnished with Patent ventilators.

Luxurious Sleeping Cars attached to all night trains, and Smoking Cars to all day trains.

☞ United States Currency taken at par for through fares, sleeping Car berths and meals at Refreshment Saloons.

CHARLES MCCARE,
Western Passenger Agent, Detroit.

THOS SWINYARD, General manager, Hamilton, C. W.

JAS. CHARLTON, General Agent, Hamilton, C. W.

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVI. NO. 41. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN. THURSDAY EVENING. MARCH 1, 1866. WHOLE NO. 795.

G. T. KETCHAM'S
BOOK STORE,
Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.
(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)
DEALER IN
CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER.
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.
—o—
I will sell any of the above goods as
Cheap or Cheaper
nan any other dealer in the country, and
WARRANT
all goods sold as good as recommended.
—o—
CASH FOR RAGS!
—o—
Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.
J. D. Robbins.
TECUMSEH, - - - - - - - MICHIGAN.

The PEOPLE OF TECUMSEH!
WE HAIL,
But do not conceal, the fact that
GOULD & WALDO
Have just opened a first class
Drug & Grocery Store,
Where will be kept constantly on hand a choice supply of Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Dye Stuffs, Domestic Dyes, Patent Medicines, Family Groceries, Kerosene Oil, and
in fact everything usually kept in
Similar Establishments,
Where they are prepared and bound to sell from ten to fifty per cent. lower than can be sold elsewhere in Southern Michigan.
STORE 1 DOOR EAST OF A. James and opposite the Post Office.
PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY PREPARED. Liberal discount to Physicians. 793

PHŒNIX INSURANCE COMPANY.
S. C. STACY,
RESIDENT AGENT,
TECUMSEH, MICH.

GREAT
CLEARING OUT SALE
OF
DRY GOODS
FOR THE
NEXT THIRTY DAYS
WE WANT TO
CLEAR OUT THE OLD STOCK!
WE WANT TO MAKE ROOM FOR
A New Stock!
We want to get a
Pile of Greenbacks!
And in order to do so we offer our present stock of Dry Goods at
VERY LOW PRICES.
DRESS GOODS,
PRINTS, DELAINES,
HOOP SKIRTS, SHAWLS,
NUBIAS, HOODS, SHEETING
FLANNELS, CLOTHS,
CASSIMERES, WOOLEN
SHIRTING & SHIRTS,
UNDERSHIRTS, DRAWERS,
&c at Cost and
Less than Cost
We Mean
WHAT WE SAY
DO NOT FAIL TO CALL and SEE Us at
NUMBER ONE
BIDWELL'S BLOCK!
TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.

Express Freight,	6:15 A. M
Mail and Express,	1:15 P. M.

GOING NORTH.

Mail and Express,	9:28 A. M.
Accommodation,	6:38 P. M.

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD R. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich,

ALFRED JAMES.
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT.
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilets, &c.
Chicao St. Tecumseh, Mich.

P. N. CURTIS.
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER,
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

GOULD & WALDO,
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St. - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN B. WOOD.
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER,
Attorney's, Councellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT.
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & McCOWEN.
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWARD H. HOAG,
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EMLAY & COURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harness and Leather
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HORACE BREWER.
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS.
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

O. G. ADAMS.
Watchmaker and worker in Jewelry.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

I. C. SATTERTHWAITE.
Insurance Agent and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT.
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS.
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL.
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE.
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St - - Tecumseh, Mich

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St. Opposite P O.fice.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT,
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR L. BARNES,
(Late Surgeon in-chelf 3d div 10 a. c.)
Physician & Surgeon,
A practitioner of years experience and two years extensive surgical practice in the U. S. Army. Office and residence 3d door north of the M. E. Church. Tecumseh, Mich.

The Tecumseh Herald,
C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.

(One inch of column constitutes a square.)

	1 wk	3 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$ 2.00	$ 6.00	$ 7.00	$10.00
2 Squares	1.75	3.50	8.00	12.00	15.00
3 Squares	2.75	5.00	11.00	16.00	20.00
¼ Column	5.00	9.00	12.00	18.00	25.00
½ Column	7.50	12.00	18.00	25.00	36.00
1 Column	12.00	15.00	20.00	35.00	60.00

☞ No advertisement considered less than one square. Transient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted at $3.50 per year.

☞ Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

☞ There are some of our subscribers who have never paid us a cent since we commenced publishing the "Herald." To those we would say, we must have our money or we shall place the accounts in an officers hands for collection immediately. A word to the wise is sufficient.

☞ Citizens of Hillsdale have subscribed $1,000 to establish a Business College at that place, the same to be under the management of Calkins, Griffin & Co., proprietors of Oberlin (Ohio) College.

☞ The editor of the Muskegon News was recently presented with a purse of $400, by the busines men of that village as an acknowledgement of the services rendered by his paper in behalf of that county and town.

☞ The new tannery is a fixed fact. The job has been let, and the work has already began. When shall we be able to say that the work on the new Woolen Factory has commenced.

☞ Remember the Donation visit this (Thursday) evening for the benefit of Rev. J. H. Burnham, held in the lecture room of the Methodist Church. Mr. Burnham is one of our best and most faithful clergymen, and his Donation should be a large one.

☞ The Universalist Sabbath School Concert on last Sunday evening, was, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather well attended and altogether a very creditable affair. The singing under the direction of Prof. Leland was unusually fine, and the exercises of the different classes were well sustained and very interesting.

THE FRESHET.—The storm and thaw last week produced a freshet that has seldom been equalled in this locality.—Evans creek, which is always a wild one, was more unruly than usual, the water reaching a higher point than it has before for several years. At the Globe and Raisin Mills the water was so high that, for a time, it flowed over the dam.

Had the ground not been frozen much serious damage would have been done.

☞ A movement is on foot to establish in Adrian a Normal Musical Musical Academy, with J. W. Tuffern, formerly of Indianapolis, as Principal. It is proposed to hold two terms each year.

☞ There is very little now doing in our business community. People are buying just enough for their every day day requirements, and, as a consequence, merchants are complaining of the stagnation of business. There is nothing strange about it. The same thing happens every year at this time and it is to be expected.

Died.

In Raisin, Aug. 14th 1865 of Dysenentary, DAVID, aged 2 years and ten months. January 30th 1866 of Diptheria, WILLIAM, aged 12 years 7 months and 6 days. On the 6th ult., of Dihtheria, ADDIE B., aged 2 years 1 month and 5 days. On the 13th ult., of Diptheria, ELIZA J., aged 9 years 1 month and six days. On the 16th ult., of Diptheria, ADFRED H., aged 10 years 10 months and 21 days. All children of Robert and Mary J. Boyd.

In Hillsdale, on February 19th, 1866, THOMAS W. son of Simpson T. and Elizabeth Clark, aged 3 months and 8 days.

☞ It is an old adage that "there is bitter mixed with every sweet" but not so with the sweet sugar that Gould & Waldo are selling at one shilling per pound at their Drug Store, one door east of A James'.

☞ Dr. Patterson is preparing to open an extensive yard for the manufacture of brick and tile. The demand for building brick will be unusually large in the spring.

The Game Law.

The law for the protection of game in this State prohibit the killing of wild turkies, partridges, ruffled grouse or pheasants, from the first of last month until the first of September next; also prairie chickens or pinated grouse, or any wild goose or swan from the first of February to the 15th of August. The killing of deer is prohibited by the same laws from the 15th of March to the first of September next. The killing of quails from the first of January to the first of October; woodcock from the first of March to the first of July. The use of the punt or swivel gun for the destruction of game is entirely prohibited, and also the killing of all birds not known as game birds, except the black bird. The killing of otter or beaver is prohibited from the first of april to the first of October. The provision of these laws do not extend over the Upper Peninsula, nor apply to the Indians.

HINTS TO THE FROST BITTEN.—The following hints for the restoratin of frozen limbs, from a recent medical work, may prove serviceable during this inclement weather to such as may be so unfortunate as to get nipped by old "Jack Frost." "Do not heat the frost-bitten limb; do not put it into warm water. The water should be cold, and about the temperature of 32 degrees. Some persons are in the habit of rubbing the frozen benumed flesh with snow. The danger is that this will be to cold. If used at all, it should be when the air is not excessively cold or in a room in which the temperature is moderate.

☞ The following is a list of the names of those to whom diplomas have been awarded at the Albion Comercial College during the past ten days: A. G. Baker, of Fairfield; J. E. Bibbins, of Hanover; Geo. H. Cathcart, of Granville; Geo. D. Clark, of Mendon; L. A. Condit, of Adrian; John Green, of Medina; H. B. Doust, of Burr Oak; L. B. Demarest, of Fowlerville; M. H. Edmonds, of Burlington; A. M. French of Richmond; A. M. Gould, of Jackson, Wm. H. Haire of Granville; J. W. Knaggs, of Monroe; J. B. Stilwell, of Litchfield; S. L. Lautenshlager, of Grafton; N. McGraft, of East Saginaw; J. B. Stevens, of Monroe; E. A. Warner, of Hanover; J. C. Warner, of Cassapolis; and C. F. Worthington, of Tecumseh.

☞ At a meeting of the citizens of Tecumseh, held at Slayton, Tindall & Co's. office on Tuesday evening Feb. 27th to discuss the propriety of erecting a Hotel in this village during the coming season, Mr. A. Anderson was called to the Chair, and Mr J. W. Stevens appointed Secretary. After a short discussion in regard to the manner of raising funds. Messrs. H. Brewer, T. Cummins, G. T. Ketcham, J. P. Savton and W. Anderson were appointed a committee to present a plan for raising said fund, at an adjourned meeting to be held at Slayton, Tindall & Co's. office, on this (Thursday) evening which all interested in having a Hotel in Tecumseh, are invited to attend.

☞ George A. Stebbins was murdered at his residence in Palmyra, 10 miles south of this place, on Friday night last. The circumstances are said to be as follows: He was a drinking man and often when under the influence of liquor, beat and abused his wife, for which she had previously caused his arrest. Having indulged in his drunken pastime last week he told his wife that if she ever took out another warrant for his arrest he would kill her. This did not deter her however from lodging complaint against him on Friday last, and when he came home at night he undertook to cary out his threat. A nephew of Mrs. Stebbins was in the house, and being alarmed by her cries came to the rescue, killing Stebbins by a blow on the head. This is the report as present received, but further developments may possibly change the aspect of the affairs.

☞ Show us a newspaper, says the Boston Transcript, whose columns are at all times crowded with new advertisements, and we will show you a community alive with business enterprise. This age is a moving one. A man who stands in these latter days will in a short time find himself behind his competitors.

Alas! by some degree of woe,
We every bliss must gain,
The heart can ne'er a transport know,
That never knew a pain.

Hence after the pain of paying such extreme high prices, step into Gould & Waldo's and enjoy the bliss of buying goods at reasonable rates.

For the Tecumseh Herald

From the South.

[CONTINUED FROM NO. 793.]

MEMPHIS, January 18, 1866.

Five Rail Roads have their Termini in this city, and others, are projected, one to Little Rock, and Fort Smith, forty miles of which is already completed.—The Nickolson pavement, and street Rail Road, will soon be in full and complete operation here, nothing having been done in the way of improvements, during the last four years of war. I believe there are churches of all denominations in the city. There are three Episcopal churches and five parishes. The Calvary Grace and St. Marys'. I was told, by the Rector of Grace church, that Bishop Quintard, is trying to bring about the building of a large cathedral, in Memphis where service will be held every day in the year and every Sabbath morning service will be held at the Cathedral, when all the clergy of the city will be present after which they can hold service in their own Parishes at any other hour during the day. The best churches here, are far inferior to those of our northern cities, they are much like our little church in Tecumseh, our Pastor says the church people here, are and always have been willing, to give to the church, but are never willing to work for it. Memphis can boast of but four really beautiful dwelling houses. A house like Dr Patterson's or Albert Anderson's, would rent for enough here, to build a little gem of a house in Tecumseh. The best busines blocks here, are very fine, there are some (perhaps) twenty blocks quite as fine as the Merrill Block in Detroit, one store on main St. called the Southern Palace is really beautiful, and in one of the windows is a large Portrait of Gen. Robert Lee, in a magnificent frame, also on the opposite of the street is the portrait of Stonewall Jackson. The city affords many places of amusements they have, nearly completed a very fine building, called the Greenlaw Opera House, also a new Theatre, and are soon to have a large museum.

January 19th 1866.

I presume it will be hard for you at the north to believe that it is so warm, and summer like this morning that we have no fires and are sitting with our doors and windows open. The grass about our yard is as green as it is anytime during the summer at the north, and our mustard are all growing nicely in our small garden spot. I can hardly realize that you are having very comfortable winter weather now at the north. We have had no cold weather since I came to Memphis compared with the few cold days we had before I left Tecumseh. I have no doubt, omitted much in my letter, with regard to busines affairs in the city of Memphis which would have been more interesting to my friends than the matters of which I have spoken, but not having been accustomed to writing letters of this kind, I hope to be excused for all that may be amiss in my letter and that my good friends, will take "The will for the Deed.

Mrs. E Q.

DRY GOODS.—Now is the time to buy Dry Goods. For bargains go to R. C. Moore's. You will find the largest and best assortment of Dress Goods, Broadcloths, Flannels, Balmoral and Hoop Skirts, Stripes, Tickings &c, in the market. Go where you can get your money's worth.

Special attention is called to the above mentioned stock of goods before you purchase elsewhere.

Dissolution.

The partnership of Hause & Pelham being dissolved; Dr. E. Hause would hereby say, to his old friends, and patrons he has in readines new Dental Rooms, over Gould & Waldo's Drug Store, opposite the Post-Office, where he is prepared with every facility to do all new, and improved styles of work.

Office hours from 8 to 12 A.M., 1 to 5 P.M

☞ Two men, Benjamin James and James Somers, were lodged in jail in Adrian on Saturday, the former for 50 days, the latter for 20, for commiting assault and battery on Caspar Stubelin, in the township of Woodstock, on Thursday last. Three other men were fined for the same offense.

☞ H. C. Conkling bought of S. Rappleye of Ridgeway for $11 per cwt., 40 hogs, whose average weight was 316 lbs. Who can beat them.

A Big Pile!

The old Phœnix of Hartford paid in losses during the year 1865 the sum of $410,613.31 and paid every loss promptly. It has paid $67,057 in lossess in the state of Michigan alone. It's total assests now amount to over one million dollars. All who desire first class reliable insurance should insure with the Phœnix.

Donation.

The friends of the Rev. W. J. Skillman will pay him a visit at his residence in South Macon, on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday March 7 1866. All are respectfully invited.

☞ When you are in want of a good gold pen go to Ketcham's.

☞ We shall next week, send the HERALD to 1000 of the citizens of Lenawee County who are not now subscribers, requesting them to look it over and subscribe for the same. We are endeavoring to give a first class weekly journal and we need the support of every citizen of Tecumseh and northern Lenawee.—Will each one of our old subscribers aid us in increasing our list, by obtaining at least one new subscriber.

☞ President Johnson's emancipation proclamation created a great deal of interest. So did C. H. Adam & Co.'s gift entertainment. They would say to their friends that they have again adopted the gift sale system, and are selling their goods at greatly reduced prices. Here is the place to buy, where you can get your goods cheap and a prize "free gratis."

The world was sad, the garden was wild,
And man, the hermit, sighed till woman smiled.

Woman will always smile when they are presented with any of those ever fragrant perfumes, sold at Gould & Waldo's cheap cash Drug Store.

☞ Dr. Curtis is selling the best quality of Groceries a little cheaper than anybody else in town. Best Rio Coffee for 35c.; Sugars and Teas equally low and everything else to correspond.

☞ Messrs Nyland & Heesen, have purchased the west half of Union Block on Chicago st. They propose opening a large stock in their new quarters about the 1st of April.

☞ Dan'l McNichol & Joseph Willson soon open a first class shoe store in the building now occupied by Nyland & Heesen.

Be Careful.

Do not expose yourself to the chilly March winds and the shaking weather which always heralds their approach. Keep your children warmly clad and free from exposure. For bad Coughs, sudde obstinate Colds, Croup and Sore Throat, use Coe's Cough Balsam

If you have the dyspepsia, or troubled with food distressing you, rising and sourling on your stomach your bowels are out of order you are bilious constipated and generally indisposed, use Coe's Dyspepsia Cure — It is the best medicine for stomach and bowel disorders in the world.

☞ Noah, and other poems by Balteman, for sale at Ketcham's.

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Mich. March 1, 1866.

Brown Simeon H.	Curry Mrs. Hellen
Cannaff E. C	Cook Mrs. Catherine
Quiten Aaron	S. Everitt
Fowler L vi	Fainchild Miss S.
Hoag Mrs. Sarah	Milligan P
Morhörton Chas. W	Sylvens Wm.
Wisner Henre T.

W. ANDERSON, P. M.

What is the Matter!
The Fact is the new firm of
SLAYTON TINDALL &Co.
are selling
FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT!
By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff. And all the people are rushing for it. Come on we have a large stuck of such wheat on hand yet, also
BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,
CORN MEAL,
PLASTER,
WATER LIME,
CLOVER SEED,
TIMOTHY SEED,
CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF
Grain and Seeds!!
SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO.
Tecumseh, Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

Corporation Election.

Notice is hereby given to the electors of the village of Tecumseh, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, that the next ensuing general corporation election for said village, will be held on the first Monday of March next, being the 5th day of said month, at Union Hall in said village at which election the following officers are to be chosen to wit: A President, six Trustees, Recorder, Treasurer, Marshall and two Assessors. The polls of said election will be open at 9 o clock in the forenoon, and will be continued open until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, unless the Board shall, in their discretion adjourn the polls at twelve o'clock, noon, for one hour.

Dated Tecumseh this 17th day Feb 1866.

Charles Burridge, Recorder.

A. J. HOAG,
Successor to WM. REITERMAN & Co.
WHOLESALE DEALER IN
Ambrotype and Photograph Stock,
285 Summit St. - - Toledo, O.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

The steamer Hillman collided with the steamer Nannie Byers, at half past two o'clock a. m., on the 24th, near Madison, Indiana, sinking the latter in four or five minutes. Nearly every one on the boat was asleep, and reports vary from 25 to 60 in their estimates of the lives lost.

Oil City has been flooded, owing to an ice gorge in Oil Creek. The Monongahela river was eight feet higher than common and still rising, on the 24th.

A family of five persons were burned to death in Baltimore on the 24th, the flames having barred all possibility of escape.

The Fenian Congress at Pittsburgh adjourned on the 24th, after disclaiming all interest in American politics, and urging the Brotherhood to prepare for war.

By authority of the President, Gen. Howard announces that the Freedmen's Bureau will be continued one year from this time.

Terrible suffering has prevailed in the Northwest Territories from the late cold term. Several soldiers at Fort Abercrombie and Fort Wadsworth, have been frozen to death, and a party on the way between these points are believed to have perished.

Further diplomatic correspondence relative to the pirate Shenandoah has been published. Mr. Seward, it appears, refuses to recognize the vessel as the Shenandoah, asserting that she has never been other than the British registered ship Sea King. The London journals characterize the correspondence as of an irritating nature.

Cleveland had something very much like an earthquake on the 15th. The earth was shaken, accompanied by a loud, dull report, and a fissure was made in the earth for a long distance, extending into the ground for a depth of several feet, and being about two or three inches wide at the top. The gap closed up during the day. The phenomena is supposed to have been caused by the intense cold.

It is understood that Secretary Seward has telegraphed from New York to Washington that he endorses every word of the President's speech.

A caucus of Union Congressmen was held on the evening of the 23d,—Senator Foster presiding. All the speeches counselled moderation. A committee was appointed to circulate documents for the enlightenment of the people.

Some of the leading Democrats of New York are urging the division of the State and the formation of a new State, to comprise the southern eighteen counties.

The official report of Chief Engineers Danby, Fithian, and Kellogg, General Inspectors of Steam Machinery in the navy, appointed by the Department to conduct the competitive experiments of the Winooski and Algonquin, is published. It declares that the contractor for the machinery of the Algonquin has failed in every guarantee, and that the vessel is not fit for the naval service. It states that neither of the vessels steered well.

Prof. Edward Daniels has been appointed agent of Wisconsin at the Paris Exposition.

The convention of editors and publishers of Illinois met on the 22d and 23d at Peoria, enjoying in the evening of the 22d the hospitalities of the board of trade of that city. The convention organized, adopted a constitution, with J. W. Merritt of Springfield as President. Resolutions favoring a reduction of the duty on paper, the publication of state laws by state authority, decreasing the percentage to advertising agents, and deprecating gratuitous advertising, were passed. Two dollars per annum for subscription, and ten dollars per square for advertising, were declared low enough for the most unpretending country papers. A resolution was unanimously adopted denouncing Mather & Co., advertising agents, of New York, as swindlers.

The Mass Convention of Farmers at Dixon, Ill., on the 20th, passed resolutions denouncing the "railroad monopolies," and strongly advocating the improvement of Rock River. At Janesville on the same day a meeting was also held for the purpose of forwarding the last mentioned object. Much enthusiasm prevailed.

The Iowa Senate has passed a resolution instructing the senators and requesting the representatives from that State to sustain the Freedmen's Bureau bill, notwithstanding the President's objections.

In the New Jersey Senate on the 21st, Mr. Winfield, Democrat, offered resolutions indorsing Mr. Johnson's veto of the Freedmen's Bureau bill. On motion of Mr. Scovel, President of the Senate, the resolutions were laid on the table by a strict party vote.

The reply of Secretary Seward to Mr. Bigelow's despatch, inclosing the speech of the Emperor Napoleon in reference to Mexican affairs, was forwarded to Europe on the 21st. Mr. Seward alludes with considerable severity to, and denies, the assertion of the Emperor that our Government had been invited to join France in her Mexican intervention before the introduction of French forces into the army of Maximilian.

The New York Express states that Gen. Butler has paid to Smith Bros., of New Orleans, the $30,000 in gold which they alleged he abstracted from their vaults together with interest and all costs, making an aggregate of over $150,000.

The order allowing the resumption of the Richmond Examiner was issued by General Grant. The condition of the resumption is, that, in the future, the paper "will not pursue a course inimical to the government," and will "give support, countenance and friendship to acts and expessions of loyalty to the Union and its supporters."

It is considered certain that Mr. McCulloch's loan bill will be defeated in the Senate.

The address of the French Senate in reply to Napoleon's speech says, in speaking of Mexico, that "The firm communications made by the Emperor to the United States have demonstrated that haughty and menacing language will not cause France to withdraw.

Assistant Secretary Chandler, who has been making a tour through the South, says that the Treasury is being robbed by Government officials of millions upon millions.

There are reports of the appearance of a disease among the cattle, resembling the rinderpest, in Montgomery county, Penn. The State Senate has appointed a special committee to make an investigation. The disease first made its appearance in the spring of 1855, and since then a very large number of cattle have died. It has every appearance of rinderpost, and the County Medical Society and Agricultural Society are investigating it.

The House Committee on elections has reported that the seat now occupied by D. W. Voorhees, Dem., belongs to his contestant, H. L. Washburn.

It is reported that, in consequence of their opposition to the veto of the Freedmen's Bureau bill, Messrs. Stanton, Speed, and Harlan will be removed from their positions in the Cabinet.

The Democrats are rejoicing greatly over the vote of the Freedmen's Bureau bill. At Dayton, Ohio, they fired 100 guns, and Vallandigham made a speech declaring it to be the duty of the Democracy to stand by the President.

A freight train of ten or twelve cars, bound West on Monday, on the Ohio & Mississippi Railroad, ran through a bridge at Beaver Creek on the 20th. The engineer and firemen were both killed, and three of the train men received serious injuries.

An adjourned meeting of the farmers of the various counties along the line of the Chicago & Rock Island railroad was held at Ottawa on the 20th. The convention was largely attended and much spirit and enthusiasm were manifested relative to the transit question.

The Cairo Times reports that four monitors are now lying before that city, intended for harbor defence. Two will be stationed in harbors on the Gulf, while the other two will be sent to the Atlantic coast. They are all of the same model, and nearly the same size—the Tippecanoe, the last finished, being 1,034 tons capacity and drawing thirteen feet of water. They will soon be joined by seven other light draught monitors for river defense. Five of these vessels draw nine feet of water, and two five feet; all are to be 614 tons measurement and to carry 11-inch guns. The large monitors carry 15-inch smooth-bore, Dahlgren guns.

Advices from Montana announce that 200 persons have been frozen to death in the vicinity of Sun river.

Wreckers all along the river below the scene of the recent disaster to the steamer Missouri, have been reaping a harvest, picking up baggage from the wreck. A boy at Henderson recovered a trunk containing many valuables and $500 in money.

Jacksonville, Illinois, is reported to be in trouble just now, because their collector has decamped, carrying off with him $8,000 of the corporation funds.

The extensive barracks at Chattanooga, with all their contents, were distroyed by fire on Saturday, the 17th.

All the prisoners in the Walworth county jail at Elkhorn, Wis., escaped on the night of the 19th. Among them was a bank robber and two horse-thieves.

Gen. Grant has issued an order to commanders of departments, directing them to send copies of newspapers containing disloyal sentiments, with a statement as to whether the publication of such sentiments is habitual—the information being called for with the view of suppressing such sheets.

The suppression of the Richmond Examiner is no doubt in consequence of a satirical account which appeared in that paper ten days ago of a ball given by the officers of the garrison. The hosts and the guests were rather broadly burlesqued, and ladies and gentlemen were alluded to by name in terms calculated to excite the risible faculties. This article was extensively flavored with the old secession leaven, and altogether made a great sensation in Richmond. The edition was exhausted in a short time, and it was necessary to republish the article to gratify the prurient curiosity of the public.

President Johnson has vetoed the Freedmen's Bureau bill, and has transmitted to the Senate a lengthy message setting forth his objections to its passage. He is opposed to the bill in all its features, some of which he pronounces unconstitutional, others expensive, and others beyond the jurisdiction of Congress. The immediate admission of all the Southern members of Congress is also urged.

The Fenians of New York and Brooklyn, to the number of 20,000 are expected to parade, under Col. O'Mahoney, on St. Patrick's Day.

The Georgia Legislature have refused to reconsider a bill to punish horse-stealing with death.

The French troops to be withdrawn from Mexico are to be replaced with one hundred thousand Austrians.

CONGRESSIONAL.

In the Senate, on the 19th, Mr. Yates, of Illinois made a speech on the reconstruction question, taking the ground that Congress had the power to fix conditions of restoration.

In the house, on the 19th, the following bills were offered: To make eight hours a day's work of Government employes. repealing the act exempting Government bonds from State and Government tax; equalizing bounties; to improve the Sandusky harbor and river; giving bounty in lands to one hundred day men; for the relief of persons from punishment, by State authority, for acts done under the authority of the United States; a bill that the loyal States have power to amend the Constitution; reducing the duty on printing paper; donating temporary barracks and encampments to benevolent institutions; authorizing the Keokuk & Hannibal Bridge Company to bridge the Mississippi; granting land to the Iowa & Missouri State Line Railroad; reimbursing the State of Missouri for money expended during the war; regulating railroad freights by taxation; making additional grants of land, the alternate section, to aid in the construction of a railroad in Minnesota. Joint resolutions were offered and referred, to amend the Constitution so as to prohibit rebels from holding the offices of President, Senator or Congressman, or appointments under the President. The Committee on Elections, in the case of Washburne vs. Voorhees, reported in favor of the former. In the Pennsylvania contested seat case, the House decided in favor of Mr. Coffroth, against Koontz.

In the Senate on the 20th, Mr. Wade offered a constitutional amendment making the occupant of the office of President incligible for a second term. The Reconstruction Committee was instructed to inquire how far the rebel States had complied with the conditions prescribed by the President. The Freedmen's Bureau bill failed to pass over the veto of the President, the vote standing 30 to 18—not two thirds.

In the House, on the 20th, Mr. Stevens reported a resolution, from the Committee on Reconstruction, that no Congressmen shall be admitted from rebel States until Congress shall have declared such States entitled to representation. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 109 to 40.

In the Senate, on the 21st, the House resolution that no Congressmen shall be admitted from the rebel States until Congress shall have declared such States entitled to representation was read a first time. Its second reading was objected to by Mr. Dixon. The constitutional amendment relative to the basis of representation was taken up, and a speech in opposition made by Mr. Buckalow of Pennsylvania. Mr. Lane of Kansas gave notice that, on the 23d, he should introduce a bill continuing in force the present Freedmen's Bureau.

In the House, on the 21st, a motion to reconsider Mr. Steven's resolution of the day previous was laid on the table by a vote of 108 to 37. The Committee on Elections reported in favor of Mr. Washburne's right to the seat occupied by Mr. Voorhees. The loan bill was discussed by Messrs. Morrill, Stevens, Hooper, and Kelley—Mr. Stevens proposing to strike out the provision giving discretionary power to the Secretary of the Treasury, and also the foreign loan clause.

Congress transacted no business on the 22d, other than to participate in services in memory of the late Henry Winter Davis. Some remarks were made by Speaker Colfax, and a eulogy upon the deceased was pronounced by Senator Crosswell of Maryland.

In the Senate, on the 23d, Mr. Wilson introduced a bill to continue in force the present Freedmen's Bureau for two years longer. The House resolution denying the admission of Congressmen from rebel States until Congress shall declare such States entitled to representation was taken up, and remarks thereupon were made by Messrs. Fessenden and Sherman.

In the House, on the 23d, Voorhees of Indiana was voted out of his seat by 96 to 28.

The Senate, on the 24th, rejected the nomination of Peter L. Foy as Postmaster of St. Louis, and laid on the table all the Blair appointments for Maryland.

The Chairman of the House Committee on Freedmen, Mr. Elliot, is preparing a new bill providing for the Freedmen's Bureau.

INCIDENTS AND ACCIDENTS.

The steamer Winchester, running between Pittsburg and Parkersburg, was burned on the morning of the 23d, with the loss of fifteen lives.

A fire at Peru, Ill., on the 23d, consumed the distillery of Messrs. Delaney. Loss $50,000—no insurance.

The Indianapolis Journal, of the 22d, gives these particulars: On last Monday, a desperado named Azrael W. Flynn, had matured a plan for the murder of six of the citizens of Medora, in Jackson county. He went first to the store of Mr. Emery, and there tried to provoke a quarrel with Stephen Emery, who was one of his intended victims. In the course of the altercation, Emery told Flynn that he was a robber, counterfeiter, etc. Flynn told Emery that he would kill him before night. Flynn then went to the store of Mr. Holmes with the evident intention of murdering Mr. Holmes and his son; but before he could carry out his plan, Stephen Emery came in and found Flynn sitting on a chair, and said to him: "I am told that you intend to kill me, and you said so yourself; now, d—m you, do it." Flynn turned slighly, as if he would draw a weapon, and just at that instant young Emery fired. The pistol ball took effect in the side of the neck, just behind the left ear, and passing obliquely, cut the carotid artery. As soon as the first shot was fired, Flynn started up, when he received a shot in the left eyebrow, and then one in the forehead directly above the nose. Flynn then fell against the counter, when Emery shot again, the ball taking effect about an inch above the right nipple. At last Flynn fell on his face on the floor, and Emery closed the scene by shooting him for the last time in the back of the head. The public opinion of the community is so much in favor of the course of Emery that, up to last advices, he had not been arrested, and most probably never will be.

On Thursday evening last, Phillip McBryde and his wife, of Putnam township, Fulton county, Ill., on returning home from a visit to his father, about two miles from his residence, discovered, on unwrapping their babe, about three months old, that the child was wrapped up too close to keep it warm, and was smothered to death.

The eight o'clock through Washington train of the New Jersey railroad, being detained by fog, on the morning of the 22d, ran into a wood train which was switching across the track, out of time, at East Newark. The locomotives were both demolished, and two cars of the Washington train were badly smashed. Three brakemen were seriously injured, one having both legs shockingly jammed, and another, it is feared, is injured internally.

John S. Pearson, who murdered Walter Gregory in the town of Walkill, Orange county, N. Y., on the 24th of last September, was executed at Goshen, in that State, on the 22d.

A fire at Grand Haven, Mich., on the 21st, destroyed fourteen stores and a dwelling house. Loss $50,000.

A man named Oben Silkwood, near Grand Pass Landing, in Green county, Ill., died on last Sunday morning from the effect of pulling one of his teeth. He pulled the tooth himself and bled to death.

A young factory girl, named Mary Sheridan, met with a terrible death, at Fulson, N. Y., on Tuesday last. Crossing a canal bridge on a plank which was slippery with ice, and under which was a shafting which revolved one hundred times a minute, she slipped and fell, and was torn to pieces instantly by the machinery.

At St. Paul, Minn., on the 17th, a young man named John Babelin was caught between the cog-wheels of a planing factory and cut in two, killing him instantly.

At least a thousand persons have perished in the storms of the sea off the English coast within the brief space of the last few weeks.

ORIGIN OF CERTAIN HABITS.—Many of the most pernicious habits were contracted originally for the sake of health. Wine and distilled liquors are taken to strengthen; tobacco, opium and lasheesh to relieve low spirits; card playing to amuse. But too often, the persons who innocently acquire such habits know not how to limit the extent of the indulgence, or to abandon them entirely when found to be prejudicial. The dose of excitement must be increased; habit exerts its sway; we are inclosed in its net, and happy is he who is able with resolute effort to extricate himself from it.

.....That was not an empty remark of the old lady from the country, who, while on a visit to her city daughter, saw a waterfall for the first time. "What do you call that great stuffed bag, Mary?" "That's a waterfall." "A waterfall! It looks more like a land-slide!"

GLEANINGS.

—When Wilkes Booth was captured, a diary kept by himself was found on his person. It dated back several weeks prior to the assassination of the President, and was written up briefly, but faithfully, to the very day on which he was captured. This is about to be published, and will prove a new and important link in the conspiracy. It shows beyond a doubt that Mrs. Surratt was one of Booth's advisers, and was one of the principal conspirators, for on certain dates in this diary Booth has noted down a memorandum like this: "March 15. Mrs. Surratt does approve of suggestions made to-day," etc. It is thought somewhat singular that this was not produced on the trial of the conspirators.

—The garroters of Memphis are a mean set of fellows. Last week they robbed a man of $5 and then kicked him nearly to death because he had no more. A similar brutality was exhibited by them in Chicago a few weeks ago.

—Some years ago a native of Newburyport, now residing in Boston, met there a man intoxicated and in want. The man said he had been led away and was desirous of assistance. He was taken in, and when sober, money was furnished him to return to his home in New York. Recently that man, ever after sober and respectable, died rich, and recollecting the kindness shown him by the one who acted the part of the good Samaritan, bequeathed him $30,000.

—A well-known manufacturer in Berkshire county went to New York in November last, and bought a quantity of cotton, and the next morning, just as he was taking the cars to return, he was offered $75,000 for his bargain. Thus in one night he made this amount just in the rise of cotton.

—Of all the "smart" instances of Yankee ingenuity, perhaps the smartest is the trick played upon the authorities of New Brunswick after their recent offer of $3 for the snout of every bear killed within the colony. A large number of snouts were recently brought in, chiefly by Indians, but in course of time it was discovered that most of the trophies were imitations only, cunningly manufactured of India rubber and gutta percha, by clever manipulators in the State of Maine, who sold them to the Indians at half a dollar each.

—A father and son put up at the Juneau house, Milwaukee, the other night, and upon going to bed blew out the gas instead of turning it off. When discovered they were senseless and pulseless. Dr. Crugom was called in and by his assistance the lives of the two men were saved, although they had a very narrow escape.

—At the suggestion of the empress, the French government has decided that a certain number of young girls educated at the imperial school for orphans of military men shall be provided with places in the telegraph offices. From 25 to 30 pupils are practicing daily on Morse's apparatus, with a view to qualify themselves.

—Young men in Lawrence, Kansas, have to marry to get shelter from the weather; landladies there take none but married people. The unfortunate youths say it is a conspiracy between the young ladies and the boarding-house keepers.

—The burning well, twelve miles below Franklin, Penn., on the Alleghany, still attracts a good deal of attention. It continues to burn with unabated fury, lighting up the country for many miles. Each night its brilliance is noted at Franklin, Reno, Oil City, Clarion, and all the neighboring towns. The steady heat which it produces has produced singular effects in its immediate vicinity. At a distance where the temperature is suitable, a circle of green and beautiful grass has rapidly grown up, and is now from two to four inches high. Some hickory trees, standing within range, have commenced budding in all the luxuriance of summer. The scene is spoken of as one of the most magnificent, and at the same time most interesting which can be conceived.

—A family at Tuftonboro has the following queer make-up: Two grandmothers, three mothers, one father, three sons, three daughters, two aunts, four sisters, four grandchildren, two cousins, two brothers, one neice, one nephew, one daughter and one sister-in-law.

—An old bruiser, on the verge of delirium tremens, attempted to butt out his brains in the county jail because he fancied they were going to hang him. Backing out like a goat, he took six square drives at the wall striking as if shot from a catapult, "but weakened" on the seventh, concluding that he either had no brains to dash out, or that the shell was too hard to crush.

—The largest army ever assembled at any one time during the revolution was that commanded by Gen. Putnam, on Long Island. That numbered 17,000 men of all arms. The next largest was that with which Washington captured Cornwallis at Yorktown, when he had 16,000. Our largest army assembled in 1812 was commanded by Jackson at New Orleans, and counted but 6,000. Coming down to the Mexican war, Taylor won his victories with a force never exceeding 5,000, and Scott's largest force never exceeded 8,500. The largest army prior to the late war was, therefore, that of Putnam, at Long Island—17,000.

—A Boston gentleman paid $800 recently for a special train to take him to Portland that he might catch the outgoing England steamer.

—Dan Rice, has just returned from a tour through the Southern States, with his menagerie and circus, and the Erie Dispatch repeats a conversation held with him upon the subject. He states that "except at Government institutions, at soldiers' barracks or officers' headquarters, the United States flag was rarely seen. No steamer below the mouth of the Ohio flies the flag, no hotel in the Southern cities spreads it to the breeze, and no menagerie or circus even, which usually displays the flag of all nations, raises it. The menagerie with which he was connected was made an exception at his own request."

—A young man and a young woman in Berkshire county, Mass., went to a clergyman to be married, the other day, and stood up to have the marriage ceremony performed, when the enquiry was made by the expectant bride, if the young man would agree to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors. This he declined to do, and the parties went home unmarried.

—Some friends of a widow washerwoman, who owned a bit of land at Pit Hole, got her consent to sink a well upon it, and the result is a barrol of oil every ten minutes. She had several offers of marriage immediately.

—A "food preserving company" has been organized at Baltimore to operate under a patent process by which it is claimed oysters, meats and fruits can be preserved fresh and good for an indefinate period in any climate.

—Some weeks ago we gave an account of a bold robbery committed in the real estate office of Frank Skinner, Spaulding's Exchange, Buffalo, wherein it was stated that two men entered the office about noon, and after binding and gagging the boy in attendance, Albert Shoop, took the keys of the safe from a drawer, possessed themselves of about one thousand dollars in bills, and got away without being recognized. This tale was not credited by the police authorities, who were convinced the boy Shoop—a lad of some seventeen years of age but one of unusual precocity, with a weakness for the company of "fast characters" was concerned in the robbers and shared the profits. The chief, with the aid of detective White, has steadily been following the matter up, and having become convinced of the truth of his suspicions, Shoop was arrested on Saturday afternoon and taken to the Chief's office when after considerable dodging and denial, he finally acknowledged the charge, and confessed that the job was "put up" by himself and the other parties.

—The rapids in the Niagara river, opposite the Cataract House, have, for a few days, been hardly covered by water, on account of an ice jam which threw the current close to the Canada shore. The like was never known before.

—It is better to love a person you cannot marry, than to marry a person you cannot love. This is a short text for a long sermon, which human experience will continue to preach until the last syllable of recorded time.

—Indianapolis affords some queer incidents in a matrimonial way. Only a day or two since a couple were married in the morning, got drunk by twelve o'clock, and spent the first night of wedded bliss in the county jail.

—During the festivities of Christmas a large cake of very rich appearance was sent by some unknown person as a present to General Manteuffel, Prussian Governor of Schleswig. The gift was received with great pressure by the Governor's family, and one evening it was placed on the table with no little ceremony. But on cutting it, the tempting outside was found to be merely a shell containing numerous copies of journals prohibited in Schleswig by order of the General.

—The oldest house in southern Illinois, the residence of Mr. Etherton, in Villa Ridge, was consumed by fire on Sunday night last week.

—The St. Paul and Pacific Railroad company are building a fine wheat elevator in St. Paul with a capacity of 50,000 bushels.

—The greed of the landlords in New York who endeavored to extract extortionate rents from their tenants during the coming year, has over-reached itself. Many of them who demanded an advance of from fifty to one hundred per cent over last year's rates have consented to take last year's prices, and some have been unable to get even that, the tenants becoming obstinate in their turn.

—Hughes, who was hung in Cleveland recently, must have been comforted by reading in the papers of the day of his execution the advertisement of an enterprising publisher, of "The Trial and Death of Dr. John W. Hughes for the murder of Miss Parsons. A Record of Love, Bigamy and Murder unparalleled in the annals of Crime."

—John G. Quigley dropped suddenly, in Norwalk, Ohio, the other day, and as was supposed, dead. While being shaved in preparation for the grave, the razor cut his face, setting the blood flowing, whereupon Mr. Quigley arose, put on his clothes, and went about his business.

—The people of Lagrange, West Tennessee, were hoaxed the other day by a practical joker, who came among them as Gen. R. E. Lee, and was received with distinguished honors.

—The Nantucket Inquirer and Mirror chronicles the death in that town, on the 3d inst., of Mrs. Lucy Cooper, a colored woman, aged about 110 years. She was brought from Africa, a slave, to South Carolina, where she toiled as a field hand. In 1811 she was brought by her owner to Newport, R. I., where she resided some time, and was converted under the preaching of Father Webb. Her mistress was exceedingly cruel, and the slave at length escaped to Nantucket, where she was twice married, and during her long life was respected for her simple and and genuine Christian worth.

—The establishment of a coffee and reading room at Cincinnati, as a counteracting attraction to the saloon and bar, has been very successful and a second one has now been opened, where an excellent cup of coffee and a few crackers are given for five cents, and a large plate of soup and a small loaf of bread for the same money. It is a powerful temperance agent.

—A new counterfeit on the twenty-five cent fractional currency is in circulation. In this counterfeit, Mr. Fessenden is adorned with a breast-pin, which does not appear in the genuine. The engraving on the vignette is very imperfect.

—A fat man in Paris recently sold his body to the surgeons for 1,200 francs, went on a spree with the money, died from the effects of it, and was immediately cut up according to contract.

—One of the latest manifestations of the triumph of genius was the other day given on the Fifth avenue (New York) skating pond, where a young man without legs of his own, but having a pair of artificial limbs, appeared to be enjoying himself as well as anybody on skates. He seemed to be swift and graceful as any skater on the pond, meeting with no accident whatever.

—Louisa Blackburn, the little girl who escaped from the Mormons, went twenty-one days without food, and whose adventures, almost beyond credibility, have been recorded, is gaining rapidly, and from present evidences it is probable she may recover.

—The days of combing and brushing our own hair are numbered. The Philadelphia News reports a barber shop in that city where heads are manipulated by a revolving brush which "makes the fur fly" in the most approved manner. Now for steam knives, forks and tooth picks.

—The Maine Farmer says the cause of the hog cholera is eating more than the animal can well digest, and salt and coal are recommended as proper remedies and preventives to be kept at all times within the reach of swine.

—A young lady in Florida, who has been gradually becoming insane lately destroyed her ambrotypes and letters, set fire to her clothing in a wardrobe, and dressing herself in heavy woollen fabrics and broadcloth cloak, set fire to herself and sprang into bed, where she was found enveloped in flames, and with clasped hands, exclaiming: "Oh, ain't it glorious? Ain't I a martyr?" Though her limbs and the lower part of her body were baked brown, she did not appear to suffer pain.

—The Troy Times says a young colored medical student, who served as assistant surgeon in a colored regiment, has commenced practice in Charleston, and his success exceeds his most sanguine expectations.

—The French people are indulging in all sorts of sarcasms and witticisms upon the Emperor's address to the Chambers, announcing his intention to back out of Mexico. The police and spies are on the alert, hanging around places of public resort; and hovering about the crowds collected in the streets where the Imperial address is posted on the walls; and their reports of the state of public opinion are said to interfere greatly with his Majesty's customary pleasures.

—The Chinese do not reckon time according to our system of twelve months of unequal length in the year, but make up the difference by occasionally putting an odd month to make it come out even in the long run. This, of course, makes their New Year come in at irregular intervals. Last year it came on the 25th of January; this year it fell on the 14th of February, our St. Valentine's Day. Their year corresponding to our 1866, will according to their standard of computation, be styled the "Fifth year of Tong Tee," the fifth year of the reign of the present Emperor, whose name is Tong Tee.

—The United States frigate Idaho, which is to be commanded by Captain Worden, is to make a trial trip at an early day. In this case considerable depends on the result, as unless she can steam fifteen miles an hour for twenty-four consecutive hours, she will not be accepted by the Government at the contract price.

—Three rogues escaped from the Lehigh (Pa.) county jail, on Tuesday of last week, through a hole in the wall. The hole is but nine inches square.

—A club is being formed in Paris called "The Club of Silence." The rules are that not a word is to be spoken in the club by members or attendants. Eating, drinking, smoking and reading will be allowed, but nothing else. The attendants are to receive written orders only.

—The sudden death of two babies, twins, was mentioned in the Boston papers a few days since, and it was stated that the parents resided in Boston. An investigation shows that the affair occurred in Charlestown. The babies were named Laura and Augusta respectively, and were the twin children of Richard and Augusta Seidensticker, who reside on Thorndike street, Charlestown. The deaths were very sudden. The mother was nursing one while the father was holding the other in his arms. The one being held by the father suddenly dropped its head and expired almost instantly, and while the mother was in the act of exchanging with the one she held, this was also found to be dead. The babes were two months and thirteen days old, and the cause of their death is unknown. They were considered healthy babes, and were to all appearances in their usual good health up to the time of their death.

—Idaho has a population of 40,000, and has not a minister of the gospel in the whole territory.

THE HAUNTING PAST.

He came to-day. He brought his bride;
And through the wood they went with me;
We passed our ancient trysting tree;
I saw him turn his head aside,

And wondered if his glance would fall
On letters carved by him of yore,
In days that he regrets no more—
That I with burning thoughts recall.

The golden Past that haunts me yet,
Whose faded glory seems to him
Like twilight distance, cold and dim—
Oh, strange it is how men forget—

Yet through these hours my will was strong
To school my heart to stille pain!
I could not act that farce again!
But night came, though the day was long.

Night came; they went. His farewell tone
Rings in my ear. 'Twill be the last!
My heart's fierce ordeal is past;
Beneath the stars I stand alone.

—Temple Bar.

A Queer Fight.

A novel pugilistic encounter took place on Monday, at West Troy, New York. Three partners in the bounty jumping business quarrelled over some spoils, when two of them abused the third one, to draw him into a fight, but he listened stoically for a while, when an idea struck him and he said to his assailants: "Either one of you fellars is mean a match for me; but if you will strap yourselves together, tying a hand each behind you, I'll fight you, just to accommodate." The novelty of the proposition was too strong to be resisted, and the three adjourned to a barn to "fight it out on that line," followed by a considerable crowd of spectators.

The men were strapped together, and their right and left arms pinioned. The single "man of war" sailed in beautifully; being in light trim, he outmanoeuvered the heavier craft completely. He was now before them and behind them, and not unfrequently made their heads violently collide one with another. In fact, he had got them just where he wanted them, and where he had evidently been silently concocting to get them, when they were so loud in threats and abuse. His victory was complete. In about five minutes he touched the loud-mouthed gentleman off most elegantly, and having satisfied his martial ardor, departed highly elated with the success which attended his original and happy idea.

THE CATTLE DISEASE continues to rage unabated. It is reported that about 10,000 victims die from it, per week in England. The idea of the Rinderpest being a form of small pox, is gaining ground. Mr. Tollmeche, high sheriff of Cheshire, has been experimenting with vaccination on his herd. Of one experiment he writes:

"On Thursday morning last, the 11th, I had a fifteen months old Alderney heifer, which had been most successfully vaccinated, turned into a kind of loose place, nine feet square, in which was one calf very ill from unmistakable rinderpest, and another calf which had just died from the effects of it. The dead calf was removed in about half an hour after my calf was put into the place. The sick calf died the following day. Since then two more calves ill from rinderpest have been placed with my calf, and have since died from the disease. My calf is as healthy and sharp as ever she was, notwithstanding she has been kept for five days and five nights in a most fœtid atmosphere, and coming in immediate contact with these four dying and dead calves."

But still this theory is strongly combatted by those high in veterinary circles. Prof. Granger disputes it with great force.

THE Cairo (Ill.) Times gives the following story of Gen. Sam Houston:

Old Sam Houston, of Texas, used to make it a point to stop at Cairo, sometimes for three or four days, on his way to and from Washington. He usually employed his time in fishing from the stern guards of a wharfboat. On one occasion of this kind, he had a "set-to" with a Cairo youth, which will bear telling about.

The youth, like himself, was fishing, Houston on the wharf-boat, and the boy on a wood boat moored just below. At the interesting juncture of a "bite" at the boy's bait, Houston threw out his line, which became hopelessly entangled with that of the boy. There was a pause. Neither seemed to have a word fit for the occasion. At last Houston broke the silence:

"Sonny, go elsewhere and fish, and then we'll avoid entangling alliances."

"You blasted old short coat," retorted the bud of promise, "go elsewhere yourself and fish."

"I apprehend that you are a very saucy boy," returned the Senator, for whom there are, by no means, enough rods in pickle."

"Now, look here, old skeezicks," cried the boy, fully agitated, "I don't want to quarrel with you, nor nobody like you. Your name is Sam Dawson, and you live in Texas; and, like everybody else, you stole a hoss and had to go there; and now you are putting on a big shine, you old thief, and callin' yourself Sam Houston." Saying which, this very amiable young creature gave a sudden lurch and pulled the honorable gentleman's rod from his hands into the river.

I subsequently heard Houston detail the "set-to" and he did it in a style decidedly characteristic. Concluding the story, he said, "I have met men in debate at the bar, upon the stump, and upon the floors of Congress, but never was I so completely discomfited. The boy had decidedly the better of me, and from his very looks, I determined that when he said I stole a 'hoss,' in his heart of hearts he believed it."

HERR Dr. Julius von Fischweiler, an eccentric German physician, recently died, leaving in his will what he considered a secret for increasing the years of our life. His own age was 109, and he attributed it to the fact that he always slept with his head to the north, and the rest of his body as nearly as possible in a meridional position. By this means, he thought, the iron in his body became magnetized, and thus increased the energy of the vital principle.

PROFESSOR WHEATSTONE, of England, has made a great achievement in electro-telegraphing. With his automatic instrument he can transmit 600 distinctly legible signs or letters in a minute.

DR. JAMES HAZLETON of New York, now traveling in Colorado, writes to a friend as follows:

"Everywhere on the Plains and through the mountains I find Dr. Swain's Bourbon Bitters. I have frequently used them and find them pure and wholesome. If all manufacturers of Beverages had manifested the same conscientious regard for the public welfare and the same skill in compounding a really valuable medicinal beverage, there would be less need for us to warn the people against them."

A SMART BOY.—A few days ago a young school mistress in the country was taking down the names and ages of her scholars at the commencement of the term. She asked a little white-headed boy: "Bub, how old are you?" He said "My name ain't Bub, it's John." "Well," said the school mistress, "what is the rest of your name?" "Why, that's all the name I've got—just John." "Well, what is your father's name?" "You needn't put pap's name down he ain't cummen to school any; he's too big to go to school." "Well, how old are you?" "I ain't old at all, I am young!"

HOW TO KEEP A HOTEL.—The proprietor of a Reese river hotel has posted up the following rules and regulations: "Board must be paid in advance; with beans, twenty-five dollars; without beans, twelve dollars; salt, free; no extras allowed; potatoes for dinner; pocketing at meals strictly forbidden; gentlemen are expected to wash out of doors and find their own water; no charges for ice; towel bags at the end of the house; extra charge for seats around the stove; lodgers must find their own straw; beds on the bar room floor reserved for regular customers. Persons sleeping in the barn are requested not to take off their boots; lodgers inside arise at five o'clock A. M., in the barn at six o'clock; no fighting allowed at the table. Any one violating the above rules will be shot."

.....The Rev. Mr. B—, when residing at Canterbury some years ago, was reckoned a good violincello player. His sight being dim obliged him very often to snuff the candles, and in lieu of snuffers he generally employed his fingers in that office, thrusting the spoils into the sound-holes of his violincello. A waggish friend of his popped a quantity of gunpowder into B—'s instrument. The tea equipage being removed, music became the order of the evening, and B— dashed away at Vanhall's 24th. B— came to a bar's rest, the candles were snuffed, and he thrust the ignited wick into the usual place—fit fragor, and bang went the fiddle to pieces.

....."You labor too hard on your composition, doctor," said a flippant clergyman to a venerable divine; "I write a sermon in three hours, and think nothing of it." "So does your congregation," quoth the doctor.

.....Why is the letter I the most blessed of vowels? Because it is in the midst of bliss, E is in hell, and the others are in purgatory.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.
COTTON—Middling	$ .44	@	.45
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	8.00	@	8.50
WHEAT—Amber Mil. new	1.65	@	1.70
BARLEY		@	1.15
CORN—Sound Western	.75	@	.78
OATS—Dull	.53	@	.54
PETROLEUM—Crude	.29	@	—
PORK—Mess new	27.75	@	28.00
BEEF HAMS	41.00	@	41.50
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	12.00	@	17.00
HOGS—medium to heavy, dressed	.12¾	@	.13¼
DRY GOODS—Merrimacs	.24	@	.25
Bleached Sheetings—N. Y. Mills	.52½	@	—
Brown Sheetings—Stark	.29	@	—
Delaines—Manchester	.28	@	—
Denims—Amoskeag	.55	@	—
GOLD—1.36¾.

CHICAGO, February 26, 1866.
BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$100.00	@	150.00
BREWES—Stock to prime	$ 3.50	@	$ 6.00
BEANS	.75	@	1.25
BRAN	7.00	@	7.50
BUTTER	.16	@	.26
CHEESE—Western	.17	@	.19
COFFEE—Rio	.29½	@	.33
Java	.44	@	.45
EGGS	.28	@	.32
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	3.00	@	4.50
Malaga Lemons	12.00	@	13.00
Dried N. Y. Apples	.15	@	.16
" Peaches	.30	@	.32
Raisins, M. R.	5.15	@	5.30
FLOUR—Winter White	10.00	@	14.00
Spring Extra	6.75	@	7.25
Buckwheat per bbl		@	5.50
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	10.25	@	10.75
Whitefish, " "	8.00	@	8.25
Codfish, per hundred	9.00	@	11.00
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.38	@	.39½
Oats "	.23¼	@	.23½
Rye	.49	@	.50
Wheat—Winter	1.28	@	1.30
Spring, No. 1	1.19	@	1.21½
HIGHWINES	2.15	@	2.16
HOGS—Dressed Middling to prime	11.00	@	11.25
Live	9.00	@	9.75
LARD	.17¾	@	.18½
PORK—Mess	26.00	@	27.25

Speech of President Johnson.

At Washington, Feb. 22, 1866.

In response to a series of resolutions endorsing his veto of the Freedmen's Bureau Bill, and complimenting him upon his general policy, President Johnson replied on Washington's Birthday from the steps of his house to about 2,000 persons, in a speech which we present this week almost entire to the exclusion of our usual "story."

FELLOW CITIZENS, for I presume I have a right to address you as such; I come to tender to you my sincere thanks for the approbation expressed by your Committee in their personal addresses, and in the resolutions submitted by them as having been adopted by the meeting which has been held in this city to-day.

These resolutions as I understand them, are complimentary to the policy, which has been adopted by the Administration, and has been steadily pursued since it came into power. I am free to say to you on this occasion that it is extremely gratifying to me to know that so large a portion of my fellow citizens approve and indorse the policy which has been adopted, and which it is my intention shall be carried out. [Great applause.] That policy is one which is intended to restore all the States to their original relations to the Federal Government of the United States. [Renewed applause.] This seems to be a day peculiarly appropriate to such manifestations.

The President then entered into a eulogy upon Washington, after which he reverted to the record of President Jackson, and then continued:

We have witnessed what has transpired since his day in 1833. When treason and treachery and infidelity to the Government and the Constitution of the United States stalked forth in the land, it was his power and influence that crushed the serpent in its incipiency. It was then stopped, but only for a time. The same spirit of disaffection continued. There were men disaffected to the Government both in the North and in the South. There was, in a portion of the Union, a peculiar institution of which some complained, and to which others were attached. One portion of our countrymen in the South advocated that institution, while another portion in the North opposed it. The result was the formation of extreme parties—one especially in the South, which reached a point at which it was proposed to dissolve the Union of the States for the purpose, as was said, of securing and preserving that peculiar institution. There was another portion of our countrymen who were opposed to that institution, and who went to such an extreme that they were willing to break up the Government, in order to get clear of that peculiar institution of the South. I say these things because I desire to talk plainly and in familiar phraseology. I assume nothing here to-day beyond the position of a citizen, one who has been pleading for his country and the preservation of the Constitution. [Immense cheering.] Those two parties, I say, were arrayed against each other, and I stand here before you for the Union today, as I stood in the Senate of the United States in 1860 and 1861. I met there those who were making war upon the Constitution, those who wanted to disrupt the Government, and I denounced them in my place, then and there, and exposed their true character. I said that those who were engaged in the work of breaking up the Government were traitors. I have never ceased, on all proper occasions, to repeat that sentiment, and so far as my efforts could go I have endeavored to carry it out. [Great applause.] I have just remarked that there were two parties, one of which was for destroying the Government and separating the Union, in order to preserve slavery, and the other for breaking up the Government in order to destroy slavery. True, the objects which they sought to accomplish were different, so far as slavery was concerned, but they agreed in the desire to break up the Government—the precise thing to which I have always been opposed; and whether disunionists come from the South or from the North, I stand now as I did then, vindicating the Union of these States and the Constitution of my country. [Tremendous applause.] When rebellion and treason manifested themselves in the South, I stood by the Government. I said then, that I was for the Union with slavery, I was for the Union without slavery; in either alternative I was for my Government and its Constitution. The Government has stretched forth its strong arm, and with its physical power it has put down treason in the field. The section of the country which then arrayed itself against the Government has been put down by the strong arm. What did we say when this treason originated? We said, "No compromise. You yourself in the South can settle this question in eight and forty hours." I said again and again, and I repeat it now, "Disband your armies in the South, acknowledge the supremacy of the Constitution of the United States, acknowledge the duty of obedience to the laws, and the whole question is settled." [Applause.] What has been done since? Their armies have been disbanded, and they come forward now in a proper spirit, and say, "We were mistaken. We made an effort to carry out the doctrine of secession, and to dissolve this Union. In that we have failed. We have traced this doctrine to its logical and physical results, and we find that we were mistaken. We acknowledge the flag of our country, and are willing to obey the Constitution, and to yield to the supremacy of the laws." [Great applause.] Coming in that spirit I say to them, When you have complied with the requirements of the Constitution, when you have yielded to the law, when you have acknowledged your allegiance to the Constitution, I will, so far as I can, open the door of the Union to those who had erred and strayed from the fold of their fathers for a time. [Great applause.]

Who suffered more by the rebellion than I have? I shall not repeat the story of the wrongs and sufferings inflicted upon me. The spirit of revenge is not the spirit in which to deal with a whole people. I know there has been a great deal said about the exercise of the pardoning power. So far as your Executive is concerned, there is no one who has labored with more earnestness than myself to have the principal intelligent and conscious traitors brought to justice, the law vindicated, and the great fact judiciously established that treason is a crime. [Applause.] But while conscious, leading, and intelligent traitors are to be punished, should whole communities and States and peoples be made to submit to the penalty of death? ["No, no."] I have perhaps as much asperity and as must resentment as men ought to have, but we must reason in great matters of government about man as he is. We must conform our actions and our conduct to the example of Him who founded our holy religion. Not that I would make such a comparison on this occasion, in any personal respect. I came into this place under the Constitution of my country, and by the approbation of the people, and what did I find? I found eight millions of people who were, in fact, condemned under the law, and the penalty was death. Was I to yield to the spirit of revenge and resentment, and declare that they should all be annihilated and destroyed? How different would this have been from the example set by the holy Founder of our religion, the extremes of whose divine arch rests upon the horizon, and whose span embraces the universe. He who founded this great scheme came into the world and found man condemned under the law, and his sentence was death; what was his example? Instead of putting the world or even a nation to death, he died upon the cross, attesting by his wounds and his blood that he died that mankind might live. [Great applause.] Let those who have erred repent; let them acknowledge their allegiance; let them become loyal, willing supporters and defenders of our glorious stripes and stars, and of the Constitution of our country. Let the leaders, the conscious, intelligent traitors, be punished, and be subjected to the penalties of the law. [Applause.] But to the great mass who have been forced into this rebellion, in many instances, and in others, have been misled, I say leniency, kindness, trust and confidence. [Great applause.]

My countrymen, when I look back over the history of the rebellion, I am not vain when I ask you if I have not given as much evidence of my devotion to the Union as some who croak a great deal about it? When I look back over the battle-fields of the rebellion, I think of the many brave men in whose company I was, I cannot but recollect that I was sometimes in places where the contest was most difficult, and the result most doubtful. But almost before the smoke has passed away, almost before the blood that has been shed has done reeking, before the bodies of the slain have passed through the stages of decomposition, what do we now find? The rebellion has been put down by the strong arm of the Government in the field; but is that the only way in which you can have rebellion? Our struggle was against an attempt to dissever the Union; but almost before the smoke of the battle-field has passed away, before our brave men have returned to their homes and renewed the ties of affection and love to their wives and their children, we find almost another rebellion inaugurated. We put down the former rebellion in order to prevent the separation of the States, to prevent them from flying off, and thereby changing the character of our Government, and weakening its power; but when that struggle on our part has been successful, and that attempt has been put down, we find now an effort to concentrate all power in the hands of a few at the Federal head, and thereby bring about a consolidation of the Government which is equally objectionable with a separation. [Vociferous applause.] We find that powers are assumed and attempted to be exercised of a most extraordinary character. It seems that governments may be revolutionized, governments at least may be changed, without going through the strife of battle. I believe it is a fact attested in history, that sometimes revolutions most disastrous to the people are effected without the shedding of blood. The substance of your Government may be taken away, while the form and shadow remain to you. What is now being proposed? We find that in point of fact nearly all the powers of the Government are assumed by an irresponsible Central Directory, which does not even consult the legislative or the executive department of the Government, by resolutions reported from a Committee, in whom it seems that, practically, the legislative power of the Government is now vested, that great principle of the Constitution which authorizes and empowers each branch of the legislative department of the Senate and House of Representatives to judge for itself of the election returns, and qualifications of its own members has been virtually taken away from the two branches of the legislative department of the Government, and conferred upon a committee who must report before either House can act under the Constitution as to accepting the members who are to take their seats as component parts of the respective bodies. By this rule it is assumed that there must be laws passed recognizing a State as in the Union, or its practical relations to the Union as restored, before the respective Houses under the Constitution can judge of the election returns, and qualifications of their own members. What a position is that! You struggled for four years to put down a rebellion. You denied in the beginning of the struggle that any State could go out of the Union. You said that it had neither the right nor the power to do so. The issue was made, and it has been settled that the States had neither the right nor the power to go out of the Union. With what consistency, after it has been settled by the military arm of the Government and by the public judgment that the States had no right to go out of the Union, can any one now turn round and assume that they are out, that they shall not come in? I am free to say to you, as your Executive, that I am not prepared to take any such position. [Great applause.] I said in the Senate, in the very inception of this rebellion, that the States had no right to go out. I asserted, too, that they had no power to go out. That question has been settled, and it being settled, I cannot turn around now and give the lie direct to all that I have professed, and all I have done for the last five years. [Applause.] Even those who rebelled, comply with the Constitution when they give sufficient evidence of loyalty. When they show that they can be trusted, when they yield obedience to the law that you and I acknowledge obedience to, I say extend to them the right hand of fellowship, and let peace and Union be restored. [Tremendous applause.] I fought traitors and treason in the South. I opposed the Davises, the Toombs, the Slidells, and a long list of others which you can readily fill without my repeating the names. Now when I turn round, and at the other end of the line find men, I care not by what name you call them, who still stand opposed to the restoration of the Union of these States, I am free to say to you that I am still in the field. [Great applause.] I am still for the preservation of the Union. I am still in favor of this great Government of ours going on and filling out its destiny. [Great applause. Voices, "Give three names at the other end." The President was called on to name three at the other end of the line.] I am talking to my friends and fellow-citizens who are interested with me in this Government, and I presume I am free to mention to you the names of those opposed to the fundamental principles of this Government, and who are laboring to pervert and destroy it.

Voices—"Name them. Who are they?"

THE PRESIDENT—You ask me who they are. I say Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania, is one, I say Mr. Sumner of the Senate is another, and Wendell Phillips is another. [Long-continued applause.]

Voices—"Give it to Forney."

THE PRESIDENT—In reply to that, I will simply say I do not waste my ammunition upon dead ducks. [Great laughter and applause.] I stand for my country, I stand for the Constitution. There I have placed my feet from my advent into public life. They may traduce, they may slander, or they may vituperate me, but let me say to you all, this has no influence upon me. [Great applause.] Let me say further that I do not intend to be overawed by real or pretended friends, nor do I mean to be bullied by my enemies. [Tremendous applause.] Honest conviction is my courage, the Constitution is my guide. I know, my countrymen, that it has been insinuated—no, not insinuated, it has been said directly, in high circles, that if such a usurpation of power as I am charged with had been exercised some two hundred years ago, in a particular reign, it would have cost an individual his head. [Great laughter.] Of what usurpation has Andrew Johnson been guilty? ["None, none."] Is it usurpation that I stand between the people and the encroachments of power? Because, in a conversation with a fellow-citizen, who happened to be a Senator, I said I thought amendments to the Constitution ought not to be so frequent; that if it was eternally tinkered with it would have lost all its prestige and dignity; that the old instrument would be lost sight of altogether in a short time? Because in the same conversation I happened to say if it were amended at all, such an amendment ought not to be adopted, it was charged that I was guilty of a usurpation of a power that would cost a king his head in a certain period of English history. [Great laughter.] From the same source the exclamation has gone forth that they were in the midst of earthquakes; that they were trembling and could not yield. [Laughter.] Yes, fellow-citizens, there is an earthquake coming; there is a grand swelling of popular judgment and indignation. [Great applause] The American people will speak, and by their instinct, if not otherwise, they will know who are their enemies. I have endeavored to be true to the people in all the positions which I have occupied, and there is hardly a position in this Government which I have not at some time filled. I suppose it will be said that this is vanity, [laughter] but I may say that I have been in all of them. I have been in both branches of the State Legislature.

A voice—"You commenced a tailor."

The President—A gentleman behind me says I began as a tailor. Yes, I did begin as a tailor [applause], and that suggestion does not discomfit me in the least, for when I was a tailor, I had the reputation of being a good one and of making close cuts [laughter], and I was always punctual to my customers and did good work. [Applause.]

Voices—We will patch up the Union yet.

The President—No, I do not want any patch-work of it; I want original articles restored. [Great applause.] But enough of this facetiousness. I know it may be said, "You are President and you must not talk about these things," but, my fellow-citizens, I intend to talk the truth, and when principle is involved, when the existence of my country is in peril, I hold it to be my duty to speak what I think, and what I feel, as I have always done on former occasions. [Great applause.] I have said that it has been declared elsewhere that I was guilty of usurpation which would have cost a King his head, and in another place I have been denounced for whitewashing. When and where did I ever whitewash anything or anybody? I have been an Alderman of a town; I have been in both branches of the Legislature of my State; I have been in both Houses of the National Congress; I have been at the head of the Executive Department of my State; I have been Vice President of the United States; and I am now in the position which I occupy before you; and during all this career, where is the man and what portion of the people is there who can say that Andrew Johnson ever made a pledge which he did not redeem, or that he ever made a promise which he violated? [None, none.] Point to the man who can say that Andrew Johnson ever acted with infidelity to the great mass of the people. [Great applause.] Men may talk about beheading and usurpation; but when I am beheaded I want the American people to be the witness. I do not want it by inuendoes and indecent remarks in high places to be suggested to men who have assassination brooding in their bosoms. Others have exclaimed that the Presidential obstacle must be gotten out of the way. What is that but—I make use of a strong word—but inciting to assassination? No doubt, I say, the intention was to incite to assassination, so that the obstacle which the people had placed here could be got out of the way. Are the opponents of this Government not yet satisfied? Are those who want to destroy our institutions and to change the character of the Government, not satisfied with the quantity of blood that has been shed? Are they not satisfied with one martyr in this place? Does not the blood of Lincoln appease their vengeance and their wrath? Is their thirst still unslaked? Do they still want more blood? Have they not honor and courage enough to seek to obtain the end otherwise than through and by the hand of an assassin? I am not afraid of an assassin attacking me where one brave and courageous man will attack another. I only dread him when in disguise, and where his footstep is noiseless. If they want blood, let them have the courage to strike like men. I know they are willing to wound, but afraid to strike. If my blood is to be shed because I vindicate the Union, and insist on the preservation of this Government in its original purity, let it be shed, but let an altar to the Union be first erected, and then, if necessary, take me and lay me upon it, and the blood that now warms and animates my existence shall be poured out as the last libation as a tribute to the Union of these States. [Great applause.] But let the opponents of this Government remember when it is poured out, that the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church. This Union will grow, and it will continue to increase in strength and power, though it may be cemented and cleansed in blood. I have already spoken to you longer than I intended when I came out. [Go on.] I merely intended to make my acknowledgments for the honor you have done me; but before I close, allow me to say a word in regard to the question of amendments to the Constitution of the United States. Shortly after I reached Washington for the purpose of being inaugurated as Vice President of the United States, I had a conversation with Mr. Lincoln in regard to the condition of affairs. We talked particularly in reference to matters in my own State. I told him that we had called a convention, that we had amended the Constitution, that we had abolished slavery in that State, which was not included in his emancipation proclamation. All these things met his approbation, and he gave me words of encouragement. We talked then about affairs generally, and upon the subject of amendments to the Constitution of the United States. He said: "When the amendment of the Constitution now proposed is adopted by three fourths of the States, I am pretty near done or indeed quite done in favor of amending the Constitution, if there was one other adopted." I asked him, "What is that, Mr. President?" He said, "I have labored to preserve this Union. I have tried during the four years I have been subjected to calumny and misrepresentation by great and some desire has been to preserve these States intact under the Constitution as they were before." I asked him anain, "Mr. President, what amendment is that which you would propose?" "Why," said he, "it is that there should be an amendment added to the Constitution which would compel the States to send their Senators and Representatives to the Congress of the United States." [Great applause.] The idea was in his mind that, as a part of the doctrine of the means to break up this Government was that the States, if they saw proper, might withdraw their Senators and Representatives to Congress. But what do we now find? The Constitution of the country, even that portion of it which allows amendments to the organic law, expressly provides that no State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate, and it also provides that each State shall have at least one representative in the House of Representatives; but yet the position is taken that certain States have not been represented. We impose taxes upon them, we send our tax-gatherers into every region and portion of the States. Their people are fit subjects of government for the collection of taxes; but when they ask to participate in the legislation of the country, they are met at the door and told "no, you must pay taxes, you must bear the burdens of government, but you cannot participate in its legislation, that legislation which is to affect you through all time to come." Is this justice? Is it fair? [No, no.] I repeat, I am for the Union. I am for preserving all the States. I am for admitting into the councils of the nation all their representatives who are unmistakably and unquestionably loyal. A man who acknowledges allegiance to the Government, and who swears to support the Constitution, must necessarily be loyal. A man cannot take that in good faith unless he is loyal. A mere infliction of the oath makes no difference, as the principle, whatever test is thought proper as evidence and as proof loyalty, is a mere matter of detail about which I care nothing; but let a man be unmistakably and unquestionably loyal, let him acknowledge allegiance to the Constitution of the United States and be willing support the Government in its hour of trial and its hour of need, and I am willing to trust him. [Applause.]

I tell the opposers of the government, I care not from what quarter they come, East or West, North or South, that are engaged in the work of breaking up the Government are mistaken. The institution of the United States and the principles of free government are deeply rooted in the American heart, and all the wers combined cannot destroy that great instrument, that great chart of freedom. Their attempts, though they seem to succeed for a time, will be futile. They might as well undertake to lock up the winds or chain the waves of the ocean, and confine them within limits. They might as well undertake to repeal the Constitution, and indeed seems now to be supposed that it can be repealed by a concurrent resolution. [Lighter.] But when the question is submitted to the popular judgment, and to the sies of people, these men will find that they might as well introduce a resolution to repeal the law of gravitation. The attempt to keep this Union from being restored is just about as feasible as would be resistance to the great law of gravitation which binds all to a common center. The great law of political gravitation will bring back the States and restore them to all their relations to the Federal Government. Cliques and cabals, and conspiracies, and machinations North and South cannot prevent its great consummation. [Tremendous applause.] All that is wanted is time. Let the American people get to understand what is going on, and they will soon manifest their determination. Here, by way of explanation, let me say that I would to God the whole American people could be assembled here to-day as you are. I wish there was a vast amphitheater here spacious enough to contain the whole thirty millions, and they could witness the great struggle that is going on to preserve the Constitution of their fathers. They would soon settle the question if they could once see how things are, if they could see the kind of spirit that is manifested in the effort to break up the real principles of free government—when they come to understand who was for them and who was against them, who was for ameliorating their condition, and who for elevating them by preserving their Government. If the combatants could stand before them, and there could be a regular set-to between the respective gladiators in the first tilt that might be made you would find that the enemies of the country would be crushed, and the people would sustain its friends, and the friends of constitutional liberty. [Great cheering.] My fellow citizens I have detained you much longer than I intended. [Go on, go on.] But we are in a great struggle and I am your intrument, and I have thought it best to express myself frankly. When I ask you have I usurped power? who is it in this country that I have not toiled and labored for? Where is the man or woman, either in private life or public life, that has not always received my attention and my time? Sometimes it has been said, pardon me for being a little egotistical, but we are engaged in a friendly and familiar conversation, "That man Johnson is a lucky man. [Laughter.] They can never defeat him." [Laughter.] Now I will tell you what constitutes my luck. It is in doing right and doing for the people. [Great applause.] The people somehow or other, although their sagacity and good judgment are very frequently underrated, under-estimated, generally get to find out and understand who is for them and who is against them. They do it by instinct if in no other way. They know their friend; they know their foe; they can confide. So far, thank God, I can lay my hand upon my bosom and state with heartfelt satisfaction that in all positions in which I have been placed,—in many that were as trying as any in which mortal man has ever been placed, I have never deserted them, nor do I believe they will desert me, [No, no. Applause.] Whom have I betrayed? What principle have I violated? What sentiment have I swerved from? Can those who assail me put their fingers upon any one? ["No," "no."] In all the speeches that have been made, no one has dared to put his finger upon a single principle I ever asserted from which I have deviated. Have you not heard some of them at some time attempt to quote my predecessor, who fell a martyr to his country's cause? But they can give no sentiment of his that is in opposition or in contradiction to anything that I have done. The very policy that I am now pursuing was pursued by him under his administration. I having been appointed by him in a particular position for that very purpose. Inscrutible Providence saw proper to remove him from this to, I trust, a better world, and I came into his place, and there is not a principle of his in reference to the restoration of the Union from which I have departed. [None, none.] Then the war is not simply upon me, but it is upon my predecessor also. I have tried to do my duty. I know that some are envious, and jealous, and speak of the White House as having attractions for the President. Let me say to you, the charms of the White House have as little influence upon me as upon any individual in this country, and much less upon me than upon those who are talking about it. The little that I eat and wear does not amount to much, and the difference between what is enough to sustain me and my little family—it is very small, for I am not kin to many folks by consanguinity, though by affinity I am kin to everybody—the difference between the little that suffices for my stomach and back, and more than enough, has no charms for me. The proud and conscious satisfaction of having performed my duty to my country, to my children, and to the inner man, is all the reward I ask. [Great applause.] In conclusion, let me ask this vast concourse here to-day, this sea of upturned faces, to come with me, or I will go with you, and stand around the Constitution of our country. It is again unfolded; the people are invited to read and understand; to sustain and maintain its provisions. Let us stand by the Constitution of our fathers, though the heavens themselves should fall. Though faction may rage, though taunts and jeers may come, though abuse and vituperation may be poured out in the most violent form, I mean to be found standing by the Constitution of my country. Stand by the Constitution as the chief ark of our safety, as the palladium of our civil and our religious liberty. Yes, let us cling to it as the mariner clings to the last plank when the night and the tempest close around him. Accept my thanks, my countrymen, for the indulgence you have extended to me while submitting to you extemporaneously, and perhaps incoherently, the remarks which I have now made. Let us go away, forgetting the past, and look to the future, resolved to endeavor to restore our Government to its pristine purity, trusting in Him who is on high, but who controls all here below, that ere long our Union will be restored, and that we shall have peace, not only with the nations of the earth, but peace and good will among all parts of the people of the United States. I thank you for the respect you have manifested to me on this occasion, and if the time shall come, during the period of my existence, when the country is to be destroyed and its Government overturned, if you will look out you will find the humble individual who stands before you, with you, endeavoring to avert its final destruction.

The President retired amid a perfect storm of applause.

☞ Beware of jokes—inestimable for sauce, corruption for food.

The Veto of the Freedmen's Bureau Bill.

President Johnson returned to the Senate on Monday, the 19th, the bill for the enlargement of the powers of the Freedmen's Bureau, with his objections to its becoming a law. We have not room for the entire document, but give what seems to us the most pertinent part of it. His first objection comes under the head of

MILITARY JURISDICTION.

The bill proposes to establish, by authority of Congress, military jurisdiction over all parts of the United States containing refugees and freedmen. It would, by its very nature, apply with most force to those parts of the United States in which the freedmen most abound, and it expressly extends the existing temporary jurisdiction of the Freedmen's Bureau, with greatly enlarged powers over those States in which the ordinary course of judicial proceedings has been interrupted by the rebellion. The source from which this military jurisdiction is to emanate is none other than the President of the United States, acting through the War department and the Commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau. The agents to carry out this military jurisdiction are to be selected either from the army or from civil life. The country is to be divided into districts and sub-districts, and the number of salaried agents to be employed may be equal to the number of counties or parishes in all the United States where freedmen and refugees are to be found. The subjects over which this military jurisdiction is to extend in every part of the United States, include protection to all employees, agents, and officers of this Bureau in the exercise of the duties upon them by the bill. In eleven States, it is further to extend over all cases affecting freedmen and refugees discriminated against by local law, custom, or prejudice. In those eleven States the bill subjects any white person who may be charged with depriving a freedman of any civil rights or immunities belonging to white persons, to imprisonment or fine, or both, without, however, defining the civil rights and immunities which are thus to be secured to the freedmen by military law. This military jurisdiction also extends to all questions that may arise respecting contracts. The agent who is thus to exercise the office of a military judge may be a stranger, entirely ignorant of the laws of the place, amd exposed to the errors of judgment to which all men are liable. The exercise of power, over which there is no legal supervision, by so vast a number of agents as is contemplated by the bill, must, by the very nature of man, be attended by acts of caprice, injustice, and passion. The trials having their origin under this bill are to take place without the intervention of a jury, and without any fixed rules of law or evidence. The rules on which offenses are to be heard and determined by the numerous agents, are such rules and regulations as the President through the War Department, may prescribe. No previous presentment is required, nor any indictment charging the commission of a crime against the laws; but the trial must proceed on charges and specifications. The punishment will be, not what the law declares, but such as a court-martial may, think proper: and from these arbitrary tribunals there lies no appeal, no writ of error, to any of the courts in which the Constitution of the United States vests exclusively the judicial power of the country. While the territory, and the class of actions and offenses, that are made subject to this measure, are so extensive, the bill itself, should it become a law, will have no limitation in point of time, but will form a part of the permanent legislation of the country.

I cannot reconcile a system of military jurisdiction of this kind with the words of the Constitution, which declare that "No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia when in actual service in time of war or public danger;" and that "in all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the State os district wherein the crime shall have been committed." the safeguards which the wisdom and experience of ages have taught our fathers to establish as securities for the protection of the innocent, the punishment of the guilty, and the equal administration of justice, are to be set aside; and, for the sake of a more vigorous interposition in behalf of justice, we are to take the risk of the many acts of injustice that would of necessity from an almost countless number of agents, established in every parish or county in nearly a third of the States of the Union, over whose decision there is to be no supervision or control by the Federal Courts. The power that would be thus placed in the hands of the President is such as, in time of peace, certainly ought never to be intrusted to any one man.

ARE WE ENGAGED IN WAR?

If it be asked whether the election of such a tribunal within a State is warranted as a measure of war, the question immediately presents itself whether we are engaged in war. Let us not unnecessarily disturb the commerce and credit and industry of the country by declaring to the American people and the world that the United States are still in a condition of civil war. At present there is no part of our country in which the authority of the United States is disputed. Offences that may be committed by individuals should not work a forfeiture of the rights of whole communities. The country has entered, or is returning, to a state of peace and industry, and the rebellion is in fact at an end. The measure, therefore seems to be as inconsistent with the actual condition of the country as it is at variance with the Constitution of the United States.

* * * * * *

SUPPORT AND EDUCATION OF THE FREEDMEN.

The 3d section of the bill authorizes a general, unlimited amount of support to the destitute and suffering refugees and freedmen, and their wives and children. Succeeding sections make provision for the rent or purchase of landed estates for freedmen, and for the erection for their benefit, of suitable buildings for asylums and schools, the expenses to be defrayed from the treasury of the whole people. The Congress of the United States has never heretofore thought itself competent to establish any such laws beyond the District of Columbia, except for the benefit of our disabled soldiers and sailors. It has never founded schools for any class of our own people, not even for the orphans of those who have fallen in defence of the Union, but has left the care of their education to the much more competent and efficient control of the States, of communities, of private associations, and of individuals. It has never deemed itself authorized to expend the public money for the purchase of houses for the thousands, not to say millions, of the white race who are honestly toiling from day to day for their subsistence. A system for the support of indigent persons in the United States was never contemplated by the authors of the Constitution, nor can any good reason be advanced why, as a permanent establishment, it should be founded for one class or color of our people more than for another. Pending the war, many refugees and freedmen received support from the Government, but it was never intended that they should henceforth be fed, clothed, educated, and sheltered by the United States. The idea on which the slaves were assisted to freedom was that on becoming free they would be a self-sustaining population. Any legislation that shall imply that they are not expected to attain a self-sustaining condition must have a tendency injurious alike to their character and their prosperity.

IMMENSE PATRONAGE AND GREAT EXPENSE.

The appointment of an agent for every county and parish will create an immense patronage, and the expense of the numerous officers and their clerks, to be appointed by the President, will be great in the beginning, with a tendency steadily to increase. The appropriations asked by the Freedmen's Bureau as now established for the year 1866, amount to $11,745,000. It may be safely estimated that the cost to be incurred under the pending bill will require double that amount—more than the entire sum expended in any one year under the administration of the second Adams. If the presence of agents in every parish and county is to be considered as a war measure, opposition, or even resistance might be provoked, so that, to give effect to their jurisdiction, troops would have to be stationed within reach of every one of them, and thus a large standing force be rendered necessary. Large appropriations would therefore be required to sustain and enforce military jurisdiction in every county and parish from the Potomac to the Rio Grande. The condition of our fiscal affairs is encouraging, but, in order to sustain the present measure of public confidence, it is necessary that we practice not merely customary economy, but, as far as possible, severe retrenchment.

* * * * * *

CONDITION OF THE FREEDMEN.

There are still further objections to the bill, on grounds seriously affecting the class of persons to whom it is designed to bring relief. It will tend to keep the mind of the freedmen in a state of uncertain expectation and restlessness; while, to those among whom he lives, it will be a source of constant and vague apprehension. Undoubtedly the freedman should be protected, but he should be protected by the civil authorities especially by the exercise of all the constitutional powers of the courts of the United States, and of the States. His condition is not so exposed as may at first be imagined. He is in a portion of the country where his labor cannot well be spared. Competition for his services from planters, from those who are constructing or repairing railroads, or from capitalists in his vicinity or from other States, will enable him to command almost his own terms. He also possesses a perfect right to change his place of abode; and if, therefore, he does not find in one community or State a mode of life suited to his desires, or proper remuneration for his labor, he can move to another where labor is more esteemed and better rewarded. In truth, however, each State, induced by its own wants and interests, will do what is necessary and proper to retain within its borders all the labor that is needed for the development of its resources. The laws that regulate supply and demand will maintain their force, and the wages of the laborer will be regulated thereby. There is no danger that the great demand for labor will not operate in favor of the laborer. Neither is sufficient consideration given to the ability of the freedmen to protect and care of themselves. It is no more than justice to them to believe that, as they have received their freedom with moderation and forbearance, so they will distinguish themselves by their industry, and will feel, and soon show the world, that, in a condition of freedom, they are self-sustaining, and capable of selecting their own employment and their own places of abode; of insisting for themselves on a proper remuneration, and of establishing and maintaining their own asylums and schools. It is earnestly hoped that, instead of wasting away, they will, by their efforts, establish for themselves a condition of respectability and prosperity. It is certain that they can attain to that condition only through their own merits and exertions.

CONCENTRATION OF POWER IN THE EXECUTIVE.

In this connection the query presents itself, whether the system proposed by the bill will not, when put into complete operation, practically transfer the entire care, support, and control of four millions of emancipated slaves to agents, overseers, or task masters, who, appointed at Washington, are to be located in every county and parish throughout the United States containing freedmen and refugees. Such a system would eventually tend to such a concentration of power in the Executive as would enable him, if so disposed, to control the action of a numerous class, and use them for the attainment of his own political ends.

The President then enters into an argument in support of his view that the late rebel states are entitled to representation in Congress, referring especially to Tennessee and closes as follows:

I return the bill to the Senate, in the earnest hope that a measure involving questions and interests so important to the country will not become a law, unless, upon deliberate consideration by the people, it shall receive the sanction of an enlightened public judgment.

(Signed) ANDREW JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19, 1866.

A Twice-Buried Boy in Blue Comes Home Alive.

[From the Adrian, Mich., Expositor.

A valued correspondent sends us the facts in a case of identity which has few parellels. Four days after the rebels fired on Fort Sumter, a son of Mrs. Duncan, of Mecca, O., enlisted for the war. He joined a Western regiment, and after being in several battles, was reported killed at the battle of Stone River. His body was brought home and interred. Afterwards intelligence was brought to the parents by returned Union prisoners that that their lost son was not dead, but in a rebel prison in Georgia. Other prisoners returning from there last spring brought the sad news of his death to the sorely distressed family. When the war closed an opportunity was offered to penetrate the rebel lines. Mr. Duncan sent down and had his son brought home again and buried. Having had him buried twice, as was supposed, it was natural that they should be reconciled to their loss; but about a month ago their son Bob, in spite of his wounds, and deaths, and funerals, "came marching home." The feelings of the parents can more easily be imagined than described. The mother was standing on the verandah and saw him approaching in his suit of army blue, but could not believe him to be her son, although the resemblance was striking. She was only convinced when he came up and grasped her by the hand and called her mother. Only mothers who mourn the loss of dear ones slaughtered by rebel hands may ever have a realizing sense of the overwhelming emotions of that mother's heart. Two sons of other mothers lie buried on the hill in Mr. Duncan's orchard, while their own son, whom they mourned as dead, is spared to them to cheer their declining years and dissipate their sadness which his supposed death produced.

SAGACITY OF THE MULE.—An incident occurred on the 1st inst., illustrating the fact that mules are not only the most sagacious of all four-legged animals, but they sometimes do things on purely scientific principles. A drove of two hundred of these large-minded beasts were brought to the Illinois shore opposite the city, and it was concerted that the best way to get them across was to start them on the ice and let them walk over. As soon as they reached the ice, instinct taught them that they had embarked on a dangerous journey; instantly, the oldest mule in the drove, one, too, that had never been in a circus, and had no education, took the lead, and one at a time the whole two hundred "fell in" and followed their leader in single file, with safe distances between, and thus stretching themselves into a long line, they crossed the river. The circumstance was witnessed by a number of gentlemen, who were impressed with the wonderful illustration of mule sagacity.—St. Louis Republican.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

FRED. DOUGLASS and George T. Downing, representatives of the colored people in Washington, appeared in the white people's gallery of the Senate the other day, and were politely requested by the doorkeeper to take seats in the colored gallery, but they respectively declined to do so.

GEN. GRANT was, on the 23d, the guest of Stewart, the New York merchant prince. On the 24th he went to Washington.

BYRNE, the Irish giant, measured eight feet and two inches. Cornelius Hogarth, who died in the year 1760, measured seven feet and eight inches. Edward Malone, an Irishman, was seven feet and seven inches, and was nearly equal in stature and size to Daniel Cardanus, the Swedish giant. The celebrated Dr. Chelsden, the famous anatomist, speaks of a skeleton, discovered in a Roman camp near St. Albans, and near to an urn inscribed Marcus Antoninus, which he judged to have been eight feet and four inches. Goliah, of Gath, the champion of the Philistines, who was slain by David, measured six cubits and a span, which, according to Bishop Cumberland, is eleven feet English. Maximus, the emperor, was nine feet high; and, in the reign of Augustus, there were said to be many others as tall.

MR. THURLOW WEED, after a residence of thirty-five years in Albany, last week shook the dust of that city from his soles and counts himself no longer a citizen there. On Friday he sold his residence in Albany for $12,000, and on Saturday purchased the residence of Richard M. Blatchford, on Twelfth street, near Fifth avenue, New York, for $50,000. The two great athletes of the Albany press for the third of a century, Mr. Crosswell of the Argus and Weed of the Journal, are now both residents of New York.

A GENTLEMAN of Washington, having occasion to pass through Arlington at dusk on Saturday, saw a lonely figure standing with folded arms at the foot of a tree. Struck with the sorrowful attitude of the person, he walked past him, and saw that it was Robert E. Lee standing in the street that passed through the middle of his own estate. Mrs. Lee has applied to the President for a restoration of this estate, which has virtually become a National Union soldiers' cemetery. The expectation is general that the President will order its restoration.

A GOOD story is told of Rossini, and on good authority. It is said that Adelina Patti, when she was the last time in Paris, sang in Rossini's house. The maestro undertook to correct certain faults in her conception, when the young lady, as it were, snubbed the old maestro by some remark. "Very well," said Rossini, "you are perfectly right, my child. Sing and make money, and when you have made enough, come to me and I will teach you how to sing." The protege of Strakosh is fast losing ground among musicians.

AN anecdote is related of the late Rev. Dr. Nott, President of Union College, which certainly shows the old gentleman's character in a more amiable light, although most college officers have found it necessary to treat the young men under their charge much more rigorously:

A junior had 'rowed' a freshman; 'not to put too fine a point on it,' they had come to blows in the chapel under the following circumstances: In the chapel, on one side of the folding doors, sat the seniors and sophomores, and on the other the juniors and freshmen, the juniors sitting on the lower seats, and the freshmen perched above in the gallery. After morning prayers the latter retired, passing down among the seats of the former, who remained in the chapel to recite the morning lesson.—Certain freshmen had acquired an ugly habit of wearing their hats while passing out of the room. This was a terrible affront to the newly acquired junior dignity, and such as stamping, hissing, cries of 'hats off,' and 'put him out.' At length, a junior thought himself personally aggrieved by a defiant grimace on the face of a freshman, and the latter immediately found himself extinguished by his own beaver.

A report of the affair came speedily to the ears of the doctor, and at evening chapel the junior was requested to call on the President say at 10 o'clock next morning, and the freshman at 11. The junior called and an explanation was made. "Well, my son," said the doctor with a sad countenance, "this is a great breach of decorum. You have been a pretty good boy until now, and I guess you mean to be a pretty good boy still, don't you?" "Yes, doctor, yes," (expecting dismissal.) "Then," with a smile, "you may go this time, my son; but in future don't you mind those freshmen. You know what they are." The freshman called at the appointed time, breathing sighs of ab imo pectore, and a similar dialogue occurs and similar advice is given, but with this difference: "My son, I beg of you, don't mind those juniors. You know what they are."

It appears that he always addressed the students collectively as 'young gentlemen,' and individually as "my son."

MR BAYARD TAYLOR'S new novel is to be called "The Story of Kennett," and he is now busy with the proof sheets. The scene is laid in the author's native town in Pennsylvania.

THE father of the fillibuster Walker, "the grey-eyed man of destiny," is now acting as door-keeper of one of the New York theatres.

A VERY large and active party is said to have been developed in Virginia, with the design of making the rebel General Robert E. Lee Governor of that State.

ROBERT CARY, the father of the poetesses, Alice and Phœbe, died at his residence, near Cincinnati, on the 11th, in the 80th year of his age. He came to Ohio in 1802.

MRS. JULIA G. TYLER, wife of the late President Tyler, is engaged in a law suit with her own brother. The case is an appeal from the decision of the Surrogate of Richmond county, before whom the will of the mother of Mrs. Tyler was entered for probate. The will was at the time contested by David L.

One of the Larges:

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan.

One of the best filled Establishments!

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied

Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South Side Chicago St, Tecumseh.

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS.

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY, WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH, COTTAGE, COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP, WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Show Cases, Stands, Book Cases, Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short no tic by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pictures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VANTINE,
G. SMITH,

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

TECUMSEH, - - MICH A

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions

I keep the largest and best assortment of

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS,
FRUITS,
SALT
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,

&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had eleven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the business If you dont believe it, ask your neighbors where they get their Groceries and where they buy them the

CHEAPEST.

Try me and judge for yourselves.

n796 A JAMES

☞ Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the HERALD.

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the Nicest, Best and Strongest, WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS, and in fact every thing in his line from a baby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as to defy competition. So call and leave your orders.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM,

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

☞ All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner, and on the most reasonable terms.

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co are now prepared to present to the public every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART.

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and elegance to the figure India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices

and a general assortment of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

New Meat Market!!

Bidwell's Warehouse, Railroad st.,

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

HUGH McGEE, Proprietor.

Who is now prepared to furnish the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity with

FRESH MEATS OF ALL KINDS,

at the lowest possible rates. Thankful for past patronage he would respectfully solicit a continuance of the same.

Tecumseh Union School!

C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.

The Fall term of this Institution, of sixteen weeks, commenced on Monday, Sept. 4th, 1865.

THE WINTER TERM, of twelve weeks will commence on Monday, January 8th, 1866.

Scholars will be received at any time and placed in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.

CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses &c.

HALL'S

Vegetable Sicilian

HAIR RENEWER,

As the name indicates, not only RENEWS the growth of the hair when thin and falling off, but positively renews the color to its original shade when it is turning grey or white, whether caused by disease, grief or old age.

It will certainly do what is claimed for it, a fact to which hundreds, nay thousands, who have used it, are ready and willing to testify Where one bottle is fairly used, in any community, its reputation "spreads like wild fire," and is the best advertisement and recommendation we desire. In the Eastern States, where the "RENEWER" originated, the young ladies use it as a hair dressing; it is found on the toilet tables of young men, (also at their barbers), while older men and women who desire a Renewer and Restorative for their grey locks and bald heads will not be without this article, which gives in every instance, entire setisfaction.

CAUTION.

Don't let any druggist or dealer urge upon you a different article, as there is no preparation in the world like this, Beware of any article purporting to be the same.

Try HALL'S HAIR RENEWER according to Directions, and you will use no other.

If not sold at druggists in your town, a trial bottle will be sent you by express, upon receipt of one dollar by mail, thus giving you an opportunity at once of testing its excellent qualities.

Orders for trial bottles must be addressed to

C. A. COOK, Chicago.
Gen'l Agent for Northwestern States,

R. P. HALL & CO., Proprietors, Nashua, N. H.

Sold at WHOLESALE, in Chicago, by FULLER, FINCH & FULLER, BURNHAMS & VAN SCHAACK, LORD & SMITH, SMITH & DWYER, J. H. REED & CO., CHAS. G. SMITH, DIETZSCH, BLOCKI & CO., H. SCOVIL, W. D. HARRIS & CO., POST & BADEAU, and by druggists and dealers generally.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at

A. JAMES

1866. 1866.

MERRITT, MEEKER & Co

SUCCESSORS TO J. H. WHEELER.

Have just received a large addition to their

STOCK OF GOODS,

And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of

DRY GOODS,

YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Particular attention is called to their stock

of BUFFALO ROBES and LADIES AND GENTS FURS,

which they are now selling

At Cost.

We would announce to his numerous friends that we have secured the services of Wm. Vanhomp, and he will take pleasure in waiting upon all.

It is no trouble to show goods: should you wish anything in our line give us a call before purchasing elsewhere and we will do our best to give satisfaction.

GLORIOUS NEWS,

The Confederacy gone up! But

GEORGE HEESEN'S

CLOTHING EMPORIUM

Is in full blast, and has not yet surrendered to young america. I would say to my friends and customers that I have just received a large stock of clothing which were purchased at panic prices, and I will sell them at a very small profit, for they must be sold within ninety days. I

Sell Cassimere Pants at 6 50.

Broadcloth and cassimere coats very cheap, Linen coats cheaper than any other house in town, wool-en and Straw

HATS, CAPS!

Linen and Paper Collars,
Neck Ties, Shirts,
Gloves, Hosiery,
Traveling Bags, &c.

It is easily understood that I can sell goods cheaper than my neighbor for I save great expense, been a tailor and having followed the business for the last 17 years I know how work ought to be done.

Please come over on the Canada side for you can buy goods cheaper than you can on the American, for all expense of importing is saved, which amounts to considerable.

Cutting Done at Old Prices.

Those wishing garments made would do well to call on me and have an honest job done.

Geo. Heesen.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New Yisnow opening a new stock of Groceries, Paints, Oils &c.

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago street

---

L. DREW'S

NEW HARDWARE!!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz:

STOVES IN ALL DIES VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass, Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools
Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps,
Bolts, and a
Variety of SHELF GOODS,
PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron, and Zinc,

Also the

Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

Real Estate for Sale.

Our old friend John Davenport wishes to dispose of the following property:

60 acres of fine timbered land lying near Franklin Centre.

120 acres of timbered land on Evans Lake. Saw mill and 20 acres of land near Franklin Centre.

Brick House and 4 acres of land known as the Stitts property in the village of Tecumseh, now occupied by A. Hood

House and lot on Logan St. known as The Mrs Bissell property

Also—House and lot of J. E. Merritt Maiden Lane, in the village of Tecumseh.

Terms easy or to suit purchasers. For particulars call on or address the subscriber at Tecumseh, Mich.

JOHN DAVENPORT.

Dated Jan. 18th, 1866.

☞ Have you job printing done at the Herald Office,

GREAT DECLINE

Boots & Shoes

ARE DOWN! not in New York or Boston but at

E. H. HOAG'S

Mammoth Shoe Store,

Returning the public thanks for liberal patronage during the past year, I shall offer during the next

SIXTY DAYS,

BOOTS & SHOES

AT PRICES WHICH WILL

DEFY COMPETITION.

The attention of sewed Boot customers is called to my stock of fine

French & American Calf Skins,

which are being made up

In a Style unsurpassed for WORKMANSHIP AND DURABILITY.

LADIES AND MISSES

Congress Gaiters, Balmorals and POLISH BOOTS,

made to order from all materials.

E. H. HOAG.

Tecumseh, Jan. 1st, 1866.

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartnership in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE & FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions, Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected stock of

Crockery and Glass Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

C. H. ADAM & CO.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct 2tf TECUMSEH, MICH

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government.

$150,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.

n790lysmp

---

18 Pronunciemento. 65.

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see

How well we can do For them

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd best Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholesale or Retail.
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
Fine Midlings, B. W. F. our,
Ship Stuffs, B. w. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed.

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE. They will always also usually find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE,

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL.

Corn In the Ear and Shelled

A good assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantable Lumber.

Wm. HAYDEN

CO-PARTNERSHIP

A. Hood & Co.

are now receiving at the Old Stand of A Hood, Anderson's Block,

A LARGE STOCK

—OF—

NEW GOODS

Direct from New York consisting of

Ready Made Cloth

A splended assortment of THE LATEST STYLES of cloths that could be found in the Eastern markets, Consisting of

BROAD CLOTHS, DOESKINS, FREECH, SCOTCH and ENGLISH CASSIMERES, COATINGS, VESTINGS, OVER COATINGS, &c. Also a heavy

STOCK OF WOOLEN SHIRTS

Of all styles, UNDER SHIRTS and DRAWERS, SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, HOSIERY.

A nice assortment of

HATS & CAPS!

Furnishing Goods!

Of all kinds for mens wear. We mean to keep on hand as good a selection of goods in our line as can be found in any one establishment in the County and for CASH we will sell them as low, or a little lower than any other establishment in the County.

Our Tailoring Department is in full blast. We are prepared to get up Suits on SHORT NOTICE, in as GOOD STYLE, and at as low figures as any other establishment.

CUTTING DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

H. M. GRAY. A. HOOD.

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS.

is the place to get good grinding done I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING.

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Wheat

Mill Feed of allkinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Bills of hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shal endeavor to do as good work, and even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Neary, and Bridget Neary, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March, A D. 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber 'M' of Mortgages, on folios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J. Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] two on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village, (now city] of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid. Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriet A. Bradbury on the twenty-first day of March, A D. 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan on the 17th day of February, A D 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, which said mortgage, was afterwards, to wit: on the eighth day of February, A D. 1866 duly assigned by said Harriet A Bradbury to Addison J Comstock, which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money, and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents, [$573.12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty-fifth day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage

ADDISON J COMSTOCK,
Assignee of said mortgage.

M. N. HALEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb. 21, 1866.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee ss.—At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian on Friday the 26th day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six.

Present, Robert R. Beecher, Judge of Probate In the matter of the estate of William B Whitnah, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified of Jacob G. Roberts, one of the executors of the last will of said deceased praying that the final account of the executors of said will may be allowed and that said executors may be discharged and that distribution may be made of the estate of said deceased in their hands.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday the 19th day of March next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted:

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ROBERT R, BEECHER, Judge of Probate
(A true copy) n790x4

D. NOTEMAN, M. D.

Practical Physician, for the treatment of Chronic Diseases, will visit Tecumseh the

1st & 2d of Every Month,

for Consultation with patients. Cancers and Scrofulous Tumors removed without the use of the knife Bronchitis, Catarrh, and Incipient Consumption cured in three to five months. Liver Complaint, Dispepsia, and Constipation cured in 2 to 4 months. Piles Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration and diseases of the Genital Organs yield readily to his treatment. Prolapsus Uteri he is master of. Charges reasonable according to ability to pay: the really poor will be treated gratis. He will be at Comstock & Noteman's Drug Store, Adrian, the last week in each month Residence on Budling Street. All letters with stamp enclosed will receive prompt attention For further particulars (See Circulars.

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL

IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor, show room the same 3 doors east of A Hood & Co's clothing store.

With the improvements she has made in the last year—which warranted the Judges at the State Fair, to award her the first prize and Diploma for pictures exhibited at that time—she feels anxious for those wanting likenesses, to call and examine her specimens of work.

To those who have six photographs an additional one will be given. She has 24 varieties of photograph frames, which will be sold cheaper than they can be found elsewhere.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

GREAT CENTRAL.

United States Mail Route.

THREE EXPRESS TRAINS leave Windsor (opposite Detroit) daily for the East, on the arrival of Trains of Michigan Central Detroit and Milwaukee, and Michigan Southern Railways from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati and all points West North-West and South West.

This is the only route via Niagara Falls and suspension Bridge, and is the direct route to Buffalo, New York, Boston, London, Paris, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Prescott, Ogdensburgh, Montreal, Quebec and Portland.

☞ Passenger Cars are furnished with Patent ventilators.

Luxurious Sleeping Cars attached to all night trains, and Smoking Cars to all day trains.

☞ United States Currency taken at par for through fares, sleeping Car berths and meals at Refreshment Saloons

CHARLES McCABE,
Western Passenger Agent, Detroit.

THOS SWINYARD, General Manager, Hamilton, C. W

JAS CHARLTON, General Agent, Hamilton, C. W

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.

Published for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supplying at the same time the means of Self Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a post-paid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, may be had of the author.

NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Brooklyn,
n790lysmp Kings Co, N. Y.

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVI. NO. 42. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 8, 1866. WHOLE NO. 796.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.

Express Freight, 6:15 A. M
Mail and Express, 1:15 P. M.

GOING NORTH.

Mail and Express, 9:28 A. M.
Accommodation, 6:38 P. M.

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S,
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND,
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD C. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich.

ALFRED JAMES,
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT,
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilets, &c.
Chicao St. Tecumseh, Mich.

F. N. CURTIS,
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER,
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

GOULD & WALDO,
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St, - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN B. WOOD.
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER,
Attorney's, Councellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT,
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & McCOWEN,
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWARD H. HOAG,
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EMLAY & COURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harness and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HORACE BREWER,
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS.
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

O. G. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and worker in Jewelry.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

I. C. SATTERTHWAITE,
Insurance Agent and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT.
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS,
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich,

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL.
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE.
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St. Opposite P. Office.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT,
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR L. HARNES,
Physician & Surgeon,
Special attention given to office consultation. Office with Dr. Hause, Dentist. Residence two doors north of the M. E. church.

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.

(One inch of column constitutes a square.)

	1 wk	3 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$ 2.00	$ 6.00	$ 7.50	$10.00
2 Squares	1.75	3.50	8.00	12.00	15 00
3 Squares	2.75	5.00	11.00	16.00	20.00
¼ Column	5.00	9.00	12.00	18.00	25.00
½ Column	7.50	12.00	18.00	25.00	36.00
1 Column	12.00	15.00	20.00	35.00	60.00

☞ No advertisement considered less than one square. Transient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted on 3.50 per year.

☞ Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

☞ Subscribe for the HERALD.

☞ John B. Gough lectures at Adrian on the 19th inst.

☞ Hon. F. C. Beaman will please accept our thanks for valuable Congressional Documents.

ECLIPSE.—On the evening of the 30th inst. there will be a total eclipse of the moon visible in this country.

☞ We have been enjoying very pleasant weather for the past few days.—It looks like making maple sugar.

☞ May Peleg, be blessed with a long and happy life after arriving at his journey's end. This is the wish of his many friends.

☞ We will take wood, butter, lard, eggs, potatoes, and all kinds of farm produce, on subscription for the "HERALD." So bring it along.

☞ The 3d cavalry and the 28th infantry are on their way home, and are expected soon to arrive at Jackson, where they will be paid off.

Married,

At the residence of the bride's father, on the 3d inst., by Rev. J. H. Burnham, Mr. HOSEA HALL, of Raisin, and Miss MARY ATEN, of Tecumseh.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—This best of monthlies, for March has been received, and as usual filled with interesting papers. Among all the monthlies there is none like Harper's for family reading.

☞ The firm of Curtis & McCowen has lately been dissolved, the junior member of the firm having sold his interest to W. A. Parson. The business will be conducted as before, by Curtis & Parsons.

☞ It is now understood that before the 1st National Bank of Adrian can be put in operation, further legislation on the part of Congress will be necessary, the Controller of the Currency having so informed the directors.

To Our Friends.

You will confer a favor on us by soliciting the Judge of Probate to publish Probate Notices in the HERALD, and you will also find it convenience to yourselves to have the advertisements in the paper you receive.

Sale of Property.

Heesen and Nyland have, we understand, purchased the West half of the Union Hall Block, and will take possession the first of April next. They design to refit and improve the store now occupied by Snell and Burroughs, for their own use, and will rent the offices and rooms above.

The last Donation.

The last but by no means the least donation of the season came off on Thursday evening last at the Methodist Church, for the benefit of the Rev. J. H. Burnham. The occasion was a very pleasant one to those who participated, and resulted in a donation of $210,00. The 42nd parallel of latitude appears to be peculiarly adapted to the wants of clergymen.

☞ To those of our readers who are in want of pure Drugs and Medicines, Crockery, Wall paper, Perfumery, choice family Groceries, Lamps and all kinds of Glass Ware, we would say call at M. Wright's Drug Store. Gus. and Lon. are accomodating fellows and take great pride in showing goods and carefully preparing prescriptions.

☞ A youth who much desired to wear the matrimonial yoke, had not sufficient courage to "pop the question."—On informing his father of the difficulty he labored under, the old gentleman replied passionately—"Why, you great booby, how do you suppose I managed when I got married?"

"Oh, yes," said the bashful lover, "you married mother, but I have got to marry a strange girl."

Our Paper.

We issue this week an edition of one-thousand copies of the "HERALD," for gratuitous circulation. We are determined to spare no pains on our part to make the HERALD second to no paper in the County, for general and local news.

The village of Tecumseh deserves, its business interests demand, and the farmers of Northern Lenawee require, a live local publication, and such a publication we shall labor earnestly and faithfully to furnish them. Our department of general news is unequalled by that of any other paper in Southern Michigan; every issue will contain the latest and most important political intelligence, a good story for the young ladies and housewives to peruse, and the whole seasoned with a fair amount of literary miscellany, poetry and wit, while our local, we intend, shall surpass that of any other weekly in the County of Lenawee. And right here we would urge upon the farmers of this and the surrounding towns, the importance of supporting a home paper. Nothing, except perhaps schools and churches, gives a town more character both at home and abroad than a good live newspaper. The two former Tecumseh is justly noted for. Shall she not have the latter? We say she shall! But be it remembered, a paper cannot live on faith. It requires the fostering care of a large subscription list, and a good advertising patronage. Then let every farmer in Northern Lenawee put his shoulder to the wheel. Send in your names fellow citizens—you need have no fear of frightening us. Support the HERALD well, and the HERALD in return will by its influence assist in building up the town wealth, and capital will be introduced, a greater competition in business will be the result, and the farmer will eventually be the gainer. We venture the assertion that every farmer in the township of Tecumseh, could better afford to pay five dollars per year, for the HERALD, than to have its publication cease. It would be money in his pocket to fork over the five dollars to the printer. A village in these days that supports no newspaper is considered a poor one horse affair. Shall we not be up with the times? Five hundred names should be added to our subscription list, between this and the first of next June. Shall we have them?

Corporation Election.

The regular annual Corporation election for village officers took place on Monday, last the 5th inst. The excitement waxed quite warm, there being two tickets in the field, but the election passed off quietly. The following are the names of the officers elected:

For President,
Michael A Patterson.

For Trustees,
George T. Ketcham,
George Heesen,
Philo N. Curtis,
Asa Rosecrans,
Samuel C. Blinn.
Elijah Ames.

For Recorder,
Charles Burridge.

For Treasurer,
Thomas Cummins.

For Marshal,
Morri Hyde.

For Assessors,
Wm. Van Camp.
George W. Ketcham.

For trustees Albert Anderson and S. C. Blinn received the same number of votes. Lots were drawn and Mr. Blinn was chosen.

A DELICATE QUESTION.—A bashful and rather green young fellow invited a young lady to attend a ball with him one night last summer. The invitation was accepted, and the couple appeared at the ball. After dancing for some time "greeny" saw his partner sitting in one corner of the room, all alone. Now was his chance. So he walked up to where the lady was sitting and sat down beside her. All well so far; but the bashful fellow was at a loss for something to say. He fidgetted about considerable, and was sweating profusely. Taking hold of his wilted collar, he commenced conversation thus: "It's powerful warm in this room, my shirt's wet, ain't yours?" His partner blushed, said nothing, but took his arm for the next dance.

☞ With the disappearance of snow and ice from our streets and around our residences, is the work of cleaning up the filthy accumulations of winter, and should be at once commenced. With the return of warm weather, it is anticipated that this country will be visited with cholera, and exemption from this terrible disease depends very much upon cleanliness and diet.

For the Tecumseh "HERALD."

The Jacket of Blue.

We'll lay it aside and fondly we'll cherish,
A memory holy, (that never can perish;)
For the dear boy, who ever was loyal and true,
That marched with such pride in his "Jacket of blue."

We ne'er shall forget when our loved country called
For volunteers many, our hearts were appalled.
To find, with the bravest, his name enrolled too,
With a pledge to disgrace not the "Jacket of Blue."

We all said, "God speed" him, although our heart bled,
For fear he'd be numbered along with the dead;
But when for his safety, to God we did sue,
We prayed, may he honor the "Jacket of Blue."

His fond mother, gathered him close to her heart,
Much grieved, from her only, her darling to part:
While she cries, "God has willed it" and never may you
My dear boy, dishonor the "The Jacket of Blue."

Years, months and days have passed and we heard of a score
Of fierce, bloody battles, and fields wet with gore;
And each day, a list of the killed, came anew,
Yet we saw not the name of our dear boy in Blue.

We lived on, in hopes that our boy might return,
To once more behold him, our weary hearts yearned,
But doomed, we were never, our darling to view
Again, in his dear little "Jacket of Blue"

At last came a letter, (the writing was dim,)
The seal we broke quickly, but, 'twas not from him,
A kind brother soldier, who stood by his side,
Wrote down his last message, to us,) ere he died.)

Pray tell my dear mother, she never must grieve,
For this "sacrifice costly," our country to save,
And tell her, her dear boy proved loyal and true,
And left her his blessing and "Jacket of Blue."

One day a poor soldier came wending his way,
Returned from the war and battles affray,
From his knapsack he drew forth a "Jacket of Blue."
And said, "your boy told me to give that to you."

'Twas spotted with blood, and we washed it with tears,
Our hopes were all blasted, and hushed were our fears,
But yet, 'twas a comfort to feel he died true
To his Country, and his little "Jacket of Blue."

[illegible] make up [illegible]
Mings didn't look up; and, in spite of all the screwing, we got down to the bottom of the stocking, as I said jest now.

—I hadn't much cared for the pinching, but it was my poor lass as got pinched the most, and she was a-getting paler and thinner every day, till I couldn't abear to see it. I run out o' the house, and down to Jenkins's yard, where I'd been at work last. I soon found Jenkins; and I says to him, "Governor," I says, "this won't do; a man can't live upon wind."

"True for you, Bill Stock," he says.

"And a man can't keep his wife upon wind," I says.

"Right you are, Bill," he says; and he went on and spoke as fair as a man could speak; and said he hadn't a job he could put me on, or he would have done it in a minute, "I'm werry sorry, Bill," he says, "but if times don't mend, I tell you what I'm a-going to do."

"What's that?" I says.

"Go up to London," he says; "and if I was a young man like you, I wouldn't stop starving down here, when they're giving first-class wages up there, and when there's building going on all round, as thick as thick, and good big jobs too; hotels and

☞ A Yankee who had never seen a steam engine, confronted one on the Railroad track. The cowcatcher tossed him off the track into the bushes. The engineer backed up as quickly as possible and went to hunt for the mangled corpse.—"There," said he, I saw him fall right behind them bushes. I wonder where he is? At this the Yankee sprang up unharmed and replied: 'O, I am here. I don't run; if I've damaged your machine just make out your bill.

Reliable Insurance.

The recent failures of prominent N. Y. Insurance companies should be a warning to all to waste their money in a company that indulges in low rates and loose practices. A good quality of Insurance like a good quality of broadcloth cannot be sold as half price. Good Insurance is a positive business necessity, and the best is always the cheapest. Those who make security a secondary considerate, can insure in anything. Those who insure for safety should invest only in a first class article. Policies issued and losses paid promptly in the old Phœnix of Hartford, "the genuine article"—by

S. C. Stacy Ins. Agent.

☞ A married lady by the name of Mrs. A. Prichard, committed suicide at Lawton, VanBuren county on Monday by hanging herself in a barn. She was first discovered by her husband, but life was extinct. The cause for this terrible deed is not yet ascertained.

☞ On Tuesday evening, Feb. 20th, Rev. M. McCarthy, pastor of the Manchester Presbyterian Church, was made the recipient of $181 in cash or its equivalent.

☞ Thomas L. Spafford a 30 years' resident of Manchester, fell on the ice Feb. 26th. Attempting to rise he found his hip out of joint.

Shocking Murder.

We clip the following from the Adrian Times;

About a year ago a man named George Stebbins, a drunken, dissolute, worthless fellow, married, and living in the town of Palmyra enlisted in the army. With his bounty he bought a small house and lot in Palmyra village and during his absence in the army his wife and her sister occupied the house. The latter who calls herself Mrs. Rose and claims to be married to a man of that name, is well known to the officers of our city by the name of Angeline Hyler.—Both women are notoriously bad characters, and have the reputation of common prostitutes. About a month ago Stebbins returned to Palmyra but whether he was discharged from the army or deserted we are not informed. He purchased some provision for the family, and soon after came to this city, got drunk and into a row, but escaped the officers and got back to Palmyra. He then sold out the provisions he had provided for family use, sold his house and lot to a citizen of Palmyra for fifty dollars, though taking a article from the purchase stipulating that he should regain possession of the property on repaying the fifty dollars.

A warrant for the arrest of Stebbins, having been placed in the hands of officer Bowerman, of Palmyra, the latter attempted to capture him but Stebbins escaped and made his way into Ohio. A citizen of Palmyra, however, discovered his whereabouts, followed him, and in some way succeeded in getting possession of the article for the property, with which he returned to Palmyra, paid the purchaser the fifty dollars, and owned the property, but did not turn out the women. Nothing further had been heard of Stebbins and it was thought he would never return to Palmyra, and that the village would be rid of the presence of at least one worthless inhabitant.

But on Friday night last he returned to the village and went to the house where the women still lived He found there a young man named Andrews, a returned soldier who is a nephew of the women, and all that is known of what transpired in the house is the statement of this man. He says Stebbins came in and commenced abusing his wife and threatening to kill her, when he (Andrews) clinched him, struck him and threw him out of doors. He lay outside the door some two hours, when some of the party inside went to the house of officer Bowerman to procure his services to arrest Stebbins. The officer came, but found the man insensible and the next day (Saturday) about 2 o'clock P. M., he died.

A coroner's jury was summoned to investigate the matter and they returned a verdict that the diseased came to his death from wounds received from the parties in the house, though without specifying any particular person, and officer Bowerman arrested the two women and the man Andrews and lodged them in jail in this city, where they now are.

The wound which caused the death of the unfortunate man was inflicted with some blunt instrument, it is thought a flat iron on the back of the head, bruising but not breaking the skull. One of these articles, with which it is thought the fatal wound was inflicted stood on the stove in the house.

☞ The examination of Myron H. Andrews, Mary Stebbins and Angeline Rose—better known as Angeline Hyler—charged with the murder of Geo. N. Stebbins, of Palmyra, closed on Saturday March 3d, the trial being at Adrian the two were held for trial at the next term of the Court. Fifteen witnesses were examined, including two physicians Mrs. Comstock and Holland. The former thought that the cut on Stebbins' head would not have caused death, but both agreed that this, combined with the exposure, would be sufficient to cause the death of a man in Stebbins' condition.—The story told by the accused is that Stebbins came to the house about two o'clock on the morning of Feb 24th, and after breaking in the door, threatened to kill his wife, and with that intent drew a revolver. To prevent the accomplishing of this purpose, Andrews struck him a heavy blow and afterwards threw him out of doors, Angeline holding open the door.—It is known, however, that Mrs. Stebbins threatened to kill her husband should he ever enter the house again, and Andrews was seen at a grocery in company with Stebbins on Saturday morning at half-past one o'clock. The story told by the accused parties is, therefore, believed to be incorrect, if not absolutely false. The people living in vicinity of Stebbins' house, where this affray occurred, became aware of it at about three o'clock Saturday morning, after Stebbins had been out of doors for some time. He was then taken up and cared for, death ensuing at half-past one o'clock in the afternoon.

GREAT EXCITEMENT.—Not about the new Hotel, but because Merritt, Meeker & Co. are selling dry good, boots and shoes hats and caps, and gents furnishing goods at Greatly Reduced Prices. If you want sheetings, calicos, delains, cloths, cassimeres, balmorals, Hoop skirts, Boots Shoes, Hats & Gents furishing goods, go to Merritt Meeker & Co., one door west of Drews' Hardware Store. Ladies and Gents Furs and Buffalo Robes at 10 per cent. below cost at Merrit, Meeker & Cos.

SKATING.—One of the most healthy sports of the present age is skating. But too much care cannot be used after skating all the evening getting the blood heated and the pores all open, that you do not get cold and lay the foundation of throat and lung complaints. Coe's Cough Balsam will be found excellent in all such cases. We say, keep it in the house, ready for immediate use.

Coe's Dyspepsia Cure is also one of the best remedies in the world for Dyspepsia Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, and all diseases of the stomach and bowels.

A New Discovery.

The people of Tecumseh vicinity have just discovered that Gould & Waldo's Drug and Grocery Store is the place to buy good goods for a little money. That shilling sugar is going like dew before the sun.

Tecumseh,—Its Location and Prospects.

Less than fifty years ago the war-whoop of the Indian resounded through the solitude of the wilderness where Tecumseh, the "loveliest village of the plain" now stands. The virgin banks of the Raisin were unpolluted with the touch of civilization, the stroke of the woodman's axe and the hum of the water wheel were sounds unknown. The wild birds of the forest unmolested built their nests, and the deer of the western prairie here slaked their thirst unharmed, the buff oaks of the openings listened to the chattering of the squirrel and the song of the nightingale, while the hills and dales were clothed in the beautiful colors of the buttercup and daisy, making the whole landscape dance with fragrance and delight. But already the untiring Yankee had turned his steps westward, and soon the beautiful soil of the lake bound peninsular began to yield to the tread of the enterprising yeomanry from the land of wooden nutmegs. As early as 1824, the present site of Tecumseh, was frequently visited by the white man and before 1830 a permanent settlement was made in that portion of the village now known as Brownville, and for several years, owing to its superior water power and the beauty of its location it was the most thrifty town in the southern portion of the state. But its natural advantages were, for many years overbalanced by the suicidal policy of its own inhabitant and the disadvantages of its geographical position. But during the last decade it has arroused from its lethargy, and is now pushing rapidly forward in the path of permanent and substantial improvement. We can boast of as fine churches as any town of our size in the State, an unequalled system of schools, a flourishing National Bank, a water power that is unsurpassed, a newspaper that is bound to become the best in Lenawee County, a larger manufacturing interest than any other village or city in the county. During this next summer, a new tannery, a new hotel, a large business block, a beautiful church and several elegant private residences will be built, involving an outlay of from seventy five thousand to one hundred thousand dollars Our trade is likely to be far heavier during the year 1866, than ever before.

We are now on the high road to prosperity and are bound to succeed. Tecumseh, nearly equi-distant from Jackson, Toledo and Detroit is a beautiful home not only for the business man, the mechanic and the manufacturer, but also for the man of leisure, who has retired from the active toils of life. It is a healthy village, a beautiful village and is fast becoming a rich and prosperous village, and hence possesses superior advantages both for the mechanic, the business man and the capitalist.

New Hotel.

We are much gratified to be able to inform our readers that a new Hotel in Tecumseh is a fixed fact. The lottery plan is not to be carried out, but another plan is $4,000 raised by subscription is to be given as a Bonus to Albert Anderson who has agreed to add $4000 to it and erect on his own responsibility a first class Hotel—upon the corner now occupied by Mrs. Bissell's Photograph rooms, east of Wrights Drug Store.

This arrangement has also been productive of still further good. The "uptowns" saw plainly that a Hotel down below the Railroad would injure their trade. So a stock company is now in process of formation to erect a large business Block on the Snell corner where the old Mansion House now stands, and the Block is to be put up we understand during the coming summer.

Coal in Lenawee County.

In boring an artesian well in the town of Seneca in this County at the depth of about sixty feet a hard black substance was struck, very much resembling coal in its nature, and which was found upon trial to burn very much like coal. Whether it is in reality genuine coal, or only a kind of bituminous shale is not positively known. Several of these wells have been sunk in the town of Gorham Ohio just across the state line, and in all of these the same black substance has been found. These wells afford excellent water by boring a depth of sixty or seventy feet, the water in many cases flowing out at the surface of the ground.

☞ It is a fact well known to the majority of people, that Ketcham has the best assortment of Books, Stationery, Pocket Books, and notions usually found in a Book and Stationery store, to be found in Northern Lenawee.

Fashionable Wedding.

One of those few occurences that transpire only once in a generation—a real fashionable wedding—came off in Adrian on Thursday afternoon of last week.—The groom was Mr. E. A. Smith of Prattsville Greene Co. N. Y. and the bride Miss Mary Kent, niece of Chas. F. Hatch Esq. Gen'l. Superintendent of the M. S. R. R. The ceremony was performed in the Episcopal Church in Adrian before a crowded house, and immediately after the Bridal Party took a special train for Detroit.

Spring.

The warm sun, the balmy breeze and the bright skies of spring are again returning and fast breaking old winters' icy bounds.

"See where surly winter passes off,
Far to the north, and call his ruffian blasts.
His blasts obey and quit the howling hill,
The shattered forest and the ravag'd vale;
While softer gales succeed, at whose kind touch
Dissolving snow in livid torrents lost,
The mountains lift their green heads to the sky."

Tecumseh Market.

March 8th, 1866.

White wheat	$1 50 a $1 75
Red do	1 50 a 1 60
Beans	1 00 a 1 50
Corn	40
Clover seed	4 50
Apples green	1 25
Butter per pound	30
Cheese " "	15
Hams " "	15
Lard " "	12
Eggs per doz	15

☞ The Rev. J. W. Ray has received and excepted a call to the pastorate of the Episcopal Society in Coldwater in this State. Mr. Ray has made a host of friends during his short residence among us, and his departure will be regreted by many of our citizens. May the success which has attended him here attend him also in his new home.

☞ The Rev. Henry Safford, Rector of Trinity church at Monroe, will officiate on Sunday next, in St. Peter's church on Exchange with Rev. Mr. Ray.

☞ We notice that A. B. Ward, of the firm of Ward & Strickland, has gone to New York. Look out for cheap goods in a few days.

Dissolution.

The co partnership of Hause & Pelham being dissolved I would respectfully announce to our old patrons that I am at the old dental rooms over Fisher & Bakers Drug Store prepared to do work in the latest approved style. Particular attention given to the preservation of the permanent teeth by filling. All work warranted.

ABE PELHAM.

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Mich., March 8, 1866.

Blair Miss Anna	Boughton O. B.
Cummings F	Dibble Miss Mary
Dotty Miss Caroline	Fassett Henry 2
Fisher Miss Ernalie	Morton Miss C.
Hoxrie Miss P.	Jefferson Wm.
Larnard James E.	Molorton Cha's W.
Millstead G.	Porter Miss Mary A.
Smith Miss Ella	Star Henry
Sonen A.	Smith Amelia
Thompson C.

W. ANDERSON, P. M.

NO ONE KILLED, BUT ONLY ONE MAN HURT,—The attention of buyers of Dry Goods is respectfully called to the fact that. R. C. Moore—who has the largest stock of Dry Goods in Tecumseh—is selling out at GREATLY REDUCED PRICES his Sheetings, Shirtings—all cotton goods, are going off very fast, and those who are in want of these goods had better call early.

Best Prints—Merrimacs 25 cts., all cotton goods in proportion. Beautiful dress goods below original cost. Furs at precisely New York cost. Reader don't fail to call at the store of R. C. Moore.

☞ Good Greeen Tea at one dollar at Gould & Waldo's Drug Store.

Great Decline.

E. H. Hoag is now selling his entire Stock of Boots & Shoes as low as the same goods can be purchased in N. Y. without regard to cost—and will continue to offer great bargains during the next thirty days.

☞ Imperial Chewing Tobacco for 50 cents at Gould & Waldo's Drug Store.

☞ Double Woolen shawls, worth $10 for $5. Dress goods worth from $.75 to $1.50 selling from 50 cents to one dollar at the great closing out sale of Tribou & Bidwell Bro's.

☞ Choicest Toilet Articles at Gould & Waldo's Drug Store.

☞ Every one can buy goods at and below New York cost of Tribou & Bidwell Bro's.—No one should fail to make their purchase before the next thirty days expires.

☞ Choicest French Perfumes at Gould & Waldo's Drug Store.

☞ J. D. Robbins always has a big stock of Yankee Notions, Toy Goods, Pocket Cutlery, Wall Paper &c. When you want any thing in that line cheap, give him a call, he is bound to sell at lowest prices.

☞ Good sugar for one shilling at Gould & Waldo's Drug Store.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

Late reports state that there are a million (!) Fenians ready to march for the liberation of Ireland as soon as the word "go" comes. In the meantime another Fenian rumor is that negotiations are pending with the United States Government for recognition of the million, and that the English Minister, Sir Frederick Bruce, has protested.

The rebel treasure, one hundred thousand dollars in gold, which was sent out of Richmond at the time of the evacuation, has been restored to Richmond banks by order of the President.

The portion of the Fredericksburg battlefield, where the Union dead are buried, is about to be descorated by conversion into a fair ground. The matter has been referred to the President.

A Frenchman, named Madden was arrested in New York on Saturday the 3d, for larceny. In his possession were found letters, written by himself, to Sir Frederick Bruce and others, in which he states that he has a commission from Heaven to kill the President. He is a Madman, indeed.

The Secretary of the Treasury has issued a circular to all officers of customs notifying them that neither Spain nor Peru will be allowed to bring prizes into United States ports, except where they come in as vessels in distress.

A mass convention has been called to meet at Fond du Lac, Wis., on Saturday, March 10, to consult in reference to the projected improvement of the Rock River from its mouth to Lake Horicon, by means of dams and locks, and to open a canal from Lake Horicon to Fond du Lac.

The execution of the guerilla, one-armed Berry, which was to have taken place at Louisville, on the 2d, has been postponed by a fourteen days' respite.

Hon. Perrin M. Smith, Circuit Judge, who died at his residence in Centreville, Michigan, a few days since, made a bequest to Kalamazoo College, of property valued at fifty thousand dollars.

The Legislatures of Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Maine have adopted resolutions indorsing the action of the Union majority in Congress in the matters at issue between it and the President.

The Republican City Convention of Rochester, on the 1st, nominated by acclamation Gen. Grant for Presidency of 1868.

Jeff. Davis' friends assert that "the petticoat story" will be explained by testimony to be brought forward at his trial.

Surratt, the assassin, is believed to be concealed in some Canadian monastery. His sister has entered a convent.

All parties making deposits to the credit of the Treasury of the United States on account of internal revenue, from whatever source, are notified that the correctness of their accounts depends upon their transmitting the original certificate of deposit to the Secretary of the Treasury and the duplicate to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

The Fenian excitement continues. The troops at Windsor, C. W., were out on the 2d, expecting an invasion. The belief is expressed in New York that fighting is now in progress in Ireland, and the O'Mahonyites, in consequence of this belief, are bitter in their expressions against the Senatorial party.

Secretary McCulloch has determined to reduce the clerical force of his department; it is expected that from 500 to 700 clerks will be discharged as rapidly as the interests of the services will permit. The Quartermaster-General's force will also be reduced to a lower footing.

Gen. Pope has formed a plan, and announced it in general orders, to afford travelers across the Plains safety from hostile savages. Forts Ridgely and Abercrombie are points of rendezvous for travelers by the Upper Mississippi and Yellowstone, or the Black Hills and Powder river; Fort Kearney is a rendezvous for trains going to Denver City or Fort Laramie by the Platte river; and Fort Riley for trains by the Smoky Hill or Arkansas river route. At these posts the trains are to be organized and equipped for defence, and no train of less than twenty wagons and thirty-armed men will be permitted to proceed. Like arrangements will be required of trains returning.

The Post's Washington special says: "It is understood that, if the loan bill fails in Congress, Secretary McCulloch will immediately use the power to reduce the currency."

Postmaster-General Denison states that he is in sympathy with the Union party, and desires its success at the coming elections; and asserts that, when such a position as this becomes incompatible with the retention of a seat in the Cabinet, he will vacate his office.

In the New York dry goods market on the 1st, there was a general break-down in prices, and a state of affairs bordering on a semi-panic.

An attempt was made in New York on the night of the 1st, by some incendiaries to destroy a number of frame buildings on 25th street, occupied by some 40 or 50 families of colored people. The buildings were fired twice but extinguished with only trifling damage.

The President, on the 1st, in an interview with a delegation from Baltimore, stated that "His policy was before the country, and would continue to be. He said this to give assurance that the Government would be administered on that policy, and he did not say it menacingly.".....In an interview on the same day, with the delegates of the Iron and Steel Convention, the President urged the importance in a business point of view of "a thorough restoration of the Government and a full and complete reconstruction of the country."

Wm. C. (Colorado) Jewett has issued a call for an independent convention to nominate candidates for President and Vice-President to be held in Philadelphia in December, 1866, and offers to contribute half a million of dollars to promote their election.

Senator Doolittle addressed a meeting of Republicans at New Haven, on the 28th ult., which had been called for the purpose of sustaining President Johnson and indorsing his policy. Mr. Doolittle called upon all Republicans to stand by the President, and contended that Mr. Johnson had carried out every requirement of the Baltimore platform of 1864. He insisted on the immediate admission of loyal members from Tennessee. He opposed forcing negro suffrage on the South, and said Gen. Grant recently assured him that it would result in a war of extermination. He opposed amending the Constitution in any way, maintaining that changing the basis of representation is unnecessary.....Petitions are in circulation in Wisconsin requesting the Legislature to ask Doolittle to resign his position in the Senate.

The news of the suspension of the habeas corpus in Ireland has caused great excitement among the Fenians in this country. O'Mahony has issued an order to the Brotherhood, in which he says: "Call your circles together immediately; send us all the aid in your power at once; and, in God's name, let us start for our destination."

A cattle disease has broken out in Cuba, causing death in twenty-four hours.

The rumors about differences between the President and the members of his Cabinet are set at rest by a dispatch to the effect that the Cabinet is a unit in sustaining the President's policy.

The statement of the public debt for last month shows a decrease of about $2,000,000.

European news is interesting, the British Parliament has passed an act, which has received the royal approval, suspending the writ of habeas corpus in Ireland. Over a hundred persons were arrested in Dublin on the 18th ultimo, suspected of Fenianism, and other arrests were contemplated. The Austrian Emperor is reported to have tendered Maximilian troops for Mexico under certain conditions. Russia and the Pope have broken diplomatic relations.

The New York Herald's Washington correspondent understands that, during the late excursion of Secretary Seward to the West Indies he selected a harbor in the island of St. Thomas to form a rendezvous for our national vessels, and that negotiations with the Danish authorities have resulted in securing us the use of the same, which will be of immense value to our Government in case of a foreign war.

In consequence of the turbulent disposition manifested by some portions of the people in Washington, it has been deemed necessary to put on an extra police force at the Capitol during the hours of Congressional session.

John C. Patterson, a New York internal revenue detective, has been arrested on the charge of levying black mail on several Broadway merchants.

A number of citizens of Boone county, Ky., have been compelled to leave their homes by the rebels and others have been notified to leave. Three of the latter including a postmaster, arrived in Covington They had in their posession the letter of warning sent to them by the rangers.

Jeff Davis' health continues good and he is becoming quite sociable.

John Mitchell writes that the commencement of hostilities by the Fenians may be hourly expected, and that a great battle will probably be fought on St. Patrick's day.

There are now seven bills before Congress for the improvement of Western rivers to benefit navigation, which are referred to their proper committees:

To improve, by canal, the upper and lower rapids of the Mississippi river, offered by Mr. Allison of Iowa. Referred to the Committee on Roads and Canals, and ordered printed.

A bill to improve the navigation of Rock river, and the upper and lower rapids of the Mississippi, offered by Mr. E. B. Washburne. Referred to the Committee on Commerce.

A bill for the protection of the navigation of the Mississippi and its navigable tributaries. Referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads. Presented by Mr. Hogan.

A bill offered by Mr. Price, declaring the bridge over the Mississippi river at Rock Island a post route and a highway. Referred to the Committee on Roads and Canals.

A bill offered by Mr. Harding of Illinois, to improve the navigation of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers and their tributaries. Referred to the Committee on Commerce.

A bill offered by Mr. Donnelly, to improve the navigation of the Mississippi between St. Anthony and Minneapolis, Minn. This calls for a donation of lands. Referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. Hogan offered another bill for the improvement of the Mississippi river. Ordered printed and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

An accident occurred on the Michigan Southern R. R. on the night of the 27th, by which a sleeping car was thrown off an embankment nearly thirty feet high, dragging with it a day car. The occupants of the latter were severely cut and bruised, but no lives lost outright, though six are dangerously injured; while no severe injuries were sustained by those on the sleeping car, they being protected by the cushions and bedding.

Quartermaster Gen. Meigs yesterday dismissed Mrs. Jane G. Swisshelm from a clerkship in his office, for the publication of disrespectful language toward the president. Others were dismissed for similar cause.

Secretary McCulloch has issued to collectors of customs a circular announcing the termination of the reciprocity treaty on March 17.

The "Seneca Falls Company" have struck an oil well in the township of Enniskillen, Canada, that pumps 72 barrels of pure oil per hour, or about 1,728 barrels per day—being the largest producing oil well in the world. Another great strike—the "Green Well"—is also reported in the same township, pumping 50 barrels an hour.

Official news from El Paso, the seat of the National Government of Mexico, has been received here up to the 2d inst. The French column which had started for El Paso returned to Chihuahua, and it was understood that all the French troops at the city of Chihuahua were about leaving that State, of which they hold only the capital.

During the past two weeks, the Government has sold in New York $15,000,000 in gold. The business being entirely transacted through a broker, who is a relative of the Secretary of the Treasury, much dissatisfaction thereat is expressed by the business community.

Great floods have taken place in various parts of the country in consequence of the thaw. They are particularly heavy between Bloomington and Wilmington, Ill., the railroad bridge at Marseilles being washed away, and at Fremont, Ohio, where the Sandusky is swollen beyond all precendent, and the business portion of the town flooded.

The Morris Fire and Inland Insurance Company of New York has failed.

Two boys, George Finch and Thomas Murphy, were drowned in the mill-race at Iresondorff's mill, Indianapolis, on the 28th, while skating on the ice.

The President has had an interview with a Philadelphia Library Committee, and made another speech on his policy.

The Georgia Legislature have passed a resolution unanimously, accepting the benefits of the Agricultural College Land Grant.

Mrs. Jacob M. Howard, wife of Senator Howard, of Michigan, died at Detroit on the 28th. Her disease was consumption.

A Sandwich Island letter announces the sale of the children's missionary ship, the Morning Star, built some years ago from the contributions of Sunday schools in this country. A new craft is to take her place.

At a Fenian meeting at Washington, on the 26th, intimations were given of a plan to seize British Columbia and establish a harbor for privateers on the Pacific coast that will sweep away British commerce.

The Montreal public are in distress, a severe freeze having congealed their aqueduct and shut off their supply of water. The whole military force is set at work chopping out the ice.

A batch of far Western news may be thus briefly compiled: A tremendous snow storm swept over Montana early in the month. At Virginia City the season was mild and pleasant. There have recently been very large seizures of goods under the revenue law by Collector Langford of Montana, and the matter was to be taken to Washington for adjustment.

One of the participants in the express robbery at St. Louis has been arrested, and $8,000 of the money recovered.

Col. Forney gave a party on the night of the 26th, and among those present was President Johnson.

A secret military council of the O'Mahony Fenians has been in session at New York, and an immediate demonstration on Ireland is promised.

The rebel Major Gee is now on trial by a military commission at Raleigh, North Carolina, for cruelty to Union prisoners at the Salisbury prison, of which he was commandant.

The Canada Gazette contains a proclamation warning American fishermen that they cannot use the Canadian shore fisheries after the 17th of March next.

Reverdy Johnson was in Baltimore when he was notified that the vote on the veto was to be taken in the Senate, but immediately put himself en route for the Capital on a locomotive and tender, which performed the distance of forty miles in forty-one minutes.

The Indians in Montana are committing great depredations, and five hundred cavalrymen have been called to move against them.

General Grant was, on the 26th, made the recipient of a gift of $100,000, subscribed among the wealthy men of New York. He left that city for Washington on the same evening. Previous to his departure he had a narrow escape from death, by the discharge of a rifle he was examining. He took hold of it in such a manner that it was accidentally discharged, part of the cartridge entering his left hand and lodging in the palm and thumb, wounding him, report says, seriously. The scene of this unfortunate accident was in the private apartments belonging to General Grant, his aids and four children of the General being present. The ball lodged in the wall of the room directly opposite to where General Grant was standing at the time of the accident. The wound was carefully dressed by a surgeon.

Fred. Douglass, the popular colored orator, states that an attempt was made at Baltimore last Sunday night to murder him.

In the recent message of Governor Orr to the South Carolina Legislature, he says: "So long as the African was a slave, though his moral training was not neglected, it was our policy to prohibit him from learning to read and write. Now it is our policy to enlighten and elevate him, for it makes him more trustworthy, and reduces crime and poverty in our midst."

The Council of Canada has passed an order prohibiting the introduction into that Province, by sea, after the 1st of March next, any cattle, sheep, horses, swine, asses, or mules.

The United States telegraph line is now open from Clinton to Omaha thus spanning the State of Iowa.

The President has gained one more accession to his policy in the United States Senate, in the person of Senator Sherman, of Ohio, who yesterday made a speech in support of the President.

On the 20th Rev. Henry Ward Beecher delivered an address in Brooklyn strongly indorsing Mr. Johnson and his policy.

At a meeting of the friends of the President in New York on Saturday evening the 24th, it was resolved to take measures for the establishment of Andrew Johnson clubs throughout the city and State.

The terrible disease—the "spotted fever"—has broken out in one of the charitable institutions near Washington.

A tornado at Knoxville, Tenn., on the 24th, blew down over thirty houses and did much other damage.

An Anti-monopoly convention was held at Bunker Hill, Ill., a few days since, and much feeling manifested toward the present system of railway charges.

CONGRESSIONAL.

In the Senate on the 26th, speeches were made by Messrs. Sherman and Trumbull on the reconstruction question, the former defending the President.

In the House, on the 26th, a bill was introduced to continue in force the Freedmen's Bureau Act. The Reconstruction Committee reported a constitutional amendment that Congress shall have power to make laws to secure to citizens of each State all the privileges of citizens of the several States, and to all persons in the several States equal protection in the rights of life, liberty, and property.

In the Senate, on the 27th, the militia bill was reported with amendments. A resolution was adopted calling on the President for information in relation to the Provisional Governors of the rebel States. The resolution excluding Southern Congressmen until Congress shall have declared their States entitled to representatives, was taken up, and Mr. Dixon made a speech in defence of the President.

In the House, on the 27th, the proposed constitutional amendment that Congress shall have power to pass all laws necessary to secure to the citizens of each State all the privileges of citizens of the several States was discussed. The Committee of Ways and Means reported a bill regulating trade with the British North American Provinces. A resolution declaring the further employment of French troops in Mexico a violation of Napoleon's pledge in his recent speech to the French Legislature, was referred to the Foreign Affairs Committee.

In the Senate, on the 28th ult., the credentials of "Senator" Perry of South Carolina were presented. The constitutional amendment to reject Southern representatives until Congress shall have declared their States entitled to representation was taken up, and speeches were made thereon by Messrs. Nye and Stewart of Nevada. Mr. Fessenden gave notice that, on the 1st inst., he would ask the Senate to sit until a final disposition was made of the resolution.

In the House, on the 28th ult., the constitutional amendment relative to the protection of the rights of life, liberty, and property, was discussed by Mr. Bingham; and, on the motion of Mr. Conkling, further consideration of the question was postponed till the second Tuesday of April.

In the Senate, on the 1st, a resolution was reported for the disbanding of the militia of the rebel States. The concurrent resolution relative to the reception of Congressmen from the insurgent States was discussed by Messrs. Stewart, Johnson and Wade, and an understanding arrived at that a vote thereon should be taken to-day.

In the House, on the 1st, the Judiciary Committee reported amendments to the Senate bill to protect all persons in the United States in their civil rights and furnish the means of their vindication. Remarks thereon were made by Messrs. Raymond of New York, Rogers of New Jersey, and Cook of Illinois. The miscellaneous appropriation bill was passed.

In the Senate, on the 2d, a resolution was introduced, and ordered printed, instructing inquiry into the expediency of passing a law calling a National Convention to consider amendments to the Constitution. The bill was passed granting lands to aid in the construction of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad,—Springfield, Missouri, being the eastern terminus; the road to be completed by July 4, 1868. The concurrent resolution excluding Southern Congressmen until Congress shall have declared their States entitled to representation, was passed by a vote of 29 to 18,—among the nays being Lane of Kansas, Cowan, Dixon, Doolittle, Morgan, Nesmith, Norton, Stewart, and Van Winkle. During the debate on the resolution, Garrett Davis declared that the President ought forthwith to recognize the opposition members and the Southern claimants as the majority of the Senate.

In the House, on the 2d, the Committee on Roads and Bridges reported a bill for the construction of a ship canal around the Falls of Niagara. It was read twice and recommitted. A petition was received from 568 colored citizens of Georgia, asking for the right of suffrage.

INCIDENTS AND ACCIDENTS.

A family of five persons, named Bradford, were frozen to death on the plains last week.

In A[illegible] on the 1st, Mrs. [illegible]

The subscribers have formed a copartnership in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE AND FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions, [illegible]

complete destruction of the furnace, the death of five men, and the wounding of six others. Eight boilers were in the furnace. One was raised through the building, carried five hundred yards, and lodged in the Pennsylvania canal. The other boilers were scattered in various directions, some of them passing through houses and other buildings. A portion of one boiler was hurled through a room in which two women were lying sick, but missed them. The bridge over the Union canal was carried away. Many of the dwellings in the vicinity were more or less shattered by the fragments, and the whole town shaken.

On the evening of Feb. 26th, at St. Louis, a fire broke out in the steamer Peytona, at the levee, and the flames communicating to the boats Luna, Leviathan and Dictator, all four boats were totally destroyed. Loss about $700,000.

A man named Williams, living in Genesco, Ill., who lately married a widow Snyder, got into a quarrel with his step-son, Mart Snyder, and finally shot him in the most cowardly manner. Williams is in jail.

A young man employed in an engine room in Chicago, was recently caught by the machine, and before he had time to cry for assistance, was whirled with tremendous velocity around the shaft, his body dashing upon the floor and around the machinery for about 30 seconds, the shaft making at the time 150 revolutions per minute. When the engineer at last succeeded in stopping the machine, the unfortunate young man was found mangled in a degree that left scarcely any traces in his appearance of humanity.

At New Buffalo, Mich., on the 20th, the steam boiler in Mr. Ray's saw-mill exploded killing Mr. Ray and a fireman named Wagner, and badly injuring a man named Jones.

About 11 o'clock on the night of the 26th J. H. Kales, a well known lawyer of Chicago, was knocked down in the street by a slung shot and robbed of $1,000 by two ruffians. His wound is not dangerous.

A HANDY ARTICLE.—Adam Shoemaker, a number of years ago, came to Huntingdon Furnace, and seeing there for the first time a pair of snuffers, he asked: "What's them for?" "To snuff the candle." The candle just then needed attention, and Adam with his thumb and finger pinched off the snuff and carefully poked it into the snuffers, saying: "Well, now, them's handy."

GLEANINGS.

—The Buffalo Courier, to illustrate its caution against fright on account of the pork disease, says that a lady in that city, after reading the accounts of the trichina in swine's flesh, last Thursday threw away all her lard, hams, sausage meat, etc., she had laid up for the present year's supply.

—A dress-maker of Fon du Lac, Wisconsin, has fallen heir to a fortune of $1,500,000.

—The population of the city of London is as great as that of the whole of Scotland.

—A man in London kicked his wife to death lately.

—How long did Cain hate his brother? As long as he was Abel.

—It is reported that Maximilian's army numbers 45,000 men, composed as follows: French, 30,000; Austrians, Belgians and Egyptians, 10,000; Mexicans, 5,000. This force has 120 field pieces and included twelve cavalry regiments.

—The State of Rhode Island, by census just taken, contains a population of 184,965, of which 88,263 are males and 96,702 females.

—The wife of Gen. Eli Long, whose trunk rolled off the boiler-deck of a Louisville steamer during the careening caused by a sudden gale, has recovered, in the Superior Court of Cincinnati, $1,380.60 for its loss, being a little over half the amount for which suit was brought.

—There is in New York a gentleman of ample fortune, which he received by inheritance. His wife recently ordered a new carriage, and was anxious that the "family" coat-of-arms should be emblazoned upon its panels. This the husband consented to, and taking a pen, the millionaire drew something resembling a small mound; by it was stuck a manure fork, and upon the fork was perched chanticleer, rampant. "Why, what is this?" asked madam, in amazement. "This," said the man of money, "is our family coat-of-arms. My grandfather made his money carting manure in Brooklyn, and invested it in real estate in New York. Now listen to the explanation of the arms. This mound and fork represent my grandfather's occupation; the cock perched upon the top of the fork represents myself, who have done nothing but flap my wings and crow on that dunghill ever since." The carriage still has plain panels.

—A Directory of Indianapolis has just been completed, and it contains 13,440 names against 7,860 in 1864. From this the Journal figures out that the present population of that city is 53,360.

—The United States is commonly known in China as "the Kingdom of the Flowery Flag."

—Goethe says we should read a few lines of good poetry, hear some good music, and, if possible, say a few words every day, in order to neutralize the debasing effects of ordinary, vulgar life.

—They had a baby convention over in Muscatine the other day. Fifteen mothers, with their little ones were present, and they voted on the question of the prettiest. Each baby got one vote and no more. Every mother voted for her own offspring.

—A joint stock company with $5,000 capital, is being raised in Buffalo, to establish an institution to treat diseases by compressed air.

—In Richmond there has been a grand tumble. A store rented the other day for $1,500 for which 6,000 was refused in November. In the Canadian cities where the provincialism is observed of a wood cut of a house to each notice "To Let," it looks as if the papers of Quebec and Montreal were trying their hands at illustrations of their respective cities in John Phœnix style.

—The University of Michigan is now the largest University in this country, containing 1,051 students, divided as follows; Medical department, 436; law, 300; literary, 265. Three new assistant professors have been appointed, one in each department. The institution is well endowed and tuition is free.

—Pittsfield, Mass., is having a violent attack of mad dog fever. Thirty persons were bitten last Thursday, and the city authorities have ordered the immediate killing of all unlicensed dogs, and the chaining of all the other, as precautionary measures.

—New Orleans now has a population larger by sixty thousand than ever before. Galveston and other Texan cities are full to overflowing; and the same is said of Memphis, Mobile, Montgomery, Atlanta, and all towns of the southwest.

The editor of the Muscatine Journal writes "shown a bug about the size and color of a bean, which was taken from the heart of a potato, that article not seeming in any way decomposed or effected by any entomological tenant."

—In Liverpool, a woman of sixty, the mother of nine children, determined to marry a young man of twenty-four. Her children played her a scurvey trick. Just before the wedding the graceless scamps got a hearse and coffin to the house with an order for her dead body. A sensation was of course created, but the old lady was married nevertheless.

—Not long since some person threw a mitred Pharaoh's serpent into the bear pit in the Zoological Gardens, in the Jardin des Plantes, Paris. The bear attacked the serpent and set his own coat on fire. A plunge in an adjoining tank extinguished the flames, but not until the animal had sustained serious injuries.

—Mr. C. F. Brough skated thirteen miles in forty-five minutes, at Dubuque, a few days ago.

—A Justice of the Peace in Nevada agreed to try a case in which a beef was in dispute and to take the tripe for his fees. While holding court he hung the fees on a nail outside of the cabin, and during his charge to the jury one of the lawyers stole them!

—The people of Philadelphia are still considerably agitated by the communication sent to the Legislature by a trustworthy physician, to the effect that the cattle disease is raging in the adjoining county of Montgomery. Great efforts appear to have been taken to keep the matter secret, although the disease has been raging nearly twelve months. The doctor asserts that many of the deceased cattle have been sold to drovers and farmers of Pennsylvania and the neighboring States, and that the flesh of the diseased animals has been sold to and consumed by the Philadelphians.

—A rich and generous man at Salem, Mass., invited all his children to dinner the other day, and each of his sons and daughters-in-law found a check for $5,000 when the plates were turned. The grandchildren were remembered also, and the presents which he made amounted to about $40,000.

—A boy sixteen years old employed in a Boston insurance office lately forged the President's name on a $1,000 check, got the money, and went to New York on a lark. His good time was soon terminated by his arrest.

—It appears by official returns, that in the State of New York there are over 70,000 children between the ages of five and twenty-one years who do not attend any school.

—A widow in England with two children has recovered $35,000 from a railroad, for killing her husband.

—In the Capitol at Washington are ten and a half acres of halls, galleries, rotundas, libraries, ante-rooms and corridors The man who walks through each one from end to end, will have traveled some miles.

—The Manchester Mirror tells of two men who found a wallet with $600 in it and papers showing who was the owner. The finders started after the loser and hunted him half over the city until they found him and restored the property. He most generously paid the men twenty-five cents in currency.

—Southern Illinois came to be called Egypt, says an old resident of that section in this wise: In the early settlement of the Sangany country as it was called before the counties of Sangamon and Greene were organized, there were several families who emigrated to these counties from St. Clair. Among the number there was an old man named Levi Day. Every spring he returned, in company with several others, to this country to get seed corn. For three or four years after those counties were settled the insects and frost so injured the corn that it would not answer for seed. The third year that Levi Day came down he stopped at my father's house over night to get his seed corn. The same night Gov. Ford, John Mears, and David Blackwell stopped at my father's house. During the evening Mr. Day remarked that he had come down to Egypt to buy corn every year. That idea so pleased Ford and Blackwell that they published it, and Southern Illinois has gone by the name of Egypt ever since.

—At a bigamy suit recently instituted against a young woman in England, it turned out that one of her husbands was named Little and the other Long. One of our funny contributors, on hearing of the case, said he could imagine the woman addressing her brace of husbands thus: "Love me Little—love me Long."

—The following capital letters are said to be inscribed in some old church in Westminster county, New York, under the Decalogue. Put the letter E among them and you get the meaning: P, R, S, V, R, Y, P, R, F, C, T, M, N, V, R, K, P, T, H, S, P, R, C, P, T, S, T, N.

New Book.

Just published, a book containing valuable information for the people—among other things the Gold Mines of Montana, One of the Institutions of New York, Comparative Premium on Gold in Richmond and New York during the War, How to make Grecian Oil Paintings, Baxter's celebrated Oil Prints, Economy in a Family, Refinement in our homes, Popular names of States, Our brains are seventy year clocks, What one dollar may do, He who perseveres wins, How any one may secure a House and Lot in Chicago, Public debts of the United States and other countries and per capita tax, Guides to the City of Chicago, and a complete descriptive list of all the prizes to be given away by the Great National Gift Concert, May 31, 1866, and a hundred other things worth knowing. This valuable little book will be sent free of charge to anyone sending their full address with P. O. stamp inclosed to pre-pay the postage. Address M. O'Brien, 122 Dearborn street, Chicago, Illinois.

We have before us the announcement of a new Gift Concert, under the management of Martin O'Brien, 122 Dearborn street, which offers greater advantages to subscribers than any other we have seen. He has undertaken the matter with the determination of making it a creditable affair, and he will do so. His well known business reputation gives him the confidence of the public, who may rely upon his carrying out just what he proposes. If we are to have enterprises of this kind, we are glad to see them in the hands of men of reliable integrity.—Chicago Republican.

The "Columbian" Gin.

This Gin is the purest and very best article ever offered to the public. It is the distillation of the best American malt spirits and Italian juniper berries. Those who find a diuretic stimulant necessary, should never be without it.

The proprietors of the Columbian Gin do not undertake to advertise it as a quack medicine; yet they feel guaranteed in saying that for those requiring a pure liquor, no better can be procured.

Imported gins, etc., are now nearly out of the question, on account of the extraordinary high import duties imposed upon them—which are always payable in gold—so that a home-made article, equal in all respects to any imported, should receive the attention of consumers.

Doctor Blaney, the well-known chemist of Chicago, says: "It's the very best article, both as to quality "and strength of flavor, that I have ever tested."

For sale by all respectable druggists and liquor dealers in the United States.

W. F. SHUFELDT & CO.,
Sole Distillers and Proprietors,
40 S. Water St., Chicago.

FROM JUDSON K. TAYLOR, M. D., Analytical Chemist, 93 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.

DR. SWAIN:—I have subjected to a thorough chemical analysis your Bourbon Bitters and find them composed of pure whisky with highly valued vegetable extracts free from any mineral substance, and containing no impure or injurious ingredients, and in all respects superior in standard of comparison to any other Stomach Bitters examined, I can with great confidence recommend them to the public.

☞ Send to our friend N. F. Merrill's for Kerosene Oils, Lamps, Lanterns, Chandeliers, Glassware, etc., 71 and 73 Randolph street, Chicago.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, March 3.

COTTON—Middling	$	@	.44
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	8.35	@	8.50
WHEAT—No. 1. Mil. new	1.74	@	1.75
BARLEY		@	1.15
CORN—Sound Western	.79	@	.80
OATS—Dull	.54	@
PETROLEUM—Crude	.28	@	.29
PORK—Mess new		@	28.00
BEEF HAMS	40.00	@	41.00
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	12.00	@	17.00
HOGS—medium to heavy, dressed	.12¼	@	.12¾
DRY GOODS—Merrimacs		@	.33
Bleached Sheetings—N. Y. Mills		@	.46
Brown Sheetings—Appleton A		@	.27
Delaines—Manchester		@	.22
Denims—Amoskeag	.55	@	—
GOLD—1.33⅝.

CHICAGO, March 5, 1866.

BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$100.00	@	150.00
BEEVES—Stock to prime	$ 4.00	@	$ 6.50
BEANS	.75	@	1.25
BRAN	6.50	@	7.00
BUTTER	.16	@	.20
CHEESE—Western	.17	@	.19
COFFEE—Rio	.29	@	.32
Java	.44	@	.45
EGGS	.26	@	.30
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	3.00	@	4.50
Malaga Lemons	12.00	@	13.00
Dried N. Y. Apples	.15	@	.16
" Peaches	.30	@	.32
Raisins, M. R	5.15	@	5.30
FLOUR—Winter White	9.00	@	12.00
Spring Extra	6.70	@	7.37
Buckwheat per bbl		@	5.50
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	10.25	@	10.75
Whitefish, " "	8.00	@	8.25
Codfish, per hundred	9.00	@	11.00
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.42	@	.42½
Oats "	.24	@	.24½
Rye	.49	@	.50
Wheat—Winter		@
Spring, No. 1	1.25	@	1.27
HIGHWINES	2.22	@	2.23
HOGS—Dressed Middling to prime	10.75	@	11.00
Live	9.30	@	9.50
LARD	.17¾	@	.18
PORK—Mess	26.00	@	26.25
POTATOES	.55	@	.65
SHEEP—First and second class	4.00	@	5.50
SUGARS—Cuba	.13¼	@	.15½
New York Refined	.18¼	@	.18½
White A	.17¼	@	.17½
White B	.16¾	@	.16¾
Yellow C	.15	@	.15¾
SEEDS—Timothy, ℔ bag	3.00	@	3.15
Clover	6.50	@	8.75
SALT—Fine	2.15	@	2.25
Coarse		@	2.00

The Little Corporal,

Is acknowledged by the leading papers to be the Best Children's Paper in America!

Published Monthly, at One Dollar a Year, (ten cents for sample copy) by

ALFRED L. SEWELL,
Chicago, Illinois.
Circulars sent free.

New Advertisements.

SPRING TRADE!

Cash House! Immense Stock!

N. F. MERRILL,
Wholesale Dealer in

Kerosene Lamps.
Kerosene Lanterns.
Kerosene Chandeliers.
Kerosene Chimneys.
Kerosene Burners.
Kerosene Wicks.
Kerosene Cooking Lamps.

and Coal Oil Goods of every Description.

Hotel & Table Glassware.

A local Agent wanted in every town in the North West, for Fish's new Patent Kerosene Cooking Lamps.

Orders from the trade solicited and promptly filled.

71 and 73 Randolph Street, Chicago.
P. O. Box 5856.

NATIONAL

GRAND GIFT

CONCERT!

-AT-

Chicago, May 31st, 1866.

25,000 GIFTS!

FIRST GIFT:

$10,000

IN GREENBACKS.

Three Gifts, 7-30 U. S. Bonds, Each,

ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS

FIFTH GIFT:

HOUSE & LOT

IN CHICAGO, VALUED AT

$5,000.

SIX GIFTS,

SIX GRAND PIANOS!

Gold Lever Watches,

ETC., ETC., ETC.

Only 100,000 Tickets

Will be Sold, thus Giving

ONE CHANCE IN FOUR.

TICKETS ONLY $1.00.

Agents wanted in every town.
For full List of Gifts, send stamp for Large Catalogue, and address all Orders to

M. O'BRIEN,
122 Dearborn St., Chicago.

"Root Hog, and Die!"

Scientific investigation in Europe and America show that the common red "angle" worm is infested with Trichina, and that Hogs become infected therefrom, as they devour the worms greedily. BALDWIN'S ANIMAL SHEARS severs the cartilledge of the hog's nose, which prevents it rooting up the worm, thereby preventing Trichina; also, in stopping the Hog's labor, you make better and more pork off the same amount of feed. The Shears are also useful to the Stock or Sheep Raiser, and the Horticulturist. Samples with instructions for use, sent on receipt of price, $5. Agents wanted—Farmers preferred—in every section which is unoccupied. A farmer taking his town, can clear $200 per year without hindrance to his farm-work. For particulars, address, with stamp, CARROLL & CO., ROOM No. 15 McCORMICK'S BUILDING, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

DR. SWAIN'S

BOURBON BITTERS.

A Healthy Tonic, Gentle Stimulant, and Unequaled Morning Appetizer, prepared in

RIPE OLD BOURBON WHISKEY.

FREE FROM GRAIN OIL,

With Flowers, Buds and Barks of the Highest Medicinal Virtue.

By increasing the appetite, assisting digestion, regulating the bowels, and giving tone to the system, they impart strength and vigor to the body and cheerfulness to the mind.

☞ If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters, have him send for them.

☞ Remember the name, and take no other.

For sale by leading Druggists and Grocers everywhere.

C. H. SWAIN,
Proprietor, 34 S. Water St., Chicago.

FAIRBANKS'

STANDARD SCALES,
OF ALL KINDS.
Fairbanks, Greenleaf & Co.
No. 112 LAKE STREET

THE TRICHINA.

Alarming Microscopic Revelations.

BY DR. A. W. FLORA, CHICAGO.

The trichina spiralis is a microscopic animal belonging to the family of parasites, and, being found within the body, is called an entozoon.

It was first discovered in the year 1832, but was not scientifically described until 1835, when Prof. Richard Owen, the eminent zoologist, gave to the world its natural history. It was named the trichina spiralis from its resemblance to a fine hair coiled upon itself, like a watch spring. During that year six persons were admitted to the London hospitals, who were the subjects of trichina poisoning. Since that time the leading medical men have been on the look-out for this parasite, and several cases have been observed and fully described. This parasite is only visible to the naked eye when inclosed in its chalky capsule. These appear as small white points, when a section of muscle is examined. This appearance is shown in the engraving below:

MUSCULAR TISSUE, WITH TRICHINÆ ENCAPSULED, AS SEEN BY THE NAKED EYE.

MUSCULAR TISSUE, WITH ENCAPSULED TRICHINÆ, MAGNIFIED FIFTY DIAMETERS.

Since the investigations of Owen, many eminent German physicians and men of science have given attention to the subject, among whom we find Virchow, Herbst, Kuchenmeister, Zenker, Bischoff, and, more recently, Prof. Leukhardt, of the university of Giesen, who undertook a series of scientific experiments with this parasite, and to his extended and systematic observations we are indebted for the very accurate knowledge we possess of this animal. By introducing it into the stomach of the dog, cat, rabbit, fowl, dove and crow, he was enabled to observe all the phenomena of the trichina disease. Out of nine dogs thus treated, seven died, and the muscles were afterward found alive with free trichina. Of the other animals subjected to similar experiments, more than one-half died. The impression pretty generally prevails that the fowl is not subject to this disease, the trituration or grinding in the gizzard being sufficint to destroy the animal. The reverse of this is most probably true, as the grinding process only aids the solvent power of the gastric fluid in dissolving the calcareous shell.

The trichina is most usually introduced into the stomach of man in its capsule, though it is possible for it to find its way there in the free state. This calcareous shell is dissolved by the acid juices of the stomach, and the parasites thus set free rapidly acquire their growth and sexual power, and copulation and reproduction are perfected within one week after their introduction into the alimentary canal. The female brings forth from 60 to 100 live trichinæ.

FULL GROWN MALE AND FEMALE TRICHINA, MAGNIFIED TWO HUNDRED DIAMETERS.

1. Full-grown male trichina.
2. Full grown female—in the act of exruding the young alive—magnified 200 diameters.

The young swarm immediately commence their work of destruction by piercing the coats of the stomach and intestines. It is not definitely known how long the parent trichinæ live after producing the new swarm, but it is certain that they never leave the stomach and alimentary canal, and probably die within a fortnight. The instinct of the young trichinæ impels them to seek the fibre of the voluntary muscles, which is known to the anatomist as the striated muscular fibre. Below will be seen the young in the act of devouring the muscular tissue:

TRICHINÆ IN A FREE STATE, MAGNIFIED FIFTY DIAMETERS.

TRICHINÆ ELABORATING THEIR CAPSULES, MAGNIFIED FIFTY DIAMETERS.

The brain, lungs and liver they avoid, and but a single trichina has been found in the substance of the heart. The wonderful instinct of this parasite is equal to that shown by the larva of the ichneumon fly, which is hatched in the body of the caterpillar and of her grubs, and there devours the cellular and muscular tissue, but carefully avoids the nervous and circulatory systems which are essential to life. In this way the fable of Prometheus is realized, the poor "worm" eating and growing, only to be continually consumed.

In order to reach the muscles, the coats of the stomach and intestines must first be pierced, and this boring operation gives rise to a train of symptoms which closely resemble acute diarrhœa and dysentery, as bloody stools frequently occur. Ulceration and perforation of the bowels are frequent results of this inflammation. When the serous membrane lining the abdominal walls is attacked, the symptoms of peritonitis are superadded. This inflammation of the serous membrane, if it does not prove fatal, leaves the intestines firmly glued together. If the agonized patient should live through these primary acute forms of disease, a new train of symptoms, closely resembling typhus or septic fever, will be ushered in. To diarrhœa, dysentery and peritonitis, will be added intense pain in the muscles, great nervous irritability from prostration, spasm of the muscles, and finally paralysis and death. The muscles of the abdomen, of course, are first attacked, but the trichinæ very soon find their way to those of the chest and anterior portion of the neck, and by degrees reach the muscles of the back and extremities.

The track of the trichina may be seen as indicated in the last engraving by the white line or band, which was once a striped muscular fibre, but which is now only "detritus," or digested muscular tissue, in which the full-grown larva may be seen elaborating its shell, preparatory to entering the pupa or quiescent state. In this stony prison-house the self-immured trichina remains, without doubt, so long as the animal into whose body it has found its way continues to live, which may be decades of years. In this state they are sexless, and the further propagation of the species seems to depend solely upon the accidental circumstance of this parasite finding its way into the stomach of some living animal, where it may develop its sexual characteristics, and multiply its species.

In the transformations of this parasitic animal may be seen many analogies to insect life. The period of wandering and feeding is the "larva" stage. The encapsuled trichina is the "pupa" or "chrysalis," in which state it remains until released in the manner already described. The muscles upon which this animal has fed become useless in proportion to the number of ultimate fibres which are destroyed. When it is remembered that a single ounce of flesh may contain trichina enough to produce in eight days 3,000,000 young, it is not surprising that the entire substance of the abdominal muscles should be sometimes found consumed.

The symptoms progress, and the terrible fatality of the disease is well exemplified in the history of the Hettstadt tragedy, which is taken from a British medical journal:

"This village is situated near the Hartz mountains, in Germany. An annual festival was celebrated there some two years since, and 103 persons sat down to a dinner, the third course consisting of rostewurste and gemuse, (sausage and vegetables). The sausage had been prepared beforehand for this special occasion. The steward who had been commissioned to furnish the pig for this purpose, gave the butcher a lean, ill conditioned one, instead of the thrifty one which had been bargained for. The day after the festival, several persons who had participated in the dinner were attacked with pain and irritation of the intestines, with loss of appetite, fever and great prostration. The number increased from day to day, and an epidemic of typhus or septic fever was apprehended, as the symptoms began to assume that character. However, as the disease progressed, the symptoms assumed a different type, and to diarrhœa, dysentery and fever, were added peritinitis, circumscribed pneumonia and paralysis of the abdominal and intercostal muscles with those of the neck. Then the typhus theory was abandoned, and some unknown poison was assumed to be at the bottom of it. Under this conviction, every article of food and material used in connection with the dinner was rightly examined. By this time the trichinæ had reached the muscles of the calf of the leg in some of the victims, and Zenker's description of the disease was called to mind. The remnants of the sausage were examined, and found to be literally 'swarming' with trichinæ. Portions of muscle from the calf of the leg of the affected ones were examined under the microscope, and were found literally full of free trichina. These were the progeny of the encapsuled ones which had escaped the smoking and frying process to which the sausage had been subjected.

"No less than 83 of the above-mentioned number died within a few weeks, and the surviving 20 at last accounts were still lingering in agony, and apprehensive of a similar fate.

"This awful catastrophe at Hettstadt awakened sympathy and fear throughout all Germany, and many eminent medical men were consulted in the interest of the sufferers, but none could bring relief or cure. With an obstinacy unsurpassed by any other disease, trichinasis surely carried its victims to the grave.

"Many vermifuges were employed with the hope of removing the parasites still in the alimentary canal. Picric acid was employed, until its effects seemed as dangerous as the disease itself. An examination of the bodies after death showed the trichinæ to have been unaffected by any of the remedies employed. The terrible conviction now fastened itself upon the minds of all who witnessed these scenes that a person afflicted with this parasite was doomed to die the slow death of exhaustion from nervous irritation, fever and paralysis of all the voluntary muscles."

Since the Hettstadt tragedy, the public mind in Germany has had little rest from apprehension of this terrible scourge. A wholesale poisoning soon after occurred in Offenbach, a manufacturing town in Hesse-Darmstadt. Upwards of 20 persons were poisoned by eating trichinous pork, several of whom have died. But Hettstadt, with its tragedy and appalling concomitants, is eclipsed by the late visitation at Hedersleben, another German village, where 300 inhabitants partook of trichinous pork, and at this writing full 100 are in their graves. The butcher slaughtered four pigs, which were sold to the villagers. The butcher and his wife, partaking of the same meat, became themselves the earliest victims. A very injudicious custom seems to have obtained in this village, as well as in many other parts of Germany, namely: that of eating pork in a raw state, cut fine and spread upon bread. Although the scenes at Hettstadt were still fresh in the public mind, and the very uniform character which the symptoms always present was well understood by the medical profession generally, yet the people, through fear and ignorance, fled from what they believed a visitation of cholera. The consequences can easily be imagined. Many were seized with the disease, and died on the highways. The irritation of the stomach, vomiting and diarrhœa, might well be taken for the premonitory symptoms of the above disease by the mass of the people. Indeed, the village doctor was himself misled, as he treated the sufferers with opium and astringents. This treatment was evidently intended to control the diarrhœa; but it proved fatal to the patients, by confining the parasites in the stomach and alimentary canal until they had an oportunity to pierce through the walls. Out of 28 persons treated in this manner, 27 died. One very remarkable fact has been noted in connection with the epidemic at Hedersleben, namely: that as yet no children have died of the disease, all having made a good recovery.

The recent developments in Germany will lead many to inquire anxiously into the history of trichina in our own country. It has been known for some years among medical men that the encapsuled trichina was occasionally found in the muscles of the human body after death, but until very recently no authenticated cases have been reported where death was produced by the disease in question.

In the American Medical Times of February 20, 1864, a case is reported by Dr. Schnetter, in which a whole family was poisoned by eating trichinous pork. The father was the only one in whom the poison proved fatal. This case occurred in New York city. The Buffalo Medical Journal contains the account of two fatal cases occurring in the western part of the State. A man and his wife residing in the village of Cheektowaga were found to be affected by an "apparently acute rheumatism, of a peculiar character." Dr. Krombein, the attending physician, suspected trichina, and, the patients having shortly died, a microscopic examination was instituted by Drs. Krombein and Homberger, which demonstrated the existence of the parasite in great numbers. The specimens of muscle taken from the bodies of the dead, together with a remnant of the sausages of which they had partaken, were subsequently examined by Dr. J. Lathrop and Prof. George Hadley under the microscope, and trichina found in both. In the human muscle they were free; in the sausage, encysted. Other members of the family were effected, but probably did not eat enough to prove fatal.

All the evidence thus far adduced goes to show that the more the cooking the milder the disease. Those cases in which the pork was eaten raw were of the most violent character, and invariably proved fatal. When it is remembered that this parasite in its capsule has been subjected to a degree of heat little below the boiling point, without destroying its vitality, the importance of thorough cooking becomes apparent to the lover of swine flesh.

In examining pork for trichina, the capsules may sometimes be seen by the naked eye under the tongue; but by far the safer plan is to have a magnifying glass of moderate power—say from 10 to 25 diameters—which reveal the animal, whether it be free or encysted.

It is well known that the common red "earthworm" or "angle worm," is infested with trichina, and in this way fowls and angling may become the subjects of the disease, as they devour the worm greedily. An opinion obtains with many persons that what is known as "measly pork" is more liable to be infected with trichina than any other. What facts there are to sustain this belief we are not acquainted with, but the "measles" in the hog is genuine scrofula, and it is a significant fact that the disease just mentioned should have derived its name from scrofa, a sow. The ancients, however wild or erroneous may have been their theories, were nevertheless close and accurate observers of facts. In this way the name of the disease is made to indicate its origin. It is safe to conclude that more disease and deaths are caused by eating pork without trichina than with them. To those who are determined to eat swine flesh in spite of the trichina and the law of Moses, we would give some advice in regard to the manner of rearing them. "As filthy as a hog," is common comparison; yet the pig is sometimes libeled. He has his likes and dislikes, and though he seeks his food among verdure or in the filthy gutter, yet he will not eat unsound or unhealthy food. If he is shut up in a close pen, and made to swim in his own excrements, he certainly is not responsible for his dirty plight. The fact is now pretty well understood in Germany that the pigs which have been infested with trichina were brought up in this manner, and gave evidence of bad health before they were slaughtered.

While engaged in penning this article reports are coming to us daily from different parts of the country of the discovery of trichinous pork, and at Detroit the death of a German lady is reported in whose body this parasite was found. Thorough examination and thorough cooking have been insisted upon in this article as preventives of trichina disease; but the only infallible one is to obey the Jewish law, and eat no pork.

A Reminiscence of the Kearsarge and Alabama Fight.

A writer in the Cornhill Magazine, who has had opportunities of conversation with some of Semmes' old crew, gives the following interesting reminiscense of the fight between the Alabama and Kearsarge, from which it appears that the rebels were left to drown when the pirate sunk:

"I thought you had been in the Confederate navy?" "I was," said Aleck; "I was with Semmes everywhere he went. I was in the naval brigade and blockade running, and on the Alabama all the while he commanded her." "But not when she sank, I suppose," I rejoined. "Well, I was, and was picked up with him by the Deerhound." "It was a pretty sharp fight, was'nt it?" I suggestingly asked. "It was that," replied Aleck, but he did'nt care about enlarging. "I suppose it was the 11-inch shells that did her business?" "Oh, no," said he, coming to a kind of confessional, "we never had any chance; we had no gunners to compare with the Kearsarge's. Our gunners fired by routine, and when they had the gun loaded, fired it off blind. They never changed the elevation of their guns all through the fight, and the Kearsarge was working up to us all the while, taking advantage of every time she was hid by smoke to work a little nearer, and then her gunners took aim for every shot." "Then it isn't true that the Alabama tried to board the Kearsarge?" "No, sir, she did her best to get away from her from the time the fight commenced. We knew well that if we got in range of her Dahlgren howitzers she would sink us in ten minutes."

"But," I asked, "don't you believe that Semmes supposed he would whip the Kearsarge when he went out to fight her?" "No; he was bullied into it, and took good care to leave all his valuables on shore, and had a life preserver on through the fight. I saw him put it on, and I thought if it was wise in him it wouldn't be foolish in me, and I put one on too. When Semmes saw that the ship was going down he told us all to swim who could, and was one of the first to jump into the water, and we all made for the Deerhound. I was a long way ahead of Semmes, and when I came up to the Deerhound's boat they asked me if I was Semmes before they would take me in. I said I wasn't, and then they asked me what I was on the Alabama. Said I, "No matter what I was on the Alabama, I shall be a dead man soon if you don't take me in. They asked me again if I was an officer or a seaman, and wouldn't take me in until I told them that I was an officer." "But," said I, "did they actually refuse to pick up common seamen and leave them to drown?" "They did that," replied he wrathfully, and probably not very correctly; "and as soon as they had Semmes on board they made tracks as fast as they knew how, and left everybody else to drown or to be picked up by the Kearsarge."

How a Man Freezes to Death.

M. Pouchet lately read an interesting paper on this subject before the French academy of science; the author's inferences are as follows:

1. That the first phenomenon produced by cold is a contraction of the capillary vessels to such an extent that a globule of blood cannot enter; these vessels, therefore, remain completely empty.

2. The second phenomenon is an alteration of the blood globules which amounts to their complete disorganization.

3. Every animal completely frozen is absolutely dead, and no power can re animate it.

4. When only a part is frozen, that part is destroyed by gangrene.

5. If the part frozen is not extensive, and only a few disorganized blood globules pass into circulation, the animal may recover.

6. But if, on the contrary, the frozen part is of considerable extent, then the mass of altered globules brought into the circulation when the part is thawed, rapidly kills the animal.

7. For this reason a half frozen animal may live a long time if maintained in the condition, since the altered globules do not get into the circulation; but it expires rapidly as soon as the frozen part is thawed.

8. In all cases of congelation, death is due to the alteration of the blood globules, and not to any effect on the nervous system.

9. It results from these facts that the less rapidly a frozen part is thawed, the more slowly the altered globules find their way into the circulation, and the greater the chances of the recovery of the animal.

Miscellany.

LINES

KIMPOSED A BORED OF A CALIFORNY MALE STEEMER.

BY H. H. BROWNELL.

Wall! of all the cussed kinveyances,
Of this isn't about the worst!
Nothin but rockin and rollin
And pitchin, from the very fust—
The ingine a groanin, and the biler
Lyable enny minnit to bust.

Fust wun side, dum it, and then tuther?
Till Ime dogged of I no wot to du—
Rock away, yu darned old kradle!
I was a baby wen I got inter you!

None on em seems to keer 5¼ cents
How bad a feller may feel,
Nur to talk to him—not even the saler
Foolin away his time on a wheel.

Thar's the capting! aint it prevokin
To see that critter, all threw the trip,
Continoually drinkin and smokin,
Wen he orter be a mindin on his ship.

It's cruel to aggravate a body,
And is ainst manners, I think,
To set thar likin down big toddy,
And never askin nary parsinger to drink.

And the purser, all he keers for,
Is fur to hev a time with his pals.
I say, darn seech a pusser! jest heer him
Flirtin and sarrin on among the gals!

And wen he's tired o' that, wot follers?
In his litle cabbing thar he sets
Like a spyder, among berrils o' dollers—
Enuf to pay a feller's dets.

That's all they keers for parsingers,
Is, to git the two-hundred
'N fifty dolers out of his pockit inter theirn,
And then he may go to thunder.

Ef a feller's driv to distraxion
In a blo, and axes wot to du,
He cant git no sort o' sattisfaxion
Out o' none on em—capting, mait, nur crew.

Wun day I clim inter their blamed riggin,
Jest to see wot thar wos, and in hopes
To kepe shet of em wun spell—but dog it!
I see 2 on em comin up the ropes.

Wun on em ketched me and hilt hold on me,
While tother misrable cuss
Tide me up with a nasty, sticky clothe-line,
Smellin o' tar or sumthin wuss.

Thar thay kep me—darn their picturs!
And nobody done nothin but larf,
Till I'd forkt out fur a bottle o' brandy—
It come to $2½.

That's the last $2½
They'll ever git out o' me,
Fur I'm travvil in a durned top-waggi n,
Afore I'm be ketched agin to sea.

IN JEOPARDY.

I'M a bricklayer, I am; and, what's more, down in the country, where people ain't so particular about keeping trades distinct as they are in the great towns. This may be seen any day in a general shop, where, as one might say, you can get anything, from half a quartern of butter up to a horn lantern; and down again to a hundred of short cut brads—well, down in the country I've done a bit of a job now and then as a mason; and not so badly, neither, I should suppose, for I got pretty well paid considering, and didn't hear more than the usual amount of growlin' arter it was done—which is saying a deal. Ours ain't the most agreeable of lives, and if it warn't for recollecting a little about the dignity of labor, and suchlike, one would often grumble more than one does.

Some time ago, it don't matter to you, nor me, nor yet anybody else, just when it was, work was precious slack down our way—all things considered, I ain't a-going to tell you where our way is. A day's work a week had been all I'd been able to get for quite two month; so Mary, that's my wife used to pinch and screw, and keep on squeezing shilling arter shilling out of the long stocking, till at last it got so light, that one morning she lets it fall upon the table, where, instead of coming down with a good hearty spang, it fell softly and jest like a piece of cotton that was empty. And then, poor lass, she hangs on to my neck, and burst out a-crying that pitiful, that I'm blest if I didn't want my nose blowing every quarter of a minute. I hadn't minded the screwing and pinching, not a bit of it. First week we went without our puddings. Well, that wasn't much. Second week we stopped my half-pints o' beer. Third week I put my pipe out. Mary kep on saying that things must look up soon, and then I should have an ounce of the best to make up for it. But things didn't look up; and, in spite of all the screwing, we got down to the bottom of the stocking, as I said jest now.

I hadn't much cared for the pinching, but it was my poor lass as got pinched the most, and she was a-getting paler and thinner every day, till I couldn't abear to see it. I run out o' the house, and down to Jenkins's yard, where I'd been at work last. I soon found Jenkins; and I says to him, "Governor," I says, "this won't do; a man can't live upon wind."

"True for you, Bill Stock," he says.

"And a man can't keep his wife upon wind," I says.

"Right you are, Bill," he says; and he went on and spoke as fair as a man could speak; and said he hadn't a job he could put me on, or he would have done it in a minute, "I'm werry sorry, Bill," he says, "but if times don't mend, I tell you what I'm a-going to do."

"What's that?" I says.

"Go up to London," he says; "and if I was a young man like you, I wouldn't stop starving down here, when they're giving first-class wages up there, and when there's building going on all round, as thick as thick, and good big jobs too: hotels and railways, and bridges, and all sorts."

I faces round sharp, and walks off home: for when a feller's hungry and close up, it lays hold on his temper as well as his stummick, more especially when there's somebody belonging to him in the same fix. So I walks off home, where I finds Mary a-lookin' werry red-eyed; and I makes no more ado, but I gets my pipe, and empties the bit o' dust there was in the bottom o' the jar into it, lights up, and sits down aside of Mary, and puts my arm round her jest as I used in old courting times; and then begins smoking an' thinking. Werry slow as to the fust, and werry fast as to the second; as smokin' cost money, and the dust was dry; whereas thinking came cheap jest then,—and it's sur-prising how yer can think on an empty inside. I suppose it is because there's plenty o' room for the thoughts to work in.

Well, I hadn't been settin' above a minute like this, when my lass lays her head on my shoulder, and though she wouldn't let me see it, I knowed she was a-giving way; but I didn't take no notice. Perhaps I held her a little bit tighter; and there I sat thinking, and watching the thin smoke, till I could see buildings, and scaffolds, and heaps o' bricks, and blocks o' stone, and could almost hear the ring o' the trowels, and the "sar-jar" o' the big stone saws; and there was the men a-running up and down the ladders, and the gangers a giving their orders, and all seemed so plain, that I began to grow warm. And I keeps on smoking till it seemed as though I was one of a great crowd o' men standing round a little square wooden office place, and being called in one at a time; and there I could see them a takin' their six-and-thirty shillings and two pounds apiece, as fast as the clerk could book it. And all at once it seemed to fade away like a fog in the sun; and I kep' on drawing; but nothing come, and I found as my pipe was out, and there was nothing left to light agen. So I knocks the ashes out,—what there was on 'em,—and then I breaks the pipe up, bit by bit, and puts all the pieces in my pocket,—right-hand trowsers-pocket.

"What for?" says you.

Nothin' at all, as I knows on; but that's what I did; and I am a-telling you what happened. Perhaps it was because I felt uncomfortable with nothing to rattle in my pocket. Howsemever, my mind was made up; and brightening up, and looking as if I'd six-and-thirty shillings to take on Saturday, I says to her as was by my side,—

"Polly, my lass, I'm a-going up to London!"

"Going where?" she says, lifting up her head.

"London," I says; and then I began to think about what going to London meant. For, mind yer, it didn't mean a chap in a rough jacket making up a bundle in a clean blue handkercher, and then shovin' his stick through the knot and sticking it over his shoulder, and then stuffing his hands in his pockets, and taking the road uppards, whistlin' like a blackbird. No it meant something else. It meant breaking up a tidy little house as two young folks—common people, in course—had been a saving up for years, to make snug; it meant half breaking a poor simple lass's heart to part with this little thing and that little thing; tearing up the nest that took so long a-building, and was allus so snug arter a cold day's work. I looked at the clean little winders, and then at the bright kettle on the shiny black hob, and then at the werry small fire as there was, and then fust at one thing, and then at another, all so clean and neat and homely, and all showing how proud my lass was of 'em all, and then I thought a little more of what going up to London really did mean, and I suppose it must have been through feeling low and faint and poorly, and I'm almost ashamed to tell it, for I'm such a big strong chap; but truth 's truth.

Well, somehow a blind seemed to come over my eyes, and my head went down upon my knees, and I cried like a school-boy. But it went off, for my lass was kneeling aside me in a minute, and got my thick old head upon her shoulder, and began a-doing all she could to make believe it was all right, and she would n't mind a bit, but we'd get on wonderful well up there; and so we talked it over for long enough, while she made believe to be so cheerful, and knelt at my side, a-ciphering away,—a-putting down naught for herself, and a-carrying I don't know how much for me,—till I glowed up, under the discovery that whether work was plenty, or whether work was slack, I, Bill Stock—christened William—was rich in my good wife.

That was something like a thought, that was, and seemed to stiffen me up, and put bone and muscle into a fellow till he felt strong as a lion; so we set to talking over the arrangements; and two days arter, Polly and I was in a lodging in London.

Nex' morning I was up at five, and made myself smart; not fine, but clean, and looking as if I war n't afraid of work; and I finds my way to one o' the big workshops, where the bell was a-ringing for six o'clock, and the men was a-scuffling in; while a chap with a book was on the look-out to time the late ones, for stopping on pay-day out of their wages,—which is but fair, yer know, for if two hundred men lost a quarter of an hour apiece in a week, it would come to something stiff in a year. Well, there was a couple more chaps like me standing at the gate, come to see if they could get took on; and one o' 'em slips in, and comes out again directly a-swearing and growling like anything, and then t' other goes in, and he comes out a-swearing too, and then I feels my heart go sinking down ever so low. So I says to the fust,—

"Any chance of a job?" I says.

"Go to —" somewhere, he says, cutting up rough; so I asks t' other one.

"Any chance of a job?" I says.

"Not a ha'porth," he says, turning his back, and going off with the fust one; and I must say as they looked a pretty pair of blacks.

So I stood there for quite five minutes wondering what to do; whether I should go in and ask for myself, or go and try somewhere else. I did n't like to try, arter seeing two men refused. All at once a tall sharp-eyed man comes out of a side place and looks at me quite fierce. "Now, my man," he says, "what's your business? What do you want?"

"Job, sir," says I.

"Then why did n't you come in and ask?" he says.

"Saw two turned back," I says.

"O, we don't want such as them here," he says, "but there's plenty of work for men who mean it"; and then he looks through me almost. "I suppose you do mean it, eh?"

"Give us hold of a trowel," says I, spitting in both hands.

"Bricklayer?" says he, smiling.

"Right," says I.

"From the country?" says he.

"Yes," says I.

"Work slack there?" says he.

"Awful," says I.

"You'll do," says he. "Here, Jones, put this fellow in number four lot."

If you'll believe me, I could have taken hold of him and hugged him; but I did n't, for I kep' it for Polly.

Well,—I wonder how many times I've said well, since I begun!—I was in work now, and I meant to keep it. Didn't I make the bricks and mortar fly! My hodman did his day's work that day, if he never did it afore. Then some of the men began to take it up, and got to chaffing: one says there'd soon be no work left; and another says, I'd better have a couple of Paddies to keep me going, one for bricks, and another for mortar; while one fellow makes hisself precious unpleasant, by keeping on going "puff! puff! puff!" like a steam-ingin', because I worked so fast. But I let them chaff as long as they liked; and bime-by I comes to be working alongside of my steam-ingin' friend, and jest as he'd been going it a little extra, I says to him quietly,—

"Ever been out o' work, matey?"

"Not to signify," he says.

"'Cause if ever you are, and come down werry close to ground, you'll be as glad to handle the trowel again as I am." He did n't puff any more that day, not as I heerd.

London work was something fresh to me. I used to think that I'd been about some tidy buildings down our way, but what was the tidiest on 'em to the London jobs I was put on! Jobs where the scaffolding must have cost hundreds upon hundreds of pounds more than the house, land, and everything else put together, of the biggest place I had ever worked upon. I used, too, to think I was pretty strong in the head; but I soon began to sing small here,—specially when I had been up about a week and was put on at a big hotel. Right up so high that one turned quite creepy, and used to get thinking of what would be the consequences if a sharp puff of wind come and upset one's balance. I could never have believed, neither, that such a Jacob's Ladder of scaffold-poles could have been built up to stand without crushing and snapping those at the bottom like so many reeds or tobacco-pipes; but I suppose them as builds them knows best what should be done, and what they 'll bear. But though I did not like it much, I took good care not to mention it to my lass, for I knew, she'd have been on the fidget all day if I had told her.

By degrees I got to stand it all pretty well, and we began to feel a bit settled in our one room. Not that we much liked it, but then it was werry pleasant to go in the crowd on pay-day and draw your week's wage,—good wage too, jest as I had seen it when settin' in my own place at home. We still called it home, for we couldn't get to feel that we were at home in London, and Polly she said she never should, arter having a little house of her own; but, as there was only our two selves, we made things pretty comfortable.

The big hotel was getting on at a tremendious rate, for there was a strong body on us at work, and it used to make me think and think of the loads upon loads of stuff the hotel swallowed up, and how much more it would take before it was finished. One day when I was bricklaying up at the top,—I don't know how many feet from the ground, and I never used to care to look to see, for fear of turning giddy,—one day it came on to blow a regular gale, and blew at least so hard that the scaffold shook and quivered, while wherever there was a loose rope, it rattled and beat against the poles as if it was impatient of being tied there, and wanted to break loose and be off.

It blew at last so werry hard, that I should have been precious glad of an excuse to get down; but I could n't well leave my work, and the old hands did n't seem to mind it much, so I kep' at it. Whenever the wind blows now, and I shut my eyes, I can call it all back again; the creaking and quivering of the poles, the rattling of the boards, the howling and whistling of the gale as it swept savagely by, in a rage because it could not sweep us away.

A high wind is pretty hard to deal with, sometimes, on the ground; and I have seen folks pretty hard driven to turn a corner. So it may be guessed what sort of fun it is right up on a spidery scaffold, where a man is expected to work with both hands, and hold on by nothing, and that, too, where a single step backards would be—there, it 's a thing as allus makes me nervous to talk about.

It was getting to be somewhere about half past three, and I was working hard, so as to keep from thinking about the storm, when all at once I happened to turn my head, and see that the men was a-scuffling down the ladders as hard as they could go. And then, before I had time to think, there was a loud crash, and a large piece of the scaffolding gave way, and swept with it poles, boards, and bricks, right into the open space below.

I leaped up at a pole which projected from the roof above me, just above my head, caught it, and hung suspended, just as the boards upon which I stood but an instant before gave way, and fell on to the next stage, some twenty feet below. Tightly clasping the rough fire-pole, I clung for life.

Think? I did think. I thought hundreds of things in a few seconds, as I shut my eyes and began to pray, for I felt as I could not hold on long, and I knew as I should fall first on the stage below, when the boards would either give way, or shoot me off again with a spring, and then I knew there would be a crowd round something upon the ground, and the police coming with a stretcher.

"Creep out, mate, and come down the rope," cried a voice from below. I turned my head, so that I could just see that the pole I was hanging to had a block at the end, through which ran a rope for drawing light things up and down to the scaffold. For an instant I dared not move; then, raising myself, I went hand over hand towards the pulley, and in another instant I should have grasped it, when I heard a rushing sound, and the creaking of a wheel, as the rope went spinning through, and was gone; the weight of the longer side having dragged the other through. As I hung, I distinctly heard it fall, perhaps a hundred and fifty feet.

As the rope fell, and I hung there, I could hear a regular shriek from those below; but nobody stirred to my assistance, for I was beyond help then; but I seemed to grow stronger with the danger, though my arms felt as if they were being wrenched out of their sockets, and my nerves as if they were torn with hot irons. Sobbing for breath, I crept in again till I was over the stage first; then close into the face of the building; and there I hung. Once I tried to get some hold with my feet, but the smooth bricks let my toes slip over them directly. Then I tried to get a leg over the pole, so as to climb up and sit there; but the time was gone by for that. I had hung too long, and was now growing weaker every moment.

I can't describe what I felt. All I know is, that it was horrible, and that long afterwards I used to jump up in bed with a scream; for so sure as I was a little out o' sorts, came a dream of langing to that scaffold-pole, expecting every moment to be one's last.

I can't say, either, how long I hung; but feeling at length that I was going, I made one last try for it. I thought of my poor lass, and seemed to see her a-looking at me in a widder's cap; and then I clenched my teeth hard, and tried to get on to where the end of the pole was fastened. I got one hand over the hard bricks, and hooked my fingers, and held on; then I got the other hand over, and tried to climb up, as a cheer from below encouraged me; but my feet and knees slipped over the smooth bricks, and in spite of every effort they hung down straight at last, and I felt a sharp quiver run through me as slowly, slowly, my hands opened, my fingers straightened, and, with eyes blinded and bloodshot, I fell.

—Fell what seemed to be an enormous distance, though it was only to the next stage, where boards, bricks, and tools, shaken by the concussion, went with a crash below. The deal planks upon which I lay, still kep' in their places, but with their ends jolted so near the edge that it seemed to me that the least motion on my part would make them slip, and send me off again. I was too exhausted and frightened to move, and lay there for some time, not knowing whether I was much hurt or not. The first thing as recalled me to myself was the voice of a man who came up a ladder close at hand; and I could see that he had a rope and pulley with him, which he soon had hooked on to the ladder.

"Hold on, mate," he says. "If I throw you the end of the rope, can you tie it round you?"

"I'll try," I says. So he makes a noose, and pulling enough rope through the block, he shies it to me, but it was n't far enough. So he tries again and again, and at last I manages to ketch hold on it. But now, as soon as I tried to move, it seemed as if something stabbed me in the side, and, what was more, the least thing would, I found, send the boards down, and of course me with them.

"Tell them to hold tight by the rope," says I; and he passed the word, while I got arms through the noose, and told him to tighten it, which he did by pulling, for I could not have got it over my head without making the boards slip.

"Now, then," he says, "are you ready?"

"All right," I says, faintly, for I felt as if everything was a-swimming round me; but I heard him give a signal, and felt the snatch of the rope as it cut into my arms above the elbows, and then I swang backwards and forwards in the air; while, with a crash away went the boards upon which I had been a-lying.

I couldn't see any more, nor hear any more, for I seemed to be sent to sleep; but I suppose I was lowered down and took to the hospital, where they put my broken ribs to rights in no time, and it wasn't so werry long before I was at work once more; though it took a precious while before I could get on a high scaffold again without feeling creepy and shivery; but, you know, "use is second nature."

Polly showed me the stocking t'other day, and I must say it has improved wonderful, for wages keeps good, and work's plenty; and as for those chaps who organize the strikes, it strikes me they don't know what being out o' work is like. But, along o' that stocking, one feels tempted very much to go down in the country again, but don't like to, for fear o' things not turning out well; and Polly says, "Let well alone, Bill." So I keeps on, werry well satisfied, and werry comfortable."

MUSICAL CATECHISM.—What is a rest? Going out of the choir for refreshments during sermon time.

What is called singing with an understanding?—Marking time on the floor with your foot.

What is a staccato movement? Leaving the choir in a huff because one is dissatisfied with the leader.

What is a swell?—A professor of music who pretends to know everything about the science, while he cannot conceal his ignorance.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

GENTLEMEN in Boston have received letters from the Siamese Twins, since their last visit there, signed "C. & R. Bunker." It seem that as Chang and Eng only had a name apiece, and those very brief, they adopted as a surname the family name of the sisters whom they married.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL GRANT and Major General Butterfield visited the Produce Exchange, in New York on Saturday, and the former was received with great enthusiasm. During the visit, an excited foreigner eagerly seized the Lieutenant General by the coat and asked: "Do you know if General Grant is here?" The General turned with a smile, and the excited one had his curiosity gratified.

MAJOR J. M. BUNDY, formerly editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel and for a year past on Gen. Pope's staff, has assumed the management of the New York Evening Post. Mr. Goodwin, the present editor, is going to Europe for a pleasure trip.

THE royal Spanish infant who has recently made his entrance upon the world has received no less than one hundred and twelve names! The official journal informs us that these "comprehend all the invocations of the Most Holy Virgin". The Papal Nuncio officiated at the christening: the godparents—the King and Queen of the Belgians—being represented by the Belgian Minister and the Princess Royal, Maria Isabel, of Spain. Notwithstanding this long string of cognomens, any person desiring to see the young gentleman can do so by inquiring for "Francisco de Asis."

THE health of the venerable Lewis Cass is rapidly failing. He scarcely sits up at all, and his death is daily expected.

IT is said that Bierstadt's brush has earned him $120,000 in the last three years. He has the finest team in the New York Central Park, and is building him a villa at Irvington, on the Hudson.

WHEN a lady once asked Turner, a celebrated English painter, what his secret was, he replied, "I have no secret Madam, but hard work." This is a secret that many never learn, and don't succeed because they don't learn it. Labor is the genius that changes the world from ugliness to beauty, and the great curse to a great blessing.

MR. AND MRS. JESSE ATWOOD, of New York, have been married 65 years. Mr. Atwood is 88 years old and has voted for every President since John Adams was a candidate, and his wife is 91.

HEROD THE GREAT may not have died from partaking too freely of trichina spiralis with his roast pig, but the presumption that he did is supported by the historic assertion that he was eaten by worms before the breath was fairly out of his royal body. It is apparent that he died of no ordinary disease. Other and greater men died before Herod; but the historiographers were at no pains to mention the particular disease that took them out of the world. It was reserved for an age of microscopes to discover that the Herodian horror was only an aggravated case of trichina in the stomach and viscera.

THE Rev. Dr. Demarest, one of the leading clergyman of the Dutch Church, says the Albany Journal, left a very eligible charge in Newark to settle in Chicago. One of the main reasons for leaving Newark was that he had ten years' labor in the form of sermons, of which he was desirous of availing himself. But alas! literary wealth, like material, will take to itself wings. The car of the American Express Company, in which were his clothes and sermons, took fire, and all were consumed.

THE Hon. William H. Seward has been invited to pronounce an eulogium at the next anniversary of Union College, upon the late venerable President, Rev. Dr. Nott. A career reaching from the colonial days, when he was born, a subject of King George the Third, to this era of the restored Union, furnishes a worthy theme for his eloquence.

PROFESSOR MASSON, a man who makes a specialty of Milton, who has lectured upon the poet and been for years preparing an ela

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan.

One of the best filled Establishments!

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied,

Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South-Side Chicago St, Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS,

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY,
WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH, COTTAGE,
COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP,
WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Show Cases, Stands, Book Cases, Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short notic by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pictures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VANTINE,
G. SMITH,

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

TECUMSEH, - - MICH A

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions,

I keep the largest and best assortment of

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS,
FRUITS,
SALT
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,
&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had eleven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the busines I you dont believe it, ask your neighbors where they get their Groceries and where they buy them the

CHEAPEST.

Try me and judge for yourselves.

n706 AJAMES

☞ Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the HERALD

The PEOPLE OF TECUMSEH!

WE HAIL,

But do not conceal, the fact that

GOULD & WALDO

Have just opened a first class

Drug & Grocery Store,

Where will be kept constantly on hand a choice supply of

Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Dye Stuffs, Domestic Dyes, Patent Medicines, Family Groceries, Kerosene Oil, and

in fact everything usually kept in

Similar Establishments,

Where they are prepared and bound to sell from ten to fifty per cent. lower than can be sold elsewhere in Southern Michigan,

STORE 1 DOOR EAST OF A. James' and opposite the Post Office,

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY PREPARED. Liberal discount to Physicians. 793

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street,

Where he is now turning out the

Nicest, Best and Strongest,

WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS,

and in fact everything in his line from a baby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition, So call and leave your orders.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM,

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

☞ All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Prices

---

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co. are now prepared to present to the public, every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART,

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and ellegance to the figure.

India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite

in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices.

and a general assortment of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

New Meat Market !!

Bidwell's Warehouse, Railroad st.,

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

HUGH McGEE, Proprietor.

Who is now prepared to furnish the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity with

FRESH MEATS OF ALL KINDS,

at the lowest possible rates. Thankful for past patronage he would respectfully solicit a continuance of the same.

PHŒNIX
HARTFORD, CONN.
INSURANCE COMPANY.

S. C. STACY,

RESIDENT AGENT,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

1866. 1866.

MERRITT, MEEKER & Co

SUCCESSORS TO J. H. WHEELER.

Have just received a large additon to their

STOCK OF GOODS,

And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of

DRY GOODS,

YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Particular attention is called to their stock

of BUFFALO ROBES and LADIES AND GENTS FURS,

which they are now selling

At Cost.

We would announce to his numerous friends that we have secured the services of Wm. VanCamp, and he will take pleasure in waiting upon all.

It is no trouble to show goods; should you wish anything in our line give us a call before purchasing elsewhere and we will do our best to give satisfaction.

GLORIOUS NEWS,

The Confederacy gone up! But

GEORGE HEESEN S

CLOTHING EMPORIUM

Is in full blast, and has not yet surrendered to yonng america. I would say to my friends and customers that I have just received a large slock of clothing which were purchased at panic prices, and I will sell them at a very small profit, for they must be sold within ninety days, I

Sell Cassimere Pants at 6.50.

Broad cloth and cassimere coats very cheap, Linen coats cheaper than any other house in town, wool-en and Straw

HATS, CAPS!

Linen and Paper Collars,
Neck Ties, Shirts,
Gloves, Hosiery,
Traveling Bags, &c.

alt is easily understood that I can sell oods cheaper than m neighbor for I save great expense, bein a tailor and having followed the business for the last 17 years I know how work ought to be done.

Please come over on the Canada side for you can buy goods cheaper than you can on the American, for all expense of importing is saved, which amounts to considerable.

Cutting Done at Old Prices.

Those wishing garments made would do wail to call on me and have an honest job done.

Geo. Heesen.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New Yisnow opening a new stock of Groceries, Paints, Oils &c.

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago street

---

L. DREW'S

NEW HARDWARE !!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz:

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass. Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a

Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron, and Zinc,

Also the

Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

Real Estate for Sale.

Our old friend John Davenport wishes to dispose of the following property:

60 acres of fine timbered land lying near Franklin Centre.

120 acres of timbered land on Evans Lake.

Saw mill and 20 acres of land near Franklin Centre.

Brick House and 4 acres of land known as the Stitts property in the village of Tecumseh, now occupied by A. Hood

House and lot on Logan St. known as the Mrs. Bissell property.

Also—House and lot of J. E. Merritt Maiden Lane, in the village of Tecumseh.

Terms easy or to suit purchasers. For particulars call on or address the subscriber at Tecumseh, Mich.

JOHN DAVENPORT.

Datad Jan. 18th, 1866.

☞ Have you job printing done at the Herald Office,

GREAT DECLINE

Boots & Shoes

ARE DOWN! not in New York or Boston but at

E. H. HOAG'S

Mammoth Shoe Store,

Returning the public thanks for liberal patronage during the past year, I shall offer during the next

SIXTY DAYS,

BOOTS & SHOES

AT PRICES WHICH WILL

DEFY COMPETITION.

The attention of sewed Boot customers is called to my stock of fine

French & American Calf Skins,

which are being made up

In a Style unsurpassed for

WORKMANSHIP AND DURABILITY.

LADIES AND MISSES

Congress Gaiters, Balmorals and POLISH BOOTS,

made to order from all materials.

E. H. HOAG.

Tecumseh, Jan. 1st, 1866.

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartner ship in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE AND FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions, Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected stock of

Crockery and Glass-Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

C. H. ADAM & CO.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct 2tf TECUMSEH, MICH.

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government,

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.

n790lysmp

GREAT

CLEARING OUT SALE

OF

DRY GOODS

FOR THE

NEXT THIRTY DAYS

WE WANT TO

CLEAR OUT THE OLD STOCK!

WE WANT TO MAKE ROOM FOR

A New Stock!

We want to get a

Pile of Greenbacks !

And in order to do so we offer our present stock of Dry Goods at

VERY LOW PRICES.

DRESS GOODS,
PRINTS, DELAINES,
HOOP SKIRTS, SHAWLS,
NUBIAS, HOODS, SHEETING
FLANNELS, CLOTHS,
CASSIMERES, WOOLEN
SHIRTING & SHIRTS,
UNDERSHIRTS, DRAWERS,
&c at Cost and

Less than Cost

We Mean

WHAT WE SAY

DO NOT FAIL TO

CALL and SEE Us at

NUMBER ONE

BIDWELL'S BLOCK !

TRIBOU, & BIDWELL Bros.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

Tecumseh Union School!

C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.

THE SPRING TERM of this institution will open April 9th, 1866, and continue twelve weeks

Scholars will be received at any time and placed in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.

CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

CO-PARTNERSHIP

A. Hood & Co.

are now receiving at the Old Stand of A Hood, Anderson's Block,

A LARGE STOCK

—OF—

NEW GOODS

Direct from New York consisting of

Ready Made Clothing

A splended assortment of THE LATEST STYLES of cloths that could be foundin the Eastern markets, Consisting of

BROAD CLOTHS, DOESKINS,
FREFCH, SCOTCH and ENGLISH
CASSIMERES, COATINGS,
VESTINGS, OVER COATINGS,
&c. Also a heavy

STOCK OF WOOLEN SHIRTS

Of all styles, UNDER SHIRTS and DRAWERS, SUSPENDERS,
GLOVES, HOSIERY.
A nice assortment of

HATS & CAPS!

Furnishing Goods!

Of all kinds for mens wear, We mean to keep on hand as good a selection of goods in our line as can be found in any one establishment in the County, and for CASH we will sell them as low, or a little lower than any other establishment in the County.

Our Tailoring Department is in full blast. We are prepared to get up Suits on SHORT NOTICE, in as GOOD STYLE, and at as low figures as any other establishment.

CUTTING DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

H. M. GRAY. A. HOOD

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS,

is the place to get good grinding done I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING,

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Wheat

Mill Feed of allkinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Bills of hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shal endeavor to do as good work, and even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Neary, and Bridget Neary, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March, A. D. 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber 'M.' of Mortgages, on folios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] two, on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village, (now city] of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid. Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriet A. Bradbury on the twenty-first day of March, A. D. 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 17th day of February, A D 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, which said mortgage, was afterwards, to wit: on the eighth day of February, A D. 1866 duly assigned by said Harriet A Bradbury to Addison J Comstock, which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money, and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents, [$573.12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty fifth day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage.

ADDISON J. COMSTOCK.
Assignee of said mortgage.

M. N. HALSEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb. 21, 1866.

J. D. ROBBINS.

(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)

DEALER IN

CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER,
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.

—o—

I will sell any of the above goods as

Cheap or Cheaper

than any other dealer in the country, and

WARRANT

all goods sold as good as recommendad.

—o—

CASH FOR RAGS!

—o—

Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.

J. D. Robbins.

TECUMSEH, - - - - MICHIGAN.

What is the Matter!

The Fact is the new firm of

SLAYTON TINDALL & Co.

are selling

FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT!

By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff And all the people are rushing for it. Come on we have a large stock of such wheat on hand yet, also

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,
CORN MEAL,
PLASTER,
WATER LIME,
CLOVER SEED,
TIMOTHY SEED,
CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF

Grain and Seeds!!

SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO.

Tecumseh, Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL

IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor, show room the same 3 doors east of A. Hood & Co's. clothing store.

With the improvements she has made in the last year—which warranted the Judges at the State Fair, to award her the first prize and Diploma for pictures exhibited at that time—she feels anxious for those wanting likenesses, to call and examine her specimens of work.

To those who have six photographs an additional one will be given. She has 24 varieties of photograph frames, which will be sold cheaper than they can be found elsewhere.

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.

Publiseed for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supplying at the same time the means of Self-Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a post-paid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, mby be had of the author.

NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Brooklyn,

n790lysmp Kings Co, N. Y.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at

A. JAMES

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVI. NO. 50. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, MAY 10, 1866. WHOLE NO. 807.

G. T. KETCHAM'S
BOOK STORE,
Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.
(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)
DEALER IN
CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER,
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.
—o—
I will sell any of the above goods as
Cheap or Cheaper than any other dealer in the country, and
WARRANT
all goods sold as good as recommended.
—o—
CASH FOR RAGS!
—o—
Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.
J. D. Robbins.
TECUMSEH. - - - - - MICHIGAN.

Glorious News,
Not from Mexico, but from the establishment of
MERRITT, MEEKER & Co
The people are just finding out that they can save from five to ten per cent in buying their Goods at the
CHEAP CASH STORE.
They have received and are still receiving every week additions to their
STOCK OF GOODS,
And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of
DRY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.
Particular attention is called to their stock
Of Boots and Shoes
which they are selling at from 10 to 20 per cent lower than any other establishment this side of sunrise. All who are in doubt can be convinced by calling and examining for themselves.
You will find Wm VanCamp on hand and ready at all times to show you any goods you may please to see, and who esteems it a pleasure to wait upon customers, and he will sell for our motto is "quick sales and small profits." Remember the place one door west of Drews Hardware Store

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN,—County of Lenawee, ss.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 2d day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six.

Present, Robert R. Beecher, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Moses Burroughs deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of John P. Silvers praying that he may be appointed administrator on the estate of said deceased for reasons stated in said petition.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday, the eleventh day of June next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That the said Petitioner . . . give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. ROBERT R. BEECHER,
(A true Copy) n806 Judge of Probate.
C. C. Coats, Register.

NOTICE.

The Drain Commissioners of Lenawee Co. will meet at the dwelling house of F. Coats, in the township of Ridgeway, on Friday the 8th day of June next, at 9 o'clock A M. for the purpose of letting jobs on drain No. 40 also at the Steam Mill of L. Point in Ridgeway, on Saturday the 9th day of June next at 9 o'clock A. M. for the purpose of letting Jobs on drain No. 38, also at the dwelling house of S. Linn in Ridgeway on Monday the 11th day of June next at 9 o'clock A. M. to let jobs on drain No. 51 the said jobs will be let to the lowest bidder in sections to suit bidders.

By order of the Drainage Commissioners.
JUSTUS LOWE, Secretary.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.

Express Freight,	6:35 A. M
Mail and Express,	1:25 P. M.

GOING NORTH.

Mail and Express,	9:15 P. M.
Accommodation,	8:29 A M

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

GEORGE HEESEN,
Dealer in Ready Made Clothing, &c.
One door west of the Bank.
Chicago st Tecumseh, Mich

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND,
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD C. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich.

ALFRED JAMES,
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT,
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilet, &c.
Chicao St. Tecumseh, Mich.

P. N. CURTIS,
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER,
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

GOULD & WALDO,
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St, - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN B. WOOD.
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER.
Attorney's, Councellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT.
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & McCOWEN,
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich;

EDWARD H. HOAG,
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

Henry Nyland,
Dealer in Boots & Shoes & Leather.
One door west of Bank, Tecumseh.

EMLAY & COURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harness and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HORACE BREWER.
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS.
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT.
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS,
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL.
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE.
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St - - Tecumseh, Mich

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St. Opposite P. Office.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT,
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EXCHANGE HOTEL
Railroad St. - - - Tecumseh, Mich.
D. T. FISH, Proprietor.

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.

(One inch of column constitutes a square.)

	1 wk	3 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$ 2.00	$ 6.00	$ 7.50	$10.00
2 Squares	1.75	3 50	8.00	12.00	15 00
3 Squares	2 75	5 00	11.00	16 00	20.00
¼ Column	5.00	9.00	12.00	18.00	25.00
½ Column	7.50	12.00	18.00	25.00	36.00
Column	12 00	18.00	20.00	35.00	60.00

☞ No advertisement considered less than one square Transient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted at $3.50 per year.

☞ Job Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

☞ We will take wood, butter, lard, eggs, potatoes, and all kinds of farm produce, on subscription for the "HERALD." So bring it along.

To Our Friends.

You will confer a favor on us by soliciting the Judge of Probate to publish Probate Notices in the HERALD, and you will also find it convenience to yourselves to have the advertisements in the paper you receive.

☞ Any one wishing to purchase a first class turning lathe are requested to call at this office. We have one to sell at a great bargain.

Grand Trunk Railway.
The Cheapest, Quickest, and Safest route
TO THE EAST.
Tickets to all the Eastern cities and intermediate places for sale at this office.

☞ Nervous Headache, Sick Headache, Dyspesia, Constipation of the bowels, Costiveness and Diseases of the Liver, can be cured by the use of Dr. P. N. Curtis' Headache and Dyspeptic Pills.—Price 50 cents a box. Every box warranted to give satisfaction or money refunded.

☞ Wall Paper at J. D. Robbin's—The largest assortment in town. Give him a call and don't fail to get Judd's Patent Window fixtures for your Curtains, they are the best.

—Wm. P. Smallidge is agent for the sale of Merrills Washing Fluid—said to be a good thing—try it.

☞ If you want French Kid Gloves, call at C. H Adam & Co's.

☞ Those nice Kid and Cloth Gaiters at the Empire Store, are going of rapidly. Call soon and make a selection before it is to late.

METALIC WIRE CLOTHES LINE.—These celebrated lines have been used for a number of years, and have proved to excel anything in use for cheapness, durability and convenience.—George O. Nimocks Agent for Tecumseh and Vicinity.

—New Goods are arriving at the Empire Shoe Store.

☞ Would You believe it?—who can help it?—"he that hath eyes to see, let him see"—we know it, "and what we know, we know as well as a grown person"—what is it? McNichol & Wilson are selling GOOD GOODS and lots of them.

HOSIERY.—It will pay you well to buy Winter Hosiery at Moore's and keep them until next Fall—he is selling at very low rates—do not fail to look at them He has also a splendid line of Hosiery and Gloves for spring,—some of the best White Cotton Hose ever offered to any community—also Men's socks in great variety.

☞ Buy your Paints and Oils of Dr Curtis.

☞ If you want anything usually kept at a Dry Goods Store, call at C. H. Adam & Co's.

☞ All persons going east can save money by buying their tickets at this office over that favorite route, the Grand Trunk Railroad.

☞ Summer Stuffs—appropriate for youth and old age—good for all bipeds who can wear trowsers—can be found at Moore's.

☞ Photographs, "Albatypes" or Porcelain pictures, Cartes de visite, Ambrotypes, Gems, Bon-tons, Madalions, &c at the New Photograph Gallery, over Wrights Drug Store. Call and see them.

☞ Look at those beautiful Portraits on Porcelain at the new Photograph Gallery.

☞ Do not fail to call and examine those splendid Cassimeres at Merritt, Meeker & Co.

Meeting of the Soldiers.

Pursuant to the recent call for the soldiers of the townships of Tecumseh, Raisin, Ridgeway, Macon and Franklin, to assemble at the village of Tecumseh at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of Saturday, May 5th 1866, for the purpose of forming a branch organization of the "Soldiers and Sailors National Union," a large number of Soldiers of the late war assembled at Union Hall at the hour designated:

House was called to order at 2 o'clock P. M. by Capt. Pelham, on motion of whom, Col. L. Saviers was unanimously elected chairman "pro tem;" Capt. W. H. Gray elected Secretary "pro tem."

The Chairman proceeded to state to the house in a few concise and forcible remarks the nature and objects of the association, the propriety of supporting which they had met to consider, after which he read the constitution and a series of Resolutions adopted by the "Soldiers and Sailors National Union" at Washington, D. C. Jan 23d, 1866: also an address issued to the soldiers and sailors of the state of N. Y.

A vote was taken and carried, that the Chair appoint a committee of three to draft Resolutions expressive of the sentiments of the house. The Chair appointed as such committee Dr. Heath, late Surgeon of Mich. Vols. and Capts Pelham and Burgher. At the expiration of half an hour the committee reported the following Preamble and Resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, This convention has been called for the purpose of forming a branch organization of the "Soldiers and Sailors National Union," whereby those lately engaged in maintaining our country's honor, may by a united effort promote certain laudable objects and secure certain rights to which they believe they are justly entitled, therefore.

Resolved, That we earnestly recommend to the soldiers and sailors throughout the state to organize local Unions upon the plan adopted by the "Soldiers National Union."

Resolved, That we fully coincide in the sentiments expressed in the resolutions adopted by the "Soldiers and Sailors National Union" at Washington, D. C. Jan. 23d 1866.

Resolved, That it is our earnest conviction, that the grief existing between the loyal and disloyal sentiments of our country should be considered forever impassable; and the desire of those who opposed the Government in its late great struggle for National existence, to creep into the loyal ranks should be firmly resisted by all true lovers of freedom and their cowardice and hypocracy exposed to that lasting scorn which they so richly merit.

Resolved, That it is the unanimous sentiment of this convention, that all deserters from the United States army; all those who lacking the manhood to practically espouse their countrys cause in the hour of her greatest need, shamefully fled to the British province of Canada or elsewhere, in order to escape conscription; all that class of persons comonly known as "Bounty jumpers and all others whose record during this our second war for independence, may have been equally infamous, should be forever excluded from all participation in the proceedings of and benefits to be derived from, this and similar organizations

The motion that the house proceed to organize under the name and title of the Northern Lenawee Soldiers and Sailors Union" and in conformity with the constitution of the "Soldiers and Sailors National Union, prevailed.

The constitution of the National Union having been re-read, article by article by the chairman was (with the exception of such portions as would be unapplicaable to a subordinate organization) adopted for the government of this Union.

The house then proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year, with the following result.

President—Col L. Saviers,
Vice President—Lt. John Britton.
Recording Sec'y.—Capt. A. W. Slayton.
Corresponding Sec'y.—Capt. W. H. Gray.
Treasurer—Lt. J. Davidson.

Moved and carried, that the members from the several townships nominate gentlemen to represent the interests of such townships on the executive committee; each township to be allowed one representative; the villages of Tecumseh and Clinton being allowed one representative each in exclusion of a representative from the township at large.

The following named gentlemen were elected to represent their respective townships and villages.

Tecumseh village—Dr. Heath.
Clinton village—Dr. Alvord.
Raisin township—W. Estes.
Ridgeway township—Lt. John Britton.
Franklin township—Capt. J. W. Cairnes.
Macon township—John Hendershott.

Moved and carried, that the proceedings be published in the "Tecumseh Herald.

No further business being before the house, the convention then adjourned to re-assemble at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of Saturday, June 2d 1866, at which time it is purposed to take such action as may be deemed necessary to insure an appropriate celebration of the anniversary of our National Independence.

W. H. GRAY, Sec'y. "pro tem."

Menagerie.

Van Amburgh & Co's. new Mammoth Menagerie,—the great moral exhibition and caravan—will exhibit at Adrian on Thursday, the 17th of this month. Their collection of animals is mostly new, and contains the finest specimens ever exhibited in any country. The paraphernalia of the company is also new, and is gotton up on the grandest and most dazzling scale. The triumphal entree of the Menagerie, on the day of the exhibition will be a sight worth seeing. The grand feature, however, of the exhibition, is the living Giraffe, the only one on this continent.

Married.

At the M. E. Church, in this village on the 9th inst., by the Rev. J. H Burnham Mr. ALANSON BANGS, and Miss ALMEIDA M. daughter of S. L. Henry of Tecumseh.

In this village, at the residence of, and by the brides father, on the 9th inst Mr. J. NEWTON DEPUY and Miss ELIZABETH HILL.

Six Dollars to Printer and Priest,
No sensible man will refuse,
$5 to render him blest
And $1 to publish the news.

A Good Place.

We do not say it is the best place, but that there is no better place to buy all kinds of Groceries and Provisions or to sell Butter, Eggs, Lard, Potatoes &c, we do know. He has the best accommodations in town for keeping Butter for retailing, and sells all kinds of Groceries as cheap as anybody else can afford them Farmers, Mechanics, Laborers and all, you are invited to try him. We mean J. S. Hendryx, one door east of Conkling's.

Garrison House, Detroit.

We dip our pen in ink once more to say a good and deserved word for the above house. It is in every respect a first-class hotel; and this fact seems to be appreciated, as a reference to its register will determine. It enjoys a fare share of the favors of the traveling public; and among the daily arrivals may be seen many individuals of note. Tecumseh people will always be welcome, and receive prompt attention from all hands. Stop at the Garrison.

☞ If you want white teeth, with healthy gums, the result of which will be a pure breath, call on Dr. Hause, (Dentist) and get a box of his Rose Tooth Powder, it is warranted to give satisfaction. The above powder, together with an excellent Tooth Soap and the fragrant Sozodont will be found at Gould & Waldo's Drug Store.

☞ If you want any fancy or choice goods not kept at other Dry Goods store, call at C. H. Adam & Co's.

Their selections and prices are such, that the have customers from Clinton and Adrian, and other points, as well as from our own village and neighborhood.

☞ Ketcham has just received the largest stock of paper collars ever offered in Tecumseh, embracing all the leading varieties, qualities and styles. Particular attention is called to the new enameled 1 X L collar, which is constructed on such a principle as to remove all objections which have heretofore been made against enamelled collars.

☞ We notice this week, that Tribou & Bidwell Bros. have received another large invoice of New Goods.—Persons calling at their store are sure to purchase, as their prices never fail to give satisfaction.

☞ Beautiful Gem Vignetts ten for $1, at the new Photograph Gallery.

☞ Buy your Cholera preventative at Gould & Waldo's.

☞ Choice Wines and Liquors for Medical purposes at Gould & Waldo's.

Wool Purchasers' Convention.

A convention of Wool Purchasers was held at Adrian on the 19th inst., which "Whereueed," divers and sundry times, setting forth that the wool crop is an important article of export, a large source of wealth, and that the high reputation of our wool has suffered materially from several causes; and 'Resolved,' in view of the just causes of complaint from manufacturers and dealers, to recommend and suggest to wool growers:

That as much wool and little grease and dirt to the fleece should be the great object to be obtained; to thoroughly tag and wash the sheep, and not allow the same, after washing, to run more than six to ten days before shearing; to tie up the wool with smooth, light colored twine, and with a reasonable quantity, not exceeding twice each way and not too tightly pressed, and in all respects to have the the wool as free from foreign substances as possible, and in every respect in good condition.

We confidently say that, with proper attention to these recommendations, the standard of our wool can and will be advanced. Manufacturers and dealers will pay more for it, and seek for wool in good condition, while they will hereafter avoid tags, grease, dead wool, etc. We respectfully ask farmers to bear in mind that the demand caused by the war, which created a speculative competition is passed and gone. This competition caused all conditioned wool to sell at about the same figure. Hereafter condition will be a repuisite to an average price.

The convention further resolved, as follows:

That this convention recommend to all purchaser of wool in this and adjoining states the following as a fair standard to govern our action in the purchase of wool.

1. A deduction of one-half on all unwashed bucks.
2. A deduction of one-third on all washed bucks.
3 A dedudtion of one-third on all other unwashed fleeces.
4 A deduction of one-third on all black wool.
5. That all heavy, unconditioned, badly cotted fleeces be classed as unwashed wool.
6. A deduction on all wool tied with large or dark colored twine, or tied with an unnecessary quantity of any kind.
7. The prosecution under the law for fraud, for any attempt to misrepresent or deceive as to the inside condition of fleeces in reference to tags manure, dead wool, or other foreign substances.
8. To pay the outside limit of the market for wool in good condition.

All this is very good advice, and the farmer who heeds it will, in the long run be the gainer Oil, gum and dirt will not make cloth, and is worthless to the manufacturer. But to put forth this advice on the ground that the manufacturers have had 'just cause of complaint,' is a proposition too ridiculous to be treated seriously. It is a fact so notorious that it needs only stating to be recognized by all, that the manufacturers have by their combinations, not only swindled the farmer out of at least half the value of his wool, but have, by this combination to keep up prices of goods, extorted from the consumer fully twenty five per cent. of the amount paid, over and above fair and remunerative prices. 'Just cause of complaint from manufacturers,' who have purchased wool of the producer for fifty cents, which, graded by the value of cloth, was worth one dollar. No Resolves denounced this robbery on the part of manufacturers. Our present tariff and exchange have enabled the manufacturers to bleed the people at every pore. This manufacturing monopoly also controls legislation to continue and perhaps increase the present tariff. Efforts have been made to induce the the present congress to give the wool grower protection, but it will be futile so long as New England manufacturers control legislation.—Coldwater Sentinel

☞ The National Hotel, will be opened to the public on Monday May 14th. Messrs Merritt & Bugher have furnished the house in the best of style and they deserve a liberal share of the public patronage, which no doubt they will receive. They propose giving an opening dinner on Monday, between the hours of 3, and 7. All are invited to the feast without money and without price.

☞ If you want Zephyr Worsteds, call at C. H. Adam & Co's.

PATENT MEDICINES.

If faith would cure disease our physician's occupation would be gone; the afflicted need only read the advertisements in the papers to be "made whole" but the nostrums prepared by these pseudo doctors does not often "back up" the faith inspired by their advertisements. We do not mean to condemn all so-called patent medicens for some have been found to be very valuable. In this class we would include Coe's Cough Balsam for coughs, croup, hoarseness, &c., and Coe's Dyspepsia Cure, for indigestion, dyspepsia, and all troubles of the stomach or bowels—they have been tested in thousands of cases. Our dealers all sell them.

☞ A first class Cow and calf for sale by P. N. Curtis.

M. Wright has just received a large supply of Wall Paper. Splendid paterns.

NEW GOODS,
PRICES DOWN!
H. C. CONKLING
Would call the attention of the public to his new stock of
CHOICE GROCERIES
Just purchased in New York at the
RECENT DECLINE,
which he offers for sale
CHEAP.
All Goods warranted to give satisfaction.
Cash paid for Produce, as usual,
5000 Firkins
Of Butter Wanted!!
Butter firkins to put out to be filled.—
☞ Call and see those choice Teas! Don't forget, the old stand of Ketcham & Conkling.
H. C. CONKLING.
Tecumseh, May 7th, 1866.

CURTIS & PARSONS
(DEALERS IN)
Having become proprietors of the well known establishment in Bidwell's Block on Chicago Street, would respectfully announce to the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity, that they are prepared to supply them with everything in the line of Hardware, Tin ware, Iron, Nails, Chains, Cutlery, Bells, Seelf goods Glass, Cradles, Scythes, Forks, Rakes, Carpenter's tools, Doors, Axes, Hoes Cistern Pumps, Putty, Spades and Shovels, Chains, Ropes and every article usually kept in like establishments.
Especial attention is called to the large assortment of Cook and Parlor Stoves & Fixtures, of which they have a large variety, embracing all the latest improvements, We have also a Tin-Shop in opperation, for manufacturing & repairing all kinds of Tin, Copper and Sheet Iron Ware Stove-pipe, Eave Troughs, Milk-Pans, Dippers, Cups, Oil-Cans, and every conceivable article, from a Large Dish Pan down to a Tin whistle. We are sole agents for the Universal Clothes Wringer, for this vicinity.

NEW PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY.
The subscribers having leased the spacious Hall in Bills' Brick Block, over Wright's Drug Store, have, regardless of expense fitted up a
FIRST CLASS PHOTOGRAPH
Gallery, and are now prepared to furnish every style of Photographic Portrait known to the art. We have large and convenient rooms, with side and sky lights combined and every facility for doing the best quality of work, and with our long experience in the art we feel confident that we can produce a quality of Photographic Pictures which for durability, correctness and brilliancy of tone are unsurpassed in New York City.
We have facilities for making Cabinet size Photographs and coloring them in either oil or water colors or finishing them in India Ink, in a manner SUPERIOR TO ANY IN THIS STATE
Mr. H. is a Colorist of many years experience and is willing to compare his work with that of any colorist in this country.
Particular attention paid to enlarging from old Daguerrotypes, Ambrotypes &c. Those having such pictures of deceased friends can have them copied to any size and finished in oil or water colors or India Ink, in the best manner and at reasonable rates.
Our patrons can be assured of getting none but FIRST CLASS work as we shall not in any instance allow an inferior picture to leave our gallery.
Satisfaction guaranteed in every respect or no charge for work. Please call and examine our specimens
C. H. Hopkins & Co.
Tecumseh, May 5th 1866.

Notice.

At a regular meeting of the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh, held on the 7th day of May 1866, the following By-Law ordinance was duly passed,

Be it ordained, by the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh: That the marshall of the village of Tecumseh, be and he is hereby directed and instructed to notify the owner or occupant of each lot or parcel of land situate in said village adjoining a street along the same side of which street a plank side-walk exists which is now out of repair, to repair or reconstruct the same as the case may require, within forty days after such notice, by supplying new material so far as necessary in repair, and to repair, reconstruct, as the case requires, such sidewalk so that said walk st all be in order and durable, observing plan specification and providing material the same as required by the original ordinance requiring its construction, or, in default thereof, that the said walk be immediately repaired or reconstructed by said marshall, and that the expense thereof be assessed upon said lot, and payment required of the owner thereof.
CHARLES BURRIDGE, Recorder.

Notice.

The assessment Roll of the village of Tecumseh, has been left at the Recorder's office for the inspection of all persons interested; and for the purpose of hearing any objection to said Roll the Assessors of said village will meet at the Recorder's office on the 21st day of May 1866.
Wm. VanCamp,
Geo. W. Ketcham,

More New Goods just opened at the Cheap Store of Tribou & Bidwell Brothers.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

General Intelligence.

Mrs. Davis was allowed an interview with her husband in Fortress Monroe.

It is announced that General Sherman will visit St. Paul about the 25th of this month.

News from Venezuela, intimates that that Republic was very likely to side with Spain in her war against Chili.

Gov. Hawley and the State officers of Connecticut were installed in their offices on the 2d, with appropriate ceremonies.

The Straits are open, and navigation on the inland seas of the West, between Chicago and Buffalo, has now been resumed.

Eighteen bodies of victims of the Detroit fire have been recovered; two other persons are known to have been burned to death, and seven more are missing.

The flood on the Missouri is fast subsiding. At Omaha, on the 2d, a fall of four feet had taken place; and at St. Joe the waters had receded at about the same rate.

Wm. Hopper, who killed his wife in Lee County, Ill., four years ago, and who had once been sentenced to be hang, has just been acquitted on the ground of insanity.

The river at Dubuque, April 30, rose to within less than six inches of the mark of the great flood of 1859. Hundreds of acres of the city were under water, and hundreds of houses to be reached only in boats.

The Senate was not in session on the 5th. In the House the chief feature was a speech from Mr. Ingersoll of Illinois, sharply receiving the President's course.

Judge Duplantier of New Orleans, has decided that notes payable in Confederate money are worthless; also that mortgages given for Confederate money during the war are invalid.

Latest advices from Halifax indicates that the cholera has almost entirely disappeared from McNab's Island. The cholera excitement is subsiding there and in New York.

The buildings of the New Haven, Conn., Clock Company, seven in number, were destroyed on the 30th, together with eleven dwelling houses in the vicinity. Loss, 200,000—insurance, $160,000.

The late fire at Detroit destroyed upwards of $1,000,000 worth of property. Twenty-nine persons are known to have perished in the flames and by drowning, and a number of others are supposed to have shared a similar fate.

A Fenian freebooter having cleared from Eastport on Tuesday night, the gunboat Winooski started in full pursuit on Wednesday. In the meantime the original Fenian craft had transferred her armament and men to another vessel, and returned.

In view of the hot and sickly season in the Capital, rooms are being fitted up for the President and his family at the International Hotel, Long Branch, N. J. The family will probably repair there early, leaving the President to follow on the adjournment of Congress.

The extensive stables belonging to the Fifth Street horse railroad in St. Louis, took fire and were entirely destroyed, together with one hundred and forty horses and mules, sixteen cars, and the harness and forage, on Saturday noon the 5th inst.

The following Western troops are ordered to be mustered out: 2d California Cavalry, 128th Indiana, 8th Iowa, 21st Missouri Infantry, 12th and 13th Missouri Cavalry, Bracket's Battalion of Minnesota Cavalry, 1st Nevada Cavalry, 48th and 50th Wisconsin, ten regiments of colored infantry, and the 3d, 5th, 6th and 12th Colored Artillery.

On Tuesday of last week a torpedo, which had been sunk for three years and one month, in Charleston Harbor, exploded off the beach of Sullivan's Island, near Battery B, in about eight fathoms of water. It is supposed to have been exploded by the dragging of a vessel's cable. It lifted an immense volume of water, and presented quite a grand appearance.

The Austro-Prussian question was still regarded as threatening, all correspondence between the two powers having failed to bring about an amicable adjustment of the pending difficulties. Prussia still continues her warlike preparations. The London Times, in an article upon the alteration, remarks that affairs between the two powers present an aspect identical with that which has always preceded the breaking out of war between powerful nations.

A few days since a terrible accident occurred on the Hudson River, near West Point. As the sloop James Coates was rounding the point, one of the hands named Benjamin Hunt, attempted to shove the boom across the deck, and at that moment a heavy gust of wind struck the main sail, driving the boom from one side to the other with lightning rapidity. The main sheet curled about Hunt's neck, and immediately tore his head from his body, taking it out thirty feet into the river. The lifeless trunk fell covered with blood upon the deck. All efforts to secure the head failed.

Another new large iron screw steamer, similar to the ill-fated London, is believed to have foundered, with every soul on board. She was the Nerbudda, 1,357 tons register, commanded by Capt. Hardy, belonging to the Bombay and Bengal Steam Shipping Company, and was considered a first-class steamer having been built under special survey of Lloyd's surveyors. She sailed from Liverpool for Bombay on the 18th of November last, with a crew of about fifty hands. There is no doubt she encountered the full fury of those disastrous gales which from that time until the month of January swept the Atlantic. It is reported that insurances were effected on her and her cargo to the amount of £80,000.

Valparaiso was bombarded by the Spanish fleet on the 31st of March, and from 15 to $20,000,000 worth of property destroyed. The British Admiral in the harbor, had agreed to interfere and prevent the outrage, in which he was promised the co operation and assistance of Com. Rodgers and the representative of France, but drew back at the last moment, and allowed the bombardment of the defenceless city to proceed. Much indignation is expressed at his conduct, and a meeting of British residents adopted severe resolutions of censure, and expressed their high appreciation of the efforts of Com. Rodgers and the American Minister, Gen. Kilpatrick. Most of the loss is sustained by British, American, and other foreign residents. The resolution of the allies is said to be increased rather than diminished by the proceeding.

The Fenians' fury in New York appears to be turned upon the leaders. O'Mahony has been arrested, tried, made to disgorge, and deposed, and it is now their intention to arrest and try Stephens, on his arrival, which is anticipated on the 9th inst. He is accused of complicity in the acts for which O'Mahony was tried. The Fenian Senate meets on the 5th.

About 3 o'clock on the morning of the 29th, six burglars entered the residence of the Cashier of the Harrison National Bank of Cadiz, O., bucked and gagged the Cashier, and compelled him and his wife to deliver up the keys of the bank and safe. Proceeding thence to the bank, they effected an entrance without much opposition, and robbed the safe of $300,000 in United States bonds and about $50,000 in deposits. After locking the watchman in the safe, they made good their escape on a hand car, cutting the telegraph wires in two places. The robbers abandoned the hand-car at a station near Alexandria, on the P. C. and C. R. R., and took to the woods. The surrounding country has been aroused, and a large force is in pursuit. $20,000 reward is offered for the arrest of the robbers.

Later.—The villains were caught the next day, and a part of the property recovered.

The steamer Hermann brings European news to the 18th.....The new Atlantic cable is being stored in the tanks of the Great Eastern, and will probably be laid in July. .....The news from Germany is less threatening, though Vienna advices say the state of affairs is still serious. It is believed that the pacific overtures already made will settle the question of armaments. It was rumored at Hamburg that Von Bismark had resigned, but the report was not credited.....An attempt was made to assassinate the Czar of Russia, but the bullet missed its aim.....A letter from Bordeaux, France, notices the arrival and stay in that port of an English screw steamer, the Henrietta, said to be intended for the Chilian service. She is commanded by Capt. Hunter Davidson, an ex-rebel American officer, who served on the Merrimac in Hampton Roads. The majority of her officers have also been engaged in the late Confederate navy. The vessel was being made ready for sea, and her presence caused a good deal of comment.

Political Matters.

Gov. Hamilton of Texas has ordered a State election under the new Constitution, to take place June 20.

The government, it is understood, fully approves the course of Commodore Rodgers at the bombardment of Valparaiso by the Spanish fleet.

The Tennessee Senate has passed the franchise bill by 13 to 6, and it is now a law. It enfranchises over nine-tenths of the people of Tennessee.

Should the President approve the bill which recently passed Congress, Colorado will enter the Union as the thirty seventh state. It is not certain that he will approve it.

Gen. Cassius Fairchild, of Madison, Wis, has been appointed United States Marshal for Wisconsin, by the President, vice D. C. Jackson, removed, and his name is sent to the Senate.

A law recently passed in Virginia requires "foreign" insurance companies doing business in that State to deposit $30,000 to $50,000, according to their capital stock, with the State Treasurer, who is to see that the companies make good their obligations.

The Democrats and Johnson men of the "Burnt district," in Indiana, have fused in the nomination for Congressman, and will hold a joint Convention on the 17th of May. Judge Kilgore is named as the probable nominee to make the race against Julian.

The reason why Gen. Frank Blair was rejected by the Senate has not transpired. Much surprise is expressed at the result, among others by Lieut. Gen. Grant, who says that to him the country is indebted, more than to any other man, that Missouri was prevented from seceding.

The President has suspended the execution of the death sentence passed on the two South Carolinians convicted by a military commission of a murder in Charleston, also of the execution of five rebel guerilla, convicted by court martial of murdering five Union soldiers.

If you have a Washington clerkship in your eye, it will be sanitary to consider some curious figures which present themselves in the Treasury Department. There are nearly 30,000 applications on file for clerkships. About 300 new ones per week are received. There are no vacancies. The force in the Department is being reduced nearly 100 per month. There are in the Department 2,067 males and 714 females; total, 2,781 clerks of all kinds.

The President has officially proclaimed the Convention between the Empire of Japan and the Governments of the United States, Great Britain, France, and Holland, providing for the payment to these Governments of the sum of $3,000,000 for indemnity and expenses. This Convention was made in view of the hostile acts of the Prince of Nagato and Smoo, which were assuming such formidable proportions as to make it difficult for the Tycoon faithfully to observe the treaties.

The Committee on Reconstruction have finally agreed upon a report, which was presented to Congress on Monday. It includes an amendment to the Constitution, prohibiting any State from making laws to abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; apportioning representation according to numbers, excluding Indians; excluding persons voluntarily aiding in the rebellion from voting for members of Congress or for Presidential electors after 1870; and prohibiting payment of any part of the rebel debt. Bills providing for the admission of Representatives from the lately rebellious States, and excluding certain designated classes of leading rebels, will also be reported.

Financial Items.

There is a strong probability of the passage of Mr. Sherman's 30 year 5 per cent. loan bill.

The public debt statement to be issued in a day or two, will show a decrease of about six millions during the month of April.

Considerable excitement was caused in the business circles of Washington, on the 4th, by reason of the suspension of the Merchants' National Bank.

The monthly statement of the national debt for May 1st, is exceedingly gratifying as it shows that the large reduction of sixteen millions has been made during the month of April.

It may well be a cause of congratulation to every American, that in only one year after the close of a disastrous and terribly costly war, the Committee of Ways and Means in our Congress should feel at liberty to recommend the cutting down of one-fifth of our national taxes, considering the reduction fully justified by the state of the Treasury.

Southern News.

The ex-pirate Raphael Semmes is a candidate for Judge of the Probate Court of Mobile county.

A letter from Alabama reports fearful mortality among the negroes. They have scattered the small pox through town and country, and are dying rapidly.

The Convention called to consider the propriety of organizing a separate State Government for East Tennessee, met at Knoxville on the 3d inst.

The discovery of petroleum in Western Louisiana attracts much attention. A company has been formed for perfecting and bringing it to market. The coal-beds of Arkansas above are being worked.

Montgomery (Ala.) papers received contain accounts of suffering and destitution in various counties of the State. As many as 300 women have been seen at one time around the Court House on days when rations were expected, having walked from 15 to 20 miles; and within 40 miles of Montgomery there are 700 destitute in actual want of food to sustain life.

A fearful riot occurred in Memphis on the 1st, continuing until the night of the 2d, occasioned by an altercation between a white man and a negro whose wagons came into collision. The police assisted the white man, and the negroes came to the rescue of their colored brother. The affair soon reached formidable dimensions, and fire-arms were freely used. Some twelve negroes were killed, and three or four white men, before the former were put down. On the night of the 2d, about thirty houses occuppied by colored people, and all the school-houses of South Memphis, were pulled down or burned. Order has since been restored.

The New Orleans Crescent of the 20th says: A desperate duel was fought on Wednesday, in the neighborhood of the city, between an ex-Confederate and a Federal officer. The weapons were pistols, and at the first fire the Federal received the bullet of his antagonist through both lungs, causing a dangerous and probably a fatal wound. The ex-Confederate was shot through both legs, below the knee, the tibia of the right leg being broken. We believe the quarrel arose from politics. It is rumored about town that three more duels were to have been fought yesterday afternoon, and three more this morning."

Last fall, a negro woman, with five children from six months to six years of age, and her mother (who was blind, deaf, and dumb) came to the farm of a Mr. Welch, in Pontotoc county, Miss., and engaged to work. About three weeks ago Mr. Welch found her missing from the plantation, when he instituted a search and found the stair door which led up into a dark, narrow room of her house heavily barricaded and locked. After some difficulty he opened the door with an axe, and discovered the old woman and two children lying against the door, dead from starvation. Another child was at the head of the stairs, dead also. The other two were just alive, but one of them has since died; the other, it is thought, cannot survive. The missing woman was found three miles from Jackson, Mississippi, with a negro man who had been seen strolling around Mr. Welch's plantation with her. Her reason for her inhuman action was, that she did not like to work so hard to support the old woman and the "brats." She was carried back to Pontotoc county to be tried.

Incidents and Accidents.

The new residence of Henry Vorwig, at Clifton, near Cincinnati, was destroyed by fire on the 4th. Loss, $10,000. Supposed work of an incendiary.

A fire at Grand Rapids, Mich., on the 1st, destroyed the Union Hotel and four stores, with their contents. Total loss, $100,000. Insured for $40,000.

As a circus was passing through Westville, Conn., last week, a horse, on seeing the elephants, stared at them wildly for an instant, and then gave a leap into the air and fell dead.

A child in New Jefferson, Iowa, was fatally poisoned, a few days ago, by chewing pieces of an enamelled paper collar. Death ensued in two hours, and the body turned purple immediately after.

A resident of Racine, Wis., named Wetherly, went out walking with two of his children one morning last week, and the three have mysteriously disappeared. It is thought there is foul play in the matter, as he was known to have some $500 in his possession.

An old lady, aged 71 years, named Olive Richardson, was burned to death near Fredericksburg, Ind. It appears that the old lady lived alone, and her dress caught fire while cooking, and no assistance being near she was burned to a crisp before the facts became known.

The Osage Iowan states that the wife and three daughters of D. S. Sayles, living in Jenkins township, ate, on the 23d ult, what they supposed to be artichoke, but which proved to be wild parsnip,—a deadly poison. One of the girls died soon afterward. The other parties are expected to recover.

Two negro girls, sisters, named Caroline and Susan Brown, residing in Cooper county, Mo, quarrelled one day last week about which should get dinner. The matter was decided against Susan's doing so, by Caroline striking her with an axe, and killing her. Caroline is in jail at Boonville.

A drunken German in Brooklyn a few evenings since, went to sleep on the "mother earth," with his hand lying across the rail of a horse railroad track. A car came along and crushed his hand as flat as a shingle, but even that did not wake him up. He was only aroused when he arrived at the station house.

JEFFERSON DAVIS is writing a book; General Lee is writing a book; Alexander H. Stephens is writing a book; ex Senator Gwin is writing a book; and ex-Senator Hunter is writing a book. They are all writing books of excuses for secession, assigning reasons for their failure. Ex-Senator Foote and the Southern Democratic Review men are out with theirs.

Congressional Doings.

In the Senate, on the 30th, Mr. Fessenden presented the report of the Reconstruction Committee, stating that a lengthy written report would soon be prepared.....The bill authorizing the construction of a railroad bridge across the Mississippi at Quincy was passed, after being amended so as to authorize bridges at Burlington and Hannibal.....The postoffice appropriation bill was taken up, and a long and somewhat exciting discussion arose on an amendment proposed by Mr. Trumbull, providing that no official, whose appointment is made by the advice and consent of the Senate, shall receive pay for his services until confirmed by the Senate. The position was taken that an officer appointed by the advice and consent of the Senate, can only be removed by the advice and consent of the Senate. In the cours of debate, some remarks made by Mr. Davis a few days since, and suppressed by him in the official report of the proceedings, were alluded to, and denounced by Mr. Howe as "revolutionary, unconstitutional, and treasonable." The Senate adjourned without acting on the amendment.

In the House, on the 30th, a number of bills and joint resolutions, of comparatively little general interest, were introduced..... The Committee on Public Expenditures was directed to investigate the alleged revenue frauds at New York and Boston, and was authorized to sit during the recess.....The river and harbor bill was passed.....Mr. Stevens presented the report of the Reconstruction Committee, already published..... It was made the special order for Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week. .....Mr. Stevens also reported a bill making appropriations for the Freedmen's Bureau for the current year. The total amount appropriated is $11,584,000.....Mr. Stevens offered a substitute for the confiscation bill presented by him in December last, which forfeits to the United States all the public lands belonging to the late rebel States; gives 40 acres of the lands so seized to each adult male slave freed during the war; $100 for the erection of buildings on each homestead; $20,000,000 to be invested in United States securities, the interest to be added to the present pensions; $100,000,000 for equalizing bounties, and $200,000,000 to pay damages to loyal citizens sustained from rebels. Only the property of persons worth over $10,000 is to be seized under this act.

In the Senate, on the 1st, Mr. Johnson read a letter from the ex-rebel Gen. Wade Hampton, denying Gen. Sherman's charge that he had ordered the burning of Columbia, S. C., and asking the appointment of a committee to investigate the subject. The Senate declined to take any action upon it. .....The time for the completion of the first 100 miles of the Union Pacific Railroad was extended to June 27, 1866.....The consideration of Mr. Trumbull's amendment to the postal appropriation bill, refusing pay to persons appointed to fill vacancies caused by Presidential removals from office, unil confirmed by the Senate, was resumed, but no final action was taken.....The Committee of Conference on the habeas corpus bill made a report, which was agreed to, and the bill now goes to the President.

In the House, on the 1st, Messrs. Routwell and Bingham offered amendments to the bill proposed by the Committee of Fifteen. The first requires negro suffrage as a condition for the readmission of the Southern States; the second only demands a ratification, in good faith, of the constitutional amendment, and a modification of the laws and Constitutions of the States in accordance therewith.....The joint resolution making appropriations for the collection of customs was passed.....Mr. Ross offered a bill for the construction of a ship canal from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi..... The Freedmen's Bureau appropriation bill passed, 79 to 40.....The Niagara Ship Canal bill was taken up and discussed at some length. A motion to lay the bill on the table was lost by 32 to 35, and the House adjourned.

In the Senate on the 2d, Mr. Sherman introduced a bill providing for a five per cent. 30-year loan, to be called the consolidated debt of the United States, to be disposed of at not less than par, and to be applied to the payment of the existing national debt, other than greenbacks.....Mr. Williams offered an amendment to the reconstruction report, providing for the admission of Tennessee and Arkansas upon their adoption of the constitutional amendment, and for the admission of the remainder of the rebel States on the 4th of March next, the amendment having been previously adopted by them. Mr. Dixon offered an amendment providing for the immediate admission of loyal representatives.....Mr. Trumbull's amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill, refusing to pay to persons appointed to fill vacancies caused by Presidental removals from office, until confirmed by the Senate, was adopted—19 to 11—and the bill was passed.

In the House, on the 2d, an ineffectual attempt was made to introduce a resolution calling upon the President for information relative to the bombardment of Valparaiso. .....Testimony taken by the Reconstruction Committee in regard to Louisiana, Texas, and Florida, was presented,—Maj. Gen. Sheridan being one of the parties whose evidence was given. (His statement, in full, will be found among our despatches.) .....The Committee of Conference on the Cuba telegraph bill made a report, which was agreed to.

In the Senate, on the 3d, the Committee of Conference on the Cuban telegraph bill made a report, which was agreed to, and the bill now goes to the President.....A bill passed paying John Ericson $13,930 for services in relation to the war steamer Princeton.....The bill to regulate postal and commercial intercourse between the States was considered, and further action postponed until Monday.....The Postoffice appropriation bill was returned from the House in response to a resolution of the Senate, and Mr. Poland entered a motion to reconsider the vote by which it was passed. He denounced the amendment put upon it as revolutionary.

In the House, on the 3d, the vote rejecting the army bill was reconsidered, and the bill recommitted to the Committee.....Additional evidence was submitted from the Reconstruction Committee, relative to the condition in Georgia and the Carolinas..... Mr. Stevens offered a resolution tendering the congratulations of Congress to the Emperor of Russia upon his recent escape from assassination, but objection was made by Mr. Ross, and the resolution was withdrawn.....The bill admitting Colorado passed—80 to 55.....A bill transferring about 18,000 square miles from Utah, and a portion of Arizona, to Nevada, was passed, as also a bill granting land to aid in boring artesian wells along the mail route on the plains.....The bill authorizing a bridge across the Mississippi at Quincy was debated, without final action.

In the Senate, on the 4th, a petition was presented for the enactment of an eight-hour law for the men in Government employ.....The State Government of Massachusetts petitioned for reimbursement for war expenses.....The bill providing for payment for quartermaster's stores and subsistence supplies was laid over until Tuesday.....The Senate adjourned to Monday.

In the House, on the 4th, the resolution congratulating Russia on the recent escape of the Czar from assassination passed unanimously.....The Conference Committee on the habeas corpus bill made a report, which was agreed to and the bill has now passed both houses.....A bill passed creating the office of Surveyor-General of Idaho.....A lengthy discussion ensued on the bill reviving the grade of General in the army, which finally passed, by 116 to 11.

A Good Deal Mixed.

The Cincinnati Enquirer (radical Democrat) having been burned out of its former establishment, that paper is being printed at the office of the Times (radical Republican). The Commercial of that city pleasantly comments upon the incidental perplexities of the situation, as follows:

"The editorial corps of both papers occupy the same room. We can imagine the embarrassment that must occasionably results from such a mingling of political antipodes—abolition editors on one side of the table, and Democratic editors on the other, peppering away at each other with the deadly lead (pencil) and thrusting vicious stabs at each other with flashing steel (pen) to say nothing of the clash of resounding scissors, which play no unimportant part in the engagement. Just think! nothing but a narrow table between such fiery belligerents. One side trying to haul ten States into the Union by the collars of their gray jackets, and the other side endeavoring to keep them out by tugging at their abbreviated coat-tails. Between them the States are having a tough time of it.

"Enquirer editor is horrified to find himself writing an article in favor of the civil rights bill, and discovers that he has got on the wrong side of the table. Times editor, eulogizing Andy Johnson.

"The 'clippings' get mixed up on the way to the compositors, and if it were not for great circumspection on the part of the respective foreman, each paper would copy and endorse the most pernicious doctrines. Suppose the pressman should print the Enquirer on one side and the Times on the other, the mistake not being discovered until several packages had been sent off with the early mails. Who can picture the consternation which would seize the respective proprietors? Boiling with rage, they rush to the press-room together, and discharge the unfortunate pressman with one voice. The indignation of the Enquirer folks is only equalled by the shame of the Times people. Both assert, with equal bitterness, that they were never so humiliated before.

"It must be very confusing to visitors, this singular fellowship. A Copperhead from Holmes county rushes in, grasps Times editor warmly by the hands, under the impression that he is the editor of the Enquirer assuring him that 'Holmes county can't be drafted.' He dont know the war is over. Malignant radical mistakes Enquirer editor for Times editor, and thinking to curry favor with him, chuckles over the destruction of the Enquirer establishment. He is summarily kicked down stairs by the combined editors of the two papers.

"What a scene election night must present as the returns come in, each side of the table trying to figure out a victory, and each side of course, claiming it. A frantic struggle between the Times man and the Enquire. man, as each tries to thrust his flag out of the same window—compromised at last by hanging them from different stories, which is quite appropriate, from the fact that they tell different stories about the election. A brass band is played in front of the office. The serenade is claimed alike by the Times editor and the Enquirer editor. They appear at different windows and return their thanks, both speaking together, which confuses the band to such an extent that they march off in several directions, each man playing a different tune. It is a terrible mix, take it altogether."

The Return of Mr. George Peabody.

From the New York Post, May 1.

Among the passengers who arrived here this morning, on the Scotia, was Mr. George Peabody. Mr. Peabody's welcome to the land of his birth will be hearty.

Born in Danvers, Mass., on the 18th of February, 1795, he had at first to struggle with poverty, like most of our very rich men. Beginning his commercial career as clerk with a Danvers grocer, at the age of eleven; afterward employed in the same capacity at Thetford, Vt., and at Newburyport, Mass., he gradually but slowly improved his condition, until, in 1814, he became managing partner in a wholesale dry goods house, with Mr. Elisha Riggs, at Georgetown, D. C., the latter furnishing the capital. The next year the house was removed to Baltimore and prospered, and in 1822, branch houses were established in New York and Philadelphia. In 1829, by the retirement of Mr. Riggs, Mr. Peabody became the senior partner in the house, and in 1837 he took up his permanent residence in England, having previously visited that country on private business, as well as to transact important negotiations entrusted to him by the State of Maryland.

In 1843 Mr. Peabody withdrew from the dry goods business, and established himself in London as a merchant and banker; his house soon becoming the headquarters of Americans in London, and the centre of American news and intelligence.

His first large gift, sent in 1852 to his native town in Danvers, was a check for $20,000, to be expended in the founding of a town library and institute. This handsome gift was afterward increased to $60,000 besides an additional $10,000 for a branch library at North Danvers. He also contributed $10,000 to the first Grinnell expedition to the Artic Ocean, and in 1856-7 gave $300,000 to found a scientific and literary institute at Baltimore, with a pledge to increase this sum to $500,000.

His largest and most notable donations, however, have been made to the poor of the city where the most of his fortune has been made. They amount in all to $450,000 sterling—a gift so magnificent as to have lately received the especial acknowledgement of Queen Victoria, in a letter which we published a few days since. This unprecedented donation was not the display of an ostentatious and unexceptionable liberality, but was so much in harmony with Mr. Peabody's known generosity of character, as to deserve the universal commendation it received.

Mr. Peabody, although now past seventy years of age, has, we trust, yet before him many years of vigorous life and usefulness

American Manufactures—The American Watch Co. of Waltham, Mass.

Every one knows that the mechanism of the best manufactories of this country is unequalled in any part of the world. The genius of American mechanics produced the cotton-gin, the mechanical reaper and mower, the sewing machine, and last but not least, the wonderful machinery of the American Watch Company of Waltham. This Company was established in 1850, and has grown in proportions which entitle it to a first rank among the manufacturing enterprises of the New World. It employs between 900 and 1,000 artisans of superior skill and character, and a large and thriving town has grown up in its vicinity. The factory covers over three acres of ground, and as an illustration of its extent, we may mention that it is supplied with more than 60 miles of iron pipes and produces an aggregate of nearly 75,000 watches per annum. The founders of this company believed that the same delicate mechanical process which had produced such remarkably perfect results in larger machines, might be applied with even greater advantage to the production of the watch. The foreign time pieces are made principally by hand, and except when of high cost, an imperfect article, often out of repair, and of little value is the result. Abroad, these mysterious and infinitesimal organs which, when aggregated, produce the watch, are the fruit of slow and toilsome manual process. In the results, there must of course be a lack of that perfect uniformity which is indespensible for correct time-keeping. The constituent parts of the American watch, on the other hand, are fashioned by the most delicate and accurate machinery. Wheels, pinions, springs, screws, absolutely uniform in weight, circumference, dimensions, and in every possible particular, are turned out in myriads by unerring fingers of steel, and their proper combination and adjustment by skilful workmen have given the company its high repetation. Its watches not only go with the trade and go in the pockets of 200,000 people, but they go right and go everywhere.—Exchange.

MR. CYRUS W. FIELD returned from England last week, in the Persia, after having launched another great expedition to lay the Atlantic Telegraph cable. This is his thirty-sixth voyage across the ocean on this enterprise, to which he has devoted the last twelve years of his life. Such indomitable perseverance deserves success, and we trust will command it. All preparations are going forward with the greatest rapidity. They are manufacturing over a hundred miles of cable a week. Mr. Field remains here but six weeks, and returns to England to join the Great Eastern, which is expected to sail the last of June. All connected with the former expedition feel sure of success this time. They hope to have telegraphic communication established between the two hemispheres in the month of July.

THE MARKETS.

	New York, May 5.
COTTON—Middling	$ 34	@ .35
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	9 20	@ 9 55
WHEAT—New No. 1. Milwaukee	1 97	@ 2 00
BARLEY		@ .90
CORN—Sound Western	.81	@ .82
OATS—New Western	48	@ 51
PETROLEUM—Crude	.26½	@ .27
PORK—Mess new	29 50	@ 29 60
BEEF HAMS	41 50	@ 42 00
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	12.00	@ 16 00
DRY GOODS—Merrimacs	.18	@ .19
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville		@ .37
Brown Sheetings—Amoskeag		@ .22
Delaines—Manchester		@ .22½
Denims—Manchester		@ .35
GOLD—1.27⅞

	Chicago, May 7, 1866.
BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$80.00	@120.00
SHEVES—Stock to prime	4 25	@$ 6 87
BEANS	.75	@ 1 25
BRAN	9 00	@ 10 00
BUTTER—Good Tub	.20	@ .22
CHEESE—Western	.20	@ .21
COFFEE—Rio	.24½	@ .28
Java	.39	@ .40
EGGS	.14	@ .15
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	6.00	@ 7.00
Malaga Lemons	7.00	@ 7 25
Dried N. Y. Apples	.16	@ .17
Peaches Pared	.33	@ .35
Raisins, M. R.	4.70	@ 4 60
FLOUR—Winter White	11.00	@ 14 00
Spring Extra	8 00	@ 10 25
Rye per bbl		@ 4.30
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	10 25	@ 10. 0
Whitefish, " "	8 50	@ 8.75
Codfish, per hundred	6.00	@ 8.00
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.47	@ .48
Oats "	.30	@ .31
Rye	.63	@ .64
Wheat—Spring No. 1	1 48	@ 1.58½
Barley Canadian—sample	1.05	@ 1.12
HIGHWINES	2.22	@ 2.23
HAY	21	@ .22
LUMBER—Common floring, rough	30.00	@ 32.00
PORK—Mess		@ 30 00
POTATOES	.45	@ .60
SHEEP—Medium, wooled	5.00	@ 5.75
SUGARS—Cuba	.12½	@ .14
New York Refined	.17	@ .17½
White B	.15½	@ .15¾
SEEDS—Timothy, ⅞ bag	3.50	@ 5.50
Clover	5.75	@ 6 75
SALT—Fine	2.25	@ 2 35
Coarse		@ 2 00
SHINGLES—No. 1, Sawed	3.50	@ 3.75
TALLOW	.10½	@ .11

VALUABLE INFORMATION to those suffering from disease of the Kidneys, Bladder and Weakness, so common, causing severe pains in the back, inflammation in the Urinary Organs, &c. DR. SWAIN'S Morning Beverage removes all obstructions and restores the entire viscera of the Pelvis to its normal condition. Use SWAIN'S HAIR BALSAM.

A Household Necessity Exists for the use of Durno's Celebrated Catarrh Snuff.

The best known remedy for "a Cold in the Head." Headache, Snuffles, Sore Eyes, Deafness, and the worst forms of that loathsome disease, CATARRH.

It cleanses the entire head. Its effects are pleasant and wonderful, contains no tobacco, nor injurious ingredient. It has the highest professional testimonials. Sold by all Druggists for 25 cents per Box. Can be sent by mail on receipt of 30 cents for one Box, or $1 for four Boxes. Address JAS. DURNO, Postoffice Box 1235, New York City. Wholesale by D. BARNES & CO., 21 Park Row, New York.

DEAD HEADS,

or, in other words, heads whose once glorious locks have

Withered and Whitened,

can in a few moments be re-clothed with all their

YOUTHFUL ATTRACTIONS,

by a single application of that wonderful talisman,

Cristadoro's Hair Dye,

Grizzled whiskers and moustaches, ladies' curls into which the snow of age has prematurely drifted, and red, sandy, or whitey-brown hair, receive, as if by magic, the rarest shades of black or brown from this harmless botanical hair darkener. Manufactured by J. CRISTADORO, 6 Astor House, New York. Sold by Druggists. Applied by all Hair Dressers.

Fever and Ague Extinguished.

Martyrs to Intermittent Fever, a word with you. The responsibility for your suffering rests upon yourselves. Just as sure as you shake to-day, or will shake to-morrow, HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS will extinguish the disease under which you labor. Had you taken this genial tonic as a preventive, you would have no need of it as a cure for it renders the system impervious to all miasmatic fevers. But since you neglected the precaution, rid yourselves without delay of the complaint by resorting to the only reliable remedy. Break the chills with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS, and they will return no more. This is the experience of thousands, and is the experience of thousands, and it will be yours. Quinine is a slow means of relief; it is nauseous to the last degree; it is more dangerous than the malady itself; in many cases it utterly fails. How different is the effect of the BITTERS. Their curative action is rapid; they are agreeable to the palate; they are not only entirely harmless, but tend inevitably to strengthen the constitution and prolong life; they never have failed, and it is confidently assumed that they never can fail in any case of Fever and Ague, however inveterate in its character. To be without HOSTETTER'S BITTERS in any region infested with Intermittent or Remittent Fever, is simply to reject safety and court disease.

BUT THE BEST REMEDY.—Morrell's Electro Magnetic Fluid, in all cases where ablution can reach a complaint, has been found the surest and speediest remedy known. Try it. See advertisement.

A SINGLE BOX OF BRANDRETH'S PILLS contains more vegetable extractive matter than twenty boxes of any pills in the world besides; fifty-five hundred physicians use them in their practice to the exclusion of other purgatives. The first letter of their value is yet scarcely appreciated. When they are better known, sudden death and continued sickness will be of the past. Let those who know them speak right out in their favor. It is a duty that will save life.

Our race are subject to a redundancy of vitiated bile at this season, and it is as dangerous as it is prevalent; but Brandreth's Pills afford an invaluable and efficient protection. By their occasional use we prevent the collection of those impurities, which, when in sufficient quantities, cause so much danger to the body's health. They soon cure the liver complaint, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, pain in the head, heartburn, pain in the breast-bone, sudden faintness and costiveness. Sold by all respectable Dealers in Medicines.

DR. SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS.

A Healthy Tonic, Gentle Stimulant, and Unequaled Morning Appetizer, prepared in

RIPE OLD BOURBON WHISKEY

FREE FROM GRAIN OIL,

With Flowers, Buds and Barks of the Highest Medicinal Virtue.

By increasing the appetite, assisting digestion, regulating the bowels, and giving tone to the system, they impart strength and vigor to the body and cheerfulness to the mind.

☞ If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters, have him send for them.

☞ Remember the name, and take no other.

For sale by leading Druggists and Grocers everywhere.

C. H. SWAIN,

Proprietor, 34 S. Water St., Chicago.

Reduction in Price of the

AMERICAN WATCHES

MADE AT

WALTHAM, MASS.

In consequence of the recent great decline in gold and silver and in all the materials used in the manufacture of our goods, and in anticipation of a still further decline, we have reduced our prices to as low a point as they can be placed

WITH GOLD AT PAR,

so that no one need hesitate to buy a watch now from the expectation that it will be cheaper at some future time. The test of ten years, and the manufacture and sale of

MORE THAN 200,000 WATCHES,

have given our productions the very highest rank among time-keepers. Commencing with the determination to make only thoroughly excellent watches, our business has steadily increased as the public became acquainted with their value, until for months together we have been unable to supply the demand. We have repeatedly enlarged our factory building, until they now cover over three acres of ground, and give accommodation to more than eight hundred workmen.

We are fully justified in stating that we now make more than one-half of all the watches sold in the United States. The different grades are distinguished by the following marks engraved on the plate:

1. "American Watch Co." Waltham, Mass.
2. "Appleton, Tracy & Co." Waltham, Mass.
3. "P. S. Bartlett," Waltham, Mass.
4. "Wm. Ellery."
5. OUR LADIES' WATCH of the first quality is named "Appleton, Tracy & Co.," Waltham, Mass.
6. Our next quality of Ladies' Watch is named "P. S. Bartlett," Waltham, Mass. These watches are furnished in a great variety of sizes and styles of cases.

The American Watch Company, of Waltham, Mass., authorize us to state that without distinction of trade marks or price, to be the best time-keepers of their class ever made in this or any other country. Buyers should remember that, unlike the guarantee of a foreign maker, who can never be reached, this warrantee is good at all times against the Company or their agents, and that after the most thorough trial any watch should prove defective in any particular, it may always be exchanged for another. As the American Watches made at Waltham are for sale by dealers generally throughout the country, we do not solicit orders for single watches.

All the Products of their Factory are Fully Warranted

Caution.—The public are cautioned to buy only of respectable dealers. All persons selling counterfeits will be prosecuted.

Robbins & Appleton,

AGENTS FOR THE AMERICAN WATCH COMPANY,

182 Broadway, New York.

The "Columbian" Gin.

This Gin is the purest and very best article ever offered to the public. It is the distillation of the best American malt spirits and Italian juniper berries. Those who find a diuretic stimulant necessary, should never be without it.

The proprietors of the Columbian Gin do not undertake to advertise it as a quack medicine; yet they feel guaranteed in saying that for those requiring a pure liquor, no better can be procured.

Imported gins, etc., are now nearly out of the question, on account of the extraordinary high import duties imposed upon them—which are always payable in gold—so that a home-made article, equal in all respects to any imported, should receive the attention of consumers.

Doctor Blaney, the well-known chemist of Chicago says: "It's the very best article, both as to quality and strength of flavor, that I have ever tested."

For sale by all respectable druggists and liquor dealers in the United States.

W. T. SHU

Miscellany.

A LITTLE GOOSE.

The chill November day was done,
The working world home-faring
The wind came roaring through the streets,
And set the gas lights flaring;
And helplessly and aimlessly
The scared old leaves were flying.
When, mingled with the coughing wind,]
I heard a small voice crying.

And shivering on the corner stood
A child of three or over,
No cloak nor hat her small soft arms
And wind-blown curls to cover;
Her dimpled face was strained with tears,
Her round blue eyes ran over;
She cherished in her wee, cold hand
A bunch of faded clover.

And one hand round her treasure, while
She slipped in mine the other,
Half scared, half confidential, said,
"Oh, please, I want my mother"
"Tell me your street and number, pet;
Don't cry, I'll take you to it"
Sobbing, she answered, "I forget:
The organ made me do it.

"He came and played at Miller's step,
The monkey took the money;
I followed down the street because
The monkey was so funny;
I've walked about a hundred hours,
From one street to another;
The monkey's gone; I've spoiled my flowers—
O, please, I want my mother."

"But what's your mother's name, and what The street? Now think a minute"
"My mother's name is mother dear,
The street, I can't begin it"
"But what is strange about the house,
Or new, not like the others?"
"I guess you mean my trundle bed—
Mine, and my little brother's."

The sky grew stormy, people passed,
All muffled, homeward-laring;
"You'll have to spend the night with me,"
—I said at last despairing.
I tied a 'kerchief round her neck—
"What ribbon's this, my blossom?"
"Why, don't you know?" she, smiling, said,
And drew it from her bosom.

A card, with number, street and name;
My eyes, astonished met it;
"For," says the little one, "you see,
I might sometimes forget it;
And so I wear all the thing
That tells you all about it,
For mother says she's very sure
I would get lost without it."

The Barrister's Wig.

"The wisdom is in the wig" is a very common proverb, and, like most of the common proverbs, doubtless contains a considerable amount of truth. To prove this, the reader has only to attend one of our law courts for a day or two, and he will then hear opinions carrying great weight with them, which, if uttered out of court, and by an individual in a private dress, would be thought very common-place indeed. But not only is there a great amount of wisdom in the wig, but a great amount of wit and humor as well; or, how should we read in the newspapers of the mirth elicited at our trials by the very dull jokes occasionally uttered by the members of the bar? We read in the Reports, of a barrister who said "He would rather not answer that question" (a laugh). Another will say, "No, I thank you" (great laughter). "Thank you, I am not to be caught in that way" (here the court was convulsed with laughter for some minutes, in which the learned judge joined heartily). Now out of court, all these saying seems powerless enough, but in court their humor appears to be irresistible.

Although it has long been a favorite idea with me, that there is occasionally more wit and humor in the wig than in the individual wearing it, it is only lately that I have been convinced of the fact. Possibly I may be accused, and with justice, of putting a little acrimony in the statement of my opinion for I was lately in the witness-box for more than an hour, the butt of a barrister with a witty wig.

I am a surgeon in considerable practice in a large country town, and was subpoenaed to give evidence in an assault case, in which the plaintiff was my patient for some time, in consequence of the injuries he had received. As the plaintiff, and old farmer was half drunk at the time of the assault (he had been dining with some other farmers of his acquaintance after the market was over), it was, naturally, the policy of the counsel for the defence to prove that he was thoroughly intoxicated, and that the injuries he had received arose from his own helpless condition. Of course, if he could break down the medical evidence it would mitigate his client's cause greatly, if not completely exonerate him from blame.

I attended at the court on the appointed day, and was sworn. I mounted the witness-box with a feeling somewhat akin to awe at the solemnity of the oath I had taken, and with a resolution conscientiously to speak the strict truth in all things.

My evidence in favor of the prosecution went off smoothly enough, and, to tell the honest truth I felt somewhat proud of it. Then the cross-examination began. Here a great change took place. The counsel for the defence had the reputation of being a wag, and I soon found my position change from that of a grave scientific witness into the Jack Pudding of the court. The amount of mirth the counsel contrived to elicit from my evidence was astonishing; yet, for the life of me, I could see no subject for jesting whatever. He inquired in what manner I made the distinction between having drunk a little too much and being drunk; what amount of beer, or wine, or spirit I considered would have the effect of knocking a man down, and many other questions of the same description. Seeing everybody laughing, I began to think possibly I did not give my answers carefully enough; the effect of the oath I had taken being still strong within me. I therefore gave my replies more circumstantially, as I imagined; but the questions increased in facetiousness in consequence, and my answers caused more mirth than before I then thought that perhaps, in my serious mood, I did not appreciate sufficiently the wit of the learned gentleman, and I paid great attention to his words in order to find out in what their humor consisted. But in vain. His questions appeared to me to be simply what in vulgar parlance is called chaffing, and nothing more. By degrees I got so much confused that I made a very simpleton of myself, and contradicted my own statements at least a dozen times over. At last, when he had contrived to make me neutralize completely the truthful evidence I had given in my examination in chief, he allowed me to leave the box; and I did so under the unpleasing impression that I had made a great fool of myself.

I left the court immediately, and the trial went on without me. But in the evening, I had the unpleasant intelligence that my patient had lost his case, principally owing to the uncomplimentary remarks made by the judge on my evidence, in his summing up.

But the annoyance did not stop here. The next day, not only the local papers, but the London journals as well, had a full account of the trial, in which I figured in by no means a flattering manner; There was the usual parenthetical remarks,—(The cross-examination of the witness elicited great mirth in the court); (The judge could with difficulty maintain his gravity); (Great laughter, which the ushers had much difficulty in repressing); and many other expressions of the same kind. At first I was naturally greatly annoyed at this, but in a few days the feeling wore off; still, it frequently returned to my mind, and on more than one occasion I attempted to analyze the cause of so much mirth arising from so serious a subject, and with so little real wit on the part of the barrister. At last a vague suspicion arose in my mind that it was due in great measure to the wig; but how to prove my conclusion puzzled me extremely. When I least expected it, however, chance threw an opportunity in my way.

One morning, on leaving my house, my attention was arrested by a long procession on horseback coming up the street, dressed in a most motley manner. They were the company of an equestrian circus which had arrived that morning in town. Their advent had been advertised some days before, and, as usual, the first great feature of their performance was their parade through the streets. The sight was certainly a very brilliant affair: the circus was one of celebrity, the troupe was numerous, the dresses magnificent, and they appeared to make a great impression on the beholders. But, one thing struck me as abnormal,—there was no clown. To leave the clown out of a circus troupe is to take the whole romance out of the thing. All its intellect is destroyed, and nothing but a body of mere mechanism remains.

I was aroused from my speculations by a little slipshod girl pulling my coat, and telling me that my services were immediately required at the "Coach and Horses," where a lady was in want of my assistance. I should here mention that the "Coach and Horses" is a large second-rate inn, much patronized by the small farmers and their servants on market days. Having no very urgent case on hand, I immediately went with my little guide to see my new patient. When we arrived at the inn we found the whole place in a state of great bustle and confusion. The circus troupe had taken up their quarters in it, and the place was strewed with boxes, traveling apparatus, children (and of whom there was a swarm) and old men and women; for circus people have generally a great love for the young of their profession, and a great respect for the old.

The only able-bodied person I met in the court-yard was a man about thirty years of age, a quiet, decent, active-looking fellow enough.

"O, I am so glad you are come, sir," said he, "my wife is so ill, I am quite frightened about her; come this way, if you please."

I followed him up a broken staircase into a sort of garret, where I found my patient. She was a meek little woman, at that moment on the point of becoming a mother.

The case was a difficult one, but at last all ended successfully, and I called the husband and told him the good news. He appeared greatly delighted, and I left him in charge of his wife and baby, promising to call again in a couple of hours to see how the young mother was getting on.

It was about three o'clock before I again visited my patient. I found she was going on well, and I tod her husband my opinion.

"I am very glad to hear it, sir. Do you think I might leave her for an hour in charge of that little girl? I ought to go to rehearsal, or I shall be fined if I am not there."

"O yes; there is no danger whatever; to-night I will send you a proper nurse, if you want one."

"No, thank you, sir, there is no occasion for that; our women are very kind to each other."

He now put on his hat, and we left the house together.

"I did not know you were one of the circus performers," I said, as we continued on our way.

"I am the clown, sir," he said, "and I suspect they would hardly get on without me. I am sure I am glad affairs have gone on so well. I never can do anything if I feel at all low-spirited."

"Did I understand that you are now going to rehearsal!"

"Yes, sir; but I shall soon be back; I have not much to say."

As he spoke we came in sight of the circus, which had arisen the night before as if by magic. It was very large, and had the flags of all nations indiscriminately hoisted around it. I asked my companion if I might see the interior.

"Certainly, sir, if you wish it. Come with me, and there will be no difficulty."

We entered the circus.

A responsible-looking man, with a whip in his hand, was standing in the centre of the circle, and a young lady in a practising dress was seated on a bare-backed horse by his side.

"Just in time, Tommy," said the man with the whip, "just in time; if you had been a minute later, you would have been fined sure as a gun."

Tommy made no answer, but walked up to the young lady's side, and, looking for a moment into her face, said:

"Please, sir, she knows me; she looked at me."

The master then smacked his whip, and the horse started off at a hand gallop, he following her, while Tommy, the clown, walked in the ring-master's wake, his hands in his pockets, and wearing at the same time a very thoughtful expression. Each time the horse stopped, Tommy uttered some absurdity too stupid to be worth naming. I remained in the circus for half an hour, and then left it, wondering greatly how the miserable platitudes I heard my friend Tommy utter could by any possibility raise a laugh in the evening. Probably, I thought, the dress might have something to do with it, and most of all the wig. Yes, the wig of the circus clown is as peculiar in its constitution as that of a barrister, and the clown's wit was doubtless in his wig. However, as it was merely a surmise on my part, I resolved to attend the performance in the evening and judge for myself.

In the evening, after seeing my patient was going on well, I went to the circus to witness the performance. The whole place certainly presented a different aspect from that I had seen in the morning. It was brilliantly lighted and tastefully decorated, and was well filled with spectators; a circumstance which added much to the lively impression the sight made on me. The performance shortly after commenced, and at last Tommy, the clown, made his appearance. The scene was that with the young lady which I had seen in the morning. But how different was the result of his jokes! In the morning those which appeared flat and insipid were now pungent and sparkling. When in the morning he told the ring-master "that the young lady knew him, for she looked at him," nothing could be more melancholy. In the evening the same remark caused a violent fit of laughter.

I now examined the clown's wig. It was absurd, exceedingly absurd, but not more so than the barrister's. No human head of hair I had ever seen resembled the clown's, but neither did I ever see one that resembled the wig of a barrister. I now fully came to the conclusion that I had not made a fool of myself at the trial, but that the laughter and merriment which had been so uproarious in court was caused by the barrister's wig, and not by the stupidity and vacillation of my answers.

That night I slept little, so much was my mind occupied with the wig question. At last I remembered that the principal hairdresser in town had a magnificent barrister's wig in his shop window, which he regularly dressed with great care the week before the assizes were to be held. He had formerly been assistant to a hairdresser in the Temple, and on removing from London, he had brought with him the legal tastes he had acquired during his residence there. This man was my constant patient, and a very good understanding existed between us. It occurred to me that I had an excellent opportunity of experimenting as to what was really the humorous power in the barrister's wig. If I could get him to lend me the wig for a night or two, which I felt assured he would readily do, and if I could persuade my friend Tommy, the clown, (his name in the bills was Signor Ludovico Selvaccio) to perform in it for a couple of nights, I could arrive at a tolerably certain conclusion on the matter. I resolved at any rate to try my influence on my two friends; and after having duly prepared my plan of action, I succeeded in going to sleep

The next day, after seeing my gratis patients, I walked to the house of my friend the hairdresser. I found him at home, somewhat dyspeptic as usual. I inquired, with great patience and tenderness after his malady, and promised to send him some medicine. I then made some inquiries after his wife, who suffered from the disease even more than her husband. Fortunately they had no children, or my stay might have been prolonged considerably, for there was a great tendency to prolixity in the worthy couple when speaking of their maladies. All was at last terminated, and, with some little fear and trepidation, I broached the subject of the barrister's wig. I experienced far greater difficulty than I had anticipated. At first he was willing enough to lend me the wig; but when he understood it was to adorn the head of a circus clown, he immediately withdrew his promise. He told me he had a great respect for the whole legal profession, and enumerated different eminent lawyers whose wigs he had dressed when he resided in London; and on no account, even to oblige me, would he do anything to bring that profession into ridicule.

I was almost in despair, but still did not give up all hope; so I changed the subject into a lecture on dyspepsia, and the tremendous evils attendant on that malady if it were not carefully and scientifically treated. I found, as I went on, the faces of both husband and wife lengthen, and I took good care not to let the impression of fear under which they were evidently laboring in any way lessen. Having raised a considerable amount of terror in the minds of the worthy couple, I somewhat abruptly left them. I, however, went no farther than the next house, a stationer's, and I there occupied myself in looking with great intentness on some colored prints in the shop windows.

Presently, as I had fully expected, the hairdresser's wife came to me, and told me her husband wished to speak to me. I immediately returned; and he then said he had reconsidered the matter, and was perfectly ready to lend me the wig. "I will," he continued, "merely put a finishing touch to it, and you will find it at your house when you return." I sincerely thanked him for his kindness, and instantly proceeded to seek my friend the clown.

I found my patient progressing favorably, as well as her baby; Tommy himself was in the room when I arrived. He had the infant in his arms, and was gazing at it with great satisfaction and pride in his countenance. Seeing he was in a favorable state of mind to listen to my application, I immediately opened the subject. I told him I had a great favor to ask, and I trusted he would not be offended. I wanted to try an experiment that evening with his assistance, and he would greatly oblige me by wearing for the occasion a barrister's wig instead of his own. He appeared greatly astonished at my request, and I feared he would refuse me; but I was most agreeably disappointed.

"Offended, sir," he replied; "not at all. I will do it with pleasure. Why, the idea is sublime! How wonderful it is," he continued, "that so simple a dodge should never have been thought of before!" Then again his expression fell almost to sadness. "What a pity it is," said he, "I have not a wig of the kind, nor is there one in the whole of our properties."

I told him that I had a magnificent one at home, which was perfectly at his service. He expressed himself most gratified for my kindness, and it was arranged he should call at my house for the wig on his road to the circus.

The evening came, and I left the house to attend the performance. On my way I met the Rev. Mr. Jones, a lately arrived curate. He was a tall, thin man, of most austere principles, despising all worldly amusements, and preaching against them on all possible occassions; yet, withal, he was most conscientious, charitable, and pious. When I saw him I tried to avoid him, for to say the truth I was somewhat ashamed at his knowing I was going to pass the evening at the circus. He recognized me, however, and crossed over the road to speak to me.

"You will be surprised," said he, after our first inquiries as to each other's health were over, "to hear that I am going to spend the evening at the circus."

"I am delighted to hear it," I replied, "for I shall have a companion then; I am going there myself."

"But I fear," said he, "we are not both bound on the same errand. My purpose is to address the audience between the acts, as I believe they call them, on the sin of wasting their time on follies of the kind."

"I trust, Jones, you will do nothing of the sort. You will make yourself greatly disliked if you do; and that would be a pity, as you are really a very good fellow."

"Indeed," said he, "I shall keep to my determination. I believe I have a duty to perform, and I will go through with it."

I was much annoyed when he told me so, for I really liked him; but, finding he was determined, I said nothing more on the subject, resolving to sit beside him during the performance, and to restrain him as much as I could.

We arrived at the paying place, and took our seats exactly opposite the performer's entrance. In a short time the place was completely filled, and the performance commenced. During the first two acts of horsemanship no clown appeared; but in the third, "The Flower-girl," Tommy entered the ring. He announced himself by calling out, in the clown's hoarse voice, "Here we are; how are you?" The effect of the wig was wonderful. For in a moment all were silent, and then the laughter began: and such laughter! I never before witnessed anything like it.

When it had somewhat subsided, Tommy advanced to the master of the ring, who was so splendidly dressed that it almost dazzled me to look at him, and said, "How is your mother?" The laughter again rose as loudly as before, and was even longer in subsiding.

Never did Tommy achieve a greater success than on that evening. Everything he said told, no matter how stupid it might be. When the Wild Huntsman of the Wood started off, Tommy requested him to give his love to the cook, and the mirth was so boisterous it was some time before the wild huntsman could hear the music.

A policeman, with a remarkably stolid countenance, was standing at the door. Tommy advanced towards him, and shaking him by the hand, inquired affectionately after the health of his inspector. The policeman was instantly so overcome with laughter, that he was obliged to seat himself on a bench to recover himself. Mirth that evening was perfectly contagious; and even my reverend friend, on more than one occasion, struggled hard to conceal a smile. But he did not succeed in the attempt.

The programme of the first act had now been gone through, and the performers were on the point of leaving the circus, when Tommy addressed the master of the ring.

"If you please, sir, may I sing a song?"

"I did not know you could sing, Mr. Merriman."

"O yes, sir, I can; I used to sing at the great 'uproar house' in London."

"I am afraid that is a mistake, Mr. Merriman."

"No, sir, it is not; I once got ten guineas for singing a song there."

"You must excuse me, Mr. Merriman, but that I'm sure is an error."

"No, sir, it is not; and I can prove it in a moment.

"Pray do."

"Well, then, sir, I was to have five guineas for singing the song, and when I had half done they offered me five more to leave off. I can sing it now if you like."

"I have no objection, if the audience has none."

Tommy immediately turned round to the orchestra.

Of course the orchestra sounded an immense discord, and Tommy placed himself in an attitude for singing.

"There was once a little maid
Who lived by her trade,
Whom her lover wanted to wheedle;
When from pretty little Miss
He tried to get a kiss,
She scratched his nose with a needle.

"Then this little maid,
She was very much afraid
That her lover would come to-o-o her,
So she got into bed,
Put her nightcap on her head,
And fastened up the door with a skewer."

No laughter that had occurred during the of the whole evening was equal to that elicited by the song, and Tommy made his exit amidst a shower of applause.

No sooner had the mirth somewhat subsided, when to my intense horror, my friend and neighbor, Rev. Mr. Jones, rose from his seat, and, in spite of all my entreaties to the contrary, began to address the audience.

"My dear friends," he said, "pray listen for a few moments to me, for, believe me, I am solely actuated by a desire for your good. Do not think that I want to restrain any innocent amusement; but let me ask you if a a scene like this is a proper one for beings with immortal souls? Would not the attention you are here giving to irrational exercises and gross absurdities be far better employed in reflecting on the wickedness of your past lives, and making preparation for the great change which must some day overtake us all? with which the strongest cannot wrestle, nor the fleetest avail. Death may approach us at any hour, noiselessly and without notice. He may choose for his victims the young or the old, the rich or the poor. This very night He may call some of these present away, and what is the preparation, which has been made to receive him? When I look around me—"

Here he stopped short, and the muscles of his face underwent a series of extraordinary spasmodic contortions, while his eyes were intently fixed on the performers' entrance. I looked toward it and saw the head of Tommy, still arrayed in the barrister's wig, gazing from between the green baize curtans, as if he were looking out of bed, straight at the face of my reverend friend. Poor Jones tried to continue, but it was impossible; and at last, in spite of all his efforts to restrain himself, he burst into a hearty laugh. Then taking up his hat hurridly, he left the circus, the eyes of the audience at the time being fixed on the clown.

The circus remained two days longer in the town, and on each performance Tommy wore his new wig, which was a perfect success.

I would now earnestly press on all circus managers my advice to adopt Tommy's experiment. It would not only be sure to succeed, and put money in their pockets; but very probably in the end they would assist in banishing from the British courts of justice that ridiculous piece of tomfoolery,—the barrister's wig.

The Great Fire at Detroit.

From the Detroit Post, April 27.

Last evening at about 10 o'clock, while an employee of the Detroit and Milwaukee Railroad Company was rolling a barrel of kerosene oil from the company's buildings at the foot of Brush street, in this city, to those of the Great Western Railroad Company adjoining, where it was to be stored, the barrel sprung a leak. The man at once called a cooper to repair the cask, and stop the flow of oil, and while this operation was being performed, some one passed with a light. The gas from the escaping oil communicated therewith, setting fire instantly to the barrel and its contents. An explosion at once followed, and the burning oil ran down along the dock in all directions, communicating to other barrels of kerosene upon the premises, until with almost lightning rapidity the flames reached the freight house and the passenger depot of the Detroit and Milwaukee Railroad, and the freight boat Windsor, which was lying at the dock.

The buildings, being of wood, burnt like tinder, and were soon a mass of seething, crackling flames. At the time of the breaking out of the fire, there were some 55 men at work on the boat and premises, and in the confusion of the moment and the fright incident thereto, some lost all presence of mind, and, instead of endeavoring to subdue the flames, rushed wildly to and fro along the pier. Others jumped from the boat into the river, and were picked up while clinging to the docks, or floating down the stream. Meanwhile the vessel, wrapped in fire, swung loose from her moorings and floated down the stream, lighting up the shores on either side, and reminding one of the "fire-boats" the rebels sent down the Mississippi.

The scene was grand beyond description. Every mast, spar, rope, and tackle of the vessels anchored along the channel were most distinctly and clearly outlined against the sky. On the shore was fire; on the river fire; and on both land and water the Fire King held his revels. On shore were the sturdy firemen battling with might and main the fiery element. In the stream was the burning "Windsor," drifting along with the fast-sweeping current. Obeying no helm, she ground against the docks, brushed here a steamer and there a sail-boat, and then shot for a moment into the channel, only to be swept by the changing current again toward the shore. Small tugs ran here and there, cutting loose the varied fastened water-crafts, and towing them to places of safety. At last the burning steamer struck the foot of Woodward avenue, and, being momentarily held fast, the captain of the ferry-boat "Detroit" succeeded in grappling and towing her into deep water in the middle of the river, where she could no longer endanger valuable property, and where, when fire had done its best, water—her native element—might fold her in its embrace, and hide her charred and ruined frame.

In passing Brush street, a man, since ascertained to be Mr. Daniel McCuen, residing on the Second gravel road at Windsor, was seen clinging to one of the stanchions back of the wheel-house. He was rescued by some citizens, who put off to his assistance in a small boat, and taken to the American Hotel, in this city, more frightened than hurt.

Many instances of manly daring and pluck were exhibited, but one, at least, deserved special mention.

Officer Peter Grogan, Mr. William Burrell, and Mr. T. Westbrook, broke into a boat house, and taking therefrom an old waterlogged craft, pushed out to the rescue of the drowning men, who were endeavoring to support themselves on pieces of board and floating boxes. They succeeded in saving four persons, but two others perished before they could reach them. There were undoubtedly several lives lost, but in the hurry and confusion of the moment we could not learn positively of any other than these.

The firemen worked nobly to conquer the flames in the depot and adjoining buildings, but for nearly two hours were unable to make headway against the devouring element. The freight depot, the offices adjacent, and the freight piled on the docks all contributed to swell the column of smoke and fire. The barrels of oil upon the pier caught, and one by one exploded, thus constantly adding fresh fuel thereto. Water seemed neither to quench nor control it. A loaded freight train, which, owing to the immense heat could not be removed, was also ignited, and the greater portion consumed. The mails from the East, and those going West, were destroyed. The baggage was but partially removed, and most valuable papers belonging to the company were either burned up or so trampled under foot in the mud as to be entirely useless and illegible. The houses on the opposite side of the street were only saved by being kept soaked with water. Furniture of all kinds was removed and the dwellings emptied of their contents. It seemed at one time as if they must surely be consumed, as there was a strong wind blowing, and the steamers, although working with might and main, seemed unable to subdue the flames, which were gaining rapidly on them. The roofs of the burning buildings fell in one by one; then for a moment blazing up brighter than before, would fade into a mass of brilliant coals, shooting out occasionally a hungry, angry, disappointed jet of lurid flames seemingly anxious for further food to feast upon.

Along the docks down the river a number of small frame buildings were allowed to burn, as more valuable property needed attention. Several men who were attempting to remove the valuables in the upper story of the main office, narrowly escaped being smothered to death by the smoke, all the ladders and methods of communication with the street having been taken away in the excitement of the moment. Their cries for help attracted the attention of those below, and they were finally rescued from their perilous situation.

A large pile of lumber was thrown into the river to prevent its being consumed. Some, however, having ignited, floated down the stream, adding, with its half-extinguished light, to the ghastly grandeur of the scene.

The loss is estimated by several officers of the company at $500,000, and this will, probably, in view of the damage to property and the delay in carrying on the business of the road, be a very light estimate.

From the Detroit Post, April 28.

The steamer Windsor, which was lying at the dock, ignited almost instantaneously. At the time the fire broke out, Capt. Clinton was standing about 300 feet from the depot. He started at once for his vessel, but the flames spread so rapidly that he found himself unable to reach her. Running down the dock a short distance, he procured a small boat, and pushed out into the river, succeeding in arriving at the steamer in time to save the lives of a number of the hands.

William Kirby, the mate of the Windsor, was on board in charge, and as soon as he discovered the fire, ringing the bell for the boat to swing clear of the dock, but before anything could be done the vessel was in flames. Seeing that no time was to be lost, he thereupon ran aft, called the men to save themselves by jumping into the river, and, as they did so, threw life-preservers to as many as he could see.

The number who perished is as yet unknown. It is believed that at least 20 lives were lost. The captain of the Windsor states that 13 men, who are known to have been upon that vessel, are missing.

A man in a state of stupefied intoxication, known to have been on board one of the cars, is believed to have been burnt to cinders, as no trace of him can be found.

A train of both passenger and freight cars was standing upon the track at the depot, about to start for Saginaw. It consisted of six cars, one of which was a sleeping coach, containing some 30 or 40 passengers, most of whom had retired for the night. Two of the cars were totally destroyed, including the sleeping coach, which was valued at $2,000.

There are always in times of danger some singular individuals who, for their quiet self-control and cool and steady determination to acquit themselves like men, deserve special commendation. There was at least one such upon this occasion. John Johnson, a colored man, who had charge of the sleeping car attached to the Saginaw train, saw the fire break out, and, with true courage, quietly requested the passengers to remain in their seats, as the train would, he believed, be drawn out of the depot. Finding, however, that the track ahead was blocked with freight cars, rendering it impossible for the train to move, he at once turned his attention to saving the passengers. After getting them all out, as he believed, although the car was wrapped in flames, he examined carefully every berth to put the matter beyond all question, and then left the car himself.

Wm. Kirby, the mate of the Windsor, whom we have already referred to, and who remained on his steamer until literally scorched with the heat, when finally driven to jump overboard, was thrown a heaving line. With true sailorlike heroism, he quietly sang out to the parties thus tendering a helping hand: "Throw it to some one else."

Among the losers is the chief editor of The Post. Gen. Carl Schurz. He had two large boxes in the depot of the Michigan Southern railroad, containing, among other things, a very valuable portion of his library, a collection of fine geographical and military maps, a collection of photographic reproductions of the best paintings in the gallery of Madrid, several volumes of manuscript, a number of letters from Mr. Lincoln and other prominent persons, and all his correspondence with his family during the last twelve years, containing an almost complete diary of the political and military events with which he has been connected. The loss is a very severe one as far as the pecuniary value of the contents of he boxes is concerned, but, as many of the articles destroyed cannot by any possibility be replaced, it is irreparable.

The scenes on the river beggar description. The burning steamer, swayed to and fro by the changing evolutions of the tide, with the decks and sides covered with drowning, burning men, whose cries, groans, prayers, and imprecations could be heard above the noise of the firemen on the shore, and the shouts of their rescuers on the water, presented a spectacle of grand and awful sublimity, never to be forgotten. Indeed their cries were plainly heard on the Canadian side of the river, and their agonized pleading countenances, as hope gave way to fear and they sank to rise no more, were discernable by the lurid glare of the land and water fires, to those who lined the shores, and whose heartfelt sympathies and invocations they had, although unable to offer assistance.

A LONDON correspondent gives the following anecdote of Nathan Rothschild:

"The bank of England having refused to discount a large bill drawn on him, he gathered all the five pound notes he could procure in England and on the continent, and presented himself at the bank. He drew from his pocket-book a five pound note, and they naturally counted out five sovereigns. The baron examined one by one the coins, and put them into a little canvas bag, then drawing out another note, —a third—a tenth—a hundredth, he never put the pieces of gold into the bag without scrupulously examining them, and in some instances trying them in the balance, as, he said, "the law gave him the right to do so." The first pocket book being emptied, and the first bag full, he passed them to his clerk, and received a second, and thus continued till the close of the bank. The baron had employed seven hours to change £21,000. But as he had also nine employes of his house engaged in the same manner, it resulted that the house of Rothschild had drawn £21,000 in gold from the bank, and that he so occupied the tellers that no other person could change a single note. The next day he returned, much to the amusement of the people at his pique, but they laughed no longer when the king of bankers said, with ironic simplicity, 'these gentlemen refuse to pay my bills, and I have sworn not to keep theirs. At their leisure, only, I notify them that I have enough to employ them for two months!'

"'For two months?'

"'Eleven millions in gold drawn from the bank of England which they never possessed!'

"The bank took alarm; there was something to be done. The next morning notice appeared in the journals that henceforth the bank would pay Rothschild's bills the same as their own."

CURRENT ITEMS.

Domestic Paragraphs.

—The new paper shirts are to be sold for twenty-five cents each.

—Sententious epitaph in a Scooben (Miss.) cemetery: "The rottin, not forgotten."

—The Protestant Methodists, Wesleyans, and kindred churches, who believe in lay representation, and do not believe in Bishops, are to hold a Convention in Cincinnati, commencing May 9, to continue ten days.

—The author of the "Hard-Shell Baptist" sermons, which created considerable amusement some years since, has recently turned out to be William P. Brannan, of Cincinnati, O.

—The municipal authorities of Boston have enacted that the bowling and billiard saloons of that city shall be closed at ten o'clock every evening except Saturday, and from six o'clock on that evening until over Sunday.

—The Chicago Tribune is pleased to learn that each city scavenger has only an average of thirty miles of streets to attend to, and that if no more filth is deposited, the present refuse may, by hard work, be removed in six years.

—The rapacious New York landlords have overshot the mark. Since the moving time of April 1, there are many houses for rent and no takers. Four hundred houses are noted by one newspaper as labeled "For Rent."

—A man named Fleming died at Lockport, Will county, recently, aged 102 years, having been born in 1764. Was never sick in his life, not even to the extent of a headache or toothache, and was never a sufferer from anything in the way of accident.

—A Homœopathic Life Insurance Company is about to go into operation in Albany. It proposes to issue policies of insurance upon the lives of persons who are patrons of homœopathy, at ten per cent. less than the rate imposed upon persons employing allopathic treatment.

—A prominent undertaker of Indianapolis, Ind., is busy making a very large stock of coffins, in view of the approach of the cholera, and appears to be enjoying himself very much. Among the hundreds of wooden overcoats there is not one that fits the proprietor. Is that suggestive of life insurance?

—In the months of January and February the excess of passengers west of Chicago above those returning to the East, was estimated at 3,800 each month. In March the excess of travel West was 5,400, and for April it will probably reach 10,000, showing that the emigration westward is increasing at a rapid pace.

—Two boys in New York recently stole a tin box containing nearly $2,000. They had been reading the papers and probably intended to "compromise" with the owner or the detectives for half the money. They made one mistake, they did not steal enough. Had they taken half a million dollars, or even one hundred thousand, there would have been hope for them. As it was they went to jail.

—The owner of a large dog at Grand Rapids, Mich., a few days ago placed a one hundred dollar looking-glass before his canine to worry him. The dog flew around, barking and growling. The owner was delighted and cried "Sick 'em;" the dog "sicked;" the mirror and the "other dog" disappeared at the same time. The joke rather turned on the owner.

—THE following public journals are edited by colored men:

The Colored Tennesseean, Nashville; the Communicator, Baltimore, Maryland; Anglo African, New York; Christian Recorder, Philadelphia, Pacific Appeal, San Francisco, California; Colored Citizen, Cincinnati; New Orleans Tribune: Nationlist, Mobile, Alabama; Loyal Georgian, Augusta, Georgia.

—The Cleveland Herald tells of a young German, recently married in that city, who, on the 20th, was taken suddenly ill, and, as was supposed, died on the 22d. While watching by the corpse on the 23d, his wife perceived a motion of the body, and soon after a second movement was observed by others present, a physician was called, restoratives applied, and the young man saved from the dreadful fate of burial alive.

—A sycamore tree was cut down a few days ago on Ferry Point, Va., and in mauling it up a lock of hair was discovered in the centre of the tree, about four feet from the ground. The hair appeared to be a curl from a female head, and must have been put in its position some fifty or sixty years ago. A hole had been gouged to the heart of the tree, the hair put in and the hole plugged up. The place had afterwards grown over, and the cavity was found to be in the heart of the tree. The hair appeared to be as fresh as if lately cut from the human head.

—The Newburyport Herald publishes a statement of Charles H. Golden, in jail there on charge of burglary, in which he claims to have been very intimate with Mrs. Cunningham and her family, and knew all about the projected murder of Dr. Burdell, in Bond street, New York, several years ago. He says, among other things, that Mrs. Cunningham offered him $25 000, and her daughter Augusta in marriage, if he would murder Dr. Burdell, by whose death Mrs. Cunningham would get $100,000. He declined the job, but took Augusta to the theatre, returned with her to Bond street, and slept in the house that night, knowing, before he went to bed, that the murder had been committed. The confession looks sensational, but may be true.

Foreign Gossip.

—There are 78 daily papers printed in Great Britain and Ireland.

—The number of Mormons in Norway has lately been considerably increasing. There are now 563 of them at Christiana, of whom 365 are women.

—A terrible accident recently took place at the Cheltenham race. A stand gave way, burying 300 persons in the ruins. Many were severely hurt, but none reported dead.

—Mr. Ten Broeck, the enterprising American turfman in England, recently met with an accident. In dismounting from his hack, his horse suddenly turned, knocked him down, and trod on him, injuring him, but fortunately not seriously.

—The finances of Montreal are in a muddle, and if they get worse, it is not unlikely they will be praying for the Finnegans to take the city and run it. The city debt is over $5,000,000, and the arrears for taxes due to the city amount to over $500,000. The new treasurer is so overcome by the labor and confusion that he is seriously ill.

—A young man was killed in London recently, by crinoline. Walking along the street, his foot caught in a lady's skirt, and he was thrown to the pavement. The coroner, on the inquest, stated that he knew of four recent cases of death from similar causes. The jury rendered a verdict of "accidental death from treading on a woman's crinoline.

—A strange case has lately occupied one of the English assize courts for several days. A charge was preferred against a child ten years old, of stealing one penny from a schoolmate, the prosecutor being a clergyman named Rev. G. R. Gray. If this is not small business, we don't know what would be. The spectacle of a clergyman prosecuting a ten year old child for stealing a penny should be handed down to posterity for the benefit of the worthy man's family.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS has been arrested in Petaluma, Cal., for stealing chickens. Thus is a great name befowled.

From The Western Railroad Gazette.

Chicago to Cleveland and Buffalo.

Through to Cleveland Without Change of Cars—The New Route via Crestline.

This new line established by the Pittsburg Ft. Wayne and Chicago Railroad Company is already a formidable competitor for public patronage and favor with the older and longer route via Toledo Passengers and shippers in this city and the northwest are beginning to appreciate the excellent facilities and inducements it offers. Tickets are sold at all important points in the northwest, and baggage checked through to Cleveland, Buffalo or any Eastern point by the Crestline route. The trains leave promptly from the West Side Union Depot going through on time, while the stations where meals are taken, are located at points best adapted to secure comfort, health and enjoyment to the traveler.

At Erie, Dunkirk and Buffalo, direct connections are made with the New York Central, the "broad guage" Erie and Philadelphia and Erie railways for all points East.

Like many other prevalent opinions which have no foundation in truth, it is generally supposed that the route by Crestline is the longest. This mistake is readily corrected by reference to the figures given in Appleton's Railway Guide and obtained from official sources. They are as follows:

ROUTE VIA TOLEDO.

Chicago to Cleveland	357 miles
Cleveland to Buffalo	183 "
Total Distance	540 miles

ROUTE VIA CRESTLINE.

Chicago to Cleveland	354 miles
Cleveland to Buffalo	183 "
Total Distance	37 miles

The distance then as shown by the above figures which cannot be controverted, is actually less by three miles by the Pittsburg and Ft. Wayne route by way of Crestline than that via Toledo.

Not only is the track of this line in the best possible repair but the cars are of the most comfortable and luxurious in the country. The sleeping cars are distinguished in an especial manner for their beauty, elegance, strength, convenience, and the careful attention constantly given to keep them in a perfectly sweet and clean condition. They are all built by the Central Transportation Company of Philadelphia, and are perfectly palatial in their appointments.

The new hotel at Crestline, the "Continental" (the principal "meal" depot on the route) has just been completed by the Company at an expense of over One Hundred Thousand dollars. It can handsomely accommodate 300 guests, and its breakfasts, dinners and suppers have already become famous with all who know what good fare and a plenty of it, and ample time to eat it, means.

Finally, the route via Crestline to Cleveland and Buffalo is First Class in every respect. It is shorter and quicker than any other, and its excellent track, splendid cars and sleeping coaches, affable and obliging conductors and attractive dining halls constitute such elements of popularity as few who consult comfort and speed in traveling are able to resist. The traffic in freight and passengers by the Crestline route is rapidly increasing and according to present indications, it will soon be the popular line of transit between Chicago, Cleveland and Buffalo.

Since the above was in type, the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad Company have carried into effect a new arrangement which will be of great convenience to the traveling public. They now run ALL TRAINS from Chicago to Cleveland through without change of cars. The increase of travel on this short line route has already been much larger than was anticipated, and fully justifies the management in sparing no effort that may contribute to the comfort and convenience of their patrons and friends.

The Crestline route is growing in public favor daily, and passengers for Cleveland who have tried it, acknowledge it to be fully equal, and in many important respects superior to any competing line running East from Chicago.

A Smart Station Agent.

Some years ago, shortly after the introduction of the Illinois Central road through that portion of Illinois known as "Egypt," an honest countryman, who had lived some forty years or thereabout in blissful ignorance of everything pertaining to the "kers," was appointed station agent at C——, one of those little out-of-the-way places where, as Dickens says, "no one could by any possibility want to get off or on." On receiving his instructions he was told, among other things, that, as C—— was merely a "flag station," trains would stop

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan

One of the best filled Establishments!

Most Varied
Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South Side Chicago St, Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS,

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY, WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH, COTTAGE, COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP, WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Stands, Book Cases, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c.

Furniture made on short notice by the best workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A full assortment of Moulding on hand and Pictures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VANTINE,
G. SMITH,

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

EC J MSEH, - - MICH A

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions,

I keep the largest and best assortment of

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS,
FRUITS,
SALT,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,
&c. &c.,

Of any hor[illegible] wn, which I will sell for Cash cheap[illegible] y other man.

Having ha[illegible] years experience in the business, and [illegible]ying for Cash I am enabled to offe[illegible] inducements to cash customers than [illegible]s in the busines I you dont beli[illegible]k your neighbors w[illegible] they get [illegible]eries and where they buy them [illegible] and judge for ourselves.

CHEA EST.

0 AJAMES

Subscribe for the HERALD.

L. DREW'S
NEW HARDWARE!!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz:

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass. Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a

Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron, and Zinc,

Also the Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New Yisnow opening a new stock of oceries, Paints, Oils &c

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago

---

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the Nicest, Best and Strongest, WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS, and in fact everything in his line from a baby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition. So call and leave your orders.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM,

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

☞ All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Price

---

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co. are now prepared to present to the public, every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART.

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and ellegance to the figure.

India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite

in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices.

and a general assortment of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government,

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.

n790lysmp

A. J. HOAG,

Sscccessor to WM. REITERMAN & Co.

WHOLESALE DEALER IN

Ambrotype and Photograph Stock,

235 Summit St. - - Toledo, O.

☞ Now is an excellent and fitting opnrrtunity for subscribing for the HERALD.

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL

IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor, show room the same 3 doors east of A. Hood & Co's. clothing store.

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS,

is the place to get good grinding done I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING,

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Wheat

Mill Feed of all kinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Bills of hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shal endeavor to do as good work, and even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

NATIONAL GIFT

CONCERT.

IN

Crosby's Opera House,

CHICAGO, MAY 31st, '66.

25,000 VALUABLE PRIZES AMOUNTING TO $100,000 00 will be presented to the TICKET HOLDERS,

INCLUDING 23,000 DOLLARS IN MONEY.

ONLY 100,000 Tickets

WILL BE SOLD, THUS

GIVING A PRIZE

FOR EVERY

FOUR TICKETS,

A TICKET COSTS BUT

ONE DOLLAR,

AND IT MAY DRAW

Ten Thousand Dollars,

I have just published a book which contains a Complete Descriptive List of all the Prizes, and much other matter of general interest. In this I have answered every other question that can possibly be asked, in connection with the Concert. Two copies of this book will be sent, FREE OF CHARGE, to any one sending for one or more Tickets, and enclosing Five Cents to pre-pay postage. Remember, every prize named in this book will be drawn at the appointed time, WHETHER THE TICKETS ARE SOLD OR NOT, THE PRIZES ARE READY, and will be distributed immediately after the drawing is completed; and correct lists of the winning numbers will be sent to agents and ticket-holders Parties whose numbers appear on the list, will forward thrir ticket at once, with directions as to shipping goods and moneys.

Inducements for Forming Clubs.

Upon the receipt of $4 50 I will send 5 tickets. Upon the receipt of $7 00 I will send 8 tickets. Upon the receipt of 10 50 I will send 12 tickets. Upon the receipt of $21 50 I will send 25 tickets. Upon the receipt of $42 50 I will send 50 tickets.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.—Money may be sent at my risk, by Draft, Express, Post Office Order, or Registered Letter.

my references are any citizen of Chicago.

MARTIN O'BRIEN,

122 Dearborn St. Chicago, Ill.

Agents are authorized to offer the above inducements.

Tecumseh Union School!

C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.

THE SPRING TERM of this institution will open April 9th, 1866, and continue twelve weeks

Scholars will be received at any time and laced in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.

CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

G R PALMER, Attorney at Law. and Notary Public, Lake Ridge, M. Particular attention paid to collections in any part of Michigan. Is prepared to draw and execute Deeds, Mortgages, Wills, &c.

Notice.

My wife Viola Wheelan having left my bed and board against my consent and without just cause or provocation, all persons are hereby notified and forbiden to harbor, trust or give credit to her on my account, as I shall pay no bills or accounts of her contracting. ERWIN WHEELAN.

Dated Franklin Mich. April 26th 1866.

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartner ship in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE AND FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions, Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected stock of

Crockery and Glass Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

A. HOOD & CO.

Are Just receiving a Splended

STOCK OF

Cloths Vestings,

Hats & Caps,

AND

Gents Furnishing goods

BOUGHT IN NEW YORK,

AT THE

LOWEST FIGURES,

AND WILL BE SOLD AT PRICES THAT

DEFY COMPETITION,

Call and see them before purchasing elsewhere.

EUREKA.

NOT CALIFORNIA WITH ALL ITS GOLD,

BUT THE PLACE TO BUY

Boots & Shoes at

Prices that suit the times, at

MC'NICHOL & WILSON'S EMPIRE
Boot & Shoe Store.

We shall keep constantly on hand a full assortment of the BEST

Eastern Work to be Found

Consisting of

LADIES' CALF, GOAT AND KID GAITERS, BALMORALS, SLIPS,

And an endless variety of EVERYTAING usually found in a First Class Boot & Shoe Store. Our manufacturing department will be ably conducted and all work done by us warranted to give satisfaction. Those in want of Boots or Shoes will save money by calling, and will be sure to buy, for they can't fail to "see it."

☞ Remember the place—one door east of Curtis Drug Store.

C. H. ADAM & CO.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct 21f TECUMSEH, MICH

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.

Published for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supplying at the same time the means of Self-Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a postpaid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, mby be had of the author

NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Brooklyn,

n790lysmp Kings Co, N. Y.

---

18 Pronunciemento. 65.

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see

How well we can do For them.

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd est Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholesale or Retail.
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
Fine Middlings, B. W. Four,
Ship Stuffs, B. w. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE. They will always also usally find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE,

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WH AT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL,

Corn In the Ear and Shelled.

A goo assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantable Lumber

Wm. HAYDEN

An Old Song, set to a New Tune.

1866.

"As spring approaches
Rats and Roaches
From their holes come out,
And Mice and Rats,
In spite of Cats
Daily skip about."

"18 years established in N. Y. City,
"Only infallible remedies known."
"Free from Poisons,"
"Not dangerous to Human Family,"
"Rats come out of their holes to die."

Costar's Rat, Roach, &c., Exeter's, Is a paste—used for Rats, Mice, Roaches, Black and Red Ants &c &c.

"Costar's" Bed Bug Exterminator, Is a liquid or wash—used to destroy, and also as a preventive for Bed-Bugs, &c.

"Costar's Electric Power" or insects is for Moths, Musquitoes, Fleas, Bed bugs, insects on Plants, Fowls, Animals &c, ☞ Beware of all worthless imitations.

☞ See that "COSTAR'S" name is on each Box, Bottle and Flask before you buy.

☞ Address, HENRY R COSTAR, 482 Broadway, N. Y.

☞ Sold in Tecumseh, Mich., by Gould & Waldo, P. N Curtis, and M. Wright, and all Druggist and Retailes.

1866,

INCREASE OF RATS.—The "Farmer's Gazette (English) asserts and proves by figures that one pair of RATS will have a progeny and descendants no less than 651,050 in three years Now, unless this immense family can be kept down, they would consume more food than would sustain 65,000 human beings.

☞ See "COSTAR'S" advertisement above

1866.

RATS versus BIRDS:—Whoever engages in shooting small birds is a cruel man; whoever aids in exterminating rats is a benefactor. We should like some one to give us the benefit of their experience in driving out those pests. We need something besides dogs, cats, and traps for this business.—[Scientific American, N. Y.

☞ See COSTAR'S advertisement above.

1866.

"COSTARS" RAT EXTERMINATOR is simple, safe, and sure—the most perfect RATification meeting we have ever attended.—Every Rat that can get it, properly prepared, will eat it, and every one that eats it will die, generally at some place as distant as possible from where it was taken.—[Lake Shore, Mich. Mirror.

☞ See "COSTAR'S" advertisement above,

1866.

HOUSEKEEPERS troubled with vermin need be so no longer, if they use "COSTAR'S" Exterminator. We have used it to our satisfaction; and if a box cost $5, we would have it. We have tried poisons, but they effected nothing, but Costar's article knocks the breath out of Rats, Mice Roaches, Ants and Bed Bugs, quicker than we can write it. It is in great demand all over the country.—[Medina, Ohio, Gazette.

☞ See "COSTAR'S" advertisment above,

1866.

A VOICE FROM THE FAR WEST.—Speaking of "COSTAR'S" Rat, Roach, Ant &c, Exterminator—"more grain and provisions are distroyed annually in Grant County by the vermin than would pay for tons of this Rat and Insect Killer."—[Lancaster, Wis. Herald.

☞ See "COSTAR'S" advertisement above,

1866

FARMERS and HOUSEKEEPERS—should recollect that hundreds of dollars' worth of Grain provisions, &c, are annually destroyed by Rats, Mice, Ants, and other insects and vermin—all of which can be prevented by a few dollars' worth of "COSTAR'S" Rat, Roach &c, Exterminator, bought and used freely.

☞ See Costar's advertisement above.

Ladies, take Particular Notice.

THE REAL VELPAU FEMALE PILL.

[WARRANTED FRENCH.]

THESE PILLS, so celebrated many years ago in Paris for the relief of female irregularities, and afterward so notorious for their criminal employment in the practice of abortion, are now offered for sale for the first time in America. They have been kept in comparative obscurity from the fact that the originator, Dr. Velpau, is a physician in Paris of great wealth and strict conscientious principles, and has withheld them from general use, lest they should be employed for unlawful purposes. In overcoming Female Obstructions, Falling of the Womb, Whites, Green Sickness, Suppression, Retention, or Immoderate Flow of the Monthly Discharges, they seem to be truly omnipotent, bursting open the flood gates from whatever cause may have stopped them; but they are offered to the public only for legitimate uses, and all agents are forbidden to sell them when it is understood that the object is unlawful. Married ladies should never take them when there is any reason to believe themselves pregnant, for they will be sure to produce a miscarriage.

These pills are entirely safe under all circumstances, being composed entirely of substances from the vegetable kingdom.

Each box has the coat of arms for the City of Paris stamped on the box, with the words "Trade Mark" in French, to counterfeit which is a misdemeanor, and all persons will be dealt with according to law.

☞ Full directions accompany every box.

Ladies can obtain a box sealed from the eyes of the curious, by inclosing One Dollar and six post office stamps to any respectable druggists, or to O. G. STAPLES, General Agent for the United States, Watertown, N. Y.

Agents,

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

GREAT CENTRAL.

United States Mail Route.

THREE EXPRESS TRAINS leave Windsor (opposite Detroit) daily for the East, on the arrival of Trains of Michigan Central, Detroit and Milwaukee, and Michigan Southern Railways from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati and all points West North-West and South West.

This is the only route via Niagara Falls and suspension Bridge, and is the direct route to Buffalo, New York, Boston, London, Paris, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Prescott, Ogdensburgh, montreal, Quebec and Portland.

☞ Passenger Cars are furnished with Patent ventilators.

Luxurious Sleeping Cars attached to all night trains, and Smoking Cars to all day trains.

☞ United States Currency taken at par for through fares, sleeping Car berths and meals at Refreshment Saloons

CHARLES MCCABE,
Western Passenger Agent, Detroit.

THOS SWINYARD, General Manager, Hamilton, C. W.

JAS. CHARLTON, General Agent, Hamilton, C. W.

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Neary, and Bridget Neary, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March, A D. 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber 'M' of Mortgages, on folios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] two on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village, (now city) of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid. Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriet A. Bradbury on the twenty first day of March, A D 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 17th day of February, A D 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, which said mortgage, was afterwards, to wit: on the eighth day of February, A D, 1866 duly assigned by said Harriet A Bradbury to Addison J Comstock, which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money, and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents. [$573.12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty fifth day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage

ADDISON J. COMSTOCK,
Assignee of said mortgage.

M N. HALSEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb. 21, 1866.

Drs Jackson, Herbert & Co.

15 Greatest Medical Circular Ever Published! Fifteen large letter pages for two 3 cent stamps. 15

Prof. EGBERT JACKSON, ROBERT HERBET, M D. DR EUGENE VELPEAU, JR.
THE NATIONAL DISPENSRY,
Established 1859.

Six years of unrivalled success in the cure of every form of private disease incident to either sex.

Science and fair dealing victorious over Empiricism and fraud

We infalliably cure Syphillis, Gleet, Gonorrhœa Impotency Nocturnal and Diurnal Emissions, Complaints peculiar to females, and every form of private disease of whatever name or nature Spermatorrhœa or Self-Abuse, that curse of Modern Manhood easily and speedily cured and every trace of its terrible effects eradicated from the system, without detention from business—Young men bear this in mind, that we are in possession of the Secret Receipts and methods of practice of Culverwell, Lallemand, Hunter, Velpeau, Sen., Ricord and other great lights in modern medical science; for it is a fact of the very greatest importance, and we would ask any man of average common sense how can the thousand and one shallow pretenders hope to compete with us?

Ye unfortunates, ere trusting your health and money to heartless charlatans, at least write to Drs. Jackson, Herbert & Co., who will at once return you a kind, discreet and explicit answer. Ladies write for our circular.

Dr. Jackson's Female Monthly Pills, for a safe and effectual remedy for all irregularities and obstructions, from whatever cause. Price $1 per box, or four for $5.00.

The Mountain of light or medical protector and Marriage Guide, and an Explicit Key to Love and Beauty Containing 300 plates

☞ This is THE book you want price 50 cents 3 for $1.

Send for our splendid Circular containing more in quantity and of far superior quality to any of the so called "pamphlets." Remember that we send a written reply to every letter, especially adapted to the particular case under consideration, because in the nature of things each case differs from every other

DR JACKSON'S ORIENTAL LINIMENT removes all coldness and disability, and rejuvenates organs which have lain dormant for many years.

DR. JACKSON'S FRENCH PATENT MALE SAFE,

It is perfectly safe and never fails to give satisfaction It is the only sure and safe preventative against contracting disease ever invented Price $1 each, per half dozen $4, and per dozen $7, sent by mail.

Inebriates or Moderate Drinkers who desire to reform, but have found it difficult to refrain, can wholly eradicate all desire for any kind of liquor, by using Dr Herbert's Anti Alcoholic Compound, an unfailing remedy for intemperance; write for particulars,

Medicine and instructions sent promptly to any part of the country. Consulting Rooms of the Dispensary, No. 167 Sycamore street Cincinnati, O P. O Box, No, 486. Send for a circular.

What is the Matter!

The Fact is the new firm of

SLAYTON TINDALL &Co,

are selling

FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT

By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff And all the people are rushing for it. Come on we have a large stock of such wheat on hand yet, also

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,
CORN MEAL,
PLASTER,
WATER LIME,
CLOVER SEED,
TIMOTHY SEED,
CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF

Grain and Seeds!!

SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO,

Tecumseh Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at

A. JAMES

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVI. NO. 43. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 15, 1866. WHOLE NO. 797.

G. T. KETCHAM'S
BOOK STORE,
Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.
(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)
DEALER IN
CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER.
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.
—o—
I will sell any of the above goods as
Cheap or Cheaper
than any other dealer in the country, and
WARRANT
all goods sold as good as recommended.
—o—
CASH FOR RAGS!
—o—
Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.
J. D. Robbins.
TECUMSEH. - - - - - - MICHIGAN.

NEW SPRING GOODS.

The undersigned is just receiving a well selected and choice stock of
FAMILY GROCERIES;
consisting in part of the following articles:
SUGARS, TEAS, COFFEES, SPICE, PEPPER, GINGER, BUTTER, CHEESE, LARD, FRUITS, SALT, TOBACCO, WOOD WILLOW AND STONE WARE, PORK, HAMS, POTATOES, AND
numerous other articles not necessary to mention.
Having purcased the store on the north side of Chicago street, in this village, formerly occupied by Deuel & Weatherhead, and having had some experience, in former years, by strict attention to business,
Reasonable Prices
AND Honorable Dealing, I hope to merit a share of the public patronronage. All goods warranted to give good satisfaction in every case My motto is Small Profits and Quick Sales.
and above all honorable dealing.
The public are most respectfully solicited to call and examine my stock of Groceries before purchasing elsewhere.
J. S. HENDRYX

D. NOTEMAN, M. D.
Practical Physician, for the treatment of Chronic Diseases, will isit Tecumseh the 1st & 2d of Every Month,
for Consultation with patients. Cancers and Scrofulus Tumors removed without the use of the knife. Bronchitis, Catarrh, and Incipient Consumption cured in three to five months. Liver Complaint, Dispepsia, and Constipation cured in 2 to 4 months. Piles Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration and diseases of the Genital Organs yield readily to his treatment. Prolepsus Utur he is master of. Charges reasonable according to ability to pay: the really poor will be treated grates. He will be at Comstock & Noteman's Drug Store, Adrian, the last week in each month. Residence on Budding Street. All letters with stamp enclosed will receive prompt attention. For further particulars (See Circulars.

Tecumseh Union School!
C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.
THE SPRING TERM of this institution will open April 9th, 1866, and continue twelve weeks
Scholars will be received at any time and placed in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.
CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE
on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

☞ Subscribe for the HERALD.

GREAT
CLEARING OUT SALE
OF
DRY GOODS
FOR THE
NEXT THIRTY DAYS
WE WANT TO
CLEAR OUT THE OLD STOCK!
WE WANT TO MAKE ROOM FOR
A New Stock!
We want to get a
Pile of Greenbacks!
And in order to do so we offer our present stock of Dry Goods at
VERY LOW PRICES.
DRESS GOODS,
PRINTS, DELAINES,
HOOP SKIRTS, SHAWLS,
NUBIAS, HOODS, SHEETING
FLANNELS, CLOTHS;
CASSIMERES, WOOLEN
SHIRTING & SHIRTS,
UNDERSHIRTS, DRAWERS,
&c at Cost and
Less than Cost
We Mean
WHAT WE SAY
DO NOT FAIL TO CALL and SEE Us at
NUMBER ONE
BIDWELL'S BLOCK!
TRIBOU, & BIDWELL Bros.
TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.
Express Freight, 6:15 A. M
Mail and Express, 1:15 P. M.
GOING NORTH.
Mail and Express, 9:28 A. M.
Accommodation, 6:38 P. M.

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh. Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND,
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD C. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich,

ALFRED JAMES,
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT,
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilets, &c.
Chicao St: Tecumseh, Mich.

P. N. CURTIS,
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER,
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St: Tecumseh, Mich.

GOULD & WALDO,
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St, - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN B. WOOD.
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER,
Attorney's, Councellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT,
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & McCOWEN,
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWARD H. HOAG,
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EMLAY & COURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harnass and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HORACE BREWER,
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mach.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS,
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

O. G. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and worker in Jewelry.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. C. SATTERTHWAITE,
Insurance Agent and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT,
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS,
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich,

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL,
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE.
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St - - Tecumseh, Mich

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St. Opposite P. Office.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT,
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR L. BARNES,
Physician & Surgeon.
Special attention given to office consultation. Office with Dr. Hause, Dentist. Residence two doors north of the M. E. church.

The Tecumseh Herald.
C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.
(One inch of column constitutes a square,)

	1 wk	2 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$ 2,00	$ 6.00	$ 7.50	$10.00
2 Squares	1.75	3 50	8.00	12.00	15 00
3 Squares	2.75	5.00	11.00	16 00	20.00
¼ Column	5.00	9.00	12,00	18.00	25,00
½ Column	7.50	12,00	18.00	25.00	36,00
Column	12,00	15,00	20,00	35,00	60,00

☞ No advertisement considered less than one square. Transcient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted one year, $3.50 per year.
Job Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

☞ We will take wood, butter, lard, eggs, potatoes, and all kinds of farm produce, on subscription for the "HERALD." So bring it along.

To Our Friends.

You will confer a favor on us by soliciting the Judge of Probate to publish Probate Notices in the HERALD, and you will also find it convenience to yourselves to have the advertisements in the paper you receive.

☞ The Indian Herb Doctor is called the champion of the world on female diseases.

LOCAL NEWS.—We have seldom known such a dearth of lacal news as we are at present having. There is very little now doing in our business community. People are buying just enough for their every day requirements, and, as a consequence merchants are complaining of the stagnation of business. There is nothing strange about it. The same thing happens every year at this time and is to be expected.

☞ Prof. Leland's advanced singing class will give a Concert in the Baptist Church, in Clinton on Friday evening March 23d 1866. The Prof. is one of the best, if not the best teacher which has ever visited this place and the citizens of Clinton should show their appreciation of his labors by giving him a crowded house.

☞ G T. Ketcham at his news rooms is authorized to recieve subscription to the HERALD.

☞ Jacob Cheever, of Ridgeway, has about 35 barrels of wine, made from the Rhubard plant, which he now offers for sale. It is splendid wine and any one wishing to purcase a No. 1 article would do well to call on him.

☞ The winter term of the Union School closes on the 30th inst. We understand the students are to give an exhibition at the close.

Changed Hands.

The old Snell block, which has for so long a time has been an eye sore to the citizens of Tecumseh, was a few days ago deeded to B. J. Bidwell, A. James, and J. P. Slayton, the representitives of a joint stock company. A large brick block is to take the place of the aforesaid rookery as soon as summer opens, thereby furnishing a number of store rooms, which we have long needed.

Judge LeBaron has sold to Isaac Adams, that part of his farm lying west of the railroad at the rate of $108 per acre.

Mrs. C. P. Hendryx has sold her house and lot to a Mr. Teachout for 1,800.

Mr. R. Adams has purchased the residence formerly owned by Capt. Weatherhead.

☞ On the 8th inst., the friends of Rev. Mr. Burnham, came down from Manchester, and paid him a social visit. During their stay the occasion was enlivened with the presentation of a Silver tea set of 11 pieces worth $150.00.

☞ C. H. Adam & Co. commence selling their entire stock of Dry Goods &c at Auction this afternoon in the store formerly occupied by Snell & Burroughs.

☞ A. B. Ward, of the firm of Ward & Strickland is expected home from New York in a few days. Their new goods will soon be here.

☞ What is there that is meaner than to see a man or woman always borrowing a newspaper to sponge the reading, when at the same time, they are better able to pay for the paper than the ones from whom they borrow. Let us have no more of it. Send your two dollars to the Herald office and we will in return send you the best paper ever published in Tecumseh, one year.

☞ Miss Libbie A. Hill will give lessons on the Piano, Melodian and Organ. She will also give instructions in Thorough Base, and the cultivation of the Voice. Residence, two doors west of the Baptist Church, Tecumseh.

☞ Mr. J. V. Hoagland, of Ridgeway presented us with a pail of sorghum molasses which was the nicest we ever saw.—If any one think they have better they can bring it along and we will act as judge.

☞ An exchange correctly remarks that when a man gets mad and stops his paper he always borrows the next number of his neighbors, to see if the withdrawal of his subscription hasn't killed the editor, and he hasnt dressed the paper in mourning. Such men imagines the world rests on their shoulders.

☞ Daniel Webster was right when he remarked of the press, "Small is the sum required to patronize a newspaper; amply rewarded is the patron, I care not how humble or unpretending the gazette he takes. It is next to impossible to find a printed sheet without putting into it something that is worth the subscription price."

ABOVE HIS BUSINESS.—It is serious evil that many a young man has fallen into, to be above his business. A person learns a trade, and then he must go to shop keeping or street loafing, or turn politician. Fool!—If he cannot make a living at his trade, we are sure he cannot any other way. And then young men brought up to shop keeping must buy farms, or houses, or some other foolish things they know nothing about, and what is the result? Head over heels in debt and certain failure. Multitudes have been ruined by being above their business and branching out into what they know nothing about.

☞ The question "Why do printers not succeed as well as brewers?" was thus answered: "Because printers work for the head, and brewers for the stomach; and where twenty men have stomachs, but one has brains."

☞ On Thursday Doctors Ryad and Allen of Adrian accompanied by the Sheriff, went to Palmyra to make a re-examination of the body of George W. Stebbins. The body was taken up and examined at the Town Hall, in the presence of the surgeons who made the first examination. A fracture of the skull ten inches in length was found extending from a point above the ear on the left side of the head to a corresponding point on the right side of the head, around the upper and back part. Another fracture 1 3-8 inches in length, of the occipital bone on the left side, extending downward from the front, where the blow was given, was also found. The brain above and below the membrane was found covered with blood. The physicians state that a blow sufficient to cause such fractures could not have failed to kill the strongest man.

☞ The Lawrence Hotel of Adrian, has been leased to Mr. Humphrey, formerly of the Herndon House, Marshall, who took possession on Thursday of last week.

☞ R. C. Moore starts for New York in a few days, so look out for nice things when he returns.

☞ See the advertisement of J. S. Hendryx in another column. He keeps a nice stock of groceries, and is prepared to offer bargains to all who call on him.

☞ Dr. Curtis is selling good sugar for one shilling a pound, not black stuff like you will find in some stores. All other groceries very low.

IMPORTANT TO RAILROAD PASSENGERS.—Judge Witherill, of the Detroit Circuit has decided that a man buying a through ticket on a railroad must continue on the train on which he sets out or pay his fare anew, unless he steps off at intermediate stations with the concent of the company's agent. This decision was rendered in a case against the Grand Trunk Railroad for ejecting the plaintiff from the cars, who had a previously used ticket.

BUSINESS ENERGY.—In commencing business two things are absolutely necessary—money and energy. One is of very little avail without the other, but of the two, energy is the most productive of results. Combined there is little chance for failure, except it be from those accidental causes against which no foresight or calculation is proof.

☞ Double Woolen shawls, worth $10 for $5. Dress goods worth from $.75 to $1.50 selling from 50 cents to one dollar at the great closing out sale of Tribou & Bidwell Bro's.

☞ A sad affair occurred in the village of Addison on the night of the 7th. About a week since a Mrs. Wade, of Columbia, Jackson county, came there to be doctored by a person calling himself Dr. Gallaher, who has been stopping there a short time, hailing from Missouri, or some foreign point. No particular alteration was perceived in the patient until about 5 o'clock Tuesday evening.—Her husband, who has been nursing and attending her, gave her some medicine at that hour, which she had no sooner swallowed than she exclaimed, "You have given me the wrong medicine; you have killed me." It seems the doctor left two kinds of medicine, one kind to be given in doses of three drops, the other in doses of a teaspoonful, each as required. The unfortunate husband gave her a teaspoonful of the wrong kind. She suffered terribly till two in the morning, when she died. Both kinds of medicine were in vials nearly alike, and as the liquids were nearly the same color, and no label or directions on either, the mistake occurred with the sad result recorded. It seems as though the doctor was liable to great blame in leaving such deadly poison without being properly labled. The diseased was a young woman, and the daughter of Benjamin Van Camp, of Woodstock.

☞ Nearly all of the testimony in the slander suit of Nelson D. Wilson and wife vs. Christopher C. Warn and wife, which occupied so much time at Adrian last week, has been given, over 60 witnesses having been sworn. The suit was brought by the plaintiff to recover damages laid at $2,000 for slanderous words concerning Mrs. Wilson, uttered by Mrs Warn, to the effect that she (Mrs. Wilson) was unchaste and accusing her of improper familiarities with James Rorick, who was at one time employed by Mr. Wilson as a laborer, and also with Lorenzo D. Meach, a brother of Mrs. Warn. The evidence introduced by the plaintiff proved the utterence of the slanderous words and rumors. The defendents plead the general issues and introduced testimony to prove the currency of said rumors in justification of their utterance, and in mitigation of the damages claimed. It was shown that Mrs. Wilson had been seen sitting on the lounge with Rorick, and that they had been in the pantry together with the door shut; also that he had been seen tickling her with a straw or twig, when riding home from church, with other circumstances of like nature. It was shown also that Meach had been a frequent caller at Mrs. Wilson's house in the absence of her husband, and that he often rode out with her. No very positive evidence was introduced, however, to show unchastity on the part of Mrs Wilson, and the plaintiffs have introduced testimony to show that Meach had been at their residence on legitimate business, and that the alleged intimacy between Rorick and Mrs. Wilson had never gone any further than a little innocent play, and generally in the presence of her husband.

The trial closed on Saturday, the jury granting the plaintiffs $600 damages.

BEADLE'S MONTHLY.—The March number of this magazine is on our table. It is a splendid number, containing much matter that is highly instructive as well as entertaining. It bids fair to become a successful competitor for public favor.—This is the third number of this new magazine, and it has already if we may believe its publishers, gained a large circulation. Send for a copy.

☞ J. D. Robbins always has a big stock of Yankee Notions, Toy Goods, Pocket Cutlery, Wall Paper &c. When you want any thing in that line cheap, give him a call, he is bound to sell at lowest prices.

Reliable Insurance.

The recent failures of prominent N. Y. Insurance companies should be a warning to all to waste their money in a company that indulges in low rates and loose practices. A good quality of Insurance like a good quality of broadcloth cannot be sold as half price. Good Insurance is a positive business necessity, and the best is always the cheapest. Those who make security a secondary considerate, can insure in anything. Those who insure for safety should invest only in a first class article. Policies issued and losses paid promptly in the old Phœnix of Hartford, "the genuine article"—by
S. C. Stacy Ins. Agent.

SOAP! SOAP! SOAP!—The Gold Medal Soap has no equal, but will go further and do much better work than any other Soap made. It works as by magic. One trial, and our word for it you will never use any other. Go get a bar and find all we say to be true.

☞ Every one can buy goods at and below New York cost of Tribou & Bidwell Bro's.—No one should fail to make their purchase before the next thirty days expires.

NO ONE KILLED, BUT ONLY ONE MAN HURT.—The attention of buyers of Dry Goods is respectfully called to the fact that, R. C. Moore—who has the largest stock of Dry Goods in Tecumseh—is selling out at GREATLY REDUCED PRICES his Sheetings, Shirtings—all cotton goods, are going off very fast, and those who are in want of these goods had better call early.

Best Prints—Merrimacs 25 cts., all cotton goods in proportion. Beautiful dress goods below original cost. Furs at precisely New York cost. Reader don't fail to call at the store of R. C. Moore.

Tecumseh Market.

March 15th, 1866.

White wheat	$1 50 a $1 75
Red do	75 a 1 75
Beans	75 a 1 00
Corn	40
Clover seed	4 50
Apples green	1 00
Butter per pound	30
Cheese " "	18
Hams " "	15
Lard " "	12
Eggs per doz	17

☞ Keep your feet dry, wear good shoes keep them well stuffed with oil and well mended, and then if you are unfortunate enough to get a cough or cold, use Coe's Cough Balsam to cure it. It will do it every time.

It is also important that our readers sho'd all know that Coe's Dyspepsia Cure is reliable, and certain to cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia; a teaspoonful a day will enable the most confirmed dyspeptic to eat any thing he chooses without trouble. It is excellent remedy for any disease of the stomach or bowels.

Hotel Notice.

The undersigned having been duly appointed committee to carry into effect the purposes of that portion of our citizens who have subscribed to raise a fund to be donated to any person, or persons, who would secure the erection of a first class Hotel in this place, are now happy to report that arrangements were finally completed with A. Anderson Esq. on the 7th inst., by which the contemplated enterprise is to be commenced and carried on to completion at the earliest practicable date. Mr. A. has given satisfactory security that the work shall be successfully accomplished, and that too, in accordance with a plan to be submitted to, and approved by this committee. In order therefore, to facilitate the prosecution of this laudable enterprise your committee would hereby give notice to those who have pledged their names in aid of this undertaking, that they are requested to pay in their respective subscriptions to WM. RICHARD, or either of the undersigned at the earliest possible date, so that the work can be commenced at once.—Tecumseh, March 15th. 1866.

S. C. LeBaron. Wm. Hayden.
A. Murry. Wm Richard.

☞ Fell, the Indian Herb Doctor, extracts cancers without pain or surgical operation.

☞ If you are afflicted with Inflamitory sore eyes, call on the Indian Herb Doctor, at the Exchange House Tecumseh, March 22 and 23.

☞ The Indian Herb Doctor cures Inflamitory Rheumatism.

☞ Young men who have been dissipated in their habits should call on the Indian Herb Doctor at the Exchange House March 22 and 23.

☞ Fell, the celebrated Indian Herb Doctor who has performed such wonderful cures, when he has been opperating as to cause the people to think he can almost raise the dead, will visit Tecumseh Thursday and Friday, March 22 and 23, and we say to the afflicted, give him a call at the Exchange House. You will find him a gentleman and a well posted Physician.

A. J. HOAG,
Sccessor to WM. REITERMAN & Co.
WHOLESALE DEALER IN
Ambrotype and Photograph Stock,
235 Summit St. - - Toledo, O.

Notice.

The stock holders of the National Bank of Tecumseh are hereby notified that an election of nine Directors of said Bank will be held at their office in Tecumseh on Tuesday April 17th. 1866 at 10 o'clock A. M.
LUCIUS LILLEY, Cashier.
Tecumseh March 12th, 1866.

Estrayed.

Broke into my enclosure in Ridgeway, on the 1st of November 1865, one red Cow. The owner is requested to pay charges and take her away. DAVID CORYELL.
Ridgeway March, 12th, 1866.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.
GREAT CENTRAL.
United States Mail Route.
THREE EXPRESS TRAINS leave Windsor (opposite Detroit) daily for the East, on the arrival of Trains of Michigan Central, Detroit and Milwaukee, and Michigan Southern Railways from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati and all points West North-West and South-West.
This is the only route via Niagara Falls and suspension Bridge, and is the direct route to Buffalo, New York, Boston, London, Paris, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Prescott, Ogdensburgh, Montreal, Quebec and Portland.
☞ Passenger Cars are furnished with Patent ventilators.
Luxurious Sleeping Cars attached to all night trains, and Smoking Cars to all day trains.
☞ United States Currency taken at par for through fares, sleeping Car berths and meals at Refreshment Saloons
CHARLES McCABE,
Western Passenger Agent, Detroit.
THOS SWINYARD, General Manager, Hamilton, C. W.
JAS. CHARLTON, General Agent, Hamilton, C. W

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL
IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE
ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES
in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor, show room the same 3 doors east of A. Hood & Co's. clothing store.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

General Intelligence.

Gold touched 129¾ on the 10th.

There are 552,241 school children in Indiana.

Maximilian is about to issue $20,000,000 of paper currency.

The friends of Semmes, the pirate, assert that the President has concluded to release him.

The Chilian Government has obtained a loan of $6,000,000 from Baring Brothers o London.

George Starr, a murderer, under sentence of death, was baptized at St. Louis, on Saturday, the 10th.

The new steam gunboat Quinebaug will soon be ready for launching The Idaho isl now ready for her trial trip.

Secretary Meagher, of Montana, has issued a proclamation for a State Convention to be held at Virginia City, March 28, to form a State government.

Secretary McCulloch has so amended his cattle circular as to permit of importation from Canada only when accompanied by a consular certificate.

The address of the French Corps Legislatif in response to the speech from the throne expresses satisfaction that the French expedition to Mexico is to close.

The Missouri Legislature is spinning out its session to a very paying length. It is now approximating its fifth month, the session having commenced in November.

A proposition has been made to the Texas State Convention, to give the Legislature power to divide the State into two, one of them being between Red and Trinity rivers.

Samuel Covert, whose inhuman murder of a family named Roosa, near Lebanon, Ohio, some months ago, will be recollected, has been found guilty, and will be hanged.

The trial of Detective Baker, at Washington, came up on the 8th, on the second indictment, charging him with felonious assault on Mrs. Cobb, but was postponed until the 26th prox.

Mr. Peterson, in whose house President Lincoln died, has received from the Treasury $293.50 for alleged personal services, injury to furniture, etc., on the occasion of Mr. Lincoln's decease.

A man and woman were arrested, on the 7th, for cutting the curtains in the East Room of the White House, and taken before the Superintendent of Police, who held the man for further investigation.

The United States Consul at Liverpool writes that vaccination for the cattle plague has proved a failure, and that the only way to stop the spread of the disease is to kill the cattle as soon as they are attacked.

John Minor Botts is out in a letter declaring that there is a wide-spread conspiracy among the late rebel leaders to involve the country in a foreign war, and then, when opportunity should offer, to take sides with the enemy.

Fort Leavenworth is to be abandoned as a Government post as soon as the cars on the Pacific Railroad are running to Fort Riley. And this is promised in the Lawrence papers as early as the 4th of July next.

An Omaha paper of the 28th announces the arrival in that city, names not given, of a party of men who had walked all the way from Chicago, having been three weeks on the way.

The banking house of Rufus Lord, in New York, was robbed, on Saturday, the 10th, of a million and a half of dollars in United States securities and railroad stocks. A reward of $200,000 has been offered for the detection of the thieves.

Pennsylvania is said to be the only State, thus far, which has actually assumed the care of the children of her dead soldiers, and two thousand of these are now in schools in that State. The cost per pupil is about $150 per annum, exclusive of clothing.

It is estimated that the Gee court martial at Raleigh, N. C., will cost the Government at least $100,000 before it is at an end. The testimony thus far for the prosecution is replete with horrors only equalled by the developments of the Wirz court martial.

Ecuador has joined Chili and Peru against Spain, and other South American republics will probably follow her example. A steamer belonging to the citizens of the United States has been seized at Panama, on suspicion of loading supplies for the Spanish squadron.

The Grand Jury at New York have found another indictment against McKenna and Rogers, the Chilian officials, for complicity in violating the neutrality laws in fitting out and equipping the Meteor. Fifty thousand dollars bail was given by each defendant.

The United States Express Company robbers, at St. Louis, were secretly arrested a week ago, and half of the money has been recovered. The robbery was planned by a saloon-keeper named Johnson, and participated in by five others. They divided the money equally.

The gas monopoly of Washington having sent a bill of $600 for the gas used in the Postoffice Building during the month of February, when the whole building, except the city postoffice, is closed at 4 o'clock, the Postmaster-General has ordered that the gas be cut from the building, and petroleum used instead.

The French troops in the northern and western Mexican States are hemmed in a few towns on the cost. Mazatlan is besieged by the Republicans, and some fighting has already occurred, in which the Juarists were successful. Insults and outrages are being heaped upon Americans by the Imperialists.

Thirty distilleries have been seized in New York for evading the revenue laws. As an interesting fact for brandy drinkers, it is stated that at one of these establishments the proprietors were busily engaged in manufacturing brandy out of printer's rollers, which were used on account of the molasses in them.

Great floods have taken place in various parts of the country in consequence of the thaw. They are particularly heavy between Bloomington and Wilmington, Ill., the railroad bridge at Marseilles being washed away, and at Fremont, Ohio, where the Sandusky is swollen beyond all precendent, and the business portion of the town flooded.

The Iowa Senate, on the 5th, adopted a resolution that Jeff. Davis should be brought to a speedy trial, and, if convicted, should be punished.....The Iowa House, on the same day, adopted, by a vote of 75 to 13, a resolution that the General Assembly has the right, and it is expedient, to limit the charges of railroads.

What was pompously called an international wrestling match between one Prickett, American, and Mitchell, English, for the championship of America, took place at Pittsburgh on Tuesday, for $1,000 a side. It is consoling to our national pride that Mitchell fell under. The Pittsburgh Gazette says $1,500 extra changed hands on the result.

The examination of B. H. Green, President of the Connecticut Fire Insurance Company, who killed his wife in November last, by cutting her throat with a razor, and then attempted to take his own life with the same instrument, commenced at Hartford, Conn., on the 9th. The defence is insanity, and will unquestionably be sustained, the testimony all leading that way.

The Fort Garry Nor' Wester is alarmed at the threatened disturbance of relations between the Indians and the English settlements. Hitherto under a solemn treaty of peace with the Sioux the English trading parties have been unmolested, but now it is strongly urged that a military organization can alone protect the British posts. The alarm is based on grounds apparently real.

Quartermaster General Meigs has issued another pamphlet, containing the names of soldiers, the victims of the rebellion, buried in the national cemetery, Alexandria, Va. The total number of interments is 3,372 whites, and 229 colored; total, 3,691. Well-kept gravel walks traverse the grounds. The graves have been sodded, and white tablets, lettered in black, are placed at the head of each, giving the name, rank, regiment, and date of death.

A strong effort is being made for re-establishment of the Government gun-shops and arsenal at Harper's Ferry. It is estimated that $2,000,000, or thereabouts, will replace the Government property at that point destroyed during the war, and the Shenandoah Valley people are anxious that the same should be appropriated. Meanwhile, orders have been issued by the Ordnance Department for the removal of the small remaining portions of machinery and other armory property at the Ferry to Springfield, Mass.

The testimony of Major General Thomas before the Reconstruction Committee on the status of loyalty in the southern states, states that the evidence is overwhelming that the spirit of disloyalty still exists; that secret organizations, hostile to the Government, are in operation, and that they are only waiting for the opportunity of a foreign war again to carry out their treasonable scheme. This testimony is corroborated by the equally important testimony of General Swayne, General Grierson, General Howard, Miss Clara Burton and others.

In the Texas Convention, the effort to base representation in the Legislature on the number of free persons, failed. The Committee on the Legislative Department expressed unqualified opposition to negro suffrage. A minority report favored unlimited suffrage. Provisions have been made for the election of State officers as soon as practicable. The Finance Committee reported an ordinance declaring all debts contracted by the State in the late war null, and forbidding the Legislature to assume the payment thereof. The Convention passed an ordinance making five years' residence a necessary qualification for legislators. White suffrage will probably be restricted, in order to cut off black.

Political Matters.

The rebel Gen. Joe Johnston is at Washington to testify before the Committee on Reconstruction.

The registry law has passed both Houses of the California Legislature. A resolution has also passed both Houses sustaining the action of Congress.

Thad. Stevens says he shall vote for the admission of the Tennessee delegation otherwise the country might think that the happy relations between him and the President had been disturbed.

The Virginia Legislature adjourned sine die on the 3d. Lieut. Gov. Cowper, in his parting speech, declared that the people of the South were now more thoroughly loyal to the Union than citizens of other parts of the Republic.

Gen. Meade denies over his own signature the report circulated from Washington, that he has consented, at the request of the President, to allow his name to be presented to the Democratic State Convention as a candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania.

In a recent interview with a Congressman, it is stated that Secretary Seward denounced Congress, asserted that he originated what is termed President Johnson's policy; and declared himself in favor of the immediate admission of the Southern delegations and repeal of the test oath.

In the interview of the Kentucky delegation with the President, on the 8th, the latter said that the present was a most critical juncture in the affairs of the nation, and that "to attack and attempt to cause a disruption of the Government by an armed combination and a military force is no more dangerous to the nation than to attempt to revolutionize and undermine it by a disregard and destruction of the safeguards thrown around the liberties of the people in the Constitution."

Fenian Movements.

Great activity prevails at the Senatorial headquarters in New York, and large contributions of money and arms are being received.

A deputation of officers who served in the army of the Potomac waited upon President Roberts recently, and proffered their services, and were informed that employment would be found for them at no distant day.

European advices represent a continuance of the Fenian excitement. Large numbers of arrests are made, and among them is reported the Head Centre of Dublin and officers of the Federal army. The English troops have been reinforced in Ireland, and the Government is using vigorous measures.

A letter has been received in New York from Head Centre Stephens, stating that he is ready to move as soon as the signal is given, and that he has 325,000 men in readiness for the conflict. There is a rumor at New York, which is considered a canard, that the steamship City of London, which left for Europe on the 3d inst., has been captured by a Fenian privateer.

The Fenian demonstration in front of Independence Hall, Philadelphia, on the night of the 6th, was immense. The resolutions declare that James Stephens is the head of all Fenians; that Napoleon recognizes his great military genius; that the first blow will be at the heart of England; that England is to be humbled and Ireland recognized, &c.

The British Government has recently employed a large number of very modest-looking young English ladies to travel in Ireland and pay particular attention to the conversations going on in the cars, steamboats, hotels, etc. It was believed by the authorities that Stephens would be arrested through the exertions of these women detectives.

An immense meeting was held at Jones's Wood, New York, on Sunday, 100,000 persons being present, at which O'Mahony stated that an army would be landed in Ireland within six weeks. At a meeting in Boston on the same day, a communication was received from Stephens declaring that Ireland had men and arms in abundance. Despatches from various quarters report that large subscriptions are being made to the bonds of the Irish Republic. It is said that the Fenian movement on Canada will be made during the month of May.

The Canadian Government has determined to call out 10,000 volunteers for the protection and defense of the frontiers. At Montreal, on the night of the 8th, the militia were on duty, and the Orangemen were being armed. Rumors prevailed that a force of 10,000 Fenians had seized Navy Island. The militia at Suspension Bridge were out on the night of the 7th. Mr. Gladstone stated, in the British Parliament, a few days ago, that England had made no representations to the United States on the subject of the Fenians, having no knowledge to justify her in so doing. A pastoral from Archbishop Cullen was read in the Dublin churches on the 18th ult., denouncing the Brotherhood in the strongest terms.

Southern News.

General Lee testifies that he never took an oath to support the Confederacy, having avoided it purposely.

A sergeant in Richmond has had two noses shot off—his own and an india-rubber one—in his campaigns.

Jeff. Davis' friends assert that "the petticoat story" will be explained by testimony to be brought forward at his trial.

The orange and jessamine trees in the vicinity of Mobile, Ala., were killed, and the fig crop destroyed by the late severe cold.

G. B. Lamar of Savannah, it is reported, has been sentenced to three years' imprisonment and $25,000 fine, for cotton-defrauding, bribery, &c.

In Alabama, whipping and branding have been abolished as legal punishments, and a new punishment is introduced, entitled "hard labor for the county."

Gov. Brownlow of Tennessee received a despatch from Grenada, Miss., warning him that a plot for his assassination had been entered into by a party of Mississippians.

The Nashville Times accepts it as a token of restored order that for the first time in five years, an election was held on Saturday last, in Tennessee, entirely under the control of the civil authorities.

It is stated that there have been 2,070 persons pardoned in the State of Virginia, and 482 in North Carolina, by the President, under the $20,000 clause, since the issuance of the amnesty proclamation.

Capt. W. Duncan, an officer of the rebel commissary department at Andersonville, was arraigned before a military commission at Savannah on the 1st, on charges of murder, robberies and cruelties to Union prisoners.

The late rebel General Longstreet is President of the Great Southern and Western Life and Accident Insurance Company. Dick Taylor has leased the new canal connecting New Orleans with Lake Pontchartrain.

An eastern paper says that last week some fishermen on the North Carolina coast took six tons of rock bass at one haul of the seine. Some of them weighed over seventy pounds each. They were sold in the New York market at ten cents per pound.

Gen. Palmer has commuted the death sentences of the Kentucky guerrillas, James Harvey Wells, alias William Henry, and Samuel A. Berry, to ten years imprisonment in the penitentiary at Albany, N. Y., subject to the approval of the President.

The celebrated pacing horse, "Kinney, Jr.," died at New Orleans a few days ago. He was valued at $25,000, and his owners once offered to bet that amount that he could pace his mile in 2:10. Kinney was a large roan, and one of the most remarable horses of his age.

A letter from Maj. Corwyn, late of Sheridan's army, to Archbishop Purcell, published in the Catholic Telegraph, fixes the responsibility for the burning of Columbia, S. C., upon Wade Hampton, who was so foolish as to fill the streets with loose cotton and refuse to surrender.

The Petersburg (Va.) Index mentions as a sign of thorough reconstruction of the Union that every Southern family has half-a-dozen Yankee patent medicines, notions, or humbugs in its possession already, and more are coming. A short time ago it was unpatriotic to buy anything of Yankee make.

At Louisville, on the 9th, a party of eight discharged colored soldiers went aboard the steamer Abeona, for St. Louis, and claimed cabin passage, which the clerk refused. The soldiers became disorderly, and one of them insulted a white lady. The boat watchman interfered, when one of the soldiers fired upon him; whereupon the deck hands threw them into the river. They were rescued without damage.

Financial Items.

Gen. Fremont, Robert Dale Owen, and others are urging Congress to indorse the new Mexican loan of $50,000,000.

There are in the vaults of the Treasury Department $14,240,000 in $5 notes. The total amount of all denominations is $110,000,000.

The Secretary of the Treasury has issued a circular suspending the operation of the act prohibiting the importation of cattle, except as to countries in Europe.

There is great excitement in Fall River, Mass., over the sudden disappearance of one Nathan Buffinton, with unpaid bills left behind to the amount of $90,000.

Over 800 American vessels were assigned during the rebellion to Englishmen, and sailed under the English flag, for the purpose of escaping capture by rebel privateers.

The Philadelphia Ledger gives the total export of petroleum from the United States: 1862, 272,190 barrels; 1863, 706,268 barrels; 1864, 796,824 barrels; 1865, 745,138 barrels. It is estimated that the excess of stock on the first of January last was 208,226 barrels.

The Finance Committee of the Texas Convention reported a sweeping ordinance, declaring null and void all debts contracted by the State in the late war, and forbidding the Legislature to assume or make provision for their payment. Some provision concerning the Confederate debt is under consideration.

A gentleman brought to the Treasury Department, on the 8th, a large bundle of partially burned Treasury notes for redemption. They were given to one of the lady clerks to separate and paste upon sheets so as to determine their total value. The lady succeeded in reproducing nearly $2,000 more than the anxious owner had been able to do. He evinced his appreciation of her skilful dissection by the presentation of $100.

It must have struck every observer, the underwriters particularly, how much greater the danger of and damage by fire is sure to become on a falling market. Stocks of all kinds are at a decline, and fires are numerous in all parts of the country. So much does the eagerness of men desirous of selling out to their insurers imperil the interests of neighbors not quite so anxious in the same direction, that, in several places in the West, Vigilance Committees have been organized by the citizens. One of these was formed in Saginaw last week, with a view to prevent and detect incendiarism.

Incidents and Accidents.

Edward Ryan, formerly at La Salle, Ill., committed suicide at Nashville, Ill., on the 8th, by shooting himself.

A fire on Front street, at Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, on the 6th inst., destroyed stores to the amount of $25,000.

Hank Wilson, one of Burbank's stage drivers, was shot dead on the 6th, at Lamoille, Minn., by a tavern-keeper named Hammend.

A great fire occurred in the suburbs of Yeddo, Japan on the 31st of January. Thirty thousand houses were destroyed and 30 persons perished.

John Jenness, of Manchester, New Hampshire, went into a stuper of sleep on the 20th ultimo, and all attempts to arouse him have thus far proved futile.

A Miss Malcolm, at Stillwater, Minn., was struck by a coasting sled, guided by a youngster one day last week, and seriously if not fatally injured.

On the 16th ult., while a colored man and his wife were at church, in Doniphan county, Kansas, their house took fire, burning three children to death.

General Hitchcock was knocked down by a runaway horse in Washington, on the 9th, and severely bruised. He is not injured seriously.

A fire in New York on the 5th destroyed 2,000 bales of cotton. Loss $500,000. The fire is supposed to have been the work of incendiaries.

The steamer Mary Hein, from Shreveport for New Orleans, was burned on the 28th, in Red river, with 600 bales of cotton. One U. S. soldier was lost.

On Saturday, the 3d, Mrs. Hill, of Pittsfield, Washtenaw county, Michigan, while walking with her daughter in the street, fell, and expired instantly.

At Titusville, Pa., on the 7th, a fire destroyed an entire block, fifteen buildings in number, among which was the Moore House. Loss estimated at $100,000; insured for less than $25,000.

A desperate conflict took place a few days ago on a plantation in Stewart county, Georgia, during which three whites and seven negroes were killed and a number of others injured.

A couple of belligerent roughs at Davenport, Iowa, last Friday, waded out into water knee deep, so as not to be interrupted and had a fight, in which each was pretty soundly thrashed.

The steamer Lockwood blew up and was burned on the night of the 14th, 18 miles below Memphis. Twenty persons were killed and 25 injured. The boat was valued at $60,000; no insurance.

The late disastrous fire at Olean originated in a lot of ashes left in a shoe shop of that place, and that one little piece of carelessness cost the village a half a million of dollars.

A barn belonging to Fred Bell, adjoining Turners' Hall, in Madison, Wis., was destroyed by fire on the 5th. Four cattle, three horses, and other property were burnt up in it.

There was a collision of freight trains on the Illinois Central Railroad, between Carbondale and Makanda, on the evening of the 8th. Several persons were badly hurt. James Place, engineer, had his leg cut off.

At Bedford, Ind., on the 5th, Dr. Benjamin Newland killed Prof. J. Madison Evans, who had seduced the daughter of the former. The Doctor first shot the Professor, and then "cut him to pieces" with a dissecting knife.

A boy named Sedley, aged 13 years, while attempting to jump on the Alton & Chicago train, at the Junction, two miles south of Springfield, missed his footing, fell under the wheels, and was instantly killed last week.

Taylor Headley, a young man residing in Springfield, Ill., in attempting to jump on a train of cars on the Chicago and St. Louis Railroad at the junction, was thrown under the wheels of the carriage, which passed his body, severing it in twain.

The Seymour, Indiana, Times mentions a case in that town in which a young lady administered "love powders" to a young gentleman in the hope of winning his affections. The consequence was that he was poisoned and came near dying.

William English, an orderly to Gen. W. Morgan, while crossing the track of the Toledo, Wabash and Western Railroad, near Illiopolis, Ill., on the 7th, was run over by a train of cars and instantly killed, together with a horse which he was riding at the time.

A painter at work 60 feet above the ground, in Cincinnati, on the 6th, suddenly felt the rope giving way that supported one end of his scaffold. After falling some distance he caught the sound rope, gradually checked his descent, reached the ground in safety, and went to work again.

Col. Bowers, Adjutant General on General Grant's staff, was killed instantly on the 6th by falling between the cars while attempting to get on just as the train was starting from Garrison's Station, on the Hudson River Railroad. Gen. Grant ordered his remains to be sent to West Point, in care of Major Hill.

Three men, who were plundering a flouring mill in Middleport, N. Y., on the morning of the 7th, were detected by a man employed in the mill. On refusing to comply with their demands to keep still, one of them shot him in the head. He is not expected to live. One of the rascals was knocked down by the miller.

A family named Grazier, consisting of ten members and a Mexican, came down the Ohio river in a dug-out on the night of the 5th, and, in attempting to land at Cairo were drawn between the steamers Southernor and Atlantic, and five of the number were drowned,—the father, a grown daughter an infant, and a little boy and girl.

Wm. Thompson, aged 65 years, married a young woman three weeks ago, and shot himself for jealousy on the 1st inst. The woman seems unfortunate in her loves. Her first husband was Wm. Jackson, who was hanged in Chicago some years ago for murder; her second was a jail-bird, and the third has just died the death of a suicide.

A young man of Titusville, Indiana, was found on Sunday, the 26th, shot through the head with the pistol lying on the bed, and his hands folded. His wife, from whom he had recently been divorced, and who had obtained an alimony of $1,000 from him, had been to see him that morning and the neighbors are at a loss to know whether it is a murder or a suicide.

The freshet in the Des Moines river, has been very severe. On the 2d inst. at Croton the large mill was totally destroyed, and more than half the houses were swept away, many of the inhabitants barely escaping with their lives. At Bonaparte and for a quarter of a mile below, the ice is piled out upon the land in an immense bed, many feet in depth. One railroad bridge west of Croton has been destroyed, and another upon this side of that place.

In Rochester, N. Y., on the evening of the 7th, an attempt was made to burn the house of Mrs. Hyzer, on Atwater street, during the absence of Mrs. H. from the house. The clothes in a cradle in which a child three years old was sleeping, were set on fire. The house had previously been ransacked by some pesson who evidently expected to obtain a considerable amount of money which Mrs. Hyzer was known to have received within a day or two. Failing to obtain the money, the villain set fire to the cradle clothes, with the intent to burn the child.

Mr. Lorin Blodgett, a well-known citizen of Marcellon, Columbia county, Wis., in a momentary fit of insanity, on the 27th, took a dose of strychnine, from the effects of which he died the next night. Soon after taking the poison he became perfectly rational and was greatly horrified at what he had done. He conversed freely about it, and said the poison had been purchased for the purpose of killing rats; that he had watched the effects upon them, and while holding it in his hand became suddenly possessed with the idea that he would try it, and was soon after thrown into convulsions. Physicians were immediately called, but all efforts to save his life proved fruitless. He was a middle aged man, in good circumstances and highly respected.

A week ago last Sunday afternoon, an affair occurred on the steamer Gen. Lytle, at Cincinnati, which has proved fatal. A young colored man named Lewis Robinson, aged twenty-two years, was engaged in scrubbing the upper deck, and spattered some water upon the coat of John Reese, the second mate of the steamer. This so incensed Reese that he immediately ran up stairs, and without listening to an explanation, which the negro tried to make, struck him with an umbrella which he happened to have in his hand. The end of it penetrated the right eye, lodging in the brain, and broke off short. The piece remaining in the eye was about three inches in length, and was so firmly wedged that it required a strong pair of pincers to draw it out. The poor man lingered in great agony until Sunday last, when he died. Reese has escaped.

It appears on evidence that the pilot of the Nannie Byers, which was sunk by the collision with the Hillman, was carried on board helplessly drunk, when the boat left Cincinnati. It is a well-understood fact that steamboat captains are now employing such incompetent men, because they wish to break down the Pilot's Association, and will not pay the wages adopted by the organization. The accident occurred at Madison, Ind., where, out of eight bodies examined by a Coroner's jury, five were found to be of one family. They were from Paddy's Run, Ohio, twenty miles above this city, and were on their way to Missouri, to settle on their farm. On the old man there was found $2,430. A daughter, fourteen years old, is the only one of the family saved, a married daughter and her husband being still missing.

The following are the circumstances of a murder recently committed in Litchfield, Montgomery county, Ill. A bound girl of the age of 12 or 14 years was one morning a week or so ago scolded pretty severely for some misdemeanor, and finally was whipped with a small rod. Everything passed off in the morning well enough without any farther difficulty. The girl's special duty was to take care of three little children; and going out to the barn as was her usual custom to a swing that had been prepared for the children's use, she took the youngest child (a boy) and hung him in the swing until dead, then ran into the house and told the mother of the child that a man came into the barn, took the child and hung it. But as there was no trace of a man's track in or about the barn, the girl was arrested, after which she confessed and said that she took this method of redress for the punishment she had received in the morning. She now awaits trial in jail.

Congressional Doings.

In the Senate, on the 5th, Mr. Wilson introduced joint resolutions, which were referred to the Reconstruction Committee, declaring that any one of the rebel States shall be entitled to resume complete practical relations with the United States whenever its Legislature shall adopt, irrepealably, these fundamental conditions: The abrogation of all laws, &c., making distinctions on account of color or race; the granting of the right of suffrage to negroes who have served in the army or navy, who pay taxes on property, and who can read the United States Constitution; and the repudiation of all rebel debts or obligations. Mr. Pomeroy made a speech on the constitutional amendment relative to the basis of representation.

In the House, on the 5th, a resolution was introduced to guarantee the Mexican Republican loan of $50,000,000. The Reconstruction Committee reported a resolution, "That the State of Tennessee is hereby declared to be one of the United States of America, on an equal footing with the other States, upon the express condition that the people of Tennessee will maintain and enforce, in good faith their existing constitution," and the laws excluding rebels from voting; shall exclude rebels from eligibility to office; and shall never pay any rebel debt, or claim or pay any compensation for emancipated slaves. A minority report was presented by Messrs. Rogers and Grider admitting Tennessee members without conditions. Messrs. Washburne and Boutwell dissented from the majority report on the ground that it did not require sufficient guarantees of fidelity to the Union and protection of the freedmen. The Speaker presented a letter to him from the Governor of North Carolina, which the House refused to receive. The army appropriation bill was passed. It contains a provision, inserted at the instance of Mr. Washburne, that no part of the moneys appropriated shall be paid to the Illinois Central Railroad for the transportation of U. S. troops or property, and that the Attorney-General shall commence suit to recover the money heretofore paid to the Company for such transportation.

In the Senate, on the 6th, resolutions were introduced to establish quarantine regulations against the cholera. A bill was reported to establish telegraphic communication between New York and the West Indies. The bill to reimburse Missouri for militia expense was passed. A speech was made by Mr. Saulsbury of Delaware upon the constitutional amendment relative to the basis of representation. A message was received from the President, transmitting, in accordance with request, documents relative to the provisional governments of the late rebel States. The resolution giving the assent of Congress to the annexation of Berkely and Jefferson counties, in Virginia, to West Virginia, was adopted.

In the House, on the 6th, the Committee on Reconstruction reported testimony relative to the condition of affairs at the South. Mr. Schenck's amendment to the Military Academy bill—that none of the money appropriated should be applied toward the pay or subsistence of cadets appointed from any rebel State after Jan. 1, 1866, until such State shall have been restored to its original relations by act of Congress—was adopted by 89 to 30, and the bill was then passed. The bill regulating trade with the British North American Provinces was discussed.

In the Senate, on the 7th, a resolution was adopted instructing the Committee on Foreign Affairs to report a bill for the appointment of a Commission to examine into the subject of cholera precautions, and to attend the Cholera Congress in Europe. The constitutional amendment in regard to the basis of representation was considered. Mr. Sumner spoke against it, and Mr. Doolittle favored representation according to the number of voters.

In the House, on the 7th, the Reconstruction Committee reported testimony as to the state of affairs in Louisiana, Texas, and Florida. The Senate amendment to the resolution relative to the transfer of the counties of Berkeley and Jefferson from Virginia to West Virginia was concurred in. The Committee on Military Affairs reported a bill to reorganize the army. The bill to regulate trade with the British North American Provinces was discussed,—Mr. Kelley of Pennsylvania speaking at length in opposition to the measure.

The Senate has rejected the nomination of Mr. Bonnefant as U. S. Marshal for Maryland. Mr. B. was appointed at the instance of Montgomery Blair and Reverdy Johnson

In the Senate, on the 8th, the Committee on Finance was discharged from consideration of a petition to give Mrs. Lincoln the amount of Presidential salary for the full term for which her husband was elected. A constitutional amendment was presented, disqualifying rebels from voting or holding office. Resolutions were introduced declaring that Congress has control of the question of reconstruction; that it is its duty to reorganize the State Governments in the South on republican principles; and instructing the Reconstruction Committee to inquire into the expediency of providing for such reorganization. The Constitutional amendment relative to the basis of representation was discussed by Messrs. Morrill, Wilson, and Yates.

In the House, on the 8th, the resolution appropriating $15,000 to Miss Clara Barton, for her labors in tracing out missing soldiers, was adopted. Messrs. Boutwell and Washburne, from the Reconstruction Committee, presented a minority report in regard to Tennessee, proposing, as an amendment to the proposition of the majority, that, as to the elective franchise, there shall be no distinction of race or color. The Committee on the Judiciary reported back the bill to facilitate commercial, postal, and military communication among the several States, with an amendment providing that no payment for Government transportation shall be made to land grant railroads. A bill making the U. S. Supreme Court consist of nine Justices was passed. The bill to restrict the expense of collecting soldiers' claims was recommitted, with instructions to amend by providing for a system of claim agents to be paid by the United States. The bill to protect all persons in their civil rights was considered.

In the Senate, on the 9th, a resolution was adopted calling upon the Secretary of War for information as to what legislation is needed in regard to the military establishment at Rock Island. The constitutional amendment relative to the basis of representation was taken up, and several amendments, declaring that there shall be no denial of the elective franchise on account of race or color, were rejected. The resolution as reported from the Committee was then voted on, and lost (yeas 25, nays 22), not receiving the requisite two thirds. The vote was reconsidered, and Mr. Doolittle offered an amendment, providing that Representatives in Congress shall be apportioned according to the number in each State of male electors over twenty-one years of age, qualified by the laws thereof to choose members of the most numerous branch of its Legislature; and that direct taxes shall be apportioned according to the value of the taxable property in each State. The whole subject was postponed till the 15th inst., and the Senate adjourned to Monday.

In the House, on the 9th, a resolution was adopted calling for information as to why the 28th Illinois infantry, whose term has expired, is still kept in service at Brownsville, Texas. The bill to protect all persons in their civil rights, and to furnish the means of their vindication, was recommitted to the Judiciary Committee by a vote of 82 to 70. The bill to regulate trade with the British North American Provinces was considered, and an amendment offered by Mr. Stevens, taxing bituminous coal $1.25 instead of 50 cents a ton, was adopted by 66 to 59.

THE MARKETS.

New York, March 10.
COTTON—Middling	$ .40	@	.41
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	8 35	@	8.80
WHEAT—No. 1, Spring	1.56	@	1.76
BARLEY		@	1.15
CORN—Sound Western	.75	@	.78
OATS—Dull	.54	@	.55
PETROLEUM—Crude		@	.26
PORK—Mess new	26.25	@	26 50
BEEF HAMS	39.00	@	40.00
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	13.50	@	18.50
HOGS—medium to heavy, dressed	.12	@	.12¾
DRY GOODS—Merrimack	.20	@	.22
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville		@	.40
Brown Sheetings—Appleton A		@	.27
Delaines—Manchester		@	.25
Denims—Manchester	.41	@	—
GOLD—1.33½.

Chicago, March 12, 1866.
BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$100.00	@	150.00
BEEVES—Stock to prime	$ 3 50	@	$ 6 50
BRANS	.75	@	1.25
BRAN	6.50	@	7.00
BUTTER	.18	@	.52
CHEESE—Western	.17	@	.19
COFFEE—Rio	.28	@	.31
Java	.42	@	.43
EGGS	.28	@	.30
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	3.50	@	5.00
Malaga Lemons	6.00	@	8.00
Dried N. Y. Apples	.16	@	.16
Peaches	.30	@	.32
Raisins, M. R	4.65	@	4.75
FLOUR—Winter White	9.00	@	13.00
Spring Extra	7.40	@	8.00
Buckwheat per bbl		@	5.50
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	10.25	@	10.75
Whitefish, " "	8.25	@	8.75
Codfish, per hundred	9.00	@	11.00
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.44	@	.45
Oats "	.24	@	.24½
Rye	.49	@	.50
Wheat—Winter		@
Spring, No. 1	1.24	@	1 25¼
HIGHWINES	2.22	@	2.23
HOGS—Dressed Middling to prime	10.75	@	11.00
Live	9.10	@	9.40
LARD	.16¾	@	.17¾
PORK—Mess	25.75	@	26.00
POTATOES	.55	@	.65
SHEEP—First and second class	5.00	@	5.75
SUGARS—Cuba	.12½	@	.14¾
New York Refined	.17¾	@	.18
White A	.16¾	@	.17
White B	.16	@	.16¼
Yellow C	.14½	@	.14¾
SEEDS—Timothy, ⅌ bag	2.90	@	3.00
Clover	6.50	@	6.75
SALT—Fine	2.15	@	2.25
Coarse		@	2.00

GARDEN CITY Gift Enterprise

TO BE DRAWN AT

CROSBY'S OPERA HOUSE,

CHICAGO, ILL.,

ON APRIL 25TH, 1866,

And every fourth Wednesday thereafter.

10,000 GIFTS, VALUED AT $60,000.

65,000 Tickets will be Disposed of.

One Gift, in Greenbacks	$5,000
One Gift, a Residence	5,000
One Gift, in Greenbacks	3,000
One Gift, a Residence	4,000
One Gift, a Lot	2,000
One Gift, in Greenbacks	1,000
One Gift, do	500
5 Gifts, 5 Pianos	2,500
50 Gifts, 50 Gold Lever Watches	10,000
50 Gifts, 50 Ladies' Gold Watches	5,000
50 Gifts, 50 Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines	5,000
1000 Gifts, 1000 Gold Lined Cups and Goblets	1,000
100 Gifts, 100 Ladies' Gold Chains	1,500
5000 Gifts, 5000 Gold Pens	7,500
3,788 Gifts, in Cash	7,000
10,000	$70,000

In order to facilitate the distribution of Tickets, they will be given away in the following manner:

65,000 Prize Packages will be Sold at One Dollar each, and a Ticket will be given with each Package.

Each Prize Package contains some of the following list of Articles.

Diamond Set, Lava Set, Pearl Breast Pins, Finger Rings, Gold Studs, Sleeve Buttons, Gold Ear Rings, Ear Drops and Crosses, Mourning Pins, Hair and Bead Work, Ladies' Gold Finger Rings, Gents' Gold Finger Rings, and Fancy Bosom Studs in Sets, and many other Articles of value.

Every package contains something of value, and entitles the holder to a ticket. Send in your money at once, and buy a prize package. Send 3 stamps to pay the return of the package by mail; a ticket will be sent with each package. Each ticket has its duplicate, of the same number, which is registered before being sent out. The drawing will take place at Crosby's Opera House, or some other public place, where thousands of ticket holders can witness the drawing. The duplicate tickets will all be placed in a wheel, and drawn out by some disinterested person, chosen from the audience present on the day of drawing A list of the numbers so drawn will be sent at once, or soon as made out, to each ticket holder, who then can compare his number with the list of drawn numbers; the moneys or goods will then be held to his order, to be sent by Express or otherwise, as he may direct. Our enterprise is upon the grandest scale ever known. As every ticket holder will obtain one prize on purchasing a prize package, and have as good an opportunity to obtain a Five Thousand Dollar Prize, as a person could have in any similar Gift Enterprise.

THE GARDEN CITY ENTERPRISE is so arranged that the tickets will be rapidly disposed of so much so that, very seldom if ever, any postponement of the day of drawing can occur. And in no case will the postponement be for a longer time than 4 weeks. The articles contained in our enterprise are all of the most approved kind, of the best manufacturers, and all warranted new and in perfect order. A new list of similar articles will be made up after each drawing, for the next monthly distribution. All orders will receive prompt attention.

Examine our unprecedented club rates; every active lady or gentlemen may take part in forming a club. Don't waste your money on foolish amusements, but buy our prize packages and get something of real value. No blank packages. Parties are recommended to get up small clubs first; when they become acquainted with the work they can get up larger ones.

INDUCEMENTS OFFERED TO AGENTS—Club Rates

Any person or party procuring a club of 5 or more names for prize packages, and forwarding us the money for the same, will be allowed the following commission:

We will sell

5	Packages,	Ticket with	each	$4 50
10	do	do	do	9 00
20	do	do	do	17 00
30	do	do	do	25 00
40	do	do	do	32 00
50	do	do	do	39 00
100	do	do	do	76 00

Be particular to send the name and address of each individual subscriber. Money sent by draft, Post Office order, Express, or in registered letters, may be sent at our risk.

Garden City Gift Enterprise Co.,

P.O. Box 484. 199 S. Clark St. Chicago, Ill.

A liberal donation will be tendered at every drawing to the agents of the Soldier's Relief Fund, for the benefit of disabled soldier's and their families.

Miscellany.

Two Cheap Opportunities.

Silver and Copper.

BY JEAN INGELOW.

[Some weeks ago we gave the history of a golden opportunity for doing good which was thrown away by a heedless child. It will be remembered that she still retained a shilling and a penny, and our young readers may be glad to learn how she acquitted herself of these humble trusts.—Springfield Republican.]

My birth-day had been gone by a week, and still the shilling and the penny lay folded in their silken shrines. I had quite recovered my spirits, and was beginning to think how I should spend them, particularly the shilling, for I scarcely thought any good could be done with such a small sum as a penny. Now there was a poor Irish boy in our neighborhood, who had come with the reapers, and been left behind with a hurt in his leg. My mother had often been to see him; while he was confined to his bed, she went regularly to read with him, and sometimes she sent me with our nursemaid to take him a dinner. He was now much better, and could get about a little. To my mother's surprise she found that he could read perfectly well. One day, when she met him he "thanked her honor for all favors," and said he should soon be well enough to return to old Ireland.

As we walked home one day my mother said to me—'Orris, if you like, I will tell you of a good way to spend your shilling. You may buy poor Tim a Testament.'

I was delighted, and gave my immediate assent. 'Well then,' said my mother, 'that is settled. I should have given one myself to Tim, if you had wished to spend your shilling in something else. And now, remember, you must not change your mind; papa is going to the town to-morrow, you may go with him and get one then.'

To-morrow came, and with it a note to me from my two cousins, saying that they were coming over to spend the afternoon with me, and see my Indian corn, and my tobacco plants, which I had planted myself. I was very proud of my corn, and still more proud that my cousins should think it worth while to come and see it, for they were three or four years older than myself, and did not often take part in my amusements. By dint of great industry I finished my lessons an hour earlier than usual, and ran into the garden to see how my corn looked. Old gardener himself admitted that it was beautiful; the glossy green leaves fell back like silken streamers, and displayed the grain with its many shades of green, gold and brown.

I thought how delightful it would be if I could build a kind of bower over against it, in which my cousins could sit and admire it at their leisure. There were some hop plants growing just in the right place; I had only to untwist them; and there was a clematis that could easily be pressed into the service. I set to work, and with a little help from him, soon made two or three low arches, over which I carefully trained the flowering hops, and mingled them with festoons of clematis. The bower seemed to be worthy of a queen at the least; and no doubt it was really pretty.

I was just carrying some pots of balsams in flower to set at the entrance, when my father came up. 'Well, Orris,' he said, 'mamma tells me you want to go to the town. Be quick, if you do, for I am just ready to start.'

'Just ready! O papa, surely it is not one o'clock? If I go, this bower will never be finished by three.'

'Certainly not, we shall scarcely be home by three; but why need it be finished?'

'Don't you remember, papa, that Elsie and Annie are coming!'

'Oh, I had forgotten that important fact. Well, then, if they are to sit in this bower, I think you must stay at home and finish it; you can go with me some other day.'

Now my father knew nothing about the Testament, or he would doubtless have given different advice. While I hesitated, anxious to stay, and yet afraid not to go, my mother drew near, and I thought I would leave it to her to decide.

'The child wants to finish her bower, my dear,' said my father; 'therefore, as it is not particularly convenient to me to have her to-day, she may stay at home if she likes, for, I presume, her errand is of no great consequence.'

My mother made no answer; in another moment he was gone, and I was left with a long hop tendril in my hand, and a face flushed with heat and agitation. I thought my mother would speak, and advise me to run after my father, but she did not; and I went on with my work, conscious that her eyes were upon me.

Presently, to my great relief, gardener came up, and asked her some questions about the flower beds. She went away with him, and I breathed more freely, comforting myself with the thought that I could easily buy the Testament another day. I worked faster than ever, partly to drive away reproachful thoughts. The little bower was lovely, it was scarcely high enough for me to stand upright, but it would be delightful I knew for us to sit under. Gardener had been mowing, and when I had brought a a quantity of sun-dried grass, and spread it thickly over the floor, I thought my bower an eighth wonder of the world. My cousins came shortly, and confirmed me in this opinion; they spent a very happy afternoon, seated under it, and but for remembering the Irish boy, I might have been happy also. We were very quiet till after ten, and then I am sorry to say that our high spirits quite carried us away; we got into mischief, any my share of it was throwing an apple into the greenhouse, and breaking two panes of glass. This was on a Saturday. On Sunday no one mentioned either this or the Irish boy; but on Monday, just as I had finished my lessons, I saw my father pass the window, and ventured to ask mamma if he was going to the town, and whether I might walk with him.

'Why do you wish to go, Orris?' she inquired.

'To buy the Testament, mamma, for poor Tim.'

'He is gone,' said my mother; 'he went away early this morning.'

I put on my garden bonnet and went out, with a curious sensation, as if, when I did wrong, all circumstances conspired to punish me. I turned the corner of the greenhouse, and there stood my father, looking at the broken panes.

'Orris,' he said, 'did you do this mischief?'

'Yes, papa.'

'This is the third time it has happened, I have repeatedly forbidden you to play in this part of the garden.'

'I am very sorry, pappa.'

'Your sorrow will not mend the glass, and I am afraid it will not make you more obedient another time.'

He spoke so gravely that I knew he really was displeased. After a pause he said:—

'Have you got any money?'

'I have a shilling, papa, and a penny.'

'It will cost more than that to repair this damage; I shall be obliged to claim forfeit of the shilling.'

I wiped away two or three tears, and produced my little silk bag; he turned it over and bit his lips; perhaps its elaborate workmanship made him understand that a shilling was much more for me to give up than for him to receive.

'Is this all you have got?' he inquired.

'Excepting the penny, papa,' I replied; and, child as I was, I perfectly understood his vexation at having to take it from me. He remained so long looking at it as it lay in his palm, that I even hoped he would return it, and say that he would excuse me that once. But no, he was too wise; he put it at last into his waistcoat pocket, and walked away, saying:

'I hope this will make you more careful another time.'

He went towards the house, and I watched him till he entered. Then I ran to my bower, sat down upon the dried grass, and began to cry as if my heart would break. Repentence and regret, though they may be keenly felt by a child, are not resoned on very distinctly. I had often been very sorry before, but whether for the fault, as distinct from the punishment, I had scarcely inquired. I was heartily sorry now, not only for my disobedience and because my father had forfeited the shilling, but because I saw it had vexed and hurt him to do it—not only because I had preferred pleasure to duty, neglected the opportunity for doing good, and lost it—but because the feeling, if not the words, of St. Paul pressed heavily upon my heart, 'When I would do good, evil is present with me.'

I was still crying when on a sudden, looking up, I saw my father standing before me, and watching me with evident regret. My first impulse was to say, 'O, papa, I was not crying about the shilling.'

He beckoned to me to rise out of my bower, and said, 'Then what were you crying about, my little darling?'

I tried not to sob; he led me to a garden seat, and took me on his knee. Then, with a great many tears, I told him all that I have now, dear reader, been telling you, and ended with a paroxysm of crying.

'O, papa, do teach me to be different, and to wish the same thing when I am tempted that I do when no pleasure tempts me. Pray teach me to do good.'

'My dear child, God is teaching you now.'

'What papa! when my golden opportunity is gone, and my silver opportunity has come to nothing?'

'Quite true; but then you are doubly sure now—you know by ample experience, do you not?—that of yourself you can do nothing.'

I was so convinced of it that I was verging on an opposite fault to self-confidence. I was almost doubting whether any assistance that I could hope to have would make me proof against temptation. But now was my father's 'golden opportunity,' and he availed himself of it. Although I cannot remember his words their influence remains to this day. Certain sensations and impressions connected with that wise and fatherly conversation return upon me often, even now. It conveyed to my mind the idea that this weakness itself was to be my strength, if it made me depend upon a stronger than myself—that this changeable disposition would make more precious to me the knowledge that with God is no variableness, neither shadow of changing.'

When he ceased to speak, I said with a sorrowful sigh, 'And now, papa, there is only one penny left of all my opportunities?'

'Well, my darling,' he replied, 'it is possible that you may do acceptable good even with that. Remember what our Savior said about the cup of cold water.'

'Yes,' I said, 'but the person who gave the cold water had nothing better to give; he had not a cup of milk or a cup of wine, which he first wasted and threw away.'

'My dear, you need not inquire into that; you might have done better; but as there is still something to be done, 'Do it with thy might.''

When I was quite calm again, and almost happy, he sent me into the house to play at ball. As I passed the kitchen door, a poor old woman whom my mother used sometimes to help turned from it, and I heard the housemaid say, "Mistress has just walked out, and I cannot say when she will be at home."

She was hobbling away when I bethought me of my penny; took it out of its bag, and pulling her by the cloak, offered it to her.

At first she did not seem to understand me, but when she saw my copper opportunity, which was as bright as sand-paper could render it, she gave me just the shadow of a smile, and taking it in her skinny hand, said, 'I thank you kindly, my pretty.'

'Poor old creature,' said the housemaid, 'that will buy her a trifle, mayhap; she and her husband are going to the workhouse to-morrow.'

I passed into the house penniless, but in a subdued and humble state of mind. The lessons I had had were not without good effect; but it cannot be expected that I can remember much of the working of my mind. I only know that time did pass, that I went to bed, got up, said my lessons, and had my play for a long time, perhaps a fortnight. At the end of about that time my little sister Sophy and I went out one day for a long walk, with Matilda, our nurse, and took a little basket with us to put flowers in, and blackberries if we should be so fortunate as to find any. We walked a long way, till Sophy was tired and became clamorous to sit down; so Matilda led us to the entrance of a little wood, and there we sat and rested on the steps of a stile. There was a cottage near at hand; presently an old woman came out of it with a kettle in her hand, and I recognized her as the woman to whom I had given my penny. She hobbled to the edge of a little stream which flowed close to our seat, and dipped her kettle in, but did not notice us till Matilda called to her.

'How are you, Mrs. Grattan, and how's your old gentleman?'

'Thank you kindly, girl, we be pretty moderate,' was the reply. 'He'—and she pointed with a stick to a field opposite, where several men were at work—'he be among them, picking up stones—ha! ha! he be as blithe as a boy!'

'We was all very glad up at the Grange, to hear of your good luck,' said Matilda, in the loudest tones of her cheerful voice, for the old woman was rather deaf. 'Our mistress was main glad, I'll assure you.'

'Ah, very kind on you all. How be the old gentleman?'

'Quite hearty.'

By this time she had reached us, set down her kettle, and taken her place beside Matilda. I was busily plating straw, but I listened carelessly to their conversation.

'And so you got your rent paid and all,' said Matilda, turning her eager black eyes on the old woman. 'What a good son Joe is to you.'

'Ah, that he be, dear,' was the reply; 'that he be; wrote he did, so pretty, 'My dear mother,' he says, 'don't you go for to think I shall ever forget how good you was to me always—for I shall not,' he says——

Matilda's eyes flashed and glistened; she took a particular interest in this young man, though I did not know that till long afterwards.

'Tell us how it all was,' she said quickly.

'Why you see, dear, he was not my own; but I did as well as I could by him; and he be as fond of me like, ay fonder, than he be of his father.'

'Yes, I know,' said Matilda.

'Well, dear—I went to Mr. T.'s house' (my father's) 'and I was very down at heart—very, I was; for Mr. Ball, he'd been that morning, and says he, it signifies nothing that you've lived here so long,' he says—'if you can't pay the rent.' I says, 'Mr. Ball, will you please to consider these weeks and weeks that my poor old man has been laid up wi' rheumatize?' 'But,' he says, 'I can put in younger and stronger than him; and besides that,' he says, 'I know you owe money at the shop, over all you owe to my employer.''

'He was always a hard man,' said Matilda.

'Well, dear,' he says, 'It ain't no use my deceiving of you, Mrs. Grattan, but I must sell you up, for,' says he, 'the money I must have, and you must go into the workhouse; it's the best place by half for such as you;' and, dear, it seemed hard, for, I'll assure you, we hadn't a half ounce of tea, nor a lump of coal in the house, for we was willing, my old man and me, to strive to the last to pay our owings, and we was living very hard.'

'How much did you owe?' asked Matilda.

'Over three pounds, dear; and then the rent was four. I hadn't one halfpenny in the house; I paid the baker, Thursday was a week; t'other four was for the doctor, and we was hungry and cold, we was; but, the Lord be praised, we aint now.'

'Ah! Joe's a good son.'

'As good as ever breathed, dear; but we hadn't heard from him for a long while, by reason his regiment was up the country, but you'll understand I didn't know that till I got his letter. And so we was to be sold up, and go into the house. I fretted a deal, and then I thought I'd go and tell your missus; she be a good friend;—but deary me! I owed such a world o' money;—only, thinks I, she'll be main sorry to hear we must go; and a body likes somebody to be sorry.'

'Ah, to be sure they do,' said Matilda.

'But she was out, and so I got nothing—only this child, bless her! she runs up and gives me a penny; but, deary me! thinks I, what's a penny to them as owes £7 2s.? But, thinks I, my old man and me, we won't cry together in the dark this last night. So I walked on to the town with it, to buy a half-penny candle of Mr. Simms at the postoffice. I was half way there from my place, and when I got into the shop, 'Sit you down, Mrs. Grattan,' says he, for he saw I was main tired; 'I haven't seen you of a long time.'

'And that's true, Mrs. Sims,' says I, 'for it's little enough I have to lay out, and the shop t'other side of the turnpike be nigher.'

'Well, I sat me down maybe a quarter of an hour after I'd bought my candle, and just as I was a going, in comes Mrs. Simms, and, says she, 'Is that Grattan's wife?'

''Ay,' says he.

''Well,' says she, 'I reckon you remembered to give her that letter.'

''A good thing you spoke, my dear,' say he, 'I should have forgotten it—that I should.'

'If you'll believe me, I trembled like a leaf, to think I should so near have missed it. 'Be it a letter from the Indie?' says I.

''Ay,' says he, 'that it is, and nothing to pay on it; and it is marked 'to be left at the postoffice till called for.'

'Well, dear, I took it home, and waited for my old man to come home, by reason I can't read, and about dusk he comes in, and we lights the candle, and my old man he read it right out, for he's a fine scholar. And there was two five-pound notes inside, bless him; and, says he, 'Mother, I've got made sergeant and now I shall send to you regular.

'Well, I've heard no better news this many a day!' said Matilda.

'It was good, dear. Well, I paid the doctor, and when Mr. Ball came next day, says I, 'There's the money, sir,' and he stared. 'Indeed,' he says, 'I am surprised, but them that pay can stay. So you see, there's money to spend, more money dear, when we be laid up with the rheumatize.' Upon this she laughed with genuine joy, and taking up the kettle, wished Matilda good afternoon, and hobbled away.

And I knew, though it had never occurred to the old woman, that all this happiness was owing to my penny; If she had not had it to spend, she would not have walked to the postoffice; if she had not walked to the postoffice, she would not have got her son's letter—that precious letter which had saved her from misery and the work house. How happy I was as we walked home home; I seemed to tread on air, and yet I knew of how little value the penny really was, it was only my having been permitted to give it under such peculiar circumstances that had made it such a worthy and important coin.

The lesson taught me by these little events I did not easily forget, and I think their moral is too obvious to need elaborately enforcing. It may, however, be summed up in a few words. First, do not expect that in your own strength you can make use of even the best opportunity of doing good. Second, do not put off till another day any good which it is in the power of your hand to do at once. And thirdly, do not despond because your means of doing good appear trifling and insignificant, for though one soweth and another reapeth, yet it is God that giveth the increase; and who can tell whether He will not cause that which is sown to bear fruit an hundred-fold; who can tell whether to have even a penny to give under certain circumstances may be to have not a copper, but a golden opportunity.—Sunday Magazine.

How Machinery Outgrows Original Calculations.

There is probably not an inventor who does not believe, at the moment of perfecting a really great discovery, that he has accomplished much more than he has really done—secured something nearly approaching to perfection, if not quite reaching it; the fact being, meanwhile, that he has made the same approach towards easily attainable perfection as presented by the old flint-lock of the sixteenth century, which required a second man to carry flint and steel and strike fire separately every time the piece was to be discharged, when compared with the breech-loading repeater of the present day, which is itself destined, no doubt, to be considered a clumsy contrivance by some near-approaching age when the fire-arm will load as well as discharge itself, even if it does not carry itself about and point its direction through the means of automatic machinery.

There is not much doubt that Fulton, on the day when he first saw the Clermont cleaving (very slowly—say three or four miles an hour) the waters of the Hudson, was one of the proudest and best satisfied of men; but if he could have looked forward twenty years and seen what the Clermont would be looked back to as having been, certainly he would have experienced some reduction of his content. The Stevenses, when at the end of that twenty or thirty years they had made such improvements in steamboats as seemed to be very nearly perfection, would have experienced something of the same belittled feeling if they could have known how their wonderful craft were to be eclipsed and thrown aside as antique oddities at the end of a dozen years. Very fortunately the view ahead is limited; the inventor goes on to what he conceives to be perfection, and that discouragement is prevented which would so certainly palsy his hands if not turn aside his purpose.

Some of us remember when Brunel—already high in reputation as an English engineer—made and published a calculation that railway trains could never possibly be driven at a speed exceeding thirty miles an hour, because at any speed beyond those figures the pressure of air passed through would flatten down and demolish the cars; and still more of us remember when that same Brunel died, a few years ago, after having lived to build railway engines that ran sixty, seventy, and even eighty miles an hour, and driven some of them himself!

Many men, whose heads are only a little gray, took part in watching and prophesying upon the first attempts at crossing the Atlantic by steam. "As an experiment, this may possibly succeed once, after losing half a dozen vessels and a few hundreds of lives; but it can never succeed practically, as the weight of machinery, in a heavy sea, must wring the vessel to pieces." So said the wiseacres, many thousands of whom have lived to see the day when sea-going steamers have made the Atlantic little else than a ferry—and when it is only crossed without the aid of steam, by cargo boats, emigrant ships, and the yachts of a few people who wish to remain as long as possible away from sight of the land.

Instances might be cited, ad infinitum, if not ad nauseam; but let us take one illustration much nearer home to very many of the readers of this article—the sewing machine—than which, probably, there cannot be found a more comprehensive type of the progress of the last few years, and of the unerring certainty with which machinery devoted to a certain beneficial purpose carries the inventor (so to speak) off his feet, and confounds all his calculations.

It is not many years ago that there was talk of the sewing machine as a thing not quite accomplished, but about to be—a little further back than the type-setting machine is at the present day. Almost any expert needlewoman (or needle-man) could demonstrate in a few minutes that nothing effective of the kind could ever be arranged, simply because the necessity of the needle going through the cloth and returning before a stitch could be formed, made the thing a bald impossibility. "How could it be made to go through and return, repeatedly and rapidly, and the thread still be kept in the eye of it?" they asked; and that query seemed to be a puzzler. "Pshaw! another of the Utopian dreams of idle people who wish to live by their wits while others labor with their hands!" was the verdict.

By and by Mr. Howe and certain others answered that puzzling question. The needle and its thread could be managed—how, everybody understands now-a-days, and there is no occasion of explaining here. Then the cry changed, but it did not die out. "Humph! yes, it may do well enough sometimes, and slowly; but it can never be speedy and reliable!" Everybody was certain of this, if they had never before been certain of anything in their lives.

After a time it was demonstrated that one sewing-machine would do work with the celerity of as many sewing-women as could be set around it in a twenty-foot circle. Did the cronking stop then? By no means—it only changed again. "Humph! it may work rapidly, but it can never do work that will stand! It can never do anything but plain, coarse work—never sew any seams but those that run nearly straight ahead! It will always be getting out of order, from the complication of the machinery, and costing more time and trouble for repairs and alterations than would do the work by hand!"

There was something in some of the latter prophesies, it must be admitted, taking the scale of perfection that had then been reached as the test. But no sooner had it been demonstrated that sewing could be done by machinery than a host of inventors appeared with devices to overcome the various objections, and in a short time the comparatively crude idea of Howe, by the addition of these inventions, assumed the form of a really practical sewing machine. The difficulty of sewing curved seams disappeared before the "feeding" inventions, contrivances innumerable regulated the thread tensions; attachments for hemming, tucking, cording, braiding, etc., were added soon after; and the question then was not, could the machine sew? but was there any description of sewing which it could not perform? Take the Grover & Baker machine at the present day, which affords, perhaps, the best illustration of the advances made in this branch of the mechanical arts, and there is no kind of sewing, plain or ornamental, which the most skilled needlewoman can perform that it will not execute equally well as regards strength and durability, much neater and more beautiful in appearance, and in a tenth of the time.

Truly, we do not know everything of what we are going to do when we first begin. Machinery, which begun by being the servant and owes its very life to the inventive brain, literally forces improvements upon itself, by its suggestions, and comes very near, in the end, to being the master. But it is doubtful whether either of the other instances named (to which a dozen might be added, in the telegraph, etc.) supplies so conclusive a comment on the whole theme as is found in the various steps of the sewing machine from crudity to all needful perfection, with the changes in popular appreciation accompanying, beginning with total distrust and ending in an unreserved surrender of confidence.—American Artisan.

CURRENT ITEMS.

Domestic Paragraphs.

—The number of disabled soldiers drawing pensions from the government is 9,500.

—A Southerner boards in his own house at Beaufort, S. C., and pays the colored tenant three dollars a day for the privilege.

—There is an old white-headed eagle, at Androscoggin, Maine, who has spent his Winters in that vicinity for thirty years.

—A couple were married at Dubuque, Iowa, on the 27th, with the consent of their parents, the bride being only 14 years of age.

—A joint stock company with $5,000 capital, is being raised in Buffalo, to establish an institution to treat diseases by compressed air.

—A conductor and engineer on the Toledo, Wabash and Great Western Railroad, have been arrested, charged with killing two men by running their train at such a rate of speed as to cause an accident.

—A man seventy-two years of age, father of twenty-six grown children, an old minister of the gospel, and once considered a leading citizen, is a charge upon the city of Indianapolis. Thirty years ago, he was an independent, straight-forward citizen, but to-day, through the influences of that vile instrument, whisky, has become a sot, a pauper and a vagrant.

Foreign Gossip.

—The Empress Eugenie proposes to build three hundred model lodging houses for working people in one of the remote quarters of Paris.

—According to the present rate of increase, the population of London will in twenty years, amount to four millions and a half.

—More than a thousand steam voyages across the Atlantic will be made during the present year by the vessels of different lines. This is more than in any previous year.

—At St. Amant, in France, a little boy was playing in a farmyard, when he fell headforemost into a water cask. A colt, three years old which he had been in the habit of feeding, was seen to take the boy's clothes in his mouth and lift him out.

—Gen. Charettie, a noted London dandy and roue, died in that city recently at the age of 83 years. He was gifted with an extraordinary memory, and a few years back, for a large bet, he related the whole contents of the Morning Post, from the date of the publisher's name, without making a single mistake.

Personal and Literary.

Gov. James L. Orr has been installed Grand Master of the South Carolina Masons.

The publisher of the Muskegon, Mich., News, from the citizens of that place, has received an appreciative testimonial of his services, to wit: a purse of $400.

A new periodical, written exclusively in verse, will shortly be issued in Paris. The ratio of its merits to its success will probably also be inverse.

Bierstadt's "Storm in the Rocky Mountains" has been purchased by A. T. Stewart. It is now on exhibition for charitable purposes in New York, and is attracting considerable attention.

Mr. Ponson du Terrail, a French novelist, has been condemned, in Paris, to pay a fine of 1,000 francs, for having made his landlord figure in one of his works under his real name, Grapillaud. He has appealed against the sentence.

The Rev. Dr. E. B. Hall, for 33 years pastor of the First Congregational Unitarian church in Providence, Rhode Island, died suddenly on Saturday evening of heart disease. He was 65 years old.

There are other claimants for the honor of possessing the oldest printed book in America. Robert McKnight, of Pittsburg, Pa., has five books printed in the 16th century, the oldest of which is Returna Brevium, printed in 1534.

The fashionable and artistic people of Paris are discussing the extravagance of a certain Madame de Paiva. In her elegant house is a grand staircase, each step composed of a solid block of malachite, and valued in itself at $100,000.

The Rhode Island papers are poking fun at Gov. Smith, of that State, on account of a speech which he recently made in his seat in the Rhode Island Senate, wherein he accused the editor of the Providence Journal of "casting aspirations" upon him.

Mr. Colfax wagered a box of cigars with a member of Congress from Connecticut that the President would sign the Freedmen's Bureau bill. The morning after the veto a box of cigars was found on the desk of the member, marked, "From a victim of misplaced confidence."

Since the close of the war patriotic citizens of various localities have made Gen. Grant presents as follows:

Philadelphia, house and furniture	$ 30,000
Galena, house and furniture	15,000
Boston, cash	50,000
New York, cash	100,000
Boston, library	5,000
Various places, horses	10,000
Various places, swords and equipments	10,000
	$220,000

Baron Rothschild has been swindled. A few weeks ago, says an English journal, a venerable and decrepit old man offered to sell him a splendid service of old china—twelve plates only—for an annuity of £48. The man looked so old and so near his end that the Baron consented; but when the month had elapsed, instead of his venerable friend, a spruce, vigorous young fellow of about thirty claimed the annuity. The Baron stood aghast. "Why, you seemed a century old a month ago!" "Yes, M. le Baron, but you see your assistance has renewed my lease of life!"

The New York Herald reports that Mr. Seward shows very remarkable the effects of age and suffering. The clear, firm, elastic, compact, and active man he was, has given place to a condition of his frame both furrowed and enfeebled. It is not until the warmth of conversation has aroused him that a painful feeling of sympathy and apprehension is got rid of for his health. He is about sixty-five years of age, but years or their influence are forgotten in his appearance and his presence. One feels as if confronting a century in his face and in his presence. The scar left by the assassin on the right side of his jaw has been so well handled by the surgeon that it appears like a wrinkle, yet the effect is almost a distortion.

Agricultural and Scientific.

"Ha!" exclaimed Mr. John Thomas, standing with his coat-tails drawn forward and his back to the kitchen fire, "I've heer'd a good deal about the cattle complaint, but am 'appy to say it asn't yet attacked my calves."

A Preacher in Manchester, N. H., a few Sundays ago, thanked God that the apple crop was a failure last year. He ought to pray for the loss of the wheat crop, for bad bread has caused more deaths than good cider.

The Boston Traveller states that E. M. Stephens has sold his patent rubber heel stiffening to a company now organized under the laws of Massachusetts for the manufacture and sale of them, for the large sum of three hundred thousand dollars.

It is said that a small quantity of sassafras bark mixed with dried fruit will keep it free from worms for years. The remedy is easily obtained in many localities, and is well worth an experiment, as it will not injure the fruit in any manner, if it does not prevent the nuisance.

Theodore Gennebt, Superintendent of the Germania Sugar Company, established in 1863 at Chatsworth, Livingston county, Ill., has just returned from Germany, having completed his purchase of the machinery necessary to increase the capacity of the factory so as to work fifty tons of beets per day.

The Atchison Champion says: "A friend of ours recently observing an advertisement in a New York paper, promising on the receipt of twenty-five cents to send a recipe to keep water in wells and cisterns from freezing in cold weather, sent on the above named sum, and received by return mail the following answer: 'Take in your well and cistern on cold nights and keep them by the fire.'"

A vine grower, named Miller, of Put in Bay, Lake Erie, from a vineyard of five acres sold, as his crop for last year 34,500 pounds of grapes and made 6,000 gallons of wine. The price of grapes averaged seven and one-half cents per pound and the wine is worth (new) ninety cents per gallon. This gives $7,987.50 for a single grape crop on five acres of Island soil, or $1,597.50 per acre.

Mr. Henry J. Potter, of Bridgewater, Mass., has constructed a steam engine, which he has built for driving a watchmaker's lathe. This steam engine is seven-eights bore, and one and three-eighths stroke, and has a horizontal cylinder. It has an oval boiler, thirteen inches greatest diameter by eight inches high, which is armed by two kerosene burners. The engine makes about 300 revolutions per minute, works with great ease, and is a desirable and practical thing for small purposes. It carries ten pounds of steam.

Grabbing Sheep.—Daily do we see sheep grabbed by the wool and pulled about. Will people never learn better? Let some one take them by the hair, and they would probably learn a lesson. Could they look under the skin, they would be surprised how much suffering they inflicted—for the sheep is dumb and does not tell its pain. Take by the neck—any place rather than the wool—any place but the hair. So it is where sheep are hooked or knocked or thumped about. They are tender, it must be remembered—more so than any stock on the farm.

The late heavy snow storm in England was the most destructive of any for the last forty years amongst the firs and other evergreen trees. It is estimated that the weight of snow on the trees was an average of three pounds to the square foot. Hundreds of fine trees have been either totally wrecked or sadly mangled; and in the gardens of Falham Palace, the beautiful evergreen oak, planted by Bishop Compton nearly two centuries ago, the pride of the gardens, has been more than half destroyed, and Bishop Porten's Cedar of Lebanon considerably damaged

The Montgomery County Press says that the disease prevalent among the cattle in Montgomery county, Pa., during the last two or three years has been called Pleuro Pnuemonia. Dr. Corson has expressed the opinion that this and the foreign disease had the same symptoms, and were similar, if not identical in character. If this be so, the cattle plague is not confined to Montgomery. Pleuro Pneumonia prevailed throughout the New England States a few years ago, and cases of it have occurred all over the country. It is only here and there, however, that it has prevailed as an epidemic. In New England its progress was checked and stopped by the isolation of infected cattle, and the destruction of those deemed incurable.

The "Wine Plant."—A correspondent of the Urbana (Ill.) Gazette writes thus concerning the so-called "wine plant":

I do not dispute the idea that a drinkable liquor can be made from the rhubarb of pie-plant, by the addition of suitable chemicals, but that it is a wine fit to be used for sacramental or medicinal purposes is out of the question. It is no more fit for those uses, than rot-gut whisky; which it closely resembles in both taste, color and after effects. A pint of this stuff will make the same amount of "drunk" come, that the same quantity of whisky will bring.

In a single township in Indiana, three hundred barrels have been made, and upon inquiry it has been found that there is no market for the stuff; nor is there likely soon to be, and may this be its condition for a long time, should be the devout wish of all temperance men who desire the continuance of the human race in this country, rather than have them exposed to the duplex poison of alcoholic and oxalic acid which are combined in rhubarb wines.

Some of our nurserymen and market gardeners, are making quite a pile out of this wine plant. Not long since, a gentleman from Indiana called upon one of our nurserymen and wished to purchase all his stock of Linnæus rhubarb, offering to pay his retail price for any quantity he might have; but as the nurseryman had found the Myatt more profitable for market purposes—he only had a few plants of Linnæus, and these he would not sell—requiring them for the home trade. Myatt's Victoria, he did not want, as the Myatt wine plant had been exposed in Indiana and could not be sold, therefore they had to get something new. This man did only a wholesale business. He was above selling single roots; only sold large quantities to retailers at $10 per 100. They in turn selling them at 35 cents per single root, $30 per 100, and $250 per 1,000. He had purchased 3,000 stools at some place in Indiana, each of which would make five to thirty plants; for these he paid 60 cents each.

I have no doubt but that the wine plants that are to be sold to our farmers are purchased in the same way. It is denied by these peddlers that their plants are rhubarb, but are a new discovery. But it seems strange that after being grown for four or five years in all parts of the country, that not a single agricultural or horticultural editor has been able to discover the difference in Linnæus or Myatt wine plants, from the rhubarb, called by the same name.

Terrible Case of Suffering.

A shocking case of freezing occurred at Chain Lake Center, in Martin county, Minn., in which six young persons were dreadfully frozen and three of them—young ladies—frozen to death while returning from singing school—having lost their way on the paairie, and been exposed to the pitiless storm for two nights and one day. We condense from our Blue Earth exchanges the following particulars of the heart-rending affair:

On Tuesday evening, the 13th inst., a mild snow storm was progressing, but was not deemed sufficiently severe to prevent any one from going out. These seven children, whose parents lived but a few rods apart, hitched up the ox team and sled, and went to the school house one and a half miles distant to singing school. Their names were Mary and Louisa Landaker, 16 and 18 years old; Wm. Landaker, 12 years old; of the Presler family, Francis was 16 years old, Deville 14, Amanda 12, and Charles 10 years old respectively. Without the slightest difficulty they reached the school house, and participated in the duties of the evening until recess, when it was discovered that the storm had increased to some violence, and fearing that to remain later they would be prevented from returning that night, long before school closed they set out for home. There were no fences, as the country is new, to serve as a guide for the team or driver. The storm was becoming quite violent and the team would not follow the course, and the children soon realized that they were lost. They drove into a slough and the team refused to move another inch. A terrible northwest wind had filled the air with snow, which was being driven with merciless fury over the plain. It was useless to move without the sled, the team no longer answered to the lash, and the children gave themselves up to die, fully realizing their situation. Mary Landaker died the first night. As the storm was even fiercer on Wednesday, the survivors remained there during the day. Francis was so badly frozen he lay still, while his brother Devillo in attempting to get out and start the team, fell into the snow and remained there all night, and though the mercury ran as low as 30 degrees below zero, he was still alive on Thursday morning. Meantime the other two girls had died, but Devillo was not aware of it. At the call of his brother Francis, who was in the sled frozen to his knees and elbows, Devilo, only fourteen years old, with commendable energy, though badly frozen, hobbled to the sled, and finding Francis' limbs frozen to one of the dead bodies, pried them apart with a sled stake, got his brother on his knees, and begged him to keep awake and he would try to get home. His brother replied: "No, let us die here together." "No," said Devilo, "I am going home." The cattle refused to move. He soon found the trouble to be that their eyelids were frozen together and picking them open with his fingers, and kicking and whipping some time he succeeded in starting them and by tightly holding on to the rope and horns he dragged his frozen feet and got home with his load of frozen schoolmates.

The parents, thinking their children had quartered themselves with some neighbor during the storm, were overwhelmed with grief, when they beheld the three girls frozen to each other in a solid mass still keeping in a sitting posture, in the sled, in which the storm overtook them. The bodies could only be identified by the clothing, so completely were they encased in ice and snow. During all this time they were only a mile and a quarter from home, yet such was the severity of the storm that no object could be seen at twenty rods distant, and a search for the children, had the parents presumed they were exposed, would have been fruitless.

The Winnebago City Homestead says:

At our latest accounts from these poor unfortunates, the boys were all alive, but the two oldest had each been so badly frozen that to save life, amputation of both hands and feet had become necessary, and the surgical operation had been performed. The other boy was but slightly frozen, or at least slightly in comparison to the rest of the party. It is not thought he will lose any member of his body. * * *

The other members of the singing school, seeing with what fury the storm was raging, wisely decided to remain where they were—in the school house. They remained there from Tuesday evening till about noon of Thursday, when they made a break and all eached their homes safely.

For Boys and Girls.

The Little Corporal.—The Pittsburgh Christian Advocate says: "The best paper for children, published in this great country of ours, is The Little Corporal. It is a gem in the catalogue of monthlies." Published monthly in Chicago, Ill., by Alfred L. Sewell. Terms, $1 a year; 10 cents for a specimen number.

"Pure Bourbon Whiskey is the only stimulant which can safely be used as a component of a tonic alterative and anti-bilious medicine, and Swain's Bourbon Bitters is the only medicinal preparation in the world in which this article is the principal ingredient. Swain's Bourbon Bitters diffuse an agreeable calm through the nervous system, promote digestion, revive the physical energies, restore the appetite, and remove the gloom which always accompanies weakness of the bodily powers."

Accident.

A Mr. Burke, railroad hand in the employ of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road at Galesburg, was run over and killed by an engine in the yard at that place the other day. He leaves a family dependent, and we learn his widow has appealed to the Superintendent of the road for aid. How much better would it have been, had she urged her husband to insure his life against accident, in which case she would have been provided for abundantly without the necessity of an appeal to the charities of any one. We learn that the railroad company have obtained of the "Provident Insurance Co." of Chicago what is termed a "Railroad Policy" insuring all the employes of a company, but as many of the employes of that road objected to being insured, the policy only covers a portion of the men. Mr. Burke was one of the objectors and consequently his family is compelled to ask charity. We are led to make these comments because of the continued exposure of all railroad men to accidents, and the facilities which are offered by accident insurance companies to provide against such contingencies we feel impelled by a sense of duty to our readers to urge upon them the importance of providing against the dangers to which they are daily exposed. In addition to the "Railroad Policy" of the Provident Life Insurance Company of Chicago, by which they insure all the employees of a company, they also issue policies to individuals insuring them for such sums as may be desired, ranging from 500 to 10,000 dollars, with compensations of from 5 to 50 dollars per week.

This deservedly popular Company are now, beyond a doubt, doing the largest part of the railroad insurance of this country, and we are pleased to learn that its executive officers, with their characteristic promptness in meeting the wants of the public have already organized a department of life insurance—a branch of the business entirely separate and independent of the accident—and while they have presented many of the best features which have contributed to the success of Life insurance as formerly practiced, they have also adopted several new principles and features which cannot fail to enhance the already wide spread popularity of "The Provident."

The "Columbian" Gin.

This Gin is the purest and very best article ever offered to the public. It is the distillation of the best American malt spirits and Italian juniper berries. Those who find a diuretic stimulant necessary, should never be without it.

The proprietors of the Columbian Gin do not undertake to advertise it as a quack medicine; yet they feel guaranteed in saying that for those requiring a pure liquor, no better can be procured.

Imported gins, etc., are now nearly out of the question, on account of the extraordinary high import duties imposed upon them—which are always payable in gold—so that a home-made article, equal in all respects to any imported, should receive the attention of consumers.

Doctor Blaney, the well-known chemist of Chicago says: "It's the very best article, both as to quality and strength of flavor, that I have ever tested."

For sale by all respectable druggists and liquor dealers in the United States.

W. T. SHUFELDT & CO.,
Sole Distillers and Proprietors,
49 S. Water St., Chicago.

DR. SWAIN'S
BOURBON BITTERS.

A Healthy Tonic, Gentle Stimulant, and Unequaled Morning Appetizer, prepared in

RIPE OLD BOURBON WHISKEY

FREE FROM GRAIN OIL,

With Flowers, Buds and Barks of the Highest Medicinal Virtue.

By increasing the appetite, assisting digestion, regulating the bowels, and giving tone to the system, they impart strength and vigor to the body and cheerfulness to the mind.

☞ If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters, have

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan.

One of the best filled Establishments!

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South Side Chicago St, Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS.

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY, WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH, COTTAGE, COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP, WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Show Cases, Stands, Book Cases, Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short notic by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pic. ures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VANTINE,
G. SMITH,

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

TECUMSEH, - - MICH A

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions,

I keep the largest and best assortment of

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS,
FRUITS,
SALT.
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,
&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had eleven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the busines I: you dont believe it, ask your neighbors where they get their Groceries and where they buy them the

CHEAPEST.

Try me and judge for yourselves.

06 AJAMES.

☞ Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the HERALD.

The PEOPLE OF TECUMSEH!

WE HAIL,

But do not conceal, the fact that

GOULD & WALDO

Have just opened a first class

Drug & Grocery Store,

Where will be kept constantly on hand a choice supply of

Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Dye Stuffs, Domestic Dyes, Patent Medicines, Family Groceries, Kerosene Oil, and

in fact everything usually kept in

Similar Establishments,

Where they are prepared and bound to sell from ten to fifty per cent. lower than can be sold elsewhere in Southern Michigan.

STORE 1 DOOR EAST OF A. James and opposite the Post Office.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY PREPARED. Liberal discount to Physicians. 793

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the

Nicest, Best and Strongest,

WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS,

and in fact everything in his line from a baby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition. So call and leave your orders.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM,

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

☞ All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Prices

---

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co. are now prepared to present to the public, every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART,

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and ellegance to the figure.

India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite

in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices.

and a general assortment of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

New Meat Market!!

Bidwell's Warehouse, Railroad st.,

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

HUGH McGEE, Proprietor.

Who is now prepared to furnish the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity with

FRESH MEATS OF ALL KINDS,

at the lowest possible rates. Thankful for past patronage he would respectfully solicit a continuance of the same.

S. C. STACY,

RESIDENT AGENT,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

1866. 1866.

MERRITT, MEEKER & Co

SUCCESSORS TO J. H. WHEELER.

Have just received a large additon to their

STOCK OF GOODS,

And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of

DRY GOODS,

YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Particular attention is called to their stock

of BUFFALO ROBES and LADIES AND GENTS FURS,

which they are now selling

At Cost

We would announce to his numerous friends that we have secured the services of Wm. VanCamp, and he will take pleasure in waiting upon all.

It is no trouble to show goods; should you wish anything in our line give us a call before purchasing elsewhere and we will do our best to give satisfaction.

GLORIOUS NEWS,

The Confederacy gone up! But

GEORGE HEESENS

CLOTHING EMPORIUM

Is in full blast, and has not yet surrendered to young america. I would say to my friends and customers that I have just received a large slock of clothing which were purchased at panic prices, and I will sell them at a very small profit, for they must be sold within ninety days, I

Sell Cassimere Pants at 6.50.

Broad cloth and cassimere coats very cheap, Linen coats cheaper than any other house in town, wool-en and Straw

HATS, CAPS!

Linen and Paper Collars,
Neck Ties, Shirts,
Gloves, Hosiery,
Traveling Bags, &c.

It is easily understood that I can sell oods cheaper than m neighbor for I save great expense, bein a tailor and having followed the business for the last 17 years I know how work ought to be done.

Please come over on the Canada side for you can buy goods cheaper than you can on the American, for all expense of importing is saved, which amounts to considerable.

Cutting Done at Old Prices.

Those wishing garments made would do well to call on me and have an honest job done.

Geo. Heesen.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New Yisnow opening a new stock of rocories, Paints, Oils &c.

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago street

---

L. DREW'S NEW HARDWARE!!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz:

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass. Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farmmg Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a

Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron, and Zinc,

Also the

Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

Real Estate for Sale.

Our old friend John Davenport wishes to dispose of the following property:

60 acres of fine timbered land lying near Franklin Centre.

120 acres of timbered land on Evans Lake.

Saw mill and 20 acres of land near Franklin Centre.

Brick House and 4 acres of land known as the Stitts property in the village of Tecumseh, now occupied by A. Hood.

House and lot on Logan St. known as the Mrs. Bissell property.

Also—House and lot of J. E. Merritt Maiden Lane, in the village of Tecumseh.

Terms easy or to suit purchasers. For particulars call on or address the subscriber at Tecumseh, Mich.

JOHN DAVENPORT.

Dated Jan. 18th, 1866.

☞ Have you job printing done at the Herald Office,

GREAT DECLINE

Boots & Shoes

ARE DOWN! not in New York or Boston but at

E. H. HOAG'S

Mammoth Shoe Store,

Returning the public thanks for liberal patronage during the past year, I shall offer during the next

SIXTY DAYS,

BOOTS & SHOES

AT PRICES WHICH WILL

DEFY COMPETITION.

The attention of sewed Boot customers is called to my stock of fine

French & American Calf Skins,

which are being made up

In a Style unsurpassed for

WORKMANSHIP AND DURABILITY.

LADIES AND MISSES

Congress Gaiters, Balmorals and POLISH BOOTS,

made to order from all materials.

E. H. HOAG.

Tecumseh, Jan. 1st, 1866.

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartner ship in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE AND FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions, Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c.* Also a large and well selected stock of

Crockery and Glass Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

C. H. ADAM & CO.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct 2tf TECUMSEH, MICH.

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government,

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.

n790lysmp

---

18 Pronunciemento. 65.

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see,

How well we can do For them.

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd 'est Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholasale or Retail.
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
F ine Midlings, B. . WF our,
Ship Stuffs, B. w. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE.

They will always also ussally find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE,

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL,

Corn In the Ear and Shelled.

A goo assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantible Lumber.

Wm. HAYDEN

CO-PARTNERSHIP

A. Hood & Co.

are now receiving at the Old Stand of A Hood, Anderson's Block,

A LARGE STOCK

—OF—

NEW GOODS

Direct from New York consisting of

Ready Made Clothing

A splended assortment of THE LATEST STYLES of cloths that could be found in the Eastern markets, Consisting of

BROAD CLOTHS, DOESKINS, FREFCH, SCOTCH and ENGLISH CASSIMERES, COATINGS, VESTINGS, OVER COATINGS, &c. Also a heavy

STOCK OF WOOLEN SHIRTS

Of all styles, UNDER SHIRTS and DRAWERS. SUSPENDERS, GLOVES, HOSIERY.

A nice assortment of

HATS & CAPS!

Fuanishing Goods!

Of all kinds for mens wear. We mean to keep on hand as good a selection of goods in our line as can be found in any one establishment in the County, and for CASH we will sell them as low, or a little lower than any other establishment in the County.

Our Tailoring Department is in full blast. We are prepared to get up Suits on SHORT NOTICE. in as GOOD STYLE, and at as low figures as any other establishment.

CUTTING DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

H. M, GRAY. A. HOOD

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS,

is the place to get good grinding done I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING,

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Wheat

Mill Feed of allkinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Bils of hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shal endeavor to do as good work, and, even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Neary, and Bridget Neary, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March, A. D. 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber 'M.' of Mortgages, on folios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] two, on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village, (now city] of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid. Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriet A. Bradbury on the twenty-first day of March, A. D. 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 17th day of February, A D 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, which said mortgage, was afterwards, to wit: on the eighth day of February, A. D. 1866 duly assigned by said Harriet A Bradbury to Addison J Comstock; which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber 44., of mortgages on page 642. no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money, and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents, [$573.12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty fifth day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage.

ADDISON J. COMSTOCK.
Assignee of said mortgage.

M. N. HALSEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb. 21, 1866.

HALL'S

Vegetable Sicilian

HAIR RENEWER,

As the name indicates, not only RENEWS the growth of the hair when thin and falling off, but positively renews the color to its original shade when it is turning grey or white, whether caused by disease, grief or old age.

It will certainly do what is claimed for it, a fact to which hundreds, ay thousands, who have used it, are ready and willing to testify Where one bottle is fairly used, in any community, its reputation "spreads like wild fire," and is the best advertisement and recommendation we desire. In the Eastern States, where the "RENEWER" originated, the young ladies use it as a hair dressing; it is found on the toilet tables of young men, (also at their barbers), while elder men and women who desire a Renewer and Restorative for their grey locks and bald heads will not be without this article, which gives in every instance, entire satisfaction.

CAUTION.

Don't let any druggist or dealer urge upon you a different article, as there is no preparation in the world like this. Beware of any article purporting to be the same.

Try HALL'S HAIR RENEWER according to Directions, and you will use no other.

If not sold at druggists in your town, a trial bottle will be sent you by express, upon receipt of one dollar by mail, thus giving you an opportunity at once of testing its excellent qualities.

Orders for trial bottles must be addressed to

C. A. COOK, Chicago.
Gen'l Agent for Northwestern States,

R. P. HALL & CO., Proprietors, Nashua, N. H.

Sold at WHOLESALE in Chicago, by FULLER, FINCH & FULLER, BURNHAMS & VAN SCHAACK, LORD & SMITH, SMITH & DWYER, J. H. REED & CO., CHAS. G. SMITH, DRETZSCH, BLOCKI & CO., H. SCOVIL W. D. HARRIS & CO., POST & BADEAU, and by druggists and dealers generally.

What is the Matter!

The Fact is the new firm of

SLAYTON TINDALL & Co.

are selling

FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT!

By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff. And all the people are rushing for it. Come on we have a large stock of such wheat on hand yet, also

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,
CORN MEAL,
PLASTER,
WATER LIME,
CLOVER SEED,
TIMOTHY SEED,
CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF

Grain and Seeds!!

SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO.

Tecumseh, Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN IFVALID.

Publised for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supplying at the same time the means of Self-Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a post-paid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, mhy be had of the author.

NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Brooklyn,
n790lysmp Kings Co, N. Y.

Estrays.

Two red Steers one year old past were taken up by the subscriber on the 6th, of November last. The end of the right ear of each is cut off The left ear of each is notched. The owner of said Steers is requested to prove ownership, pay charges and take them away.

FENNER PALMER.

Dated Macon, January 25th, 1866.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at

A. JAMES

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVI. NO. 44. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 22, 1866. WHOLE NO. 798.

GREAT

CLEARING OUT SALE

OF

DRY GOODS

FOR THE

NEXT THIRTY DAYS

WE WANT TO.

CLEAR OUT THE OLD STOCK!

WE WANT TO MAKE ROOM FOR

A New Stock!

We want to get a

Pile of Greenbacks!

And in order to do so we offer our present stock of Dry Goods at

VERY LOW PRICES.

DRESS GOODS,
PRINTS, DELAINES,
HOOP SKIRTS, SHAWLS,
NUBIAS, HOODS, SHEETING
FLANNELS, CLOTHS,
CASSIMERES, WOOLEN
SHIRTING & SHIRTS,
UNDERSHIRTS, DRAWERS,
&c at Cost and

Less than Cost

We Mean

WHAT WE SAY

DO NOT FAIL TO

CALL and SEE Us at

NUMBER ONE

BIDWELL'S BLOCK!

TRIBOU, & BIDWELL Bros.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

G. T. KETCHAM'S
BOOK STORE,
Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.
(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)
DEALER IN
CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER.
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.
—o—
I will sell any of the above goods as
Cheap or Cheaper
can any other dealer in the country, and
WARRANT
all goods sold as good as recommended.
—o—
CASH FOR RAGS!
—o—
Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.
J. D. Robbins.
TECUMSEH, - - - - - MICHIGAN.

NEW SPRING GOOD

The undersigned is just receiving a well selected and choice stock of
FAMILY GROCERIES;
consisting in part of the following articles:
SUGARS, TEAS, COFFEES, SPICE,
PEPPER, GINGER, BUTTER,
CHEESE, LARD, FRUITS,
SALT, TOBACCO, WOOD WILLOW AND STONE WARE, PORK, HAMS, POTATOES, AND
numerous other articles not necessary to mention.
Having purcased the store on the north side of Chicago street, in this village, formerly occupied by Deuel & Weatherhead, and having had some experience in former years, by strict attention to business,
Reasonable Prices
AND Honorable Dealing, I hope to merit a share of the public patronronage All goods warranted to give good satisfaction in every case My motto is Small Profits and Quick Sales.
and above all honorable dealing.
The public are most respectfully solicited to call and examine my stock of Groceries before purchasing elsewhere.
J. S. HENDRYX

D. NOTEMAN, M. D.
Practical Physician, for the treatment of Chronic Diseases, will isit Tecumseh the 1st & 2d of Every Month,
for Consultation with patients. Cancers and Scrofulus Tumors removed without the use of the knife. Bronchitis, Catarrh, and Incipient Consumption cured in three to five months. Liver Complaint, Dispepsia, and Constipation cured in 2 to 4 months. Piles Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration and diseases of the Genital Organs yield readily to his treatment. Prolepsus Utur he is master of. Charges reasonable according to ability to pay: the really poor will be treated grates. He will be at Comstock & Noteman's Drug Store, Adrian, the last week in each month. Residence on Budling Street. All letters with stamp enclosed will receive prompt attention. For further particulars (See Circulars.

Tecumseh Union School!
C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.
THE SPRING TERM of this institution will open April 9th, 1866, and continue twelve weeks
Scholars will be received at any time and placed in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.
CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE
on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

☞ Subscribe for the HERALD.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.
Express Freight, 6:15 A. M.
Mail and Express, 1:15 P. M.
GOING NORTH.
Mail and Express, 9:28 A. M.
Accommodation, 6:38 P. M.

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh. Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND,
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD C. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich.

ALFRED JAMES,
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT,
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilets, &c.
Chicao St. Tecumseh, Mich.

P. N. CURTIS.
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER,
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

GOULD & WALDO,
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St, - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN B. WOOD.
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER.
Attorney's, Councellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh. Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT,
Justice's of the Peace, Ihsurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & McCOWEN,
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWARD H. HOAG,
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EMLAY & COURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harnass and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HORACE BREWER,
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mach.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS,
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

O. G. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and worker in Jewelry.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. C. SATTERTHWAITE,
Insurance Agent and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT.
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS,
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL,
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE.
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St - - Tecumseh, Mich

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St. Opposite P. Office.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT,
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR L. BARNES,
Physician & Surgeon,
Special attention given to office consultation. Office with Dr. Hause, Dentist. Residence two doors north of the M. E. church.

The Tecumseh Herald.
C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.
(One inch of column constitutes a square.)

	1 wk	3 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$ 2.00	$ 5.00	$ 7.50	$10.00
2 Squares	1.75	3.50	8.00	12.00	15 00
3 Squares	2 75	5.00	11.00	16 00	20,00
¼ Column	5.00	9 00	12.00	18,00	25,00
½ Column	7.50	12.00	18.00	25.00	36.00
Column	12 .00	15,00	20,00	35,00	60.00

☞ No advertisement considered less than one square Transcient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted at $5.50 per year.

☞ Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

☞ We will take wood, butter, lard, eggs, potatoes, and all kinds of farm produce, on subscription for the "HERALD." So bring it along.

To Our Friends.

You will confer a favor on us by soliciting the Judge of Probate to publish Probate Notices in the HERALD, and you will also find it convenience to yourselves to have the advertisements in the paper you receive.

☞ John B. Gough delivered his favorite lecture on Habit, in the new Union Hall at Adrian, on Monday evening last. He was greeted with a full house of course.

☞ The earnings of the M. S R. R. for the first week in March, were $90-881. This is a decrease of $1,461, from the correponding week in 1865.

☞ John Picher of Rome, the man who was tried last week at the Circuit Court for stealing sheep was acquitted. Joseph Dakin of Ridgeway who was arrested sometime since charged with stealing Mr. Arners pocket-book was also tried and acquitted.

☞ Auction every afternoon and evening in the store just west of the National Bank.

☞ The spring elections are upon us. Let there be a general muster at the caucuses, and see that the best men are put in office And furthermore, let the best men bear in mind, that the HERALD office is the place to get their tickets.

A THUNDER STORM.—A violent thunder storm, accompanied with copious showers of hail and rain, visited this us Tuesday night, and continued for some hours. At one time the whole heavens were one lurid flame from lightning. It seems as if it was the final breaking up of winter.

REGISTER.—As our township elections are soon to come off, it stands every voter in hand to see that his name is properly registered before the day of election.—Persons who have the least doubt about their names being on the Registry, should call upon the Township Clerk without delay.

Prof. Simms Lectures.

The lectures of Prof. Simms on Phrenology Pysoiognomy &c. in Bidwell's Hall are quite well attended.

The Prof. treats a new branch of his subject every evening. He speaks in an easy off hand manner well adapted to a miscellaneous audience. He remains here this week only, consequently those who desire to hear him, and have not yet heard him, should go without delay.

☞ Oil! Oil! Oil! is the cry in all parts of the State, and in all parts of the State all legitimate and useful improvements are lost sight of in consequence. The mania is equal to the great Shanghai chicken fit the country was in a few years ago. The few make by selling, not oil wells, but territory; but not one in a hundred by striking oil.

☞ The citizens of Clinton are making strenuous efforts to raise $100,000 for the purpose of building an extensive woolen factory. They have already secured $63,000.

☞ The M. E. society in Ridgeway contemplate building a brick Church with cupola and Bell, to cost $10,000. Most of the money is already subscribed. It is to occupy a prominent place on the corner of Monroe and Detroit streets.—The lot valued at $600, is to be donated by Samuel Rapplye.

☞ The skating season opened here again yesterday, the skating park being the sidewalks, which were used by the boys to their hearts content, making the walking unusually precarious.

THE OLD LETTERS.

BY FRANCES BROWNE.

Come they from sinner or from saint,
Cast them in for the fire is faint:
The fire is faint, and the frost is strong,
And these old letters have lived too long.
How welcome once, it matters not:
Their worth a way with time has sped,
The love is o'er, the hope is dead,
And the old friend has forgot.

Cast them in, they're hard to keep,
And will not let one's memory sleep
For hints of age and tales of change:
Oh, but the turns of life are strange!
The world whereof they speak is gone:
How bright they came, how dim they part,
These passing ages of the heart,
While life and we wear on!

Cast them in! why should they last
When the light we read them by is past,
And never again will gild our days?
Up like a banner goes the blaze!
It is waste paper, and nothing more:
Some have treasured up for years,
Some are blotted with heavy tears,
And some our dreams read o'er.

These are sprinkled with many a vow,
The love was never as warm as now;
Those by a trusty hand were penned;
Woe is me for that friendship's end!
There goes a page of boyish rhyme;
That was a sheet of good advice—
We took our own way on the ice,
And learned the worth of it all in time.

One glossy curl of wavy gold
Was hid in this burning letter's fold:
'Tis long since that golden head grew gray,
And the grave where it rests is far away!
—Up in its might the broad flame flashes;
And there they lie, in what all our aims,
Seekings and strivings, hopes and schemes,
Must come to—dust and ashes!

☞ The weather has moderated and so has the price of gold. The last mentioned may take a bound upward again, but we really hope the bulls and bears will agree to let the weather take its proper course, and settle on a firm basis. Caloric has ranged at a high premium for a long time in this vicinity, and if we can get a supply on more comfortable terms, it will ease our noses as well as our purses.—Jackson Citizen.

We are of the opinion that the editor of the Citizen, must have the firm basis of which he speaks, unless the weather be far different there from what is in Tecumseh, for quite sure we are, that we have a firm basis here, and our streets are not paved except as the weather has provided for us. As regards the ease of said editor's nose, we would suggest to the Common Council, the propriety of laying tile from Jackson to some of the Southern States and therby introducing air of a more moderate temperature for his express benefit.

CONCERT.

Prof. E. D. Leland's juvenile singing class will give a concert in old Odd Fellows Hall, on Wednesday evening next, March 28 We sincerely hope that our citizens will remember the night and greet Prof. Leland with a rousing house. As an efficient and successful drill master in music, he is unsurpassed by any professor of music that has ever visited Tecumseh, and his present class, numbering one hundred and twenty scholars is probably superior to any that he has instructed here before. The class has passed through a rigid course of training and is now in splendid drill and under the most perfect discipline. We can safely guarantee a rich treat to all those who attend the Concert on Wednesdy evening. Let everyone be present. Let us give the Prof a Benefit such as he is eminently deserving of—which we regret to say, he has not yet received during his stay in Tecumseh.

Internal Improvements.

There are two things that Tecumseh has been sadly in need of for several years. A good Hotel and a good Fire Company. The former we shall soon have, Providence permitting. Shall we not have the latter? Tecumseh has always been behind the times in its Fire Department. In fact we never had a fire company worthy of the name. We have a Hook and Ladder shed, but the ladders are scattered from the Baptist church to Anderson's flouring mill, that they may be conveniently distributed, we suppose, in case of a fire. To be sure we have had but few fires during the past few years, but our escape has been owing to sheer good luck rather than a discharge of duty. A good Fire Engine costs but a few hundred dollars and will frequently save double its cost in a single year. But whether we are to have a fire engine or not, there should be several large cisterns constructed during the coming summer. There should be at least two large reservoirs in the centre of Chicago street, and several cisterns besides in the rear of our business blocks. We would suggest that the "City Fathers" take this thing in hand. If this is not done, we shall some day suffer severely for our criminal neglect.

☞ The Chicago Times says that a new Democratic daily will soon be established in Adrian.

Our Educational Institutions.

Too little attention is bestowed upon our Schools by Parents. Not one in ten of all who send children ever understand the course of studies adopted, or the discipline of the school, which is equally important. Parents often complain of the rules in force in our schools for their government and the good order of the pupils; but which would meet their approval if they would give attention enough to the subject to see their absolute necessity. A teacher should not be held responsible for the moral conduct of pupils; but Parents should be. Of course the teacher is responsible to a certain extent, but the great responsibility rests upon Parents, for it is more particularly the teacher's duty to aid in intellectual success. On this subject an exchange mentions a novel mode of punishment in a school at Muhlinen, in Switzerland, intended to keep the children from playing truant; which they accomplish effectually by working, not upon the child's fear of the rod, or love of his studies, but upon the parent's love of money. That is to say, if the children are absent, a cross is put against the parent's name, and he is made accountable, and is fined if he does not give satisfactory reasons for the child's absence. Of course, all the whippings for playing truant are administered by the parent, and, therefore, it being very sure, if there is a fine for the parent to pay, that the amount will be fully endorsed upon the child with a birch rod, they take good care to keep punctually at school. No delinquent can escape, for no false excuse can be manufactured. It is a system which might, perhaps, be very useful in other arts besides that of school-keeping.

Whether it is best for our schools to adopt some mode to throw the responsibility upon Parents for the neglect and faults of pupils, is for those interested to consider.

The number of pupils in the schools at present is very large. In the central building, the high school department numbers 91 scholars; 46 under the instruction of the Principal, Prof C. B Thomas, and 45 under the instruction of the Preceptess Mis Lewis. In the Intermediate Department, Miss M. Rosebrugh has 54 pupils under her instruction, and Miss Crossman, 40. Miss L. Rosebrugh has 42 pupils in the Primary Department, in the same building. The Misses Sher-Sherman and Fountain have 110 pupils under their instruction in the Western Branch, Miss McConnell 50 in the Eastern Branch, and Miss Hough about 50 under her care in the Northern Branch. We have, therefore, nine teachers and 437 pupils in our schools. There have been between 60 and 70 pupils from abroad in the school this year. Of this number, one is from Hillsdale, one from Adrian, three from St. Joseph county, three from Napoleon, one from Albion, four from Manchester, one from Lodi Plains, and the remainder from the neighborhoods adjacent to this town.

Artesian Wells.

Our townsman Edwin Smith Esq. of Clinton, is now busily engaged in a new enterprise, which is no less than the sinking of an artesian well upon the farm of L. Sisson, on the school-section The neighboring farmers are kindly lending their assistance in the undertaking and they are very sanguine of being able to strike a vein of water that will rise to the surface of the ground. It will not only afford the surrounding farms an abundant supply of water, but will be the means of making a geological exploration in this vicinity. Who knows but that immense beds of coal or salt or even petroleum are slumbering in the earth beneath our feet, and only waiting for an exploration of the kind to unveil their existence?

THE ACCIDENT, is the name of a racy little sheet published monthly by the accident Ins. Co. of Columbus, Ohio, devoted to the interests of accident insurance. The Accident Insurance Co., of Columbus is unsurpassed by any in the whole country, having a capital of one Million dollars, and an energetic and efficient corps of officers. Accidents will happen—no one is exempt from them. Hence, all should insure. The expense is but trifling, while the benefit in case of injury is very great. S. C. Stacy is agent for Tecumseh and vicinity.

☞ Among the recent Presidential pardons, is that of Thomas Lean, of this State, a former Postmaster, sent to Jackson for 15 years for robbing the mail.

Get your Town Meeting tickets here.

☞ We shall hold ourselves in readiness at all hours of the night and day, to print town meeting tickets.

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Mich., March 22, 1866.

Allen Miss Adaline	Baldwin Mrs Nancy
Doty E B	Frost Hiram
Graves Jane R	Howell Alvah
Hicks L	Jackson John
Lincoln Clara	Marshall T. C.
Nellson James	Oneff Mrs L S
Starr Henry	White Thomas
Wilson Athelon	Wright G D

W. ANDERSON, P. M.

☞ Supervisor Palmer of Hudson, had his leg broken on Wednesday of last week. He was engaged in getting a barrel of salt into the cellar, when it slipped and came suddenly in contact with his leg, breaking both bones below the knee.

☞ Go to Conkling's for 10c. Sugar.

Republicans of Ridgeway Township, Rally! Rally!! In the majesty of free men retrieve your banner lost a year ago

Make short the triumph of the prevailing opposition. Let those whose bullets repulsed the insurgent hosts, on embattled fields, wield now the more potent ballots, to perpetuate the results of their dear bought success. Republicans, be valiant! undismayed by past reverses, bear down upon your opponents, in solid phalanx; charging them in the Box, with a volley of Ballots and the day is yours. Attend you CAUCUS, on the 29th of March, at the village, at 2 o'clock P. M.—discuss matters of difference—remove the stumbling-block—nominate your best men,—attend the town-meeting and elect them.

By order of the TOWN COMMITTEE.

CAUCUS.—The Republicans of Macon, will meet in caucus at the Lake Ridge school house, on Thursday the 29th inst., at 2 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of nominating township Officers to be supported at the coming township election.

By order of the TOWN COMMITTEE.

IT IS A FACT.—That more suffering, disease and distress, is alleviated by Coe's Dyspepsia Cure than by any other one medicinal preparation extant. It is infallible in Dyspepsia. General Debility, Lassitude, Weakness, no Appetite, Indigestion, and is an immediate cure for any disease of the stomach and bowels.

Would also say in this connection, that Coe's Cough Balsam, compounded by the same firm, is invaluable in all cases of Croup, Sore Throat, Whooping Cough, and all throat and lung complaints.

☞ To every barrel of Flour you can make thirty pounds more Bread or Biscuit (and much better) by using Herrick Allen's Gold Medal Saleratus, than by yeast fermentation or any other Saleratus. It is perfectly healthy, will not turn your cookery yellow, will strengthen weak stomachs, and cure dyspeptic persons. It is much better to use with cream tartar than soda. Try one paper, and you will be convinced. Most of the Grocers sell it. Depot 112 Liberty St. New York.

☞ A. Hood & Co. have sold their stock of Ready Made Clothing to J. H. Wheeler, who is now east after a large stock.

Prof. Simms the well known Lecturer of New York, is lecturing and will continue to lecture all this week; upon the following subjects, in Bidwell's Hall, Tecumseh.

Thursday evening March 22d,—Pyhsical Culture and Health. Friday evening.—Physiognomy and origin of the races of Man. Saturday evening,—Love, Courtship and Marriage; look out for fun!

These lectures are intended for the public good and are amusing and attractive. They will be illustrated with the largest traveling collection of paintings in America.

Examinations and charts given daily in the Hall during each day of the course.—Advice given daily as to what course to pursue in order to rise in the world and how to become more useful and happy.

Admission 15cts until Saturday evening, when it will be 25cts.

Doors open at 6 o'clock. Lecture to commence each evening, at 7 1 2 o'clock. P. M.

LAST CHANCE
FOR ACTIVE AGENTS TO MAKE MONEY!
JUST PUBLISHED,
PEN PICTURES OF THE WAR.
SIX EDITIONS ALREADY GONE.
Apply to
LEDYARD BILL, 75 Fulton St., N Y.

A. J. HOAG,
Successor to WM. REITERMAN & Co.
WHOLESALE DEALER IN
Ambrotype and Photograph Stock,
235 Summit St. - - Toledo, O.

Notice.

The stock holders of the National Bank of Tecumseh are hereby notified that an election of nine Directors of said Bank will be held at their office in Tecumseh on Tuesday April 17th, 1866 at 10 o'clock A. M.
LUCIUS LILLEY, Cashier.
Tecumseh, March 12th, 1866.

Estrayed.

Broke into my enclosure in Ridgeway, on the 1st of November 1865, one red Cow. The owner is requested to pay charges and take her away. DAVID CORYELL.
Ridgeway March, 12th, 1866.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

General Intelligence.

Hostilities have been commenced between Dominica and Hayti.

The strike of a twelve hundred barrel well at Bennehoff Run, is the event of the week in the oil regions.

A Washington special states that Quantrell, the guerilla, has been arrested, and will be taken to Washington for trial.

George Chase, convicted of murder, at Joliet, Illinois, has been sentenced to be executed on the 23d inst.

Nearly thirty distilleries in New York were seized by the Government on the 9th and 10th in consequence of frauds upon the internal revenue.

Employers of negroes in Cuba have been ordered to produce at the central depot, at Havana, within 15 days, all native Africans of the captured slave expeditions.

The Spanish fleet has been concentrated before Valparaiso. An attempt of the Spanish authorities to negotiate with Chili and Peru has resulted unsuccessfully.

The Rhode Island Legislature has passed a bill prohibiting the exclusion of children from an public school on account of color or race. The law goes into effect on the 15th of May next.

The drenching rains have caused an additional rise to the already swollen streams throughout Indiana. The Wabash has overflowed its banks in many places, causing a good deal of damage.

Three of the Missouri railroads, to wit, the Southwest Branch of the Pacific Railroad, the Iron Mountain Railway, and the Cairo and Fulton Railroad, are offered for sale within the present year.

In the case of the five men sentenced to be hung in Effingham Co., Ill., on the 16th, a writ of super sedeas has been issued by the Supreme Court, and the matter will probably be carried up to the higher courts.

Advices from above Cincinnati report heavy rises in all the tributaries of the Ohio, and the probability of a freshet in the river. The ice is rapidly disappearing on Lake Erie, and a speedy resumption of navigation is anticipated.

A new and very fatal disease among horses has manifested itself in some of the New York livery stables. It is supposed to have been generated by contact with diseased army horses. Livery stable keepers are said to be keeping very quiet about it.

The army bill as it passed the Senate provides for one Lieutenant, five Majors, and ten Brigadier-Generals; five regiments of artillery, ten white and two colored regiments of cavalry, forty-two white and eight colored regiments of infantry, and 1,000 Indian scouts.

There will be a total eclipse of the moon on the evening of March 30th, this year. It begins at five minutes past nine o'clock, is at its total at twelve minutes past eleven, and begins to disappear at fifty-five minutes past eleven. It is visible throughout the United States.

An international exhibition of horticulture will be held in London, commencing on the 22d of May, 1866, and terminating on the 25th of the same month. The Executive Committee invite the citizens of the United States to participate in the proposed exhibition. The locality selected for the purpose is South Kensington, and the building designed for the exibition will cover three acres.

The London Herald says a movement has begun for laying the Atlantic cable during the summer. As at present arranged, the Great Eastern will carry the new cable, will lay it to Newfoundland, will then coal, and return to the Atlantic, when she will, with her consorts, grapple for the lost end, the locality of which can be ascertained within a quarter of a mile, through observations taken last summer by Captain Anderson and Captain Moriarty. It is not intended that the part of the old cable which now lies in the Great Eastern's tank shall be again stowed in her hold on the outward trip. It will be carried in another vessel until it is needed. Three vessels, including the Great Eastern, will be provided with grappling apparatus.

An amusing account of a hoax practiced upon the Spanish authorities in New York, a few days since, with the connivance of the Chilian Envoy, is published. A letter, purporting to be for the Chilian Minister at Buenos Ayres, and bearing an imitation of Senor B. Vienna Makenna's signature, was dropped in the street at a point where two Spanish spies were passing. They picked up the letter, which related the movements of imaginary Chilian privateers, and this solves the mystery of the sudden departure of the two Spanish war vessels, the Carmen and the Isabel is Catolica, from the port of New York, The expense to the Spanish Government of the fool's errand upon which these vessels were despatched, owing to the ruse played by the Chilian Envoy, is estimated at $30,000.

Political Matters.

The Universal Suffrage bill has passed the Wisconsin Senate by a vote 17 to 11.

The Iowa Senate—by 36 to 12—have passed resolutions sustaining the Radical majority in Congress.

The Legislature of New York, on the 10th, voted down a resolution favoring the eight-hour labor movement.

New Hampshire returns indicate the election of Smyth, the Union candidate for Governor, by about 5,000 majority.

At New Orleans, John T. Monroe, the Democratic candidate for Mayor, was elected over Moore, National Union candidate, by 316 majority.

Mr. Richard C. McCormick, of Arizona, has been appointed Governor of the Territory of Idaho, in place of Caleb Lyon, of Lyondale.

General Frank P. Blair was nominated to the Senate, Thursday, by the President, as Collector of Internal Revenue for the First District of Missouri.

Washington dispatches say that President Johnson will muster out 40,000 colored troops now stationed at the South, within the coming month.

In the Wisconsin House of Representatives on the 17th, the bill to restore the death penalty for murder, was indefinitely postponed by a vote of 48 to 34.

Senator Saulsbury of Delaware appeared on the floor of the Senate, on the 14th, in an offensive state of intoxication, and was removed by two Senators.

The Missouri Legislature is spinning out its session to a very paying length. It is now approximating its fifth month, the session having commenced in November.

Among the papers of the late Hon. Henry Winter Davis, there has been discovered in the handwriting of the deceased the manuscript of an elaborate speech advocating universal suffrage.

Gen. Burnside will be pressed to take the nomination of Governor of Rhode Island. The General is idolized in the State, and if he should consent to run, no other candidate would be likely to take the field.

The President told a Congressman, on the 10th, that he regarded Louisiana as more loyal than she had been at any previous time since her purchase, and South Carolina as more loyal than she had been for thirty years.

The bill declaring persons born in this country to be citizens, excepting Indians not taxed, and to secure all persons in the enjoyment of their civil rights, has finally passed both Houses of Congress and will soon be presented to the President.

The effect of the late policy of the President in the State of Tennessee, is stated by Governor Brownlow, ruined the prospects of the Union men, and they feel that there is no safety for them unless Congress shall choose to protect them.

The North Carolina Legislature adjourned on the 12th. The bill allowing negroes to testify in all cases where they are concerned in person or property, when jurisdiction shall be restored to the Courts in the State, was passed. The usury laws were repealed so far as to allow 8 per cent. interest to be paid when an agreement to that effect is made between parties.

Fenian Movements.

Earthworks are being constructed opposite Detroit to prevent Fenian invasion.

The Dublin papers say the police have reliable information as to the whereabouts of Stephens.

The authorities of Montreal have forbidden the parade in that city in celebrating St. Patrick's day.

A battery of artillery arrived at Windsor on the 15th. A home guard of 500 men is organized and equipped there.

A statement is published that the Chicago Fenians have agreed to furnish three regiments of infantry, two batteries of artillery, a naval brigade of 1,000 men, 8,000 stand of arms, and $600,000 in money.

A deputation of officers who served in the army of the Potomac waited upon President Roberts recently, and proffered their services, and were informed that employment would be found for them at no distant day.

The Watchman announces the intention of the Government to suppress Irish Canadian papers for alleged disloyal utterances. Large acquisitions of Orangemen have come in from the back country, and blood may be shed.

Secretary Seward has assured the Canadian authorities that the border shall be well guarded to prevent any hostile demonstrations by the Fenians, and national troops are reported on their way north for this purpose.

Fenian regiments are being rapidly organized in New York, and it is estimated that General Sweeny will obtain 25,000 veterans in that city alone. Large quantities of arms are said to be on deposit at various points on the frontier.

Runs have commenced upon the Canadian banks; and these institutions are restricting discounts to well-approved customers, and refusing to advance upon any collateral securities. It is reported at Rochester, but disbelieved, that the Fenians have purchased four large steamers on Lake Ontario.

On St. Patrick's Day, the Fenians made a general display throughout the principal cities, in an orderly and peaceful manner. In Quebec, Windsor, and Montreal, there were no processions, but peaceable parades of Anti-Fenian Irish were held at Kingston and other points.

The New York Fenians have a rumor that the excitement in Canada is caused by direct order from England, in the hope that the union of the provinces may be thus precipitated, and Prince Alfred seated on an American throne. It is said that these orders were sent by a Fenian messenger who is now in New York.

It is rumored that an order was sent to England, five weeks ago, for ten thousand British regulars to come to Canada to protect that Province against the Fenians. They are to be landed at Halifax, and march thence to New Brunswick, where the more vulnerable point is said to be. Sir Frederick Bruce has ordered the West India squadron to sail immediately for Halifax.

Some sharp individual, says the Detroit Tribune, who has not the fear of the Fenians before his eyes, we observe, has played a practical joke upon the members of that organization. At the bottom of their posters for the mass meeting on Saturday afternoon, is a large line, "God save the green," but the sharp individual has had printed the word "horns," and has pasted the slips after the word green, upon the bills, thus changing the meaning of the words very materially.

Southern News.

In accordance with orders issued by Gen. Stoneman from from Department headquarters, the district of East Tennessee has been abolished, and the troops removed from that portion of the State.

The Treasury Agents in the South have been directed by Secretary McCulloch to inform especially all subscribers to the Confederate cotton loan that the cotton is considered the property of the late Confederacy and liable to seizure and confiscation.

A circular has been issued by the Assistant Commissioner of Freedmen's Affairs at Charleston, in which it is said that the grants of land to the freed people, in compliance with General Sherman's special field order, will be regarded as good and valid, while arrangements will be made to accommodate the former owners on other lands not otherwise appropriated.

A dispatch dated Norfolk, Va., the 11th, says: "Mr. Flint, paymaster in the United States Navy, and sub-editor, under Charles W. Butts of the Norfolk Old Dominion, was flogged in his office yesterday, by three gentlemen. Mr. Flint will survive his wounds. Upon the approach of the assailants, the assistant editors fled, including Mr. Butts."

The Richmond Inquirer says that twenty-one Swedish immigrants who passed that city last summer on their way to find employment in the interior of the State, have returned, much dissatisfied with their treatment, pay and food. Two of them—a man and his wife—state that they were hired by a minister, for whom they labored five months, and who paid them in Confederate money, a fraud they did not discover until they undertook to pay their fare on the railroad. The party go directly to Chicago.

A Memphis dispatch says the high water has broken through Terrapin Neck cut-off, and made a channel sixty feet wide, which is gradually widening by the terrible velocity of the water passing through it. This will shorten the river fifteen miles. It results beneficially to planters above, and disastrously to those immediately below. The current will strike the head of Island 102. This event has been slowly but surely approaching for more than ten years. In 1860 the neck measured 680 feet; in September, 1865, 142 feet; on the 21st of February, 1866, 30 feet.

The Vicksburg Cotton Planters' Gazette says that, "As soon as the time arrives, when the Southern States shall be reinstated in the Union, (and we predict that the day is not very distant)—a future of prosperity will open up for the South, far surpassing anything imagined or dreamed of heretofore." A Savannah paper takes a different view and says it is afraid the raising of rice is at an end, and pictures the rice swamps degenerating into unproductive swamps. It says the white man cannot, and the black man will not, cultivate the swamp plantations.

Financial Items.

It is stated that Jackson's vignette will be substituted on the five-cent fractional currency.

Adams' Express Company paid Internal Revenue tax on nearly seven millions of dollars last year.

The Superior Court of New York has decided that United States Treasury Notes are equal to gold or silver, as legal tenders.

The failure of the Whipple File Manufacturing company, of Boston, is announced. Their liabilities are reported to be heavy.

Mr. Wm. L. Banning, President of the St. Paul and Superior Railroad, has left St. Paul for Europe, with $4,500,000 in bonds for negotiations.

Official returns from the Internal Revenue Bureau show H. B. Claflin & Co. to be the largest business house in the country. They paid tax on sales of $42,000,000 last year.

The Ways and Means Committee will soon report a new tax bill in favor of five cents per pound on cotton, and five per cent. on all incomes, extending the exemption clause in the latter to $1,000.

The bill introduced by Representative Kasson contemplates the coinage of five cent pieces composed of copper and nickel, after a design by the Director of the Mint, to take the place of the five-cent pieces currency.

The Sheriff of Hamilton county, Ohio, who has been examining the accounts of Benno Speyer, the absconding banker, reports the assets at $8,000. The liabilities are about $55,000. Speyer is now in England.

The statement recently telegraphed from Washington that the President has ordered the $100,000 in coin that was taken from the Richmond banks, after Lee's surrender, to be returned to those institutions, is contradicted. The money is still held by the Treasury Department.

The Detective Bureau of the Treasury Department has obtained possession of the plate from which the counterfeit one hundred dollar compound interest notes have been printed. The impression was taken from the steel roller in the department on a sheet of lead, and the plate was made from it.

According to the ruling of the Treasury Department, separation of a coupon from a two-years' five per cent. United States Treasury note, renders such note no longer a legal tender until interest commences on the next succeeding coupon attached to the note; and the separation is such a mutilation of the note as to make it redeemable only at its face value, without interest, at the proper office.

The new issue of greenbacks, to replace the mutilated currency, is out. The Government has discontinued issuing compound interest notes. Those redeemed are not again issued. Thirteen thousand dollars of fractional currency was sent yesterday to the North and Northwest. The National Redemption Bureau will soon be in operation, when perfect notes will be kept out, to be exchanged for mutilated.

Incidents and Accidents.

In New York, on St. Patrick's Day, a young lad named Hessels shot his mother through the head while handling a pistol, not knowing it was loaded. The wound is fatal.

A New York merchant named Hernmann, while on his way East in a sleeping car on the Michigan Central railroad, on the 14th, had his pocket picked of $6,000 in United States bonds and $15,000 in greenbacks.

The freight depot and elevator of the New York Central Railroad, at Buffalo, were destroyed by fire on the 17th, together with a large number of loaded cars, freight, and 400,000 bushels of grain. Loss about $1,000,000.

Twenty buildings were destroyed by fire at Minneapolis, Minn., on the night of the 16th. Loss $100,000.....On the night of the 14th a fire destroyed business stores in Kilbourn City, Wis., to the amount of $100,000. Insured for $50,000.

A few days ago David Flynn, a man about 45 years of age, attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself in the head, at the Chicago and Alton depot, East St. Louis. He gave as his reason that some person had robbed him of all his funds, about fifty dollars.

In New York, on the 12th, a man named John Ghett shot his wife in the head with a pistol. Supposing he had killed her, he turned and fled. Being pursued, he drew a pistol and shot himself, dying in a few minutes. The woman is not dangerously wounded.

The boiler attached to Althoff's planing mill, in Erie, Pa., exploded on the 16th, killing, one man named Sibley, from St Catharines, C. W., and seriously injuring three others, names unknown, and completely demolishing the mill, throwing portions of the boilers, etc., a distance of two squares.

On the 11th, a young man confined in jail at Geneva on charge of burning the barn of Dr. Angel, committed suicide in a singular manner. Removing the bedding from his iron bedstead, he managed to insert his head between the cross-bars, and then rolled over, producing strangulation or dislocation of the neck, and was found dead. He was considered to be temporarily deranged.

The Louisville Journal of Monday says that, on Saturday, a drunken man fell from the front platform of a horse car, the wheels passing over his left arm, between the elbow and shoulder joints, severing it completely. At the time of the accident the car was overcrowded with passengers. The powerful weight crushed the bone of the arm into a powder.

On the 28th ult., Mathew Sheeley, employed at the Adams' sugar refinery in South Boston, fell into a large vat which is about six feet deep, and which is used for boiling bags used to convey sugar in order to cleanse them of the saccharine substance. Sheeley immediately pulled himself out, but he was terribly scalded. A physician seeing his case comparatively hopeless, and desiring to alleviate his sufferings somewhat, gave him some laudanum, but he died four hours after the accident.

Congressional Doings.

The Senate, on the 13th, confirmed about 1,000 officers, of and below the rank of Colonel, to be Brigadier Generals by brevet.

In the Senate, on the 13th, a resolution was adopted instructing the Judiciary Committee to report resolutions amending the Constitution; first, basing representation on qualified voters; second, basing direct taxes on the value of property; third, pledging the faith of the Government to the payment of the national debt; and fourth, prohibiting payment for slaves.....The bill which recognizes Colorado as one of the States of the Union failed, on a motion to order to a third reading, by 14 yeas, 21 nays. In the discussion over this bill, the fact was elicited that the population of Colorado had diminished since the enabling act of Congress was passed.

In the House, on the 13th, a substitute for the Senate bill, incorporating a military and naval asylum for disablad officers and men, was passed. The Senate amendment to the bill extending the time for the withdrawal of goods from bonded warehouses was concurred in. The Senate bill for the protection of persons in their civil rights was reported back from committee, with sundry amendments, and an additional section, providing for final appeal, in cases arising under the law, to the Supreme Court of the United States, all which were agreed to, and the bill passed by a vote of 109 to 18. The bill making appropriations for fortifications was also passed, substantially as reported.

In the Senate, on the 14th, the deficiency bill was reported. The Committee on the Judiciary reported that it had agreed to the House amendments to the civil rights bill, and asked for the immediate consideration of the measure; but objection was made, and the bill, consequently, was laid over.

In the House, on the 14th, the Senate bill relative to the Court of Claims was passed. Leave was asked to introduce a resolution requiring the Secretary of the Navy to send a naval force to the fishing grounds, to protect our citizens in the enjoyment of their rights as recognized by the treaty of 1783; but objection was made. The resolution to provide for the expenses attending a representation of the United States in the Universal Exposition at Paris was adopted.

In the Senate, on the 15th, a resolution was passed to print 10,000 copies of the Reconstruction Committee's report.....The House amendments to the civil rights bill were concurred in.....The deficiency bill was taken up, and some amendments made thereto.

In the House, on the 15th, a controversy of somewhat an angry nature arose between Messrs. Smith of Kentucky, and Stevens of Pennsylvania, in the course of an attempted personal explanation by the former.....A committee reported that the treasury balances, as stated by Mr. McCulloch, were correct.

In the Senate, on the 16th, a resolution was introduced providing that invalid persons shall be allowed to hold office under the Government, the salary of which does not exceed $300.....The bill reorganizing the Judiciary was reported back with sundry amendments, and some additional sections, abstracts of which will be found in the reported proceedings.....Mr. Stewart of Nevada presented a series of resolutions, prescribing the conditions of reconstruction, which were referred to the Reconstruction Committee.....The deficiency bill was passed, with some amendments, which will require it to go again to the House..... The naval appropriation bill was taken up and amended, and its further consideration postponed.

In the House, on the 16th, Mr. Price of Iowa, attempted to introduced a resolution appointing a committee to investigate the charges made against Secretary McCulloch. .....A number of important resolutions were introduced and referred.....The loan bill was discussed at considerable length, and the previous questions was finally ordered, several pending amendments and substitutes rejected, and the bill itself was defeated, amid intense excitement, by a vote of 66 to 68. Mr. Garfield moved a reconsideration of the vote, pending which the House adjourned.

SOME one has invented paper socks. They are to be made of clear paper or paper and muslin combined. The inventor designs them to be worn over or under ordinary socks in cold weather, and thus keep in or cause the feet to retain their natural heat. It is claimed they can be furnished cheaper than washing can be done. If so, they will come rapidly into use. If this experiment proves a success, paper will be substituted for a great variety of articles where now cotton and linen are used. Probably we shall soon adopt the Japanese fashion of paper pocket handkerchiefs.

WESTERN ELOQUENCE.—The following is given as a good specimen of Western eloquence and wit:

"Where is Europe compared to America? Nowhere. They call England the mistress of the sea. But what makes the sea? The Mississippi makes it, and all we've got to do is to turn the Mississippi into the Mammoth Cave, and the English navy will be floundering in the mud."

.....A misanthropist hates everybody but the Devil.

CURRENT ITEMS.

Personal and Literary.

GEN. GRANT has just taken his eldest son to West Point.

TENNYSON is engaged upon a new poem, of considerable length.

PATTI has just made an engagement to sing at St. Petersburg, at the rate of $2,000 a night.

FROM 15,000 to 20,000 copies of each are sold of the works of "Marian Harland" (Mrs. Terhune).

SEVEN thousand copies of Whittier's new poem, "Snow Bound," were sold on the day of publication.

By the death of Dr. Nott, Rev. Dr. Spring is left sole survivor of the original American Bible Society.

Gov. MORTON, of Indiana, arrived in New York from Paris on the 7th. He is suffering severely from paralysis.

AT a sale of paintings in New York, on the 9th, Church's "Twilight in the Wilderness" was purchased by John B. Johnston for $4,300.

THE Independent says: "Next to Mr. Spurgeon, the most effective Gospel preacher to the masses in England is the Rev. Newman Hall."

A DAUGHTER of Sir William Herschel, the English astronomer, was lately converted to Roman Catholicism through the influence of Father Secchi, of Rome.

M. VICTOR HUGO writes to a French paper to say that he has read statements that he is blind and can neither read nor write, and wishes to contradict them.

JONATHAN H. GREEN, the "reformed gambler," who was arrested in Cincinnati on charge of having passed a counterfeit $100 bill, has been honorably acquitted.

GEORGE M. BEELER, Secretary of the Indiana State Horticultural Society, died on the 11th. Mr. Beeler had obtained considerable reputation as a writer on horticulture.

"WHAT would I give," said Charles Lamb "to call my mother back to earth for one day, to ask her pardon upon my knees, for all those acts by which I gave her gentle spirit pain."

THE connection of George Alfred Townsend with the New York Citizen terminated last week, and the paper will hereafter remain under the exclusive charge of Col. Halpine.

BISHOP ALEXANDER CAMPBELL, generally known as founder of the Disciples, or denomination of Christians, and eminent as a theologian, especially as a debater, died at his residence at Bethany, near Wheeling, West Virginia, on the night of the 4th, in the 78th year of his age.

DR. WINDSHIP, who is now thirty-two years of age and weighs about one hundred and sixty pounds, retains his strength remarkably, his lifting power being now upwards of a ton and quarter, which is, we believe, about one third greater than that of any athlete of whom any authentic record is preserved.

IN a few days L. A. Godey, the proprietor of the Lady's Book, will sail for Europe. His magazine has been a source of pleasure to our countrywomen for nearly forty years. It is the leading ladies' magazine in America, having a monthly circulation of upward of one hundred and twenty thousand copies.

MR. CHARLES HARGOOD, of Chicago, formerly of Petersham, Mass., started on a journey around the world, last May, going overland to the Pacific coast with the "Colfax party," and thence to the Sandwich Islands, Japan and China. He had reached Egypt the last of January, and is now in Europe.

OLD usages of modern slang words turn up in unexpected quarters sometimes. Most of us think that the word "jolly," in the sense of very, extremely, is of recent date; but in a serious theological work of two hundred years ago—John Trapp's "Commentary on the Old and New Testaments," (London, 1656-7)—we read: "All was jolly quiet at Ephesus before St. Paul came thither."

AS LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR BROSS of Illinois, and a friend were driving toward Chicago quite late on the 3d inst., they were assailed by two highwaymen, two miles north of the city limits, one of whom made for the carriage and the other for the horses' heads. The highwaymen were terribly shocked and mortified at discovering that the gentlemen were "armed to the teeth."

MR. W. D. HOWELLS is about to be entrusted with the editorial charge of the Atlantic Monthly. For about three years Mr. Howells was Consul at Venice, but some months since he resigned the position, and since then he has been exclusively occupied with literature. Several very able articles from his pen have recently appeared in The Nation, and one or two in the North American Quarterly.

THE publishers of the Round Table are moving toward urging upon Congress the adoption of an International Copy-right law, by which every author and publisher may obtain some return for the sale of their books in other countries beside their own. The petition for this object has been signed by many of the leading writers, including Bryant, Holmes, Bayard Taylor, Lowell, Longfellow, Lossing, Hillard, Olmsted, Saxe, Stoddard and Parton.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN left a fund to the city of Boston, in trust, for the benefit of poor apprentices. Hon. Wm. Minot, who has been treasurer of this fund for fifty-five years, has just resigned. In his hands it has increased from about $9,000 to a sum exceeding $111,000.

Domestic Paragraphs.

—Ground was broken for the building of a new opera house at St. Paul, Minn., on the 1st inst.

—A free bridge is to be built across the Mississippi river above Fort Snelling, Minnesota.

—A bridegroom in Indianapolis, Ind., last week, tendered the marriage fee in sausages.

—Ten cents was the reward of some burglars who blew open a safe at New Haven last Saturday.

—A negro woman has sued the proprietors of the Indianapolis Gazette for libel, laying the damages at $10,000.

—A girl of 15 is on trial at Boston for bigamy. Her first husband, married at the mature age of 14, is in the state prison.

—A man went into a saloon in Bridgeport, Ct., the other night, called for a few raw oysters and astonished the natives by eating 165.

—The number of hogs packed at Cincinnati during the recent packing season was 354,079, being 3,479 over the number of the previous year.

—It is estimated that the cost of the buildings now under contract to be erected at St. Paul, Minn., the coming season, will amount to over $600,000.

—There are sixty cities and towns in Iowa which have at least 1,000; thirty-seven have over 2,000; eighteen over 3,000; nine over 4,000; eight over 5,000.

—Over two hundred carcasses of three days old veal were seized by the sanitary police in Washington Market, New York, on the 9th, and about fifty on the 10th.

—At an auction sale of unclaimed express packages at New Haven on Tuesday, one man paid two dollars for a package which proved to contain forty good coon-skins.

—St. Paul is enveloped in blackness after dark, the gas company refusing to allow the street lamps to be lighted until the city pays fifteen thousand dollars damages for violation of contract.

—The Detroit Advertiser and Tribune asserts that hogs are fattened in certain portions of that city upon garbage, and even upon dead horses and cattle. No wonder the trichina is feared.

—The Round Table isn't ashamed to state—but does it unblushingly—that a large business has been done during the skating season by the corset makers in manufacturing false calves for the young ladies.

—By no other year in the past thirteen has the number of emigrants that arrived at Castle Garden in 1865 been exceeded. The total number for that year was 260,031. Grand total since 1847, 3,258,445.

—A colored militia company is being formed at Norwich, Connecticut. Forty-three men have been enrolled, and the company will soon be full. It will be the first company of the kind in the State.

—A young man obtained a divorce from his wife in the Litchfield county (Ct.) Superior court, on account of "incompatibility." A few days since the lady who lives near Northfield, fell heir to $24,000.

—The St. Louis Board of health have squelched the catahoose in that city, which furnished the late horrible item of a pet raccoon eating away the face of a drunken Irish woman. It is to be passed out of use.

—Some days since a young man named Theodore Thompson, twenty years of age, eloped with the wife of a Mr. Johnson. The fair and loving lass is forty-seven. All the parties are resident of Deerfield, in Warren county, Ohio.

—A new paper mill has been established at Quincy, Ill. This is a move in the right direction. Let paper mills be established all through the northwest; it may have the effect of reducing the present outrageous price of paper.

—A pair of lovers, fleeing from stern and cruel parents, were married on the cars near St. Louis the other day. Papa telegraphed to the conductor to send his daughter back, but he telegraphed back: "Never return a fair on this road."

—Two new establishments—Wood's and Lucy Rushton's—have been lately added to the list of New York theatres. Two new ones in Fourteenth street, and a new opera house in Fourth avenue, will probably be ready by next fall.

—A young man at Lafayette, Ind., put on an old pair of boots a few days ago, which had been abandoned by a transient boarder at a hotel, and feeling something in the toe shook it out, when it proved to be a $20 greenback wadded up in a ball.

—The Boston Post announces that Bierstadt's new picture of "a storm in the Rocky-Mountains" is attracting the attention of citizen and citizenesses. We presume its readers and readeresses are much pleased with the announcement.

—The salaries of negro minstrels are rising because the supply of such singers does not equal the demand. The man who sings neatly a pretty ballad, and is willing to cork his face, can make now more money than the vast majority of mechanics, clerks or literary men.

—A couple celebrated their silver wedding in Vermont the other day, of whom it was said that they had never exchanged a harsh word during their wedded life of twenty-five years. The most incredulous will believe it when it is stated that they are deaf mutes.

—In the Supreme Court of New York, a very interesting suit by the city to recover possession of an autograph letter of Gen. Washington, which has been for more than eighty years in private hands, was decided in its favor. The letter was valued by the jury at $2,000.

—An item is going the rounds of the press about a man who is supporting eight sets of children—one set by his present wife, three sets by former wives, three sets belonging to the husband of one of his former wives by a previous wife—about 18 children altogether.

—The type-setting match in La Crosse, between Mr. Booth, of the Republican office, and Mr. Symes, of the Democrat office, was decided on Friday last on "reprint" in "bourgeois" type. At the end of one hour Symns was ten lines, or 170 ems ahead, and Booth relinquished the contest. Symes will now be backed against the State.

—On the day of prayer for colleges a party of Yale Sophs and Fresh indulged in a street riot, as if better to put themselves in the attitude of special subjects for grace. The faculty came up in time to secure names for candidates for college discipline, and several expulsions are to follow.

—The Erie Dispatch says that at the burning of the Mercer Court House, after endeavoring for some time to extinguish the flames without success, the volunteer firemen tilted the engine into the fire, and let it perish with the building. Although the "machine" was worthless, it was a foolish proceeding.

—An extensive deposit of emery has lately been discovered near Chester, Mass. It is said to be of a very superior quality. Hitherto two places—Cape Emeri, in the island of Naxos, and the neighborhood of Smyrna—have furnished nearly all the emery used. A few years ago a mine was discovered in North Wales.

—The Havana (Ill.) Volunteer says that an individual of forty summers, called on the county clerk for a marriage license, the other day, and said when asked that he had forgotten the woman's name, only having been introduced to her the evening before. Later in the day, however, he reappeared with the name, and procured his license.

—The New Lisbon (Ohio) Buckeye State tells of a whole family, consisting of seven persons—father, mother, two sons, two daughters and a grand-daughter—living in Columbiana county, having become afflicted with lunacy in consequence of religious excitement. Part of them are recovering, and a part have been sent to the State Asylum.

—The tournament of the New York Chess Club has at last narrowed down to a contest of skill between Captain Mackenzie and Mr. Graves. It was arranged that the winner of the first two games should be declared the victor, Captain Mackenzie to give the odds of "Queen's Knight" and "pawn and two moves" alternately. The Captain won in two straight games.

—At St. Johnsbury, Vt., recently, a teacher who required written excuses from his pupils' parents for absence, waxed wroth when a big boy brought an excuse with a revenue stamp attached to it. The teacher pitched into the boy with a poker, and the boy defended himself with an axe helve, and the result was that the teacher left the school and the town.

—If you wish to put a Philadelphian in good humor, say Broad street to him. Make him your friend for life by telling him it is finer than Broadway. It is a fine avenue which the citizens are seeking to develop by removing the railroad tracks and bringing in a new order of building enterprises. Among other changes, it is proposed to call it Lincoln avenue.

—A prominent lawyer of Adrian, Mich., received, on Tuesday last, a letter reading as follows: "MR.——: Dear Sir—I made a contract with Mr.——to sell him a piece of land, but he now writes me that he will not take it. I desire you to say to him the first opportunity, that I consider him a d—d scoundrel. I inclose $1, which will pay you for your trouble. L——."

—By the recently published returns, Massachusetts stands second only to New York in the amount of internal revenue paid into the United States Treasury. The aggregate of the other five New England States does not approach in amount that from Massachusetts. The valuation also is nearly equal to all others combined. The city of Boston alone has more than double the valuation of the entire State of Maine.

—Mr. Cox, living a few miles north of Jackson, Mich., while boring an artesian well the other day, when at the depth of 200 feet, found the water in the well all at once drained out and no bottom could be found. A roaring sound, as of a river, can be heard distinctly.

—A committee of Bostonians have been visiting Albany, New York and Philadelphia, with a view of ascertaining the comparative rates of living, condition of the markets and the general domestic pecuniary situation. They found that while the cost of living in Boston now is 126 per cent greater than it was in 1860, the increase in Philadelphia has been 150 per cent and in New York and Albany still more.

—Dan Duncan, a landlord of Indianapolis, called on a poor tenant to collect his rents. He found the poor woman toiling at the wash-tub, with the evidences of destitution all around her. Duncan took a look around, and concluded he didn't want to collect rent as bad as he thought he did. He gave the woman a receipt for the two months due, and two months in advance, and then calling on some friends sent her a load of provisions to see her through the winter. Will not some other landlords emulate Duncan's example?

—In Syracuse, New York, the other night a young man going home from his work, met three ladies abreast. In this case, rudeness or the gutter was his only alternative. He chose the gutter, slipped upon a piece of ice, bruised his person and dislocated his shoulder joint. The Standard says the young man will be laid up for weeks, and all for want of the most barely decent politeness on the part of the ladies.

—An effort is being made for the commutation of sentence of the five men now awaiting execution in Effingham county jail, Illinois, for the murder of Shepard. The Judge, and seven of the jury have united in petitioning Gov. Oglesby for their imprisonment in lieu of hanging. It is urged in mitigation that the murdered man was a wretch who deserved and received the dislike of the community where he lived, and that these men only intended to beat him, but carried the thing too far.

—An exciting affair, combining the tragical, comical, and matrimonial, took place in the village of Warren, Illinois, on the 1st. A young man named Rollins was in love with a Miss Tuttle, daughter of Mr. Tuttle, grocery merchant in Warren. Father forbid Rollins the house; Mrs. T. favored the suitor; father shut up mother and daughter for two days. Rollins eventually got a lady friend to hand a letter to Miss T. Father overheard conversation, rushed in, and struck his daughter with his fist. Lady friend interposed, when outraged parient struck lady friend over the eye with a chisel. Lady friend's friends had father arrested for assault and battery. First witness for prosecution was Miss Tuttle. Her examination over, she left the court and her father, and stepped into a carriage in waiting, where Rollins joined her, and the twain, behind fast horses, were soon flying across prairies to Robinson's, just over the Wisconsin line. The Judge not at home—so the party turned back to Warren, still single. Meantime father Tuttle missed his daughter, got a fast team, and started in pursuit. When about two miles from town he met the truant daughter and her lover, when the driver of their team yelled out at the top of his voice: "Well, old fellow, we have euchred you this time—your daughter has been married for the last half hour; so there's no use in your troubling yourself further about it." Not doubting the truth of the story, Tuttle jogged back to town, reflecting upon his ill luck in court, where he had been fined $20 and costs, and his still worse luck in the attempt to defeat the plans of Rollins and his daughter. The young folks hurried to town, procured a clergyman, and before the enraged parient had arrived home, were united in the bonds of matrimony.

Tuttle was euchred, sure enough.

BETTER THAN OIL.—It is a temptation, I confess, to think that at a time when, for several years to come, making more than a living seems an impossibility, for the sum of $1 a person stands a chance of winning $10,000.

Why, the very excitement of the hope is worth ten times the amount. Then the certainty of fair and honorable dealing in the matter, of which the name of the projector is a guarantee, would be consoling to the loser of so trifling an amount from the feeling that luck, not cunning, was against him.

Every ticket holder, of course, has an eye to the principal prize. For myself, having paid my money, "I take my choice," and being strongly attached to landed property, and not at all greedy, I go in for the house and lot only.

But when, through the number of gifts, there is one chance in four of obtaining an article of large and intrinsic value, even the most cautious see little risk in the venture.

Thus, giving the matter serious consideration, it seems the most natural thing in the world to buy a chance in the gift concert of Mr. O'Brien, 122 Dearborn street, as well as the wisest, discreetest, best.

The above from the Chicago Republican we indorse in every particular. We would recommend to those of our readers, who are about to invest in enterprises of this kind, to send their money to Mr. O'Brien, for they can rely upon receiving prompt returns.—Chicago Times.

Editors of country papers are authorized to collect and forward money, on which I will allow a liberal commission.

Go to the Best.—Go to BRYANT & STRATTON'S Chicago Commercial College to get a thorough, practical business education, or to become a good Telegraph Operator. Address for circulars, BRYANT & STRATTON, Chicago, Ill.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, March 17.
COTTON—Middling	$ .40	@ .41
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	8.30	@ 8.80
WHEAT—No. 1. Spring	1.56	@ 1.75
BARLEY		@ 1.15
CORN—Sound Western	.74	@ .78
OATS—Dull	.53	@ .54
PETROLEUM—Crude	.25	@ .26
PORK—Mess new	26.50	@ 26.50
BEEF HAMS	37.00	@ 39.00
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	13.50	@ 18.50
HOGS—medium to heavy, dressed	.12½	@ .12¾
DRY GOODS—Merrimacs	.20	@ .21
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville		@ .37½
Brown Sheetings—Appleton A		@ .25
Ticks—Manchester		@ .22½
Denims—Manchester	.40	@ —
Gold—129¼

CHICAGO, March 19, 1866.
BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$100.00	@150.00
BEEVES—Stock to prime	$ 3.50	@$ 6.00
BEANS	.75	@ 1.25
BRAN	6.25	@ 7.50
BUTTER	.18	@ .32
CHEESE—Western	.17	@ .19
COFFEE—Rio	.27½	@ .30½
Java	.42	@ .45
EGGS	.19	@ .21
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	4.00	@ 5.00
Malaga Lemons	6.00	@ 8.00
Dried N. Y. Apples	.15	@ .16¾
Peaches	.30	@ .32
Raisins, M. R	4.65	@ 4.75
FLOUR—Winter White	9.00	@ 13.00
Spring Extra	7.00	@ 7.25
Buckwheat per bbl		@ 5.50
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	10.25	@ 10.75
Whitefish, " "	8.25	@ 8.75
Codfish, per hundred	9.00	@ 11.00
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.40	@ .41
Oats "	.34	@ .34½
Rye		@ .54
Wheat—Winter
Spring, No. 1	1.25	@ 1.26
HIGHWINES		@ 2.22
HOGS—Dressed Middling to prime	10.25	@ 10.50
Live	9.50

Miscellany.

THE LAST LEAF.

BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

The following may be old to many of our readers, but is emphatically good. Few equally successful combinations of poetic description and genuine humor have ever appeared.

I saw him once before,
As he passed by the door,
And again
The pavement stones resound
As he totters o'er the ground
With his cane.

They say that in his prime,
Ere the pruning-knife of Time
Cut him down,
Not a better man was found
By the Crier on his round
Through the town.

But now he walks the streets,
And looks at all he meets
Sad and wan,
And he shakes his feeble head,
That it seems as if he said,
"They are gone."

The mossy marbles rest,
On the lips that he has pressed
In their bloom;
And the names he loved to hear
Have been carved for many a year
On the tomb.

My grandsamma has said—
Poor old lady, she is dead
Long ago—
That he had a Roman nose,
And his cheek was like a rose
In the snow.

But now his nose is thin,
And it rests upon his chin
Like a staff;
And a crook is in his back,
And a melancholy crack
In his laugh.

I know it is a sin
For me to sit and grin
At him here;
But the old three-cornered hat,
And the breeches, and all that,
Are so queer!

And if I should live to be
The last leaf upon the tree
In the Spring—
Let them smile as I do now
At the old, forsaken bough
Where I cling.

Supposed to be Haunted.

Everybody said that Mr. and Mrs. Langworth, in marrying each other, had done the most foolish of all the foolish things which fate had put within their power. Their united ages were little over forty, and their united incomes nothing over four hundred; and everybody said that they might have been rich asunder, had they not been so anxious to be happy together. He, a gentleman in the civil service, might have married into a family who could have made his promotion rapid and easy; she a decided beauty, might have won a husband who could have lodged her in Belgravia.

Everybody said that they would be ruined. But they lived on; by no means rich, but not entirely poor. As years went by, Mr. Langworth's position and income improved; though their upward progress was very, very slow. Little legacies, too, came in from several quarters; and friends, who had frowned coldly, waxed warm and cordial again. For the world, at least in this one point, copies the example of Heaven, in its preference for helping those who help themselves.

The Langworths had been married over twenty years, when, lo and behold! a great-aunt of Mr. Langworth's, who had railed against his marriage more bitterly than any one else, left him (at her death) a fortune little under fifty thousand pounds.

Of course it brought them much joy; but also some anxiety. For one thing; should they live in town, as hitherto? or, as they had very often said they would do, in the improbable event of their becoming rich, retire into the country? Much was to be said on either side. They had grown accustomed to London, and in London were their most cherished friends. And Mr. Langworth's official income, now five hundred a year, was worth keeping, even with their newly-acquired wealth. On the other hand, the young people (there were four or five, I forget which) were all anxious for the country; and in the country the parents had passed their early days. Knowing how many retired rich men have rued the day when they quitted London and its toils, Mr. Langworth determined on giving the country a fair trial, still leaving open the chance of returning to his occupation in town. He obtained three months' leave of absence from his office. From his narrow means he had hitherto had few holidays, and had much claim to indulgence.

Then he set about inquiring for a remote country house, in which, with his family, he might pass the vacant time, and put to the test the (possibly) exaggerated attractions of a rural life.

The solicitor whom he consulted said he supposed Mr. Langworth would wish the house he took to be within easy distance of the metropolis.

"No, not by any means," said the client. "Observe!—I want—we all want—to give the country a fair trial. To do that, we had better take a rather out-of-the-way place, seven miles from a market-town would be just as well."

"Are you particular about rent?"

"Why—yes—I am. People have been ruined, ere now, by inheriting a fortune, and got to fancy that they had Aladdin's lamp! That, I am resolved, shall never be our case. I want—not a mansion, but such a house as, if we do decide for the country, we shall buy or build for ourselseves."

"Well, I do know of a house, in which you might live for three months, and longer, I dare say, if you choose, for nothing."

"Hem! How much is 'nothing'?"

"I mean, literally, nothing. When I tell you the name of the house you'll not think it quite so surprising. It's Garrow Hall."

"What! the Garrow Hall?"

"The same, and no other. Ever since the murder no one has lived there. It belongs to the sister of the former owner, and the supposed murderer. You remember the case, of course? Many people would have paid a hundred a year for it; for it's a very good house, in a very pretty country, and not seven miles from a town; but there's no getting servants to live there. And poor Miss Durham would be only too grateful to any one who, by living there for a time, would dissipate all the superstition attaching to it. You can't wonder that she does n't like to live in it herself. All the village people say it's haunted; and have, of course, twenty thousand stories of what has been seen and heard about it at night,—and such stuff. You, of course, could bring your servants from London. You'll find the house in very good order; for, with such prejudices against it, of course it was necessary to give it the benefit of all possible attractions. But even the old people who take care of it in the daytime wouldn't stay during the night; not, I do believe, if by so doing they might make it their own."

After a little more talk, Mr. Langworth agreed that application should be made for a three months' tenancy of the house. Not to lose time, he would himself travel down at once into Somersetshire (Garrow Hall was in that county), and arrange for the reception of his family.

"You'll find a comfortable bedroom all ready, I know," said the lawyer. "The only hardship is having to sleep in the house alone; but you're not nervous, I am aware. Only, my dear sir, be sure and get there a few hours before dark; for should it be night when you get there, why, you might offer all your aunt's money to induce somebody to go to the Hall with you, and I don't think you'd get any one to do it. I don't, upon my word and honor, I don't."

Garrow Hall was known by name to many Englishmen who had never so much as heard the names of Windsor Castle or St. James's Palace. The horrible tragedy which had given it such a reputation was, at that time, fresh in the memory of every one. But even crimes are forgotten at last; and, for those who read the singular adventures to be shortly recorded, it may be needful to recall the events which had given Garrow its dark and fearful celebrity.

Some three or four years before Mr. Langworth's accession to fortune, Garrow Hall had been tenanted, as well as owned, by a Mr. Nicholas Durham, brother of the lady mentioned above. Attached to the house was an estate, yielding some sixteen or eighteen hundred a year, which came to Mr. Durham through his mother, the heiress of the Garrow family, a family of great antiquity, but now no longer so wealthy or so important as they had once been. Nicholas and his sister had been born in India, in which country their mother had also died. Nicholas had married well. Fortunately, as was then thought, he possessed an estate independently of his father, who was generally believed to be partly, if not wholly, dependent on him for maintenance.

At the date of his marriage he was just nine-and-twenty years of age. His maternal grandfather, who had in great measure brought him up, and from whom he inherited Garrow, had died only a year or two before. His sister Emily, left with a small annuity, lived mostly with her father on the Continent.

Nicholas and his wife had been united some six or seven months, and as far as was afterwards ascertained by strictest inquiry, had lived on most affectionate terms. It wanted a week to Christmas day. A party of friends were to keep Christmas at Garrow, but as yet the husband and wife were entirely alone. On the fatal day, the 18th of December, Mr. Durham dined with his wife at six o'clock, their ordinary hour, and behaved as usual at dinner.

When without company, it was their habit to occupy the dining-room for the whole evening; and they did so on this occasion.

These, and other particulars, to which the coming event imparted a fearful interest, were all given in evidence by the servant who waited on them at table.

The same servant deposed, that by his nearest guess, the hour was half past seven when a ring summoned him to the front door.

He opened it to admit a tall gentleman, with black whiskers and moustaches, and whose age, to all appearance, was between forty and fifty. The gentleman asked to see Mr. Durham, and was about to put a card into his hand (so he thought), when his master came out from the dining-room in person. The man thought Mr. Durham's face expressed some annoyance at the visit; he, however, invited the stranger to enter the library, which they did both together. About ten minutes later—(the pantry in which he was at work was close to the hall)—he heard his master cross back from the library to the dining-room, and return, accompanied by his wife, to the former apartment.

He thought it could not be more than five minutes after that ere the bell summoned him into the library. He answered it at once, but found his master and mistress, with the stranger, already in the hall. That there was some dispute going on between Mr. Durham and his wife a glance made clear to him. To all appearance, her husband was trying to persuade Mr. Durham to something which she firmly, almost angrily, refused. As the witness entered the hall he heard her say, "I owe the duty to another, and I will not consent to it," or words to that effect. Then she took a candle from the hall table, lighted it, and went up stairs. Mr. Durham turned to his servant, and said, "I rang for you to show this gentleman out; but I'll see him out myself; you can go."

Witness went back to his pantry, while his master and the stranger, conversing in whispers, moved towards the hall door. Witness also fancied he caught the words uttered by the stranger, in what seemed a taunting tone, "Your wife stands in the way!" and then Mr. Durham said, "Hush! go away now, and we will make it right yet!" Witness then heard the front door close,—not more than a minute later,—heard his master push open the swinging baize door that separated the hall from the vestibule, and rapidly ascend the stairs just as the bell rang for the servants' supper.

Witness heard his mistress address her husband on the landing above. She asked, "Is he gone?" Mr. Durham answered, "Yes, but I want to speak to you." Witness did not remain to listen, but went at once to supper in the kitchen. About five minutes later, he and his fellow-servants were startled by the report of a pistol fired (as it appeared) in the hall. Before they could as much as exchange a word, another report succeeded to the first. The dreadful confusion and alarm rendered witness utterly unconscious how many seconds might have elapsed, but at the second report he hurried out of the kitchen into the hall. He found his master and mistress lying,—the former half-way down the lowest flight of stairs, the latter at the foot of the staircase. Mrs. Durham was already dead; her husband mortally wounded, but still alive.

It appeared as if he had first shot his wife, and then himself.

He survived until early the following morning,—remaining to the last unable or unwilling to explain his motive for the frightful deed. So conclusive seemed the evidence against him, that none save the sister, who succeeded to his estate, felt any doubt as to his guilt. The fact that the door had closed upon the unknown visitor (who could not possibly reopen it from the outside) before the murder was done seemed entirely to exculpate him; though it did appear as if his visit had somehow caused the unaccountable frenzy which must have inspired the wretched murderer.

All search after the stranger (for diligent inquiry was made) proved fruitless. No one in Stilbury, the nearest town, nor anywhere else in the neighborhood, could testify to having seen any one answering to the man-servant's description of him. The most plausible and popular conjecture was, that his visit had brought to Mrs. Durham's ear some bygone fault or folly of her husband's, which she could not be persuaded to view with forbearance; and that anger at her firmness, and dread of disgrace, had prompted Nicholas to the fearful revenge against her, and subsequent outrage on himself. Of course, every possible conjecture was exhausted.

Was there ground for believing the murderer insane?

As far as could be gathered, none.

The closest scrutiny into his earlier days revealed nothing eccentric, nothing which was other than fair, and creditable, and of good report. His father, who was still living, and who passed most of his time at Baden, had never borne a very good name; but neither in youth nor in manhood had he been much in company with his father. And the mystery—if any mystery there were—obstinately refused to be dispelled.

Miss Durham, from a sense as much of duty as of inclination, intended one day to assume the position which, by her brother's terrible fate (self-inflicted or not), had devolved upon herself. At present the thought of living at Garrow was too painful for her. It would make it far less repulsive could she give it an interval of peaceful occupation, and not feel, when she came, that the very last act performed in it had been the most terrible of crimes. She was for the present in Germany, in company (as was supposed) with her father.

* * * * * *

Mindful of the lawyer's warning, Mr. Langwbrth arrived long ere the sun descended, and saw everything comfortably arranged ere the old couple who "minded the house" by day retired, driven by superstitious fear to a cottage just outside the gates. He might have urged the sun to stay above the horizon an hour beyond his setting-time with as much chance of success as have asked his attendants to remain during the hours of darkness.

And long ere the latest glimmer of twilight they had gone shuddering away, promising to reappear with the morning.

He sat up till about midnight, alternately reading in the library and taking a walking tour of the house. Perhaps he felt that the prejudice against living in a house of crime was not quite a folly, after all.

If a visit to the scene of great and good deeds be thought to have an ennobling influence, may it not be rightly believed that to live amidst evil associations is likely to breed thoughts of evil? So he moralized, as he peered about the spot on which the horrible deed had been committed. An observant eye could even see where the staircase wood had been planed away to efface the stain, which (if one victim were as innocent as the other) still cried for vengeance to Heaven! He went back into the library, intending at once to retire for the night, and had taken the candle in his hand in order to go up stairs, when his ear met the sound as of some one's hand engaged at the window,—a window which led into the garden. Perfectly free from superstition, he imagined that some marauder, perhaps not without companions, might have presumed on the supposed abandonment of the house, and have come to see whether the half-furnished hall would not afford some prize for the skilful and industrious. Mr. Langworth waited in silence. The fire was low in the grate,—all but burnt out,—and his candle so placed that none of its rays fell upon the chinks of the shutter. He has pistols with him, and felt glad enough at having taken this precaution; for the robber (or robbers) might trust to their allies, the ghosts, to scare all assistance away that the village could furnish him. Our friend was on the point of asking who was there (for a hand outside continued fumbling with the window), when something,—though he could not analyze the thought, he felt its force,—something suggested to him, "Keep quiet, and see what will happen!" Extinguishing his candle, he crept near the library door. His pistols were already in his pockets. He noiselessly opened the door which led into the hall, in case he should be forced to retreat out of the room. With as little noise he placed himself on his knees behind an arm-chair. He might thus hope to observe any one who entered by the window, without being himself observed by him.

All this while the person outside, unconscious or defiant of his presence within, continued his attempt on the window.

That no sound like a whisper met his ear was, to Mr. Langworth, a strong evidence that the intruder was alone. And the little care he took to perform his work silently—presently breaking a pane of glass, and scattering its fragments on the gravel—seemed to show that he believed the house to be yet untenanted. He did the work very quickly, not caring to do it quietly. And, in not many minutes, the bold burglar entered the room. No one was with him. He carried a "bull's-eye" lantern; and, when first its light fell on his face and figure, it displayed a tall man with more youth in his figure than in his countenance.

It was difficult impartially to observe a stranger thus coming under his notice; and it might be from unavoidable prejudice that Mr. Langworth imagined he had never seen a countenance so suggestive of every evil and hateful passion as the one now before him. Yet something in his mien, not to speak of his dress, marked him as differing greatly from the common herd of the enemies to society.

He turned his lantern this way and that, until its rays fell on a large, old fashioned escritoire, which stood at no great distance from the window. He moved towards it with a satisfied expression. "I shall find it here, I'm confident," he said, quite loud enough for the unsuspected spy to distinguish his words.

But what could he be looking to find? He began to attack the drawers of the escritoire, probably with the same weapon which had served him with the window. Mr. Langworth was conscious that it was now time for him to interfere. Yet curiosity kept him quiet. The man pried open drawer after drawer; rummaged in every one of them, and (from his mutterings of disappointment) apparently without finding what he was seeking for.

"I must find it!" and he cursed and gnashed his teeth; "at all events, I must have it destroyed! I'll run no risk! If I don't get hold of it I'll set fire to this house, and then it's twenty thousand to one but that this thing will be burnt along with it. If the people who are coming here should get hold of it —— Stay, there's another drawer left."

And he was proceeding in his search, when Mr. Langworth burst out of his concealment. Before he could lay hold of him he had retreated through the open window. It was a dark night, and a thick shrubbery lay near at hand. The few moments' start he had got soon enabled him to set all pursuit at defiance.

Mr. Langworth reclosed the window and the shutter; and having taken this precaution against the stranger's return, examined the one drawer which the latter had left untouched. It contained a small folded paper. Mr. Langworth will scarcely be blamed if he never asked himself whether he was justified in perusing it. Connecting the strange incident of the night with the awful crime perpetrated so long before, he could not but think that he was on the eve of a discovery which might avenge the innocent, and bring tardy retribution on the guilty.

Outside the paper was written, "Concerning the Eighteenth of December, 18—." (The well-remembered date of the Garrow murder).

But when he unfolded it, the paper, while confirming his belief in its importance, gave no promise whatever of solving the mystery—at all events, to him. All but the signature was written in ciphers.

Thus the characters ran:

"Lx rnm vzr hmmnbdms ne sgd ltqodq ne ghr vhed; ghr ezsgdq vgn vqhsdr sghr vzr sgd fthkex nmd.

"FREDERICK DURHAM."

Well acquainted—as who was not at that time?—with all particulars respecting the Durham family, Mr. Langworth knew that the name appended to the cipher was that of the father of the supposed suicide and murderer. Not thinking it wise to increase the horror with which the house already inspired them, he left the old couple, who returned in the morning—to believe that the breaking of the window was his own doing, and told them not a word about his night's adventure. The day's post, coming in about an hour before noon, brought him a brief note from the lawyer.

It ran thus:

"LINCOLN'S INN FIELDS, 21st April, 18—

"MY DEAR SIR: I regret to say that since our last interview I have received a letter from Miss Durham, in which she announces a change of intention as to Garrow Hall. Having ceased (she does not enter into her reasons for so doing) to live with her father, she writes to say that she will no longer delay taking possession of the house which devolved upon her by the melancholy and awful death of her brother. She will, I am sure, be ready to compensate you for any trouble or expense her sudden change of purpose may occasion you.

"When this reaches you, I shall probably have heard of her arrival in town. Perhaps you will at once communicate to me what you would wish to propose in the matter.

"I am, my dear Sir,
"Yours faithfully,
"JOHN ELDON SHUTTLECOCK."

Mr. Langworth at once returned to town, first communicating his nocturnal adventure to the local authorities; but keeping in his own hands the paper which, most probably, was the one so fiercely sought by the midnight intruder. That paper he felt he could not be wrong in handing over to Mr. Shuttlecock, to be by him transmitted to Miss Durham, in whose house it had been discovered. He received in return a message from Miss Durham, thanking him for the course he had taken, and assuring him that he had done her a far greater service than he yet imagined.

Then, reverting to his plan of seeking a retreat in the country, he very quickly found a house to suit his purpose. It had not the advantage of being let for nothing. Neither had it the drawback of attracting unbidden callers, whether ghostly or in the body. The Langworth family were in full enjoyment of the beautiful summer weather, and their three months' probation of the country was drawing to an end, when one July day Mr. Langworth received from Garrow Hall a letter which forever dissipated the mystery which had hung so long over that ill-fated house.

Miss Durham herself was the writer. She told him that the actual murderer of her innocent brother and his wife was none other than his and her father, whose own death had now removed him out of all fear of man's judgment. Dissatisfied that his son, in deference to his wife's desire, should refuse him a home at Garrow, though his dissolute life fully justified an expectant mother in declining such an intimacy for her future children, the wretched man, one of whose follies was to ape youth in his appearance, had gone on the fatal evening to overcome, by persuasion, the objections of his daughter-in-law. He had gone secretly, fearing lest he might not be so much as admitted if his coming were expected.

The knowledge that what his son refused his daughter would freely give him must have prompted him (furnished with arms as he was) to the double murder. When supposed to have quitted the house, he had, in fact, while the door was already open to give him egress, persuaded his son to make one effort more to soften his wife in his supposed absence. His passion for assuming a youthful look greatly served him at a time when to have been tracked through the neighborhood of Garrow would have been so perilous to him. When he returned to his daughter at Baden, she, while persuaded of her brother's innocence, had not the faintest suspicion of her father; not knowing that he had ever been farther than London. Her first inkling of it was brought to her mind by certain dreadful expressions, which escaped him as he slept (which he frequently did), while they sat together in the evening. And then the horrid idea received confirmation from a number of circumstances, great and small.

That he would be slow to injure her she was very well assured, for towards her he was not without a certain selfish affection; besides, her death would deprive him of all possible benefit from the Garrow property. She offered to settle on him an annuity, independently of her own control, if on his side he would write and let her deposit at Garrow Hall a confession of his own guilt and his son's complete innocence. He won her consent to writing it in such a manner as not to be at once apparent to every casual reader.

She contrived to have it placed in the library, as we have seen already. Then she separated herself from her father, who, dreading a discovery, and persuaded that she would never bring him herself to justice, and knowing that his annuity was secure, hastened over to England, before she could arrive, to recover and destroy the paper which might yet bear witness against him.

This was in April. In the end of June he actually died. The cipher (Miss Durham now explained) consisted in subsituting for every letter the letter immediately preceding it in the alphabet.

Miss Durham lives still at Garrow. That she will ever take a husband I do not think very probable; though her wise benevolence and gentle virtues have done very much to chase away the awful associations which attach to her home and kindred.

The Langworths flourish still, in a house which, as long as they inhabit it, will, I am very confident, on no account be ever "supposed to be haunted."

Sharpnesses from the New York Saturday Press.

This always spicy, and now enlarged paper is chock full of readableness. It hits on all sides, as the following will show:

A correspondent who is under the mistaken impression that we are opposed to the "Freedmen," suggests that now President Johnson has smashed the ebony bureau he had better look out for some new secretaries, and procure for himself an Old Hickory cabinet. The same correspondent thinks it funny to describe a certain Senator from Ohio as "Ben Wade, and found wanting."

One of our Washington correspondents writes us that President Johnson has improved on the well-known maxim of Polonius so as to make it read:—"Costly thy Raymond as thy purse can buy."

Since Boston is recognized as the "Hub of the Universe," it is proposed by the Fenians that New York take the position of "Head Centre."

If it doesn't expose us to the charge of partisanship again, we beg to suggest that, because Thad. Davis happens to have "lost his head," it by no means follows that President Johnson should lose is.

An exchange suggests that the women who have recently been shipped to the Far West, should found a new city there and call it "She-cargo."

How can a man be accused of taking "sides in politics," unless he takes both sides? And then again, how can he take one side without being singular?

Since the rage of the Rinderpest in Great Britain the English are said to have been completely cow'd down.

Choice Recipes.

Tapioca Pudding.—Four tablespoonfuls of tapioca soaked in one quart of new milk over night. Stir the tapioca and milk over the fire till it comes to a boil, then add the grated rind of one lemon, one tumbler of sweet cream, half a tumbler of wine, with sugar enough in to fill the glass. Four eggs, whites and yolks beaten separately, to be added just before baking. Bake five minutes in a hot oven. To be eaten cold.

Corn Starch Cake.—Stir to a froth three-quarters of a pound of butter and one pound of powdered sugar; and one-half cup sweet cream, and the white of nine eggs beaten very light. Take from a pound package of corn-starch two tablespoonfuls, and replace it with the same quantity of wheat flour, then add it to the above. Flavor with lemon.

Yeast Biscuit.—One pint of yeast in the same amount of buttermilk; dissolve two teaspoonfuls of salt and soda mixed; add to the yeast one tablespoonful of melted lard, mix all together till stiff enough to roll out, make into biscuits and bake quickly.

Russian Remedy for Moths.—One ounce of gum camphor and one of powdered shells of red pepper are macerated in eight ounces of strong alcohol for seven days, then strained. Sprinkle the furs, and roll up closely in cloth or paper.

Varieties.—Two eggs beaten light, teaspoon of salt, the egg thickened with flour to roll as thin as a wafer; cut in strips one inch wide and four inches long, wind it round your finger, and fry as you do doughnuts.

To Keep Fruit from Sinking.—When used in cake or pudding, fruit should first be rolled in flour.

Foreign Gossip.

—The population of the City of Mexico is two hundred and fifty thousand.

—Four millions of sermons are preached annually in Great Britain, which accounts for the goodness of the people there.

—In Paris there are 28,760 street lamps, all of which are regularly lighted before the close of day, and burn during the whole night.

—A "noble lord" was recently fined ten shillihg in Liverpool, for smoking in a railway carriage with the consent of the passengers.

—The bell which, for forty years, called the students of Williams College, Mass., together, is now in a mission church in Syria, doing good service.

—The consumption of wines in Great Britain last year reached a million gallons per month, just double what it was before the reduction of duties.

—At a convent near Paris there has been an auction sale of the hair of the young girls who have taken the veil since 1810; the 800 pounds fetched $6,000.

—James Gordon was lately conveyed to the Toronto, Canada, Hospital to have a surgical operation performed, but dreaded it so much that he cut his throat and died.

—A shoemaker in Leeds, England, undertook, lately, for a wager, to eat an uncooked rabbit, fur, skin and all. He succeeded, but immediately went into convulsions, which continued for an hour, when he died.

—The Empress of Mexico has purchased at Jerusalem what is said to be site of the habitation of the Virgin Mary. The Empress intends to erect a magnificent chateau on the spot.

—The opposition journals in Paris have decided not to publish any more articles on the debates in the legislative body, in consequence of the late warning in the Moniteur on the subject.

—According to the Home Journal the reason why so many Americans are going abroad, is in the fact that a family can live in England or France on the rent of their house in New York.

—Attempts to induce Prince Napoleon to resume his position as President of the Universal Exposition at Paris, have failed, he declining reconciliation with the Emperor until the latter shall make some sort of public acknowledgement.

—The diary of Captain Musgrave, who was wrecked on one of the Auckland Islands and detained there with his crew for twenty months, was written in seal's blood; it is said to be as wonderful as Robinson Crusoe, and yet perfectly true.

—Salad is of such general use in Paris that there are many families who will not deprive themselves of it, no matter what the cost. Of late years it has been very scarce during the winter months, and the price was exorbitant.

—Mr. Roebuck, M. P., was taken before the Westminster Police Court on the 2d of February, for refusing to pay a cab fare. The driver's charge, which he considered excessive, was upheld by the sitting magistrate, and the famous parliamentarian was made to pay five shillings additional in costs.

—The Almanac and Companion, published under the authority of the "Society for the diffusion of Useful Knowledge," in England, gives its readers the following useful piece of knowledge. It says: "General Sherman marched without obstruction from Alabama in Georgia, to Savannah in North Carolina."

—Paris is clamoring for fish; there is no such thing as fish to be had; the few turbots that appear are snatched up at between 40f. and 80f. each; salmon at 25 pounds fetch readily 180f.; as for oysters nobody but the Marquis of Hertford and the Baron de Rothschild ask the price of them.

—Punch thus sums up the ins and outs of the case at Washington, in an unusually clear statement for an English writer on our affairs:

"Says Johnson, 'To hold that the States of the South
Were o'er out of the Union is sin.'
Says Congress, 'Wnal, guess if they never were out,
There ain't no call for letting them in.'"

—Col. Vedro Espinos, a Spanish revolutionist, who was recently executed by order of Marshal O'Donnell, met his fate with the most cheerful stoicism. The weather being beautiful, he expressed his delight at being put to death on such a sunny day, and calling upon the soldiers to aim steadily at his heart, this request was complied with, and eight out of twelve shots hit him full in the breast.

—On the 14th of January, during the procession in St. Paul's church, in Paris, a lunatic armed with a revolver entered the pulpit, and aiming his revolver in every direction, showed he wanted to speak. A terrible scene ensued. Women shrieked and fainted, a general panic and fright ensued, and it was not until after the repeated efforts of three men that the crazy fellow was seized.

—Spurgeon has erected a church in London that will seat 5,000 people, where he preaches five or six times a week. He also maintains a theological seminary where he is training, free of cost, nearly one hundred young men for the ministry. A London correspondent says that great consternation existed among the clergy on hearing that Spurgeon's last sensation was to appear in his pulpit, on the occasion of a sermon upon Christ's divinity, with a crown upon his head and a palm in his hand. They were only let down from the shock on its being suggested that every clergyman had, every day of the week, a crown upon his head and two palms in his hands!

BEECHER ON BEER.—"Now as to the question of beer. I do not know the mysteries of lager beer; I do not now know whether I ever tasted it. How is it, brother Cuyler? [Loud laughter as the speaker turned to the pastor of Lafayette Avenue Church, who sat at his side.] But one thing I know—the man without beer is safe and healthy—without it we are perfectly certain of his state—not with it. I ought not to judge severely upon this matter, for really my information in this country is comparatively limited. I have an impression in the first place that beer is nasty. [Laughter.] I judge that merely by the way a man's breath smells after he has been drinking beer. I always feel when I sit by the side of a man who has been drinking beer that the days of my childhood are come back, and the swill barrel has been stirred with which I fed the swine. [Roars of laughter and applause.] As a result of drinking, men feel a certain sort of good nature. I have had some opportunity of seeing beer-drinking in foreign countries. In England, when I saw the mighty cans of beer that men drink; when I saw the supper of the charity children, the meal being for each, a piece of meat, a piece of bread, and a mug of beer I was horrified. He went on to relate that beer-drinking and smoking, reached its climax in Bavaria, where he had been credibly informed, it was common for a man to drink from two to four gallons of beer in one evening. [Exclamations of surprise and shouts of laughter.]

.....A story is told of two New York Aldermen, were jealous of each other and had tried on every occasion to put each other down. At one meeting, one of them made a motion, when his opponent insisted that it should be reduced to writing; and unable to resist the temptation to exult at his advantage cried out with a triumphant chuckle:—"Ah! Teddy, I've got you now, for divil a sthroke can you write at-all-at-all!"

From the Chicago Republican.

The Trichina Imposition.

The latest fraud practised upon public credulity affects seriously the interests of the agricultural community. We mean the atrocious trichina story, by which more than one half of the American people have been frightened into the abandonment of one of their accustomed elements of subsistence. Pork, as an article of food, is today in the United States as much avoided as ever was strong drink by faithful Mussulmans. The public have been regaled with elaborate articles, showing beyond all question the fatal effect upon human life of introducing into the stomach any portion of pork, no matter how infinitesimal, which contains one trichina; and the manufacturers of microscopes have had their instruments advertised, under the pretext of informing the public how they might discover the presence of the fearful creatures that are supposed to be literally feeding on their vitals.

The enormity of this hoax may best be understood when it is known that not one authenticated case of presence of trichinæ in pork in the United States has yet been produced. The whole story is a fabrication, made out of whole cloth, originating and encouraged by speculators, who, to escape losses, present or prospective, have not hesitated to spread alarm among the whole people, and cause serious loss to the growers and packers of pork.

A few facts are worth whole volumes of theory. The actual existence of trichinæ in pork is confined to a very small district in the Hartz mountains in Germany, and that fact alone demonstrates that they are the result of some local cause. It is also known that the only fatal cases are among those of the people of that district who eat the pork raw and uncured. It is also demonstrable that the presence of trichinæ in the pork is a disease affecting the general health of the animal, and that it is as impossible to cure and preserve diseased pork as it is to cure and preserve fish that has begun to decay. No effort of science or of human ingenuity can cure any pork that is diseased by the presence of trichinæ, or otherwise, before killing. These are well established facts, sustained by universal experience and by every possible test. Consequently, any pork that has been cured, and will pass an ordinary inspection by an intelligent person, may be relied upon as having been free from disease, whether from trichinæ or other causes, before killing. Pork cannot be cured by any known means whereby, if it contain trichinæ or be otherwise diseased, that disease may not be easily and readily detected; and therefore there is no more danger of eating pork containing trichinæ than there is of eating pork or any other animal food diseased in any other way.

Trichinæ in pork, in the districts where the fact is ascertained, are attributed to the food upon which the hogs are reared. Corn is too valuable in those districts, and pork too cheap, to justify the growth of the former to fatten the latter. The swine are therefore left to fatten themselves upon what they can get; and no matter how unpleasant the thought may be, it is nevertheless true, that the peculiar flavor which has made the hams of Westphalia so celebrated, is due to the number and the character of the snakes upon which the hogs are fed and fattened. Nature seems to have supplied that district with the particulur kind of snake upon which pork-growers may fatten hogs with a flavor that has attracted the taste of epicures the world over.

The pork of the United States, however, is not affected by any such causes. It is universally fed and fattened upon corn. The hogs are not driven to feed upon snakes or vermin; they are raised to be sold as pork, and for that purpose corn is the cheapest, as it is the best and most rapid food for purposes of fattening. The pork of the United States has, during the last few years, been more generally than ever used as food, particularly by the millions of soldiers on both sides during the war, and not one case has ever been reported of any person being injured or affected by the presence of any disease in the cured pork. It is possible that some unprincipled dealer in fresh meat may serve out to his unsuspecting customers pork that is unfit to be eaten, but that might happen as well in beef, mutton, venison, poultry, or even in vegetables as in pork; but in no event could such a case occur in pork cured and packed, because, as we have seen, diseased pork cannot be cured by any process. When in that state it rejects the penetrating and preserving properties and operations of the brine.

If any other reason were needed to demonstrate the total absence of trichinæ in the pork packed in Chicago and throughout the Union, it is to be found in the fact that almost every portion of the hogs killed, and not used in packing, has already been consumed in the shape of pig's feet, tenderloins, and other parts, eaten fresh by the people; and yet not one instance has come to light wherein any human being has in any wise been injured by the food. Had there been trichinæ in the hogs killed in the United States during this or any previous season, the injurious effects would have been manifested in some at least of the millions of instances where portions of those same animals have been eaten without previous curing.

No reasonable man, no honest journalist, and no one but a wilful trafficker in human fears, will, in view of these irrefutable facts, any longer countenance or encourage a hoax which has already done great injury to one of the leading productive interests of the country, and is calculated to do still more

THE LITTLE GIRL'S SCHOOL.

BY FITZ HUGH LUDLOW.

"Little girl, where do you go to school?
And when do you go little girl?
Over the grass from dawn to dark,
Your feet are in a whirl;
You and the sat jump here and there,
You and the robins sing—
But what do you know of the spelling book?
Have you never learned anything?"

Thus the little girl answered,
Only stopping to cling
To my finger a minute,
As a bird on the wing
Catches a twig of sumac,
And stops to twitter and sing.

"When the daisies' eyes are a twinkle
With happy tears of dew,
When swallows wake in the eaves,
And the lamb bleats to the ewe—
When lawns are golden barred,
And the kiss of the wind is cool!
When morning's breath blows out the stars,
Then do I go to school!
My school roof is the dappled sky;
And the bells that ring for me there
Are all the voices of morning
Afloat in the dewy air.
Kind nature is the madame
And the book whereout I spell
Is dog's-eared by the brooks and glens
Where I know the lesson well."

Thus the littly girl answered,
In her musical out-door tone,
She was up to my pocket,
I was a man full grown;
But the next time she goes to school,
She will not go alone!

—The Peoria Transcript thus dishes up an elopement; "We learn that a loving couple in the western part of the county concluded, one day last week, that they were married but not mated to the respective partners of their 'buzzums.' William Barnes was the name of him, and hers was Mrs. Longland. Just as they made this astonishing discovery, they cast their eyes upon each other. Filled with hopes of a distant Eden, where household cares cease to bother and children never yell, they fled together leaving their earthly responsibilities. They stood not upon the order of their going, but went at once. Last accounts give no clue to their whereabouts."

.....What is the worst kind of sympathy? To be pitted by the small pox.

Humorous Clippings.

.....The man who takes things easy—the expert pickpocket.

.....Women guilty of the folly of tight-lacing, dress to kill.

—How long did Cain hate his brother? As long as he was Abel.

.....Why is the Rinderpest like a mouse? Because the cat'll catch it.

.....A man's property may be worth hundreds of thousands of dollars, and he not a cent.

.....An editor heads his list of births, marriages and deaths thus:—"Hatched, matched and dispatched."

....."What's whiskey bringing?" asked a dealer. "Bringing men to the gallows, and women and children to want," was the reply.

.....Gail Hamilton says one can be daughter, sister, friend, without impeachment of one's sagacity; but it is a dreadful endorsement of a man to marry him.

.....A lady speaking of the gathering of lawyers to dedicate a new Court House, said she supposed they had gone "to view the ground where they must shortly lie!"

....."How do you define 'black as your hat'?" said a schoolmaster to one of his pupils. "Darkness that may be 'felt,'" replied the youthful wit.

.....A spirit merchant in Killarney, Ireland, has announced that he has still on sale a small quantity of whiskey which was drank by the Prince of Wales when last at Killarney.

....."Husband I hope you have no objection to my being weighed." "Certainly not, my dear but why do you ask the question?" "Only to see, love, if you would let me have my weigh once."

.....A Dutchman carried two mugs to the milkman in place of one, as usual, and being asked the meaning of it, replied: "Dis vor te millich, an' dis vor te vater, an' I vill mix tem zo as to zoote myzelf."

....."You young rascal," said the old gentleman to the rash little boy in the street, "if that cab had run over you, where would you have been then?" and the boy answered, "Up behind, a-takin' of his number."

.....An Eastern caliph being sorely afflicted with ennui, was advised that an exchange of shirts with a man who was perfectly happy, would cure him. After a long search he discovered such a man, but was informed that the happy fellow had no shirt.

.....An old picture represents a king sitting in state, with a label, "I govern all"—a bishop with a legend, "I pray for all"—a soldier with a motto, "I fight for all"—and a farmer, drawing forth reluctantly a purse, with the superscription, "I pay for all."

.....One of the best means to arrest duelling, suggests the Albany Dutchman, would be to pass a law forbidding the parties to have seconds. Men are so fond of applause, that they will not even make fools of themselves, unless there be somebody present to admire the manner.

New Book.—Just published, a book containing valuable information for the people. Among other things, the gold mines of Montana; one of the institutions of New York; comparative premium on gold in Richmond and New York during the war; how to make Grecian oil printings; Baxter's celebrated oil prints; economy in a family; refinement in our homes; popular names of States; our brains are seventy-year clocks; what one dollar may do; he who perseveres wins; how any one may secure a house and lot in Chicago; public debts of the United States and other countries, and per capita tax; guides to the city of Chicago; and a complete descriptive list of all the prizes to be given away by the Great National Gift Concert, May 31, 1866, and a hundred other things worth having. This valuable little book will be sent free of charge to any one sending their full address with two postoffice stamps enclosed to prepay postage. Address M. O'Brien, 122 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.

DR. SWAIN'S

BOURBON BITTERS.

A Healthy Tonic, Gentle Stimulant, and Unequaled Morning Appetizer, prepared in

RIPE OLD BOURBON WHISKEY

FREE FROM GRAIN OIL,

With Flowers, Buds and Barks of the Highest Medicinal Virtue.

By increasing the appetite, assisting digestion, regulating the bowels, and giving tone to the system, they impart strength and vigor to the body and cheerfulness to the mind.

☞ If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters, have him send for them.

☞ Remember the name, and take no other.

For sale by leading Druggists and Grocers everywhere.

C. H. SWAIN,

Proprietor, 34 S. Water St., Chicago.

ITALIAN QUEEN BEES.

The subscriber offers Queens of this valuable Bee, WARRANTED PURE! There are no black bees kept within several miles of my apiary making it almost impossible for any hybridization. This, together with the fact that I have been breeding Italians for the last five years, affords the purchaser a very good guaranty that *I know what

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan.

One of the best filled Establishments!

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied

Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South Side Chicago St, Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS,

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY,
WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH COTTAGE,
COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP,
WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Shoe Cases, Stands, Book Cases, Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short notice by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pictures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VANTINE,
G. SMITH,

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

TECUMSEH, - - MICH A

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions,

I keep the largest and best assortment of

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS,
FRUITS,
SALT
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,
&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had seven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the business. If you dont believe it, ask your neighbors where they get their Groceries and where they buy them the

CHEAPEST.

Try me and judge for yourselves.

A JAMES.

☞ Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the HERALD.

The PEOPLE OF TECUMSEH!

WE HAIL,

But do not conceal, the fact that

GOULD & WALDO

Have just opened a first class

Drug & Grocery Stor,

Where will be kept constantly on hand a choice supply of

Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Dye Stuffs, Domestic Dyes, Patent Medicines, Family Groceries, Kerosene Oil, and

in fact everything usually kept in

Similar Establishments,

Where they are prepared and bound to sell from ten to fifty per cent lower than can be sold elsewhere in Southern Michigan.

STORE 1 DOOR EAST OF A. James and opposite the Post Office.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY PREPARED. Liberal discount to Physicians. 793

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the

Nicest, Best and Strongest,

WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS,

and in fact everything in his line from a baby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition. So call and leave your orders.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM.

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

☞ All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Prices.

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co are now prepared to present to the public, every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART,

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and elegance to the figure. India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite

in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices.

and a general assortment of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

New Meat Market !!

Bidwell's Warehouse, Railroad st.,

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

HUGH McGEE, Proprietor.

Who is now prepared to furnish the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity with

FRESH MEATS OF ALL KINDS,

at the lowest possible rates. Thankful for past patronage he would respectfully solicit a continuance of the same.

PHŒNIX
HARTFORD, CONN.
INSURANCE COMPANY.

S. C. STACY,

RESIDENT AGENT,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

1866. 1866.

MERRITT, MEEKER & Co

SUCCESSORS TO J. H. WHEELER.

Have just received a large additon to their

STOCK OF GOODS,

And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of

DRY GOODS,

YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Particular attention is called to their stock

of BUFFALO ROBES and

LADIES AND GENTS FURS,

which they are now selling

At Cost

We would announce to his numerous friends that we have secured the services of Wm. VanCamp, and he will take pleasure in waiting upon all.

It is no trouble to show goods: should you wish anything in our line give us a call before purchasing elsewhere and we will do our best to give satisfactien.

GLORIOUS NEWS,

The Confederacy gone up! But

GEORGE HEESEN'S

CLOTHING EMPORIUM

Is in full blast, and has not yet surrendered to young america. I would say to my friends and customers that I have just received a large stock of clothing which were purchased at panic prices, and I will sell them at a very small profit, for they must be sold within ninety days. I

Sell Cassimere Pants at 6.50.

Broad cloth and cassimere coats very cheap, Linen coats cheaper than any other house in town, wool-en and Straw

HATS, CAPS!

Linen and Paper Collars,
Neck Ties, Shirts,
Gloves, Hosiery,
Traveling Bags, &c.

☞ It is easily understood that I can sell goods cheaper than my neighbor for I save great expense, been a tailor and having followed the business for the last 17 years I know how work ought to be done.

Please come over on the Canada side for you can buy goods cheaper than you can on the American, for all expense of importing is saved, which amounts to considerable.

Cutting Done at Old Prices.

Those wishing garments made would do well to call on me and have an honest job done.

Geo. Heesen.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New Yis now opening a new stock of Groceries, Paints, Oils &c.

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago street

---

L. DREW'S

NEW HARDWARE !!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz:

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass, Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a

Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron, and Zinc,

Also the

Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

Real Estate for Sale.

Our old friend John Davenport wishes to dispose of the following property:

60 acres of fine timbered land lying near Franklin Centre.

120 acres of timbered land on Evans Lake.

Saw mill and 20 acres of land near Franklin Centre.

Brick House and 4 acres of land known as the Stitts property in the village of Tecumseh, now occupied by A Hood

House and lot on Logan St. known as the Mrs Bissell property.

Also—House and lot of J. E. Merritt Maiden Lane, in the village of Tecumseh.

Terms easy or to suit purchasers. For particulars call on or address the subscriber at Tecumseh, Mich.

JOHN DAVENPORT.

Dated Jan. 18th, 1866.

☞ Have you job printing done at the Herald Office,

GREAT DECLINE

Boots & Shoes

ARE DOWN! not in New York or Boston but at

E. H. HOAG'S

Mammoth Shoe Store,

Returning the public thanks for liberal patronage during the past year, I shall offer during the next

SIXTY DAYS,

BOOTS & SHOES

AT PRICES WHICH WILL

DEFY COMPETITION.

The attention of sewed Boot customers is called to my stock of fine

French & American Calf Skins,

which are being made up

In a Style unsurpassed for

WORKMANSHIP AND DURABILITY.

LADIES AND MISSES

Congress Gaiters, Balmorals and POLISH BOOTS,

made to order from all materials.

E. H. HOAG.

Tecumseh, Jan. 1st, 1866.

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartnership in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE & FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions, Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected stock of

Crockery and Glass-Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

C. H. ADAM & Co.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct 2tf TECUMSEH, MICH.

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government.

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.

n790lysmp

---

18 Pronunciemento. 65.

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see

How well we can do For them.

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd est Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholasale or Retail.
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
Fine Midlings, B. WF our,
Ship Stuffs, B. w. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE. They will always also usually find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE,

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL,

Corn In the Ear and Shelled.

A goo assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantible Lumber.

Wm. HAYDEN

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee s.s.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian on Monday the 12th day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six

Present, Robert R. Beecher, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Stephen E. Cole, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Osmond Tower prayingthat the administrator of said estate may be required and directed by said court to deed to him certain lands of said deceased for reasons in said petition stated.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday, the 14th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for six successive weeks previous to said day of hearing

ROBERT R. BEECHER,
Judge of Probate.

(A true Copy.) 750w4

Dissolution.

The co-partnership heretofore existing under the name of Curtis & McCowen is this day dissolved by mutual consent. All persons indebted to said firm are requested to settle without delay

GEORGE CURTIS,
WM. McCOWEN,

Tecumseh, March 5th 1866.

The undersigned have this date formed a co-partnership under the firm and name of Curtis & Parsons, for the purpose of continuing the Hardware Business, at the place lately occupied by Curtis & McCowan.

GEORGE CURTIS,
WM. A. PARSONS,

Tecumseh, March 5th, 1866. n798w4

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

GREAT CENTRAL.

United States Mail Route.

THREE EXPRESS TRAINS leave Windsor (opposite Detroit) daily for the East, on the arrival of Trains of Michigan Central, Detroit and Milwaukee, and Michigan Southern Railways from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati and all points West North West and South West.

This is the only route via Niagara Falls and suspension Bridge, and is the direct route to Buffalo, New York, Boston, London, Paris, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Prescott, Ogdensburgh, Montreal, Quebec and Portland.

☞ Passenger Cars are furnished with Patent ventilators.

Luxurious Sleeping Cars attached to all night trains, and Smoking Cars to all day trains.

☞ United States Currency taken at par for through fares, sleeping Car berths and meals at Refreshment Saloons

CHARLES McCABE,
Western Passenger Agent, Detroit.

THOS SWINYARD, General manager, Hamilton, C. W.

JAS. CHARLTON, General Agent, Hamilton, C W

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS.

is the place to get good grinding done I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING,

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Wheat

Mill Feed of allkinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Bills of hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shal endeavor to do as good work, and even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL

IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor; show room the same 8 doors east of A. Hood & Co's. clothing store.

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Neary, and Bridget Neary, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March, A D. 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber 'M' of Mortgages, on folios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J. Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] two, on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village, (now city) of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid. Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriet A. Bradbury on the twenty-first day of March, A. D. 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 17th day of February, A D 1866, in liber 44 of mortgages on page 642, which said mortgage, was afterwards, to wit: on the eighth day of February, A. D. 1866 duly assigned by said Harriet A Bradbury to Addison J Comstock, which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money, and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents, [$573,12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty fifth day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage

ADDISON J COMSTOCK,
Assignee of said mortgage.

M. N. HALSEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb 21, 1866.

HALL'S

Vegetable Sicilian

HAIR RENEWER,

As the name indicates, not only RENEWS the growth of the hair when thin and falling off, but positively renews the color to its original shade when it is turning grey or white, whether caused by disease, grief or old age.

It will certainly do what is claimed for it, a fact to which hundreds, nay thousands, who have used it, are ready and willing to testify Where one bottle is fairly used, in any community, its reputation "spreads like wild fire," and is the best advertisement and recommendation we desire. In the Eastern States, where the "RENEWER" originated, the young ladies use it as a hair dressing; it is found on the toilet tables of young men, (also at their barbers), while elder men and women who desire a Renewer and Restorative for their grey locks and bald heads will not be without this article, which gives in every instance, entire setisfaction.

CAUTION.

Don't let any druggist or dealer urge upon you a different article, as there is no preparation in the world like this, Beware of any article purporting to be the same.

Try HALL'S HAIR RENEWER according to Directions, and you will use no other.

If not sold at druggists in your town, a trial bottle will be sent you by express, upon receipt of one dollar by mail, thus giving you an opportunity at once of testing its excellent qualities.

Orders for trial bottles must be addressed to

C. A. COOK, Chicago.
Gen'l Agent for Northwestern States.

R. P. HALL & CO., Proprietors, Nashua, N. H.

Sold at WHOLESALE, in Chicago, by FULLER, FINCH & FULLER, BURNHAMS & VAN SCHAACK, LORD & SMITH, SMITH & DWYER, J. H. REED & CO., CHAS. G. SMITH, DIETZSCH, BLOCKI & CO., H. SCOVIL, W. D. HARRIS & CO., POST & BADEAU, and all druggists and dealers generally.

What is the Matter!

The Fact is the new firm of

SLAYTON TINDALL & Co.

are selling

FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT,

By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff. And all the people are rushing for it. Come on we have a large stock of such wheat on hand yet, also

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,
CORN MEAL,
PLASTER,
WATER LIME,
CLOVER SEED,
TIMOTHY SEED,
CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF

Grain and Seeds!!

SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO.

Tecumseh, Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.

Publised for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supplying at the same time the means of Self-Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a post-paid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, mhy be had of the author

NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Brooklyn,

n790lysmp Kings Co, N. Y.

Estrays.

Two red Steers one year old past were taken up by the subscriber on the 6th, of November last. The end of the right ear of each is cut off. The left ear of each is notched. The owner of said Steers is requested to prove ownership, pay charges and take them away.

FENNER PALMER.

Dated Macon, January 25th, 1866.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at

A. JAMES

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVI. NO. 45. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 29, 1866. WHOLE NO. 799.

G. T. KETCHAM'S
BOOK STORE,
Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.
(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)
DEALER IN
CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER.
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.
—o—
I will sell any of the above goods as
Cheap or Cheaper
than any other dealer in the country, and
WARRANT
all goods sold as good as recommended.
—o—
CASH FOR RAGS!
—o—
Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.
J. D. Robbins.
TECUMSEH, - - - - - MICHIGAN.

NEW SPRING GOOD.

The undersigned is just receiving a well selected and choice stock of
FAMILY GROCERIES;
consisting in part of the following articles:
SUGARS, TEAS, COFFEES, SPICE, PEPPER, GINGER, BUTTER, CHEESE, LARD, FRUITS, SALT, TOBACCO, WOOD WILLOW AND STONE WARE, PORK, HAMS, POTATOES, AND numerous other articles not necessary to mention.
Having purcased the store on the north side of Chicago street, in this village, formerly occupied by Deuel & Weatherhead, and having had some experience in former years, by strict attention to business,
Reasonable Prices
AND Honorable Dealing, I hope to merit a share of the public patronronage All goods warranted to give good satisfaction in every case My motto is Small Profits and Quick Sales.
and above all honorable dealing.
The public are most respectfully solicited to call and examine my stock of Groceries before purchasing elsewhere.
J. S. HENDRYX.

D. NOTEMAN, M. D.
Practical Physician, for the treatment of Chronic Diseases, will visit Tecumseh the 1st & 2d of Every Month,
for Consultation with patients. Cancers and Scrofulus Tumors removed without the use of the knife Bronchitis, Catarrh, and Incipient Consumption cured in three to five months. Liver Complaint, Dispepsia, and Constipation cured in 2 to 4 months, Piles Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration and diseases of the Genital Organs yield readily to his treatment. Prolepsus Uteri he is master of. Charges reasonable according to ability to pay: the really poor will be treated gratis. He will be at Comstock & Noteman's Drug Store, Adrian, the last week in each month. Residence on Budling Street. All letters with stamp enclosed will receive prompt attention. For further particulars (See Circulars.

Tecumseh Union School!
C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.
THE SPRING TERM of this institution will open April 9th, 1866, and continue twelve weeks
Scholars will be received at any time and placed in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.
CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE
on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

☞ Subscribe for the HERALD.

GREAT
CLEARING OUT SALE
OF
DRY GOODS
FOR THE
NEXT THIRTY DAYS
WE WANT TO
CLEAR OUT THE OLD STOCK!
WE WANT TO MAKE ROOM FOR
A New Stock!
We want to get a
Pile of Greenbacks!
And in order to do so we offer our present stock of Dry Goods at
VERY LOW PRICES.
DRESS GOODS,
PRINTS, DELAINES,
HOOP SKIRTS, SHAWLS,
NUBIAS, HOODS, SHEETING
FLANNELS, CLOTHS,
CASSIMERES, WOOLEN
SHIRTING & SHIRTS,
UNDERSHIRTS, DRAWERS,
&c at Cost and
Less than Cost
We Mean
WHAT WE SAY
DO NOT FAIL TO CALL and SEE Us at
NUMBER ONE
BIDWELL'S BLOCK!
TRIBOU, & BIDWELL Bros.
TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.

Express Freight,	6:15 A. M
Mail and Express,	1:15 P. M.

GOING NORTH.

Mail and Express,	9:28 A. M.
Accommodation,	6:38 P. M.

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WARD & SPRICKLAND.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD C. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich,

ALFRED JAMES,
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT,
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilets, &c.
Chicao St. Tecumseh, Mich.

P. N. CURTIS.
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER,
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

GOULD & WALDO,
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St, - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN B. WOOD,
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER.
Attorney's, Councellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT,
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & McCOWEN
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWARD H. HOAG,
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EMLAY & COURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harnass and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HORACE BREWER,
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS,
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

O. G. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and worker in Jewelry.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

I. C. SATTERTHWAITE,
Insurance Agent and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS,
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL.
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE.
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St - - Tecumseh, Mich

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St. Opposite P Office.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT,
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR L. HARNES,
Physician & Surgeon,
Special attention given to office consultation. Office with Dr. Hause, Dentist. Residence two doors north of the M. E. church.

The Tecumseh Herald.
C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.

(One inch of column constitutes a square.)

	1 wk	3 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$ 2.00	$ 6.00	$ 7.00	$10.00
2 Squares	1.75	3 50	8.00	12.00	15 00
3 Squares	2 75	5 00	11.00	16 00	20.00
¼ Column	5.00	9.00	12.00	18.00	25.00
½ Column	7.50	12.00	18.00	25 00	36.00
Column	12.00	15.00	20.00	35.00	60.00

☞ No advertisement considered less than one square Transcient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted on 3.50 per year.

Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

☞ We will take wood, butter, lard, eggs, potatoes, and all kinds of farm produce, on subscription for the "HERALD." So bring it along.

To Our Friends.

You will confer a favor on us by soliciting the Judge of Probate to publish Probate Notices in the HERALD, and you will also find it convenience to yourselves to have the advertisements in the paper you receive.

REGISTER.—As our township elections are soon to come off, it stands every voter in hand to see that his name is properly registered before the day of election.—Persons who have the least doubt about their names being on the Registry, should call upon the Township Clerk without delay.

☞ We shall hold ourselves in readiness at all hours of the night and day, to print town meeting tickets.

Union School Exhibition.

Remember the Union School Exhibition this (Thursday) evening at Odd Fellows Hall An admission fee of fifteen cents will be charged for the purpose of defraying necessary expenses and for procuring additional apparatus for the use of the school. The Exhibition promises to be an excellent one.

☞ We had supposed that our sleighing was over for this season, but yesterday morning we were favored with a fine fall of snow, making it look like a December. The month of March has been true to its nature as the needle to the pole this year. It has favored us with weather appropriate to all the different seasons of the year.

☞ Prof. Simms closed his lectures on Saturday evening last. The course was well attended throughout.

☞ Conkling is selling groceries cheap.

☞ Sheriff Smith went to Jackson yesterday morning with two prisoners—one having been sent up for five and the other for fifteen years.

☞ The question allowing the county Treasurer for $5,000 certificates of indebtedness, stolen from the county safe was settled in the affirmative by the Board of Supervisors, last Friday. The Board adjourned Saturday.

☞ E. H. Hoag has just recd. a large assortment of childrens Shoes—call and see.

☞ James H. Wheeler has just returned from New York, and is about receiving, direct from head quarters, the largest stock of Ready Made Clothing and Gents Furnishing goods ever brought to this market, which will be sold at prices that will astonish all who have heretofore paid war prices for wearing apparrel. Remember the place; at the store formerly occupied by A. Hood & Co

☞ The Democratic ward caucuses of Adrian were held on Friday evening last and candidates put in nomination.—On Saturday evening their city convention nominated the following ticket:—Mayor. Wm. S. Sammons; Recorder, W. H. Worth; Treasurer, E. I. Walby; Marshall, Ancil K. Whitmore; Justice, C. B. Backus; Street Commissioner, E. O. Cammett.

☞ The Republican City convention of Adrian, on Thursday evening of last week, called out a large and enthusiastic gathering of Republicans, and the following ticket was nominated: For Mayor, John A. Rice; for Recorder, Franklin B. Nixon; for Treasurer, William H. Stone; for Marshal, Theron G. Morrison; for Justice of the Pease, C. E. Barstow; for Street Commissioner, C. G. Crego.

☞ Don't pay high prices for Boots & Shoes, Hoag regulates the prices—call and get the latest quotations.

For the Tecumseh Herald.

WOMAN'S SMILE.

A woman's bright smile
Is a halo of glory,
'Tis loves little tell tale,
A romance, a story,
Of vows and confessions.
From hearts in their blindness
Led captive, by dimples,
Paying only in kindness.

A sunbeam that breaks
Through the dark cloud of sorrow;
A rainbow of hope,
For a brighter tomorrow
A beacon to guide us,
O'er life's stormy ocean;
It's influence sweet,—
Can calm all emotion.

Her laugh is the carol,
Of sweet birds, in spring time,
A pure rippling rivulet—
Chaseing the sunshine;
A flute on the water,
When soft twilight lingers;
A golden-string harp—
Touched by Angelic fingers.

Her beautiful smile,
I a wealth worth possessing,
A bright "household treasure,"
Our home's greatest blessing,
A lo-d star attracting,
Our steely hearts, ever,
To a land where bright flowers
Sweetly bloom, but fade, (never.)

Without "Woman's smile"
This world would be dreary,
Our homes would be desolate,
And our hearts weary;
But while its sweet influence
'Round us is shining;
Each cloud that appears,
Has a bright, silver lining.

L.

Memphis, Tenn., March, 1866.

A Curiosity.

We had the pleasure a few days since, of seeing a copy of the 'Weekly Herald' published at San Antonio, Texas, by Logan & Sweet.

It is a large eight column sheet, ably edited and very neat in external appearance being a much better paper than any weekly published in Lenawee county.—We confess we were quite surprised at seeing so good a local newspaper from an inland southern town San Antonio, however is the largest city in western Texas,—contains about 12000 inhabitants, is the enterpot of trade for the whole western portion of the state and is rapidly increasing both in wealth and population. The 'Herald' has a daily and weekly edition. Subscription price is sixteen dollars per annum for the daily and five dollars for the weekly. Geo. H. Sweet the junior proprietor, is a whilom townsman of ours. He studied law about one year, some ten years ago with Stacy & Wood and was subsequently in Judge Stacys office in Adrian.

☞ The following is the ticket nominated at the Raisin Republican caucus to be supported next Monday: For Supervisor, J. Walton; for Clerk, W Comfort; for Treasurer, H E. Wilson; for Inspector S. R. Rogers; for Justices, J H. Green, J. K. Webb; for Highway Commissioners, V. R. Miller; Constables, W. H. Thompson, S. R. Lancing, B. Kelley, T. J. Tobey.

☞ Why, Missus, just look at these nice white clothes. I never had such soap to wash with before, and as long as you are my mistress, I hope you will never buy any other but the Gold Medal Soap, it is so nice and pure and washes so easy—just think of it—I am three hours ahead of the usual time, my clothes never begun to look half so well before, and thanks to J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap. Tell your friends to try it and they wil never use any other. Most of the grocers have it to sell.

☞ During the year 1865 the expenditures of 72 New York insurance Companies exceeded their receipts. The wonder is, not that two New York companies have failed by the dozen. The cause of this is low rates and bad risks. If cheap insurance is desired there are companies who profess to furnish it. If real, solid, substancial, wholesome insurance is sought, a proper equivilent must be paid therefor, and such the Old Phœnix of Hartford can and does furnish, which during the year 1865 was dispensed to forty seven thousand policy holders Those wishing to insure should go and get "The Genuine article" of
S. C. Stacy, Ins. Ag't.

☞ Wm. VanCamp of the firm of Merritt, Meeker & Co. started for New York on Tuesday last for the purpose of buying a large stock of new goods.—Van has gone in the nick of time and when he returns will surprise the natives by selling goods at panic prices.

☞ A fine assortment of Lithographs Steel Sengravings and Photographs can always be found at Ketcham's.

☞ Conkling is selling that choice $2.00 Old Hyson Tea for $1.75.

Editing a Paper.

The following summing up of the pleasures of editorial life is from the columns of the Charlottville Chronicle:

Editing a paper is very pleasant business.

If it contains too much political matter people won't have it.

If the type is too large it don't contain enough reading matter.

If the type is small, people won't read it.

If we publish telegraph reports, people say they are lies.

If we omit them, they say we have no enterprise, or suppress them for political effect.

If we have a few jokes people say we are a rattle-head.

If we omit them, they say we are an old fossil.

If we publish original matter, they curse us for not giving selections.

If we publish selections, men say we are lazy for not writing more, and giving them what they have not read in some other paper.

If we give a man a complimentary notice, then we are censured for being partial.

If we do not, all hands say we are a greedy hog.

If we insert an article that pleases the ladies, men become jealous.

If we do not cater to their wishes, the paper is not fit to have in the house.

If we attend church, they say it is only for effect.

If we don't they denounce us as deceitful and desperately wicked.

If we remain in the office and attend to business, folks say we are too proud to mingle with other fellows.

If we go out, they say we never attend to our business.

If we publish poetry, we affect sentimentalism.

If we do not, we have no literary polish or taste.

If the mail does not deliver our paper prompty, they say we do not publish "on the time."

If it does not, they are afraid we are getting ahead of time.

The following correspondence has passed between Rev. Mr. Ray and the Vestry of St. Peters Episcopal Church, in this village.

Rectory St. Peters, Tecumseh,
Feb. 53d, 1866.

Gentlemen:—You have already been made acquainted with the fact, that the Wardens and Vestrymen of St. Marks Church, Coldwater Mich., have extended to me a unanimous and urgent call to become their Rector—to enter upon my labors at such time as shall suit my engagements here.

I have passed time enough in Coldwater, and with St. Marks society, to convince me that a field is there open to me, which, for interest and extent, does not seem to be open here. In the advice I have sought from several ministers and others I am confirmed in the same impression. As I have always held and taught, that every man is bound to fill as large a sphere as he is able, and as Providence seems to make available, and as this new field offered me, is thus indicated to me, I hereby tender respectfully my resignation as the Rector of St. Peters, to take effect the last day of March proximo—which will terminate one years service with your society.

In doing so, I have only the kindest of feeling's towards yourselves individually, and as a body—there never having been the first matter of difference between us, or between myself and any member of the society. I never could wish a more generous course, on all hands, towards myself and family, both on the part of the society and all the people of the village and region.

These things it will delight us long to remember. You will, I trust, accept my assurance, that it is chiefly for reasons above rendered, and not from any tempting offers in the way of salary, that I now ask you to allow me to resign as your Rector, as above stated. Hoping that you will soon thereafter find some one who will serve you as well, or better than myself, and praying that the blessing of Heaven may abound among you more and more.

I am very respectfully,
Your ob't. servant and Rector.
J. WAINWRIGHT RAY.

To Messrs:
VanTine, and Hayden Wardens; Patterson, Tribou, Ward, James Cummins, Baylis, Wright—Vestrymen.

Tecumseh, March 24th 1866.

Rev. J. Wainwright Ray:

DEAR SIR:—We accept your resignation as Rector of St. Peters Church Tecumseh, with regret. Our intercourse, as minister and people, has been pleasant, friendly, and we trust, profitable if not to you pecuniarily, at least to us in a Christian sense.

In your new field of labor we sincerely hope your ministry will be eminently blessed.

Very respectfully yours &c.
D. VanTine, Wm. Hayden—Wardens
M. A. Patterson, Thos. Cummins, Alfred James, Thomas Baylis, A. B. Ward, E. A. Tribou, Ira Pennock,—Vestrymen.

Statement of receipts and expenditures of the village of Tecumseh, Mich., for the fiscal year 1865.—6

CONTINGENT FUND.

Corporation Tax for year	$748.99
Increased by paying bal. commutation of unexpended highway tax,	64.31
Total available for year	$81 ,30

CLAIMS AUDITED, PAID OR OUTSTANDING.

Indebtedness begining of year	$22,70
Part of Hyde's apc. for grubbing old Cemetery,	49.16
J. C. Satterthwaite, surveys,	9.00
Murray & Tindall Assessors ser.	32,25
Jerome Cleveland and 7 others for Police services during the 4th of July and during night preseding and following day.	40 00
George W. Smith for plank	16 00
Curtis & McCowen for Hardware	228 18
L. Drew	8 25
C M Burlingame, for printing,	8 00
D Helm, drayage,	4.35
T Dickson	14.25
H Brewer plow &c	12 90
Burlingame & Co. apc. at furnace,	4.10
A Anderson for plank,	37 40
Wm Hayden, lumber,	33 42
C Burridge, Recorder serv.	50.00
Thomas Cummins salary as Treasurer,	10.00
E. B Wood apc attorney	20,00
Morris Hyde gravel bank rent,	16,00
Morris Hyde commissioner collecting tax,	37 50
Morris Hyde services as Marshal	371.15
S Hornblack constables fees,	3.10
C H dewitt, Justices apc.	1.50
	1013 81
Leaving deficiency of funds to meet the expenditures of the year,	200,51
There was assessed for the year for highway taxes	753 80
Uncollected non resident, 80cts.
Erroneous assessment, 4,00	4 80
	749 00

All of which has been collected by application of labor on streets, or commuted and commutation money paid out for highway labor or over into the Treasury.

CEMETERY FUND.

To credit of this fund last year;	$268.43
To credit of old Cemetery fund	17.84
Money received during the year,	72,00
	$358,27
Paid out on apc. audited for improvements,	300,41
Paid part of apc. for grubbing old Cemetery,	17.84
By cash bal. in Treasury	40,02
	$858.27

C. BURRIDGE, Recorder.
Tecumseh, Mich., March 29th 1866.

Tecumseh Market.

March 29th, 1866.

White wheat	$1 50 a $1 75
Red do	75 a 1 75
Beans	75 a 1 00
Corn	40
Clover seed	4 50
Apples green	1 25
Butter per pound	30
Cheese " "	18
Hams " "	15
Lard " "	12
Eggs per doz	10

☞ A new time table went into operation on the Southern road last Monday. Trains now leave Tecumseh station as follows:

Going South—At 6:35 a. m and 1:25 p. m.

Going North.—At 9:20 a. m. and 9:15 p. m.

The express trains run now in the morning and evening, the freight being carried in the mid day trains. By the new arrangement, passengers can go either to Detroit or Toledo and return the same day. The Jackson Branch trains connect much more closely with the Express trains on the main line than they did under the old arrangement.

Democratic Caucus.

The Democratic electors of the township of Tecumseh are requested to meet at Bidwell's Hall in the village of Tecumseh, on Saturday March 31st, at 8 o'clock P. M. for the purpose of nominating candidates for township office to be supported at the ensuing township meeting

TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE.

March 26th, 1866.

Caucus.

The Republican electors of the township of Tecumseh, will meet in Caucus, in Union Hall, in the village of Tecumseh, on Saturday, the 31st inst., at 2 o'clock P. M. to nominate candidates to be appointed at the ensuing township election.

By order of Com.

Tecumseh, March 27th, 1866.

☞ E H. Hoag has just recd. a large invoice of Ladies Cloth Gaiters and Balmorals which he is selling from $.75 to $1 25 per pair below last years prices. Call early for a choice.

How REFRESHING are the April showers they nourish into life the opening buds and renew all vegitation But yet it is a time of the year when there is a great danger of taking cold from exposier to the weather.—Coe's Cough Balsam is excellent for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, and all Pulmonary Complaints.

While Coe's Dyspepsia cure is invaluable in Dyspepsia, indigestion, and all diseases of the stomach and bowels.

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Mich., March 29, 1866.

Cuples Miss Catey	Dopp F.
Davis Frank L.	Haner Nelson
Heeket J. T.	Horner George
Loomis J. E.	Lancaster Dave
Lawrence J.	Manley Philip
Newbery Charles	Pawson Miss Melissa
Raymond A. C.	Sanford C. W.
VanSickle Dave	Simmons Mrs Florence

W. ANDERSON, P. M.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

General Intelligence.

Gen. Grant, it is said, will shortly sail for Europe in a United States vessel.

Harvey, Bonfield & Co.'s wooden ware factory at Cleveland, was burned on Tuesday night. Loss $150,000.

The wife of Juarez, the President of the Republic of Mexico, has arrived at Washington, where she is the guest of Senor Romero, the Mexican Minister.

The 48th Ohio regiment have mutinied at Galveston, Texas, claiming that their term of service has expired. Sixty of the number are under arrest.

A thief stole a box containing $100,000 in Government and other securities, from a private house in New York, on Friday night, for the recovery of which a reward of $5,000 is offered.

It is stated from Washington that the Committee of Ways and Means have determined to report in favor of retaining the $600 exemption from the income tax, with the addition of $50 for each child a man has, up to fifteen.

A serious railway collision occurred on the Minnesota Central Railroad, near Minneapolis, on the 23d instant, disabling at once three engines and leaving the Company entirely without motive power. None of the passengers were injured seriously, but several were slightly bruised.

Bolivia has allied herself with Chili and Peru for offence and defence.

The Missouri Legislature adjourned sine die on the 19th.

"Little Bee," the chief of the Chippewas, died in Washington on Saturday, the 17th.

There was recently the shock of an earthquake at St. Domingo, which leveled some houses.

Honolulu dates of the 6th of February state that the eruption of the great volcano has ceased.

Sixty persons have been arrested in Hayti, charged with being implicated in the late revolution, and it is thought at least twenty of them will be executed.

The copies of the New York Herald containing Bancroft's memorial oration, were seized in France by order of the French Government.

Judge Thompson of Philadelphia has decided that colored persons must not ride in cars provided for white men in that city. The case will be appealed.

Sixty persons have been arrested in Hayti, charged with being implicated in the late revolution, and it is thought at least twenty of them will be executed.

It is asserted that the vote on the admission of Colorado will be speedily reconsidered in the Senate, and she will probably be admitted, as well as Nebraska.

The Senate Committee on Territories recently heard a delegation of Indians from the Indian Territory in favor of admitting that Territory into the Union as a State.

Le Grand Boyington, of Iowa, neglecting to use stamps, and omitting or evading the truthful day of the month on deeds, recently commenced to stand trial in the United States Court at Keokuk.

Fortress Monroe despatches report that Clement C. Clay has been permitted on his parole of honor to enjoy the liberty of the grounds within the walls of the fortress during the daytime.

Active measures are in progress in Chicago, and along the line, for the construction of the Northern Railroad from that city to the Wisconsin State Line, to connect with the Wisconsin Central.

Gov. Crawford, of Kansas, has telegraphed Gen. Pope that the Missouri bushwhackers are gathering and arming in the West, asking for cavalry protection. Precautionary measures have been adopted.

An election on the question of accepting or rejecting a city charter took place at Minneapolis, Minn., on the 19th. Total vote cast, 1,017; in favor 466, against 551; majority against 85.

Considerable indignation has been occasioned at Havana by the publication in U. S. papers that the cholera was raging there. There has not been a single case of cholera in the city.

The Committee on Railroads at Albany has reported in favor of the Broadway underground railroad. It considers the project feasible, and that there would be no serious interruption to traffic.

Six prisoners escaped from the Alexander county (Ill.) jail on the night of the 21st, and are still at large. By the use of an old knife, a fragment of hoop iron, or some implement of a similar nature, they sawed hrough a hard, four-inch oak plank.

Our consul at Tobasco, Mexico, writes to the State Department that the ruins of two ancient cities had been discovered by him, which have heretofore remained unmolested and unknown since the days of the Conquest.

Isaac Cook, formerly of Chicago, sued by the Auditor of the Postoffice Department for a balance due the department from him as Postmaster of this city in 1862, has paid up the amount of $5,300, and the case has been dismissed.

The House Territorial Committee are considering the question of admitting Utah on the application of the Mormons. Among the leaders of the Mormons now in Washington is a son of Brigham Young, who is urging this measure.

The publication that the ten appointments at large for cadets at West Point had been made by the President or Secretary of War, was premature. The question is still open, and the selections undecided. About 500 applications have been made for the ten appointments.

Maj. Gen. Thomas has, in accordance with the request of the late committee on the Conduct of the War, prepared a narrative of all the operations of the Army of the Cumberland. This will finish the history of the war under the auspices of that Committee.

All the stage lines, express and despatch companies operating west of the Missouri river, have been consolidated under the name of the Holliday Overland Mail and Express Company—Ben Holliday, Pres't The new company has reduced the fare 25 per cent. from April 1.

A terrible storm of hail, accompanied with heavy lightning and thunder, passed over Muscatine, Iowa, on the night of the 19th. Hail nearly as large as pigeon's eggs fell, breaking windows, &c. The lightning was terrific, destroying half a mile of telegraph poles and melting the wires in the office. Davenport experienced a similar visitation on the afternoon of the 20th, and considerable damage was done.

We shall probably ere long hear of a desperate and bloody battle on the Parana river, on the north bank of which are the allied Brazilians, Uruguayans and Argentines have an army numbering 50,000 men, supported by a naval force, threatening an attack upon a Paraguayan army of 20,000 men, in strong fortifications, on the south bank. The allies are expected soon to attempt to cross the river, when a desperate conflict will ensue.

It is a little significant if the Fenians and Chilians and other parties will take the hint that the New York papers, whose columns bristle with job type effects in the way of movements, and the outfitting of privateers, have seen cause to hunt up and publish the old legislation of 1818, known as our neutrality laws, the statute prescribing the punishment for enlisting soldiers or fitting out ships against foreign powers, as three years' imprisonment and two thousand dollars fine.

The lost Atlantic cable of last year is to be raised. Three vessels, including the Great Eastern, will be provided with grappling apparatus of an improved new pattern, and the cable will be grappled in three places, at intervals of about two miles. One vessel will grapple, and if necessary cut her end by means of a steel blade set in the grappling iron; the middle ship will haul up, and the third vessel will also raise the cable to lessen the strain. No one connected with the project appears to entertain the slightest doubt about the success of this portion of it. When the end is recovered and a message sent through to Valentia as a test of the electrical condition, the splice will be made with the cable now lying in the Great Eastern, and then all will be plain sailing.

A Paris correspondent writes: "The French Government, it is said, has received despatches from Washington which put an end to the Mexican question. The terms appear to be those of our Government: Evacuation within a year, and non-intervention during the evacuation. The Emperor was heard to say, lately, that his own people and the American people were against him in this affair; that the two people did not comprehend it as he comprehended it, but that it would be foolish on his part to push a policy which encountered so much hostility, and that it was his duty under the circumstances, to yield. So long, however, as he remained in Mexico, he would not suffer himself or Maximilian to be attacked without resenting it, much as he would regret to go to war with the people of the United States, whom he liked and respected."

It appears that the Committee on Weights and Measures and Coinage are in favor of adopting a decimal system, and that in their opinion the metrical system of weights and measures, though not without defects, is, all things considered, the best in use. The Committee therefore suggest that the Academy of Science recommend to Congress to authorize and encourage by law the introduction and use of the metrical system of weights and measures, and that, with a view to familiarize the people with the system, the Academy recommend that provision be made by law for the immediate manufacture and distribution to the custom-houses and States of metrical standards of weights and measures; to introduce the system into the postoffices by making a single letter weigh fifteen grammes instead of fourteen and seventeen hundredths, or half an ounce, and to cause the new cent pieces to be so coined that they shall weigh respectively five and ten grammes, and that their diameters shall be made to bear a determinate and simple ratio to the metrical unit of length.

Political Matters.

Senator Foote of Vermont and Dixon of Connecticut are very ill, neither being expected to recover.

Thirty-eight of the country papers of Missouri support the President, while thirteen are against him. A majority of two-thirds.

It was currently reported in Washington, on the night of the 20th, that the President had signified his determination to veto the civil rights bill.

The California Senate has passed resolutions indorsing the action of the majority in Congress, as against that of the President by a vote of 23 to 21.

A delegation of Connecticut Unionists have had an interview with President Johnson, to whom he declares himself in favor of the election of the Union ticket.

The Iowa House of Representatives has passed the bill providing for a thorough geological survey of the State, and which appoints Charles A. White of Iowa City State Geologist.

Gen. Burnside was nominated by acclamation for Governor of Rhode Island by the Union State Convention on the 20th. The Unionists at Providence fired 100 guns in honor of the event.

The Senate of Ohio has passed the eight hour bill, with trifling amendments. If these are concurred in by the House, the bill becomes a law on the 1st of July. The bill makes eight hours, instead of ten a legal day's work.

The House Judiciary Committee has agreed to report a constitutional amendment excluding Federal officials who took office under the rebel Government from ever again holding office under the United States.

Washington dispatches say that Senator Stewart's resolutions, introduced on Friday, proposing a general amnesty in exchange for universal suffrage, were suggested and prepared by his father-in-law, Henry S. Foote, better known as "Hangman Foote."

All the newly elected city officers of New Orleans were duly installed, except Monroe, the Mayor elect, and Nixon, Alderman, whose functions have been temporarily suspended, as not coming within the description of pardons made by the President's proclamation. M. J. Rossier has been installed Mayor pro tem., by order of Gen. Canby.

Fenian Movements.

Advices from Havana state that the entire British West India naval squadron has left those waters for Halifax, to look after the Fenians.

There is a great excitement in Halifax, Nova Scotia, arising from the startling rumors that are afloat, of a probable invasion of the Blue Nose country by the Fenians. The militia have all been called out.

It is rumored that the Canadian Government will call out 10,000 more men, and that at Toronto that 180,000 men have tendered their services for defense against the hostile Fenians.....Official circles" have a report that the Fenians intend making the Isle aux Noix their base of operations..... The expense of their military preparations to the Canadians is $2,000 per day.

At a meeting of the O'Mahony Central Council, held in New York on the 21st, the deliberations are said to have related to "an immediate movement against the British Government.".....It has been discovered that a British Colonel in Canada is concerned in the Fenian plots.....An enthusiastic Fenian meeting was held at Savannah, Ga., on the 21st.

The Niagara Falls correspondent of the New York Times announces that preparations have been made to destroy the Suspension Bridge by severing the cables on the Canada side, in the event of sufficient Fenians attempting to cross at any one time to make it an object. The little job is to be done by means of a small steam engine, which works two saws, under the superintendence of her Majesty's Engineers.

It is reported that O'Mahoney has sent out an expedition of 5,000 men, but the public don't know whither. The total strength of Sweeney's forces, organized, is given at 53,600—a precision of statement evidently intended to convey conviction of its truth—and the number is to be doubled within the month. Both headquarters continue to receive contributions of men and money..... Despite assurances to the contrary, the Canadians continue frightened, and the land resounds with the tramp of armed men The news from that province, however, is somewhat confused, each separate despatch contradicting the other.....A plot to blow up the volunteers of Toronto, while drilling in their shed, is said to have been discovered.

Southern News.

A terrible affair, has occurred on Felicity Island, Terrebonne parish, La.

At Mobile, during the past week, no less than three persons were murdered in cold blood.

Out of a population of five thousand, Fredericksburg, Va., sent one thousand two hundred to the rebel army. Over one-tenth of the number were killed or died in the service, and at least ten per cent. more are disabled.

Samuel Owen recently shot and killed James Torry, his half brother, in Fayette, Miss. The affray was witnessed by a sister of the parties. Owen surrendered himself and was released on the ground that he had acted in self-defence.

The Charleston Courier says, on the authority of a gentleman who has recently made a tour through the Southern States, that it is hardly possible to imagine the extent to which the small pox prevails. All the large cities are more or less infected.—

A Louisville despatch of the 21st says: "Sterling King, who confessed himself guilty of the attempted assassination of Secretary Seward, endeavored to commit suicide, this afternoon, by severing a vein of his arm. His recovery is doubtful."

Petroleum has begun to gush in Louisiana. An owner of land near New Iberia was offered by some explorer $200,000 for a locality ascertained to yield petroleum. He refused but accepted $20,000 for one year's privilege of working his petroleum reservoir, with an interest in profits.

In the evidence for the prosecution in the trial of Maj. Gee, at Raleigh, N. C., for alleged inhuman treatment of prisoners of war, is the testimony of several soldiers of New York regiments that Maj. Gee ordered a Union soldier to be carried to the grave while yet alive. The testimony daily becomes more damaging to the accused.

A private letter from New Orleans, under date of March 13, says: "Official news that the cholera has broken out at Key West, has reached us. Assistant Surgeon Taylor and sixteen men are down with it. A strict quarantine is established below New Orleans, and vessels from Havana and Key West are subjected to twenty-one days' quarantine."

The Fire in Cincinnati.

The catastrophe of the week, and indeed of the year, thus far, is the great fire in Cincinnati on Thursday night, the 22d. It broke out in Pike's Opera House, the pride of that city, soon after the performances were over, and it was half past three o'clock before the twelve steam fire engines of that city could subdue the flames. The Opera House was built six years ago, and cost half a million in good times. Mr. Pike's loss is about $1,000,000, as the scenery, fixtures, and adjoining houses belonged to him. Upon this amount he had an insurance of only $38,000, on account of the heavy rates the insurance companies wished to charge him.

The least conspicuous among the spectators of the terrible conflagration was Mr. Pike himself. With the calmness of a philosopher he watched the fiery elements as they laid waste the magnificent structure which he erected with so much credit to himself and advantage to the city. The loss is greater than has ever before been suffered by any one man in this city, or the west; but great as it is, his wealth is more than equal to it. It is also gratifying to know that it could not have fallen upon one who will sooner overcome the tremendous difficulty, which is the result of an hour's havoc of the elements. He proposes to rebuild as soon as circumstances will warrant. While watching the destruction of his beautiful edifice, Mr. Pike had his pocket picked of a wallet which contained about $150.

The other losses are very heavy. The Daily Enquirer office was consumed, loss $125,000, insured $40,000. They resumed publication on the following Saturday.

A. C. Peters & Co., $200,000; insurance $30,000. Music plates and sheet music of a quarter of a century's accumulation, much of which can never be replaced, composing the bulk of the loss.

Wheeler & Wilson's Sewing Machine establishment; loss $200,000, of which $130,000 in bonds and Treasury notes were in the safe, which has been lying in a bed of fire for sixteen hours, and are probably destroyed.

Harpel's Job Printing office, loss $30,000—no insurance.

Bryant, Stratton & De Haus College, loss $8,000—no insurance.

Adams Express Co., having run out most of their goods on the night trains, will sustain little loss besides the fixtures of their office.

Philip Philips & Co., piano and melodeon dealers, suffered a loss on stock of $20,000. They lost thirty-seven pianos and forty-five cabinet organs.

The Daily National Union office was also destroyed, and the Gazette office narrowly escaped destruction. Many other minor losses occurred, and the total loss is nearly two millions. All business was suspended on the following day.

The cause of all the fire was undoubtedly the explosion and burning of gas; but how it came to be escaping is still a mystery.

Incidents and Accidents.

Eighteen persons at Lisbon, near Grand Rapids, Mich., are said to have been poisoned to death last week, by eating biscuits in which strychnine had been used by mistake for soda.

The wife of Lander Rogers, living near Fennimore, Wis., poisoned her two boys—5 and 6 years old, and then poisoned herself. All are dead. The cause was domestic unhappiness.

The steamer U. S. Grant, from St. Louis for the Upper Missouri, sunk in an ice gorge near the mouth of the latter an the 18th. Loss estimated at $150,000. Her passengers and crew were all saved.

At New Canton, Ill., on the 10th, Charles Brammell killed Edward Garrison by stabbing him with a pocket-knife. The weapon entered the heart, and death followed in about ten minutes. Brammell is now under arrest.

About 7 o'clock on the evening of the 21st a terrible tornado swept over the southern part of Montgomery county, near Ladoga Indiana, destroying timber, houses, &c. Four persons were killed and twenty or more crushed and bruised.

Conflagration occurred on the night of the 21st at St. Johnsbury, Vt., Halifax, N. S., and Astoria, N. Y. At the former place a railroad repair shop and two engines were destroyed—loss $100,000, insured for $35,000; at Halifax a newspaper office was burned; and at Astoria a house occupied by the Government was completely consumed.

At Indianapolis, on the 23d, the jury in the case of Ignatius Buchanan, the wife-murderer, returned a verdict of guilty, and sentenced the prisoner to imprisonment in the penitentiary for life. He blubbered considerably, and used crazy talk when the verdict was announced. He refused to accept the verdict of the jury, and clamored to be hung without delay, in order that he might go home. It is said that, on the first ballot, ten of the jury were for hanging.

A Mr. Middleton, near Astoria, Ill., at whose house a newly-married pair were stopping, was killed on Sunday night, the 17th inst., by a blow from a mallet in the hands of a young man named Wethers. A crowd had assembled to serenade the couple and Mr. Middleton went out to expostulate with them and to get them to leave the premises, when the affair happened. At last accounts the murderer had not been apprehended.

On the 23d Mr. James Burk and wife, and Mr. John Kelley, wife and daugter, all residents of Sangamon county, in attempting to cross the south fork of the Sangamon river, at Breckenridge Mill, Ill., about twelve miles from this city, with a pair of horses and wagon, were all drowned. The driver and a young lady succeeded in reaching the shore and were saved. The creek was very much swollen at the time.

The storm of Tuesday night the 20th was very severe and damaging to property in the vicinity of Cincinnati. At Connersville, Ind., several buildings were blown down, and one of the piers of the bridge of the Cincinnati & Indianapolis Junction railway was destroyed. A freight train ran into the chasm. The engineer and fireman were severely injured. The storm was felt at Indianapolis, Louisville, Evansville and other points West.

A fearful fire occurred on the 22d at Petroleum Centre, Pa., commencing at the Ocean well, which is described as terrible in the extreme, spreading and consuming until it formed a perfect river of flame a mile in length. Several wells were burned, 2,000 barrels of oil, 18 engine houses, derricks, &c., and several human lives are reported lost. The fire was the most destructive that has occurred in the oil regions since the burning of the Maple Shade well, two years ago.

Financial Items.

Freeman Clarke, Comptroller of the Currency, has written another letter in support of his charges against the secretary of the Treasury.

The agent of the Whipple File Company, in Cincinnati, publishes a card that the reported failure of the company is untrue. It was temporarily embarrassed by delayed remittances, but is now going ahead again.

There is a very unsettled feeling prevailing in the dry goods market in New York, with a general desire on the part of importers to realize. Many imported goods have been sold for currency at less than they cost in Europe in gold.

A young man in Washington stopped the Secretary of the Treasury the other evening telling him he had been over-paid, as an officer in the army, nearly $400, which he wished to refund. He paid $200, and promised the balance as soon as he could obtain it.

The counterfeiting of Government coupons has been carried to such an extent that the Treasury Department has decided to engrave vignettes of the proper size to be printed upon all future issues, and thereby render engraving as necessary to a counterfeit coupon as to the note or bond. Portraits of the president, McCulloch, Grant, Sherman, and others, are executed for this purpose.

The Detroit papers surprise no one seriously by the statement that circumstances have transpired which lead to the suspicion that the individual named Herman, who alleged a short time ago that he was robbed of $22,000 in a Michigan Central Railway sleeping car from Chicago, created the story for the purpose of deceiving his creditors It is said that he has failed in business in New York.

A statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Government for the last quarter of 1865 shows that, after payment of all expenses for this quarter, including a war expenditure of over $68,000,000, the receipts exceeded the expenditures by the amount of $19,872,903.28. This is in the ratio of an excess of receipts over expenditures of $80,000,000 a year. With the War Department put on a peace basis, the receipts would exceed the expenditures over $200,000,000 a year.

Congressional Doings.

In the Senate, on the 19th, the bill to establish a home for disabled soldiers was passed, and will be sent to the President for his signature.....Mr. Fessenden stated that the Committee of Fifteen had not finished taking testimony in regard to the claimants of seats in Congress from Southern States, except in the case of Tennessee, and those claimants were at liberty to introduce testimony.....Mr. Wilson introduced a bill for the equalization of bounties, providing a bounty of $8.33 per month, for every month of service to soldiers honorably discharged. .....The bill providing for an annual inspection of Indian affairs was passed.

In the House, on the 19th, a substitute for the loan bill was introduce and referred..... A joint resolution to adjourn the present session on the — Thursday in May, was adopted.....The motion to reconsider the vote by which the loan bill was defeated on Friday prevailed by a vote of 81 to 67, and the bill was recommitted, without instructions, to the Committee on Ways and Means. .....The general appropriation bill was considered in Committee of the Whole, and reported without amendments.

In the Senate, on the 20th, the Committee on Finance reported the bill making appropriations for the Military Academy at West Point.....A bill was also reported appropriating $25,000 for the relief of the destitute freedmen and women of the District of Columbia.

In the House, on the 20th, a resolution of thanks to Gens. Gordon Granger and James A. Garfield, and the men under their command, was presented and referred.....The general appropriation bill was passed, after striking out the clause increasing the pay of the officers of the mint at Philadelphia. .....The bill to amend the act of March 3, 1863, "relating to habeas corpus, and regulating judicial proceedings in certain cases," was passed.

In the Senate, on the 21st, a bill was introduced to aid in the construction of the Kansas and Neosho Valley railroad, to connect the Lakes with the Gulf of Mexico at Galveston. Bills were passed to aid the construction of the Northern Kansas railroad; "to provide more effectually for the punishment of certain crimes:" authorizing the establishment of telegraphic communication between the United States and the West Indies.

In the House, on the 21st, a bill was reported, and recommitted, to secure the speedy construction of the Northern Pacific railroad. A bill was introduced to equalize the bounties of soldiers and sailors, allowing $8.33 for each month of service. A bill was introduced to aid in constructing the Iowa Central railroad. The diplomatic appropriation bill was passed; as was also the bill to facilitate commercial, postal, and military communication among the severa States, amended so as to prevent land-grant railroads from receiving pay for Government transportation. Leave was asked, but refused, to present a resolution declaring Tennessee in a condition to be represented, and approving the Reconstruction Committee from further consideration of her case. The bill to reimburse Pennsylvania for her war expenditures was taken up, and a substitute offered to pay all the loyal States 25 per cent. of their claims, or about $118,000,000

Late accounts from Eastern and Northern Mississippi and Northern Alabama represent the cotton prospect as more flattering than was generally hoped. The negroes are working well, and, as a general thing, fair crops are anticipated.

In the Senate, on the 22d, the resolution for printing the remaining portions of the special report of the Internal Revenue Commission passed. The bill consolidating the judicial districts of Southern California and Western Louisiania also passed, as did likewise the bill authorizing the construction of a bridge over the Mississippi at St. Louis.

In the House on the 22d, but little business of importance was transacted. The Agricultural College bill was taken up, and, after a lengthy discussion, recommitted to the Committee on Agriculture.....A number of Senate bills and joint resolutions were taken up and referred.....The Senate bill authorizing telegraphic communication with Cuba and the other West India islands was discussed, but no final action taken..... There was no evening session.

In the Senate, on the 23d, bills were introduced to aid in the construction of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and to revive the act to grant land for the construction of the Cairo and Fulton Railroad.....The Senate insisted upon its amendments to the civil appropriation bill, and appointed a Committee of Conference.....The report of the Secretary of War, transmitted the report of Gen. Dyer, Chief of Ordnance, upon the occupancy of Rock Island by the Chicago and Rock Island Railroad, was laid before the Senate, and referred to the Committee Military Affairs.....In the case of Mr. Stockton, the New Jersey Senator, the resolution declaring him entitled to his seat was adopted, yeas 22 nays 21,—Mr. Stockton himself voting in the affirmative, because as he alleged, Senator Morrill voted against the resolution, after having paired off with Senator Wright.

The only business of importance transacted in the House, on the 23d, was the passage of the loan bill, as amended by the Committee on Ways and Means, a full copy of which is printed elsewhere, and the passage of the Pennsylvania reimbursement bill—the former by a vote of 86 to 53, and the latter by a vote of 86 to 35.....The joint resolution giving army officers full pay who were captured by the enemy before they had been regularly mustered in, was passed.

SATURDAY PRESS-WORK.

Our correspondents are respectfully requested to send us more legible manuscript. It may be un-Christian, but we must, at least, insist upon an i for an i.

A correspondent writes to know if the cattle plague, now raging in England, originated in Ox-ford. We believe not, but are pretty sure it originated in Cowes.

Ex-President Buchanan is said to spend most of his time telling stories about the grandeur of his administration; the "old public functionary" is evidently in his anecdotage.

There's many a sip 'twixt cup and lip.

.....A young minister, in a highly elaborate sermon which he preached, said several times, "the commentators do not agree with me here." Next morning a poor woman came to see him, with something in her apron. She said her husband had heard his sermon, and thought it was a very fine one, and as he had said "the common taters did not agree with him," he had sent some of the best kidneys.

Personal and Literary.

CHAS. KINGSLEY, is preparing a History f England for the b'hoys.

A NEW work by Ernest Renan, entitled "The Apostles," will immediately appear.

DR. HOLLAND is said to have already realized over $14,000 from the copyright of his life of President Lincoln.

EX-GOV. VANCE of North Carolina is at his home stricken with paralysis on one side, and with poor hopes of recovery.

A LONDON paper announces by the author of "Prometheus Bound," Prometheus Half-Bound, to be followed Prometheus in cloth with gilt edges.

MRS. SIGOURNEY published fifty-six books during her life, beside more than two thousand articles contributed to nearly three hundred different periodicals.

MISS BRADDON is about to turn editress and take charge of a new Magazine; not a bad name for it would be The Powder Magazine, although a wag suggests The Bombazine.

EX.-GOV. VANCE of North Carolina, who lately sustained a paralytic stroke, has nearly recovered from its effects, and is again able to be out. The paralysis affected the facial nerves only.

AN autograph letter of Marie Antoinette, written on four sides of paper, to Count de la Marck, and not to be found in any collection, has just been sold by auction at Berlin, for the large sum of 7,330f.

GEN. GRANT was invited after service in Grace Church, New York, on Sunday, to remain to hear the organ play. "No," replied the general, "I don't know one tune from another, and would rather hear a bass drum than an organ, any day."

PRINCE ALFRED, Queen Victoria's second son, now a young fellow of 21 has just been promoted to be a Captain in the British navy, and Parliament has granted him an allowance of $75,000 a year. He is talked of as the Viceroy of the projected British American Confederacy.

AMONG a collection of autograph letters by Lord Byron, lately sold at auction in London, was one in which he says: "I hope you will find me an altered personage, I do not mean in body but in manner, for I begin to find out that nothing but virtue will do in this damned world." It sold for seven guineas.

ALBERT PIKE, the rebel poet and Indian fighter, is at Little Rock, and evidently still very unhappy. A correspondent of the Lawrence Tribune says he recently heard him declare that "all efforts at republican government recorded in history were signal failures; that ours was the most complete failure of all, and the sooner the free government humbug was played out, the better."

CHU PAK, late President of the See Yup Company of San Francisco, died in that city a few days ago. Mr. Chu Pak was a very wealthy gentleman of the Chinese persuasion, and died at the mature age of sixty-nine. His funeral was a splendid affair. Long Tables were spread in the streets, which were loaded down with sheep, goats and hogs roasted whole, and decorated with flowers, feathers, etc. Incense was burned, bands played, prayers were said, dirges sung, and the deceased enjoyed all the honors of a Celestial funeral.

THE walls inclosing the remains of Thomas Jefferson and his wife and children, besides those of some relatives, are gradually falling to the ground. The gate is left unlocked, and ingress can be obtained by every vandal curiosity hunter disposed to desecrate the tomb of Jefferson for the sake of possessing a chip of the stone monument covering his grave. To such an extent has this petty larceny been carried that the tombstone presents the appearance of a broken piece of granite. Even the gravestone of Mrs. Jefferson has not escaped these thieves."

A BRACE OF BULLS.—Two gallant sons of Erin, being just discharged from the service were rejoicing over the event with a "wee taste of the cratur," when one, who felt all the glory of his own race, suddenly raised his glass above, and said: "Arrah, Mike, here's to the gallant ould 69th—the last on the field and the first to leave it!" "Tut, tut, man," said Mike, "ye don't mane that." "Don't mane it, is it? Then fwat do I mane?" "You mane," said Mike, and he raised his glass high and looked lovingly at it, "Here's to the gallant ould 69th—aqual to none!" And so they drank.

.....At a concert which took place lately, a gentleman in the audience rose up just as the third piece in the programme had been performed, and said: "Mr. Conductor, will you oblige me, sir, by requesting your vocalist to sing louder, or to sing in a whisper, as there is a conversation going on close by where I sit, that is conducted in such a loud tone as to hinder my enjoyment of the music. I prefer certainly to hear the concert; but if I cannot be so privileged, I desire to hear the conversation." There was an extremely quiet and attentive audience during the rest of the evening.

.....A malicious wag says that if a lawyer is in danger of starving in a small village, he invites another, and they both thrive.

.....Bad taste—A short sleeved dress, when it exposes sharp elbows.

.....What kind of paper most resembles a sneeze? Tissue.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, March 24.

COTTON—Middling	$ .39	@	.40
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	8.15	@	8.65
WHEAT—No. 1. Spring	1.56	@	1.66
BARLEY		@	1.15
CORN—Sound Western	.74	@	.75
OATS—Dull	.52	@	.53
PETROLEUM—Crude	.24½	@	.25
PORK—Mess new	25.00	@	25.25
BEEF HAMS	36.00	@	37.00
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	12.00	@	16.50
DRY GOODS—Merrimacs	.20	@	.21
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville		@	.37½
Brown Sheetings—Amoskeag		@	.24
Delaines—Manchester		@	.22½
Denims—Manchester	.40	@	.7
GOLD—1.24⅞.

CHICAGO, March 26, 1866.

BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$100.00	@	$150.00
BEEVES—Stock to prime	$ 3.75	@	$ 6.80
BEANS	.75	@	1.25
BRAN	6.25	@	7.50
BUTTER	.20	@	.35
CHEESE—Western	.17	@	.19
COFFEE—Rio	.27½	@	.30½
Java	.42	@	.43
EGGS	.16	@	.18
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	6.00	@	7.00
Malaga Lemons	7.00	@	7.50
Dried N. Y. Apples	.15	@	.15¾
Peaches	.18	@	.28
Raisins, M. R.	4.65	@	4.75
FLOUR—Winter White	9.00	@	13.00
Spring Extra	7.15	@	7.50
Rye per bbl		@	4.30
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	10.25	@	10.75
Whitefish, " "	8.25	@	8.75
Codfish, per hundred	9.00	@	11.00
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.40	@	.41
Oats "		@	.25
Rye	.50	@	.52
Wheat—Winter		@
Spring, No. 1	1.23	@
HIGHWINES	2.21	@	2.22
HOGS—Dressed Middling to prime	10.25	@	10.40
Live	9.25	@	9.60
LARD	.17½	@	.18
PORK—Mess	25.00	@	25.25
POTATOES	.60	@	.65
SHEEP—First and second class	5.25	@	6.25
SUGARS—Cuba	.13¾	@	.14¼
New York Refined	.17½	@	.17¾
White A	.16½	@	.16¾
White B	.16½	@	.16¾
Yellow C	.14¼	@	.14½
SEEDS—Timothy, Prime	2.75	@	3.00
Clover	5.25	@	5.75
SALT—Fine	2.25	@	2.50
Coarse		@	2.00

FAIRBANKS'

STANDARD

SCALES,

OF ALL KINDS.

Fairbanks, Greenleaf & Co.,

No. 172 LAKE STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

Go to the Best.—Go to BRYANT & STRATTON'S Chicago Commercial College to get a thorough, practical business education, or to become a good Telegraph Operator. Address for circulars, BRYANT & STRATTON, Chicago, Ill.

DOUBLE TICKET.—A double ticket is one that may draw two prizes. The Garden City Gift Enterprise Company are selling 65,000 prize packages at one dollar each. A ticket is given with each package for the grand drawing, April 25th, 1866. 10,000 gifts, will be distributed, worth $60,000. Any person sending one dollar, with three stamps enclosed, to the Garden City Company, 199 South Clark street Chicago, Illinois, will receive by return mail a prize package with a ticket. The following valuable articles have just been drawn in prize packages:

Fine Gold Necklace, by a little girl—worth	$15.00
" " Breastpin, by Mary Miller "	7.00
" Lava Set, by Walter Mann—worth	25.00
Ladies' Gold Watch, by Mrs. Augustus Granger, Edgefield, Ohio—worth	75.00
Fine Ladies' Gold Watch by Mrs. Libbie Gee, Coldwater, Mich	100.00

Prize packages with tickets are being rapidly disposed of.

DR. SWAIN'S

BOURBON BITTERS.

A Healthy Tonic, Gentle Stimulant, and Unequaled Morning Appetizer, prepared in

RIPE OLD BOURBON WHISKEY

FREE FROM GRAIN OIL,

With Flowers, Buds and Barks of the Highest Medicinal Virtue.

BY increasing the appetite, assisting digestion, regulating the bowels, and giving tone to the system, they impart strength and vigor to the body and cheerfulness to the mind.

☞ If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters, have him send for them.

☞ Remember the name, and take no other.

For sale by leading Druggists and Grocers everywhere.

C. H. SWAIN,

Proprietor, 34 S. Water St., Chicago.

GARDEN CITY

Gift Enterprise

TO BE DRAWN AT

CROSBY'S OPERA HOUSE,

CHICAGO, ILL.,

ON APRIL 25TH, 1866,

And every fourth Wednesday thereafter.

10,000 GIFTS, VALUED AT $60,000.

65,000 Tickets will be Disposed of.

One Gift, in Greenbacks	$5,000
One Gift, a Residence	5,000
One Gift, in Greenbacks	3,000
One Gift, a Residence	4,000
One Gift, a Lot	2,000
One Gift, in Greenbacks	1,000
One Gift, do	500
5 Gifts, 5 Pianos	2,500
50 Gifts, 50 Gold Lever Watches	10,000
50 Gifts, 50 Ladies' Gold Watches	5,000
50 Gifts, 50 Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines	5,000
1000 Gifts, 1000 Gold Lined Cups and Goblets	1,000
100 Gifts, 100 Ladies' Gold Chains	1,500
5000 Gifts, 5000 Gold Pens	7,500
3,738 Gifts, in Cash	7,000
10,000	$70,000

In order to facilitate the distribution of Tickets, they will be given away in the following manner:

65,000 Prize Packages will be Sold at One Dollar each, and a Ticket will be given with each Package.

Each Prize Package contains some of the following list of Articles.

Diamond Set, Lava Set, Pearl Breast Pins, Finger Rings, Gold Studs, Sleeve Buttons, Gold Ear Rings, Ear Drops and Crosses, Mourning Pins, Hair and Bead Work, Ladies' Gold Finger Rings, Gents' Gold Finger Rings, and Fancy Bosom Studs in Sets, and many other Articles of value.

Every package contains something of value, and entitles the holder to a ticket. Send in your money at once, and buy a prize package. Send 3 stamps to pay the return of the package by mail; a ticket will be sent with each package. Each ticket has its duplicate, of the same number, which is registered before being sent out. The drawing will take place at Crosby's Opera House, or some other public place, where thousands of ticket holders can witness the drawing. The duplicate tickets will all be placed in a wheel, and drawn out by some disinterested person, chosen from the audience present on the day of drawing A list of the numbers so drawn will be sent at once, or soon as made out, to each ticket holder, who then can compare his number with the list of drawn numbers; the moneys or goods will then be held to his order, to be sent by Express or otherwise, as he may direct. Our enterprise is upon the grandest scale ever known. As every ticket holder will obtain one prize on purchasing a prize package, and have as good an opportunity to obtain a Five Thousand Dollar Prize, as a person could have in any similar Gift Enterprise.

THE GARDEN CITY ENTERPRISE is so arranged that the tickets will be rapidly disposed of so much so that, very seldom if ever, any postponement of the day of drawing can occur. And in no case will the postponement be for a longer time than 4 weeks. The articles contained in our enterprise are all of the most approved kind, of the best manufacturers, and all warranted new and in perfect order. A new list of similar articles will be made up after each drawing, for the next monthly distribution. All orders will receive prompt attention.

Examine our unprecedented club rates; every active lady or gentlemen may take part in forming a club Don't waste your money on foolish amusements, but buy our prize packages and get something of real value. No blank packages. Parties are recommended to get up small clubs first; when they become quainted with the work they can get up larger ones.

INDUCEMENTS OFFERED TO AGENTS—Club Rates

Any person or party procuring a club of 5 or more names for prize packages, and forwarding us the money for the same, will be allowed the following commission:

We will send

5 Packages, Ticket with each				$4 50
10	do	do	do	9 00
20	do	do	do	17 00
30	do	do	do	25 00

Miscellany.

A PRAYER FOR REST.

Upon the hills the wind is sharp and cold,
The sweet young grasses wither on the wold,
And we, O Lord, have wandered from thy fold;
But evening brings us home.

Among the mists we stumbled, and the rocks,
Where the brown lichen whitens, and the fox
Watches the straggler from the scattered flocks;
But evening brings us home.

The sharp thorns prick us, and our tender feet
Are cut and bleeding, and the lambs repeat
Their pitiful complaints—O, rest is sweet,
When evening brings us home.

We have been wounded by the hunter's darts,
Our eyes are very heavy, and our hearts
Search for the coming—when the light departs,
At evening, brings us home!

The darkness gathers. Through the gloom no star
Rises to guide us. We have wandered far.
Without thy lamp we know not where we are—
At evening bring us home!

The clouds are round us, and the snow-drifts thicken,
O thou, dear Shepherd, leave us not to sicken
In the waste night—our tardy footsteps quicken.
At evening bring us home!

A BOY'S FIRST FIGHT.

AN ENGLISH STORY.

I was a biggish boy, of 17, and I wore a red jacket, and was skylarking, one summer's morning, with my companions in the yard of the farm where we were quartered. Some of us were busily hemming in a pretty little bit of an ensign, on a pony, and trying to drive him into the abomination-pond in the centre of the yard, when a man looked over the gate and quietly said: "There—leave off—there's better fun for you; the French are coming on."

We had heard for the last week that about 100,000 of them were assembling within a few miles of us, and we were living on, just as unconcernedly as most people do live on in this world, in the midst of the hundred thousand unseen dangers which beset every path of life. Our child's play was over, man's work was before us. We assembled, we marched; but not up the lane which led to our daily drill-ground; our heads were put the opposite way; whither bound, we knew not, nor, I believe, did our leaders. The general of our division had, some days before, found out a goodly chateau with a most convenient common near it, where he could exercise his men; and thither he went, taking us at least 20 miles from the place where we were supposed to be, and close to the French frontier. We had now to rejoin the army without a moment's delay, if we could, which was doubtful, for nothing definite was known as to the movements which might be taking place on either side.

The first sign of war I saw was a beacon by the roadside, which had been fired, and partly burned down. There was no one near it. The bounds had been there, but there was no trace of them. After a tolerably long day's march, we were halted to rest on a nice bit of roadside common. Everybody threw himself on the turf, to make the most of the few minutes; and all was quiet—strangely quiet.

What's the matter? What are they listening to? What are those old hands laying their ears to the ground for?

Don't you hear the firing?

No. Listen.

There! No doubt about it.

Oh! I can hear it quite plain. Musketry, and heavy guns, too! It's a general action; they are at it, and we here!

You have seen hounds in cover when first they catch the scent—a mere suspicion, not yet to be confirmed by the tongue—how their bristles will rise, and their whole frame quiver. So it was with the men; they were transfigured. Those who a minute before were only trying to snatch 40 winks, had started to their feet, were gathering in little knots, speculating eagerly on what was to come; but there was no noise beyond a busy, angry hum.

The march was resumed, and continued steadily till dusk, when we halted just outside of a town, and hoped for rations. Instead thereof, there came rushing by a raw Irish regiment, shouting like madmen. The contempt with which our soldiers looked down upon this noisy demonstration was quite beyond words.

On we went, in darkness, rain, hunger and thirst; on, on, until long after midnight, when the rain, had become a deluge, we halted in a wretched hamlet, and were told to expect about three hours' rest, but no food. I got into a stable, threw myself on some straw, my head on a saddle, and subsided into a sort of half dreamy repose; but others came in, and we began to discuss our prospects, under our breaths, lest the men should hear, for it was believed that the French were between us and our army, and that our chance of rejoining it was a bad one. We were four in that stall, and gloomy enough. Two have long been in their graves, the third is a jolly old general, and as to me—never mind.

Day broke—the march was taken up. One of the men near me had got a drink somehow, and showed it. His own comrades attacked him angrily. He pleaded killing weather, fatigue, emptiness; it was but little; it could never else have got into his head, etc.; but they would listen to no excuses. Drink, they said, was all very well at proper times—a capital thing, no doubt; but before the enemy, never! He was a disgrace to the regiment.

The weather improved, and we woke up in better humor. Coming to the brow of a little hill, there appeared a single figure coming down the opposite slope towards us. A soldier—Belgium uniform—arm in a sling. "He has been in the fray—now we shall know something." But he could not make himself understood, seemed to have had quite enough of fighting, and was evidently making for his home. His wound was looked on as a sham and himself as a deserter. He was hooted out of sight—nothing loth. About midday we halted in a pleasant meadow, and hopes were held out of rations. The officers of my company sent off one to a little town in sight, to get something eatable. And now up came a lad, in high spirits at having carried his point, at any rate. He had been on leave at Brussels when the alarm came, and at once determined to make his way to his reciment. He had been walking all night, and having started, as he was, in dancing shoes, had soon worn them clean out. He had seen no actual fighting, and could only say that it had been heavy, and the result doubtful. He told us Maj. ——, a staff officer, who had been much with us, and was universally liked, had lost a leg. "Poor fellow; what a horseman he was! His hunting is over!" This was realizing the matter to us—bringing it home to our bosoms.

It was the first blow; but there was not much time to think of it. Our caterer returned with a large loaf like a life-buoy—a common shape then—smoking hot, and a bottle of Curacoa, both which were disposed of in an instant. There were rations at hand, we were told; but time was too precious to wait for them, and we went on our way.

Presently there was a startling sound. Our suspicious imaginations made it a fire of musketry close at hand. It was only a long, rattling peal of thunder, the first of a long series of heavy storms.

Another alarm! On a rising ground, some way off, came into view a strong body of men. Were they friends or enemies? If the latter, they were too many for us. All right—they were allies—the risk of being cut off was at an end—we were up with the army. But where had we been wandering ever since yesterday morning? I never knew. I have in after-times often asked men who should have known, but never got an answer.

Once more we halted; the wagons with the meat actually came up; but it was announced that the French were close upon us, and there was not time to cook it. The meat was put back into the wagons, and the retreat—for such it doubtless was—went on. And now the plot begins to thicken. On all sides were seen troops of various nations, hurrying on in the same direction as ourselves. The road became choked. Once, in a regular jam with some ammunition wagons, a violent thunder-squall came on, and I began to speculate on the possible effects of a flash of lightning. We had to wait some little time, and I lay down in the long rye by the roadside. I was violently heated, and thirsty, and refreshed myself by sucking the ears of corn, which were so drenched by the heavy rain that each was a sort of wet sponge.

The foreigners began to give out, and lie down by the roadside in constantly increasing numbers. Most conspicuous among them were some huge Dutchmen, with enormous beards—things not then usually worn. They made no attempt to conceal their alarm, and I began to doubt how the feeling that our allies were good for nothing might affect our men. It was satisfactory, however, to see that they seemed to look upon it as unmitigated fun. The passage of any staff officer was eagerly watched, in the hope of picking up information. I overheard one say, in answer to some inquiries about our retreat: "Oh, we shan't have to go much further. He is going to make a stand at a place called, I believe, Waterloo, or some such name."

From the crowded state of the road, checks were now become very frequent. On some occasion, hearing an odd kind of noise close to me, I looked up, and saw a wagon of wounded men. It was utterly unexpected, and I only hope I did not show how it shocked me. Two figures I see now. One had been shot in the mouth; the whole face had swelled till the features were undistinguishable. It was one cake of blood, and where the mouth had been was a hole, from which came sounds that were not human. In contrast to him sat a very fine-looking man in a greatcoat, which concealed his hurt. His face was deadly pale, and wore an expression of deadly suffering; but he maintained absolute silence.

We passed through the town of Braine-le-Compte, which looked entirely deserted by the inhabitants. It was occupied by some foreign troops, who, we understood, were to stay and meet the advance of the French. One company got under arms at a sort of guard-house, in compliment to us, as we passed. They looked, officers and men, dismal—forlorn without the hope. I could not help admiring the endurance of our men. They had started about nine or ten on the morning of the 16th; had been marching through drenching rain and violent storms until now, the afternoon of the 17th, with very trifling halts and no rations. They had breakfasted before starting, and had little or no opportunity of picking up any food on the way (I had only my share of the hot bread and Curacoa); and here they were, going on without apparent fatigue, and without a murmur. Well, all things come to an end. We turned off the road, upon a rising ground, which showed other regiments forming line, as we did. The position was reached, the march was over. As I was looking round, to see what was coming next, I was accosted by an old Peninsu'ar captain with a grim smile: "Well, ——, here's the butcher's shop. How do you like it?" But the real butcher's shop came; we got the meat, and some spirits, and fed at last. I contrived to get a capital bundle of straw, and lay down (thatching myself with it, for the thunder showers were constant) on a slope, from which I could see all that was passing. Before me spread one wide level, mostly in corn, with no inclosures or woods to break the view. Across it, at the distance of more than a mile, ran long lines of British cavalry, formed to cover our retreat. Beyond, in the distance, I could make out the French line. The guns I could not distinguish, until they opened fire; then the smoke, settling in a little thunder cloud above each battery, mapped them out. I could see the lines shifting, wavering, advancing, retreating, but was too far off to make out anything more than that a skirmish on a grand scale was going on—then our side seemed to gain ground—and then the squall seemed over. There is a horseman coming from the fight, at speed, right towards us. He pulls up close to a party of our officers, throws the reins on his horse's neck, and bursts out a laughing. His horse is in a lather, but himself in the highest spirits. This is the duke of ——, a captain in our regiment, but serving on the head-quarter staff; and he is laughing because he has just seen the life guards ride over the French. (He did not tell us, what we heard afterwards, that some of our light cavalry had first failed to do so.) What is that astounding rattle on the right? And what are our fellows elasping their hands and shouting for, as if it were the best fun in the world? It is the whole baggage train of the British army in a panic, fleeing for their lives along the paved road, bound for Brussels. And it is no joke at all. It is only fright now; but all through the night will be plunder and destruction—robbery and murder—women and children upset into the canal and drowned. The loss of life was great; the conduct of very many infamous. It was a shocking and disgraceful business; but it was hushed up. Victory, like charity, covered the multitude of sins; and in the ocean of our losses, this drop was of no account. Again we stood to our arms, and moved off, I carefully carrying my precious truss of straw under my arm. The two armies were in motion—in presence—in full view. The prattle of skirmishers began, grew angry, died away. The sun, just before setting, came forth from his frowning host of storm-clouds, threw one wild gleam of light over the awful scene, and disappeared. "Are we going to work now?" I asked the little fellow by my side (a boy in years, in service a veteran).

"Not to-night, I think; it's too late."

"What a beautiful sight!—Isn't it?" I could not help saying.

With a grave, sad smile of superior experience, he replied: "Wait till to-morrow night; tell me then how beautiful you think it."

We kept changing our ground, and at every move I lost some of my straw. Blundering through the dark and wet, the last of it went before we came to our final position. Very quickly the opposite ridge was lighted up by the fire of the French army making themselves happy for the night. What a range of them; and how I envied them! We had nothing of the sort. The fitful fire of outposts—every now and then like a small battle—burned out. The last sounds I heard were the constant rush of the rain, and the constant wail of some poor baby near me. I had not so much as a great coat, but I slept what the French call "the sleep of the just;" or what, according to the penny-a-liners, is quite as good, the sleep of the man who is going to be hanged to-morrow. On waking in the morning, I found I could not have turned once the whole night, for the side next the ground was perfectly dry and warm. But that seemed all there was of me; the upper side, on which the rain had been beating, had no feeling at all. The general effect was helplessness. (Some months after, I saw at Ramsgate a young man in a wheel-chair, and was told he had been paralyzed from exposure to wet, the night before Waterloo.) The next thing was a bit of rough pathos, the women taking leave of their (irregular) husbands. Few words were spoken—a few tears were shed; a good deal of real feeling seemed suppressed on both sides, and they were gone.

I was trying to shake myself up and be alive, when my kind captain came by. "You look very ill," he said; "there will be nothing doing just yet a while; go down to that cottage. I have just come from it. You will find a fire there. Make yourself comfortable. You'll know by the firing when it's time to come back." I went, and found a miserable hut—four bare walls and a mud floor. Crouching in the opposite corners of the hearth, over some smouldering embers, were an old man and a little boy, both crying bitterly. I sat down between them, made up the fire, found a crock of water and a few potatoes, and set to work to roast them—and myself. I made a hearty breakfast. Not one word passed between us. They crying, I eating and drinking, and rubbing my hands over the embers. But all was silent, except the musketry, which more than once drove me to the door. I ought to go back; but, hang it! said I to myself, this is too luxurious a fireside to leave yet. At last came a burst of fire that allowed no further doubt, and away I ran, back to my company, was complimented on my good looks and my early return; for they said: "Oh, this is nothing yet. You'd better come into the hut." Our servants had by this time made a gipsy hut of boughs, with plenty of dry straw in it; where they could have got either, I have no notion; but they were handy lads. Four of us tumbled in, and pigged together. I dropped asleep instantly, and knew nothing more till I was roused by their jumping up, and followed their example. Our general's aide-de-camp was walking his horse by; he turned his head towards us, and said very coolly: "Enemigo!" The one word of Spanish, and the knowing smile, told plainly that old times were come again.

Now for it, then!

Without a single word of command, the men just walked to the piles of arms, and formed their ranks.

Here comes the old quartermaster, radiant; he has got something good for us. Yes, a little very precious oil for the musket locks; and the men seemed fully to appreciate the value of it—to feel that each man's life might depend on his piece not missing fire. Each proceeded to uncover ond oil his lock; for I think there were none who had not contrived some protection against the rain; very many had stripped off their woolen socks for the purpose. We got the word to "load;" the ramrods rang, and one thousand rare soldiers stood ready for anything.

A short move brought us into our place; we formed a close column. The men stood at ease, officers fell out, and lounged about, chatting as at an ordinary parade. I noticed our adjutant, an old Peninsula man, lying down on his face, as if asleep; but I could make out that he was saying his prayers.

We were just behind the ridge which formed our position, so that we could see nothing. A pause. It seemed a long one; even those chatter-boxes, the skirmishers, were silent.

Bang! went an English gun, on the ridge just before us; and, as it were a spell that had raised legions of devils, gun followed gun, until all individual explosions were swallowed up in one wild roar, under which might be made out the sharp treble of the musketry. Clouds of smoke began to gather, and out of them, from time to time, darted a long shrill French scream. The Americans in this last war appear to pride themselves on what they call "yelling," to have reduced it to a system, and to look on it as an important branch of the art of war. But the English of that day did their bloody work, for the most part, in silence. The first cannon shots sailed over us sky-high; but they soon began to fall unpleasantly near. If you sit by the open window of a railway carriage, and if, quite unexpectedly, an express train passes, you will hear something like a cannon-shot close to you. The first thing struck in our ranks was a horse. Prince Regent had cost over a hundred guineas only a few days before. It was only a graze. As far as I could see, it did not draw blood or break the skin; but it broke a bone; there he stood, with one leg hanging loose. The next was a worse case. our sergeant-major was expecting his ensign's commission, and another sergeant was acting as his second, and daily looking for his promotion. The rush of a shot! near! nearer! Smack among us! a little bustle—one man down. It was the sergeant, his leg crushed. In a few minutes his life-blood was on the field, and he at rest.

Soon men begin to drop faster; the enemy had got our range. The clever old soldier in command just moved us about twenty yards to the right. Such a change was repeated at intervals. I did not see any of the other regiments in the brigade doing so. Their losses were heavier than ours; and I have always attributed the difference to this simple but sensible dodge.

The wetness of the ground was much in our favor under this fire. Shells would sink so deep that they exploded either not at all or harmlessly, throwing up great fountains of mud. But there were marvelous escapes. I saw one fall at the foot of an officer, who, instead of getting out of the way, stood as if petrified; but it never burst. Another went into the ground just behind a man who was lying down; he rolled lazily over on his side, and began to scrape with his hand the hole it had made, as if trying to find it. That, too, did not burst. And just by me a shell struck a man's knapsack, exploded, and scattered it in all directions—tore it to smithereens without hurting the wearer, who stood gaping as if he could not understand why all his comrades were laughing at him.

Here comes our second in command, good Sir Rowland Hill, on a great fat coach horse, and looking as if no less a creature could carry him. But the composure with which he and his staff walked by, while the shot was dropping all around them, was perfect. The storm was so heavy in front of us (Hougemont) that we began to think it high time that something should come of it, and to feel, rather than acknowledge, some anxiety on the subject. A group came slowly towards us from that quarter—six men carrying something in a blanket. We must have lost some officer of rank (it was Gen. Cooke); for in those days men were not allowed, except in special cases, to leave the ranks to attend on the wounded while fighting was going on; nor were surgeons allowed to be under fire.

The next sufferer got along without help; it was a poor horse wandering slowly to the rear, with his head hanging down, almost as if he was grazing. I thought at first there was nothing the matter with him, but as he came nearer, I saw he had only half a head; a cannon-shot had carried away all the lower part. One of the men was ordered to take a musket, and put him out of his misery.

There is a yell, worthy of America, a long way off. What can that be? Far out of the reach of shot was an immense patch of yellow, from whence these fierce sounds proceeded; it was a body of "brave Belges" shouting to keep up their spirits.

At last up rode an aid-de-camp to our column; he was a very young one indeed, and in a very great fuss.

"Are the —— loaded?"

A chuckle from the ranks was the only answer. He muttered some hasty order, and was going off as fast as he came.

"Stop, stop! young gentleman," says the colonel; "don't be in such a hurry. Let us hear distinctly what you have to say."

It was an order to advance; and right gladly we obeyed it; for idleness, a curse at any time, is at such times the hardest trial a man can have. The first sight of a battlefield was rather a disappointment to me, though I don't quite know what I expected. Along the ridge, groups of figures were busy in the smoke. There were our guns. At intervals were masses of men doing nothing. Small bodies of cavalry were riding about, and occasionally attacking one another. Altogether, it rather put me in mind of some of the stage directions in Shakspeare's battles: "Alarums, Excursions—Chambers go off." One little episode I almost hesitate to describe, because it does not sound at all like what it is—true to the letter. I saw it distinctly; it took place at a very short distance from me. Out of the smoke two small parties of cavalry—not above ten or a dozen in each—rushed into collision, as if unawares; pistol-shots were rapidly exchanged, saddles as rapidly emptied; away went the horses back into the smoke in various directions, not one rider left: the whole was enacted in less time than you have taken to read it.

We took up the ground which had been occupied by the Black Brunswickers, and still was occupied by a large number of them, poor fellows! Very honestly had they been fighting; very thick they lay. Close to me was the body of an officer, quite dead. As it was a leisure moment, and I had never had a fair view of a dead man before, I determined to take a good look at him, and felt much the better for it. He was not disfigured—quite placid, but as yellow as any duck in the market.

We now formed, not one, but two squares, because we were so strong—above one thousand bayonets. The French cavalry had by this time got possession of the field, but could never hold it; they came and went. Every now and then, they would drive our artillerymen from their guns; I saw at one time seventeen guns in a row, abandoned. The gunners, as well as all general and staff officers, would take shelter in the squares, just as you pop into a shop in a shower, and beg leave to wait till the rain is over; and the squares become crowded with inconvenient guests. I remember one couple in particular, because the horse trod on my toes. He was a hot chestnut, but how sadly nervous—could not stand still for an instant. The rider was a curious contrast. His natural temper was one of the most irritable I ever knew; but a scene like this steadied him, and he sat like a statue. By the by, I did not in one single instance see a horse in the rampageous attitude which battle-painters are so fond of. No ha! ha! no mocking at fear. They were not the animals they were in Job's days, or this gunpowder made the difference! They do sniff the battle, poor brutes, and realize the danger. Some, indeed, showed no unusual symptoms. Here and there (rarely) was a case of frantic fright. More frequently, it was quaking, shivering from head to foot.

And now our turn came; the cuirassiers were going to try us. Very calmly our colonel gave his directions, quite in a conversational tone: "Now, mind, men—no firing till I give the word, and I shan't do that until they are within 30 yards." On they came at a trot—the ground was too deep for any faster pace—the officers in front cheering them on, as the French soldier expects his officer to do.

It was mere murder. I do not think the distance could have been 30 yards, when a clear gentlemanly voice said: "Ready! Present!" A flash and a crack from the face of the square. A heap of them were down. "The rest they run away," as the nursery rhyme has it. The cavalry tried us no more. A large part of that wonderful body of troops was disheartened and wasted in such hopeless attacks; it was one of the great mistakes of that great day.

In our turn we advanced, still in square. We went over the bridge, and a little way down the slope; but the enemy were too many; we were in a perfect cloud of skirmishers, and a mark they could not miss; nearly surrounded by them. It was an ugly moment. There was a call for the rifles, who were near us, to go at them, and gallantly the green-coats dashed into the skirmish. The two lines were almost hand to hand, without the slightest shelter. The rifles dropped so fast that I thought they were done; but the French dropped faster, and were driven off after a short struggle, too deadly to last. It gave us relief; but we had to walk back—we did not run—to our old ground.

Soon after the square was reduced, and we formed line just behind the ridge. I was tall enough to see over it; and here began a long, long, weary stand. For want of something better to do, I got watching a French gun, exactly opposite me. The flash came in very regular time, and then the shot would whiz right over my head, and drop in the bottom of the valley behind, among our allies. I was trying for an epithet, but the less said the better. Time after time, savage screams of "Vive Napoleon!" would break out, announcing a fresh attack. Very fierce they were, long, destructive, and only not successful. They took the name of their God of battle in vain. A cannon shot struck the ensign who carried one of the colors, smashed his raised arm and the color-staff, and went through his heart. Without a word, he fell forward on the color. A sergeant stepped up in his place; down he went instantly. Another succeeded, only to share the same fate. There was a moment's hesitation before the next for duty took the deadly post; but the storm was over, and all through it the other ensign stood unharmed beside the dead.

Looking round to watch the flight of one of the shots going to the rear, I was aware of "the Duke" quite close to me, and entirely alone, walking his horse slowly along in the rear of the regiment, shot falling all around him; his expression of countenance was, if you please, immovable determination, but I am bound to confess it was the opposite of pleasing.

I had asked my brother-subalten rather early in the day: "Is this what you call much of a fight?"

"No," he said; "nothing very extraordinary."

Some time after I repeated the question, and got a similar answer; but rather, I fancied, in a short tone; so I thought I had not better ask any more. But now he came up, and whispered in my ear: "Well, I never did see anything like this." So I felt satisfied. Presently, a sergeant came round to him, (our post was in rear of the ranks,) and said: "Please, Mr. ——, come and take command of the company. Your brother's down, sir!" Without a word—without a change of feature—the young stoic went and did it.

The persecution our poor captain underwent was singular. A grazed shot on the head knocked him down, stunned. Trying to get up on his knees, his back towards the enemy, a musket-ball struck the sole of his foot, and made a bad wound. Staggering off as best he could, he leaned, for a moment's rest, against an abandoned gun; a cannon shot instantly shattered the carriage of it, throwing him down with no further hurt.

As soon as the fighting was over, his two brothers, both officers in the regiment, started in search of him; for the greater part of that night they rambled over the ground we had been working on, but in vain. They used to say it was too horrid a scene to talk about. At last, hopeless and worn out, they took shelter in a hut, where was only a French officer, shockingly wounded. They did what they could for him—got him a drink of water—and dropped asleep by his side. When they awoke in the morning, he was dead. They had to rejoin the ranks and march with us; nobody knew anything about their brother. He did well, however; and yet lives, a prosperous gentleman.

We know the lull that will occur in a gale of wind, until one really begins to hope that it is over; but there comes a sigh, a sob, a breeze, gust upon gust, and the roar returns as if the spirit of the storm were only bent on making up for lost time. There was more than one lull of this kind; but at no time would the noise make conversation inaudible, and any sound at all unusual would attract notice.

A slight but general groan from the ranks made me turn my head. I saw the colonel sinking back on his horse, and the men catching him. The groan was from them—a token of their affectionate regard almost unprecedented—the only demonstration of feeling I remember that day. The calm indifference of those "red men" was like what we read of the Indians, but for a moment it was overcome. And he was a disciplinarian too; the best I ever knew.

Well, things were undeniably looking bad—and growing from bad to worse. There were symptoms of exhaustion and discouragement, and not on the enemy's side. My neighbor touched my arm, and without a word, pointed to the right; there were men running, and they were English.

Right in our front the fire blazed up afresh, and the screams of "Vive l'Empereur!" growing more and more distinct, told of a coming attack. Our line was formed four deep, and (how I do not exactly remember) we became aware that at last we were going to be sent forward—that the time was come for Greek to meet Greek. We woke up as from a dull and dismal dream, to real life and action. We had as yet done nothing, except that little brush with the cavalry. But how many hours had we been suffering! Our losses, comparatively, had not been heavy; but the full and hideous effect of every shot that struck was displayed before us, and we had to stand and watch it, hopelessly. It was as bad as sipping your medicine, and that medicine the bitterness of death. But now the load was off us, the nightmare at an end. All the feelings so long pent up were loosened and working into fury. At last we were free to show what we too could do. But as yet there was no visible change; we still stood behind that ridge, not seeing the approaching column, and unseen by them. Our commanding officer, with two or three of the mounted staff, was on the brow, watching the enemy. Now he is coming back to us; now he puts us in motion. As we topped this rise, we had to break and pass between our guns, which ceased firing, the gunners cheering us as we went by—their sleeves tucked up, their hands and faces devilishly black, and hot, reeking hot they looked. They are passed, and here are the enemy, coming on at a run, and uproarious. The sudden apparation of our formidable line moving down upon them, so firm, so steady, in such awful silence, unmistakably staggered them. Their voices hushed; they came to a stand; they delivered a weak, spattering fire, which, though so close, did no harm. Then came our volley, and then a pause, for one tremendous moment, till the smoke should lift and show us the effect.

They are down—broken, crushed, fleeing all who can! British phlegm, British discipline could keep quiet no longer; out rung a cheer, which none there, French or English, would forget while they lived. Every bugle in the regiment sounded the "advance"—kept sounding it over and over again. Forward over the wreck we stalked.

From that moment, our advance, in spite of momentary checks, was never stopped till we drew up at the finish—at La Belle Alliance—in the fore front of the whole British battle.

The horrors of our progress were not unmixed with ludicrous incidents. Here was the first piece of plunder I ever saw. One of the men as he ran on, stooped, twitched a knapsack off a dead Frenchman's back, and throwing his firelock into the hollow of one arm, proceeded to rummage it with the other. Out flew letters, letters—nothing else. The more angrily he shook it, the more the papers fluttered. A nice prize—a knapsackful of billets doux! The laugh was against him, and he flung it away with a curse.

We were now coming up to a second line, which seemed disposed to make a stand behind a little bank, on which, to all appearances, had grown yesterday a hedge—now leveled. As we came close, the enemy's hearts failed them—they broke and fled. A few, who could not make up their minds in time, were bayoneted. Forward, forward, over man and horse, and wreck of all sorts cumbering the ground! Since I spoke of things looking so ill, a very short time had elapsed, but the change was so sudden and complete as a shifting scene in a panorama. We were still leading, but the whole British army was coming on at our back. So forward were we that some of our own shells began to fall among us. A messenger was sent back to the offending artillery; but the commanding officer was indignant at the supposition that he was capable of such bad practice. Suddenly we found ourselves on the brink of a deep, hollow road, with steep clay-banks, very slippery from the rain. It was chcked with French, huddled together like sheep in a pen; French in dismay, crying for quarter. We slid down; our men snatched the French muskets, broke the stocks against the ground, flung away the barrels, left the disarmed crowd to be dealt with by our people in the rear—there were awkward stories of some of these defenceless men having been massacred by our allies—scrambled up the other bank, formed as good a fighting-line as ever, and forward, forward! There was a sudden cry of "cavalry!" a little uneasiness at being caught by them in line. But the word was passed: "Remember you are four deep; it's as good as a square." (We had been trained for any such sudden emergency. Any individual officer, in case of disorder, was to give the word: "Form rallying square," and collect in that form any stragglers near him; and I know one case in which that was done.) But the men steadied in a moment. Out of the smoke rushed a mob of horsemen upon us. It was an English cavalry regiment, driven by and mixed up with a French one. Right on us they came; in self defence we gave them our fire; it was deadly. French and English broke and vanished in the smoke so quickly as they had come into view. I heard of a British cavalry officer killed in our ranks, unable to make the men understand that he was not a Frenchman. The disaster was no fault of ours.

Forward again. We were now getting near some French guns which opened upon us, and down went a lot of men. A chattering in my ears, the like of which I had never heard, made me call out: "What's that?" An old sergeant, touched his cap with a grim smile at the youngster's ignorance, replied: "Grape, sir." It was no small satisfaction to see the gunners cutting the traces of their teams and riding off. Every moment came fresh signs that the end was at hand. On the rising ground above Mont St. Jean, some of our batteries which had been silent, broke out again fast and furious; and out came the sun just as he had done the previous evening. The sky was just as wild and stormy. But how gloomy had he looked then—how bright and smiling now to me! and how to the unfortunate French? Then did I call to mind the saying of my brother-subaltern as to yesterday's sunset scene; and I asked myself, Well is it beautiful now? No. It was highly satisfactory—it was triumphant, glorious, &c., as much as you please; but beautiful it was not. In sober truth and plain English, a very ugly sight it was.

A bugler near me was taking a hearty pull at his canteen. "Have you any to spare?" "Yes, sir." It was water, and that was the drink of my life. I remember none so refreshing. I offered him money, which he would not hear of, and he was right—it was beyond price.

Our brave old quartermaster was just come up. I heard him behind me calling to the men; "Now, my boys, I've brought you some rum; you'll have it directly. This was even more welcome than the oil which he had produced as a morning whet.

We were still heading the pursuit. Resistance was over; but amid that scattered and terrified crowd might be seen four battalions marching off the lost field in close and soldier like array. All honor to such unshrinking gallantry; but being on the losing side, I take it they never got much.

We were now at La Belle Alliance, on the brink of the French position; daylight was fading as we halted. "Let the men fall out;" and down they dropped, exhausted. Firing had ceased, except a few pops from some skirmishers of the 95th, who, determined to have the last word, had passed us, and gone down the slope after the fleeing French. It must have been prudence bought by sore experience that, at such a moment, could make some of our old officers say, as I heard them say, gravely shaking their heads: "Oh, this is not right! Don't you remember in the Peninsula, at ——and ——, how the beggars came back when we made sure they were done? They'll be upon us again in the dark; the men should be kept together, and ready.

But there was no need; they never came back. The fight was over, and we were the victors.

CURRENT ITEMS.

Domestic Paragraphs.

—7,609 bales of cotton were produced in Southern Illinois last year.

—A man in Boston has just paid the fortieth year's rent of his store to the same landlord.

—California has had 34½ inches of rain so far this season; nearly 8 inches came in one storm.

—Cincinnati has lately increased the salaries of its city officials. Policemen now receive $1,000 a year.

—A girl in a paper mill, in Bangor, found a ring composed of thirty diamonds, among some rags she was picking.

—No little alarm has been created among the farmers of Fulton county, Ill., by the appearance of a new cattle disease.

—The carpenters at Brooklyn talk about claiming $6.50 a day, and their employers threaten to suspend building altogether, if they do.

—The sale of four leading firms in Salt Lake City ("Gentiles") last year were one million and a half each. One concern sold $600,000 in boots and shoes.

—A woollen factory is to be erected at Lawrenceburg, Ind., the present season, of a capacity to manufacture 600 yards of cloth per day.

—Bloomington has a melodeon manufactory. The instruments there put up are spoken of as being equal to any others made in the country.

—A snake twenty-two feet and three inches in length, was killed last Saturday on Grand Island, in Niagara River. The largest of everything is found at Niagara.

—An extraordinary case of filial depravity comes to light in New Brunswick, N. J., where a youth robbed his father of $2,078, and proceeded on his travels to spend the same with reprobate companions.

—It appears by official returns, that in the State of New York there are over 70,000 children between the ages of five and twenty-one years who do not attend any school.

—A child in Rockford, Ill., came near losing its life recently, simply by playing with an old stem of a tobacco pipe in its mouth. The poison of the tobacco almost produced death.

—A sensitive Dutchman committed suicide at New York, a few days ago, because he was so mortified that his cousin had come to this country and gone into business as a mule-driver.

—Some idea of the telegraphic business of Chicago may be formed when it is stated that forty-five different wires now run out of the city from the telegraph offices on the corner of Lake and Clark streets.

—The manager of the Griswold Opera House, Troy, has produced a new local sensation drama, entitled the "Workingmen of Troy." In the last scene, a steam engine, in full motion, is on the stage.

—The New Haven Palladium says that the last new hat for ladies in New Haven is a brown velvet dice box, with a little dead woodcock perched over the forehead of the wearer trying to peck out her right eye.

—A boy sixteen years old employed in a Boston insurance office lately forged the President's name on a $1,000 check, got the money, and went to New York on a lark. His good time was soon terminated by his arrest.

—Rents are coming down in Washington. Many empty houses are offered at two-thirds of what they were held at a few months since. One house is mentioned as having been let for fifteen dollars a month, the last tenant of which, paid forty dollars for the same term.

—San Francisco statistics exhibit a very remarkable growth in population during the war. In 1860 there were 56,000 citizens; in 1865, 119,000. The Bulletin thinks that there will be a less rapid increase in the future. Its estimate for 1870 is 190,-400.

—B. M. Harrison, of Terre Haute, Ill., and his brother, residing in New Jersey, have recently been notified that, by the death of a wealthy relative in England, they have together inherited the sum of $6,250,-000, which they divide equally between them.

—A young lady affianced to an ardent youth in Bridgeport, Ct., refused to fix the happy day, and her lover made up a surprise party for her, got up tableaux, and persuaded Miss Indecision to help him represent a marriage. She did and found the knot securely tied. She says now that she is glad of it.

—Cleansing the Augean stables was nothing to what the Board of Health find on their hands in New York in their inroads upon the genius of pestilence in the Metropolis. It is found that there are twenty-eight miles of sewers that must be rebuilt ere they exercise fully their proper function.

—The will of the late Judge P. M. Smith, of Centreville, Mich., is to be contested by the heirs. It will be remembered that he bequeathed to the Baptist College, of Kalamazoo, the nice little sum of $50,000; while he left to his widow and three children $5,000 each. He is said to have been very eccentric and the heirs have hopes of being able to set aside the will.

—A Rhode Islander lately died abroad very soon after his marriage, and left a will which had been executed before his marriage. His estate amounts to about $1,000,-000, and the courts will be called upon to decide what part of it shall go to the widow.

—Mrs. Mansfield, who stabbed and killed her husband, Jacob Mansfield, in Madison county, Mo., last month, has been tried and acquitted. The deceased was 70 years of age, but was in the habit of cruelly beating his wife while he was under the influence of liquor.

—A lady from the West reached Spencerport, N. Y., on Tuesday evening, on a visit to her parents. She had her infant with her, and on meeting her mother she joyfully disrobed her infant of the shawl in which it was wrapped, and found it dead. It had been suffocated.

—The marriage law of Pennsylvania is undergoing change. A simple agreement between a couple in the presence of witnesses has been held to be a legal marriage heretofore, but that sort of thing will be done away with, and the services of a clergyman or magistrate will now be required. For marrying a pair, either of whom is intoxicated, $500 fine and six months' imprisonment will be imposed.

—Over 360 putrid animals seized in the New York markets within a few days! Mr. Samuel Weller's experiences seem to bear on what would have become of this mass of corruption, if told. Said the pieman unto Sam: "Don't mention this 'ere again, but its the seasonin' as does it. I can make a weal a beefsteak or a beefsteak a kidney, or any one on 'em a mutton at a minute's notice, just as the market changes and appetites wary."

—A very singular termination has just been reached in a St. Louis Court in a case where a Mrs. Kerrigan, having been injured by being run over by a car of the St. Louis Railroad company, and dying of her injuries, her husband sued the company, claiming a large amount of damages for the loss of his better half. During the progress of the trial in Judge Moody's Court, on Saturday, it was proved that at the time of her death Mrs. Kerrigan had a husband besides the plaintiff—that, in fact, the Plaintiff was not her legal husband, and therefore not entitled to damages for her loss. Verdict for the defendent.

—The Great Barrington Courier says: "There are now living in good health in Monterey an aged couple—Mr. James Freeman and his wife—whose united ages are 171 years, Mr. Freeman being 88 and his wife 83 years old. They have been married 67 years, and have resided where they now are for the last 58 years. Mr. Freeman has voted the democratic ticket at every state and national election since his majority, and since he was five years old has not had a single fit of sickness. Who of us, with our wives, shall, like this aged couple, live to see 16 presidents of the United States inaugurated and serve their term of office?

The New York Express learns of a recent case of infanticide, almost too horrible to record. The name of the criminal, from policy, is kept secret at present. Five days since, a well-dressed man procured a nurse to attend the accouchment of a young woman, and, after the child was born, he threw it into the fire, roasting it to death. He drew a pistol and threatened to shoot the nurse if she disclosed the affair. The nurse was then placed in a carriage and driven by a circuitous route to her home, where she has been so ill as to be unable to communicate the facts to her priest until a day or two since. The priest laid the case before the police.

—Further inquiry goes to show that the reputed murderer of the Joyce children, in Massachusetts, is Charles A. Dodge, an adopted son of a worthy couple, Aaron Dodge and wife, of Hamilton, Essex county, Mass. Of his parentage nothing is known, except that he came from an orphan asylum. From Mr. Dodge's account of the boy, he was a kind-hearted, shiftless fellow, who spent most of his youth at sea. Husband and wife are much troubled by the charges against their adopted son, and express the belief that, if he committed the foul deed attributed to him, he must have done it under an aberration of mind. Many papers express the belief that much of the testimony against him is made up by the detectives to get the reward offered.

Foreign Gossip.

—Omnibuses have been introduced in Rome.

—A real estate suit, which has been in the Prussian courts three hundred years, was lately decided.

—A French Marquis, having run through a fortune of $300,000, has enlisted as a private in the French army.

—By the last census of London it appears that there are more Scotchmen there than in Edinburgh, more Irishmen than in Dublin and more Jews than in Palestine.

—M. Henri Martin, the historian, is a candidate for admission to the French Academy. It is urged in opposition to him that he wears his beard long which no academician has ever ventured to do.

—Geo. N. Sanders, recently a rebel agent in Canada, having failed to maintain the rebel Confederacy, is now in London advising the English how to regulate their elections, by means of letters published in the newspapers.

—A weaver in a Scotch manufacturing town has been presented by his fellow-workmen with a silver snuff-box for his pluck and independence in refusing to remove his pig-sty when ordered to do so by the sanitary authorities.

—Some London merchants have institu

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern Michigan.

One of the best fitted Establishments.

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South Side Chicago St, Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS.

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY, WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH, COTTAGE, COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP, WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Side Cases, Stands, Book Cases Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short notice by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pictures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VANTINE,
G. SMITH,

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

TECUMSEH, - - MICH A

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions

I keep the largest and best assortment of

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS,
FRUITS,
SALT
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,
&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had eleven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the business. If you dont believe it, ask your neighbors where they get their Groceries and where they buy them the

CHEAPEST.

Try me and judge for yourselves.

A JAMES

Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the HERALD.

The PEOPLE OF TECUMSEH!

WE HAIL,

But do not conceal, the fact that

GOULD & WALDO

Have just opened a first class

Drug & Grocery Store,

Where will be kept constantly on hand a choice supply of

Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Dye Stuffs, Domestic Dyes, Patent Medicines, Family Groceries, Kerosene Oil, and

in fact everything usually kept in

Similar Establishments,

Where they are prepared and bound to sell from ten to fifty per cent. lower than can be sold elsewhere in Southern Michigan.

STORE 1 DOOR EAST OF A. James and opposite the Post Office.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY PREPARED. Liberal discount to Physicians. 793

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the

Nicest, Best and Strongest,

WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS,

and in fact everything in his line from a baby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition. So call and leave your orders.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Prices

---

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co are now prepared to present to the public, every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPH ART,

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and elegance to the figure India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite

in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices.

and a general assortment, of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

S. C. STACY,

RESIDENT AGENT,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government,

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.

n790lysmp

LAST CHANCE

FOR ACTIVE AGENTS TO MAKE MONEY!

JUST PUBLISHED,

PEN PICTURES OF THE WAR.

SIX EDITIONS ALREADY GONE.

Apply to

LEDYARD BILL, 75 Fulton St., N. Y.

A. J. HOAG,

Successor to WM. REITERMAN & Co.

WHOLESALE DEALER IN

Ambrotype and Photograph Stock,

235 Summit St. - - Toledo, O.

1866. 1866.

MERRITT, MEEKER & Co

SUCCESSORS TO J. H. WHEELER.

Have just received a large addition to their

STOCK OF GOODS,

And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of

DRY GOODS,

YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Particular attention is called to their stock

of BUFFALO ROBES and LADIES AND GENTS FURS,

which they are now selling

At Cost

We would announce to his numerous friends, that we have secured the services of Wm. VanCamp, and he will take pleasure in waiting upon all.

It is no trouble to show goods; should you wish anything in our line give us a call before purchasing elsewhere and we will do our best to give satisfaction.

GLORIOUS NEWS,

The Confederacy gone up! But

GEORGE HEESEN'S

CLOTHING EMPORIUM

Is in full blast, and has not yet surrendered to young america. I would say to my friends and customers that I have just received a large stock of clothing which were purchased at panic prices, and I will sell them at a very small profit, for they must be sold within ninety days. I

Sell Cassimere Pants at 6 50.

Broadcloth and cassimere coats very cheap, Linen coats cheaper than any other house in town, woolen and Straw

HATS, CAPS!

Linen and Paper Collars,
Neck Ties, Shirts,
Gloves, Hosiery,
Traveling Bags, &c.

It is easily understood that I can sell goods cheaper than my neighbor for I save great expense, been a tailor and having followed the business for the last 17 years I know how work ought to be done.

Please come over on the Canada side for you can buy goods cheaper than you can on the American, for all expense of importing is saved, which amounts to considerable.

Cutting Done at Old Prices.

Those wishing garments made would do well to call on me and have an honest job done.

Geo. Heesen.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New Yisnow opening a new stock of

Groceries, Paints, Oils &c

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago street

---

L. DREW'S NEW HARDWARE!!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass. Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron, and Zinc,

Also the

Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

Real Estate for Sale.

Our old friend John Davenport wishes to dispose of the following property:

60 acres of fine timbered land lying near Franklin Centre.

120 acres of timbered land on Evans Lake.

Saw mill and 20 acres of land near Franklin Centre.

Brick House and 4 acres of land known as the Stitts property in the village of Tecumseh, now occupied by A Hood

House and lot on Logan St known as the Mrs Bissell property.

Also—House and lot of J. E. Merritt Maiden Lane, in the village of Tecumseh.

Terms easy or to suit purchasers. For particulars call on or address the subscriber at Tecumseh, Mich.

JOHN DAVENPORT.

Dated Jan. 18th, 1866.

Have you job printing done at the Herald Office.

Boots are Down!

Shoes are Down!!

BOOTS & SHOES

ARE DOWN!!!

AT HOAG'S

MAMMOTH

SHOE STORE,

AT HOAG'S MAMMOTH,
AT HOAG'S MAMMOTH,

Don't pay War prices to men that tell you that Boots & Shoes are no cheaper.

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!!

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!!!

AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE
AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE
AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE.

Having made extensive purchases at greatly reduced rates he has marked down his entire stock to correspond.

Call and examine—compare prices, and save money by buying at Hoag's.

Repairing done promptly—prices reduced.

E. H. HOAG.

Tecumseh, March 27th, 1866.

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartnership in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE AND FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions, Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected stock of

Crockery and Glass-Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

C. H. ADAM & CO.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct 2tf TECUMSEH, MICH.

---

18 Pronunciemento. 65.

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see

How well we can do For them.

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd est Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholesale or Retail,
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
Fine Midlings, B. WFour,
Ship Stuffs, B. w. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE.

They will always also usually find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE,

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL,

Corn In the Ear and Shelled.

A good assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantable Lumber.

Wm. HAYDEN

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee s.s —At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian on Monday the 12th day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six

Present, Robert R. Beecher. Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Stephen E Cole deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Osmond Tower praying that the administrator of said estate may be required and directed by said court to deed to him certain lands of said deceased for reasons in said petition stated

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday, the 14th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for six successive weeks previous to said day of hearing

ROBERT R. BEECHER,
Judge of Probate.

(A true Copy.) 750w4

Dissolution.

The co-partnership heretofore existing under the name of Curtis & McCowen is this day dissolved by mutual consent. All persons indebted to said firm are requested to settle without delay

GEORGE CURTIS,
WM. McCOWEN,

Tecumseh, March 5th 1866.

The undersigned have this date formed a co-partnership under the firm and name of Curtis & Parsons, for the purpose of continuing the Hardware Business, at the place lately occupied by Curtis & McCowan.

GEORGE CURTIS,
WM. A PARSONS,

Tecumseh, March 5th, 1866. n798w4

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

GREAT CENTRAL.

United States Mail Route.

THREE EXPRESS TRAINS leave Windsor (opposite Detroit) daily for the East, on the arrival of Trains of Michigan Central. Detroit and Milwaukee, and Michigan Southern Railways from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati and all points West North West and South West.

This is the only route via Niagara Falls and suspension Bridge, and is the direct route to Buffalo, New York, Boston, London, Paris, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Prescott, Ogdensburgh, Montreal, Quebec and Portland.

Passenger Cars are furnished with Patent ventilators.

Luxurious Sleeping Cars attached to all night trains, and Smoking Cars to all day trains.

United States Currency taken at par for through fares, sleeping Car berths and meals at Refreshment Saloons

CHARLES MCCABE,
Western Passenger Agent, Detroit.

THOS SWINYARD, General Manager, Hamilton, C. W.
JAS CHARLTON, General Agent, Hamilton, C W

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS.

is the place to get good grinding done I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING.

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Wheat

Mill Feed of all kinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Bills of hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shall endeavor to do as good work, and even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL

IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor, show room the same 8 doors east of A. Hood & Co's. clothing store.

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Neary, and Bridget Neary, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March, A D. 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber 'M' of Mortgages, on folios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] two, on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village, (now city) of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid. Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriet A. Bradbury on the twenty first day of March, A D. 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 17th day of February, A D 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, which said mortgage, was afterwards, to wit: on the eighth day of February, A D. 1866 duly assigned by said Harriet A Bradbury to Addison J Comstock, which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money, and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents. [$573.12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty fifth day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage

ADDISON J COMSTOCK,
Assignee of said mortgage.

M. N. HALSEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb 21, 1866.

HALL'S

Vegetable Sicilian

HAIR RENEWER,

As the name indicates, not only RENEWS the growth of the hair when thin and falling off, but positively renews the color to its original shade when it is turning gray or white, whether caused by disease, grief or old age.

It will certainly do what is claimed for it, a fact to which hundreds, nay thousands, who have used it, are ready and willing to testify Where one bottle is fairly used, in any community, its reputation "spreads like wild fire," and is the best advertisement and recommendation we desire. In the Eastern States, where the "RENEWER" originated, the young ladies use it as a hair dressing; it is found on the toilet tables of young men, (also at their barbers), while older men and women who desire a Renewer and Restorative for their grey locks and bald heads will not be without this article, which gives in every instance, entire satisfaction.

CAUTION.

Don't let any druggist or dealer urge upon you a different article, as there is no preparation in the world like this, Beware of any article purporting to be the same.

Try HALL'S HAIR RENEWER according to Directions, and you will use no other.

If not sold at druggists in your town, a trial bottle will be sent you by express, upon receipt of one dollar by mail, thus giving you an opportunity at once of testing its excellent qualities.

Orders for trial bottles must be addressed to

C. A. COOK, Chicago.

Gen'l Agent for Northwestern States.

R. P. HALL & CO., Proprietors, Nashua, N. H.

Sold at WHOLESALE in Chicago, by FULLER, FINCH & FULLER, BURNHAMS & VAN SCHAACK, LORD & SMITH, SMITH & DWYER, J. H. REED & CO. CHAS. G. SMITH, DIETZSCH, BLOCKI & CO., H. SCOVIL, W. D. HARRIS & CO., POST & BADEAU, and by druggists and dealers generally.

What is the Matter!

The Fact is the new firm of

SLAYTON TINDALL & Co.

are selling

FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT

By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff And all the people are rushing for it. Come on we have a large stock of such wheat on hand yet, also

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,
CORN MEAL,
PLASTER,
WATER LIME,
CLOVER SEED,
TIMOTHY SEED,
CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF

Grain and Seeds!!

SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO.

Tecumseh, Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.

Published for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supplying at the same time the means of Self-Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a post-paid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, may be had of the author

NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Brooklyn,

n790lysmp Kings Co., N.Y.

Estrays.

Two red Steers one year old past were taken up by the subscriber on the 6th, of November last. The end of the right ear of each is cut off The left ear of each is notched. The owner of said Steers is requested to prove ownership, pay charges and take them away.

PENNER PALMER.

Dated Macon, January 25th, 1866.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at

A. JAMES

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVI. NO. 46. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 5, 1866. WHOLE NO. 800.

G. T. KETCHAM'S
BOOK STORE,
Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.
(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)
DEALER IN
CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER,
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.
—o—
I will sell any of the above goods as
Cheap or Cheaper
than any other dealer in the country, and
WARRANT
all goods sold as good as recommended.
—o—
CASH FOR RAGS!
—o—
Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.
J. D. Robbins.
TECUMSEH, - - - - - - - MICHIGAN.

NEW SPRING GOODS.

The undersigned is just receiving a well selected and choice stock of
FAMILY GROCERIES;
consisting in part of the following articles:
SUGARS, TEAS, COFFEES, SPICE, PEPPER, GINGER, BUTTER, CHEESE, LARD, FRUITS, SALT, TOBACCO, WOOD WILLOW AND STONE WARE, PORK, HAMS, POTATOES, AND numerous other articles not necessary to mention.
Having purcased the store on the north side of Chicago street, in this village, formerly occupied by Deuel & Weatherhead and having had some experience in former years, by strict attention to business,
Reasonable Prices
AND Honorable Dealing, I hope to merit a share of the public patronronage. All goods warranted to give good satisfaction in every case My motto is Small Profits and Quick Sales.
and above all honorable dealing.
The public are most respectfully solicited to call and examine my stock of Groceries before purchasing elsewhere.
J. S. HENDRYX.

D. NOTEMAN, M. D.
Practical Physician, for the treatment of Chronic Diseases, will visit Tecumseh the 1st & 2d of Every Month,
for Consultation with patients. Cancers and Scrofulus Tumors removed without the use of the knife. Bronchitis, Catarrh, and Incipient Consumption cured in three to five months. Liver Complaint, Dispepsia, and Constipation cured in 2 to 4 months. Piles Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration and diseases of the Genital Organs yield readily to his treatment. Prolepsus Utur he is master of. Charges reasonable according to ability to pay: the really poor will be treated grates. He will be at Comstock & Noteman's Drug Store, Adrian, the last week in each month. Residence on Budling Street. All letters with stamp enclosed will receive prompt attention. For further particulars (See Circulars.

Tecumseh Union School!
C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.
THE SPRING TERM of this institution will open April 9th, 1866, and continue twelve weeks
Scholars will be received at any time and placed in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.
CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE
on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

☞ Subscribe for the HERALD.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.
Express Freight,	6:15 A. M
Mail and Express,	1:15 P. M.
GOING NORTH.
Mail and Express,	9:28 A. M.
Accommodation,	6:38 P. M.

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S,
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh. Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND,
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD C. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich,

ALFRED JAMES,
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT,
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilets, &c.
Chicao St: Tecumseh, Mich.

P. N. CURTIS,
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER,
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Faints &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

GOULD & WALDO,
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St, - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN B. WOOD.
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER,
Attorney's, Councellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT,
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & McCOWEN,
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St, Tecumseh, Mich:

EDWARD H. HOAG,
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EMLAY & COURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harnass and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich,

HORACE BREWER,
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mach.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS,
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

O. G. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and worker in Jewelry.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. C. SATTERTHWAITE,
Insurance Agent and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT.
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS,
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich,

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL,
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE,
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St - - Tecumseh, Mich

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St. Opposite P. Office.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT,
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR L. BARNES,
Physician & Surgeon,
Special attention given to office consultation. Office with Dr. Hause, Dentist. Residence two doors north of the M. E. church.

The Tecumseh Herald.
C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.
(One inch of column constitutes a square,)

	1 wk	3 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$ 2.00	$ 6.00	$ 7.50	$10.00
2 Squares	1.75	3.50	8.00	12.00	16 00
3 Squares	2 75	5.00	11.00	16 00	20.00
¼ Column	5.00	9.00	12.00	18.00	25.00
½ Column	7.50	12.00	18.00	25.00	36.00
Column	12.00	15.00	20.00	35.00	60.00

☞ No advertisement considered less than one square Transient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted at $3.50 per year.
☞ Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

☞ We will take wood, butter, lard, eggs, potatoes, and all kinds of farm produce, on subscription for the "HERALD." So bring it along.

To Our Friends.

You will confer a favor on us by soliciting the Judge of Probate to publish Probate Notices in the HERALD, and you will also find it convenience to yourselves to have the advertisements in the paper you receive.

☞ John Larkin, of Ridgeway, has been appointed a Deputy Sheriff.

☞ Buy your Teas at Gould & Waldo's Drug Store.

☞ If you want Wall Paper go to J D. Robbins, and see his splendid assortment.

☞ The old saying is that there is a time for everything. Judging from appearances this must be the time for mud.

☞ Mr G. Gillespie has sold out his interest in the Exchange, to a Mr. Fish of Adrian.

DIED.—In Detroit, of charge of climate, PELEG H. child of his mother, leaving a large circle of friends and a "bereaved traveling companion" to mourn his untimely end.

☞ Sherman B. Terry, of Ridgeway sold his farm on Tuesday last for $4,000 to Joshua Waring, Mr. W. having sold his farm to Justus Lowe.

☞ Cotton Goods are very much cheaper. So are Boots & Shoes at Hong's Buy a pair of Congress Gaiters or Balmorals of him and save enough to buy a nice calico frock.

☞ Any one wishing to purchase a first class turning lathe are requested to call at this office. We have one to sell at a great bargain.

☞ Mr. Charles Goole of Macon, had the cords of his leg severed just above the heel by an accidental blow from an axe in the hands of a friend a few days since. It made a fearful gash.

☞ W. H. Waring has just received a large stock of millinery goods, which he is selling at greatly reduced prices.—Bill a fine fellow, understands the wants of this community and has made his purchases accordingly.

☞ Among the new things in town we notice that Merritt, Meeker & Co, have a new sign, and are daily receiving large invoices of new goods which they are bound to sell very cheap. Save money by calling at their store.

NOTICE.—The members of the Tecumseh driving club will meet at my office, on Saturday evening the 9th. inst., to arrange a programme for the coming season. ABE. PELHAM, Secretary.

☞ Nothing unusual—just like him!—Robbins has the largest stock of Wall Paper ever brought to town—every piece selected from spring styles. Speaking of wall paper reminds us that he has the best window fixture for curtains—a new thing—go and see them.

☞ The Universalist Society have recently purcased a fine Cottage Organ of the Estey pattern for the use of their choir. It is a beautiful toned instrument with two stops and sub-bass, and cost $190. It will be a great addition to their choir.

☞ Heesan & Nyland are fixing up the West Store in the Union Hall Block, putting in a new front and giving it a thorough overhauling, which they intend to make one of the finest stores in the village. It will be a great improvement to the Block and to the business portion of the place west of the railroad.

☞ C. H. Adams has gone east to purchase a stock of new goods. When he returns go and see his selections.

ELECTION.

The following is a statement of the votes cast, together with the majorities, gained at the township meeting for this township:

Owing to the inclemency of the weather only a light vote was polled, and but little enthusiasm was manifested.

		maj.
Supervisor.—A. D. Hall, rep.	240
J. S. Kies dem.	318	78
Clerk.—E. A. Tribou, rep.	240
Charles Burridge, dem.	320	80
Justice.—S C. LeBaron, rep.	238
S. C. Stacy, dem.	323	85
Treasurer.—C. D. Fisher, rep.	244
D Keyes, dem.	316	72
Commiss.—W. V. Wimple, rep	249
R. Keyser, dem.	312	63
Inspector.—C. B. Thomas, rep.	249
D. McNair, dem.	312	63
Constables.—C. Bidwell. rep.	267
S. H. Niblack, dem.	316	49
L. B. Addis, rep.	236
J. C. Burroughs, dem,	301	65
C. H. Conklin, rep.	248
E. F. Muir, dem.	306	58
L. F. Stevens, rep	244
W. S. Plumb, dem.	313	69

The following is a list of overseers of highways for the ensuing year, for the various road districts within the township.

Dist. No. 2. Robert McCook.
3. Wm. R. Bartlett.
4. Charles Brooks.
5. A. P. Halladay.
6. David Brooks.
7. Aaron Brooks.
8. David Service.
9. William Silvers.
10. Wm A. Hall.
11. James Bush.
12 R. B Gillespie jr.
13. Frederic Horton.
14. Carrol Roberts.
15. Philip Sisson.
16. John V Goheen.
17. John W. Gillespie.
18. James Nobles.
19. George Duryee.
20 J. N. Depuy.
21. Jehiel Davidson.
22. Simeon Davidson.
23. Charles Blood.
24. Henry H. Keyser.
25 James Updike.
26. L. D. Dewey.
27. G. W. Stacy.
28. Elliott Gray.
29. Able Wood.
30. Phillip S Depuy.
31. Rufus Keyser.
32. John Fisher.
33. Samuel Bryant.
34. Willson Mathews.
35. Peter S. Waldron.
36. James Cobb.

MACON.—The election on Monday passed off quietly, not more than a two thirds vote being polled. Entire Republican ticket elected. Supervisor—Horace Gray. Clerk—G R. Palmer. Treas.—G. W. Burdett.

RAISIN.—The republicans of Raisin, elected their entire ticket. Supervisor.—Jacob Walton; Clerk.—Woolston Comfort; Treas.—H. E. Wilson.

RIDGEWAY.—The town meeting in Ridgeway on Monday last, resulted in the election of Jas. C. Freer, Supervisor; John F. Temple, Clerk; John Britton, Treasurer; Republicans. The balance of the offices was carried by the Democrats.

In Franklin the whole Republican ticket was elected by a large majority.

In Cambridge the Democrats elected their entire ticket with one exception.

Union School Exhibition.

The Exhibition given by the scholars of the Union School last Thursday evening passed off very finely, giving universal satisfaction. They all performed their parts very creditably indeed without a single failure, a rather unusual occurrence in school exhibitions Where all did so well it is useless to particularize, still among those who deserve more than a passing notice, we would mention an original Declamation by F. M. Bell, two Declamations by Charles Cook and Eugene Norcross, a comic piece by A. D. Stacy, and a recitation by Miss Nellie Beers. The allegory at the close of the exercises was a beautiful thing and was very creditably executed, adding very materially to the interest of the occasion. The music by the Tecumseh String Band was excellent. The audience was a very large and attentive one, the hall being densely crowded, and many even went away unable to obtain admission. The gross receipts amounted to about sixty dollars.

☞ R. C. Moore's new and cheap goods are arriving by the car-load. Go and see them. Perry and Jimmy will give you good bargains.

Spring Styles of Prints, DeLaines and Dry Goods, purchased since the great depression in prices, for sale cheap at Tribou & Bidwell Bros.

Donation Party.

The friends of the Rev. Mr. Donaldson assembled at the house of S. B. Terry, Esq., in Ridgeway, on Wednesday evening, the 28th. ult., and made up the snug little purse of $175, and presented it to the reverend gentleman.

After partaking of supper, which was prepared by the committee, and listening to some very nice music by Miss Terry, Miss Darling, Miss Hall, and Miss Osborne, G. R. Palmer was called upon and he presented the purse, addressing Mr. Donaldson substiantially as follows:

"SIR:—The very pleasant though unexpected duty of presenting you, upon behalf of the company present, with this purse containing $175, falls upon me, and after looking over this audience I shall not be charged with any affectation of modesty, when I say I regret that I cannot bring to the discharge of that duty more ability. It has been said that the favor of Princes and the applause of Senates sink into absolute nothingness in comparison with the approving conscience of a life devoted to the good of mankind. We predict for you that approving conscience. We regard with grateful sensibility, the calling to which you have devoted your life. Morality is the base upon which rests the greatness of nations. Upon this depends the eternal existence of every soul. Without morality the mightiest must fall. In this own free land of ours, free now in fact, but hitherto only in name, whose torn and battle rent banner blooms with unwonted victory, and tolerated immorality has cost the nation its best blood. For the greatness we claim, the freedom and independence we enjoy in this land to-day, much is due to the inflexible zeal of the American minister. Long has he labored against injustice and oppression, ingratiating into the institutions of the country that sentiment of Christianity which constitutes the imperisable happiness of this people. In disengaging the rebellious hand that had laid its weight upon the liberty of our government, mighty indeed has been the ministry; along the march and upon the battle-field have they been found ministering unto the wants of the soldier. In the pulpit at home they have arduously toiled for the cause of liberty, invoking upon our country, our armies and our rulers, the blessing of Him whose ear is never deaf to the supplications of justice. Your labors, sir, in our community have been remarkably prolific of good. You will accept this as but a faint expression of our appreciation of you as a minister and citizen, together with our best wishes for your health and happiness. May the Invisible Hand ever sustain you."

Mr. Donaldson, in accepting the purse, responded in an appropriate and happy manner. Many thanks are due to Mr. Mrs. and Miss Terry for their exceedingly pleasant entertainment of the company.

BY REQUEST OF COM.

The Detroit Daily Post

Hon. Carl Schurz is to be the editor in chief. The subscription price of the Post will be—Daily $10 per year; Tri-weekly $5 per year; Weekly, $2 per year. The following is an extract from the prospectus:

"The paper will be a firm advocate of the rights of man, and of justice to all classes of society. In the discussion of questions at present agitating the country, it will act with fairness and in good faith. It will be on the side of those who now endeavor to bring about an early settlement of our difficulties by securing the results of the war beyond peradventure, and by strict fidelity to our national engagements. It will keep step with the progressive movements of the times. It will be true to the best interest of the State, and strive to promote the development of American labor in all its branches.

"Arragements have been made to furnish the public with a complete supply of news, and the co-operation of able writers has been secured for the discussion of public questions. Special attention will be given to home matteas. The most earnest endeavors will be used to render the paper worthy of the cause it will advocate, and of the community it will represent."

Sabbath School Concerts.

The Union Sabbath School Concert was held in the Methodist Church last Sunday afternoon, and was well attended. Remarks were made by the different clergymen present and recitations by the different classes, the whole interspersed with singing by the Sunday School children. In the evening of the same day the Universalist Sunday School held a concert at their Church Every teacher and scholar in the school recited a verse from the Bible containing the word Gospel, and two little girls recited some very pretty pieces af poetry. The singing, under the lead of Prof. Leland, was unusually fine. Many of the scholars had attended his singing class and by their performance that evening they proved conclusively that their time and money had not been thrown away.

April.

'Tis a month before the month of May,
And the Spring comes slowly up the way;
Soon reviving plants and flowers,
Anew shall deck the plains,
The woods shall hear the voice of Spring,
And flourish green again,

Juvenile Concert.

Seldom have we enjoyed so rich a musical treat, all things considered; as was furnished to the citizens of Tecumseh on the evening of the 28th, ult., by Prof. E. D. Leland's juvenile singing class. This class, consisted of about one hundred and twenty pupils, their ages ranging from little girls of six and seven, up to young ladies; only a few of whom had ever received any musical instruction, until they became pupils of Prof. Leland. And yet, in a course of only fourteen lessons, he has succeeded in imparting to them the rudiments of a musical education, so that they will take up and read with surprising accuracy, any piece of plain Church music placed before them. This of itself, proves his adaptedness, to the work in which he is engaged.

But in addition to this, the singing of his class at the Concert, proves him to be an excellent and successful teacher of the art of singing. We have seldom attended a Concert of adult singers, where the enunciation was as distinct, and where the singing was in such exact time. We occupied a little space in the extreme rear end of the crowded hall, and yet we could understand almost every word they sung; a compliment, by the way, which we cannot honestly pay but few of our Church choirs, although composed of adult singers with years of training and experience. The singing was in such exact time, that those one hundred and twenty voices seemed consolidated into one. And in most of the choruses, the time was really their own, as they were not even guided by the voice of the Professor.

We think the gem of the evening, and that which seemed most effectually to captivate the audience, was "The true Patriot;" although the opening piece, "Glory to God in the highest," was equal to the best of our church music, and sung in a style of excellence which would do credit to our best drilled choirs.

Among the comic pieces, the one entitled "Johny Shmoker," sung and acted by some fifteen of the smallest boys in the class, brought down the house.

The evening's entertainment closed, with two beautiful Tableaux. The first, entitled "The flower of the family," exhibited a flour barrel, which collapsed and fell into ruins on the cover being lifted; when out of the ruins, there appeared a little girl dressed in white and covered with flowers, herself the sweetest flower of all, throwing kisses at the audience. Then followed "The Pyramid beauty," consisting of a pyramid of sixty girls all dressed in white, reaching from the floor to the cornice of the room, and flanked on each side by a column of the older girls extending to the corners of the rostrum.

In closing our notice, we would say that those of our citizens who failed to attended the Concert, missed a rich treat. We are pleased to learn that Prof. Leland has concluded to continue his Juvenile class through another term of twelve lessons; for the success which has attended his past efforts in that direction, proves conclusively that he is well fitted for the business in which he is engaged. His thoroughness in rudimental drill, is laying the foundation for independent and reliable choir singers, the benefits of which will be apparent in all our Churches a few years hence; when these boys and girls thus trained, shall constitute our choirs, and lead in the musical exercises of the Sanctuary.

☞ "Mistakes will happen,"—When we mentioned that J. H. Wheeler had bought the stock of goods owned by A. Hood & Co. we made a slight mistake but we think we are right when we tell our patrons that A. Hood & Co. are receiving the largest stock of Ready made Clothing and Gents Furnishing Goods ever brought west of Buffalo, which they are bound to sell at prices that will be sure to please all. Call and see their stock of Spring goods, and we think you will agree with us.

☞ During the year 1865 the expenditures of 72 New York insurance Companies exceeded their receipts. The wonder is, not that two New York companies have failed by the dozen. The cause of this is low rates and bad risks. If cheap insurance is desired there are companies who profess to furnish it. If real, solid, substancial, wholesome insurance is sought, a proper equivilent must be paid therefor, and such the Old Phœnix of Hartford can and does furnish, which during the year 1865 was dispensed to forty seven thousand policy holders Those wishing to insure should go and get "The Genuine article" of ☞ Persons having nervous headache constipation of the bowels or dyspepsia can find a remedy at the Drug store of Dr. P. N. Curtis. This medicine is prepared from a prescription of one of the best Practical Physicians in the State of Michigan and has been long used with great success in his private practice. This is no Patent Medicine but is prepared by P. N. Curtis.
S. C. Stacy, Ins. Ag't.

☞ We understand James E. Merritt has leased the Usborn Block and is about opening a Hotel. Capt. Merritt is an old hand at the business, and we anticipate a good thing in this line, under the best of management.

☞ How to make a Berlony sassage—carefully prepared by Ike Billings, from the original recipee now in the possession of the family of the Duke of Catfish:

Take an eel skin and stuff it with ground cat; seesin it with Scotch snuff and persimmin ile; lay it on a hogpen to dri, and then hang it up bi the tale in a Dutch grocery for three months for the flies to give it the traidmarks, then it is ready for use, and kan bee cut up into rite lengths and sold for police clubs.

☞ Herrick Allen's Gold Medal Saleratus is as healthy as the purest flour; will prove a great saving in that article: it is peculiarly adapted to benefit weak stomachs and dyspeptic persons; is much more healthy and economical than baking powders, and greatly preferred to soda to use with cream tartar. Grocers may say they have as good. They are mistaken. It is the best in the world.—Try it. Most of the grocers have it. Have the Gold Medal or none.

Tecumseh Market.

April 5th, 1866.

White wheat	$1 50 a $1 75
Red do	75 a 1 75
Beans	75 a 1 00
Corn	40
Clover seed	4 50
Apples green	1 25
Butter per pound	30
Cheese " "	18
Hams " "	15
Lard " "	12
Eggs per doz	12

☞ The next term of the Union School opens on Monday April 9th, and will continue twelve weeks.

Miss Lewis former Preceptress, has resigned, and her place will be filled by Miss Bezack of Manchester, a graduate of the Albion College.

How REFRESHING are the April showers they nourish into life the opening buds and renew all vegitation. But yet it is a time of the year when there is a great danger of taking cold from exposier to the weather.—Coe's Cough Balsam is excellent for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, and all Pulmonary Complaints.
While Coe's Dyspepsia cuse is invaluable in Dyspepsia, indigestion, and all diseases of the stomach and bowels.

☞ The scholars of the Union School presented Miss Lewis, the preceptress, on Thursday last, with a silver card basket and two silver goblets, also Col. L. Saviers, the teacher of Book-Keeping, with a large Dictionary.

New Spring Goods at Bidwell's.

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Mich., April 5, 1866.

Adams Willie	Allen Thomas D.
Angel Edwin	Brewler H.
Culverson R.	Gordon Mrs A. J.
Seymour Mary	Stocking Elisha
Turner Milton	Wright Miss Anna
Waren Miss Eliza	Woodford Miss H.

W. ANDERSON, P. M.

Quarterly Statement

Of the National Bank of Tecumseh, April 2nd, 1866.

RESOURCES,

Notes and Bills Discounted,	35322 31
Furniture and Fixtures,	1737 06
Expenses,	585 70
Due from other Banks	6636.52
Over drafts	818.41
U S Bonds	53300 00
Legal Tenders	17823 81
	$116223.75

LIABILITIES,

Capital Stock	50000.00
Circulation	45000 00
Deposits	15414 91
Profit and Loss	6808.84
	$116223.75

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF LENAWEE.—I, Lucius Lilley, Cashier, of the National Bank of Tecumseh, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.
LUCIUS LILLEY, Cashier.
Sworn and subscribed before me this 3d day of April, 1866.
Benjamin L. Baxter, Notary Public.

NORTHERN LENAWEE
INSURANCE
AGENCY.
S. C. STACY,
LIFE, FIRE AND ACCIDENT
INSURANCE AGENT.
Represents the following well known and reliable insurance companies.

Manhattan Life, N. Y.	$2,000,000.
Phœnix Life Hartford,	800,000.
Accident Ins. Co, Columbus,	1,000,000.
Phœnix Fire Hartford,	1,006.000.
Underwriters N. Y.	3,000,000.
Lumbermans, Chicago	300,000.

Total capital represented, over 8,100,000.
☞ Good Insurance is a nessity.
☞ And the best is the cheapest.

G R. PALMER, Attorney at Law and Notary Public, Lake Ridge, M
Particular attention paid to collections in any part of Michigan Is prepared to draw and execute Deeds, Mortgages, Wills, &c.

☞ Mutilated Postage currency wanted at G. T. Ketchams, in exchange for goods. Rush in the Rags, no matter how badly they are torn, they will be taken at their full value as long as the denomination of the peice can be told.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

General Intelligence.

The population of Nebraska is given as 55,000.

Spain has recognized the Governments of Central America.

There is no truth in the report that Gen. Grant is about to make a European tour.

Alexander H. Stephens arrived in Richmond on Saturday night, on his way to Washington.

It is announced that all the colored troops still in the service have been ordered to be mustered out.

Senator Trumbull has introduced a bill to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at Quincy.

Buchanan, the Indianapolis wife murderer, has been sentenced to nineteen years in the Jeffersonville State prison.

The New York Evening Post states that the American Schooner Elma, had been captured in the China sea by their piratical junks.

The flying squadron of which is to be fitted out for a cruise on the British North American ports, will, it is said, consist of seven vessels.

Advices from China and Japan report that piracy is increasing to such an extent in the China Sea as to seriously endanger commerce.

The cattle plague is on the decrease so far as the number of new cases is concerned, but there is a large increase in the number of animals killed.

Sixty persons have been arrested in Hayti, charged with being implicated in the late revolution, and it is thought at least twenty of them will be executed.

Intelligence from South America is to the 3d. The defeat of the Argentine vanguard by 3,000 Paraguyans is confirmed. The loss on each side was about 600.

Official proclamation has been made of the ratification of the treaty between the United States and the chiefs of the Minnecongin band of Dakota or Sioux Indians.

Two two great oil pipes from Reidville to Titusville, a distance of nine and a quarter miles, with a fall of 311 feet, have commenced delivery with a capacity of 2,000 barrels a day.

The Brazilians are very desirous of a immigration to their country, and are holding meetings to forward the matter. Great inducements are offered to American farmers to remove thither.

Great excitement has been created at Victoria, British America, by the report of the discovery of a ledge of well-defined gold-bearing rock of great richness, fifty feet in width, within fifteen miles of the town.

We have reports of two fights in Mexico. In the first instance, the Imperials defeated the Liberals, but they afterwards attacked the French, killed one hundred, among them the Baron De Briar, commander of the French.

The Missouri Democrat of the 27th says: "Within two weeks from to-day, two thousand passengers, principally miners, and three thousand tons of freight, will have left this port on steamboats for the Montana and Idaho mines.

Ex-Gen. L. C. Baker, convicted of false imprisonment in the case of Mrs. Cobb, the pardon broker, was sentenced, March 28, by the Criminal Court at Washington, to a fine of one dollar and costs. The other indictments against him were withdrawn.

At New York the construction of the immense iron-clad ram, Dunderberg, fast progresses toward completion, her engines and turrets being now located, and the last piece of heavy iron work, the smoke-stack landed safely on the upper deck. It is expected that she will make the trial trip in July.

The alleged principal in the robbery of $1,500,000 from the office of Mr. R. L. Lord, in New York, has been apprehended, and there is a strong probability of the stolen property being recovered. The supposed thief was captured at Newburyport, Mass. It has not yet transpired whether the missing bonds have been recovered.

Gov. McTavish was in St. Paul a few days ago, en route for England. He reports that large nuggets of gold have been found near Fort Garry, on the lands of the Hudson's Bay Company. The discovery was kept secret for some time, but finally became known, and there was much excitement in consequence.

In the United States Court, in session at Keokuk, the suit against Le Grand Boyington, of Iowa City, for a violation of the Revenue Law in refusing to fix stamps to various deeds and bonds, judgment went by default—Boyington making no defence. Fines amounting to $1,300 and costs, in all about $1,700, were assessed against him.

The Supreme Court of Wisconsin, March 28, announced its decision in the case of Gillespie vs. Palmer, which involves the question whether the State Constitution was amended at the election of 1847 so as to allow colored persons to vote. The order of the lower Court, deciding negatively, was reversed, with costs,—the Court being unanimous.

A Massachusetts Yankee has invented a cotton picking machine which it is claimed, will do the work of twenty men, gathering cotton as clean as the most expert hand could do it, the machine ranging from six inches to six feet, and picking it only from the balls which are ripe and well open, leaving the undeveloped pods unimpaired, and not harming the plant.

Early in the week two young girls of respectable Milwaukee families foolishly yielded to the romantic idea of borrowing their brothers' Sunday suits and looking about town to see how their beaux spend their time. In this guise a friendly policeman discovered them at an early stage of the freak and took them home in great distress of mind, and under a promise to "punt" no more for such notoriety.

The Miantonomah, the fleetest, most powerful and most seaworthy of our iron-clads, has been ordered by the Navy Department to get ready for a cruise off the fishing banks of New Foundland, to protect the interests of American fishermen. It is reported that she will look after the Fenian expeditions, which are known to be fitting out at certain points on the Atlantic coast, to prevent any violation of neutrality laws.

Hon. Solomon Foot, United States Senator from Vermont, and one of the oldest and most prominent members of the Senate, died at Washington this morning, in the sixty-fourth year of his age. He was a Representative in Congress for two terms, and in 1850 was elected to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. Samuel S. Phelps. He was re-elected in 1856, and again in 1862, and at the time of his death was in the fourth year of his last term.

The bill introduced in the House by Mr. Grinnell to establish a manufacturing division in the Treasury Department, has for its general design the acquisition and diffusion of information relative to manufacturers and to aid Congress in its legislation. It provides for the appointment of a Commissioner, with a salary of $3,000 per annum, whose duty it shall be to collect, digest and arrange information in regard to manufactures, consumption of raw materials, &c., and the general course of trade with foreign countries. He is to be allowed three clerks, but no expense is to be incurred unless approved by the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Great American Prize Concert of Lemon, Briggs & Co., came off on the 28th as advertised at Smith & Nixon's Hall, Chicago, and a part of the drawings. The meeting was rather boisterous, and the general impression was not favorable to the framers of the enterprise. A young girl was selected to draw, and the first ticket, No. 62,350 drew the $10,000 greenback prize, the second, No. 22,295, drew the $5,000 U. S. Bonds; the third, No. 87,967, drew the house and lot near Chicago, valued at $5,000. The following drew pianos valued at $500 each: Nos. 62,815, 73,-153, 45,901, 26,356, 21,837, 86,953, 9,510, 51,248, 32,093. The rest of the leading prizes will be published next week.

Information in the State Department shows that the entire rebel strength east of the Mississippi, on the 4th of February, 1865, was 102,000, and west of the Mississippi 50,000. Lee's army was 64,000. Hood lost 29,500 in the Tennessee campaign. In the testimony before the Committee of the rebel Senate, Gen. Lee on Jan. 24, 1865, said the Confederacy had not troops enough to last till midsummer. By freeing and arming the negroes, they might carry on the war a year longer. The sentiment of the army was almost unanimous for peace. He was willing to take any position that might be assigned him, but no human power could save the cause. The best solution of their difficulty was peace on Mr. Stephen's plan.

Mr. George W. Blunt publishes a statement in which he says that Mr. Lincoln was, from the 4th of March, 1861, pressed very hard by some around him to abandon Fort Sumter without a struggle. This he declined to do; but, about the 1st of April, he sent for Mr. Summers, who was attending the Virginia Convention. Mr. Baldwin went in the place of Mr. Summers. The President proposed that, if the Virginia Convention would adjourn without any further action, he would abandon Sumter. Mr. Baldwin replied, "This not enough. You must give up Fort Sumter and Fort Pickens, and agree not to enforce the revenue laws in the Southern States." The President bade him good morning, and sent for Mr. G. V. Fox, and desired him to fit out an expedition to relieve the fort, the details of which have been published by Mr. Fox.

The Criminal Court commenced the trial of Gen. L. C. Baker on the 26th, on a charge of robbery preferred by Mrs. Lucy Cobb, well known as a pardon-broker. The specific charge made by Mrs. Cobb is, that Gen. Baker, while she was under constraint from him, robbed her of $2,000, which she had received from a man named Hine or Howell for procuring him a pardon. This is the second trial of the accused. It will be remembered, in connection with this case, that he having been in January tried and convicted for her false imprisonment, there remains to be tried the charge of the false imprisonment of Joseph R. Cobb. The accused demurred to the indictment, pleading former conviction. This point was argued, and the Judge said he would give his decision the following day, which he did, dismissing the case upon the ground urged.

Political Matters.

The Wisconsin Assembly has endorsed Congress by a vote of 50 to 8.

The California Senate have passed resolutions endorsing Congress by a vote of 36 to 41.

The President, on the 23d, expressed his disapproval of Mr. Stewart's proposition for a universal amnesty on condition of the establishment of free suffrage.

President Johnson has refused to accept the resignation of E. S. Cleveland, Postmaster at Hartford, Conn., who is opposed to the Union candidate for Governor because of his opposition to the President's policy of reconstruction.

The President has finally vetoed the Civil Rights Bill, which proposed to confer citizenship, without the right to vote, upon all persons born within the United States, excepting Indians not taxed. A strong effort will be made to pass the bill by a two-thirds vote over the veto.

A committee from New Jersey waited upon the President, March 28, and presented him with a series of resolutions passed at a recent meeting in Hudson county. In a few remarks made by Mr. Johnson on the occasion, he said: "My line of policy is, I think, unmistakable, and I have advanced too far in life to make any retrograde movement."

Fenian Movements.

The British Government has ordered the opening and examination of all letters from the United States to parties in Great Britain suspected of Fenianism.

A New York paper says, that James Stephens, Head Centre of the Fenian Brotherhood, has certainly escaped from Ireland. It was disputed at first, but is now generally conceded.

The Fenian Head Centre at Kingston, C. W., has been delivering a speech in which he claims there are 40,000 Canadian Fenians. The affair shows that freedom of speech is not gone in Canada yet.

A speculator, well known in Washington as having made large purchases of arms, munitions, &c., sold, among other articles, to the Fenian leader, Gen. Sweeny, a week ago on Wednesday, twenty thousand army revolvers and seventeen thousand forage caps.

There was a panic at Montreal on the 22d inst., over a report that 10,000 Fenians were moving for the Isle Aux-Noix, on the St Lawrence. Military preparations throughout Canada continue. The Canadian military authorities threaten that if the Fenians attempt to cross at Ogdensburgh, they will open the guns of the fort at Prescott upon that city.

Southern News.

The rice crop in South Carolina is very encouraging.

There are now twelve daily papers in Mississippi to two before the war.

The Southern Express Company was recently robbed at Brazos, Texas, of $75,000.

The Houston Telegraph says that in a few years the sheep interest of Texas will not be second even to cotton.

Cave Johnson, Postmaster General under Polk, is a candidate for the State Senate, to fill a vacancy.

Gen. D. H. Hill, of the late Confederate army, is about to start a magazine, to be called The Land we Love.

The Gee trial at Raleigh, N. C., is developing a monster the very twin of Wirz, and richly deserving to share his fate.

There was a riot recently in New Orleans occasioned by struggles for a piece of the rope with which a murderer was hanged.

The oldest stove in the United States warms the halls of Virginia's capitol at Richmond. It was made in England and sent over in 1770.

The Texas Convention have sent a Commissioner to Washington to present definitely the condition of the inhabitants along the Mexican frontier.

Property in Galveston is rising rapidly in value. At a succession sale not long ago, a lot and improvements which were purchased in 1855 for $4,000 sold for $13,500.

A duel took place at daylight on the 26th, near Lexington, Ky, between Joseph Desha and Alex. Kimbrough. At the second fire Kimbrough was shot through both hips.

A national party is organizing in Texas, with Unionists for leaders.....Ex-Gov. E. M. Pierce, an unconditional Union man, is announced as a candidate for Governor of the State.

Gen. Robert Ransom, lately of the rebel army, has been chosen Marshal of North Carolina, with a salary of $2,000 a year. He had not been pardoned at the time of his election.

Business in New Orleans must be prosperous. The papers publish triple or quadruple sheets nearly every day; and a late number of the Picayune had eighteen pages, the largest ever published in America as one of the regular editions of a daily paper.

Bradley T. Johnson, who left Maryland at the outbreak of the rebellion, and subsequently returned during the invasion of the State as a General commanding a rebel brigade, was arrested on the 26th by U. S. Marshal Bonifant, on a warrant issued on an indictment for treason found by the grand jury in August last.

A very learned and compassionate Judge in Texas, on passing sentence upon John Jones, who had been convicted of murder, concluded his remarks as follows:—"The fact is, Jones, that the Court did not intend to order you to be executed before next spring, but the weather is very cold, and our jail, unfortunately, is in a very bad condition; much of the glass in the windows is broken; the chimneys are in such a dilapidated state that no fire can be made to render your apartments comfortable; besides, owing to the great number of prisoners, not more than one blanket can be allowed to each man; to sleep sound and comfortable, therefore, is out of the question. In consideration of these circumstances, and wishing to lessen your sufferings as much as possible, the Court, in the exercise of its humane compassion, hereby orders you to be executed to-morrow morning, as soon after breakfast as may be convenient to the sheriff and agreeable to you."

Incidents and Accidents.

A livery stable at Davenport, Iowa, was struck by lightning on the night of the 19th inst., and burned. Loss $2,400.

Heller & Hoffman's chair factory in St. Louis, one of the largest in the West, was destroyed by fire, March 28. Loss about $35,000.

Joseph C. Smith, 22 years of age, committed suicide in Brooklyn, March 27, in consequence of the loss of all his money through a swindler.

The house of Mr. Findley, five miles from Perth, C. W., was destroyed by fire on the 19th, and three children and a young woman were burned to death.

On last Tuesday two men suspected of robbery were taken from their beds in Milan, Mo., and hung. They proved to be innocent men—one of whom was an Ohio soldier.

Christian Berger, the murderer of Miss Anna Watts, near Philadelphia, who was to be executed on the 27th of April, was found dead in his cell on the 29th. His death is ascribed to apoplexy.

At Paris, Ky., March 28, a negro was hung by the citizens for violating the person of a white girl of tender age. After committing the outrage, he disembowelled her and then cut her throat.

In New York, March 28, Wm. B. Oddie, an artist, was accidently shot dead by an intimate friend, named John Ladew, while carelessly handling a pistol. The latter has given himself into custody.

An attempt was made on the night of the 26th to burn the freight depot of the Indianapolis and Cincinnati Railway Company at Indianapolis. A discharged employee, named Dennis Langley, was arrested in the act of firing a mass of combustible matter which he had placed under the building.

An accident occurred about three miles south of Indianapolis, on the 24th, by which Mr. Eleazer Dunbar, an old and respected citizen, accidentally shot himself while hunting pigeons, and died in a few minutes. Mr. Dunbar was climbing a fence, when the top rail broke, and his gun was discharged, the entire load passing through his neck and the back of his head.

It has been known for some time that a systematic robbery of freight trains was going on near Carbondale, Ill. The Central road sent detectives thither, who recently arrested Dr. Hadley, his wife and son, and W. R. McMuir, his son-in-law. Upon searching the premises a large lot of stolen property was found. The parties arrested were all placed in confinement.

A destructive fire occurred at Lebanon, Ind., on the night of March 27. Six business buildings south of the Court-house were entirely destroyed. The buildings were occupied by three dry-goods stores two groceries, the postoffice, the Patriot printing office, Masonic Hall, a drug store, a doctor shop, a boot and shoe store, two saddlery shops, two barber shops, and a cigar shop. The total loss is estimated at $50,000, and there is about $15,000 insurance.

An attempt was made at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., on the 26th, to rob Robert H. Hendershot, well known as the "drummer boy of the Rappahannock," of the beautiful silver drum presented him by the Tribune Association. The attempt was unsuccessful, though several pistol shots were exchanged between Hendershot and the robbers. The affair occurred in Eastman Business College, of which Hendershot is a member.

The village of Mukwanago, Wis., has just been the scene of two appalling accidents. On the 23d, while the wife of Daniel Crowley went to call him to dinner, his house caught fire and burned to the ground. A child six weeks old was burned to death. On the same evening, about four hundred people was witnessing a school exhibition in the second story of the village school-house, when the floor gave way, and about half the audience were precipitated to the first floor, which also gave way and let them down into the cellar. Strange to say, no lives were lost, though many were badly bruised, and Frederick Patterson had a leg broken. Those left above were taken down through the windows with the aid of ropes and ladders, and those in the cellar helped up in the same way.

Financial Items.

Corlies & Co., of New York, announce that they will pay, in gold, the interest on the $30,000,000 Mexican loan, due April 1.

The United States Supreme Court at Washington has just decided that shares in National Banks are liable to taxation by State authorities.

The following statement shows the amount of currency of all descriptions issued during the last month: gold notes, $5,000,000; fractional currency, $166,301; legal tender notes, 600,000 old issue; currency, 19,182. Total, $7,482,812.

The knaves who robbed the safe of Mr. Rufus R. Lord in New York, of $1,500,000 in United States and other stocks, will not realize much booty, as Mr. Lord had taken the precaution to register most of his United States stocks, and to fill up to his own order his United States 7-30 per cent Treasury bonds.

During the last year of the war the Post-office Department earned a net profit of over $860,000 from the Mail service in the loyal States. The first three months that the mail service was resumed at the South, there was a loss to the whole country of over $20,000. As the mail routes are being extended over the South, the deficiency rapidly increases.

Congressional Doings.

In the Senate, on the 26th, the question was argued whether Senator Stockton had the right to vote in his own case. On a test vote, although the question did not come directly before the Senate, the vote stood 18 yeas to 22 nays.

In the House, on the 26th, a bill was offered by Mr. Stevens for the construction of a Government railroad for military and postal purposes, from Cumberland, Md, to Pittsburg, Pa. It was discussed at some length, and referred to the special Committee on Military and Postal Railroads..... The bill amending the postal laws was taken up and several objectionable provisions stricken out, among others the section providing for the sale of stamped envelopes at the value of the stamps, the section repealing the law for advertising undelivered letters, and other features. The bill was then passed. A synopsis of its provisions will be found in our report of House proceedings.....The testimony in the Brooks-Dodge contested election case was reported from the committee, and final action will be taken in the case on Tuesday.....Two members were added to the special Committee on Military and Postal Railroads, it having been discovered that a majority of the Committee, as at present organized, are not in favor of the construction of a Government railroad from Washington to New York.

The proceedings in both Houses of Congress on the 29th were confined to passing resolutions of respect, and attending the funeral ceremonies of Senator Foot of Vermont. Both Houses adjourned to Monday.

"Prepare for Cholera!"

Under this head the Relief Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago have issued the following circular, copies of which are for distribution. The directions herein contained are well worthy of being heeded:

There is every reason to expect that the cholera will be here by the middle of May or the first of June. Its victims will be principally:

1st. Those who use intoxicating drinks.

2d. Those who are not cleanly in their persons and houses.

3d. Those who are irregular in their habits, keeping unseasonable hours, eating irregularly, &c.

4th. Those living in filthy, dirty localities.

TO PREPARE FOR CHOLERA.

1st. Be scrupulously clean in person, bathing the body daily, and keeping the entire clothing clean.

2d. Clean thoroughly, and whitewash your rooms, outhouses and premises generally.

3d. See that no swill, garbage, or other refuse matter is thrown either on your lot, street or alley. Clean up thoroughly your whole premises, in doors and out, and set an example of cleanliness to your neighbors.

4th. If your landlord refuses or neglects to do his duty in putting his houses and lots in proper order, report him to the Health Officer or our Visitor in your district.

5th. Abstain from all intoxicating drinks, ale and beer as well as whiskey.

6th. Use simple, wholesome food, thoroughly cooked, avoiding stale vegetables or tainted meats. Do not give way to fear or panic. This will increase your danger. Cholera will in most cases yield to skilful treatment if taken in the first stages. Watch for the first symtom, which is usually a diarrhea. Do not neglect it for a single hour, however mild it may be. Delays are dangerous. Avoid all nostrums and advertised "cholera medicines," (most of them will do more harm than good.) Apply at once to some reliable physician. None of our physicians will refuse their services at such a time to the poorest.

Lastly, but first in importance, prepare for it by giving your heart to the Lord Jesus Christ. Then you will be fitted for either life or death. You may not fall by cholera this summer. But death is certain to all and may come to you soon. If you are a Christian you are safe; if not, you are unsafe, and cannot be at peace. "Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh."

CURRENT ITEMS.

Domestic Paragraphs.

—An Ohio maimed soldier writes legibly while holding his pen in his mouth.

—A steam mill is to be built at Cottage Hill, Dupage county, Ill., the motive power to be furnished by one of Danforth's new generators.

—The Salt Lake Vedette says that Brigham Young has given orders that every Mormon must have a plurality of wives or be cast out of the church.

—The Circleville (Ohio) Union says that in one school district in that country at aral hunt 2,208 rats were killed in ten days. Every man in the district participated.

—The Illinois and Michigan Canal will be opened from La Salle to Joliet on and after the first of day April, weather permitting. Boats will be allowed to draw four feet six inches.

—The census of Boston was completed on the 17th. It shows an increase in the population of the city during the past five years of 14,362, which is not so large as the growth of previous half-decades. The total population is 192,264.

—The Strong divorce suit is likely to be soon before the New York courts again. The counsel for the lady have applied for a stay of proceedings, and also for alimony during the time of their progress. No decision has yet been rendered on the matter.

—A young man was arrested at the Second Baptist Church, in New London, Conn., one Sunday evening, recently, just as he had concluded a most eloquent exhortation entreating sinners to flee from the wrath to come. His offence consisted in stealing an overcoat.

—The New York papers state that "trichinosis" has made its appearance in several pork-packing establishments in that city; that eight pork butchers have consequently left the business, and that pork has decreased in price four cents a pound within the last week.

—A couple in Oxford county, Me., lived together until their family included thirteen children. A libel for divorce was brought and granted, and the parties separated. After being apart two years they again met, and two weeks ago they were again joined in marriage —A spicy paper and a bold one is the Salt Lake Vedette, a late issue of which pitches into polygamy, and asserts itself the champion of the bruised spirits and the broken hearts of women of Utah. It is jubilant over the prospect of the early prostration of Mormonism.

—In September last the safe of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad in Pittsburg, was robbed of about $30,000 in greenbacks and bonds. After six months' search the thief has been arrested. He was a messenger in the employ of the company. All but a few thousands, which he had spent in riotous living, have been restored.

—Swindlers now make tours of the New York kitchens, pursuading the cooks to invest in bogus Fenian bonds. One girl had promised them $5, when they overreached themselves by the remark that the "girls next door had given $15." "Sure the girls next door are nagurs," said Bridget, and started for the office; but the impostors escaped.

—The Springfield (Mass.) Republican says that the proposed fortnightly magazine, "Town and Country," which has been announced for this spring, with R. H. Stoddard as editor, has been given up, and that before the project was abandoned the projectors offered Oliver Wendell Holmes $5,000 to write a serial story for it, but the offer was declined.

—Gloucester is probably the largest fishing town in the world. It has no other business relations; its commerce has departed, its agriculture and manufactures are next to nothing, and yet its fisheries are so extensive that it supports a resident population of 12,000 people, and, if we include the men who are employed at the port, it would number 15,000.

—The contract for building the harbor at Michigan City has been let out to Messrs. Wilson, Booth, Rowe & Co., of Rockville, Canada West. The plan adopted is substantially that originally designed by the Government, but materially improved, extended, and strengthened.

The present contract does not provide for the entire work, as but $200,000 of the $300,000 required for that purpose has been subscribed. The work contracted is to be completed by Jan. 1, 1867.

—The Fulton Democrat says: An old lady living near Bernadotte, named Eady, managed very adroitly, last week, to prevent her husband from buying the Bernadotte flouring mills. The old gentleman had foolishly hidden his money (5,200) in a wheat bin, and having bargained for the mill went to get it, but found it missing. His grief was frantic, but availed nothing in the recovery of this treasure. He hurriedly sent to Maj. Wagoner an offer of $1,000 reward if he would get the money for him; but before any action in the premises commenced, the mills were seriously damaged by the flood, and Mrs. Eady's apprehensions about the proposed bad trade having vanished, the money came to light, not a dollar missing. And this is one instance where a woman's curiosity and meddling did some good.

Foreign Gossip.

—The population of Ireland decreased 94,846, and the number of inhabited homes decreased 16,277, last year.

—A rich Russian prince in Paris has married a poor but pretty seamstress. The fine world is much moved by the event.

—Baron Hottinguer, the banker, who for many years had been largely engaged in American trade, has died in Paris. He left a fortune of twelve million dollars to be divided among three children.

—Queen Victoria held her first court on the 9th. Mr. and Mrs. Adams were present, and the latter presented to the Queen Mrs. Alward, wife of the Assistant Secretary of Legation, and Mrs. Montgomery Ritchie of New York.

—The Scotch will never marry on a Saturday, if it can be avoided. December is the favorite mrarying month, and the last day of that month, (unless it falls on Saturday,) sees the celebration of one-twentieth of all the weddings of the year.

—A silver wedding that will be worth witnessing will be observed on the 28th of April, at St. Petersburg. It is that of Czar Alexander and the Czarina. They were married on the 28th of April, 1841. The Czar's birthday falls on the 29th of April, when he will be 48 years old.

—Havana letters say a Cuban gentleman named Francisco de San Juan, who died recently, left his entire estate, valued at $100,000, to a Spanish female school, with a provision in his will that if the Spanish Government shall in any manner interfere with the legacy, it shall revert to the United States.

—A workmen's dining hall has been established in Dublin, on the principle of supplying wholesome food at cost prices. It accommodates nearly two thousand persons daily, and the price of a good dinner of soup, beef, potatoes and pudding, is only four and a half pence. The waiters and dish-washers are ladies of rank and wealth, who have volunteered to give their services to the institution until it becomes self-supporting.

—In the cellar of Baron Rothschild's mansion, Rue Laffitte, Paris, are twenty-four thousand bottles of wine, comprising every species existing at the beginning of this century, from the Lachryma Christi, which the first visitor to Naples has tasted, to the purest of the sweet wines of the Cape; from the common wines of the Macon vineyards to the rare vintages of Medoc. The value of this collection amounts to about fifty thousand dollars.

—We learn by the London Lancet that at Hedersleben, in Prussian Saxony, upward of ninety deaths have occurred from trichina, while the number of persons attacked has been several hundred. All this havoc has been caused by one trichinous pig! The butcher, having recognized the abnormal appearance of the pig, had carefully disguised it by mixing it with the meat of two healthy pigs, or added it in small pieces to larger joints of pork to make up weight. He made this confession shortly before his death, which was caused by trichiniasis contracted from his own meat. His wife also died of the disease.

Personal and Literary.

CHAS. KINGSLEY, is preparing a History of England for the b'hoys.

A LONDON paper announces by the author of "Prometheus Bound," Prometheus Half-Bound, to be followed Prometheus in cloth with gilt edges.

THURLOW WEED BROWN, the noted temperance advocate and editor of the Wisconsin Chief, lies in a critical condition at his home in Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin.

JOHN P. HALE, United States Minister at Madrid, has written to prominent members of Congress urging an increase of his salary, which is now $12,000 in gold.

M. Victor Hugo writes to a French paper to say that he has read statements that he is blind and can neither read nor write and wishes to contradict them.

The Hon. Anson Burlingame, Minister to China, and the Hon. R. B. VanValkenburg, Minister to Japan, will spend a few weeks in California before leaving for their respective charges.

ENGLISH papers say that Generals Grant and Sherman will make the tour of Europe in May next. They think the Union Generals will be warmly welcomed, although the rebel Lee would be more lionized.

COLONEL Robert Carr, a Scotchman, who was an errand boy in the printing office of Benjamin Franklin at Philadelphia, and subsequently learned the art of printing, died in Philadelphia on Thursday, aged 83.

A letter from Florence Nightingale, dated at London, February 23, speaks of her health as even more delicate than it has been. She says:—"I am always and entirely a prisoner to my room, and latterly to one position."

PRINCE ALFRED, Queen Victoria's second son, now a young fellow of 21 has just been promoted to be a Captain in the British navy, and Parliament has granted him an allowance of $75,000 a year. He is talked of as the Viceroy of the projected British American Confederacy.

Two companies of volunteers from St. Andrews and Grenville, left Montreal for Ottawa recently. Col. De Hertel dropped dead while addressing them before their departure from St. Andrews. He had just said, "I have been fifty-two years in the service, and my heart is in it yet," when he died.

THE laws of caste are so rigidly enforced in England that even Charles Dickens is not invited to what its members choose to call "the best society." He is manfully independent of "Milords," however, and when he was recently requested by the Queen to take part in some amateur dramatic performance, he "declined to go as a performer where he could not as a private gentleman."

JEFF. DAVIS' health continues good, and he keeps up the same habits to which he has been accustomed for some time past, including his daily outdoor exercise. He reads much and keeps well posted on passing events. An officer who recently undertook to draw him out on Fenianism met with complete failure. Though great portion of his time disposed to be social and conversational, he is frequently seized with fits of sourness and reticence. He sel lom alludes to his trial.

A writer in "The Nation" gives the following photographs of French celebrities whom he has met:

—Rosa Bonheur.—A face not expressive of genius. Features somewhat hard and fixed. Expression bright but unsympathetic.

—Alphonse Karr.—Broad, high head, and large nose and ears. The close-cropped hair and long pointed beard make him look like an author of the time of Sir Walter Raleigh.

—Guizot.—Very old and very grave. A large, intellectual brow. Thin grey hair. Eyes not bright; the muscles beneath them swollen and baggy. Thin, fixed mouth. No beard.

—Lamartine.—As complete a contrast to the last as can well be. A high but retreating brow. Vain, supercilious eyes. Nose long and pointed. Mouth rigid, yet weak. No beard or moustache.

—Madame George Sand.—Long, oval face; large dark eyes with dropping lids. Face expressing a combination of a dreamy, voluptuous temperament, great benevolence and intellectual genius.

—Rossini.—The veteran composer has grown old. His features do not express what they should. The full, dark eyes, however, still seem to flash with sparkling melody.

—Alexander Dumas, Pere.—A face whose features have an unmistakable basis of the negro in them. Bald, bright, jovial, somewhat coarse, and decidedly earthly. Indications of a tough epidermis and a strong constitution. Plenty of self-esteem and vanity.

—Thiers.—A head and figure which perfectly recall the English Punch—or rather a cross between Punch and a Yankee clergyman. Face very compact. Short grey hair; no beard. Wears spectacles, through which he looks intensely senatorial and dignified.

—Theodore Rousseau.—A face full of benevolence, honesty, child-like enthusiasm, and modesty. Seems like a man you can hardly help liking. The brow is high, and expressive of calm, quiet thought and calm communion with nature. Dark eyes; wears a large black moustache and beard.

—Victor Hugo.—A magnificent head—the brow piled up square and compact, where all the intellectual organs seem well and evenly developed. Immense ideality, above which the moral faculties arch the head into a well-rounded dome. The hair grey and cut close to the head. Eyes not large, but deep and intense with a soft fire. Large ears. Nose in harmony with the rest of the face, which inclines to squareness. Mouth full of determination, yet expressive of feeling. Thick moustache and very short grey beard.

BRYANT & STRATTON'S CHICAGO BUSINESS UNIVERSITY.—This is the largest and most complete Institution of the kind in the country. There are seventeen Professors employed at the present time, and more Students in attendance than at any other Business College in the United States. It is decidedly the model institution of the land. Address Bryant & Stratton, Chicago, Ill., for college paper, circulars, &c.

MR. MORRELL—Dear Sir: I have been troubled with a very bad Sore Leg, caused by a wound received from a sickle-guard of a mowing machine. It became a large running sore, which I could not heal. I bought some of your Electro-Magnetic Fluid, to which I applied it, and in a week it healed, and was perfectly well. My wife used it also for a badly sprained ankle. A speedy cure was the result.

A. STEINHAUS,
Ex-Deputy Sheriff of Cook County,
1050 Milwaukee Avenue.

DR. W. T. McLELLAND, of Penn., say they have prescribed Dr. Swain's Bourbon Bitters as tonic in low fevers of fever, and have found it better than any other available stimulant.

THE MARKETS.

New York, March 31
COTTON—Middling	.40	@ .41
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	8.25	@ 8.60
WHEAT—No. 1. Spring	1.60	@ 1.65
BARLEY		@ 1.15
CORN—Sound Western	.74	@ .75
OATS—Dull	.54	@ .55
PETROLEUM—Crude	.26	@ .26¼
PORK—Mess new	25.00	@ 25.87
BEEF HAMS	36.00	@ 37.00
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	14.00	@ 18.00
DRY GOODS—Merrimace	.20	@ .21
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville		@ .37½
Brown Sheetings—Amoskeag		@ .25
Delaines—Manchester		@ .22½
Denims—Manchester	.40	@ —
GOLD—1.28¼.

Chicago, April 2, 1866.
BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$80.00	@ $100.00
BEEVES—Stock to prime	3.75	@ 6.75
BRANS	.75	@ 1.25
BRAN	7.25	@ 7.75
BUTTER	.20	@ .38
CHEESE—Western	.17	@ .19
COFFEE—Rio	.27	@ .29
Java	.40	@ .41
EGGS	.15	@ .17
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	6.00	@ 7.00
Malaga Lemons	7.00	@ 7.50
Dried N. Y. Apples	.15	@ .15¾
Peaches	.18	@ .25
Raisins, M. R.	4.65	@ 4.75
FLOUR—Winter White	9.00	@ 13.00
Spring Extra	7.15	@ 7.75
Rye per bbl		@ 4.30
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	10.00	@ 10.25
Whitefish, " " "	8.00	@ 8.25
Codfish, per hundred	9.00	@ 11.00
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.42	@ .42½
Oats " "		@ .25
Rye	.47	@ .49
Wheat—Spring No. 1	1.26	@ 1.28
Barley—sample		@ .35
HIGHWINES	2.20	@ 2.21
HOGS—Dressed Middling to prime	10.25	@ 10.75
Live	9.20	@ 9.40
LARD	.18	@ .18¼
PORK—Mess	25.50	@ —
POTATOES	.60	@ .65
SHEEP—First and second class	4.50	@ 5.75
SUGARS—Cuba	.12¾	@ .11¼
New York Refined	.17½	@ .17½
White A	.16½	@ .16½
White B	.15½	@ .15½
Yellow C	.14½	@ .14½
SEEDS—Timothy, ⅝ bag	3.25	@ 3.50
Clover	5.25	@ 5.75
SALT—Fine	2.25	@ 2.50
Coarse		@ 2.00

DR. SWAIN'S

BOURBON BITTERS.

A Healthy Tonic, Gentle Stimulant, and Unequaled Morning Appetizer, prepared in

RIPE OLD BOURBON WHISKEY

FREE FROM GRAIN OIL,

With Flowers, Buds and Barks of the Highest Medicinal Virtue.

By increasing the appetite, assisting digestion, regulating the bowels, and giving tone to the system, they impart strength and vigor to the body and cheerfulness to the mind.

☞ If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters, have him send for them.

☞ Remember the name, and take no other.

For sale by leading Druggists and Grocers everywhere.

C. H. SWAIN,

Proprietor, 34 S. Water St., Chicago.

MORRELL'S Electro MAGNETIC FLUID

The Greatest Chemical Wonder of the Age.

ELECTRO MAGNETISM IN A LIQUID.

FOR QUICKLY RELIEVING PAIN

IT HAS NO EQUAL!

USED ONLY AS A BATHING LOTION.

It is a Certain and Speedy Cure for:

Rheumatism, Stiff Limbs, Neuralgia, Nervous Headache, Palsy, Spasms, Cramps, Swelled Joints, Fits, Sore Eyes, Scrofula, White Swellings, Burns, Bruises, Salt Rheum, Female Weak Back, Spinal Affections, Prolapsus, and other Female Diseases.

SEE CIRCULARS—To be had at all Druggists. PRICE, ONE DOLLAR PER BOTTLE. Prepared and sold by the Morrell Electro Magnetic Fluid Co., No. 166 Randolph Street, Chicago, Ill. Wm. D. Harris & Co., Wholesale Druggists, 87 South Water street, will supply the trade at manufacturer's rates.

SPRING TRADE!

Cash House!

Immense Stock

N. F. MERRILL,

Wholesale Dealer in

Kerosene Lamps.
Kerosene Lanterns.
Kerosene Chandeliers
Kerosene Chimneys.
Kerosene Burners.
Kerosene Wicks.
Kerosene Cooking Lamps

and Coal Oil Goods of every Description

Hotel & Table Glassware.

A local Agent wanted in every town in the North West, for

Fish's new Patent Kerosene Cooking Lamps

Orders from the trade solicited and promptly filled

71 and 73 Randolph Street, Chicago

P. O. Box 3506.

The "Columbian" Gin.

This Gin is the purest and very best article ever offered to the public. It is the distillation of the best American malt spirits and Italian juniper berries. Those who find a diuretic stimulant necessary, should never be without it.

The proprietors of the Columbian Gin do not undertake to advertise it as a quack medicine; yet they feel guaranteed in saying that for those requiring a pure liquor, no better can be procured.

Imported gins, etc., are now nearly out of the question, on account of the extraordinary high import duties imposed upon them—which are always payable in gold—so that a home-made article, equal in all respects to any imported, should receive the attention of consumers.

Doctor Blaney, the well-known chemist of Chicago says: "It's the very best article, both as to quality and strength of flavor, that I have ever tested."

For sale by all respectable druggists and liquor

THE CIVIL RIGHTS BILL.

The President's Veto Message.

To the Senate of the United States: I regret that the bill which passed both Houses of Congress, entitled "An Act to protect all persons in the United States in their civil rights, and to furnish the means of their vindication," contains provisions which I cannot approve consistently with my sense of duty to the whole people, and my obligations to the Constitution of the United States. I am therefore constrained to return it to the Senate—the House in which it originated—with my objections to its becoming a law.

By the first section of the bill, all persons born in the United States and not subject to any foreign power, excluding Indians not taxed, are declared to be citizens of the United States. This provision comprehends the Chinese of the Pacific States, Indians subject to taxation, the people called Gypsies, as well as the entire race designated as blacks, people of color, negroes, mulattoes, and persons of African blood. Every individual of these races born in the United States, is by the bill made a citizen of the United States. It does not propose to declare or confer any others right of citizenship than Federal citizenship. It does not propose to give these classes any status as citizens of States, except that which may result from their status as citizens of the United States. The power to confer the right of State citizenship is just as exclusively with the several States, as the power to confer the right of Federal citizenship is with Congress. The right of Federal citizenship, thus to be conferred in the several excepted cases before mentioned, is now, for the first time, proposed to be given by law. If, as it is claimed by many, all persons who are native-born are already by virtue of the Constitution, citizens of the United States, the passage of the pending bill, cannot be necessary to make them such. If, on the other hand, such persons are not citizens, as may be assumed from the proposed legislation to make them such, the grave question presents itself whether, where eleven of the thirty-six States are unrepresented in Congress at this time, it is sound policy to make our entire colored population, and all other excepted classes, citizens of the United States. Four millions of them have just emerged from slavery into freedom. Can it be reasonably supposed that they possess the requisite qualifications to entitle them to all the privileges and immunities of citizenship of the United States? Have the people of the several States expressed such a conviction? It may also be asked, whether it is necessary that they should be declared citizens in order that they may be secured in the enjoyment of the civil rights proposed to be conferred by the bill. These rights are, by Federal as well as by State laws secured to all domiciled aliens and foreigners, even before the completion of the process of naturalization; and it may safely be assumed that the same enactments are sufficient to give like protection and benefits to those for whom this bill provides special legislation. Besides, the policy of the Government from its origin to the present time, seems to have been that persons who are strangers to and unfamiliar with our institutions and our our laws, should pass through a certain probation, at the end of which, before allowing the coveted prize they must evince their fitness to receive and to exercise the rights of citizens as contemplated by the Constitution of the United States. The bill, in effect, proposes a discrimination against large numbers of intelligent, worthy, and patriotic foreigners, and in favor of the negro; to whom, after long years of bondage, the avenues of freedom and intelligence have just now been suddenly opened. He must, of necessity, from his previous unfortunate condition of servitude, be less informed as to the nature and character of our institutions than he, who, coming from abroad, has, to some extent at least, familiarized himself with the principles of a government to which he voluntarily intrusts his life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Yet it is now proposed, by a single legislative enactment, to confer the rights of citizens upon all persons of African descent, born within the extended limits of the United States, while persons of foreign birth, who make our land their home, must undergo a probation of five years, and can only then become citizens upon proof that they are of good moral character, attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, and well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same. The first section of the bill also contains an enumeration of the rights to be enjoyed by those classes so made citizens in every State and Territory of the United States. These rights are to make and enforce contracts; to sue parties, and give evidence; to inherit, purchase, lease, sell, hold, and convey real and personal property; and to have full and equal benefit of all laws and proceedings for the security of person and property as is enjoyed by white citizens. So, too, they are made subject to the same punishment, pains and penalties in common with white citizens, and to none others. Thus a perfect equality of the white and colored races is attempted to be fixed by Federal law in every State in the Union, over the vast field of State jurisdiction covered by these enumerated rights. In no one of them can any State exercise any power of discrimination between different races. In the exercise of State policy over matters exclusively affecting the people of each State, it has frequently been thought expedient to discriminate between the two races. By the statutes of some of the States, North as well as South, it is enacted, for instance, that no white person shall intermarry with a negro or mulatto, Chancellor Kent says, speaking of the blacks, that marriages between them and the whites are forbidden in some States where slavery does not exist, and they are prohibited in all the slaveholding States by law; and when not absolutely contrary to law, they are revolting and regarded as an offence against public decorum. I do not say that this bill repeals State laws on the subject of marriage between the two races, for as the whites are forbidden to intermarry with the blacks, the blacks can only make such contracts as the whites themselves are allowed to make, and therefore cannot, under this bill, enter into the marriage contract with the whites. I cite this discrimination, however, as an instance of the State policy as to discrimination, and to inquire whether, if Congress can abrogate all State laws of discrimination between the two races in the matter of real estate, of suits, and of contracts generally, Congress may not also repeal the State laws as to the contract of marriage between the two races. Hitherto, every subject embraced in the enumeration of rights contained in the bill has been considered as exclusively belonging to the States. They all relate to the internal policy and economy of the respective States. They are matters which in each State concern the domestic condition of its people, varying in each according to its own peculiar circumstances, and the safety and well-being of its own citizens. I do not mean to say that upon all these subjects there are not Federal restraints—as, for instance, in the State power of legislation over contracts there is a Federal limitation that no State shall pass a law impairing the obligations of contracts; and as to crimes, that no State shall pass an ex post facto law; and as to money, that no State shall make any thing but gold and silver a legal tender. But where can we find a Federal prohibition against the power of any State to discriminate, as do most of them, between aliens and citizens, between artificial persons, called corporations, and natural persons, in the right to hold real estate? If it be granted that Congress can repeal all State laws discriminating between whites and blacks on the subjects covered by this bill, why, it may be asked, may not Congress repeal in the same way all State laws discriminating between the two races on the subject of suffrage and office? If Congress can declare by law who shall hold lands, who shall testify, who shall have capacity to make a contract, it may be asked when Congress can also by law declare who, without regard to race or color, shall have the right to sit as a juror or as a judge, to hold an office, and finally to vote in any State or Territory of the United States. As respects the Territories, they come within the power of Congress, for as to them the law-making power is the Federal power; but as to the States, no provisions exist vesting in Congress the power to make rules and regulations for them.

The object of the second section of the bill is to afford discriminating protection to colored persons in the full enjoyment of all the rights secured to them by the preceeding section. It declares that any person who, under color of any law, statute, ordinance, regulation, or custom, shall subject, or cause to be subjected any inhabitant of any State or Territory to the deprivation of any right secured or protected by this act, or to different punishment, pains, or penalties, on account of such person having at any time been held in a condition of slavery or involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, or by reason of color or race, than is prescribed for the punishment of white persons, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court. This section seems to be designed to apply to some existing or future law of a State or Territory which may conflict with the provisions of the bill now under consideration. It provides for counteracting such forbidden legislation, by imposing fine and imprisonment upon the legislator who may pass such conflicting laws, or upon the officers or agents who shall put or attempt to put them into execution. It means an official offence—not a common crime, committed against law upon the person or property of the black man. Such an act may deprive the black man of his property, but not of his right to hold property. It is, therefore, assumed that under this section, members of a State Legislature who should vote for laws conflicting with the provisions of the bill, that Judges of the State courts who should render judgments in antagonism with its terms, and that marshals and sheriffs who should, as ministerial officers, execute processes sanctioned by State laws and issued by State judges in execution of their judgments, could be brought before other tribunals, and there subjected to fine and imprisonment for the performance of the duties which such State laws might impose. The legislation thus proposed invades the judicial power of the State. It says to every State Court or Judge, "If you decide that this act is unconstitutional; if you refuse, under the prohibition of a State law, to allow a negro to testify; if you hold that over such a subject matter the State law is paramount, and under color of a State law refuse the exercise of the right to the negro, your error of judgment, however conscientious, shall subject you to fine and imprisonment." I do not apprehend that the conflicting legislation, which the bill seems to contemplate, is so likely to occur as to render it necessary, at this time, to adopt a measure of such doubtful constitutionality.

In the next place, this provision of the bill seems to be unnecessary, as adequate judicial remedies could be adopted to secure the desired end, without invading the immunities of legislators, always important to be preserved in the interest of public liberty; without assailing the independence of the judiciary, always essential to the preservation of individual rights; and without impairing the efficiency of ministerial officers, always necessary for the maintenance of public peace and order. The remedy proposed by this section seems to be in this respect not only anomalous, but unconstitutional. The Constitution guarantees nothing with certainty if it does not insure to the several States the right of making laws in regard to all matters arising within their jurisdiction, subject only to their reconstruction in cases of conflict with the Constitution and constitutional laws of the United States, the latter to be held as the supreme law of the land.

The third section gives the District Courts of the United States exclusive cognizance of all crimes and offences committed against the provisions of this act, and concurrent jurisdiction with the Circuit Courts of the United States of all civil and criminal cases affecting persons who are denied or cannot enforce, in the courts or judicial tribunals of the State or locality where they may be, any of the rights secured to them by the first section. The construction which I have given to the second section, for it makes clear what kind of denial or deprivation of rights secured by the first section was in contemplation. It is a denial or deprivation of such rights in the courts or judicial tribunals of the State. It stands, therefore, clear of doubt that the offence and the penalties provided in the second section are intended for the State Judge, who, in the clear exercise of his functions as a Judge, not acting ministerially but judicially, shall decide contrary to this Federal law. In other words, when a State Judge, acting upon a question involving a conflict between a State law and a Federal law, and bound, according to his own judgment and responsibility, to give an impartial decision between the two, comes to the conclusion that the State law is valid and the Federal law is invalid, he must not follow the dictates of his own judgment at the peril of fine and imprisonment. The legislative department of the Government of the United States thus takes from the judicial department of the States the sacred and exclusive duty of a judicial decision, and converts the State judge into a mere ministerial officer, bound to decide according to the will of Congress. It is clear that in States which deny to persons whose rights are secured by the first section of the bill, any one of those rights, all criminal and civil cases affecting them will, by the provisions of the third section, come under the exclusive cognizance of the Federal tribunals. It follows that if, in any State which denies to a colored person any one of those rights, that person should commit a crime against the laws of the State—murder, or any other crime—all protection and punishment through the Courts of the State are taken away, and he can only be tried and punished in the Federal Courts. How is the criminal to be tried, if the offence is provided for and punished by Federal law? That law, and not the State law, is to govern. It is only when the offence does not happen to be within the purview of Federal law that the Federal Courts are to try and punish him under any other law. Then resort is to be had to the common law, as modified and changed by State legislation, so far as the same is not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the United States; so that over this vast domain of criminal jurisprudence, provided by each State for the protection of its own citizens and for the punishment of all persons who violate its criminal laws, Federal law, wherever it can be made to apply, displaces State law. The question here naturally arises, from what source Congress derives the power to transfer to Federal tribunals certain classes of cases embraced in this section. The Constitution expressly declares that the judicial power of the United States shall extend to all cases in law and equity arising under this Consitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made or which shall be made under their authority; to all cases affecting ambassadors or other public ministers and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more States; between a State and citizens of another State; between citizens of different States; between citizens of the same State claiming land under grants of different States, and between a State, or the citizens thereof, and foreign States, citizens or subjects. Here the judicial power of the United States is expressly set forth and defined, and the act of Sept. 24, 1789, establishing the judicial courts of the United States, in conferring upon the Federal Courts jurisdiction over cases originating in State tribunals, is careful to confine them to the classes enumerated in the above recited clause of the Constitution. This section of the bill undoubtedly comprehends cases and authorizes the exercise of powers that are not, by the Constitution, within the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States. To transfer them to those courts would be an exercise of authority well calculated to excite distrust and alarm on the part of all the States, for the bill applies alike to all of them, as well to those that have not been engaged in rebellion. It may be assumed that this authority is intended to the power granted to Congress by the Constitution, as recently amended, to enforce by appropriate legislation, the article declaring that neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punisment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States or any place subject to their jurisdiction. It cannot, however, be justly claimed that with a view to the enforcement of this article of the Constitution, there is at present any necessity for the exercise of all the powers which this bill confers. Slavery has been abolished, and at present nowhere exists within the jurisdiction of the United States, nor has there been, nor is it likely there will be, any attempts to revive it by the people of the States. However, if any such attempt shall be made, it will then become the duty of the General Government to exercise any and all incidental powers necessary and proper to maintain inviolate this Government law of the freedmen.

The fourth section of this bill provides that officers and agents of the Freedman's Bureau shall be empowered to make arrests, and also that other officers may be specially commissioned for that purpose by the President of the United States. It also authorizes Circuit Courts of the United States, and the Supreme Courts of the Territories, to appoint, without limitation, commissioners who are to be charged with the performance of quasi judicial duties.

The fifth section empowers the Commissioners to be selected by the Court to appoint in writing one or more suitable persons from time to time to execute warrants and other processes provided for by the bill. These numerous officials and agents are made to constitute a sort of police in addition to the military, and are authorized to summon a posse comitatus, and even to call to their aid such portion of the land and naval forces of the United States or of the militia as may be necessary to the performance of the duty with which they are charged. This extraordinary power is to be conferred upon agents irresponsible to the Government or to the people, to whose number the discretion of the Commissioners is the only limit, and in whose hands such authority might be made a terrible engine of wrong, oppression and fraud. The general statutes regulating the land and naval forces of the United States, the militia, and the execution of the laws, are believed to be adequate for any emergency which can occur in time of peace. If it should prove otherwise, Congress can at any time amend those laws in such manner as, while subserving the public welfare, not to jeopardize the rights, interests, and liberties of the people.

The seventh section provides that a fee of $10 shall be paid to each Commissioner in every case brought before him, and a fee of $5 to his deputy or deputies, for each person he or they may arrest and hare before any such a Commissioner, with such other fees as may be deemed reasonable by such Commissioner in General, for performing such other duties as may be required in the premises. All these fees are to be paid out of the Treasury of the United States, whether there is a conviction or not; but in case of conviction they are to be recoverable from the defendant. It seems to me that under the influence of such temptations bad men might convert any law, however beneficial, into an instrument of persecution and fraud.

By the eighth section of the bill the United States courts, which sit only in one place for white citizens, must migrate with the Marshal and District Attorney, and necessarily with the clerk, although he is not mentioned, any part of the district upon the order of the President, and they shall hold court for the purpose of the more speedy arrest and trial of persons charged with a violation of this act, and there the Judge and officers of the Court must remain upon the order of the President for the time therein designated.

The ninth section authorizes the President, or such person as he may empower for the purpose, to employ such part of the land or naval forces of the United States, or of the militia, as shall be necessary to prevent the violation and enforce the due execution of this act. This language seems to imply a permanent military force, that is to be always at hand, and whose only business is to be the enforcement of this measure over the vast region where it is intended to operate.

I do not propose to consider the policy of this bill. To me the details of the bill are fraught with evil. The white race and black race of the South have hitherto lived together under the relation of master and slave, capital owning labor. Now that relation is changed, and as to ownership, capital and labor are divorced. They stand now each master for himself. In this relation, one being necessary to the other, there will be a new adjustment, which both are deeply interested in making harmonious. Each has equal power in settling the terms, and if left to the laws that regulate capital and labor, it is confidentially believed they will satisfactorily work out the problem. Capital, it is true, has more intelligence, but labor is never so ignorant as not to understand its own interests, not to know its own value, and not to see that capital must pay that value. This bill frustrates this adjustment. It intervenes between capital and labor, and attempts to settle questions of political economy through the agency of numerous officials whose interest it will be to ferment discord between the two races, for as the breach widens their employment will continue, and when it is closed their occupation will terminate. In all our history, in all our experience as people living under Federal and State law, no such system as that contemplated by the details of this bill has ever before been proposed or adopted. They establish for the security of the colored race safeguards which go infinitely beyond any that the General Government has ever provided for the white race. In fact, the distinction of race and color is by the bill made to operate in favor of the colored, and against the white race. They interfere with the municipal legislation of the States, with the relations existing exclusively between a State and its citizens, or between inhabitants of the same State, an absorption and assumption of power by the General Government, which if acquiesced in, must sap and destroy our federative system of limited powers, and break down the barriers which preserve the rights of the States. It is another step, or rather stride, toward centralization and the concentration of all legislative powers in the national Government. The tendency of the bill must be to resuscitate the spirit of rebellion, and to arrest the progress of those influences which are more closely drawing around the States the bonds of union and peace.

[illegible] lamented predecessor, [illegible] proclamation of the 1st of January [illegible] ordered and declared that all persons held as slaves within certain States and parts of States therein designated, were and henceforward should be free; and further, that the Executive Government of the United States, including the military and naval authorities thereof, would recognize and maintain the freedom of such persons. This guarantee has been rendered especially obligatory and sacred by the amendment of the Constitution abolishing slavery throughout the United States. I, therefore, fully recognize the obligation to protect and defend that class of our people wherever and wherever it shall become necessary, and to the full extent compatible with the Constitution of the United States. Entertaining these sentiments, it only remains for me to say that I will cheerfully co-operate with Congress in any measure that may be necessary for the preservation of the civil rights of freedmen, as well as those of all classes of persons throughout the United States, by judicial prosess under equal and impartial laws, or conformably with the positions of the Federal Constitution. I now return the bill to the Senate, and regret that in considering the bill and joint resolutions, 42 in number, which have been thus far submitted for my approval, I am compelled to withhold my assent from a second measure that has received the sanction of both Houses of Congress.

(Signed) ANDREW JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 27, 1866.

Bill Arp Addresses a Law School, and Gives his Experience.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Georgia, Feb., 1866.

Messrs. C. C. Cummings and others, Committee: Gentlemen—I have received your kind invitation to address your law skool. In the situation by which I am surrounded, it is impossible for me to go. I wish I could, for I would like to tell you all I know about law, and it wouldent take long. I'm now in the law business myself at this place. We are engaged in manufacturin it by wholesale, and after a while it will be retailed out by the lawyers to anybody that wants it. It's an easy business to make law, though some of the bills introduced are awfully spelt. To-day I saw a bill in which "masheenery" was spelt with two esses and four ease. But the greatest difficulty is understandin' the law after it is made. Among lawyers this difficulty don't seem to lie so much in the head as in the pocket. For five dollars a lawyer can luminize some, and more ackording to pay. But he oughtent to luminize but one side at a time. The first case I ever had in a justice court, I employed old Bob Liggins, who was a sort of self-educated fool. I give him two dollars in advance, and he argued the case, as I thought, on two sides, and was more luminous agin me than for me. I lost the case, and found out afterwards that the defendant had employed Liggins after I did, and gave him five dollars to lose my case. I look upon this as a warning to all clients, to pay big fees and keep your lawyers out of temptation.

My experience in litigation have not been satisfactory. I sued Sugar Black onst for the price of a load of shuks. He said he wanted to buy some refuess, and I agreed to bring him a load of shuks for two dollars. My wagon got broke and he got tired a waiting, and sent out after the shuks himself. When I called on him for the pay, he seemed surprised, and said it had cost him two dollars and a half to have the shuks hauled, and that I jestly owed him a half a dollar. He was bigger than I was, so I swallored my bile and sued him. His lawyers pled a set off for haulin'. He pled that the shuks was unsound; that they were barred by limitations; that they didn't agree with his cow; that he never got any shuks from me. He spoke about an hour, and allodded to me as a swindler about 45 times. The hedeviled jury went out and brought in a verdict agin me for fifty cents, and four dollars for costs of suit. I haint saved nary shuk on my plantation since, and I don't intend to until it gets less expensive. I look upon this as a warnin' to all folks, never to go to law about shuks, or any small circumstance.

The next trouble I had was with a feller who I hired to dig me a well. He was to dig it for twenty dollars, and I was to pay him in meat and meal and sich like. The vagabond kept gettin' along until he got all the pay; but he hadn't dug nary foot in the ground. So I made out my akkount, and sued him as follers, to-wit:

Old John Hanks, to Bill Arp, Dr.
To 1 well you dident dig.....$20

Well, Hanks he hired a cheap lawyer, who rared around extensively and said a heap of funny things at my expense, and finally dismissed my case for what he called its "ridikulum absurdum." I paid those costs and went home a sadder and a wiser man. I pulled down my little cabin and moved it some hundred yards nearer the spring, and I've drunk mity little well water since. I look upon this case as a warnin' to all folks, never to pay for anything until you have got it, especially if it has to be dug.

The next law case I had I gained by myself by the force of circumstances. I bought a man's note that was given for the hire of a nigger boy, Dik. Findin' he would not pay me, I sued him before Square McGinnis, believin' it was such a dead thing that the devil couldent keep me out out of a verdick. The feller's attorney pled failure of consideration, and non est faktum, and ignis fatuis, and infancy, and that the nigger's name wasent Dik but Richard. The old squire was a powerful secesh, and hated the Yankees amazin'. So, after the lawyer had got through his speech and finished his readin' from a book called "Greenleaf," I rose forward to an attitood. 'Stretchin' forth my arm, says I, "Squire McGinnis, I would ask, sur, if this is a time in the history of our afflicted country when federal law books are to be admitted in a southern people's court? Havent we seceded forever from their foul domination? Don't our flag wave over Fort Sumter, and what, sur, have we to do with northern laws? On the very fust page of the gentleman's book, I seed the name of the city of Bosting. Yes, sur, it was written in Bosting, published in Bosting and sold in Bosting, where they don't know no more about the hire of a nigger than an ox knows the man who will tan his hide." I sed some more things that were pinted and patriotick, and closed my argument by handin' the book to the squire. He put on his spectacles, and after lookin' at the book about a minnit, says he:

"Mr. Arp, you can have a judgment, and I hope that henceforth and forever, no lawyer will pressom to come before this honorable court with pisen documents to prove his case. If he do, this court will take it as an insult, and send him to jail."

I look upon this case as a warnin' to all who gamble in law, to hold a good hand and play it well. High justice and patriotism are winnin' trumps.

After this I had a difficulty with a man by the name of Kohen, and I thought I wouldent go to law, but I would arbytrate. I had bought Tom Swiflin's wheat at a dollar a bushel, if he couldent do any better, and if he could do better he was to come back and give me the preference. The scamp went off and sold the wheat to Kohen for a dollar and five cents, and Kohen knowed all about his contract with me.

Me and him like to have fit, and perhaps would if I hadent been puny; but we finally left it all to Josh Billings to arbytrate. Old Josh deliberated on the thing for three days and nights, and finally brought in an award that Kohen should have the wheat and I should have the preference. I hain't submitted any more cases to arbitration since, and my advice to the people is to arbytrate nothin' if your case is honest, for there ain't no judge there to keep one man from tricking the other An honest man don't stand no chance nowhere exsepptin' in a court house with a good lawyer to back him. The motto in this case is never to arbytrate nothin' but a bad case, and take a good lawyer's advice and pay him for it before you do that.

But I got Fretman—I didn't, but my lawyer done it. Fretman was a skool teacher, who had gone round my naborhood with his skool articles, and I put down for Troup and Calhoun to go, and intended to send seven or eight more if he proved himself right. I soon found that the little nullifier warn't believin' in anything and on inquiry I found that Nutmeg was givin' powerful long recesses, and was employin' his time chiefly in carryin' on with a tolerable-sized femail gal that was goin' to him. Troup said he heard the gal squeel hisself one day, and he knowed Fretman was squeezin' of her. "I dident mind our boys squeezin' of the Yankey gals, but I'll be blamed if the Yankeys shall be a squeezin' of ours. So I got mad and took the children away. At the end of the term, Fretman sued me for eighteen dollars, and hired a cheap lawyer to collect it.

Before this time, I had learned some sense about a lawyer, so I hired a good one, and spread my pocket-book down before him and told him to take what would satisfy him. And he tuk. Old Phil Davy was the justice. Marks made the opening speech, to the effect that every professional man ought to be able to illustrate his trade, and he therefore proposed to put Mr. Fretman on the hard, but it agreed with old Phil's notion of "high justice" and "sense of right," and says he: "Mr. Fretman, you will have to spell." Marks then swore him, that he would give true evidence in this case, and that he would spell every word in Daniel Webster's spellin' book correctly, to the best of his knowledge and belief, so help him, &c. I saw that he was tremblin' all over like a cold wet dog.

Says Marks, "Mr. Fretman, spell 'tisick;'" well, he spelt it, putting a ph, and a th, and a gh, and a zh, and I don't know what all, and I thought he was gone up the first pop, but Marks said it was right. He then spelt him right straight alomg on all sorts of big words and little words, and long words and short words, and afterwards, and he knowed 'em all, till finally Marks says: "Now, sur, spell 'ompompynusuk.'" Fretman drawed a long breath, and said it was not in the book. Marks proved it was by an old preacher who was sitting by, and old Phil spoke up with power, and says: "Mr. Fretman, you must spell it, sur." Fretman was a sweatin' like a run-down filly. He took one pass at it, and failed.

"You can come down, sur," said Marks, "you've lost your case." and shure enough, old Phil gave a verdict against him, like a darn.

Marks was a whale in his way. And at that same court he was about to nonsuit a doctor because he didn't have his diplomy, and the doctor begged the court for time to go home after it. He rode several miles and back as hard as he could lick it, and when he handed it over to Marks very triumphantly, Marks says: "Now, sur, you will take the stand and translate this Latin into English, so that the court may understand it." Well, he just caved, for he couldent do it.

He lost his case in two minets, for the old squire said that a doctor who couldn't read his own diplomy, had no more right to practice than a magistrait who couldn't read the license had to join two couple together. This is a warnin' to all professional men to understand their bizness, and the moral of the case is, that a man ought not to squeezin' the gals when anybody else is by him. But I don't want it understood that I'm agin it on proper occasions and in a proper manner. There ain't no squeezin' necessary.

But I must close this brief epistle.

Yours truly, BILL ARP.

The Civil Rights Bill.

The bill which President Johnson just vetoed provides that all persons born in the United States (excluding unnaturalized foreigners and Indians not taxed) are citizens of the United States; and such citizens, of every race and color, shall have the right to make and enforce contracts, to sue, be parties, give evidence, inherit, purchase lease, sell, hold and convey real and personal property, and enjoy full and equal benefit of all laws and proceedings for the security of person and property, and be subject to the same penalties and punishment as white persons. Any person who, under color of law or custom, shall subject any inhabitant of any State or Territory to the deprivation of any of these rights, on account of such person having been a slave, or because of his color or race, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly.

Section three gives to the Federal Courts exclusive jurisdiction over the crimes and offences provided for in the act, and also in civil causes where the parties are denied redress in State Courts. Section four makes it the duty of all Federal officers charged with the execution of the laws and the administration of justice, to institute prosecutions for violations of the rights secured by this act; and the Courts are authorized to increase the number of United States Commissioners whenever the same may be required, so as to secure the more efficient execution of the law.

Section five makes it the duty of the Marshals and Deputy Marshals to obey and execute all warrants and precepts issued under this act; and the Commissioners may, when necessary, appoint persons in their respective counties to execute the processes necessary in the execution of the law.

Section six provides penalties for the obstruction of any officer in the discharge of his duty, and for the rescue of prisoners charged with violations of the act. Section seven fixes the fees of the several officers for duties under this act; and section eight authorizes the President to direct a special session of the District Court in any locality where he may have reason to believe the law is violated. The last section authorizes an appeal to the United States Supreme Court upon any question of law arising in any case under the law.

Buried Alive and Dug Out—A Strange Story.

A volunteer in one of the Connecticut regiments, was in the advance of the grand army of the Potomac, in 1863, was taken sick, died and was buried, your correspondent performing the last sad rites over the remains of his dead comrade. A volley was fired over the grave and the soldier was left to his long sleep. The time passed; the war ended; your correspondent was honorably discharged, and he had forgotten, in the rush of events, his comrade sleeping by the banks of the Rapidan, when the other day, in Hartford, who should appear before him but the same dead and burried soldier. It is not strange that he felt a curious sensation come over him; that he looked at the figure before him without speaking; that he stepped aside when the other advanced to him with outstretched hand. The denouement is thus given:

"Old chum, don't you know me?"

Said I, "Yes, I do! But what in the name of God are you doing here? I helped to bury you once, in Virginia!"

"I know that ssme one buried me, and I always thought that you was one of them, as you were always so kind to me! But you see now," said he, offering his hand to me, "that I am flesh and blood."

I shook hands with him, and he told me that he was in a trance when we buried him; and that he was digging his way out, and had got his head out, when the rebels came along and assisted him. They then sent him to Libby Prison, where they kept him in durance for a year. They then sent him to Georgia, where he remained till the war was ended, when he was released.

The city government of New Orleans is till disorganized.

Agricultural and Scientific.

COAL FOR SWINE.—The Prairie Farmer has several letters from different parties endorsing the practice of feeding coal to swine. S. R. of Kankakee, has fed it one year with the best results. The amount consumed by the porkers, as related by Mr. DeLuce, of Iroquois Co., is wonderful. He says they make way with about two lbs. each per day. As they are very quiet, not rooting at all, they gain much faster in flesh than before he commenced feeding the coal.

TOO MUCH STOCK.—Farmers lose a great deal every year by keeping more stock than they can properly feed and take care of. They commit a great mistake by keeping more than they can keep well. To keep stock well, they must be kept in a constantly thriving condition. In Summer they should have abundant pasturage, and in Winter warm shelter and all the good nutritious food they will eat. Stock thus managed are always profitable—always improving and increasing in value—rarely, if ever, become sick or die, and afford one pleasure to look upon.

GOOD BUTTER IN FOUL CELLARS.—Good butter cant be made in foul cellars. Nothing receives a taint more easily than butter. It becomes infected readily by offensive odors. Much sweeter, better butter is made in spring-houses than in cellars. Decayed cabbages, turnips, etc., in a cellar, do not impart any virtues to butter, but deteriorate it badly. Good butter is one of the great luxuries of the table; and nothing but the most scrupulous care and neatness will secure it. Early in Spring give the cellar a thorough cleansing, and scrubbing if you please. Then whitewash it from top to bottom. A little lime scattered about in heaps is also beneficial. Have an opportunity to ventilate cool nights and mornings. But be able to close tight in warm weather. Shut in the cool air and give it no chance to escape. Then if you will scald your pans and crooks and buckets with boiling water daily, and use the proper skill and care, you can make and pack butter that it will be a pleasure to eat.—Rural World.

QUALITIES OF THE ONION.—The onion deserves notice as an article of great consumption in this country, and it rises in importance when we consider that in some countries, like Spain and Portugal, it forms one of the common and universal supports of life. It is interesting, therefore, to know that, in addition to the peculiar flavor which first recommends it, the onion is remarkably nutritious. According to analysis the dried onion root contains from [illegible] to thirty per cent. of gluten. It ranks, in this respect, with the nutritious pea and grain of the East. It is not merely as a relish, therefore, that the wayfaring Spaniard eats his onion with his humble crust of bread, as he sits by the refreshing spring; it is because experience has long proved that, like the cheese of the English laborer, it helps to sustain his strength, also, and adds—beyond what its bulk would suggest—to the amount of nourishment which his simple meal supplies.—Genessee Farmer.

TRAINING CATTLE TO JUMP.—A Western farmer says he made it a rule that whenever cattle are made to pass a fence, whether through bars or "slipgap," to leave one rail for them to pass under. This gives them a downward tendency, and lessens their inclination to jump or look upwards, as they are sure to do when a lazy attendant throws down a part of the rails, and makes them vault the rest. Cattle may be taught to go over any fence by the careful training they often get for this end, and performed as follows:—First, starve them or give them poor feed, which will make them light and restless. As soon as they go over the lowest part of the fence after better provender, make them jump back again, and put on one more rail, saying, "I guess that will keep 'em out." Next day, (as of course they will be in mischief again,) repeat the process, adding another rail; in a short time they will take care of themselves, and harvest the crops without charge.—Tucker's Rural Affairs.

THE FARMER'S WIFE.—Is there any position a mother can covet for her daughter more glorious than to be the wife of an honest, independent, happy farmer, in a country like this? To be the wife of one who is looked up to by the neighbors as one whose example may be safely followed—one whose farm is noted far and near as a model of neatness and perfection of cultivation! To be the mistress of a mansion of her own, that may be the envy of every passer by, because it is neat and comfortable—a sweet and lovely cottage home. To be the angel that flirts through the garden, bidding the flowers bloom, and twining roses and honey-suckles around the bedroom or sweetening their fragrance with her sweetest smile; or spreading the snowy cloth beneath the old oak at the door to welcome her husband as he returns from his toil; or even tipping the cradle with her foot as she plies the dasher with her hand, or busily moves the needle, at the same time humming a joyous song of praise that she is the happy and fondly beloved wife of an American farmer—one of the true noblemen of this free country—one that should by right rank as the pride and glory of America.—Southern Rural Gentleman.

SMOKING HAMS.—I think the quality of hams as much depends upon the manner of smoking them as upon the manner of curing them. If a ham is well cured, bad smoking will spoil it. The ordinary manner of constructing a smoke house, of generating the smoke in close proximity with the hams, is bad economy. And if not in bad taste, it is generally the means of making a bad taste. By this method the hams are generally heated; and if not heated, or rather if not to that degree that will render them soft and greasy, they contract a bad flavor from hot, or crude and acrid smoke. Smoke should not be allowed to reach a ham until it is perfectly cool, and purified, as it will be, if it has time to cool.

Build no fire in the smoke house. Instead of doing so, dig a small trench in the earth, extending from the smoke house thirty or forty feet upon slightly descending ground, if practicable; cover it with a slab, or board, replacing the earth; at its termination construct an arch, or fire place, with brick or stone. Two hours labor will complete the job. Do not substitute a stove pipe, (as some do,) for by that means you partly defeat your object. Generate your smoke in the arch as you would in the smoke house. In the absence of a smoke house, a very good substitute can be made by using an old hogshead; or section of a hollow tree.—Selected.

WHISKY DRINKING IN CHICAGO.—A Chicago paper gives the following cheerful account of the retail liquor trade of that city. Chicago must have a number of heavy drinkers:

"There are in Chicago 1,470 licensed grog shops for the sale of intoxicating liquor by retail. Each one of these pays for license $52, so that the revenue derived from this source to the city is $76,440. The general government also derives a tax of $25 from each retailer of liquors, which swells the tax paid by liquor dealers to $113,160. It is estimated that from 7, to 10,000 people are supported by this traffic. It is also estimated that 8,257,700 gallons of liquor are consumed here yearly, and that the amount paid by the consumers is $6,606,208 per year. These figures will demonstrate the appreciative taste of metropolitan suckers for alcholic liquors."

THE London Times calls Mr. Bancroft a "mischievous old man" because of his attacks on England in his Abraham Lincoln eulogy.

.....An Indiana soldier writes that he never realized the horrors of war till he got home to Indiana, and found his gal married to a stay-at-home dry goods clerk.'

Humorous Clippings.

.....Amusement for young ladies on a wet afternoon—Knitting their eyebrows.

.....The man who undertook to hatch chickens from the egg-plant, has gone to Montana.

.....A young lady, whose father is improving the family mansion, insists upon having a beau window put in for her benefit.

.....Soon after the battle of Lobau, a wit observed that Bonaparte must now be in funds, for he had lately received a check on the banks of the Danube.

....."Would I were a man!" exclaimed a strong-minded woman, in her husband's hearing. "Would you were," was his remark, "for then I should never have been married to you."

.....One day Sallie's mamma was telling her about the creation, and when she said, "God made the sun, moon and stars," Sallie, who is very patriotic, burst out with—"And the stripes, too."

.....As a proof of the intelligence of the people of Nevada it is stated that of thirty nine persons in the State Prison (mostly Indians) all were able to read and write and most of them play draw-poker.

.....All a man has to do in these days to pass off for a genius, is to button his coat behind, and wear his hat wrong side on. If he can upset an apple stand two or three times, it will help the matter vastly.

.....In the gallery of the theater in Crow street, Dublin, one night, a coal porter made himself disagreeable. There was a yell of "Throw him over," followed by the exquisite droll idea, "Don't waste him; kill a fiddler wid him."

.....The Saturday Press has heard of a courteous wag who, in the excess of his politeness, never swallowed an oyster without saying "Good bye, valve," and the Washington Republican says its fondness for oysters at this time amounts to a few raw. The jests will be unseasonable in a few weeks, or May.

....."Mamma, if I am good I shall go to heaven, shan't I?" "Yes, love." "And who will be there, besides?" "Angels—dear, beautiful angels." "Ah," hesitated the boy, "all angels—all good, beautiful boys! Mamma, dear, do you think, if I'm very good, they will let me have just one little devil to play with?"

Letter from Josh Billings.

MY DEAR PRESS:

Yu ask me "how i like the lekturing bizzness," and "what success i have met with," and "what iz the tru natur ov the w[illegible] i hav bin dispensing?" lektu[illegible] thus i reply:

Briefly, [illegible] ago I jined the band ov lekturers. Two year[illegible] I hav "tramp'd—tramp'd" in marters, an[illegible] near az i kan rekolekt ever sinse, and a[illegible] tell.

[illegible] now, i think i kant [illegible] tew be comick.

Mi lektur iz an latter[illegible] a nice cross between sense and nonsense. [illegible] well defined; I don't think it haz ever bin [illegible] rd tew dis-it iz like the smell ov a flower, h[illegible] skribe.

Thare iz just about az mutch real [illegible] humor in the best ov geniuses az thare is juice [illegible] lemmon; one squeeze takes it out, and th[illegible] iz nothing but seeds and skin left.

It soon bekums hackney'd, and its authors live prekariously for about 3 years on the fust 5 months ov their reputashun, and then go in their holes and only cum out onst in a while to sun themselfs and be stupid.

I hav known men tew tell 4 good storys, and then spile them awl bi telling one poor one.

Thare iz nothing the world iz so slow to applaud az success, and nothing they are so smart at diskovering az a failure.

Mutch ov a humorist's success depends upon the physick ov hiz nujence: a man who haz the dispepshee fust rate laffs under protest, but if hiz dinner rides eazy you kan tickle him with a skoop-shovel.

Humor sumtimes lurks in the way a thing i

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan.

One of the best filled Establishments!

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied

Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South Side Chicago St, Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS,

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY,
WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH, COTTAGE,
COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP,
WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Show Cases, Stands, Book Cases, Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short notic by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pic. ures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VANTINE,
G. SMITH,

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

TECUMSEH, - - MICH A

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions,

I keep the largest and best assortment of

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS,
FRUITS,
SALT,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,

&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had eleven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the business I you dont believe it, ask your neighbors where they get their Groceries and where they buy them the

CHEAPEST.

Try me and judge for yourselves.

0 A JAMES.

☞ Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the HERALD.

The PEOPLE OF TECUMSEH!

WE HAIL,

But do not conceal, the fact that

GOULD & WALDO

Have just opened a first class

Drug & Grocery Store,

Where will be kept constantly on hand a choice supply of

Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Dye Stuffs, Domestic Dyes, Patent Medicines, Family Groceries, Kerosene Oil, and

in fact everything usually kept in

Similar Establishments,

Where they are prepared and bound to sell from ten to fifty per cent. lower than can be sold elsewhere in Southern Michigan!

STORE 1 DOOR EAST OF A. James' and opposite the Post Office.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY PREPARED. Liberal discount to Physicians. 793

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the

Nicest, Best and Strongest,

WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS,

and in fact everything in his line from a baby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition, So call and leave your orders.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM,

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

☞ All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Prices

---

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co. are now prepared to present to the public, every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART,

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and elegance to the figure.

India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite

in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices.

and a general assortment of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

PHŒNIX

HARTFORD, CONN.

INSURANCE COMPANY.

S. C. STACY,

RESIDENT AGENT,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government,

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.

n790lysmp

LAST CHANCE

FOR ACTIVE AGENTS TO MAKE MONEY!

JUST PUBLISHED,

PEN PICTURES OF THE WAR.

SIX EDITIONS ALREADY GONE.

Apply to

LEDYARD BILL, 75 Fulton St., N. Y.

A. J. HOAG,

Successor to WM. REITERMAN & Co.

WHOLESALE DEALER IN

Ambrotype and Photograph Stock,

235 Summit St. - - Toledo, O.

1866. 1866.

MERRITT, MEEKER & Co

SUCCESSORS TO J. H. WHEELER.

Have just received a large additon to their

STOCK OF GOODS,

And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of

DRY GOODS,

YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Particular attention is called to their stock of BUFFALO ROBES and LADIES AND GENTS FURS, which they are now selling

At Cost

We would announce to his numerous friends that we have secured the services of Wm. VanCamp, and he will take pleasure in waiting upon all.

It is no trouble to show goods: should you wish anything in our line give us a call before purchasing elsewhere and we will do our best to give satisfaction.

GLORIOUS NEWS,

The Confederacy gone up! But

GEORGE HEESEN'S

CLOTHING EMPORIUM

Is in full blast, and has not yet surrendered to young america. I would say to my friends and customers that I have just received a large slock of clothing which were purchased at panic prices, and I will sell them at a very small profit, for they must be sold within ninety days, I

Sell Cassimere Pants at 6.50.

Broad cloth and cassimere coats very cheap, Linen coats cheaper than any other house in town, woolen and Straw

HATS, CAPS!

Linen and Paper Collars,
Neck Ties, Shirts,
Gloves, Hosiery,
Traveling Bags, &c.

It is easily understood that I can sell oods cheaper than my neighbor for I save great expense, hein a tailor and having followed the business for the last 17 years I know how work ought to be done.

Please come over on the Canada side for you can buy goods cheaper than you can on the American, for all expense of importing is saved, which amounts to considerable.

Cutting Done at Old Prices.

Those wishing garments made would do well to call on me and have an honest job done.

Geo. Heesen.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New Yisnow opening a new stock of roceries, Paints, Oils &c

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago street.

L. DREW'S

NEW HARDWARE!!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz:

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass. Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a

Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron. and Zinc,

Also the

Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

Real Estate for Sale.

Our old friend John Davenport wishes to dispose of the following property:

60 acres of fine timbered land lying near Franklin Centre.

120 acres of timbered land on Evans Lake.

Saw mill and 20 acres of land near Franklin Centre.

Brick House and 4 acres of land known as the Stitts property in the village of Tecumseh, now occupied by A. Hood.

House and lot on Logan St. known as the Mrs. Bissell property.

Also—House and lot of J. E. Merritt Maiden Lane, in the village of Tecumseh.

Terms easy or to suit purchasers. For particulars call on or address the subscriber at Tecumseh, Mich..

JOHN DAVENPORT.

Dated Jan. 18th, 1866.

☞ Have you job printing done at the Herald Office,

Boots are Down!

Shoes are Down!!

BOOTS & SHOES

ARE DOWN!!!

AT HOAG'S

MAMMOTH

SHOE STORE,

AT HOAG'S MAMMOTH,
AT HOAG'S MAMMOTH,

Don't pay War prices to men that tell you that Boots & Shoes are no cheaper.

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!!

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!!!

AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE
AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE
AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE.

Having made extensive purchases at greatly reduced rates he has marked down his entire stock to correspond.

Call and examine—compare prices, and save money by buying at Hoag's.

Repairing done promptly—prices reduced.

E. H. HOAG.

Tecumseh, March 27th, 1866.

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartnership in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE AND FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions,

Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected

stock of

Crockery and Glass-Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

C. H. ADAM & CO.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct 2tf TECUMSEH, MICH.

---

18 Pronunciamento. 65

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see

How well we can do For them.

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd best Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholesale or Retail.
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
Fine Midlings, B. WF our,
Ship Stuffs, B. w. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE.

They will always also ussally find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE,

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL,

Corn In the Ear and Shelled.

A goo assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantible Lumber.

Wm. HAYDEN

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee s.s.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian on Monday the 12th day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six.

Present, Robert R. Beecher, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Stephen E. Cole, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Osmond Tower prayingthat the administrator of said estate may be required and directed by said court to deed to him certain lands of said deceased for reasons in said petition stated.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday, the 14th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for six successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ROBERT R, BEECHER,
Judge of Probate.

(A true Copy.) 750w4

Dissolution.

The co-partnership heretofore existing under the name of Curtis & McCowen is this day dissolved by mutual consent. All persons indebted to said firm are requested to settle without delay

GEORGE CURTIS,
WM. McCOWEN,

Tecumseh, March 5th 1866.

The undersigned have this date formed a co-partnership under the firm and name of Curtis & Parsons, for the purpose of continuing the Hardware Business, at the place lately occupied by Curtis & McCowan.

GEORGE CURTIS,
WM. A. PARSONS,

Tecumseh, March 5th, 1866. n798w4

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

GREAT CENTRAL.

United States Mail Route.

THREE EXPRESS TRAINS leave Windsor (opposite Detroit) daily for the East, on the arrival of Trains of Michigan Central. Detroit and milwaukee, and michigan Southern Railways from Chicago, milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati and all points West North-West and South-West.

This is the only route via Niagara Falls and suspension Bridge, and is the direct route to Buffalo, New York, Boston, London, Paris, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Prescott, Ogdensburgh, Montreal, Quebec and Portland.

☞ Passenger Cars are furnished with Pateat ventilators.

Luxurious Sleeping Cars attached to all night trains, and Smoking Cars to all day trains.

☞ United States Currency taken at par for through fares, sleeping Car berths and meals at Refreshment Saloons

CHARLES McCABE,
Western Passenger Agent, Detroit.

THOS SWINYARD, General manager, Hamilton, C. W.

JAS. CHARLTON, General Agent, Hamilton, C. W

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS,

is the place to get good grinding done I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING,

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Wheat

Mill Feed of allkinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Bills of hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shal endeavor to do as good work, and even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL

IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor, show room the same 3 doors east of A. Hood & Co's. clothing store.

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Neary, and Bridget Neary, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March, A. D. 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber 'M' of Mortgages, on follios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] two, on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village, (now city] of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid. Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriet A. Bradbury on the twenty-first day of March, A. D. 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 17th day of February, A D 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, which said mortgage, was afterwards, to wit: on the eighth day of February, A. D. 1866 duly assigned by said Harriet A Bradbury to Addison J Comstock, which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money, and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents, [$573,12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty fifth day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage.

ADDISON J. COMSTOCK,
Assignee of said mortgage.

M. N. HALSEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb. 21, 1866.

HALL'S

Vegetable Sicilian

HAIR RENEWER,

As the name indicates, not only RENEWS the growth of the hair when thin and falling off, but positively renews the color to its original shade when it is turning grey or white, whether caused by disease, grief or old age.

It will certainly do what is claimed for it, a fact to which hundreds, nay thousands, who have used it, are ready and willing to testify Where one bottle is fairly used, in any community, its reputation "spreads like wild fire," and is the best advertisement and recommendation we desire. In the Eastern States, where the "RENEWER" originated, the young ladies use it as a hair dressing; it is found on the toilet tables of young men, (also at their barbers), while older men and women who desire a Renewer and Restorative for their grey locks and bald heads will not be without this article, which gives in every instance, entire setisfaction.

CAUTION.

Don't let any druggist or dealer urge upon you a different article, as there is no preparation in the world like this, Beware of any article purporting to be the same.

Try HALL'S HAIR RENEWER according to Directions, and you will see no other.

If not sold at druggists in your town, a trial bottle will be sent you by express, upon receipt of one dollar by mail, thus giving you an opportunity at once of testing its excellent qualities.

Orders for trial bottles must be addressed to

C. A. COOK, Chicago.

Gen'l Agent for Northwestern States.

R. P. HALL & CO., Proprietors, Nashua, N. H.

Sold at WHOLESALE, in Chicago, by FULLER, FINCH & FULLER, BURNHAMS & VAN SCHAACK, LORD & SMITH, SMITH & DWYER, J. H. REED & CO., CHAS. G. SMITH, DIETZSCH, BLOCKI & CO., H. SCOVIL, W. D. HARRIS & CO., POST & BADEAU, and by druggists and dealers generally.

What is the Matter!

The Fact is the new firm of

SLAYTON TINDALL & Co.

are selling

FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT

By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff. And all the people are rushing for it. Come on we have a large stock of such wheat on hand yet, also

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,
CORN MEAL,
PLASTER,
WATER LIME,
CLOVER SEED,
TIMOTHY SEED,
CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF

Grain and Seeds!!

SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO.

Tecumseh, Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.

Published for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supplying at the same time the means of Self-Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a post-paid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, mhy be had of the author.

NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Brooklyn, n790lysmp Kings Co., N. Y.

Estrays.

Two red Steers one year old past were taken up by the subscriber on the 6th, of November last. The end of the right ear of each is cut off. The left ear of each is notched. The owner of said Steers is requested to prove ownership, pay charges and take them away.

FENNER PALMER.

Dated Macon, January 25th, 1866.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at A. JAMES

Peter Van Dresser

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVI. NO. 47. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN. THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 12, 1866. WHOLE NO. 803.

G. T. KETCHAM'S
BOOK STORE,
Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.
(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)
DEALER IN
CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER.
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.
—o—
I will sell any of the above goods as
Cheap or Cheaper
than any other dealer in the country, and
WARRANT
all goods sold as good as recommended.
CASH FOR RAGS!
—o—
Butter. Eggs. Lard, Produce, Old Iron. Brass. Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.
J. D. Robbins.
TECUMSEH, - - - - - - - MICHIGAN.

A. HOOD & CO.
Are Just receiving a Splended
STOCK OF
Cloths Vestings,
Hats & Caps,
AND
Gents Furnishing goods
BOUGHT IN NEW YORK, AT THE
LOWEST FIGURES,
AND WILL BE SOLD AT PRICES THAT
DEFY COMPETITION.
Call and see them before purchasing elsewhere.

NORTHERN LENAWEE
INSURANCE
AGENCY.
S. C. STACY,
LIFE, FIRE AND ACCIDENT
INSURANCE AGENT.
Represents the following well known and reliable insurance companies.

Manhattan Life, N. Y.	$2,000 000.
Phœnix Life Hartford,	800 000.
Accident Ins. Co, Columbus,	1,000,000.
Phœnix Fire Hartford,	1,000 000,
Underwriters N. Y.	8,000,000,
Lumbermans, Chicago,	800,000,
Total capital represented, over	8,100,000.

Good Insurance is a nessity.
And the best is the cheapest.

Tecumseh Union School!
C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.
THE SPRING TERM of this Institution will open April 9th, 1866, and continue twelve weeks
Scholars will be received at any time and placed in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.
CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE
on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS, DRESS GOODS, FANCY GOODS, HOOP SKIRTS, BALMORELS, &c.

C. H. ADAM & CO., have not sold out, but are now daily receiving one of the Largest, Cheapest and Best assortments of goods ever brought to Tecumseh, consisting of

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE.

GOING SOUTH.

Express Freight,	6:15 A. M
Mail and Express,	1:15 P. M.

GOING NORTH.

Mail and Express,	9:28 A. M.
Accommodation,	6:38 P. M

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh. Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD S. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
W Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich.

ALFRED JAMES,
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago. St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT,
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilets, &c.
Chicao St. Tecumseh, Mich.

F. N. CURTIS.
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER.
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

GOULD & WALDO,
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St, - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN B. WOOD.
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh. Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER.
Attorney's, Councellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT.
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

J. CURTIS & McOWEN,
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWARD H. HOAG,
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EMLAY & CURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harness and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HORACE BREWER.
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS.
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

O. G. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and worker in Jewelry.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

I. C. SATTERTHWAITE.
Insurance Agent and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT.
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS.
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL.
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE.
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St - - Tecumseh, Mich

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St. Opposite P O.ffice.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT.
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

Mutilated Postage currency wanted at G. T. Ketchams, in exchange for goods. Rush in the Rags, no matter how badly they are torn, they will be taken at their full value as long as the denomination of the peice can be told.

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.

(One inch of column constitutes a square.)

	1 wk	3 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$ 2.00	$ 6.00	$ 7.50	$10.00
2 Squares	1.75	3.50	8.00	12.00	15.00
3 Squares	2.75	5.00	11.00	16.00	2[illegible].00
¼ Column	5.00	9.00	12.00	18.00	25.00
½ Column	7.50	12.00	18.00	25.00	36.00
1 Column	12.00	15.00	20.00	35.00	60.00

No advertisement considered less than one square. Transcient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted one year for $3.50 per year.

Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

We will take wood, butter, lard, eggs, potatoes, and all kinds of farm produce, on subscription for the "HERALD." So bring it along.

To Our Friends.

You will confer a favor on us by soliciting the Judge of Probate to publish Probate Notices in the HERALD, and you will also find it convenience to yourselves to have the advertisements in the paper you receive.

Any one wishing to purchase a first class turning lathe are requested to call at this office. We have one to sell at a great bargain.

Great bargains in Brown and Bleeched sheetings at Moore's,

The new post-office in the Masonic Temple at Adrian has been opened.

Big enough:—The "Biggest" stock of Wall Paper at Robbin's you ever saw Best white and colored French Corsets, warranted whalebone, at Tribou & Bidwell Bro's.

Golden days these for the multitudes that are daily thronging Gould & Waldo's Drug & Grocery Store.

Judds window Fixtures the best. J. D. Robbins has a large stock of the same.

Elegant Carpets at Moore's.

The regular spring meeting of the Board of School Inspectors of the township of Tecumseh, will be held in the Tecumseh Union School Building next Saturday, April 14, at 1 o'clock P. M.

Go to Moore's and look at his Silver Hooped Skirts—they are entirely new and elegant.

C. H. Adam & Co, will commence this week to receive a new and full assortment of Spring and Summer Goods, of the latest and best styles, bought at Auction prices, below the regular quotations in New York. Chaley says that he will astonish his customers with the prices at which he can sell his new stock of goods. Call and see Call and see the new stock of Boots & Shoes at the store formerly occupied by Nyland & Heesen. We take pleasure in showing our goods.

McNICHOL & WILLSON.

Go to Bidwell's for De-Laines, Sheetings, Dress Goods and shilling calico.

Mayor Hyde is busily engaged in cleaning the streets. Every street in the village is to be cleaned in the most thorough manner, and the side walks are to be repaired. Next summer is the Cholera season and our public authorities intend to prepare for it. Private individuals should follow their example. Every building and yard in the village should be purified with fire and whitewash before summer sets in.

Large assortment of Gents Cloths and Cassimeres at Tribou & Bidwell Bro's.

The President has vetoed the Civil Rights Bill Well, Andy may be right and he may be wrong; be that as it may, one thing is certain, A. Hood & Co. have the most splendid assortment of Broad Cloths, Cassimers, and Vestings ever brought to this town. They are going fast—call early and secure some of their splendid patterns.

Go to Moore's for everything you want.

—John Linn Sen., the residence of his son A. Linn, on Saturday last at the advanced age of 85 years, leaving a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn his loss.

FIRE.

On Saturday morning last about five o'clock, the Photograph Gallery and residence of Mrs. C. M. Bissell, on Chicago street was discovered to be on fire and the flames had already progressed so far that all attempts to save the building were useless, and but a small portion of the furniture was saved. All of her Photograph stock, Cameras &c. in the rear of the Building and all of the furniture and clothing in the middle room below and in the chamber were lost.—Henry Bissell, who was sleeping in the chamber, was aroused by his mother, and only escaped by running down stairs through the flames and smoke. In a few moments more the smoke would have stupified him, so that in all probability he never could have got out alive. The manner in which the fire originated is a mystery. There had been no fire in the back part of the house since the forenoon of the day before. The walls between the clapboards and ceiling were filled with tan-bark, and it is thought that the fire might perhaps have been smouldering in this bark for a day or two, before it finally broke out. The loss falls with unusual severity upon Mrs. Bissell. She had broken her arm but a few days previous and now she has lost all the stock and material necessary for carrying on her business.

Luckily however, she was insured in the sum of fourteen hundred dollars—six hundred upon the building and eight hundred on the contents Her loss upon the building is fully covered by the insurance, but the eight hundred dollars on contents will scarcely suffice to replace the Cameras that she lost, among the rest was one new hundred and fifty dollar Camera, which she had purchased but a few weeks before the fire. Her entire loss over and above insurance will amount to nearly one thousand dollars. There was a strong wind blowing from the north, which at one time endangered the buildings on the opposite side of the street.—The roof of the old New York Store caught fire in several places, but a few pails of water prevented the flames from spreading.

This fire should be a warning to our citizens to bestir themselves immediately and organize a fire company. There is no reservoir for water on Chicago street. No town pump: no Fire Engine: no fire company and in fact "no nothing" for extinguishing a large fire. There are a few wells in the rear of the business blocks but half of them either have broken pumps or none at all. This state of things is a shame and disgrace to the village, and if the evil cannot be remedied by private enterprise, the village Board should take the matter in hand.

Warnings never come single handed. This fire should serve as a warning to every one—whether old or young, married or single—who owns property to have it insured. No one, however careful he may be, is entirely exempt from fire. It is a sacred duty which every man owes to himself and his family to secure himself against loss of property.—Duty demands it, prudence suggests it, frugality and economy commend it, caution enjoins it, discretion requires it, reasonable forethought directs it, and the plainest common sense commands it.—Commands what? 1st. That every man should insure. 2d. That he should go and get the genuine article of S. C. Stacy Insurance Agent.

The political complexion of the Board of Supervisors is the same as last year, the Republicans having elected 17 and the Democrts seven as follows:

ADRIAN CITY.
1st ward—A. S. Chappell, dem.
2d ward—D. D Sinclair, dem.
3d ward—J. W. Helme, rep.
4th ward—F. Young, rep.
Adrian Town—A. J. Hood, rep.
Blissfield—A. H. Crane, rep.
Cambridge—C. H. Dewey, dem.
Dover—W. W. McLouth, dem.
Fairfield—C E. Mickley, rep.
Franklin—A. J. Hunter, rep.
Hudson—L. Palmer, rep.
Macon—H. Gray, rep.
Madison—John R. Clark, rep.
Medina—C. A. Jewell, rep.
Ogden—John G. Mason, rep.
Palmyra—R. Robinson, rep.
Raisin—Jacob Walton, rep.
Ridgeway—J. C. Freer, rep.
Riga—G. W. Westerman, rep.
Rollin—F. A. Willcox, rep.
Rome—C. Knapp, rep.
Seneca—E. A. Baker, dem.
Tecumseh, J. S. Kies, dem.
Woodstock—O. Lamb, dem.

A CARD.

We the undersigned take this method of expressing our sympathy for our town's woman, Mrs. Bissell, in the severe loss she has sustained by the late fire. It is well known that Mrs. B. has by her indomitable perseverance, and unceasing labors, raised herself to a high position among the artists of the country, and that the fruits of her professional success have been wholly contributed to the improvement of our village. We hope therefore that her friends and our citizens generally, will stand by her now, and not forsake her in the days of her adversity. She will necessarily have to suspend operations for a short time as the whole of her Photograph apparatus, a large stock of chemicals, and indeed everything appertaining to her business, was entirely destroyed by the unfortunate fire. But let her friends wait with patience the opening of her new rooms, which are to be supplied with a superior stock, and improved instruments, and then let them come forward and give her a rousing benefit

E. B. Strickland,	A. B. Ward,
Wm Richard,	S. C. LeBaron,
A. Hood,	E. Hand,
G. T. Ketcham,	A. James,
H. C. Conkling,	J. D. Robbins,
Wm. Hayden,	C. M. Burlingame.

Oil Cloths at Moore's.

Headache.

The following conversation was overheard by a friend of ours and we publish it for the benefit of the afflicted:

Oh dear Mother! I have had such a dreadful headache all day, that I could not study my lessons scarcely at all today and the teacher scolded me, which made me feel very bad indeed.

Mother.—You ought to have told the teacher you were not well and asked him to please excuse you

Daughter.—Well mother I have had the headache so much lately and I have [illegible] like to mention it again. Jane Smith one of the girls in our class, says she used to have the headache worse than I do; sometimes so bad that she could not go to school, and finally her father got her some Headache Pills at Dr. Curtis' Drug Store, which cured her entirely and she does not have the headache at all now.

Mother.—Well my dear girl, you suffer a great deal with the headache and if I can get anything to help you, I shall be very glad. I have heard a great deal said lately about Dr. Curtis' Headache Pills; I find a great many persons are using them and they all say they have done them a great deal of good. I will get you some to-morrow without fail.

Vast variety of Dress Goods at Moore's.

A New Hotel.

The people of Tecumseh are to have a new Hotel sooner than they anticipated. James E. Merritt and M. B. Burgher have rented the Usborn Block for three years, and will open a Hotel there about the 1st of May. It is a good location and a good building, and we see no reason why it cannot be made the best Hotel in the place. The building will be repaired throughout and a portico built in front, which will make it quite attractive in appearance, and as "Jim" is an old hand at the business, we bespeak for the new firm their full share of the public patronage.

Rich Thread Lace Collars and Cuffs at Moore's.

The three story brick store recently owned by J. E. Hall has been sold to Mr Calvin Lawrence. Merritt, Meeker & Co. have leased the lower floor until next spring, but at that time we understand Mr. Lawrence intends occupying it himself, with a stock of Dry Goods. He intends to finish the second and third stories, which will make very desirable rooms to rent.

Hosiery and Gloves at Moore's.

Some say, "the Tailor makes the man. Call at A. Hood & Co's. and try that gentlemanly Tailor, D. Jones Esq. If there is any one in this western world that can do it, he is the man. He is getting up some splendid suits and warrants them to give satisfaction.

Prints 12 1-2 cents at Moore's.

Better Sugar for less money at Gould & Waldo's.

In Adrian, a lady observing a building with a steeple, asked her gentleman attendant, "What church is that?" The gentleman, after reading the sign, "Deluge No. 3," replied—"I guess it must be the Third Baptist.

Teas at all prices at Gould & Waldo's—warranted to give satisfaction or money refunded.

Suicide in Adrian.

On Friday last a young man came to Adrian from the East, and stopped at the Bostord House, registering his name as "George Keyser, from Belvidere New Jersey." He appeared dejected in spirits, speaking with no one, and it was remarked by persons who noticed him, that there was something very singular about his actions and appearance. He remained at the hotel until Monday morning, arose at an early hour, came down out of his room and seated himself in the bar-room. There were two or three persons standing about, who were startled by the report of a pistol, and immediately the victim fell forward out of his seat, shot through the brain and by his own hand. There was hardly a quivering of the muscles after the ball entered his forehead. On searching his body, money to the amount of $400 was found about his person, his address written in a number of places on small bits of paper, seemingly with the intention of directing where his body should be sent, but no cause for the rash act, could be learned from any of his effects. His body was taken care of by Mr. Chapel, who placed it in a metalic coffin, and immediately telegraphed to the editor of a paper published in Belvidere, a copy of which was found in the deceased's pockets. At about 3 o'clock in the afternoon a reply came in answer to the dispatch saying "put the body in a metalic coffin and bring immediately to the above place" Mr. Chappel started Tuesday, with his charge as directed. Mr. Keyser was a young man apparently twenty-two or three years old, well dressed and of pleasing appearance. There is a mystery about the affair, and much curiosity is felt as to the cause of the deed, which will undoubtedly be learned, when Mr. Chappel returns from the home of the deceased.

Large sales and small profits is Gould & Waldo's motto.

We are glad to see our fellow townsmen McNichol & Willson back again. They are now receiving and opening the BEST stock of Boots, & Shoes ever brought to Tecumseh. Dan & Joe are fine fellows and being both experienced workmen, know how to make a selection of goods that are durable and commendable to the public. Their manufacturing department will be immediately under their own supervision and their work is to well known, to need any further comment from us.

Silk warp Flannel at Moore's.

TRIAL BY JURY.—The trial by jury is a right which every citizen of the United States has claimed as his prerogative.—But it is of much greater importance to those who have been suffering for years from Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Flatulency, and general Debility, that Coe's Dyspepsia Cure will certainly cure them,—the proprietors guarantee it in every instance.

The proof of a pudding is not in chewing the string, but in eating and testing. The same rule will apply to the J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap.—Our better half says it has no equal, and will do much better work, and go much further, besides leaving the clothes in a much better state after washing. We do not hesitate to pronounce it far superior to any soap in the market. Go and get a bar and try it—most all the merchants sell it.

Tecumseh Market.

April 12th, 1866.

White wheat	$1 50 a $1 75
Red do	75 a 1 75
Beans	75 a 1 00
Corn	40
Clover seed	4 55
Apples green	1 25
Butter per pound	30
Cheese " "	18
Hams " "	15
Lard " "	12
Eggs per doz	10

Gov. Crapo has appointed Thursday, April 19th, a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer.

True politeness is perfect ease and freedom. It simply consists in treating others as you love to be treated yourself.

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Mich., April 11, 1866.

Ames Frances,	Alton J.
A. J. K.	Blain Mrs. Ann,
Collins Miss Mary A.	Chamberlain A.
Cook Mrs. M. S.	Church George W.
Eaton Silas,	Holden Mrs. W.
Keandman Miss M,	Homer George
Haviland J. C.	Hale H.
House Mrs. Mary E.	Lawen G.
Laurkin William,	Langan John,
Odell John,	Parker L. A.
Pirtles Miss Mary,	Rowland G. C.
Strainham M. V. B.	Smith E.
Simms Joseph,	Stevens James,
Van Vleck Chas. E.

W. ANDERSON, P. M.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

General Intelligence.

The pirate Semmes was released on his original parole, by the President, on Friday.

A furious storm has occurred at Corpus Christi, Texas, and many persons been drowned.

Hard times in the oil regions, according to the Pithole Record, of the 3d, which says that four-fifths of the taxes assessed by the revenue officers will be utterly lost by parties leaving town, or so disposing of their effects as to leave nothing for the collector to lay his hands upon.

The New Jersey Legislature have gone home without electing a Senator, so that that State will be without a Senator in Congress. Mr Wright, the remaining member, being too ill to take his seat, and the Governor, under the facts, having no power of appointment.

The steam tug C. H. Haynor exploded her boiler, on the Hudson River, at Troy, on Saturday the 7th, instantly killing five persons.

Gov. Oglesby of Illinois has made an innovation upon the custom of selecting Friday for the annual fast day, by appointing it on Sunday, April 15th, the anniversary of the death of President Lincoln.

At a reception given in Washington, by Lieut. Gen. Grant, on Friday evening the 6th, President Johnson, Hon. Thad. Stevens, ex-Rebel Vice President Alexander H. Stephens, etc., were present.

Five fine steamboats were burned at St. Louis with valuable freight, on the 7th inst. They were the Nevada, Majors, Ellie Deans, Frank Bates, and Fanny Ogden. Loss $700,000. By fire over twenty steamers have been lost at St. Louis this season.

The Legislature of Wisconsin are said to have determined to request Senator Doolittle to resign, on account of his refusal to obey its instructions upon the President's veto.

Last week's snow storm in Canada was the most severe for several years.

Since May last the Government has sold 210,000 horses and mules, realizing therefor the sum of over $14,000,000.

Among the military claims just paid by Indiana is an item of $9,000 to Jesse D. Bright for damages to his farm.

The ice at Dubuque has broken up and floated off, and it is believed the Mississippi river is now open from that point down.

The man recently arrested as Quantrell, the rebel demon, turns out to be not he, after all. He has been released from custody.

Gov. Crapo of Michigan has, by proclamation, appointed the 19th of April next, as a day of fasting, humiliation, and prayer.

A call is issued for a National Woman's Rights Convention in New York on the 10th of May next, to consider the question of suffrage, and other matters.

The New York metropolitan police have issued orders for the summary arrest of all beggars, including children who sweep crossings.

There was a great freshet in the Milwaukee River on the 4th, which did actual damage amounting to between $100,000 and $200,000.

The water along the western shore of Lake Michigan is said to be some six inches lower than it has been, at this season, for several years.

The German steamships Allemania and Hermann are to run an ocean race from Southampton to New York on their next trip. Heavy bets on the result were pending in England.

A New York paper says that James Stephens, Head Centre of the Fenian Brotherhood, has certainly escaped from Ireland. It was disputed at first, but is now generally conceded.

The announcement that trichina spiralis had been found in pork in New York, was a base lie set afloat to affect the pork market. No traces of the parasite have been found in any pork in that city.

Gen. Dick Taylor, brother-in-law of Jeff. Davis, Mrs. Jeff. Davis, and Burton Harrison, formerly Jeff's private secretary, are all at Washington, seeking permission for Mrs. Davis to visit her husband at Fortress Monroe.

A speculator, well known in Washington as having made large purchases of arms, munitions, &c., sold, among other articles, to the Fenian leader, Gen. Sweeny, a week ago on Wednesday, twenty thousand army revolvers and seventeen thousand forage caps.

An official proclamation from Col. O'Mahony announces the escape of James Stevens from Ireland, his arrival in Paris, and his speedy arrival in the United States, to heal the dissentions unfortunately prevalent in the ranks of the brotherhood here.

A large meeting of Fenians was held at New York on the 2d, in the Bowery, at which much excitement occurred. At one time a collision between the O'Mahony and Roberts factions seemed inevitable. The aid of the police was summoned and peace was preserved.

The Canadians are again in great alarm. They have "reliable reports" that "war vessels and convoys, including two schooners loaded with cannon, are fitting out at Chicago." There are rumers that an expedition under B. Doran Killian—consisting of three steamers, with 5,500 men—has sailed from New York to New Baunswick (another report gives Bermuda as its destination); and it is believed that Sweeny designs an attack upon Central Canada.

Political Matters.

The plan to liberate Jeff. Davis by a writ of habeas corpus, has been abandoned by his friends.

Dubuque, Iowa, goes Democratic as usual, though by a reduced majority. Gain one Alderman.

The Iowa Legislature adjourned on the 3d. The registry and railroad-tariff bills went over.

In Dayton, Ohio, the Union city ticket is elected by 300 majority, except the Mayor, who is a Democrat.

The bill fixing the time of manual labor at eight hours a day, has passed both branches of the Ohio State Legislature, and is now a law.

In Rhode Island, April 4, Gen. Burnside, Union, was elected Governor, receiving 7,749 votes, against 2,456 for Lyman Pierce, Democrat.

The Republicans have carried the Connecticut election, choosing Hawley for Governor by 599 majority, and have 14 of the 21 Senators.

The New York Legislature has passed the bills to incorporate the Niagara Ship Canal Company, by a vote of 85 yeas to 31 nays, and the New York Central railroad fare bill by a vote of 72 yeas to 48 nays.

The California Legislature has passed concurrent resolutions expressing high appreciation of Gen. McDowell, and asking Congress to promote him to the full rank of Major-General in the U. S. army.

The President has issued an order to the various Departments to withhold all advertising patronage from the Washington Chronicle. It is understood that all papers that fail to sustain the reconstruction policy of the President will be treated likewise.

A large number of Congressmen have taken advantage of the short recess, and have left Washington for the North, intending to be back again shortly. There is consequently a lull in speculation as to the probable action of Congress on the civil rights bill.

In the New Jersey Legislature, on the 3d, a resolution was adopted censuring the President for his recent veto of the Civil Rights bill. The same body refused to indorse a resolution having for its object the purchase of a portrait of Andrew Johnson, to be placed by the side of that of Washington.

There is no truth in the report that the Government has given orders forbidding the proposed negro celebration at Richmond. The matter has been left to the discretion of Gen. Terry, who is in command there. It is not probable that the celebration will be interfered with, unless there should be serious danger to the public peace.

Senator Wade has prepared an amendment, which he will offer when Senator Sumner brings up the bill for the Paris Exposition, that no money be paid out under that bill until after Louis Napoleon withdraws the French troops from Mexico. This will give rise to a debate, which, if allowed to proceed, will open the whole French-Mexican question.

Senator Stockton having been ousted from the United States Senate, the Legislature of New Jersey, which is about tied on joint ballot, are trying to elect a successor. One Senator Scovel, Republican, holds the balance, and refuses to favor the joint ballot unless the Republicans pledge themselves to elect a Radical. It is thought they will have to submit, or be unrepresented in the United States Senate.

Southern News.

The New Orleans True Delta newspaper has failed.

The Government is about to commence the rebuilding of Fort Sumter.

New Orleans is full of visitors, and its population is said to be 60,000 greater than befor the war.

The crops in Texas are said to be advancing, and immense shipments of cattle continue to be made.

Gen. J. C. Vaughn, of Florida, is now supporting his family by manual labor, having lost all his property in the war.

Chowan county, N. C., is said to be a perfect Rhineland for wine. One gentleman makes $5,000 a year from 100 acres under grape culture.

The negroes tried at Wilmington for the murder of Thomas S. Pickett have been acquitted by the court martial. One of them proved two alibis at the same instant of time.

The Freedmen's Bureau has received a highly satisfactory report from Gen. Strong, its Commissioner in Georgia. He represents the negroes as faithfully fulfilling their labor contracts, that harmony and mutual good feeling exist between employees and planters, and that there is a great demand for labor, especially on rice and cotton plantations, at a dollar a day and board.

The rebel General Forrest killed one of his plantation hands with an axe a few days ago, the negro having assaulted him with a knife, inflicting a wound on the hand. The affair occurred on Forrest's plantation, in Sunflower county, Miss., and is reported to have grown out of Forrest's remonstrating with the negro for abusing his sick wife.

A writer from the Cold Harbor battlefield near Richmond, where 35,000 of our brave men fell, says the Government is doing a noble work in carefully gathering these bodies, and depositing them in the beautiful cemetery laid out near the battle field, with every grave marked with all the information that can be obtained, to enable friends to identify their lost ones. About six hundred have already been exhumed and reinterred waiting the claims of relatives and friends.

New Orleans advices report that the upper Red river is booming. The spring is forward. More land will be ploughed and planted this spring than ever before. The freedmen are working well. At Shreveport the plantation prospects are excellent. Alexandria City is being rebuilt, and the plantation prospects promise well. The Ouachita river is booming, and the country flooded. Large crops have been planted. There are fears of a more extensive overflow. In Northern Louisiana the crops will be equal to those of any past year. At Baton Rouge the river is rising, and an extensive overflow is feared.

Incidents and Accidents.

Another attempt was made by rebel incendiaries on the 6th to burn down Mrs. Jane G. Swisshelm's newspaper office the Reconstructionist.

The snow-plow on the Passumpsic (Vt.) Railroad threw a drunken man out of a snow drift a few days ago, and thereby saved him from freezing to death.

The freshet of Monday 2, did considerable damage to the track of the Milwaukee and St. Paul railway. The Rock river bridge was swept away entirely.

A load of hay, on a wagon recently passing through a street in Rochester, was set on fire by the friction of an iron guard on a wheel. The horses and wagon were saved.

Several fires occurred in New York on the 6th, the most destructive being on Fulton and Barclay streets. The Claremont House and several stores were burned. The total loss is estimated at $800,000.

On the 6th, a young girl 11 years old, daughter of James Redmond, rushed out of her home in Chicago with her garments all in a blaze, and was burned so terrible that she died soon after.

Two heavy boilers in the bar department of the Pomeroy iron works at Pomeroy, Ohio, exploded on the 5th, killing one man and a boy and wounding eight or ten others. Damage done to the works about $15,000.

On the 31st, a fiendish attempt was made to fire the office of The Reconstructionist, Mrs. Swisshelm's paper at Washington. Had it proved successful, all escape for Mrs. S. and her assistants would have been next to impossible.

The loss by the recent great freshet in Wisconsin is estimated at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000, the damage to the Milwaukee and Prairie du Chien Railroad alone being placed at $500,000. The loss at Milwaukee is stated at $150,000.

A disastrous fire on Oil Creek occurred on the 31st by which the famous Coquette, Jersey and Maple Shade wells were destroyed. The entire loss is put down at 25,000 barrels oil, and $125,000 in property. Twenty boats and barges, loaded for shipment were also destroyed.

A man named James R. McGregor, formerly of New York, hung himself from a tree between Summit District and Virginia City, on or about the end of February. He committed suicide after reading a novel; had on his best clothes, and possessed $150 worth of dust in his pocket.

Miss Marsh, of Portsmouth, N. H., was conversing with friends, when she faltered, her head fell, and in less than an hour she was dead. Miss Lizzie Haven, of the same city, retired in good health Tuesday night, but, not appearing in the morning, her room was visited and she was found dead in her bed.

The storm of the 2d damaged bridge No. 6, on the Prairie du Chien Railway, near Wauwatosa, Wis., to such an extent that, immediately after the afternoon passenger train had crossed it, it fell with a crash into the stream. The water was from five to seven feet deep on the railroad track in that vicinity.

At a "charivari" near Toronto, Clinton county, Missouri, a few days ago, one of the musicians, after due warning to the crowd from the justly incensed bridegroom, received in his body the contents of a shotgun, or one hundred and seventy-two small bird-shot, as the physician asserts, yet was not dangerously wounded.

The Commercial says that during the burning of Pike's Opera House, 4,266,863 gallons of water were used over and above the ordinary consumption of the city. During forty-eight hours 7,000,000 gallons were consumed—all this immense volume of water being thrown upon the burning mass by the steam fire-engines.

It has been known for some time that a systematic robbery of freight trains was going on near Carbondale, Ill. The Central road sent detectives thither, who recently arrested Dr. Hadley, his wife and son, and W. R. McMuir, his son-in-law. Upon searching the premises a large lot of stolen property was found. The parties arrested were all placed in confinement.

At Milwaukee, about 6 o'clock on the morning of the 6th, as a girl named Marie Alson, having charge of the hall in Bowman's block, north of the Postoffice, was engaged in boiling some wax to prepare the hall for a dancing party to-night, the mixture boiled over the stove and so ignited some benzine, which exploded, burning the girl badly and setting fire to the building, the inside of which is entirely destroyed. The loss on the building is fully $10,000; insured for $6,000. The girl survived only a few hours.

By the burning of a barn attached to the Farmers' Hotel, Chicago, early on the morning of the 3d, a whitewasher, Henry Bahler and his young daughter, 13 years old, were burned to death. They slept in the loft, and were doubtless suffocated. Seven horses and two cows also perished in the conflagration. A fellow named Louis Holtzman confesses to having set the barn on fire, being incited to the deed when in liquor, by one Casper Eisenbrandt, who kept a rival establishment to the Farmers' Hotel. Both are in custody.

The Newburyport Herald tells a story of a venerable citizen of that city, who, while walking in Salisbury a few days since, was seized violently by four strong and rough men, who ran him some distance, to his fright and no little danger to his wind: "We know you; you're too good a man to be kilt." It seems that he was near where they were blasting rocks on the track of the Eastern Railroad, and, without knowing it, was within a few feet of where a train was laid and an explosion was to take place. He would have been blown to pieces in less than two minutes but for the timely interference of the workmen.

Financial Items.

The Redemption Bureau of the Treasury Department has detected a $100 counterfeit greenback.

B. H. Badger a broker of Chicago, has failed for $45,000. His operations on the day of his assignment were such as to cause his arrest.

It is now admitted that the resolution guaranteeing the Mexican loan will pass the House of Representatives. The opponents of the measure concede that much.

A bank panic prevails at Rochester. A. Karnes, a private banker of that city, who was not doing a large business in deposits, suspended on the 6th for want of currency.

The Albany Knickerbocker learns from good authority that the American Express Company has declared a cash dividend of fifty per cent., and a stock dividend of eighty per cent.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has decided that all persons who are required to take out licenses under the internal revenue laws must give new bonds before receiving licenses for the ensuing year.

The enormous profits of the National Bank Note Company, of New York, have come out in a recent law suit. During five months in 1863 it paid dividends from its accumulated surplus earnings amounting to 310 per cent. The $50 shares of the company are now worth $735.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, in the assessment of the annual income tax, will not require of farmers the return of the value of their farm products consumed by themselves and their families. The instructions to the Assessors will expressly authorize this relief.

In the debate in the House on Thursday in relation to vignettes on the currency, one member sent to the Clerk's desk a new table of values which read thus: "Two Clarks make one Washington; two Washingtons and one Clark make one Fessenden; two Fessendens make one Spinner; two Spinners make one Chase; five Chases make one Madison," etc.

Ragged and mutilated currency is redeemed at the United States Treasury in sums of three dollars or over. When you get three dollars worth on hand, put it in small packages, pin a paper band around with your name, post office address and the amount; then put it in an envelope and address it to the "Treasury of the United States, Washington, D. C." It goes and returns free of postage.

The report of the Revenue Commission on the subject of excessive importations is published. It gives statistics showing that five times as many packages of goods were imported into New York in the first six weeks of 1866 as in the same period of 1863. The imports of January and February were over $32,500,000. To prevent a panic the Commission recommend the passage by Congress of a resolution increasing the duties on imports 50 per cent. for ninety days, with the single exception of printing paper, unsized, used for books and newspapers exclusively.

The Titusville (Pa.) Herald says the Petroleum Bank of Titusville, which was closed immediately on the suspension of Culver, Penn & Co., heretofore announced, was not a National Bank, although a sign was out to that effect. The Crawford Co. Bank, at Meadville, had never complied with the act by depositing bonds and had issued no National Bank notes. The same is true of the Oil City Bank, Venango Co Bank, and Lawrence Co. Bank. Notes of all these banks were sold on Wednesday in Titusville at from 15 cents to 50 cents on the dollar.

Congressional Doings.

In the Senate, on the 2d, a new bill for the equalization of bounties was introduced by Senator Wilson, similar in its provisions to the one already reported.....The Finance Committee reported the House Loan Bill without amendments.....The other business transacted was unimportant.

In the house, on the 2d, the morning hour was occupied in the introduction of bills and considering resolutions, all of which were referred to appropriate committees. .....The resolutions offered two weeks previously by Mr. Rogers of New Jersey, in relation to the Federal and Confederate debt, came up in their order, and were referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.....A resolution was offered that the Military Committee report at an early day a bill equalizing bounties. Mr. Schenck said the Committee was at work upon such a bill. The resolution passed.....Another resolution was offered, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, requesting the Secretary of the Navy to send a sufficient naval force to the fishing grounds off the coast of British America to protect our fishermen in the enjoyment of their privileges.....Mr. Raymond offered a resolution providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate and report to the next session of Congress a more satisfactory mode of transportation between the Western States and the seaboard.....The resolution of Mr. Davis, indorsing the reconstruction policy of the President, came up, and was discussed until the expiration of the morning hour.....The special order for the day was the consideration of the army bill, but it was postponed to April 12, on account of the absence of Mr. Blaine.

In the Senate, on the 3d, Mr. Sumner's resolution of inquiry whether persons were employed in the Treasury and Post Office Department who had not taken the oath prescribed by Congress, was passed.....The Finance Committee reported adversely on the House bill amending the internal revenue law.....A bill for the funding and payment of outstanding liabilities of the United States was taken up and passed. It will be found in full in our telegraphic report of Senate proceedings.....The bill for the reorganization of the Judiciary came up in its order, but the report closed without informing us what disposition was made of it.

In the House, on the 3d, the bill further regulating the appointment of volunteer officers in the regular navy was passed..... The bill for the relief of seamen borne on the books of vessels lost in the naval service was defeated. The bill creating the rank of Brigadier-General Commanding in the Marine Corps was laid on the table, after a lengthy discussion.....The contested election case of Dodge vs. Brooks was taken up, and the majority and minority reports discussed at great length. No final action was taken. The other business transacted was unimportant.

In the Senate, on the 4th, a joint resolution was passed directing the Secretary of War to take steps for preserving the graves of Union soldiers from desecration.....The President's veto of the civil rights bill was taken up, and Mr. Trumbull made a speech thereon.

In the House, on the 4th, the Brooks-Dodge contested election case was discussed, but no result reached.

In the Senate, on the 5th, Mr. Edmunds, the newly appointed Senator from Vermont, appeared and was sworn in.....A joint resolution in relation to bounties to colored soldiers, correcting an omission in the muster rolls, was passed.....The veto message was taken up, and Mr. Johnson spoke in favor of sustaining the President. Mr. Wade moved to pass the bill over the veto, but the Senate, by a vote of 34 to 12, voted to postpone its further consideration.

In the House, on the 5th, the Committee on Military Affairs made a number of reports, which were acted upon, the most important of which was a bill construing section 4 of the army appropriation bill, granting three months' extra pay to officers of volunteers, to include those who were in service March 3, 1865. The bill was passed, and also a joint resolution construing the bounty law to apply to any person entitled to bounty discharged by reason of a wound received while under orders, and not on furlough.....The deficiency bill was passed, with the proviso against placing the likeness of any living person on the fractional currency notes.....The New York contested election case was taken up and considered, but no final action taken. .....The House concurred in some of the Senate amendments to the naval appropriation bill, and non-concurred in others, and appointed a committee of conference.

In the Senate, on the 6th, an amendment to the pension laws was reported, which allows no person to receive two pensions at the same time.....Mr. Fessenden introduced a bill providing important amendments to the act establishing national banks, which will be found in full in our report of proceedings.....Mr. Lane of Kansas offered a resolution for the admission of rebel States to representation in Congress upon certain conditions, among which was that they should grant the right of suffrage to colored persons who can read, and who own or pay taxes on $250 worth of property. The resolution lies on the table for the present .....The veto message of the President on the civil rights bill was taken up at 1 o'clock, and discussed by Messrs. Lane of Kansas, Wade, Doolittle, Davis, Saulsbury, and Yates, and the question being, "Shall the bill pass, notwithstanding the President's objections?" it was decided in the affirmative, by yeas 33, nays 15.....A copy of the veto message and the result of the vote just given was sent to the House, and the Senate adjourned to meet on Monday.

In the House, on the 6th, the contested election case of Dodge against Brooks, from the Eighth Congressional district of New York was taken up. After further debate, the amendments to the report of the committee having been voted down, the resolution declaring Mr. Brooks not entitled to the seat was adopted by a vote of 84 to 45, and the resolution declaring Mr. Dodge entitled to the same was adopted by 72 to 52. Mr. Dodge was at once sworn in.....The President sent in a message covering communications from the Secretary of the Treasury and the Postmaster General, recommending modifications in the oath prescribed by the law of July 4, 1862, and earnestly adding his own recommendation to theirs. It was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Proclamation by the President.

Official Declaration of Peace.

WASHINGTON, April 2.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

A Proclamation.

WHEREAS, By proclamations on the 15th and 19th of April, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, the President of the United States, in virtue of the power vested in him by the Constitution and laws, declared that the laws of the United States were opposed, and the execution thereof obstructed, in the States of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas, by combinations too powerful to be suppressed by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings, or by the powers vested in the marshals by law; and

WHEREAS, By another proclamation, made on the 16th day of August, in the same year, in pursuance of an act of Congress, approved July 13, 1861, the inhabitants of Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi, and Florida, except the inhabitants of that part of the State of Virginia lying west of the Allegheny mountains, and to such other parts of that State and the other States before named as might maintain loyal adhesion to the Union and the Constitution, or might be, from time to time, occupied and controlled by the forces of the United States, engaged in the disposition of insurgents, were declared to be in a state of insurrection against the United States; and

WHEREAS, By another proclamation, on the first day of July, 1862, issued in pursuance of an act of Congress approved June 7, in the same year, the insurrection was declared to be still existing in the States aforesaid, with the exception of certain specified counties in the State of Virginia; and

WHEREAS, By another proclamation made on the 2d of April, 1863, in pursuance of an act of Congress of July 13, 1861, the exemptions named in the proclamation of August 16, 1861, were revoked, and the inhabitants of the States of Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi, Florida, and Virginia, except the forty-eight counties of Virginia designated as West Virginia, and the ports of New Orleans, Key West, Port Royal and Beaufort in South Carolina, were declared to be in a state of insurrection against the United States; and

WHEREAS, The House of Representatives, on the 22d of July, 1861, adopted a resolution in the words following, viz:

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, That the present deplorable civil war has been forced upon the country by the disunionists of the Southern States, now in revolt against the constitutional Government of the United States, and in arms around the capital; that in this national emergency Congress, banishing all feelings of mere passion or resentment, will recollect only its duty to the whole country; that this war is not waged on our part in any spirit of oppression, nor for any purpose of conquest or subjugation, nor for the purpose of overthrowing nor interfering with the rights or established institutions of those States, but to maintain and defend the supremacy of the Constitution and preserve the Union with all its equality and the dignity of the several states unimpaired, and that as soon as these objects are accomplished, the war ought to cease;" and

WHEREAS, The Senate of the United States, on the 20th of July, 1861, adopted a resolution in the words following, viz; (same as above); and

WHEREAS, These resolutions, though not joint or concurrent in form, are substantially identical, and as such may be regarded as having expressed the sense of Congress upon the subject to which they relate; and

WHEREAS, By my proclamation of the 13th of June last, the insurrection in the State of Tennessee was declared to have been supressed, the authority of the United States therein to be undisputed, and such officers as had been deputed, to be in the unrestricted exercise of their official functions; and

WHEREAS, There now exists no organized armed resistance of misguided citizens or others to the authority of the United States in the States of Georgia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas, and Florida, and the laws can be sustained and enforced therein by proper civil authority, State or Federal, and the people of the said States are well and loyally disposed, and have conformed or will conform in their legislation to the condition of affairs growing out of the amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting slavery within the limits and jurisdiction of the United States; and

WHEREAS, In consideration of these before-cited premises, it the manifest determination of the American people that no State, of its own will, has the right to go out of, or separate itself, or be separated from, the American Union, and that therefore each State ought to remain and constitute an integral part of the United States; and

WHEREAS, The people of the several before-mentioned States have, in the manner aforesaid, given satisfactory evidence that they acquiesce in this sovereign and important restoration of the national unity; and

WHEREAS, It is believed to be the fundamental principle of the Government that the people who have revolted, and have been overcome and subdued, must so be dealt with as to induce them voluntarily to become friends, or else they must be held by absolute military power, or else so devastated as to forever prevent them from doing harm as enemies, which last named policy is abhorrent to humanity and freedom; and

WHEREAS, The Constitution of the United States provides for the constitutional communities only as States, and not as Territories, dependencies, or protectorates; and

WHEREAS, Their consent must necessarily, and by the Constitution of the United States is placed on a like footing as to rights, immunities, dignity, and power with the several powers with which they are governed, and which political policy is the principle of right and justice, well calculated to induce the people of the said States to become more and more constant in their renewed allegiance; and

WHEREAS, Standing armies, military occupation, military law, military tribunals, and the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus are, in times of peace, dangerous to public liberty, and incompatible with the individual rights of persons, and contrary to the genius of our free institutions and exhaustive of the national resources, and ought not therefore to be sanctioned or allowed, except in cases of actual necessity for repelling an invasion, or for the suppression of treason; and

WHEREAS, The Government of the United States, from the beginning of the insurrection to its suppression, has been carried on in conformity with the principles herein set forth and enumerated; Therefore,

I ANDREW JOHNSON, President of the United States, do hereby PROCLAIM AND DECLARE that the insurrection which has heretofore existed in the States of Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi and Florida IS AT AN END, AND HENCEFORTH TO BE SO REGARDED.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this second day of April, in the year of our Lord 1866, and of the Independence of the United States of America the ninetieth.

(Signed) ANDREW JOHNSON.

By the President:

W. H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.

The Rival of Niagara.

Livingston, the celebrated traveler in his recent book of his travels in Africa thus describes the most wonderful geographical discovery of modern times:

The Victoria Falls of the Zambesi river are among the most remarkable curiosities of the interior of Africa. For several miles above the cataract the river is smooth and tranquil, flowing by lovely islands thickly covered with tropical vegetation. Lofty palm trees with their fruit in golden clusters, grow abundantly upon the banks. Many flowers peep out near the water's edge. But these charming islands are soon succeeded by dangerous rapids. It is only when the river is very low that they can be passed in safety. Elephants and hippopotami are often swept over the falls, and, of course, smashed to pulp. In entering the race of waters, the party was requested not to speak, as talking might impair the virtue of the "medicine." There were places where the utmost exertions of the canoe-men had to be put forth to force the boat to the only safe part of the rapid, and to prevent it from sweeping down broadside on. At times, it seemed as if nothing could save the canoe from dashing headlong against the rocks, but just at the nick of time the word was passed to the steersman, who, with ready pole, turned the craft a little aside, and it glided swiftly past the threatened danger.

On reaching the falls, a spectacle of indescribable magnificence was presented to the travelers. The cataract is formed by a crack across the river, the bed of the Zambesi, at that place. The lips of the crack are still quite sharp, except about three feet of the edge over which the river rolls. The walls go sheer down from the lips without any projecting crag. The cleft is in length a few yards more than the breadth of the Zambesi, which was found to be, by measurement, a little over 1,860 yards, but this number was retained to mark the year in which the fall was for the first time carefully examined. The width at the narrowest point, was found to be 80 yards, and at its widest somewhat more. Into this chasm, twice as deep as Niagara Falls, the river, a mile wide, rolls with a deafening roar, forming the Victoria cataract. It is broken into several partial falls by rocks and islands, in all making upward of 2,700 feet of perennial falls. The whole body of water rolls clear over quite unbroken, but after a descent of ten or more feet the entire mass suddenly becomes like a huge sheet of driven snow. Pieces of water leap from it in the form of comets with tails streaming behind, till the whole snowy sheet is changed into myriads of rushing, leaping, aqueous comets. The amount of water is probably exceeded by Niagara, though not in the months when the Zambesi is in flood. This vast body of water necessarily incloses in its descent a large volume of air, which, forced into the cleft to an unknown depth, rebounds, and rushes up loaded with vapor to form three or even six columns, as if of steam, visible at the distance of 21 miles. On reaching the height of 200 feet from the level of the river, this vapor becomes condensed into a perpetual shower of fine rain.

THE "BOOMERANG."—The United States consul at Australia has forwarded to Gen. Spinner a specimen of the Australian "boomerang," being a weapon of war—used also in the chase. It consists of a heavy wooden club about eight inches long, three wide, and one-half inch thick; flat on one side and convex on the other; bent, without moving the flat side out of its own plane, either into an arc or into an obtuse angle. The club is thrown flat side down, spinning with great velocity, and it will either return to its owner or return to the right or left, according to its first position. It skims upon the air like a bird with the wings expanded, the rotation causing the plane of rotation to resist change of direction, and thus avoiding those sudden and capricious movements observed on flat stones or plates of metal when thrown edgewise through the air. Naval architects have attempted to apply the principle of the "boomerang" to screw steamships, but so far the idea has not found favor with the ship-builders.

Passage of the Civil Rights Bill.

The passage of the Civil Rights Bill in the Senate on the 6th, is thus described by the reporter of the Associated Press in the telegraphic columns of the dailies:

At 1 o'clock the message of the President vetoing the civil rights bill, was taken up.

Mr. LANE defended at great length the President from the charges of usurpation and dictation. He said the President approved of the resolution he had offered. He said: Mr. President, I am not as conversant with the constituents of the Senator from Ohio as he is, but I will venture the assertion that outside of New England there is not a single state in the Union—not one State—but will, by vote, indorse the policy of reconstruction as advised by President Johnson, and expressed in that joint resolution. You cannot go before the people of this country on a policy to give unqualified suffrage to the blacks. The President has been and is now, in my judgment, as anxious to harmonize the difficulties of the Union party as any Senator on this floor. If he was met in the same spirit, that party would be reunited and this Union would be restored. His advances are met by insult; his advances are met by denunciation from the heads of the Republican party on this Senate floor, in language without a parallel. So far as I am concerned, Mr. President, I propose to day and hereafter to take my position alongside of the President of the Republican party, and stand there unflinchingly, defending him against the Senator from Ohio, as I defended his predecessor against the same Senator.

Mr. WADE said, in reply: Who is your President, that every man must bow to his opinion, if you please? Why, sir, we all know him; he is no stranger to this body. We have measured him, sir; we know his height, his length, his breadth, and his capacity—all about him; and you set him up as a paragon, and declare here upon the floor of this Senate that you are going to wear his collar. Is that the idea—that you are going to be his apologist and defender in whatever he may propose? Three millions of people, sir are exposed to the outrages and insults and murder from these worse than savages, their former masters; murdered, as we are told, every day; their lives taken away; their humanity trampled under foot; and when Congress, under the Constitution of the United States, is endeavoring to tender them some little protection, how are we met here? Every attempt of your Moses has been to trample them down—making them worse, and throwing every obstruction in the way of everything proposed by Congress.

Mr. LANE, in reply—Wear a collar! Indicted for treason! Pro-slavery and grand jury! Hunted from State to State by a writ founded upon that indictment for treason. A hundred thousand dollars offered for my head! Jim Lane wear a collar!! Great God! Mr. President, wherever he is, know that George is denied for false by both friend and enemy.

Mr. WADE—I wish he was.

Mr. LANE read the extract given above, and said he appealed to Mr. Wade to withdraw the serious charge he had made against the President. He (Lane) would not defend the President's speech of the 22d of February, as it was made under excitement.

Mr. DOOLITTLE said he had striven to prevent a collision between Congress and the Executive, and was sorry to see a disposition among some of his friends toward the Executive, as though he was unworthy of their confidence. It contains propositions upon which the ablest men—men in whom we had undoubted confidence—differ, and trusted the bill could be placed in charge of the Judiciary Committee, and that Committee would frame one which would avoid the objections raised to it in this body, in the other House, and by the Executive. He was desirous of preserving amicable relations between Congress and the Executive. The Legislature of his State had passed a resolution requesting him to vote for the civil rights bill, the President's objections thereto notwithstanding. He had already set forth at length his objections to the measure, and he could not vote for it, and would abide by the consequences. He entertained the highest respect for the gentlemen composing the Legislature of his State, but standing where he did, he saw what they could not; they were at a distance, and influenced by a party press and persons interested in a continuation of disorder in the South.

Mr. DAVIS opposed the bill, favoring the veto. He said if the bill became a law he should feel compelled to regard himself an enemy of the Government, and to work for its overthrow.

Mr. SAULSBURY said he should consider the passage of the bill as inaugurating revolution; and that it would lead to bloodshed, war, and disunion.

Mr. YATES urged Senators to march forward in the performance of their duty, and to do it now and hereafter.

The vote was then taken—"Shall the bill pass, the President's veto to the contrary, notwithstanding?"

YEAS—Messrs. Anthony, Brown, Chandler, Clark, Conness, Cragin, Cresswell, Edmunds, Fessenden, Foster, Grimes, Harris, Henderson, Howard, Howe, Kirkwood, Lane of Indiana, Morgan, Morrill, Nye, Poland, Pomeroy, Ramsey, Sherman, Sprague, Stewart, Sumner, Trumbull, Wade, Willey, Williams, Williamson, Yates—33.

NAYS—Messrs. Buckalew, Cowan, Davis, Doolittle, Guthrie, Hendricks, Johnson, Lane of Kansas, McDougall, Nesmith, Norton, Riddle, Saulsbury, Van Winkle, Wright—15.

ABSENT—Mr. Dixon.

When Mr. Morgan recorded his vote in the affirmative, the galleries applauded very loudly. The Chair announced, amid great applause, that the bill, having received a two-thirds vote, had become a law.

On motion of Mr. TRUMBULL, the Secretary of the Senate was ordered to communicate to the House a copy of the veto message, together with the result of the vote, above given.

The Senate adjourned at 6:30 p. m., to meet on Monday next.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, April 9.
COTTON—Middling	$ .38	@	.39
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	8.25	@	8.00
WHEAT—No. 1. Spring	1.63	@	1.69
BARLEY		@	1.15
CORN—Sound Western	.73	@	.78
OATS—Dull	.55	@	.57½
PETROLEUM—Crude	.26	@	.26½
PORK—Mess new	25.87	@	26.00
BEEF HAMS	38.00	@	39.00
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	14.00	@	18.00
DRY GOODS—Merrimacs	.21	@	.22
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville		@	.37½
Brown Sheetings—Amoskeag		@	.25
Delaines—Manchester		@	.24
Denims—Manchester		@	.37½
GOLD—1.27¾.
CHICAGO, April 7, 1866.
BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$80.00	@	120.00
BEEVES—Stock to prime	3.75	@	$ 6.50
BEANS	.75	@	1.25
BRAN	8.00	@	8.50
BUTTER	.20	@	.32
CHEESE—Western	.17	@	.19
COFFEE—Rio	.26	@	.28
Java	.39	@	.40
EGGS	.23	@	.24
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	6.00	@	7.00
Malaga Lemons	7.00	@	7.50
Dried N. Y. Apples	.15	@	.16
Peaches Pared	.33	@	.35
Raisins, M. R	4.10	@	4.00
FLOUR—Winter White	9.00	@	12.00
Spring Extra	7.25	@	8.00
Rye per bbl		@	4.50
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	10.00	@	10.50
Whitefish, " "	8.00	@	8.25
Codfish, per hundred	9.00	@	11.00
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.46	@	.47
Oats "	.26	@	.27
Rye	.49	@	.50
Wheat—Spring No. 1	1.27	@	1.28
Barley Canadian—sample		@	.95
HIGHWINES	2.20	@	2.23
HOGS—Dressed Middling to prime	10.25	@	10.75
Live	8.50	@	9.00
LARD	.18	@	.18¼
PORK—Mess	25.00	@	25.12
POTATOES	.60	@	.70
SHEEP—First and second class	4.50	@	5.75
SUGARS—Cuba	.12½	@	.14
New York Refined	.17¼	@	.17½
White A	.16½	@	.16¾
White B	.16¼	@	.16½
Yellow C	.14¼	@	.14½
SEEDS—Timothy, ⅞ bag	3.50	@	3.75
Clover	5.40	@	6.00
SALT—Fine	2.25	@	2.50
Coarse		@	2.00

Miscellany.

THE BABY SOLDIER.

Another little private Mustered in
The army of temptation
And of sin.

Another soldier arming
For the strife,
To fight the toilsome battles
Of a life.

Another little sentry
Who will stand
On guard, while evils prowl
On every hand.

Lord, our little darling
Guide and save,
'Mid the perils of the march
To the grave.

IN THE DARK.

I wouldn't have been Robinson Crusoe, not for five hundred a year and no slack. It's all werry well being your own foreman and master, and so on, but then such a life to my mind 's like a well-flagged deal board just made ready for flooring. You've been over it, and touched it well down with your jack-plane, and it finished off with your trying-plane, and there it is,—or ought to be, if it ain't,—scamped just like a bit o' satin, every knot just like a smooth brown eye, and every bit o' grain standing out as if polished; but then turn it over, and it's all as rough, and shaggy, and splintery as can be. It's all werry well being master and gauger, but then you has to be journeyman and laborer into the bargain. But that ain't it so much, for I wouldn't give a clout nail, let alone tuppence, for a feller as can't turn his hand to anything in a push; it's the lonesomeness of the thing.

I expect it's not liking to be alone made me get married; and I must say that now there's an old bird at home, and five little ones in the nest, I ain't werry lonesome there. How they do open their precious young beaks, and what a sight o' stuff it does take afore you can persuade 'em to shut again! But I ain't grumbling about that, mind, and I hope I never shall. However, as I said afore, I don't like being alone, for it puts me in mind of a werry lonely time; but I do like having a mate come in for an hour's chat, and join me over a pipe and a pint of half-and-half in a quiet sociable manner, same as you have to-night, Dick Smith.

That's a good trying-plane o' yours,—the one you had in the shop to-day,—but I never did see, and don't suppose I ever shall see, such a tool as one I lost about four years ago,—leastways I didn't lose it, for I sold it; but it was a loss, for all that. Fine, sound bit o' beech as ever you saw; while as to the iron, there was never a better bar o' stuff came out o' Sheffield. Just show it the ile stand now and then, and knock it up to the right set, and then—whish! whish!—the shavings would seem to run off a board as fine, and thin, and soft as—as—well, as shavings, you know.

I sold that plane for two shillings, and the next week I'd have given five to get it back, but was gone again, and I've never set eyes on it since. You see, nothing looks worse than for a man to be parting with his tools; and when you see a fellow doing of it, he's either one as isn't worth his salt, or else he's werry hard drove.

Now I suppose I do make my salt, mostlings, or else I shouldn't have been two years in this shop; but about the time I told you of, I was going to part with one o' my tools, so you may suppose that I was hard drove. It don't matter where it was, but it warn't a hundred miles from Gray's Inn Lane; and, after being out six weeks, I was took on, and got my order to be off with a lot more down into Surrey, where there was a cottage army, as they calls it a-building.

I slips off out o' the yard, ready to bust with the good news, and I was at the bottom o' the lane and across Holborn in no time; and in less than that I was down our court where we lodged, and up two pair o' stairs, and into the room before my wife had time to hide what she was doing of.

"Hooray, mother," I says, "took on!" and then I stops short; for though I would not let her think I knew she had been having a good cry, it all at once struck me that I should be setting her off again; for I'd engaged to go down into the country for a month certain, and I should have to leave her behind,—so I stops short.

"O father!" she says, "I am thankful; for I don't know what could have gone next."

We had, somehow, then got into the way o' callin' ourselves "Mother" and "Father;" and so she said she didn't know what could have gone next; and I'm sure I couldn't have told her, for a many of our things had gone about that time; for what with no work, and a long spell or two o' sickness, we had to make a good many visits to a certain relative, as I'm sure every honest, hard-working man hates the werry name of.

And now I ain't speaking fair, for I said we had to make a good many visits; but it warn't we, for I'm blest if I wasn't such a coward myself that I daren't go, but stopped sneaking at home, and let the wife go instead, which worn't at all manly, says you; no more it worn't.

Howsomever, when she said that, I knew that something must go; and I felt so light-hearted with the idea o' that work that I made up my mind to go myself, and wrapping my old favorite plane up in a red handkercher, I slips out into Fetter Lane, where our uncle lived. Off I goes, full swing, as if it was all right, and with my mind made up to run right in, pawn the plane, and then let the missus have the money, and make shift till I could send her some more; and then what with thinking about having to tell her I was going into the country, and about how soon the foreman would let me draw something on account, if I didn't shoot right past the shop.

"Don't turn back yet," I says to myself, "or people will think there's something wrong." So I walks right on, and gets into Farringdon Market, and makes a bit of a twist, and comes back again, meaning not to miss it this time.

There it was,—three golden balls hung out, and a window full of everything one could find a name for; workingmen's tools and watches, silk handkerchers and silver spoons, flutes and fiddles without any strings, pistols and telescopes,—the one to make a hole in you, and t'other to look at it with,—glass decanters and tooth-drawers, pincers, rings, and chains, and ear-rings, and musical boxes, and composing-sticks; but there wasn't neither a smoothing, nor a rebate, nor a moulding, nor a jack, nor a trying plane in the whole window; and I out by as hard as ever I could; and, "Tom Scott," I says, "you're a fool! You've come to the wrong shop!"

All at once I pulled up, and pretends to be looking in at the fishing-tackle shop, and stood there a-talking, as it were, to an old stuffed Jack that was a-staring at me with his yellow eyes, and his mouth wide open and full of hooky teeth, that would let anything go in, but precious little come out again; and then, somehow or another, it seemed to me as that great stuffed jack, or pike, or whatever you call it, was a sorter imitation o' that precious relation as I came out on purpose to see.

"Ah!" says I, "and we poor chaps is the gudgeon as he lives on. And a precious gudgeon you are, Tom Scott,—six feet high, fourteen stone weight, and humbugging yourself, and pretending all sorts 'o gammon, because you ain't got enough stuff in you to go in like a man to pawn that plane. Tom," I says, "I'm ashamed of you! Take it home again, and ask the missus to do it for you, and don't be a humbug and say you got to the wrong shop."

And so I gave it him—that's me, you know—hot and strong for about five minutes, and then I felt better.

"Don't be a donkey," I says; and then I hugs the plane up tight, and walks on; but I'm blessed if everybody didn't seem to know where I was a-goin', and kep' staring at the red hankercher, when they wouldn't have took a bit o' notice if I had carried the plane in my hand, open like.

"Now for it," I says; for I'd made my mind quite up, and meant business, when I meets a policeman, and he looks at me, and I looks at him; and I don't know how a chap feels that has stolen a plane, but if he feels half as bad as I did that afternoon, why, the sooner he turns honest, and earns the tool instead, the better for him.

I knew I was a fool to mind, and kep' telling myself so; but it wasn't no use, bless you, for before I'd got a dozen yards past the policeman, if I didn't turn round to look, and as a matter of course, there was he turned round too, and staring at me. Talk about a look! why, his eyes went through me like mortice chisels in a door jamb!

I turns round again, and scuffles on, meaning to rush into the shop, "Now for it," I says again; and I believe I should have done it, if a chap hadn't have come out at the same moment, with his hand in his pocket chinking some money, and we nearly ran against one another, and started back, for he knowed me by sight, and I knowed him, through having worked a few benches off one another up at Cubitt's.

We just nods, and he was gone like a shot; for he knowed I could tell what he'd been in there for, while, of course, I put it to you now, I couldn't go in then, could I? On I goes ever so far up the lane, and then back once more, and this time, although I knowed everybody was looking at me, I blunders right into the shop, slips off the handkercher, and bangs the plane down on the counter.

"Lend me five shillings on this for a week," I says; and two or three people in cupboards like reaches round to see who made such a noise; but as there was four or five more people in the place, nobody takes any more notice o' me; and there I stands, hot and savage, till a skinny little chap with a penholder across his mouth, like a bit, because he was vicious, comes up and turns my old plane over, and then he mumbles as well as he could for the pen,—

"How much?"

"Twelve and six," I says; for I thought he meant what did I give for the plane.

He gives it a push and shakes his head, and I was just going to speak, when I feels a hand on my shoulder, and looking round, there was the policeman I met, and he says,—

"Where did you get it from, my man?"

"Bought it," says I, in a regular flurry.

"Where?" says he.

"Charing Cross," I says; and, to make a long story short, I had to let him walk back to my lodging with me, and see my basket of tools, and then he only seemed half satisfied; while half an hour after I roused up and went out, quite savage, swinging the plane in my hand, and sold it at a marine store shop for two shillings.

It was hard work to comfort the wife when she knew that she was going to be left alone; for "O Tom," she says, "the poverty 's hard enough to bear without having to be separated." But I promised her that I'd take a lodging, and get her down with me as soon as I found the work likely to last; but next morning at breakfast I saw more than one tear drip into her tea-cup.

But it was a bright morning, and I'd been doing all I could to cheer her up; for I wasn't going to start till nine; so I gave young Tom a treat,—washed his head for him, and rubbed on the soap till his little nob was all white.

"Now sloosh, faryer," he says; and I sloushed him, and never got the soap once in his eyes, nor yet up his nose, which wasn't surprising, seeing what a little chap he was then, and no nose at all to speak of.

Well, at last I had my tool-basket ready, and a hammer through the handles to swing it over my shoulder. There were three clean aprons inside and some odds and ends I should want; and then there was nothing else to do but say good by. But there, I won't tell you about it, for she took on a great deal, as it was the first time I had been away from her.

"You will write, Tom?" says she.

"Why, of course," I says.

"And I've put four sheets and some envelopes in," she says, "so that you needn't write on the back of the sandpaper with your pencil, for it's so hard to make out."

And then, after five minutes' silence, I bolted out, and wouldn't look behind till I was out of the court.

Why, of course I was sorry to leave her behind; and I went along with my heart feeling as heavy as a lump of lead, and everybody I meet looking dim and weary, which I should think must have been indigestion, or something of that kind; but it soon went off, and the clear sunshiny morning seemed to brighten one up, till I felt so hearty and cheery that I was ashamed of myself, for I felt as though I ought to be miserable, like I knew the wife was at home. But there we were, several of us, along with carts full of scaffold-poles and material, and before long we were out in the open country.

Out in the open country—God bless it!—with the birds twittering in the trees and hedges; the blue sky overhead, with now and then a light cloud slowly sailing across; the soft wind smelling that delicious, that we opened our mouths and drew in great long breaths, as though we should never be tired. There were flowers everywhere,—lilac, laburnum, and may; orchards full of pinky apple blossom; while as to the green of the fields in the golden sunshine, ah! it was a sight to men who had been cooped up in close London courts, without knowing where the next day's bread was to come from!

Out in the open country, with fresh beauties at every turn! Why, we were like so many boys, running by the carts, larking, shouting, and making regular fools of ourselves, which must, of course, have been owing to the light, free air. I've heard talk of prisoners, and sick men, and their delight at being out once more; but they could not have felt happier than we did, out in the open country, on that bright May day.

Every now and then, though, something dull would keep coming over me, and I wasn't sorry when it did; for what business had I to be so happy and cheerful, knowing how miserable I had left some one at home? But so it was; and the bit o' blackness wore off, and I was as lively as the best of them five minutes after; for, mind you, it isn't money as can give the real gladness of heart.

Well, we got down to the place, and the work went on merrily. The foreman was a good fellow, and made me one or two little advances; and as there seemed to me to be work for a good three or four months, I began to look out for a little place where I could bring some one down to; and a comfortable lodging I soon found, made all my little arrangements, and sent a letter up with a post-office order inside, so that some one and the two little ones could come down comfortable next day but one.

Every one, I dare say, has his own fancies; and I don't mind telling you one o' mine. I don't know any one thing so satisfactory as driving a nail home. You make a small hole with your brad-awl; in goes your nail; and then, tapping gently at first, you go on by degrees, until the head gets nearer and nearer, and at last is driven right into the soft deal board.

Not much in it! says you. Perhaps not to your way of thinking; but every man to his trade, and, you may depend upon it, in every trade there's a similar feeling. I've seen blacksmiths laugh as they pegged away at their iron; the old cobblers grin as they drew the wax-end tight; the painters wag their heads as they laid on the flatting; and something o' the same kind in most trades; and it's only reasonable that it should be so, for a fellow would not be much of a workman if he didn't love his craft.

Well, I was busy driving the nails in a piece o' boarding, thinking all the time about the missus coming down, when I makes a false stroke, hit the nail on one side, and it flew up and caught me right in the eye.

Talk about agony! No one knows what I suffered, for in a short time the inflammation spread from one eye to the other, and I was quite blind, so that I had to be led home to my lodging. Perhaps you know what a bit o' dust, or a lash, or anything o' that kind is in your eye; you know the pain and worrying it gives you; so you can think what I suffered—a great, tall, stout fellow—as I lay turning about, with the sweat dropping off me.

Doctor came, and did all he could. Next day came, and the pain seemed easier. Next day after that came, and a letter saying my wife would not be there for another day, and some one had to read it to me, for everything was as black as night; and at last, worn out with pain and lonesomeness, and the horrid feeling that I was to be a blind, helpless man, I turned over upon my face, and stopped there till the pillow was quite wet.

Yes, I knew it was the act of a child; but I felt one then, as I thought of the bright light of God's sunshine gone from me forever; that I should gaze no more upon the loving face of my own wife, and that the merry, bright eyes of my little ones would sparkle for me no more. That I should henceforth grope about in the dark, seeking, like that sorcerer in the Testament, for some one to lead me by the hand. That I, the great man of bone and muscle, should be in a moment stricken down helpless, to be henceforth a burden to my poor wife, and we—poor people.

It was the act of a child, I know; for, with an exceeding bitter cry, I lay there and sobbed miserably, while every tear smarted and burned like melted lead running over my eyeballs. O yes, it was the act of a child, and I knew that I was now as helpless as the weakest. How I lay and thought of poor blind Samson, and pitied him! How I called to mind those with sightless eyeballs whom I had often passed by uncaringly; and how I thought and thought what could I do for my bread in the long, long night that now seemed my future.

"In the dark! in the dark!" I kept on groaning to myself as I lay; and then I thought of the past time, and of how great a blessing I had thoughtlessly enjoyed; and then the thought came to me of other blessings which never seemed blessings before, for being mostling short o' money, I always thought myself hard used, and growled more than I need have done. And at last of all thinking and suffering, my head seemed to get hot, and I turned delirious,—half mad, you know,—and went on terribly, I suppose, till two days after, when I seemed to wake up in the dark, and lay still, thinking and wondering where I was, till I heard a noise as of some one moaning, and I calls out, "Who's there?" I knew who it was directly, for I just heard the one word "Tom" sobbed out, and then there was an arm under my head, and tears falling upon my poor sightless face, and such tender, hopeful words whispering to me, as made my heart swell and beat; and I felt that, come what might—come sickness, come sorrow, blind, or able to see—I had some one to lean on, and to lead me by the hand.

We were werry quiet then, and I lay on my side trying to look through the black darkness at that dear old face that I could feel close by me, as some one kneeled down by the bed-side; but no, I could not see it with my eyes, though I could with my heart. And then she cried sobbing, and talked of hoping for the best, and of how the eyes of the blind had been opened, and that perhaps my affliction might, by His help, yet be removed. And so we talked and talked, and she said that we would sorrow no more about it, and then how much she could get by needlework, and all on so hopefully, that I seemed to brighten up; but only for a few moments, for I knew what a dead, helpless burden I should be. And then she must have seen my face working, and, poor lass! she broke down herself, when I said she had better have been left a widder.

At last, in the quiet o' that little room, not a sound to be heard but the twittering o' the birds outside the window, I said, in better hope, but we got no further than "Thy will be done."

* * * * * * *

Dick Smith, I never knowed how much love, and tenderness, and gentleness there was in this world until I groped about it in the dark. I'd been bitter, as many a disappointed workingman, and railed at my betters; but now, in the midst of my trouble, I learnt that I had walked all my life, in the dark, stumbling about, and not seeing the blessings that were spread around me. We never knew want during that dark month which we spent in that pleasant country place, where my wife led me about amongst the sweet spring flowers, while everybody had a kind and loving word for me. The governor allowed me half wages, and somebody did needlework, and they used to pay her double and treble, and send me all sorts o' things, so that we were well off. Then the doctor came every day, and told me I wasn't to fret about it, for he hoped I should get my sight yet.

One day I sat trembling in my chair, with the doctor operating,—not trembling at the pain, but for fear he might have been decided; somebody stood there, too, holding my hands, for she had got leave to be present. All at once there was a bright flash of light, and then I felt my head swim, and I fainted dead away, for I could not stand up against the swelling joy that burst upon me.

* * * * * * *

As keen a pair of eyes, as ready a pair of hands, and as willing and hopeful a heart as I hope are to be found in any workshop in England, Dick Smith; and I'm a humble and thankful man for it. But, Lord bless you, I has my fits of ill temper when things goes three-cornered; and then Patty comes and whispers—God save her—in my ear, then the sun shines again, and I think of old times before my accident, and say to her—

"Eyes shut, Patty. I was in the dark!"

OWEN'S LAKE.—Over in Tulare county, between the ridges of the Sierra Nevada, which there are toned down somewhat from the high altitude they boast in more Northern latitudes, lies Owen's Lake, a veritable Dead Sea, in whose water sports no living thing. Of this lovely sheet of water a well-known Californian writes as follows:

"Owen's Lake, so strongly impregnated with borax, alum, alkali, oil and other substances, is at last going to add something to the nation's wealth. One draught of its waters will poison a man, one immersion clean the hair off a dog, and it has been the grave of many Indians that run from bullets to try to swim its waters. A genius here will take a patent for tanning by its waters; he finds it will make good leather in ten days, without manual labor. He will start an export trade from here, bottling its water for barboring purposes and shearing sheep, cleaning hogs and making high foreheads."

.....Beautiful was the reply of a venerable man to the question whether he was still in the land of the living: "No, but I am almost there."

....."I feel," said an old lady, "that I've got about through with this world. I can't enjoy much more trouble."

CURRENT ITEMS.

Domestic Paragraphs.

—The City Hall bell in New York weighs 23,000 pounds.

—Taunton, Mass., boasts an Irishman 108 years old, and able to saw wood and drink whisky.

—The Nevada Transcript tells of a loafer who has slept in a hearse, where he had lodged every night for weeks.

—Mrs. Rowley recently died at Tuscarora, Steuben county, N. Y., in the hundredth year of her age, leaving nearly 200 direct descendants.

—The colored population of Indianapolis are having a great revival of religion. Eighty-three converts were baptised on Sunday by immersion.

—It has been decided that "deserters from the enemy during the rebellion, that enlisted in the Union army, are not entitled to Government bounties."

—The number of deaths in the United States army during the rebellion, exclusive of those who died from wounds and other causes after reaching their homes, amounts to 253,000.

—Cameo buttons for ladies' jackets are now the rage. They are of immense size frequently no two heads are alike. Steel and silver chains—called Bentons—are profusely used on bonnets.

—The finding of the gas metre in the ruins of Pike's opera house, at Cincinnati, turned off as stated by the private watchman, leaves the origin of the fire a greater mystery than ever.

—At a temperance meeting at South Reading, Mass., on Sunday night, the keeper of the vilest liquor-hole in the town came forward and renounced his business, and pledged himself never to use or sell rum again.

—Philo Chase of Litchfield, Conn., died a few days ago, aged seventy-five years. For the last twenty-five years his daily diet has been three pints of milk and one of whiskey. He adopted that diet from the conviction that solid food injured him.

—The Commercial List says that a Philadelphian, who, a few years ago, had a revenue of $20,000 per annum, and cut a large splurge among the bon ton of our city is now an attendant in an eating saloon in New York, on a salary of of a few dollars a week.

—The Enquirer Company of Cincinnati have purchased all the property on Vine street, between the gas office and Mozart Garden, on which they will erect a magnificent opera house, with printing offices in the rear.

—It is proposed to double the present capacity of the Erie canal by building a railroad track on each bank of the canal so that locomotives may be used for towing boats. The present capacity of the canal with horse power is 6,000,000 tons for a season of eight months.

—A. T. Stewart's new residence in New York, now nearly completed, will cost $1,500,000. Its ground size is 128 by 62 feet. Height of ceiling, first floor, 28 feet; second, 24 feet; third, 18 feet, basement 10 feet. It will be altogether the most elegant and expensive building in America.

—A family of five persons resided upon a farm in Derry, New Hampshire, for a period of fifty-three years, during which time there was neither a birth, death, or marriage in the family. Neither did they during the time put a letter into the Post Office, or take a newspaper.

—Helen Western, somewhat noted as an actress, was advertised to appear in "eleven characters and a clog dance" at a Pittsburgh theatre. When we read of all the new inventions for the "make up" of fashionable ladies at the present time, it is not [illegible] person to appear in so many parts.

—A Chicago correspondent of the Springfield Republican, speaking of the remains of bodies found in the first named city, says:—"It is pleasant to know that bodies are dissected and thrown into the lake from which we draw our water for consumption. It must be pleasant for people who have recently lost friends to reflect that in drinking their tea they may be imbibing a mild decoction flavored with a tincture of the one lost."

—On Saturday last Judge Stowe, of the Alleghany County Court, sentenced a young man named Noah Rea, to twenty-one years in the Penitentiary on three charges of burglary and assault. Twenty one years of solitary confinement! This is a fearful illustration of the barbarism of the system in vogue in the Pennsylvania State prisons. Twenty-one years without a sight of a single human face or hearing his own name called!

—A great 1st of April hoax was perpetrated in Philadelphia. A morning paper published correspondence between President Johnson and a suppositious President of a Johnson Association in that city, in which the former promised to come to the city and make a public address on that day. Accordingly many people visited the hotel where the President was supposed to be, and the church at which it was announced that Secretary Seward and Senator Cowan would accompany the President.

—A reporter, who was getting up an account of the mock-auction establishments of New York for a weekly paper, saw in one of the shops a person whom he took to be a countryman bidding on a watch. He stepped up to him and said, whispering in his ear, "Do you know where you are? This is a mock-auction concern!" The fellow, with an innocent look, replied, "I guess not," and kept on with his bidding. Going by the place again on the following day, the journalist observed the same fellow occupying his old position and still bidding as a "stool pigeon."

Foreign Gossip.

—It is stated that the plays of Sophocles, Euripides and Æschylus, and other classic authors, are shortly to be performed at one of the Paris theatres.

—Paris contains 37 Protestant churches, with 54 pastors. It is said that at the beginning of the present century there was not a single Protestant church or pastor in that city.

—At a recent great steeple chase, near Liverpool, thirty horses started, all the favorites were beaten, and the winner was a gaunt outsider, whose owner quietly pocketed $135,000 by the race.

—The House of Lords is really, on five days out of six, a caricature of a legislative assembly. The average number of peers present is a dozen—Most of them feeble old gentlemen, related to each other by matrimonial connections.

—Miss Edmonia Lewis, a young lady of color, has taken a studio in Rome and works as a sculptress. A correspondent says she is the only lady of her race in the United States who has thus applied herself to the study and practice of sculptural art.

—An agent from some great capitalists and contractors, who propose to establish a tunnel under the sea from Dover to Calais has arrived in Paris, to apply to the Emperor for permission to make borings on the French soil in order to ascertain the practicability of the scheme.

—One rumor about the Prince Napoleon Bonaparte is current, viz: That he means to go over to the United States and transfer his allegiance to the Stars and Stripes. I believe this to be only an ill-natured invention, but we live in such queer times that nothing is deemed improbable.

—Strangers in the House of Commons are not allowed to intimate the slightest signs of approval or disapproval of what they hear, and the rule is a salutary one. They must not look at a newspaper, or use an opera glass, or speak above the faintest whisper to each other. If a biscuit is eaten it must be done surreptitiously. But members themselves are often uproarious enough.

—There is to be a gigantic aquarium among the wonders of the Universal Exhibition, Paris. The front alone is to measure 100 feet. Every sort of fish is to be collected therein for the amusement of the public, and even sharks, cod and porpoises are to exhibit their peculiar habits and customs in grottoes and caves, which are to be excavated in the floor of the building, and filled with sea water.

—A Constantinople paper says that two antiquaries, in making excavations in Syria, have discovered a Jewish habitation entire, the construction of which dates two centuries previous to the Christian era. Its rooms are furnished after the Egyptian style, and these gentlemen found in them the five books of Moses, the Psalms of David, and another book containing Hebrew poetry, completely unknown.

—Late intelligence from Edinburgh is to the effect that a disease has broken out among the sheep in several portions of Scotland. Examinations have been made and all the evidence elicited goes to prove that the plague, which has assumed a serious nature, is "really the rinderpest." Heretofore it has been believed that sheep were exempt from attacks of this fearful malady but its appearance among the Scottish flocks does not warrant the assumptions of those scientific men who advocated the theory.

Personal and Literary.

FRANK LESLIE, at his establishment in New York, publishes eight illustrated periodicals, and keeps forty engravers constantly employed.

GEN. SHERIDAN, after his recent Mexican tour, stated his opinions succinctly and forcibly, as follows: "If I owned h—ll and Texas, I would rent Texas, and live at the other place."

MR. STEPHEN SMYTH, father of Gov. Smyth of New Hampshire, has voted for governor of that State fifty-nine consecutive years. His last vote was cast in 1865 for his own son.

REV. HENRY WARD BEECHER was once pastor of a congregation in Indianapolis which was too poor to paint the church edifice, and the young minister did the job with his own hands.

MRS. CHARLES, the author of the "Schonberg-Cotta Family," is publishing serially in an English magazine a story entitled "The Draytons and the Davenants: being the Personal Recollections of Mrs. Olive Drayton of the Fen Country."

THE REV. S. R. BROWN, missionary from this country to Japan, has translated the Gospel of Matthew into the Japanese language. Mr. Brown was from Monson, Mass., and his mother was the author of that favorite hymn, "I love to steal awhile away."

A WASHINGTON despatch of March 28, says; "Miss Mary Harris, who, it will be remembered, had a trifling difficulty with a Treasury clerk named Burroughs, some time since arrived in town to-day en route for Richmond, where she has established herself in the millinery business."

REV. HENRY WARD BEECHER, in his last political lecture, said: "The kind and patient Mr. Lincoln was cudgeled and whacked by Congress, and he bore it with a patient spirit, reminding him of some horses who merely act when cudgeled as though it was to brush flies off. When they commenced whacking Mr. Johnson, they found a pair of heels through the dashboard, and they left the wagon and took to trees and bushes, crying 'Beast, brute,' but since then had cudgeled more carefully."

MRS. LUCRETIA MOTT, the noted Quaker preacheress, in a recent Sunday lecture, said the time was fast approaching for women to ask higher recognition of their powers in all the various relations of life. She thought there ought to be more equality in the marriage relation; that women ought not to be required to promise "to obey." The marriage contract, says this gentle Quakeress, ought to partake more of the nature of a "reciprocity treaty" between the sexes than it does at present.

A GERMAN paper publishes an anecdote of President Lincoln, which has not been in print in this country. A Lieutenant, whom debts compelled to leave his fatherland and service, succeeded in being admitted to the late President Lincoln, and, by reason of his commendable and winning deportment and intelligent appearance, was promised a Lieutenant's commission in a cavalry regiment. He was so enraptured with his success, that he deemed it a duty to inform the President that he belonged to one of the oldest noblest houses in Germany. "Oh, never mind that," said Mr. Lincoln, "you will not find that to be an obstacle to your advancement."

A NEW JERSEY editor had occasion, a few days ago, to refer to Prometheus; and fearing that no intelligence of this personage could have come by the only route known to that State, namely, Camden and Amboy, he proceeded to enlighten his readers as to the antecedents of the legendary hero. "Prometheus," he wrote, "was a Roman, who was chained to a rock for killing and eating a vulture, the vulture being considered, among the Romans, a sacred bird." If the great chief of fire could have foreseen that one of the results of his larceny would be the New Jersey editor, he would have allowed the human race to remain "left out in the cold."

THE CART BEFORE THE HORSE.

BY AN IRISHMAN.

Oh, for some deep secluded dell,
Where brick and mortar life may cease,
To sit down in a pot of grease,
No—no—I mean a grot of peace.

I'd choose a home by Erin's wave,
With not a sound to mar life's lot,
I'd by the cannon have a shot—
No—by the Shannon have a cot.

How fair that rocky isle around,
That wild expanse to scan it o'er,
I love a shiver with a roar—
I mean a river by the shore.

Romantic Erin's sea-girt land,
How sweet with one you love the most,
To watch the cocks upon the roast—
I mean the rocks upon the coast.

'Twere sweet at moonlight's mystic hour,
To wander forth where few frequent,
To come upon a tipsy gent—
No—no—I mean a gipsy tent.

In that retirement, love, I would Pursue some rustic industry,
And make myself a boiling tea—
No—no—I mean a toiling bee.

Beneath a shady sycamore,
How sweet to breathe love's tender vow,
Your dear one bitten by a sow—
No—I mean sitting by a bough.

Or sweet with your fond wife to sit
Outside your door at daylight's close,
While she's hard hitting at your nose
—I mean hard knitting at your hose.

Perhaps on early cares you brood,
White sympathy her sweet face shows;
'Tis good to walk upon one's toes
—I mean to talk upon one's woes.

Ah! still you watch that fairy shape,
A summer dress which does adorn,
Admiring much her laugh of scorn—
No—no—I mean her scarf of lawn.

.....Mrs. Partington has a host of imitators among the scribblers of the press, but one evidence is the worth of being copied:

"Now, girls," said Mrs. Partington, the other day, to her nieces, "you must get husbands as soon as possible or they'll be murdered."

"Why so, aunt?"

"Why, I see by the papers that we've got almost fifteen thousand post-offices, and nearly all on 'em dispatches a mail every day. The Lord have mercy on us poor widows," and the old lady stepped quietly to the looking-glass to put on her new cap.

The American Prize Concert.

The $10,000 Prize Paid over to the Holder of the Lucky Ticket.

The $10,000 prize in Lemon's Great American Prize Concert was drawn by a man named William Kewan, of Morris, Grundy county, Illinois, who held ticket No. 92,350. On the day after the concert, Mr. Kewan was informed of his good luck and at once came here to receive his prize. He was fully identified, and on Monday morning received the $10,000 in greenbacks, as will be seen by the following document:

CHICAGO, ILL., April 2d, 1866.

Received from George C. Lemon & Co., Chicago, Ill., ten thousand dollars ($10,000), in payment of a prize drawn by my number, (92,350) in the Great American Prize Concert, at Smith & Nixon's Hall, March 28th, 1866.

WM. KEWAN.

SILAS THIELMAN,
A. T. SHERMAN,
E. G. SPINNING,
A. M. TROYON,
} Witnesses.

Mr. Kewan is a merchant in Morris, Ill., and was in partnership with a Mr. Mayo. They not long ago failed in business, and thought they would try and make up losses by investing in Mr. Lemon's prize concert. They accordingly purchased four tickets, and one of them was the lucky number. On receiving the money this morning, Mr. Kewan proceeded at once to pay off a number of debts owing by him to several Lake street, Chicago, merchants. He now intends starting in business afresh—the prize money having set him up again.

The $5,000 prize was drawn by Mrs. Adlad, of No. 272 West Madison street Chicago. It has already been paid over to her.

The third prize, which, it will be remembered, was a house and lot, was drawn by a poor man named Andrew Anderson, who keeps an apple stand on the corner of Lake and State streets, Chicago.

It certainly seems that Mr. Lemon has kept his promise. He has paid up all the large prizes, and will pay the smaller ones as soon as the committee report to him.

THE SUCCESSFUL NUMBERS.

92,350—$10,000 in Greenbacks.
22,295—$5,000 in 7.30s.
87,967—House and Lot.

PIANOS.

62815	73153	15901	26356	21837	86903	5918
51248	32093

GOLD WATCHES.

		46328	93427	80776	33618	90872
60023	36631	51553	22125	74028	67639	59761
26941	99613	43957	50984	75323	10388	21745
46536	70742	53775	52908	75627	36484	99413
9340	52588	84486	88350	39328	5559	61432
8070	59573	72185	37016	60414	50761	98316
66602	42743	50231	2740	87933	58405	49826
13614	86759	63449

SEWING MACHINES.

		46917	80790	25931	59510
43043	87164	46073	49582	73376	39499	17404
18549	37784	76457	95487	69789	60819	68308
93850	53020	44134	4276	96505	36364	65091
24273	10204	45001	50145	59068	79355	41702
81360	41522	86680	97520	22826	70871	25622
54437	92099	48719	14641	27069	60144	82479
81930	50231	46580	63496

AMERICAN SILVER WATCHES.

				26910	36150	92501
18112	57804	8256	99289	33237	40113	62200
44053	63531	41313	3858	64123	51124	78624
89039	52086	8334	13025	46190	257	26097
23305	18640	25293	41560	9409	6434	59834
79724	92915	14041	2584	88302	61460	64858
86307	39079	66012	13041	1165	61854	94940
59442	42841	58251	38422	59435

SILVER WATCHES.

				71553	33068	86286
71473	6941	54921	96386	69815	24118	31040
29236	75553	70871	24010	30624	55859	96093
43168	54416	12009	36716	96702	4391	90446
97175	47115	85361	95706	57935	86054	10842
18735	62077	43639	35284	85072	81389	68124

The remainder of the prizes consist of albums and other articles of small value. They are given in The Chicago Post.

SACRIFICES TO MARS.—In the periodical butcheries in the human family, the following hecatomb has been offered to that god of battles which the Christian and Pagan have worshipped with the same devotion:—

Loss of life in the Jewish Wars, 25,000,000. By the wars in the times of Aesostris, 15,000,000. By those of Semiramis, Cyrus and Alexander, 30,000,000. By Alexander's successors, 20,000,000. Grecian wars, 15,000,000. Wars of the twelve Cæsars, 30,000,000. Roman wars before Julius Cæsar, 60,000,000. Wars of the Roman Empire, Turks, and Saracens, 180,000,000. Wars of the Reformation, 30,000,000. Wars of the Middle Ages, and nine Centuries, 80,000,000. Tartar and African wars, 180,000,000. American Indians destroyed by Spaniards, 12,000,000. Wars of Napoleon, 6,000,000. Total, 683,000,000.

A PUZZLED IRISHMAN.—Mr. O'Flatherty undertook to tell how many were at the party: "The two Crogans was one, meself was two, Mike Finn was three, and, and, who the divil was the four. Let me see, (counting his fingers) the two Crogans was one, Mike Finn was two, meself was three, and—bedad there was four of us, but St. Patrick couldn't tell the name of the other. Now, it's meself that has it. Mike Finn was one, the two Crogans was two, meself was three, and—and, by me soul, I think there was but three of us anyhow."

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.—The Little Corporal—This first-class monthly for the children is winning its way everywhere. Forney's Philadelphia Daily Press says of it: "Judging from the appearance of the numbers now before us The Little Corporal is destined to become the great children's paper of America." Subscription price, $1 a year. Specimen copies ten cents. Address Alfred L. Sewell, publisher, Chicago.

DR. G. R. WHITNEY, Surgeon of the Fourth Regiment, U. S. Regular Cavalry, writes as follows: As an anti-bilious preparation DR. SWAIN'S Bourbon Bitters are no doubt the best in use; and could it be regularly dispensed in the army, would prove a powerful safeguard against the effects of privation, exposure, fatigue, bad water and unwholesome diet. They are the most palatable preparation of the kind I have ever tasted. The odor of ripe old Bourbon, mingled with the aroma of spices, rendering it dilicious, alike to the sense of smell and taste.

MR. MORRELL.—Dear Sir: I have been troubled with a very bad Sore Leg, caused by a wound received from a sickle-guard of a mowing machine. It became a large running sore, which I could not heal. I bought some of your Electro-Magnetic Fluid, to which I applied it, and in a week it healed, and was perfectly well. My wife used it also for a badly sprained ankle. A speedy cure was the result.

A. STEINHAUS,
Ex-Deputy Sheriff of Cook Court ty,
1050 Milwaukee Avenue.

BRYANT & STRATTON'S CHICAGO BUSINESS UNIVERSITY.—This is the largest and most complete Institution of the kind in the country. There are seventeen Professors employed at the present time, and more Students in attendance than at any other Business College in the United States. It is decidedly the model institution of the land. Address Bryant & Stratton, Chicago, Ill., for college paper, circulars, &c.

The Breaking up of Winter.

Under the hard seal of winter the filth of our cities the pestiferous soil of our marshes and swamps, the mud and slime that form the alluvial of our great rivers, have been for nearly three months comparatively harmless. But now the early spring sun is thawing them, and the elements of disease that were torpid under the frost are fermenting, effervescing evaporating. The atmosphere is heavy with malaria and miasma. Every cubic foot of air we breath is tainted more or less with the mephitic vapor which returning warmth exhales from the unwholesome material of every description.

This, then, is the season when the system needs protection, and the experience of fourteen years has proved that HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, by invigorating the stomach, toning the liver, regulating the bowels, and bracing the nerves, put the whole organization in a condition of defense against the subtle poison which generates Agues, Remittent Fever, Bilious attacks, Indigestion, and Nervous diseases.

Now is the time for PRE

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan.

One of the best filled Establishments!

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied

Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South Side Chicago St, Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS,

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY, WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH COTTAGE, COMMON AND TRUNDLE

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP, WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Show Cases, Stands, Book Cases, Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short notice by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pictures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VANTINE,
G. SMITH,

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

TECUMSEH, - - MICH A

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions,

I keep the largest and best assortment of

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS,
FRUITS,
SALT
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,
&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had eleven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the business. If you dont believe it, ask your neighbors where they get their Groceries and where they buy them the

CHEAPEST.

Come and judge for yourselves.

Tecumseh AJAMES.

☞ Subscribe for the HERALD.

What is the Matter!

The Fact is the new firm of

SLAYTON TINDALL & Co.

are selling

FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT

By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff. And all the people are rushing for it. Come on we have a large stock of such wheat on hand yet, also

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,
CORN MEAL,
PLASTER,
WATER LIME,
CLOVER SEED,
TIMOTHY SEED,
CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF

Grain and Seeds!!

SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO.

Tecumseh, Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

NEW SPRING GOODS.

The undersigned is just receiving a well selected and choice stock of

FAMILY GROCERIES;

consisting in part of the following articles:

SUGARS, TEAS, COFFEES, SPICE, PEPPER, GINGER, BUTTER, CHEESE, LARD, FRUITS, SALT, TOBACCO, WOOD WILLOW AND STONE WARE, PORK, HAMS, POTATOES, AND numerous other articles not necessary to mention.

Having purchased the store on the north side of Chicago street, in this village, formerly occupied by Deuel & Weatherhead, and having had some experience in former years, by strict attention to business,

Reasonable Prices,

AND

Honorable Dealing,

I hope to merit a share of the public patronage. All goods warranted to give good satisfaction in every case. My motto is and above all honorable dealing.

Small Profits and Quick Sales.

The public are most respectfully solicited to call and examine my stock of Groceries before purchasing elsewhere.

J. S. HENDRYX.

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the Nicest, Best and Strongest, WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS, and in fact everything in his line from a baby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition. So call and leave your orders.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM.

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

☞ All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Prices.

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co. are now prepared to present to the public, every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART,

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and elegance to the figure.

India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west.

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices.

and a general assortment of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government,

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.

n790lysmp

A. J. HOAG,

Successor to WM. REITERMAN & Co.

WHOLESALE DEALER IN

Ambrotype and Photograph Stock,

285 Summit St. - - Toledo, O.

☞ Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the HERALD.

1866. 1866.

MERRITT, MEEKER & Co

SUCCESSORS TO J. H. WHEELER.

Have just received a large additon to their

STOCK OF GOODS,

And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of

DRY GOODS,

YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Particular attention is called to their stock

of BUFFALO ROBES and LADIES AND GENTS FURS,

which they are now selling

At Cost

We would announce to his numerous friends that we have secured the services of Wm. VanCamp, and he will take pleasure in waiting upon all.

It is no trouble to show goods, should you wish anything in our line give us a call before purchasing elsewhere and we will do our best to give satisfaction.

GLORIOUS NEWS,

The Confederacy gone up! But

GEORGE HEESEN'S

CLOTHING EMPORIUM

Is in full blast, and has not yet surrendered to young america. I would say to my friends and customers that I have just received a large stock of clothing which were purchased at panic prices, and I will sell them at a very small profit, for they must be sold within ninety days. I

Sell Cassimere Pants at 6.50.

Broadcloth and cassimere coats very cheap, Linen coats cheaper than any other house in town, woolen and Straw

HATS, CAPS!

Linen and Paper Collars,
Neck Ties, Shirts,
Gloves, Hosiery,
Traveling Bags, &c.

It is easily understood that I can sell cheaper than my neighbor for I save great expense, been a tailor and having followed the business for the last 17 years I know how work ought to be done.

Please come over on the Canada side for you can buy goods cheaper than you can on the American, for all expense of importing is saved, which amounts to considerable.

Cutting Done at Old Prices.

Those wishing garments made would do well to call on me and have an honest job done.

Geo. Heesen.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New Yisnow opening a new stock of all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hoad's, north side of Chicago st.

Groceries, Paints, Oils &c

L. DREW'S

NEW HARDWARE!!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz:

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass. Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a

Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron, and Zinc,

Also the

Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

Real Estate for Sale.

Our old friend John Davenport wishes to dispose of the following property:

60 acres of fine timbered land lying near Franklin Centre.

120 acres of timbered land on Evans Lake.

Saw mill and 20 acres of land near Franklin Centre.

Brick House and 4 acres of land known as the Stitts property in the village of Tecumseh, now occupied by A Hood

House and lot on Logan St. known as the Mrs Bissell property

Also—House and lot of J. E. Merritt Maiden Lane; in the village of Tecumseh.

Terms easy—or to suit purchasers. For particulars call on or address the subscriber at Tecumseh. Mich.

JOHN DAVENPORT.

Dated Jan. 18th, 1866.

☞ Have you job printing done at the Herald Office.

Boots are Down!

Shoes are Down!!

BOOTS & SHOES

ARE DOWN!!!

AT HOAG'S

MAMMOTH

SHOE STORE,

AT HOAG'S MAMMOTH,
AT HOAG'S MAMMOTH,

Don't pay War prices to men that tell you that Boots & Shoes are no cheaper.

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!!

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!!!

AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE
AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE
AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE.

Having made extensive purchases at greatly reduced rates he has marked down his entire stock to correspond.

Call and examine—compare prices, and save money by buying at Hoag's.

Repairing done promptly—prices reduced.

E. H. HOAG.

Tecumseh, March 27th, 1866

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartnership in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE AND FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions,

Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected stock of

Crockery and Glass-Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

C. H. ADAM & Co.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct 2tf TECUMSEH, MICH.

---

18 Pronunciemento. 65.

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see

How well we can do For them.

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd best Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholesale or Retail.
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
Fine Midlings, B. WFour,
Ship Stuffs, B. w. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE.

They will always also usually find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE,

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL,

Corn In the Ear and Shelled.

A good assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantable Lumber

Wm. HAYDEN

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee s.s.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian on Monday the 12th day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six

Present, Robert R. Beecher, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Stephen E. Cole deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Osmond Tower praying that the administrator of said estate may be required and directed by said court to deed to him certain lands of said deceased for reasons in said petition stated.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday the 14th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for six successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ROBERT R. BEECHER,
Judge of Probate.

(A true Copy.) 750w4

Dissolution.

The co-partnership heretofore existing under the name of Curtis & McCowen is this day dissolved by mutual consent. All persons indebted to said firm are requested to settle without delay

GEORGE CURTIS,
WM. McCOWEN,

Tecumseh, March 5th 1866

The undersigned have this date formed a co partnership under the firm and name of Curtis & Parsons, for the purpose of continuing the Hardware Business, at the place lately occupied by Curtis & McCowan.

GEORGE CURTIS,
WM. A. PARSONS,

Tecumseh, March 5th, 1866. n798w4

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

GREAT CENTRAL.

United States Mail Route.

THREE EXPRESS TRAINS leave Windsor (opposite Detroit) daily for the East, on the arrival of Trains of Michigan Central, Detroit and Milwaukee, and Michigan Southern Railways from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati and all points West North West and South West.

This is the only route via Niagara Falls and suspension Bridge, and is the direct route to Buffalo, New York, Boston, London, Paris, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Prescott, Ogdensburgh, Montreal, Quebec and Portland.

☞ Passenger Cars are furnished with Patent ventilators.

Luxurious Sleeping Cars attached to all night trains, and Smoking Cars to all day trains.

☞ United States Currency taken at par for through fares, sleeping Car berths and meals at Refreshment Saloons

CHARLES McCABE,
Western Passenger Agent, Detroit.

THOS. SWINYARD, General Manager, Hamilton, C. W.
JAS. CHARLTON, General Agent, Hamilton, C. W.

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS,

is the place to get good grinding done I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING,

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Wheat

Mill Feed of all kinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Black hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shall endeavor to do as good work, and even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL

IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor, show room the same 3 doors east of A. Hood & Co's. clothing store.

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Neary, and Bridget Neary, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March, A D, 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber 'M' of Mortgages, on folios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] two, on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village, (now city] of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriet A. Bradbury on the twenty first day of March, A. D. 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 17th day of February, A D 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, which said mortgage, was afterwards, to wit: on the eighth day of February, A. D. 1866 duly assigned by said Harriet A Bradbury to Addison J Comstock, which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money, and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents, [$573.12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty fifth day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage

ADDISON J COMSTOCK.
Assignee of said mortgage.

M. N. HALSEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb. 21, 1866.

Drs Jackson, Herbert & Co.

15 Greatest Medical Circular Ever Published! Fifteen cent large letter pages for two 3 cent stamps. 15

Prof. EGBERT JACKSON, ROBERT HERBERT, M D DR EUGENE VELPEAU, JR.

THE NATIONAL DISPENSARY,

Established 1859.

Six years of unrivalled success in the cure of every form of private disease, incident to either sex.

Science and fair dealing victorious over Empiricism and fraud

We infallibly cure Syphillis, Gleet, Gonorrhœa Impotency Nocturnal and Diurnal Emissions, Complaints peculiar to females, and every form of private disease of whatever name or nature Spermatorrhea or Self Abuse, that curse of Modern Manhood easily and speedily cured and every trace of its terrible effects eradicated from the system, without detention from business.—Young men bear this in mind, that we are in possession of the Secret Receipts and methods of practice of Culverwell, Lallemand, Hunter, Velpeau, Sen., Ricord and other great lights in modern medical science; for it is a fact of the very greatest importance, and we would ask any man of average common sense how can the thousand and one shallow pretenders hope to compete with us?

Ye unfortunates, ere trusting your health and money to heartless charlatans, at least write to Drs. Jackson, Herbert & Co., who will at once return you a kind, discreet and explicit answer. Ladies write for our circular.

Dr Jackson's Female Monthly Pills, for a safe and effectual remedy for all irregularities and obstructions, from whatever cause. Price $1 per box, or four for $5 00.

The Mountain of light or medical protector and Marriage Guide, and an Explicit Ley to Love and Beauty Containing 300 plates.

☞ This is THE book you want price 50 cents 3 for $1.

Send for our splendid Circular containing more in quantity and of far superior quality to any of the so called "pamphlets." Remember that we send a written reply to every letter, especially adapted to the particular case under consideration, because in the nature of things each case differs from every other

DR JACKSON'S ORIENTAL LINIMENT removes all coldness and disability, and rejuvenates organs which have lain dormant for many years.

DR. JACKSON'S FRENCH PATENT MALE SAFE,

It is perfectly safe and never fails to give satisfaction. It is the only sure and safe preventative against contracting disease ever invented Price $1 each, per half dozen $4, and per dozen $7, sent by mail.

Inebriates or Moderate Drinkers who desire to reform, but have found it difficult to refrain, can wholly eradicate all desire for any kind of liquor, by using Dr Herbert's Anti Alcoholic Compound, an unfailing remedy for intemperance; write for particulars.

Medicine and instructions sent promptly to any part of the country. Consulting Rooms of the Dispensary, No. 167 Sycamore street Cincinnati, O. P. O. Box, No, 430. Send for a circular.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF Lenawee, s. s.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Adrian, on Friday the 6th day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six.

Present, Robert R Beecher, Judge of Probate In the matter of the estate of John Osborn, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified of Stephen V R Ely, Administrator on the estate of said deceased, praying for the allowance of his final account with said estate and for distribution of moneys in his hands and for his discharge as administrator.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday the 7th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted:

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ROBERT R. BEECHER, Judge of Probate

(A true copy) n790w4

G. R. PALMER, Attorney at Law, and Notary Public, Lake Ridge, M

Particular attention paid to collections in any part of Michigan. Is prepared to draw and execute Deeds, Mortgages, Wills, &c.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at

A. JAMES

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVI. NO. 48. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 19, 1866. WHOLE NO. 804.

G. T. KETCHAM'S
BOOK STORE,
Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.
(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)
DEALER IN
CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER.
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.
—o—
I will sell any of the above goods as
Cheap or Cheaper
than any other dealer in the country, and
WARRANT
all goods sold as good as recommended.
—o—
CASH FOR RAGS!
—o—
Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.
J. D. Robbins.
TECUMSEH, - - - - - - - MICHIGAN.

A. HOOD & CO.
Are Just receiving a Splended
STOCK OF
Cloths Vestings,
Hats & Caps,
AND
Gents Furnishing goods
BOUGHT IN NEW YORK, AT THE
LOWEST FIGURES.
AND WILL BE SOLD AT PRICES THAT
DEFY COMPETITION.
Call and see them before purchasing elsewhere.

NORTHERN LENAWEE
INSURANCE
AGENCY.
S. C. STACY,
LIFE, FIRE AND ACCIDENT
INSURANCE AGENT.
Represents the following well known and reliable insurance companies.

Manhattan Life, N. Y.	$2,000,000.
Phœnix Life Hartford,	800,000.
Accident Ins. Co. Columbus,	1,000,000.
Phœnix Fire Hartford,	1,000,000.
Underwriters N. Y.	3,000,000,
Lumbermans Chicago,	300,000,

Total capital represented, over 8,100,000.
Good Insurance is a necessity.
And the best is the cheapest.

Tecumseh Union School!
C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.
THE SPRING TERM of this institution will open April 9th, 1866, and continue twelve weeks
Scholars will be received at any time and placed in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.
CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

C. H. ADAM & CO., have not sold out, but are now daily receiving one of the Largest, Cheapest and Best assortments of goods ever brought to Tecumseh, consisting of
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS, DRESS GOODS, FANCY GOODS, HOOP SKIRTS, BALMORELS, &c.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.

Express Freight,	6:15 A. M.
Mail and Express,	1:15 P. M.

GOING NORTH.

Mail and Express,	9:28 A. M.
Accommodation,	6:38 P. M.

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND,
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD C. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & co,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich,

ALFRED JAMES,
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT,
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilets, &c.
Chicao St. Tecumseh, Mich.

P. N. CURTIS.
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER.
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

GOULD & WALDO,
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St. - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN B. WOOD.
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER.
Attorney's, Councellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT.
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & McCOWEN,
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWARD H. HOAG.
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EMLAY & COURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harnass and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich,

HORACE BREWER.
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS,
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

O. G. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and worker in Jewelry.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. C. SATTERTHWAITE,
Insurance Agent and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT.
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS,
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich,

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL.
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE.
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St - - Tecumseh, Mich

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St. Opposite P. Office.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT,
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

☞ Mutilated Postage currency wanted at G. T. Ketchams, in exchange for goods. Rush in the Rags, no matter how badly they are torn, they will be taken at their full value as long as the denomination of the peice can be told.

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.
(One inch of column constitutes a square.)

	1 wk	3 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$ 2.00	$ 6.00	$ 7.50	$10.00
2 Squares	1.75	3.50	8.00	12.00	15 00
3 Squares	2 75	5 00	11.00	16 00	20.00
¼ Column	5.00	9.00	12.00	18.00	25.00
½ Column	7.50	12.00	18.00	25 00	36.00
Column	12.00	15.00	20.00	35.00	60.00

☞ No advertisement considered less than one square Transcient advertisements must be paid for in advance Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted on 3.50 per year.
☞ Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

☞ We will take wood, butter, lard, eggs, potatoes, and all kinds of farm produce, on subscription for the "HERALD." So bring it along.

To Our Friends.

You will confer a favor on us by soliciting the Judge of Probate to publish Probate Notices in the HERALD, and you will also find it convenience to yourselves to have the advertisements in the paper you receive.

☞ Any one wishing to purchase a first class turning lathe are requested to call at this office. We have one to sell at a great bargain.

☞ Thursday being the day appointed by the Governor for fasting and prayer we issue our paper this week one day earlier than usual.

☞ Spring Styles of DeLaines at Bidwell's for 25 cents a yard. Prints 20 cents, and one shilling. Good Bleached muslins for 25 cents, and other goods in proportion.

☞ The State Agricultural Society have decided to hold the next State Fair at Adrian. The fair will be held on the same grounds as last year, and the time selected is the last week in September.

☞ George and Henry Wastell have recently opened a fine Dry Goods store in the Lathrop Block, Jackson. They leave many warm friends in Tecumseh who regret their departure. We wish them abundant success in their new enterprise.

☞ The National Horse Fair Association will hold its 12th annual exhibition on Spring Brook Riding Park, in Adrian, commencing June 18th, and lasting through the week. One premium of $600, and many similar premiums will be offered.

☞ If you wish good bargains call at the store of Merritt, Meeker & Co. and examine the new goods they are now receiving. They have dry goods, hats and caps, boots and shoes, Gents' furnishing goods, &c, which they will sell to you as cheap as you can buy them elsewhere in the State of Michigan. Go and see them it is a pleasure for them to show their goods.

☞ As it is near time for gardening we give the following receipt to our readers. To preserve garden vines from bugs, put in the hill, at the time of planting your cucumbers, squashes, &c., two or three beans. It will keep the bugs away from the vines. If the beans should be in the way they can be pulled up, after the vines have got up out of the reach of the bugs.

LOCALS.—We desire to keep up a good local department, and to that end ask a little assistance from all who know of transpiring events in their neighborhood. Send us whatever may transpire—accidents, deaths, marriages, horse races, dog fights, bad cases of "oil on the brain," fires, shooting matches, reports of meetings, disertations on the potatoe rot, measels or trichina, markets, mammoth hogs or fat babies, violation of the revenue laws or ten commandments, items detailing how to prevent cholera, anything, everything, all things that may have happened or may happen—and, reader, by your help in the above enumeration, we shall be able to get up a live paper.

RAILROAD EARNINGS.—The Detroit Advertiser & Tribune gives the following as the earnings of the Michigan Central and Michigan Southern road for the third week in March, together with those of the corresponding week of last year.

Michigan Central	$70,370	$66,854
Michigan Southern	80,[illegible]	85,678

The earnings of our road were $3,516 less than same time last year. Southern Michigan is the garden of the State, and is only just begining to be developed.

New Photograph Gallery.

Messrs. Hopkins and Paine, of Binghamton, New York, have leased rooms in the third story of Anderson & Bills' Block, over Wright's Drug Store, and are fitting up a new and elegant photograph gallery. We understand that they design making it superior to anything of the kind we have ever had in Tecumseh. Mr. Hopkins is a first class portrait painter and Mr. Paine a practical photographer of twelve years experience. They will execute ambrotypes, photographs, porcelain pictures and painted photographs in the highest style of the art.—They will finish portraits in India ink, water colors and oil colors, at prices varying from five to fifty dollars, according to the labor expended and the size of the photographs. They design as soon as convenient to procure a solar camera for taking pictures of any size, and also materials for taking stereoscopic views. It will be an institution that is much needed here and will, we doubt not, receive a fair share of the public patronage.

A Sweet Temper.

There is nothing like a sweet temper to make a happy home. It is almost a specific. Especially the lady and mistress of the house should always wear a cheerful countenance and a smile. This is all very nice says Mrs. Smith but how do you expect me to be cheerful and smiling when I have got such a dreadful headache? Go immediately and get a box of Dr Curtis' Headache and Dyspeptic Pills and they will cure your headache and then you can smile again and make your home happy.

A SCARRED PRINTER.—A jour. printer, in giving a "condensed" account of his wanderings, says that upon his arrival at Adrian, to which place he had come by rail (not by the cars,) he as usual spotted around for a first-class hotel.—Casting his eyes across from the depot, he read in large letters over the door of a hotel, "Board $100 per day." It is needless to add that the weary tramper again took "rail," but not until he quizzed a policeman as to whether such prices prevailed all over Adrian. The guardian of the city's glory replied "Well, prices are not quite so high as that now; in fact I think you could get board considerably cheaper. You see, sir, that sign was put up for the State Fair, and they have forgot to take it down!"—Jackson Citizen.

EXHORBITANT RENTS.—We have more than once alluded to the exhorbitant rents asked for every kind of dwelling house in this place. With a steady and gradual reduction in price of almost every article of commercial value, and a rapid decline in specie values, rents in this village have undergone no abatement, and if there has been any change it has been of an upward character. A few days since, a gentleman engaged in business from the East wishing to secure a home for his family, was obliged to pay $500 rent! A fair price for the kind of house he secured would be $250. Such a house could be obtained easily in Detroit for the latter sum. When will these high prices cease?

☞ We now have a one dollar gift store in Tecumseh, where you can buy a photograph for 25 cents and draw a certificate which entitles you to one of the splendid gifts, consisting of watches, jewelry, pictures &c on the payment of one dollar, regardless of the cost or value of the article. There has been some very nice prizes drawn, and by the way the watches went off on Monday, we should hardly think it would pay to stay long in Tecumseh. It seemed if everybody was born lucky.

☞ Soldiers who have lost limbs in the service of the United States, are entitled to artificial substitutes that can be procured upon the presentation of honorable discharges, and that the wound causing the loss of limb was received in the service. They are furnished free of charge, and do not effect any pension or bounty claim the soldier may have against the government.

☞ Nervous Headache, Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Costipation of the bowels, Costiveness and Diseases of the Liver, can be cured by the use of Dr. P. N. Curtis' Headache and Dyspeptic Pills.—Price 50 cts. a box. Every box warranted to give satisfaction or money refunded.

☞ The new proprietor of the Tecumseh Exchange, D. T. Fish, has entered upon his duties and now holds himself in readiness to cater to the wants of the public. We bespeak for him a liberal share of patronage.

Wool Purchasers Convention.

We are indebted to H. S. Ismon, Esq., for the following circular, issued to the wool purchasers of the State for the purpose of holding a convention at Adrian to take into consideration rules to be adopted in the purchase of wool, one of the staple articles of Michigan production. The following is a circular:

Adrian, April 10th, 1866.

The undersigned,—purchasers of wool on commission for eastern manufacturers and dealers, feeling that a certain standard for the condition of that staple, and a uniform deduction for Bucks, unwashed, and unconditioned fleeces should be agreed upon would respectfully ask you, and all others usually engaged in purchasing Wool, to meet in Convention, at the City of Adrian, on Thursday, the 19th day of April, at 2 o'clock P. M. We believe that recommendations and suggestions can be made to the growers, that will materially obviate many objections that are yearly becoming more and more serious to Michigan wool.

Henry Hart, Chas. Redfield, Job Willey, Wm. S. Wilcox, W. E. Kimball & Son, Young & Sheldon.

The wool dealers in the State wish to impress upon the wool growers the vital necessity of having their wool thoroughly cleansed for market. Michigan produces the finest wool in the country, and when properly prepared for market it is eagerly sought for by the manufacturer. The wool clip of this State will the coming season be larger than in any previous year and will probably reach something over 12,000,000 pounds. The wool grower should understand that in order to get the best market price it must be thoroughly washed. It is highly probable that a large discount will be made by the purchaser on poorly cleaned fleeces, and that it will be classed as unwashed wool.—Jackson Citizen.

A New Enterprise.

Our townsmen, Dr. Patterson and Elwood Comfort have made most of the arrangements for manufacturing a large number of brick the coming summer.—They have sent East for a brick machine—one of the latest improvement in that line, and costing several hundred Dollars,—which will be here in a few days.—The yard is situated south of the village in the vicinity of the Raisin Mills—a boarding house will be put up for the accomodation of the employees, and all the necessary arrangements are or soon will be completed for carrying on the business on a large scale. It is their intention we understand to make from one to two million of brick this season.

☞ Elegant Balmoral Skirts and the famous Silver Hoop Skirt, at Moore's.

☞ It is becoming more and more evident every day, that a terrible retribution awaits the manufacturers of the unhealthy compounds denominated Saleratus, Baking Powders, &c. Since Herrick Allen's Gold Medal Saleratus has been introduced, we are hapdy to state he has and is still working great revolutions for good. We would say to all our readers try one paper, and they will say to us, the half has not been told. Our better-half says, Tell everybody to use it.

A SAD MISTAKE.—"Where did you buy those $3, gaiters?" "Well I didn't uy them at Hoag's. I found too late that he was selling better ones for $2,50." Reader make better use of your greenbacks.

☞ Mrs. C. M. Bissell would announce to her many friends that she is now prepared to take card photographs, ambrotypes, &c.

☞ Our fellow townsman E. Gray, has purchased Gen. Custer's famous War Horse DON-JUAN. He is a thorough bred horse, of large frame and great power of endurance, and is the fastest stallion in the United States. Lovers of good stock should not fail to see this horse.

☞ Don't pay high prices. Call and examine Ladies' Congress Gaiters &c. at Hoag's and be convinced that he can give you bargains.

☞ Elegant summer shawls, splendid line of white goods, fine cotton hose, in fact, everything you need, can be found at the cheap store of Tribou, Bidwell Brothers.

☞ At a session of Ridgeway Lodge I. O. G. T., held March 31st, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we prosecute any person or persons violating the liquor law in our town.

Died.

In this village, on the 17th inst., of Consumption, ROSELLA H. wife of O. Emlay, aged 32 years.

☞ Prof. Leland's new singing class is a decided success. It already numbers 175 pupils.

BURGLARY.

This is an age of progress. Every week something new transpires, which demonstrates the onward tendency of the time generally and of the village of Tecumseh in particular. On Friday night of last week we were favored with a burglary on a small scale. Bidwell's store was entered through the front door, a large pane of glass having been smashed out by a hickory stick that was lying on the floor. The goods and fancy articles in the show cases had been turned topsey-turvy, the drawers had all been pulled out and many articles upon the shelves misplaced. The money drawer in one counter had been opened with a file and a few shin-plasters abstracted. Fortunately there was but very little money left in the drawer. The scamps who did the mischief were evidently after the greenbacks as but very few goods were missed.

Robbins' Jewelry store was also entered in the same manner. The only articles of any value which he missed were a telescope and a gold headed cane worth about $15 each. No effort has been made to arrest the perpetrators that we know of.

FADING AWAY.—How often we see men and women who are fairly fading out of existence. They seem to have no especial disease, but general lassitude and languor; no ambition, no energy, indigestion, weakness, total inability to eat and relish food, &c., &c.,—all of which is nothing but Dyspepsia.

Coe's Dyspepsia Cure will surely cure every such case, no matter of how long standing. It is also a most excellent remedy for Cholera morbus, Cramp or Colic, in either Stomach or Bowels. We advise all suffering, to try it.

☞ M. Wright has just received at his Drug Store, one door east A. Hood & Co's. a large and splendid assortment of Wall Paper which he is selling at reduced prices. Those in want of a nice article at a reasonable price, should not fail to give him a call.

Tecumseh Market.

April 19th, 1866.

White wheat	$1 50 a $1 75
Red do	75 a 1 75
Beans	75 a 1 00
Corn	40
Clover seed	4 55
Apples green	1 25
Butter per pound	30
Cheese " "	18
Hams " "	15
Lard " "	12
Eggs per doz	10

The Accident.

Is the name of a spicy little sheet published monthly by the Accident Ins. Co. of Columbus O., and devoted to the interests of accident Insurance. It is furnished to agents for gratuitous circulation. Every one should take an accident Policy. The expense is very small, and the benefit proportionately great. S. C. Stacy is the Agent for the Columbus at Tecumseh.

CARPETS, Carpets, less than Adrian prices, by 1 shilling per yard at Moore's.

☞ Harper's, Godey's, Peterson's Ballou's, Atlantic and Young Folks Magazines for May, and all the current papers for the week received at Ketcham's Book Store.

☞ Tickets in O'Brien's Gift Concert to be drawn in Chicago May 31st, for sale at Ketcham's Book Store. This is the only genuine gift concert now advertised. Catalogues of the gifts given away. Call and get one,

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Mich., April 19, 1866.

Adams, Mrs. B. B.	Allen J. B.
Bruce, Robert G.	Benson, Mrs. C. G.
Bedell, Jehiel H.	Crapo, Mrs. Jennie
Emmett, M A.	Linderman, Peter
Leggett, A. W.	Simms, J.
Spears, F. M.	Wilson, Aithlone

W. ANDERSON, P. M.

☞ Kid Gloves, and Ladies and Childrens Hosiry & Gloves of all descriptions at Moore's.

☞ Cloths, Cassimeres, and Vestings at Moore's.

☞ Cotton yarn, carpet twine, or anything you want in the Dry Goods line is to be found at Moore's at the lowest market prizes.

☞ Wall Paper at J. D. Robbin's—The largest assortment in town. Give him a call and don't fail to get Judd's Patent Window fixtures for your Curtains, they are the best.

☞ The Largest and best assortment of Dry Goods in Tecumseh, is to be found at Moore's. His stock of Dress Goods, Sheetings, Shirtings, Denims, Kentucky Jeans, Summer Stuffs, Prints, &c., is not excelled in the country.

LARGEST ASSORTMENT and CHEAPEST GOODS at TRIBOU & BIDWELL Bros

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

General Intelligence.

A new five cent piece, to be composed of copper and nickel, will shortly be issued.

The rebel Quantrell is now said to be residing in Cuba, where he is laboring on a plantation.

I. has been decided to admit imported hides, upon indisputable proof of their soundness.

A Washington paper announces positively that a Fenian expedition has sailed to strike a blow for Ireland.

The Mormons of Utah, have notified the "Gentiles" to quit the country, or fare worse.

Eight of the men injured lately by the explosion of the boiler of the Pomeroy, O., ironworks have since died.

A disease resembling the cholera has broken out among the fowls in St. Louis and St. Charles counties, Mo., which is very fatal.

Gen. Grant, on the 11th, acknowledged the service of a warrant for fast driving, appeared before a Justice of the Peace and paid a fine.

There is a large call upon the Freedmen's Bureau from the South and Southwest to supply farm hands from the freedmen around Washington.

There is a terrible freshet in Louisiana, and dangerous crevasses have occurred in several places. Nearly the whole country is overflowed.

The New York Tribune celebrated its 25th anniversary with a splendid dinner at Delmonico's on the 9th. The paper has been enlarged to the size of the London Times.

A full cargo of tea, direct from China, consisting of 13 430 packages, arrived at Boston on the 13th. This is the first direct importation from China for several years.

The Twelfth Annual Horse Fair for Southern Michigan, open to all the West, is to be held at Adrian from the 18th to the 28th of June, inclusive, with a very generous premium list.

The editor of a leading Irish paper in Canada declares that Killian is a spy, and furnishes the Canadian Government, through Mr. McGee, every design of the Fenian Brotherhood.

Mr. Gordon Cumming, whose marvellous hunting adventures in South Africa some twenty years since gave him a world-wide reputation, expired at his residence at Fort Augustus, Scotland, on the 24th ult.

A fugitive from justice, formerly receiver from a banking house in Poictiers, France, has been arrested in New York, as an alleged defaulter for seven hundred thousand francs. He will be claimed under the extradition treaty.

The Senate was not in session on the 14th. In the House, Mr. Garfield delivered a brief, eloquent, and stirring eulogy on the martyr Lincoln, and then the House adjourned.

In respect to the memory of the late President Lincoln, the public offices were closed on the 14th, including those of the Executive Mansion. The President did not receive visitors.

As Gen. Banks has never submitted a report of the battle of Cedar Mountain, Va., and the siege of Port Hudson, the Secretary of War has called upon him for said reports, which the General is at present engaged in preparing.

Intelligence from the Chilian coast gives some particulars of a late naval engagement between two Spanish war vessels and a Chilian steamer. The latter was overpowered and went down, with the loss of two hundred and fifty men.

Mr. Pike, believing that his Opera House, at Cincinnati, was set on fire, has offered $5,000 reward for the capture of the incendiary. Another report is, that the fire originated by the explosion of tanks containing naphtha, or petroleum gas, placed under the stage.

It is again asserted that the trial of Jeff. Davis will speedily take place. He will be arraigned on a charge of high treason. Other prominent rebels are mentioned in this connection, whose cases are being prepared for adjudication. Fears are entertained that he cannot live through the coming summer, if not released, as his health is growing worse.

Several vessels, recently fitted out and intended for service on the fishing grounds, have been ordered to the St. Croix river, to keep an eye upon the Fenians, and, if occasion requires, prevent them from breaking the neutrality laws.

Secretary McCulloch has issued a circular declaring petroleum, benzine, &c., to be explosive burning fluids under the intent of the steamboat act of Aug. 30, 1852, and requiring all steam vessels carrying passengers to procure a special permit before taking such articles on board.

In Washington, considerable sensation was created on the 7th, by the sudden death of a couple in a family of colored people, with all the symptoms of cholera. An investigation disclosed the fact that the habitation of the family was in an extremely filthy condition, and that others of its members were likely to suffer from that cause.

Newt Morrison, one of the ugliest desperadoes that infest Kansas, was discovered hanging from the Court House railing, at Wyandotte, on the morning of the 14th, quite dead. One of his comrades, named Harvey Johnson, was killed about one week since, while resisting arrest.

The Gee court martial at Raleigh, N. C., is drawing to a close. The evidence of unimpeached witnesses proves that Gee is a monster no way behind Wirz, and deserves, and probably will receive, the same fate. An attempt was made to release him under the President's Peace proclamation, but it did not succeed.

The Fenian excitement is again intense in the Provinces. The Canadian press call upon our Government to prevent all lawless raids into their country, and the British Minister at Washington has notified the State Department that he has received information which leads him to the belief that an organized body of Fenians is being concentrated on the borders of New Brunswick.

The steamer England arrived at Halifax on the 9th, having 1200 passengers on board, with 160 cases of cholera, there having been 40 deaths. Since landing, 130 more deaths have occurred, but the infection is now abating. The medical officer reports the disease as probably a severe form of ship fever, with many of the prominent symptoms of cholera. It amounts to a regular plague.

The latest advices represent the aspect of the Germany difficulty as very serious. Military preparations on a great scale are spoken of. It is said that Austria can place 400,000 men in the field, independent of 100,000 to be quartered in Italy. Italy is expected to join Prussia actively in case of a conflict. A joint note for mediation, by England, Russia and France is mentioned; but its existence is generally doubted.

The Ways and Means Committee has decided to report in favor of the repeal of the revenue tax on printing materials, such as paper, ink and type, together with the materials which enter into their composition. The association of Western printers and publishers has been urging upon the committee the request that materials used in the manufacture of paper shall be put on the free list, and that the present duty of 20 per cent. on unsized paper shall be reduced to not exceeding 6 per cent. It holds that cheaper paper will increase the demand for that article. The committee is disposed to favorably consider this last suggestion, as it is believed that the revenue would not suffer loss by its adoption.

The venerable Daniel S. Dickinson, of New York, died April 12. He was 66 years of age. He was one of the most prominent and successful of the New York politicians and statesmen—was State Senator, Lieutenant Governor, and United States Senator for seven years.

He was the leader of the "Hunker" or anti-Marcy wing of the Democratic party of New York for many years—was an able speaker, and came near being the Democratic nominee for the Presidency in 1852. When the rebellion broke out, Mr. Dickinson at once took a bold position in support of President Lincoln and the Government—was elected Attorney General of the State of New York, and subsequently was appointed United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, an office he held at the time of his death.

Political Matters.

The President has approved and signed the loan bill.

The Legislature of Wisconsin adjourned sine die on the 12th.

A Democratic State Convention will be held at Des Moines, Iowa, June 6th.

The Wisconsin Legislature has passed a resolution changing the name of one of the State eagles from Andy Johnson to Timothy.

Judge Underwood, of the United States District Court of Virginia, has decided that the President's peace proclamation did not restore the writ of habeas corpus.

Hon. Henry A. Wise, whose parole confined him to one of the military departments of Virginia, has been given a permit by General Grant to visit any part of the United States.

The civil rights bill, which, after the President's veto, passed the Senate by a vote of 33 to 15, and the House by 122 to 41, is the second bill carried over the Presidential veto since the time of John Tyler.

The Hon. Lafayette S. Foster, of Connecticut, President of the United States Senate, and ex-officio Vice-Hresident of the United States, will undoubtedly be re-elected to the Senate by a majority of 52 on joint ballot.

Chief Justice Chase, in the course of his remarks before the St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, in New York city, alluded to the passage of the Civil Rights Bill, and said that the next step should be to give the ballot to the emancipated slaves.

The Wisconsin Legislature has passed resolutions condemning Senator Doolittle's course in connection with the Freedmen's Bureau and Civil Rights Bills, and broadly hinting that his resignation would be acceptable to the people of that State.

The city election of Hartford, Conn, on the 9th, resulted in the election of the Democratic ticket, which changes the political character of the city government. Charles R. Crossman was elected Mayor by 230 majority, and the Democrats have a majority in the Council.

The Reconstruction Committee are said to have nearly completed a plan for the reconstruction of the Southern States. It is in the shape of a constitutional amendment in regard to representation, and it is believed to be satisfactory to both wings of the party, and they expect to get a two-thirds vote on it in both Houses

The Nashville Press and Times says that Andrew Johnson was decidedly opposed to Mr. Lincoln's emancipation proclamation. He believed it to be hostile to the dogmas of State rights and State sovereignty. Accordingly Andrew Johnson, then Military Governor of Tennessee, exerted his influence to get Mr. Lincoln to except Tennessee from the emancipation proclamation, which was done.

The New Jersey Legislature adjourned sine die on the 6th. Before the adjournment Mr. Scovel made a speech defining his position. He said he was then and there ready to go into joint meeting, and, in addition to the candidates already named, he suggested the names of ex-Gov. Newell and Brig. Gen. McAllister as candidates for Senator, for whom he would gladly go into joint meeting, even before adjournment. There is some talk of an extra session to choose a Senator.

Southern News.

Freedmen are leaving Tennessee by hundreds, to get better wages offered in the gulf States. This looks rather like freedom.

A brute named Miller was arrested in Louisville, Ky., on Tuesday for the murder of a little boy by cuffing, beating and kicking him.

J. B. Richardson, of Boston, has bought a plantation in Madison county, Miss, for $50,000, which was valued at $300,000 before the war.

A negro in Petersburg pasted a cypher after the figure 2 on a two dollar greenback and passed it on a Sussex county white man for a $20 note.

Pretty styles of dancing prevail in New Orleans. One woman's dress caught fire the other night while she was dancing, from the chandelier overhead.

The steamboat Financier, bound from Pittsburgh to New Orleans, was burned on the night of the 12th, at Remington, 20 miles below Pittsburgh. Ten lives were lost.

A convention of the loyal soldiers of Kentucky was held in Louisville on the 6th inst. Maj. Gen. Crittenden presided, and made a speech in favor of pardoning Jeff. Davis and John C. Breckinridge, and conciliating the South generally.

Of the one hundred and seventy-five mail routes prepared to be opened in Texas, the expenses of three of them will exhaust the revenue expected from all, leaving one hundred and seventy-two to be supported by the General Government.

A newspaper correspondent says that in Georgia where Sherman's army made a sweep of all the carriages, the ladies now go visiting in carts. They call them cartes de visites, and console themselves with the thought that they are in the height of fashion.

The steamboat men and merchants of New Orleans are drawing up memorials for deepening the ocean passes of the Mississippi. They call upon Western Chambers of Commerce and the Federal Government for aid. The foreign commerce has outgrown the former trade, and ships of heavy draught are necessary.

Parson Brownlow, in a recent speech, said: "Our State Legislature is at a lock—21 members bolted. They have left 200 lunatics and 300 convicts to starve. I have provided money to feed them. If the next Legislature refuses to refund the money, I will turn the crazy and the convicted loose on Middle Tennessee. It will be the best physic they ever had."

A tragic affair occurred in open court at Helena, Ark., last week. William Hanley, who once belonged to the 7th Illinois cavalry, was before the court for horse-stealing, and his wife was on the witness stand, testifying to his having stolen several horses, when he drew a revolver and shot her, the ball entering her head. A second shot narrowly missed the Mayor of Helena. It was only after a desparate struggle that Hanley was overcome and committed to jail.

Incidents and Accidents.

Mrs. Maria Boyer, captured by the Sioux Indians in 1862, has been surrendered, and has returned to her home.

A western merchant was choked to death last week at an eating room in New York, by a piece of beef-steak which he was eating.

The sacred bull owned by Dan Rice—the only specimen of the kind outside of Burmah—was killed near Philadelphia last week by an accident.

A sad mistake in giving medicine occurred in Kokomo, Ind., last week. A lady gave a child a large dose of morphine, thinking it was quinine. The child died from the effects of the morphine.

A man named Jourdan and one Robert Brown had a difficulty on board a boat in Bon Secour Bay, Mobile, on Friday, in which the latter was stabbed several times, fell overboard, and was supposed to have been drowned.

Patrick Farley, an infirm old man—switchman at the crossing of the Rock Island and Michigan Southern railroads, near Chicago—was killed, on the 7th inst., by a wretch named John Mollison, who struck him on the head with an iron car coupler. The latter fled, but has been arrested.

Edward Green, the Malden murderer, who has for months been the Master Barnardine of Massachusetts, is to be hung on Friday next at East Cambridge, all the stay appliances of his friends having been exhausted in the refusal of the lately sought writ of error.

A discharged German soldier, unable to find employment, with a starving family, committed suicide at Philadelphia last week, by shooting himself with a toy cannon belonging to one of his children, which he loaded with powder and a marble, and which he fired into his mouth.

The storm of the 2d damaged bridge No. 6, on the Prairie du Chien Railway, near Wauwatosa, Wis, to such an extent that, immediately after the afternoon passenger train had crossed it, it fell with a crash into the stream. The water was from five to seven feet deep on the railroad track in that vicinity.

The freshet in Cedar rivers, in Iowa, has been very destructive. Between Janesville and Waverly the water rose so rapidly and so high that several families living near the banks narrowly escaped with their lives. Five families were rafted off while their houses went down stream. There was great destruction of sheep. One man, S. D. Bryant, lost one hundred and fifty-six.

The wife of Samuel K. Rose, a Justice of the Peace of Hamilton county, Ohio, was burned to death at noon on the 9th, while preparing dinner. She was found dead in the kitchen, her clothing entirely consumed, and her body burned to a crisp. It is supposed that the unfortunate woman fainted on discovering that her dress was on fire, and was therefore unable to give the alarm.

Mr. Whipple of Riga, Monroe county, N. Y., who, with his family, was bound with cords on the night of the 28th of February, and his safe robbed of about $26,000 in U. S. and county bonds, has recovered all of his property but $5,000 or $6,000, having received through the mail a package post-New York, March 27, which contained all the bonds except the amount above mentioned.

Dates from San Domingo to the 25th ult., give particulars of the great fire at Port au Prince on the 19th. The fire burned for thirty hours. The cause of it is unknown, but it is a fact that efforts were made by some men to set on fire the houses that had escaped. Thirty-three blocks were completely burned down, embracing about 1,000 houses. Eight or nine thousand people are now without a home, many not being able to save clothes for themselves and children There is great distress in consequence.

A horrible murder came to light in Philadelphia on the 11th. A father, mother, and four children, together with a niece of the family and a hired boy, were the victims. It is one of the most atrocious butcheries of the century. The clothes of the murderer were found, and on the 13th, the murderer was arrested in Philadelphia. His name is Antonie Ganter, and he confesses to having killed the boy Cornelius Corry, but states that a man named Jacob Yonder killed all the Deerings. The excitement is great and attempts were made to lynch him.

A terrible crime in the lower section of Philadelphia was discovered on the afternoon of the 11th. A family of seven persons had been murdered—Christopher Deering, his wife, niece, and four children,—on Mr. Deering's farm on the Point House road. It is supposed that the murders were committed on the 6th, by German laborers on the farm. The crime was discovered by finding the bodies of Deering and his wife in the barn. One of the victims was a baby 10 months old. The horses and cattle in the stable were found in a famishing condition.

Financial Items.

The Treasury will issue this week about $300,000 in fractional currency.

T. B. Elliott, a grain dealer, at Indianapolis, has failed. His deficit is about $50,000.

The Bank of California is about to increase its capital to $5,000,000. Its present capital is $2,000,000.

Compound interest notes received at the Treasury in exchange for redemption are to be destroyed.

E. S. Rich, a Buffalo banker, suspended on the 9th. It is thought everything will be paid. The cause of suspension is from embarrassment of the New York branch house.

A dry goods firm, which started in business in New York January 1st, with $300,000 capital, has just failed, the capital having been exhausted, and the firm finding itself $300,000 in debt.

A bill has been introduced into the Legislature of New York, by Mr. Stewart, to the effect that no non-resident of the State shall sell anything in New York city on account of a non-resident without having first obtained a license, for which $200 is to be paid. A penalty of $500 is declared for each offence.

The "Fat Contributor," in his lecture "Among the Red Men," gives a plan relieving the country of all further trouble about the national debt: "Deed the land back to the Indians (from whom it was stolen,) and let them assume the debt." He has sent it on to Washington.

It may interest those who are in the habit of circulating subscription papers to learn that the Internal Revenue Commissioner has decided that a five-cent stamp must be affixed to every name attached to such papers, unless the signing is accompanied by the immediate payment of the amount subscribed. If payment is made at once, the signature is regarded merely as a memorandum.

The Erie (Pa.) Dispatch gives the dark side of the Culver failure. It says there is an attempt being made to cover up the extent of the failure; that C. V. Culver's liabilities alone will exceed $300,000; that the obligations of the firm amount to more than was at first supposed; that the subordinate banks were drained to meet payments in New York.

Congressional Doings.

In the Senate, on the 9th, after the disposition of some unimportant business, the loan bill, as reported from the Finance Committee, was taken up, and, after some discussion, passed by a vote of 32 to 7..... The Senate then adjourned.....The loan bill passed precisely as it came from the House, and will now be sent to the President for his signature.

In the House, on the 9th, a series of resolutions instructing the Judiciary Committee to inquire into the necessity for further legislation for the purpose of bringing Jeff. Davis to trial, was adopted.....A resolution was passed directing the Secretary of the Treasury to withhold from distribution the captured property taken from rebels by the land or naval forces, until investigation can be made into the subject, and the claims of the United States properly presented and argued before the Courts.....After some other unimportant preliminary business, the civil rights bill was taken up, and passed by a vote of 122 to 41. So it is now a law.

Representative Garfield introduced on the 9th, a bill, the consideration of which is postponed till the 2d of December next, proposing a national railroad system. It establishes, in connection with the Interior Department, a Bureau of Railroads, and authorizes any number of persons, when the necessary capital is subscribed, to construct railroads from one State to another. The courts are required to grant right of way, and appoint Commissioners to assess damages for lands occupied. The bill also authorizes other lines to consolidate and become national railroads, and regulates the character of the track and the tariff of charges. The plan is in effect to the nation what a general State law is to a State. The power claimed for the passage of the bill is in the clauses of the Constitution relative to the regulation of commerce and to establish post and military roads. By this bill the railroad bill is open to general competition.

In the Senate, on the 10th, but little business was done, and that mostly of a routine character. The bill granting lands to aid in the construction of a ship canal from Lake Superior to Lac La Belle, in Michigan, was passed, as also the bill granting land to aid the construction of the Southern Minnesota railroad.

In the House, on the 10th, a bill was reported reviving the grade of General in the regular army.....Mr. Raymond introduced a resolution looking to legislation for the protection of American fishermen off the coast of British North America, and recapitulated the history of the conflicting claims relative to these fisheries.....The bankrupt bill was taken up on the motion to reconsider, and again defeated,—yeas 70, nays 72.

The Senate, on the 10th, in Executive session, confirmed the following nominations: David W. Ballard of Oregon, be Governor of Idaho, in place of Caleb Lyon; Pritchard C. McCormick, of Arizona, to be Governor of the Territory of Arizona; Moses Hallett, Chief Justice; Uriah D. Halloway to be Marshal and Frank Hall to be Secretary of Colorado; James P. L. Carter of Tennessee, to be Secretary of Arizona.

In the Senate, on the 11th, a resolution was adopted prohibiting the sale of liquor in the Capitol building. Mr. McDougall, rose and warmly opposed the resolution. He said he was "in favor of wine, whiskey and war." Mr. Clark said "he did not know how it was now, but a year or two ago, little boys who were employed as pages were sent home drunk." The vote on the resolution stood, ayes, 33; noes, 2—(Garrett Davis and McDougall.)

In the House, on the 11th, the bill amending the Agricultural College was passed; as was also the bill appropriating $6,715,000 to reimburse Missouri for military expenses.

In the Senate, on the 12th, the death of Senator Foot was formally announced, and eulogies were pronounced by Messrs. Poland, Johnson, Fessenden, Brown, Cragin, Edmunds, and McDougall.

In the House, on the 12th, the bill appropriating $25,000 for the relief of destitute families in the District of Columbia, to be expended under the direction of the Commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau, was passed.....The bill for the relief of army paymasters was recommitted.....The bill authorizing the President to transfer a gunboat to the Government of Liberia, was passed.....The House concurred in the resolution prohibiting the sale of liquor on the Capitol grounds, as amended by Mr. Wentworth, to include other public buildings.

In the Senate, on the 13th, the report of the Committee of Conference on the naval appropriation bill was agreed to. Some of the House amendments were adopted, and other concessions made on either side. Most of the day was spent in the consideration of private bills.

In the House, on the 13th, the report of the Committee of Conference on the naval appropriation bill was agreed to. After the disposition of some comparatively unimportant business, the bill reorganizing the army was taken up, and its consideration occupied the entire session. It provides for 55 regiments of infantry, 12 of cavalry, and 5 of artillery. Ten regiments are to be veteran reserves. Ten regiments of colored troops are provided for. Mr. Schenck said the bill had the sanction of Gen. Grant and of Secretary Stanton. No conclusion was reached when the House adjourned.

A New Island.

Remarkable Phenomena—A Volcanic Upheaval.

A correspondent of The London Times, writing from Athens, Greece, announces that a new island began to rise above the level of the sea in the Bay of Thera (Santorin), in the Grecian Archipelago, on the 4th of February, and in five days it attained the height of from 130 feet to 150 feet, with a length of upward of 350 feet, and a breadth of 100 feet. It continues to increase, and consists of a rusty black metallic lava, very heavy, and resembling half-smelted scoria which has boiled up from a furnace. It contains many small whitish, semi-transparent particles, disseminated through the mass like quartz or feldspar.

The eruption began on the 31st of January. A noise like volleys of artillery was heard, but without any earthquake. On the following day flames issued from the sea, in a part of the bay called Vulkanos, where the water is always discolored and impregnated with sulphur from abundant springs at the bottom. The flames rose at intervals to the height of fifteen feet, and were seen at times to issue from the southwestern part of Nea Kaimene. That island was soon rent by a deep fissure, and the southern part sank considerably.

On the 4th of February the eruptions became more violent and the sea more disturbed. Gas forced itself from the depths with a terrific noise, resembling the bursting of a steam boiler; flames arose at intervals, and a white smoke, rising steadily, formed an immense column, crowned with a curled capital of dark, heavy clouds. The new island was visible next morning, increasing sensibly to the eye as it rose off the sea at no great distance to the south of Nea Kaimene.

The new island has been visited by Dr. Dekigalla, a man of science and an able observer, who will record accurately all the phenomena of the eruption as it proceeds. The heat of the sea rose from 62 Fahrenheit to 122, as near the vicinity of volcanic action as it was safe to approach. The bottom of the sea all around Nea Kaimene appears to have risen greatly. In one place, where the depth is marked on the Admiralty chart one hundred fathoms, it was found to be now only thirty, and at another where it was seventeen it is now only three fathoms. The new island, as it increases, will probably form a junction with Nea Kaimene It grows, as it were, out into the sea, the mass below pushing upward that which is already above water. The lower part is hot, its fissures, where they are deep, being 170 Fahrenheit, and the upper part, after four days' exposure, was found to be still 80.

At present the centre of the volcanic force lies evidently far below the bottom of the sea, and only gases and smoke work their way through the incumbent earth to the water, and escape in noise, flames, and smoke to the surface. But should a fissure at the bottom of the sea allow the water to penetrate to the fires that throw up the melted metal of the new island to the surface, an eruption may take place of a kind similar to that which destroyed Pompeii, but far more terrible.

The eruption that formed the present island of Nea Kaimene began in the year 1707, and the volcanic action continued, without doing any serious injury to the inhabitants of Thera until 1713. It is possible the present eruption may continue as long, and be as mild in its operation. But as late as 1750 a terrible eruption laid waste great part of the island, and raised an island on its northeastern coast, which sunk again into the sea, leaving a shoal.

The island of Old Kaimene made its first appearance in the year 198 before the Christian era. Its size was increased by several eruptions mentioned in history. The last addition it received was in 1457. The Small Kaimene, which is nearest to Thera, was thrown up in 1573. All eruptions in the bays have been attended with similar phenomena.

The British naval commander at Malta has sent two ships to the scene of the phenomena. A letter dated Feb. 7, containing the latest news says:

"The same smoke and fire in the evening as yesterday, and the hillock continues its operations. The sea, too, boils beyond the cove more than yesterday. The hillock, or land, will probably by to-morrow increase as far as the entrance to the cove, and be joined by its sides."

—Two young lawyers—Archy Brown and Thomas Jones—were fond of dropping into Mr. Smith's parlor, and spending an hour or two with his only daughter, Mary. One evening, when Brown and Mary had discussed almost every topic, Brown, suddenly in his sweetest tones, struck out as follows: "Do you think, Mary, you could leave father and mother, this pleasant home, with all its ease and comforts, and emigrate to the far West with a young lawyer, who has little besides his profession to depend upon, and with him search out a new home, which it should be your joint duty to beautify and make beautiful and happy like this?" Dropping her head softly on his shoulder, she whispered, "I think I could, Archy." "Well," said he, "there is Tom Jones, who is going to emigrate, and wants to get a wife; I will mention it to him."

EXPERIMENT IN GRASS CULTURE.—An English farmer writes to the Mark Lane Express an account of an accidental experiment in grass culture which occurred on his farm a few years ago. He says that his plowman mistook orders, and plowed half an acre in one of his grass fields before the mistake was discovered. This was in the fall, and the land lay with the roots of the grass turned up to the weather during the winter. In the spring the sods were turned down carefully and the land rolled. The result was that the grass grew richer and higher in the plowed part than in any other portion of the field.

MICHAEL D. SULLIVAN, of Illinois, owns the largest farm in world—70,000 acres, 28,000 of which are under cultivation.

The Letter of Introduction.

Two little boys were standing at a gate. They were both the same age; but one of them was finely and tastefully dressed, while the clothes of the other were coarse and ragged. It was in the autumn. The huskers were busy in the cornfield, and from the strip of woods beyond floated out the sound of the woodcutter's axe.

"Have you no better clothes, Benney?" asked the well dressed boy.

"No, I haven't, Johny."

"Why don't you get better ones?"

"Because I can't. I have no money. I can't get work by which to earn money.

"That is bad, Benney. Are you going to school this winter?"

"I guess not, Johny. I must stay out, and do such little jobs as I can find to do. I would like to go to school very much. I wish I knew as much as you do, Johnny."

"Pooh! I don't know anything. I am sorry for you. I am glad that I am better off, but that does not make me feel proud. It is a sin to be proud. God made you as good as I am, if your clothes are ragged."

Benny took his little friend by the hand. A tear glistened in his eye.

"You have always been kind to me, Johnny Allen," said he. "You have never hooted at me, nor taunted me, like the other boys. So I have sometimes taken up your quarrels, and I will stand by you when we are men."

"Look here, Benny! How would you like to work on a farm all winter? Good clothes, enough to eat, a little pocket money, a nice family to live with, and plenty of work!"

"I would like that."

"Then I can help you. It just occurred to me. My Uncle Abbott wants a little boy on his farm. I will give you a letter to him."

Two days afterward, Benny stood in front of Uncle Abbott, awaiting a reply. Uncle Abbott was a pleasant looking old man, not yet stooped, but with hair quiet gray. He put on his spectacles, opened John Allen's letter, and read as follows:

MEADOW BROOK, Oct. 9 Eighteen 45.

"Unkle abbott ThiS iS Benny He is a good Boy. He iS Poor & has no Home Please Keep Him & give him worK.

your neffew
JoHn aLLen.

Now, Johnny was a small boy, and not so well learned as Benny supposed him to be. But notwithstanding the spelling, misuse of capitals, and want of punctuation, the letter of introduction was sufficient. Uncle Abbot gave Benny a home for a number of years.

It was an October night, in Philadelphia. The air was as cold as November. It was late, and there was not much noise on the streets. In a cozy room sat a man. He looked careworn and haggard. He shaded his brow with his hands. His wife, a beautiful woman, stood beside him, smoothing his hair and speaking words of encouragement to him.

"It is no use, Belle," he groaned. "If I cannot command ten thousand dollars by to-morrow noon, I must go to the wall. The banks are tight; there is no money to be negotiated for on the street. I am a ruined man."

"Perhaps this may be of use to you," said his wife, handing him a slip of paper.

He went to the lamp, and read as follows:

PHILA., Oct. 9th, 1865.

First National Bank, Philadelphia—Pay to John Allen, or order, ten thousand dollars. BENJAMIN BERWICK.

"Belle, what does this mean? It is a check for ten thousand dollars. Who is Benjamin Berwick?"

"The gentleman stopped here to-day. You were not in. He felt sorry, and left the check and this note."

"My Old Friend Johnny Allen—While in the city to-day, I heard that the failure of your bank would seriously affect you. Do you remember the letter of introduction you gave me to your Uncle Abbott? It was exactly twenty years ago. A few years ago I bought land in Venango county. It proved to have oil on it, and I am quite a rich man. If the accompanying check will aid you any, please use it You can make it right some time. Your friend,

BENNY.

John Allen cried. John Allen kissed his wife, and his wife kissed him. John Allen did not go to the wall, which means to break up. And all on account of that misspelt letter of twenty years before.—Little Corporal.

TOBACCO.—We do not propose to make it our business to anathematize the foolish, absurd and dirty practice of using tobacco in any form, for we have more important matters in hand. But the reply of a drunkard, the other day, to a Son of Temperance who was pleading with him to abandon the use of strong drink, should set us thinking. "I don't want," said he, "a man with his mouth full of nasty tobacco to be talking to me about drinking a little whiskey." Our friend thought a moment and then replied, "That is so. I admit my inconsistency. I will take the beam out of my own eye. I have spent the last cent I ever shall for tobacco." A person with one bad habit can have but little influence over another who may possess one of a different character.—American Temperance Advocate.

—A stranger from the country observing an ordinary roller on the table, took it up and enquiring its use was answered: "It is a rule for counting-houses." Too well bred to ask unnecessary questions, he turned it over and over, and at last in a paroxysm of baffled curiosity, inquired: "How in the name of wonder do you count houses with this?"

MR. MORRELL—Dear Sir: I have been troubled with a very bad Sore Leg, caused by a wound received from a sickle-guard of a mowing machine. It became a large running sore, which I could not heal. I bought some of your Electro-Magnetic Fluid, to which I applied it, and in a week it healed, and was perfectly well. My wife used it also for a badly sprained ankle. A speedy cure was the result.

A. STEINHAUS,
Ex-Deputy Sheriff of Cook County,
1050 Milwaukee Avenue.

J. ADAMS ALLEN, M. D., L. L. D., Professor of Principals and Practice of Medicine in Rush Medical College, and Editor of the Chicago Medical Journal, writes as follows:

DR. SWAIN'S Bourbon Bitters are a vast improvement on the heterogenous mixture in vile half distilled whisky or worse rum, generally palmed upon the bibulous or invalid public. The manufacturer exhibits a praiseworthy confidence in the character of the menstruum he employs by giving publicity to the formula.

Most of the Bitters in the market are but adroit combinations to disguise the physical properties of the worst possible Alcoholic Tinctures of Fusli Oil.

Irresponsible Counterfeiters.

One of the most serious annoyances which the proprietors of an article in unusual demand have to encounter is the piratical imitation of it by parties equally unscrupulous and irresponsible. If an individual or a firm with means engages in this nefarious business, the damages awarded by a court of justice are collectable, and it is some satisfaction to the party wronged that the wronger is made to suffer; but in most cases the pirates are men of straw, who cannot respond in dollars to the law's award.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, being a Standard Tonic, marketable everywhere, and representing the value affixed to it as accurately as a National Bank bill represents the amount expressed on its face, has been extensively counterfeited and simulated. The proprietors have spent many thousand dollars in hunting up and hunting down irresponsible individuals and firms who have given their minds to this dirty work. These parties—some of them, at least—have a way of changing their base, though they never change their baseness. When an injunction is laid upon them in one part of the country they sometimes "vamoose" to another, and try the trick again. In some cases it is necessary to kill them two or three times over. Perhaps the best thing that can be done under these circumstances is to "lay an injunction" upon all who use the Bitters to buy only of dealers whom they can trust. In every city, town and village of the United States and British America this famous tonic, alterative and protective medicine may be procured of reliable men of business.

In the list of prizes drawn in the Garden City Gift Enterprise in gift packages, published two weeks ago, the following error occurred in the types:

For—
Ladies' Gold Watch, by Mrs. Augustus Granger, Edgefield, Ohio—worth 75.00

Read—
Lady's Gold Watch, by Mrs. Augustus Geauque, Edgerton, Ohio—worth $75.00

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, April 14.
COTTON—Middling	$ .57	@	.58
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	8.45	@	8.75
WHEAT—No. 1. Spring	1.70	@	1.71
BARLEY		@	.90
CORN—Sound Western	.73	@	.75
OATS—New Western	.40	@	.48
PETROLEUM—Crude	.24½	@
PORK—Mess new	25.50	@	25.62
BEEF HAMS	38.00	@	39.00
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	14.00	@	18.00
DRY GOODS—Merrimacs	.21	@	.22
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville		@	.37½
Brown Sheetings—Amoskeag		@	.25
Delaines—Manchester		@	.23
Denims—Manchester		@	.37½
‖GOLD—1.26⅝.
CHICAGO, April 10, 1866.
BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$80.00	@	120.00
BREVES—Stock to prime	4.00	@	6.75
BEANS	.75	@	1.25
BRAN	9.00	@	10.00
BUTTER	.20	@	.38
CHEESE—Western	.18	@	.20
COFFEE—Rio	.20	@	.28
" Java	.30	@	.40
EGGS	.16	@	.18
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	6.00	@	7.00
Malaga Lemons	7.00	@	7.50
Dried N. Y. App'es	.11½	@
Peaches Pared	.33	@	.36
Raisins, M. R.	4.0	@	4.00
FLOUR—Winter White	9.00	@	12.00
Spring Extra	7.25	@	8.75
Rye per bbl		@	4.31
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	10.00	@	10.25
Whitefish, " "	8.00	@	8.25
Codfish, per hundred	9.00	@	11.00
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.45½	@	.46
Oats "	.26½	@	.27
Rye	.83	@	.54
Wheat—Spring No. 1	1.5	@	1.7
Barley Canadian—sample	.98	@	1.04
HIGHWINES	2.20	@	2.21
HOGS—Live	9.12	@	9.35
LARD	.18	@
PORK—Mess	25.25	@	25.50
POTATOES	.60	@	.70
SHEEP—First and second class	4.00	@	5.75
SUGARS—Cuba	.12½	@	.14
New York Refined	.17½	@	.17½
White A	.16½	@	.16½
White B	.15½	@
Yellow C	.14½	@	.11½
SEEDS—Timothy, ℔ bag	4.00	@	5.12
Clover	5.85	@	6.00
SALT—Fine	2.25	@	2.50
Coarse		@	2.00
ALLOW	.10½	@	.10¾

DR. SWAIN'S
BOURBON BITTERS.

A Healthy Tonic, Gentle Stimulant, and Unequaled Morning Appetizer, prepared in

RIPE OLD BOURBON WHISKEY
FREE FROM GRAIN OIL,
With Flowers, Buds and Barks of the Highest Medicinal Virtue.

BY increasing the appetite, assisting digestion, regulating the bowels, and giving tone to the system, they impart strength and vigor to the body and cheerfulness to the mind.

☞ If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters, have him send for them.

☞ Remember the name, and take no other.

For sale by leading Druggists and Grocers everywhere.

C. H. SWAIN,
Proprietor, 34 S. Water St., Chicago.

SPRING TRADE!

Cash House!
Immense Stock
N. F. MERRILL,
Wholesale Dealer in

Kerosene Lamps.
Kerosene Lanterns.
Kerosene Chandeliers
Kerosene Chimneys.
Kerosene Burners.
Kerosene Wicks.
Kerosene Cooking Lamps

and Coal Oil Goods of every Description
Hotel & Table Glassware.
A local Agent wanted in every town in the North West, for Fish's new Patent Kerosene Cooking Lamps
Orders from the trade solicited and promptly filled
71 and 73 Randolph Street, Chicago
P. O. Box 5566.

The "Columbian" Gin.

This Gin is the purest and very best article ever offered to the public. It is the distillation of the best American malt spirits and Italian juniper berries. Those who find a diuretic stimulant necessary, should never be without it.

The proprietors of the Columbian Gin do not undertake to advertise it as a quack medicine; yet they feel guaranteed in saying that for those requiring a pure liquor, no better can be procured.

Imported gins, etc., are now nearly out of the question, on account of the extraordinary high import duties imposed upon them—which are always payable in gold—so that a home-made article, equal in all respects to any imported, should receive the attention of consumers.

Doctor Blaney, the well-known chemist of Chicago says: "It's the very best article, both as to quality and strength of flavor, that I have ever tested."

For sale by all respectable druggists and liquor dealers in the United States.

W. T. SHUFELDT & CO.,
Sole Distillers and Proprietors,
49 S. Water St., Chicago.

The Little Corporal,
Is acknowledged by the leading papers to be the Best Children's Paper in America!
Published Monthly, at One Dollar a year, (ten cents for sample copy) by ALFRED L. SEWELL,
Circulars sent free

Miscellany.

A PUNGENT CONSIDERATION

OF THE VARIOUS TRADES AND CALLINGS.

Of all the trades that men may call
Unpleasant and offensive,
The Editor's is worst of all,
For he is ever pen-sive;
His leaders lead to nothing high,
His columns are unstable,
And though the printers make him pie,
It does not suit his table.

The Carpenter—his course is plane,
His sill is always near him;
He augurs every hour of gain,
He chisels—and none jeer him;
He shaves, yet is not close, they say,
The public pay his board, sir;
Full of wise saws he bores away,
And so he swells his hoard, sir.

St. Crispin's son—the man of shoes,
Has awl things at control, sir;
He waxes wealthy in his views,
But ne'er neglects his sole, sir;
His is indeed a heeling trade,
And when we come to casting
The total profits he has made,
We find his ends are lasting.

The Tailor, too, gives his to all,
Yet never gets a basting;
His cabbages, however small,
Are most delicious tasting;
His goose is heated—ha py grig!
Unstinted is his measure;
He always plays a thimble rig,
And seams a man of pleasure.

The Farmer reaps a fortune plump,
Though harrowed, far from woe, sir;
His spade forever proves a trump,
His book is I go an hoe, sir;
However corneil, he does not slip,
Though husky, never hoarse, sir;
And in a plow share partnership,
He gets his share of course, sir.

The Sailor on the giddy mast—
Comparatively master—
Has many a hulwark round him cast
To wave awa disaster;
Even shrouds to him are full of life,
His mainstay still is o'er him,
A gallant and top-gallant crew
Of beaux esprits before him.

The sturdy Irish laborer picks
And climbs to fame—'tis funny,
He deals with none but regular bricks,
And so he pockets money;
One friend sticks to him (mortar 'tis),
In hodden gray, unhalled,
He leaves below an honest name
When he ascends the scaffold.

The Printer, though his case be hard,
Yet sticks not at his hap, sir;
'Tis his to canonize the bard,
And trim a Roman cap, sir.
Some go too forty—what of thet?
He goes it by the thousand!
A man of form, and fond of fat,
He loves the song I now send.

The Engine-driver, if we track
His outward semblance deeper,
Has got some very tender trains—
He ne'er disturbs the sleeper;
And when you switch him as he goes,
He whistles all the louder;
And should you brake him on the wheel,
It only makes him prouder.

I launched this skiff of rhyme upon
The trade winds of the muses;
Through pungent seas they're borne it on,
The boat no rudder uses;
So masticate its meaning once,
And judge not sternly of it—
You'll find a freight of little puns,
And very little profit.

MILES O'REILLY.

Correspondence of the Cincinnati Commercial.

"Making Hay while the Sun Shines."

The Modern Sir Isaac Newton.

WASHINGTON, March 22, 1866.

"O, wad some power the gi tie gie us
To see oursel's as others see us"—Burns.

On the 15th of January, less than two months ago, the house of representatives passed by almost, if not quite, a unanimous vote, the following resolution:

Resolved, That the commissioner of the department of agriculture be, and he is hereby requested to communicate to this house—

1. The amount of moneys that have been received, from any source, by his department since he has had charge of the same.

2. A statement, in detail, of the disbursements and expenditures of said department during the same period.

3. The yearly cost to the government of said department, including every expenditure connected with the same.

In response thereto, the government printing office has been required to print an octavo volume, containing forty-four pages, adding thus to the already enormous, and, in great part, profligate expenditures of this department. But an old adage says, we have no loss without some small gain. Proven true in this case, for we are shown, wherever the facts peep out blushingly from beneath the gauze intended to cover them up, that there is something decayed in Denmark. There appears to have been appropriated from the coffers of Uncle Samuel, since the organization of this inherently important department, four hundred and ninety-five thousand one hundred and seventy-four dollars and five cents, with a return of good, genuine and palpable, to the country, of five cents, making a tabular exhibit as folheld:

Sum expended	$495,174.05
Sum gained	5
Total deficit	$495,174.00

Allowing a good deal for "grace" on this posting of the books, I should like to know what practical farmer or agriculturist of any other special branch, is willing to ass rt as his faith grounded on reason, that this department under its past and present management, has benefited the people of the United States to an extent equal to a half million of dollars? I know that it is a dry job to worm one's way through forty-four pages of awkward statistics, figures distorted and seduced, and wheedled into a semblance of falsehood—but I shall proceed hastily, only giving the aggregates, and presenting a mean of what is palpable to the reader

This "mercheen" known as the department of agriculture, inhaled its first breath of existence May 15, 1862—less than four years old! There has been paid at different periods during this time:

For "seeds" and "expenses" concerning them	$191,210.50
For "propagating" (supposed to be done of the commissioner's compound and concentrated words, meaning for propping open the gate entering) in the Family Truck Patch	31,434.32
For experimenting in a cabbage-bed denominated "No. 2," a little smug	13,301.50
Total expended for seeds, roots, yerbs, and other truck	$235,955.82

A little analysis of these expenditures will be wholesome, especially to the taxpayer who knows how absurdly, if not criminally these tens of thousands are thrown to the four winds of space.

1. Nine tenths of the "seeds" referred to are purchased by the commissioner, Sir Isaac Newton, of some of his garden seed merchant friends in Philadelphia and elsewhere. William Hacker and Paschal Morris are doing the biggest thing with Sir Isaac in this line, the latter "merchant prince" having sold to the "department" (to be distributed to the especial female friends of the various M. C.'s,) seeds to the value of four thousand six hundred and thirty-one dollars and seventy cents, during the month of January, 1866. Seed dealers usually make a profit of twenty-five per cent., and all government contractors are expected, in this enlightened and patriotic age, to add twenty-five per cent. to net gains when selling to the government, for the "country's sake." Hence, you see, our friend Morris has a good thing of it. And it is probably not known, generally, when a package is received per mail by a "guid housewife," on which the mark of the agricultural department is seen, and also the frank of an M. C., that for five or ten cents in any country seed store, the same package could be purchased! People—unsophisticated and honest people, to whom this great department, in its distance, is enchanting—imagine that the seeds are all imported from some glorious Garden of Eden in the old world, and that something enormously great, or magnificently beautiful will be the result of successful fructification.

2. The festive spot of all this exhibit is the one where we see "propagation," in aid of which only thirty-one thousand four hundred and thirty-four dollars and thirty-two cents have been "invested." Sir Isaac has a little farm; that's the nub of it. And it is government land, plowed by government horses, tilled by government laborers, planted by government seeds, and the products—what becomes thereof? That's the question. Nice pea vines grow and produce abundantly; beans climb up the polished poles and are freighted with pregnant pods; sweet corn waves in the May morning zephyrs, and ripens to delicious roasting ears under the warm spring sun; beautiful roses bloom, their tender petals opening their innocent eyes from dewy slumber at the first blush of a June aurora, and emit their, rich, fresh fragrance; melons swell up to plethora with their red, luscious pulp, and mature before the first premonition of autumnal frosts—yet have we any "record" of one pea, a single bean, or an ear of maize, a rose-bud, a melon or a melon seed, being added to the "stock in trade" of the department of agriculture? No, not one; for the only item showing a source of revenue to the department is one speaking of the sale of forty nine bushels of damaged wheat, for $103 30. It is said that the white house is never forgotten when the good things of this Uncle Sam farm are in season. It is said, (and it is not my province to comment on the veracity of the "reporter," but to simply confine myself to evident facts,) that the splendid water melons of that renowned "truck patch" go to the palates of the pale occupants of the palatial executive mansion, and to the cool cellars and iced larders of the sage cabinet ministers, who are not constitutionally opposed to such good things of this mundane spheroid.

3. Now we come to a little bill of $13,301 05 paid for experimenting in truck patch No 2. People of good, common horse sense will think I am joking, and that this is a hoax as egregious as the moon hoax; but 'tisn't. It is a literal reality. A field of probably ten acres—from which not a pea or a bean or a 'yerb' or a japonica or a cantelope has been raised—a field has been plowed and harrowed and measured with red tape, all for the small pittance of thirteen thousand dollars! We have been laboring under a melancholy hallucination out West concerning our mode of practical agriculture and its results, and have been boasting of our great pecuniary success. In these crude conclusions we have been happy. When ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise, it is said, but let us enlighten a little, and ascertain what effect it will have on our optical organs and our calculations. Here, in the District of Columbia, Sir Isaac Newton can pay $13,000 for preparing a field of ten acres for planting, and yet stand a brilliant chance to make a fortune! This proves how absurd we are in our notions of Western farming. Who could do so out there? I say it, and I say it boldly, that all "you 'uns" who want to know how to do it must come and experiment on the truck patches of the United States government. What you can't learn how to produce, probably you can learn how to pocket, and that is practical science!

But I hasten to glance at another item. The cute infantile amount which has been paid for horse feed, hire and stabulation looms up to the gigantic proportion of $4,067. Sir Isaac owns a gray mare, Maggie, which carts his lovely carcass hither and yon. For the hire thereof he debited Uncle Sam, $30 per month, and in her serious cereal support he went "snooks," for the sums paid for "keep" of horses would keep a flourishing livery in sleek condition, and leave a comfortable balance for whisky punches and refreshments concomitant. I might analyze further. I forbear.

COMMENTS.

"A fool and his greenbacks are soon parted."

Personally I have no cause to complain of Sir Isaac Newton. He used to sell me when I was a friendless sojourner in the city of Friends, a cheap dish of ice-cream. It was white and sweet, of pure home made lacteal secretions, fresh from his own real estate and the nearest hydrant. Then he had cakes,—genuine gingerbread—to sell, as all great minds, ever burdened with the taxing studies of scientific pursuits, must have as "recreation." Isaac never spoke unkindly to me during the tenure of his earthly career to date. Nor did he ever write me a wicked line. The fact is, we are "brothers," and with him I am at calmest peace. I have no reason to doubt his disinterested love for me, as for all mankind, and his readiness at any moment to appoint me his chief clerk or executor. True, I don't know him personally,—but I am sorry to find that all that numerous class of mendicants who never ate a dish of his celebrated ice creams in Philadelphia, or any of that golden butter from his spring-house, or melons from his National truck-patch, or sniffed near or afar off the perfumes of his roses, or tasted the sweets of his numerous subordinate clerkships,—all other vagabonds of the land think Sir Isaac Newton "a egregious ass."

The universal opinion of him may be imagined from the fact that Agricultural State Boards of all the New England States, of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Michigan, and Minnesota, have appealed to the President for his immediate displacement by the substitution of a man who can, at least, show a knowledge of commonest English orthography, and who can write at least one sentence grammatically.

That he is a consummate fool, no one doubts. He sent a special envoy to China for the purpose of ascertaining the mode the Chinese had of making sugar and syrup from the Chinese or sorghum cane. He writes back: "Strange as it may appear, I can not find in their agricultural works, or in actual practice, the slightest evidence that the Chinese cultivate sorgho for any other purpose whatever than for chewing or sucking the stalks. The plant is not considered a valuable product by the Chinese, * * for I do not believe there are twenty acres on the whole island near Shanghai."

Every agricultural newspaper in the land demands his removal, and the star of Bethlehem has arisen, for the President has stated to the Secretary of the New England Society (Hon. Daniel Needham) his determination to put a competent man in his stead. Yet, midst all, Sir Isaac sits in his chair of State, famous and contented.

GAIT AN INDICATION OF CHARACTER.—Observing persons move slow, their heads move alternately from side to side, while they occasionally stop and turn around. Careful people lift their feet high and place them down flat and firm. Sometimes they stoop down, pick up some little obstruction and place it quietly by the side of the way. Calculating persons generally walk with their hands in their pockets and their heads slightly inclined. Modest persons generally step softly, for fear of being observed. Timid persons often step off from a side-walk on meeting another, and always go round a stone instead of stepping over it. Wide awake persons "toe out," and have a long swing to their arms, while they shake about miscellaneously. Careless persons are forever stubbing their toes. Lazy persons scrape about loosely with their heels, and are first on one side of the walk and then on the other. Very strong-minded persons have their toes directly in front of them, and have a kind of a stamp movement. Unstable persons walk fast and slow by turns. Venturous persons try all roads, frequently climb the fences instead of going through the gate, and never let down a bar. One-idea persons and very selfish ones "toe in." Cross persons are apt to hit their knees together. Good natured persons snap their fingers every few steps. Fun-loving people have a kind of jig movement.

—There is now in St. Mary's workhouse, in Reading, England, an old woman nearly ninety years of age, who is able to repeat the whole of the second book of Milton's Paradise Lost.

An Eccentric Frenchman.

How He Committed Suicide.

The most extraordinary suit perhaps ever preferred before the tribunals is about to be transferred from the courts of Naples to those of Paris. The subject of litigation is the last will and testament made by a certain M. Couvreaux, a Frenchman, by which a considerable sum was bequeathed to "the people of the hotel," at Castellamare, in which he committed suicide. The tribunals of Naples have decided against the bequest on the plea of the insanity of the testator; but "the people of the hotel," acting under advice, have denied the competence of the Italian law to judge the validity of a Frenchman's will, and have brought the affair before the French courts The circumstances brought to light are curious enough. M. Couvreaux, whose fortune seems to have been considerable, was the son of a silk merchant in Lyons, who having married his cook, while the subject of the present investigation was still a child had placed him at his death under the sole and entire control of the promoted cook until he had attained his majority. Hence arose in the nervous disposition and sensitive mind of the youth, neglected and ill-treated by the mother-in-law, a deeply rooted aversion to women, and terror of all physical suffering. His father's example had warned him of the danger of yielding to the influence of the fair sex, and he was resolved not to trust himself even to the possibility of yielding to temptation. Like Charles XII. of Sweden, he deemed it wiser to fly than to combat when danger from bright eyes was to be anticipated; and the stories told of his needless alarm when by chance he met any of the serving women on the stairs of the hotel, and of their equally needless alarm at beholding the terror they occasioned, have furnished the joyous propos of Naples for the last three years with amusement. For nine months, M. Couvreaux has been entirely occupied with the study of every work ever written on the guillotine. Several books were found in his apartment treating of the manner of death of those who had suffered by this instrument. The question of pain was one which occupied his attention most of all, and, as he possessed some talent for drawing, a vast collection of sketches of heads in every position as falling beneath the axe, with the various contractions of nerve created by the different directions given to the edge, or the degree of rapidity with which the knife was made to descend upon the neck of the victim. The result of the inquiry must have been favorable to this mode of exit from the world, for, henceforth shutting himself up in his own room, he devoted his whole time to the construction of a guillotine for his own private use and gratification—a self-acting instrument, effective, easy, and sure in its operation. As success began to crown his experiment, his labors became more eager and more unceasing. He seldom left his room but for the purchase of the materials necessary for his great work. The knife was tried on living fowls and rabbits, to the great amazement of the inmates of the hotel, who had ended in proclaiming the unhappy man a "Strago" or sorcerer of the deepest dye. None passed the door of his room without making the sign of the cross and muttering a prayer, in the full conviction that the most deadly incantations were being pursued night and day by the "Strago," who had power to blight with all sorts of curses those who dared to thwart him or oppose his wishes. The master of the hotel alone, who had found his money quite as profitable as that of others, denied his magic power, and sent in his bills without the smallest fear of the magic power of his guest. When the instrument at which he had worked with the greatest steadfastness was completed, he set it up in the doorway between the two rooms he occupied. The axe had been duly sharpened and balanced with sixty kilogrammes of lead, to insure its swift descent. With a Frenchman's taste he then proceeded to the ornamental part of the design. He enclosed the grim machine beneath crimson velvet hangings, then placed a table covered with black cloth under the axe, and built steps below the whole to enable him to ascend; and as there is always something of the grotesque mingled with the Frenchman's vagaries, he took the precaution of placing a soft white pillow by the table, so that his head might fall easily and with picturesque grace when severed from the body. When every preparation was thus completed, he sat down to the piano, and played with great sentiment and feeding a hymn to the Virgin of his own composition.

It was heard by those promenading on the quay below. There must have been something peculiar in the sound, for the people stopped to listen, and the landlord, who was lolling against the door-post, said to the people gathered, "The performer is my French lodger. He plays well enough, does he not? Well, whenever he dies, it will be in the skin of the greatest madman this earth ever bore." When the strain was concluded the listeners dispersed, and ran to witness the performance of Punch, a little further on; but M Couvreaux, in the costume of white flannel he had ordered for the occasion, mounted the steps of his tiny scaffold, and, lying quietly down with his eyes raised so as to behold the descent of the knife, let go the pulley and launched himself into the spirit world from which no man has ever returned. The next morning the body was discovered by the waiter, and great was the consternation of the inhabitants of Castellamare, when this new means of self-destruction became revealed As may be supposed, the hotel was visited by the whole population until the brothers of the Pieta came to convey the corpse away. By a strange coincidence it was observed that the head had fallen exactly in the position marked as easier of all by the hand of M Couvreaux beneath one of the sketches in the album of guillotined heads he had left behind. His will, written in a clear, bold hand, was laid upon the table. After disposing of his fortune among his relations in a completely rational and natural manner, he bequeaths some few thousand francs to "the people of the hotel," and it is this sum which has become the subject of dispute through the miserable cupidity of the family.

A ROMANTIC STORY.—A Memphis paper says, that some ten years ago, a young couple married, and at the end of a year, after the birth of a daughter, they separated, and a divorce was obtained. For nine years they never saw or heard from each other. The little girl was taught to believe that her father was dead. Two or three days ago, as the lady and her daughter entered a business house in Memphis, they met the husband and father coming out. Each stopped and looked into the other's face. Then the father turning to the child and stooping down, took her in her arms, pressed her to his bosom and covered her with kisses. Setting her down, he looked once more into her mother's face and started to go. He heard his name and turned. Another look, and husband and wife were again in each other's arms. They were left alone for a few minutes, then a carriage was called, and but a few minutes more had elapsed before they were remarried.

—The London Owl enters upon the dispute between High and Low Churchmen in England with the following:

RITUALISM.

By the Husband of a Ritualist.

I do not know, and less I care
What clothes a parson ought to wear,—
A black dress or a white dress,
Why should I, while I call my own
One who, when preaching, wears a gown,
And lectures in a night dress?

—The giant of Barnum's Museum was recently converted at a revival meeting.

CURRENT ITEMS.

Domestic Paragraphs.

— A horse was sold at auction in Springfield, Mass., a few days ago, for one cent a pound.

— There is a fellow on exhibition in New Orleans whose beard measures six feet in length.

—The price of tobacco in Montana Territory has recently been as high as five dollars a pound.

—The Davenport brothers have abandoned the title of mediums, and now call themselves merely jugglers.

— A man at Cairo, Ill., bet five silver dollars, the other day, that Jeff. Davis was either in Canada or Europe.

—It is charged that the postmaster at Marshalltown, Iowa, was detected a few days ago, in robbing the mail of money letters.

—The New York hotel proprietors and restaurants seriously contemplate a reduction of their prices. The millennium approacheth.

— Mr. Edward Sewell, a pedestrian of Quebec, on Monday of last week, ran a distance of nineteen miles and a half in less than three hours.

— When the sewerage of Paris is complete, the canals will contain not only the water and gas pipes of the city, but also the telegraph wires of the city companies.

— There is a man in Hampshire county, Mass., who has his life insured for sixty-five thousand dollars, and another who has policies amounting to forty thousand dollars.

—There was never so much crime in Vermont as now, and the officers say that four-fifths of it is to be attributed to liquor. One county has fifteen criminals who will be sent to State Prison.

—The boy, Malcolm Wells, 14 years old, from Janesville, who fired the State Reform School building at Waukesha, Wis, plead guilty, and was sentenced to the State prison for 10 years.

—A business man in Williamsburgh, whose safe has been blown open three times by burglars, now pursues the plan of leaving the key in the lock. He is tired of paying for repairs.

—A lady who edits a newspaper in one of the Western States says that the popularity of her journal is due to the fact that people are always expecting she will say something she ought not to.

—Speaking of "moving," a family living in Springfield, Mass., has "moved" fifteen times in the last seven years, and is getting ready to do it again. "There's no place like home," but "home" is sometimes rather miscellaneous as to locality.

—A very beautiful Philadelphia idea is to change the name of Broad Street to Lincoln Avenue, and the Common Council have gracefully responded to public expectation by passing a resolution ordering the alteration to be made.

—The Enquirer Company and the capitalists associated with them, seem to have abandoned the project of building an opera house in Cincinnati. They talk, instead, of erecting a first-class hall on the ground floor, of which the city is greatly in need.

—Houses are so scarce at New Albany, Ind., that a number of people in the lower part of the town are building flat-boat houses, intending to anchor them out in front of the city and move their families into them. Several of these marine dwellings are now in course of construction at the ship-yard of that city.

— The Waterbury (Conn.) Chronicle—which has just commenced the publication of a large and well filled weekly sheet—reports a daughter recently born in that place who has nine grand parents, and one step-great-grandmother all living, and so far as heard from, in comfortable health and excellent spirits.

— The De Witt (Iowa) Observer says: "Jesse G. Royalty, who was taken last week to Fort Madison to serve three years for having three living wives, has been discovered to have two more at Springfield, Mo. Thus this youthful Brigham Young has five wives—besides a black woman whom he engaged to marry while they were confined in jail at this place."

—An interesting and important decision touching the responsibility of Common Carriers, has just been decided at Milwaukee, in which the American Express Company are made to pay $200 for damages pone to a Cremona fiddle, while in transportation, notwithstanding the attempted waiver of responsibility exceeding $50, expressed on the Company's blank receipts.

—Those who are compelled to hire house help will appreciate the following advertisement, clipped from an Omaha paper: — "Mrs. G. H Collins wants a first-rate, tip-top, No. 1 girl, to do housework; must thoroughly understand cooking, washing, and ironing. Wages $5 per week. All the piano playing, fine needle work, visiting and entertaining company will be done by the lady of the house.

—A widow lady of Danville, Ky., took an orphan boy to raise, quite small, and when arrived at the age of 18 she married him, she then being in her 50th year. They lived many years together, happy as any couple. Ten years ago they took an orphan girl to raise. This fall the old lady died, being 96 years of age, and in seven weeks after, the old man married the girl they had raised, he being 68 years old, and she 18.

—A lady, modestly attired, was on her way to New York, on board one of the Hudson river night boats. She sat quietly reading in the ladies' cabin, when a flashily dressed dame, mistaking her for a servant, rather rudely accosted her with, "Do you know this cabin is for ladies?" "Certainly I do," was the answer, "and have been wondering for some time why you were here" —Recently a woman applied at the long bridge at Troy, New York, to be allowed to cross, but having no money she was refused. She applied to some people near by, who told her to cross on the railroad bridge, and she followed the advice. She had, however, not gone far when, becoming dizzy she fell through the ties into the river. An officer was called by parties who saw the woman fall, and he endeavored to reach her with a long pole, but failed to do so.

—There are now living in Ipswich, N. H., and within a few rods of each other, two pensioners of the United States. They both enlisted at the age of 18 years—the one in the war with Great Britain, in 1814, the other in the war of rebellion, in 1864, 50 years after. The first was taken with spotted fever, which totally deprived him of his hearing, and he has remained deaf ever since. The second was attacked by spotted fever, in 1864, which utterly deprived him of his eyesight, and he will probably remain blind for life. The first draws a pension of $8 per month, the last receives $25 per month.

—For some time past, work has been going on at the foundations of a new Catholic cathedral in New York, which, when completed, will be one of the largest buildings in America. This cathedral will be 350 feet long by 325 feet wide, and the towers will be 175 feet high. Inside the building, the nave will be 150 feet wide, and the ceiling 100 feet above the floor. The architecture is to be of the pure Gothic order, and the estimated cost is $3,000,000. It will occupy an entire square of ground, bounded by Fifth and Madison avenues, Forty-ninth and Fiftieth streets. The New York Catholics are also building a smaller cathedral at Forty-fourth street and Fifth avenue, which will cost about $500,000. In Boston, work will also soon begin on a large Catholic cathedral.

—The Sussex (N. J.) Register relates a singular story of a citizen of Newton, in that State. It is of a Mr. Lorenzo Demarest, who summoned his pastor to his house on Wednesday, and said that he should certainly die that night, with the further statement that the night previous, his father, who had been dead many years, came to him and kissed him, and drew his cold hand over his breast. Here Mr. Demarest showed with his own the direction his father's hand had taken. "That," said he, "means death; it is cold there already." He then said that he wished his body conveyed to a certain place for interment; that he wished a funeral discourse to be preached after his decease, and that great care should be taken lest he be buried alive. At midnight of the same evening he was found dead in his bed.

Foreign Gossip.

—The Duchess of Sutherland is dangerously ill. She was the most magnificent looking woman in Europe.

—The British army in England is 40,000 strong, in every regiment of which arrests for Feminism have been made.

—Lobsters are getting scarce in England. Mr. Buckland attributes the scarcity to the practice of selling lobsters' eggs in the markets.

—Fashionable young lady, detaching her hair before retiring: "What dreams may come when we have shuffled off this mortal coil."

—The Governor of New Brunswick has approved the confederation scheme. This event has so surprised the Government party that a Cabinet rupture is imminent.

—Jenny Lind Goldschmidt is at Cannes, France. Her health has greatly improved. The local papers announce a concert to be given by her for the benefit of the Cannes hospital.

—Mazzini, the Italian republican, sees hope in the sky abroad. He writes hither: "An energetic conduct of the United States in the question of Mexico would hasten the fall of Louis Napoleon.

—Parliament has voted a monument to Lord Palmerston. So they did to the Duke of Wellington, thirteen years ago, and not one stone of it is laid yet; while the lions for Nelson's monument have been in the hands of Sir Edwin Landseer for something like a quarter of a century.

—M. Emile de Girardin has adopted a novel method of forcing the growth of wit. He intends to give a series of dinners, to which the witty alone will be invited, and such of them as fail to come up to the proper standard of humor will thereafter be dropped from the list.

—Dr. Mackay, poet and Times' "special," has compiled a dictionary of obsolete terms and phrases, and of such as are still in use in out-of-the-way sections of England, America and the Colonies, which Messrs. Turner & Cox, of London, have just published under the title of "Lost and Perishing Beauties of the English Language."

—The Egyptian government has published an announcement that Prince Ismail Bey has been made an "infant," and that none of his debts, contracted without the written consent of his guardian, will be paid. This infant is about forty years old; it was he who, last summer, lost twenty thousand dollars a day at the Imperial Club, Paris.

—Louis Bonhier died recently at Nieuella Dolent, La Vendee, France, at the age of one hundred and six years. He served in the armies of the first Republic for many years, was subsequently married and became the father of seventeen children, and to the last retained all his faculties, being remarkable for the correctness of his memory.

—The tycoon of Japan has sent a valuable present to Napoleon, consisting of 15,000 cases of silkworms, more prized, inasmuch as it has been clearly proved that Japanese silkworms produce a superior quality of silk, and are less liable to the disease which has of late years caused so much distress to the silk growers of the south of France.

—M. Liddet, President of the Civil Tribunal of Loches, France, while on a deer-stalking party, had the misfortune to shoot his friend and host dead, mistaking him in thick wood for a deer. At the court of Orleans, where the case was tried, the jury found the presiding judge of the court of Loches guilty of homicide by imprudence, and sentenced him to pay a fine of six hundred francs.

—The Suez Canal is partially completed. A schooner having actually navigated the canal from Port Laid to Suez, a direct communication between the Mediterranean and Red Sea may be regarded as an accomplished fact. Nothing now remains but to give to the canal all the width and depth necessary to insure a free passage for large ships; to finish the dykes, ports, basins, and dockyards.

—A hand-organ player in Paris has revived interest in that antiquated style of musical entertainment by gravely turning over the leaves of a music book with his left hand, while he worked the handle with his right hand, as if he was really playing by the notes. This ingenious proceeding excited considerable amusement, and was on the whole favorably received by the public, and rewarded with a liberal supply of sous.

—Mrs. Brooke publishes the last words of her late husband, Mr. G V Brooke, who was one of the passengers in the London. They were found in a bottle on the Brighton beach, and have been forwarded to Mrs Broke by Mr. C. A Elliott, of Trinity College, Cambridge The note is written in pencil on a torn envelope, and read as follows: "11th of January, on board the London. We are just going down. No chance of safety. Please give this to Avonia Jones, Survey Theatre. — Gustavus Vaughan Brooke."

—Gustave Dore, it seems, is not to illustrate Shakespeare, after all. A publisher offered him four hundred thousand francs, but he demanded the round sum of a million. For the fables of La Fontaine, upon the illustrations of which he is now employed, he receives five hundred francs for each one, and it is said that after making his studies he draws two a day, for which he receives cash on delivery. He may be seen almost every day now at the Jardin des Plantes, studying the movements and peculiarities of the animals which will occupy places in this great work.

—According to official statements, the Republic of Liberia has brought under its control 200,000 of the aborigines, beside 6,000 recaptured from slave ships It has turned more than 500 miles of coast from being a slave mart to the peaceful and honest pursuits of agriculture and commerce. More than 150 churches have been erected. About 200 schools are in operation; 20,000 children have been taught in English, and 20,000 persons have united with the churches. There are between sixty and seventy settlements, and their commerce annually amounts to between fifteen and twenty millions of dollars.

—Several stories have lately been floating about with regard to Leopold Meyer, the celebrated pianist, and his adventures with different sovereigns. The most amusing was his visit to the Sultan. Musulman etiquette would not allow of a piano touching the floor of the sacred apartment of the head of the believers. The piano was supported by four lesser believers, and as Turkish etiquette would not permit Leopold Meyer to sit down in the Sultan's presence, he was obliged to play standing up It would be difficult to imagine a more comical performance, which came to a worthy termination. When M. Meyer had finished his sonata, His Highness said, in a drowsy kind of way, "Now let the musician dance."

Personal and Literary.

JAMES D. TAYLOR, late editor of the Cincinnati Times, died on the 31st ult, in Richmond county, Ohio.

A PARDU, a successful coal merchant in the Lehigh region, has given $100,000 to La Fayette College at Easton, Pa.

THE second volume of the French Emperor's "Life of Cæsar" has been "set up;" and the proof sheets are in the author's hands.

ALEXANDER DUMAS can cook as well as write novels. He recently gave an elegant dinner at Paris, which was cooked wholly by himself.

MR. ROLF died a few days since, near Corydon, Iowa, being over 100 years of age. He was in the army in 1790, and with Gen. Wayne at Presque Isle in 1794.

MATILDA HERON closed her engagement at Worcester, Mass., a few nights ago, at very short notice, declining to appear on discovering a small audience present.

THREE of Prof. Agassiz's assistants have just returned from Brazil The Professor, with the remainder of his party, are not expected home until late in the season.

SAM HOUSTON'S judgment of Jefferson Davis was expressed in the following theologico-zoological characterization: He is as ambitious as Lucifer, and cold as a lizard."

SIR HUGH HENRY ROSE, the new Commander-in-Chief of the British army in Ireland, has seen hard service in India, and is the man who blew the Sepoy leaders from the mouths of his cannon.

WALTER H. STEWART, of Brownfield, Maine, has neither hands nor feet, but he can feed himself without assistance, thread a needle, sew on buttons, go up and down stairs, and write a good, legible hand.

GUSTAVE DORE, the artist, who has now become famous, but whose work has been known and appreciated by a few more than 10 years, is not yet 33 years of age. In 1862 the number of his drawings had reached 44,000.

THE aged Indian Ska dyoh-gwa-deh, or, as he was more familiarly known, Philip Kenjockety, died April 1, at Newton, N. Y., on the Cattaraugus Reservation. His age was unknown, but generally believed to be from 120 to 130 years.

THE Auburn (N. Y.) Advertiser says that a son of Brigham Young, formerly a resident of that village, was in town last week, looking up sundry debts of his father's which he was anxious to liquidate, with the interest which had accured during forty five years.

COMMODORE VANDERBILT is seventy, but active as ever. He has built and paid for one hundred steamers, and is now the largest owner of rail-road stock in the United States. He controls both the Harlem and Hudson River Roads, while his interest in the New York Central is not less than half a million.

LIEUT. GENERAL GRANT was arrested in Washington on Saturday the 7th, for fast driving. The General has taken a prominent part, we believe, in numerous other fast drives during the last five years, but this is the first occasion we have had to record of his having been arrested.

AN exchange recently announced that Dr. Winship of Boston was 160 years old, weighed a pound and a quarter, and could lift 32 tons. Next week the editor gave the correct version as follows:

Dr Winship, of Boston, now weighs one hundred and sixty pounds, is thirty-two years of age, and can lift a ton and a quarter.

G. W. HARDENBROOK, of Independence, Iowa, will soon become heir to $1,000,000. A farm of 100 acres, right in the heart of New York city, just below Central park, was willed, in trust by a life lease many years ago to an old lady, who is now some 90 years of age; it is now covered with streets and buildings, and is soon to come into the possession of 50 heirs. It must be worth at least $50,000 000, giving Mr. Hardenbrook a snug little $1,000,000 as his part.

MRS. D. C. PHILLIPS, formerly of Boston, died in New York last week, worth $40,000. Some years ago she obtained a divorce from her husband under peculiarly difficult circumstances. By her will she bequeathes one fourth of her property to Charles Cowley, a lawyer in Boston, who was her counsel in the divorce suit, "as an act of gratitude to him for the peace and happiness which his services have secured to me during the last seven years of my life."

A NEW YORK letter says the celebrated Mrs. Gaines is spending some time in that city. Her rights, after a struggle of thirty-five years, are at last confirmed by the Supreme Court, but actual possesion of the many millions she inherits is yet witheld. She is going next week to New Orleans to compromise for some of her property, and if she obtains a title of it she will build a superb house on Central Park, which in architecture will surpass anything in the country.

THE Indianapolis Gazette notices the arrival in that city of a most remarkable walker, by the name of Frederick Shaffer, a German, whose peregrinations have extended all over Europe and the greater part of Asia and Africa, and who is now on his way across the plains to California and thence to Japan and China. He is making the tour of the world on foot. Mr. Shaffer is about thirty years of age, and is far below the common stature, being only about four feet six inches in height, owing to a disease or deformity of the spine. He is said to be very intelligent, and converses freely in several different languages.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN was known as a temperance man. The following incident is related of him as happening at the time the committee appointed to inform him of his nomination was performing this duty at his own house in Springfield, Ill.: "After this ceremony had passed, Mr Lincoln remarked to the company that, as an appropriate conclusion to an interview so important and interesting as that which had just transpired, he supposed good manners would require that he would treat the committee with something to drink; and opening a door that led into a room in the rear, he called out: 'Mary! Mary!' A girl responded to the call, whom Mr. Lincoln spoke a few words to in an undertone; and, closing the door, returned again to converse with his guests. In a few minutes the maiden entered, bearing a large waiter containing several glass tumblers and a large pitcher in the midst, and placed it upon the centre table Mr. Lincoln arose, and gravely addressing the company, said: 'Gentlemen, we must pledge our mutual healths in the most healthy beverage which our God has given to man; it is the only beverage I have ever used or allowed in my family, and I cannot conscientiously depart from it on the present occasion It is pure Adam's ale from the spring;' and, taking a tumoler, he touched it to his lips and pledged them his highest respect in a cup of cold water. Of course, all his guests were constrained to admire his consistency and to join in his example."

TOMATOES.—A correspondent complains that the wire worm destroyed a great amount of his tomatoes last season, burrowing in and eating out his finest fruit. We do not doubt it; but the fault is more with the gardener than the wire worm. The latter "takes the goods the gods provide." He finds the fruit lying on the ground. How is he to know it was not specially provided for his use? If the vines had been tied to trellises, or in case of field culture trained over heaps of stout brush, the wire worm would have sought his meals elsewhere.—New York Courier.

—The debt of St. Paul, Minn., foots up $586,139 58, or about $16 for each man, woman, and child.

From the Western Railroad Gazette.

Michigan Central Railroad.

This ever favorite and admirably managed railway is doing an immense business. So great has been the rush of spring travel and traffic, that it has been found necessary to put on the line an extra train (which was done on the 1st. inst.), and four express through trains now run daily from Chicago, forming in connection with the Canada Great Western and Erie or Central Railways, one of the best and most liberally patronized routes on the continent. The following is the new arrangement, which went into effect April first:

Morning Express leaves Chicago every morning, Sundays excepted, at 4:00 a. m., and arrives at Detroit at 4:45 p. m.

The Day Express train, Sundays excepted, leaves Chicago at 6:00 a. m., and arrives at Detroit at 5:45 p. m.

The Evening Express, Saturdays excepted, leaves at 5:30 p. m., and arrives at Detroit at 6:10 a. m.

The Night Express, Saturdays and Sundays excepted, leaves Chicago at 10:00 p. m., and arrives at Detroit at 10:00 a. m.

On the same road the Evening Express, Sundays and Mondays excepted, leaves Detroit at 5:25 p. m., and arrives at Chicago at 6:00 a. m.

The Night Express leaves Detroit, Mondays excepted, at 11:00 p. m., and arrives at Chicago at 12:30 p. m.

The Morning Express, Sundays excepted, leaves Detroit at 6:15 a. m., and arrives at Chicago at 7:45 p. m.

The Morning Express, Sundays excepted, leaves Detroit at 11:30 a. m., and arrives at Chicago at 11:00 p. m.

To those who have ever done business over this line, it may be superfluous to add that its officers, one and all, are noted for their courtesy, liberality and honorable, square dealing. They make no promises they do not fulfil, nor contracts that they do not carry out to the letter. They have the confidence of the public simply because they are worthy of it. They treat their employees like human beings, and promptly pay the ablest men the highest wages. There is not an engineer on the road but stands as fair a chance some day to be its Superintendent or President, as anybody else. Talent, fidelity, and honesty is understood, appreciated and rewarded as it ought to be; consequently there is not a man in the employ of the company but feels and manifests an almost personal pride and interest in its success, nor spares any exertion to maintain the high reputation and good name it has always held in the public esteem. The unusual immunity from serious accident by collision, derangement of machinery, or irregularity of any kind this road has enjoyed in a remarkable degree, is doubtless largely owing to the fact that such perfect harmony exists among the highest officials and agents with one another and their subordinates, down to the humblest brakeman. Their relations always have been, and still are, of the most kindly and amicable nature.

The entire business supervision and daily operation of this line, to the minutest detail, is attended to with the strictest care and watchfulness. The track is kept in the finest possible condition with a continuous rail of the best iron manufactured; the bridges and culverts are never out

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan.

One of the best filled Establishments!

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South Side Chicago St, Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS,

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY,
WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH, COTTAGE,
COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP,
WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Show Cases, Stands, Book Cases, Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short notic by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pic.ures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VANTINE,
G. SMITH,

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

TECUMSEH, - - MICH A

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions,

I keep the largest and best assortment of

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS,
FRUITS,
SALT,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,
&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had eleven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the busines I you dont believe it, ask your neighbors where they get their Groceries and where they buy them the

CHEAPEST.

and judge for yourselves.

0 AJAMES.

☞ Subscribe for the HERALD.

What is the Matter!

The Fact is the new firm of

SLAYTON TINDALL &Co.

are selling

FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT

By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff. And all the people are rushing for it. Come on we have a large stock of such wheat on hand yet, also

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,
CORN MEAL,
PLASTER,
WATER LIME,
CLOVER SEED,
TIMOTHY SEED,
CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF

Grain and Seeds!!

SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO.
Tecumseh Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

NEW SPRING GOODS.

The undersigned is just receiving a well selected and choice stock of

FAMILY GROCERIES;

consisting in part of the following articles:
SUGARS, TEAS, COFFEES, SPICE, PEPPER, GINGER, BUTTER, CHEESE, LARD, FRUITS, SALT, TOBACCO, WOOD WILLOW AND STONE WARE, PORK, HAMS, POTATOES, AND numerous other articles not necessary to mention.

Having purcased the store on the north side of Chicago street, in this village, formerly occupied by Deuel & Weatherhead, and having had some experience in former years, by strict attention to business,

Reasonable Prices AND Honorable Dealing, I hope to merit a share of the public patronronage. All goods warranted to give good satisfaction in every case My motto is

Small Profits and Quick Sales.

and above all honorable dealing.

The public are most respectfully solicited to call and examine my stock of Groceries before purchasing elsewhere.

J. S. HENDRYX.

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the

Nicest, Best and Strongest,

WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS,

and in fact everything in his line from a baby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition, So call and leave your orders.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM,

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

☞ All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Prices.

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co. are now prepared to present to the public, every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART,

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and ellegance to the figure.

India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite

in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices.

and a general assortment of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government.

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.
n790lysmp

A. J. HOAG,

Sccessor to WM. REITERMAN & Co.

WHOLESALE DEALER IN

Ambrotype and Photograph Stock,

235 Summit St. - - Toledo, O.

☞ Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the HERALD.

1866. 1866.

MERRITT, MEEKER & Co

SUCCESSORS TO J. H. WHEELER.

Have just received a large additon to their

STOCK OF GOODS,

And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of

DRY GOODS,

YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Particular attention is called to their stock

of BUFFALO ROBES and LADIES AND GENTS FURS,

which they are now selling

At Cost

We would announce to his numerous friends that we have secured the services of Wm. VanCamp, and he will take pleasure in waiting upon all.

It is no trouble to show goods; should you wish anything in our line give us a call before purchasing elsewherb and we will do our best to give satisfaction.

GLORIOUS NEWS,

The Confederacy gone up! But

GEORGE HEESEN'S

CLOTHING EMPORIUM

Is in full blast, and has not yet surrendered to young america. I would say to my friends and customers that I have just received a large stock of clothing which were purchased at panic prices, and I will sell them at a very small profit, for they must be sold within ninety days, I

Sell Cassimere Pants at 6.50.

Broad cloth and cassimere coats very cheap, Linen coats cheaper than any other house in town, wool. en and Straw

HATS, CAPS!

Linen and Paper Collars,
Neck Ties, Shirts,
Gloves, Hosiery,
Traveling Bags, &c.

It is easily understood that I can sell oods cheaper than m neighbor for I save great expense, bein a tailor and having followed the business for the last 17 years I know how work ought to be done.

Please come over on the Canada side for you can buy goods cheaper than you can on the American, for all expense of importing is saved, which amounts to considerable.

Cutting Done at Old Prices.

Those wishing garments made would do well to call on me and have an honest job done.

Geo. Heesen.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New Yisnow opening a new stock of

roceries, Paints, Oils &c

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago eet.

L. DREW'S NEW HARDWARE!!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz:

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass. Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron, and Zinc,

Also the

Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

Real Estate for Sale.

Our old friend John Davenport wishes to dispose of the following property:

60 acres of fine timbered land lying near Franklin Centre.

120 acres of timbered land on Evans Lake. Saw mill and 20 acres of land near Franklin Centre.

Brick House and 4 acres of land known as the Stitts property in the village of Tecumseh, now occupied by A. Hood.

House and lot on Logan St. known as the Mrs. Bissell property.

Also—House and lot of J. E. Merritt Maiden Lane, in the village of Tecumseh.

Terms easy or to suit purchasers. For particulars call on or address the subscriber at Tecumseh, Mich.

JOHN DAVENPORT.

Dated Jan. 18th, 1866.

☞ Have you job printing done at the Herald Office,

Boots are Down!

Shoes are Down!!

BOOTS & SHOES

ARE DOWN!!!

AT HOAG'S

MAMMOTH

SHOE STORE,

AT HOAG'S MAMMOTH,
AT HOAG'S MAMMOTH,

Don't pay War prices to men that tell you that Boots & Shoes are no cheaper.

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!!

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!!!

AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE
AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE
AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE.

Having made extensive purchases at greatly reduced rates he has marked down his entire stock to correspond.

Call and examino—compare prices, and save money by buying at Hoag's.

Repairing done promptly—prices reduced.

E. H. HOAG.

Tecumseh, March 27th, 1866.

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartner ship in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE AND FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions,

Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected

stock of

Crockery and Glass-Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

C. H. ADAM & CO.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct TECUMSEH, MICH.

---

18 Pronunciemento. 65.

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see

How well we can do For them.

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd best Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholesale or Retail.
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
Fine Midlings, B. W. Four,
Ship Stuffs, B. W. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE.

They will always also usually find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE,

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL;

Corn In the Ear and Shelled.

A goo assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantable Lumber.

Wm. HAYDEN

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee s.s —At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian on Monday the 12th day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six

Present, Robert R. Beecher, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Stephen E. Cole, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Osmond Tower prayingthat the administrator of said estate may be required and directed by said court to deed to him certain lands of said deceased for reasons in said petition stated.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday, the 14th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said ueceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for six successive weeks previous to said day of hearing

ROBERT R. BEECHER,
Judge of Probate.

(A true Copy.) 750w4

Dissolution.

The co-partnership heretofore existing under the name of Curtis & McCowen is this day dissolved by mutual consent. All persons indebted to said firm are requested to settle without delay

GEORGE CURTIS,
WM. McCOWEN,

Tecumseh, March 5th 1866.

The undersigned have this date formed a co partnership under the firm and name of Curtis & Parsons, for the purpose of continuing the Hardware Business, at the place lately occupied by Curtis & McCowan.

GEORGE CURTIS,
WM. A. PARSONS,

Tecumseh, March 5th, 1866. n798w4

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

GREAT CENTRAL.

United States Mail Route.

THREE EXPRESS TRAINS leave Windsor (opposite Detroit) daily for the East, on the arrival of Trains of Michigan Central, Detroit and Milwaukee, and Michigan Southean Railways from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati and all points West North-West and South West.

This is the only route via Niagara Falls and suspension Bridge, and is the direct route to Buffalo, New York, Boston, London, Paris, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Prescott, Ogdensburgh, Montreal, Quebec and Portland.

☞ Passenger Cars are furnished with Patent ventilators.

Luxurious Sleeping Cars attached to all night trains, and Smoking Cars to all day trains.

☞ United States Currency taken at par for through fares, sleeping Car berths and meals at Refreshment Saloons

CHARLES McCABE,
Western Passenger Agent, Detroit.

THOS SWINYARD, General manager, Hamilton, C. W.
JAS. CHARLTON, General Agent, Hamilton, C. W

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS,

is the place to get good grinding done I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING,

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Wheat

Mill Feed of allkinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Bl hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shal endeavor to do as good work, and even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL

IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor, show room the same 3 doors east of A. Hood & Co's. clothing store.

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Neary, and Bridget Neary, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fiftv, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March, A. D. 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber 'M' of Mortgages, on folios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] twp. on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village, (now city] of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid. Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriet A. Bradbury on the twenty-first day of March, A. D. 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan on the 17th day of February, A D 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, which said mortgage, was afterwards, to wit: on the eighth day of February, A. D. 1866 duly assigned by said Harriet A Bradbury to Addison J Comstock, which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money, and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents, [$573.12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty fifth day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage.

ADDISON J. COMSTOCK.
Assignee of said mortgage.

M. N. HALSEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb. 21, 1866.

Drs Jackson, Herbert & Co.

15 Greatest Medical Circular Ever Published! Fifteen large letter pages for two 3 cent stamps. 15

Prof. EGBERT JACKSON, ROBERT HERBET, M D. DR EUGENE VELPEAU, JR.
THE NATIONAL DISPENSTRY,
Established 1859.

Six years of unrivalled success in the cure of every form of private disease incident to either sex.

Science and fair dealing victorious over Empiricism and fraud

We infalliably cure Syphillis, Gleet, Gonorrhœa Impotency, Nocturnal and Diurnal Emissions, Complaints peculiar to females, and every form of private disease of whatever name or nature Spermatorrhœa or Self-Abuse, that curse of Modern Manhood easily and speedily cured and every trace of its terrible effects eradicated from the system, without detention from business.—Young men bear this in mind, that we are in possession of the Secret Receipts and methods of practice of Culverwell, Lallemand, Hunter, Velpeau, Sen., Ricord and other great lights in modern medical science; for it is a fact of the very greatest importance, and we would ask any man of average common sense how can the thousand and one shallow pretenders hope to compete with us?

Ye unfortunates, ere trusting your health and money to heartless charlatans, at least write to Drs. Jackson, Herbert & Co., who will at once return you a kind, discreet and explicit answer. Ladies write for our circular.

Dr. Jackson's Female Monthly Pills, for a safe and effectual remedy for all irregularities and obstructions, from whatever cause. Price $1 per box, or four for $5 00.

The Mountain of light or medical protector and Marriage Guide, and an Explicit Ley to Love and Beauty. Containing 300 plates.—

☞ This is THE book you want price 50 cents 3 for $1.

Send for our splendid Circular containing more in quantity and of far superior quality to any of the so called "pamphlets." Remember that we send a written reply to every letter, especially adapted to the particular case under consideration, because in the nature of things each case differs from every other

DR JACKSON'S ORIENTAL LINIMENT removes all coldness and disability, and rejuvenates organs which have lain dormant for many years.

DR. JACKSON'S FRENCH PATENT MALE SAFE,

It is perfectly safe and never fails to give satisfaction. It is the only sure and safe preventative against contracting disease ever invented Price $1 each, per half dozen $4, and per dozen $7, sent by mail.

Inebriates or Moderate Drinkers who desire to reform, but have found it difficult to refrain, can wholly eradicate all desire for any kind of liquor, by using Dr Herbert's Anti Alcoholic Compound, an unfailing remedy for intemperance; write for particulars.

Medicine and in tructions sent promptly to any pait of the country. Consulting Rooms of the Dispensary, No. 167 Sycamore street Cincinnati, O. P. O. Box, No, 486. Send for a circular.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF Lenawee, s.s —At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Adrian, on Friday the 6th day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six.

Present, Robert R Beecher, Judge of Probate In the matter of the estate of John Osborn, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified of Stephen V. R. Ely, Administrator on the estate of said deceased, praying for the allowance of his final accou t with said estate and for distribution of moneys in his hands and for his discharge as administrator.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday the 7th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law f said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted:

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating n said county of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing,

ROBERT R, BEECHER, Judge of Probate
(A true copy) n790w4

G R. PALMER, Attorney at Law. and Notary Public, Lake Ridge, M.

Particular attention paid to collections in any part of Michigan. Is prepared to draw and execute Deeds, Mortgages, Wills, &c.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Frui &c, at

A. JAMES

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVI. NO. 49. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN. THURSDAY EVENING. APRIL 26, 1866. WHOLE NO. 805.

G. T. KETCHAM'S
BOOK STORE,
Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.
(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)
DEALER IN
CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER.
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.
—o—
I will sell any of the above goods as
Cheap or Cheaper
than any other dealer in the country, and
WARRANT
all goods sold as good as recommended.
—o—
CASH FOR RAGS!
—o—
Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.
J. D. Robbins.
TECUMSEH. - - - - - - - MICHIGAN.

A. HOOD & CO.
Are Just receiving a Splended
STOCK OF
Cloths Vestings,
Hats & Caps,
AND
Gents Furnishing goods
BOUGHT IN NEW YORK, AT THE
LOWEST FIGURES,
AND WILL BE SOLD AT PRICES THAT
DEFY COMPETITION.
Call and see them before purchasing elsewhere.

NORTHERN LENAWEE
INSURANCE
AGENCY.
S. C. STACY,
LIFE, FIRE AND ACCIDENT
INSURANCE AGENT.
Represents the following well known and reliable insurance companies

Manhattan Life, N. Y.	$2,000,000.
Phœnix Life Hartford,	800,000.
Accident Ins. Co, Columbus,	1,000,000.
Phœnix Fire Hartford,	1,000,000.
Underwriters N. Y.	8,000,000.
Lumbermans, Chicago,	300,000.
Total capital represented, over	8,100,000.

Good Insurance is a necessity.
And the best is the cheapest

Tecumseh Union School!
C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.
THE SPRING TERM of this institution will open April 9th, 1866, and continue twelve weeks
Scholars will be received at any time and placed in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.
CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE
on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

GLORIOUS NEWS,
The Confederacy gone up! But
GEORGE HEESEN'S
CLOTHING EMPORIUM
Is in full blast, and has not yet surrendered to young america. I would say to my friends and customers that I have just received a large stock of clothing which were purchased at panic prices, and I will sell them at a very small profit, for they must be sold within ninety days. I
Sell Cassimere Pants at 6 50.
Broad cloth, and cassimere coats very cheap, Linen coats cheaper than any other house in town, woolen and Straw
HATS, CAPS!
Linen and Paper Collars,
Neck Ties, Shirts,
Gloves, Hosiery,
Traveling Bags, &c.
It is easily understood that I can sell goods cheaper than my neighbor for I save great expense, been a tailor and having followed the business for the last 17 years I know how work ought to be done.
Please come over on the Canada side for you can buy goods cheaper than you can on the American, for all expense of importing is saved, which amounts to considerable.
Cutting Done at Old Prices.
Those wishing garments made would do well to call on me and have an honest job done.
Geo. Heesen.

1866. 1866.
MERRITT, MEEKER & Co
SUCCESSORS TO J. H. WHEELER.
Have just received a large addition to their
STOCK OF GOODS,
And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of
DRY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.
Particular attention is called to their stock of BUFFALO ROBES and LADIES AND GENTS FURS, which they are now selling
At Cost
We would announce to his numerous friends that we have secured the services of Wm. VanCamp, and he will take pleasure in waiting upon all.
It is no trouble to show goods; should you wish anything in our line give us a call before purchasing elsewhere and we will do our best to give satisfaction.

NEW SPRING GOODS.
The undersigned is just receiving a well selected and choice stock of
FAMILY GROCERIES;
consisting in part of the following articles:
SUGARS, TEAS, COFFEES, SPICE, PEPPER, GINGER, BUTTER, CHEESE, LARD, FRUITS, SALT, TOBACCO, WOOD WILLOW AND STONE-WARE, PORK, HAMS, POTATOES, AND numerous other articles not necessary to mention.
Having purcased the store on the north side of Chicago street, in this village, formerly occupied by Deuel & Weatherhead and having had some experience in former years, by strict attention to business,
Reasonable Prices
AND Honorable Dealing, I hope to merit a share of the public patronage. All goods warranted to give good satisfaction in every case. My motto is Small Profits and Quick Sales.
and above all honorable dealing.
The public are most respectfully solicited to call and examine my stock of Groceries before purchasing elsewhere.
J. S. HENDRYX.

What is the Matter!
The Fact is the new firm of
SLAYTON TINDALL & Co.
are selling
FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT
By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff. And all the people are rushing for it. Come on we have a large stock of such wheat on hand yet, also
BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,
CORN MEAL,
PLASTER,
WATER LIME,
CLOVER SEED,
TIMOTHY SEED,
CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF
Grain and Seeds!!
SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO.
Tecumseh Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.

Express Freight,	6:15 A. M
Mail and Express,	1:15 P. M.

GOING NORTH.

Mail and Express,	9:15 P. M.
Accommodation,	9:15 A. M.

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

GEORGE HEESEN,
Dealer in Ready Made Clothing, &c.
One door west of the Bank.
Chicago st Tecumseh, mich

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND,
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD C. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich.

ALFRED JAMES,
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT.
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilets, &c.
Chicao St. Tecumseh, Mich.

P. N. CURTIS.
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER,
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

GOULD & WALDO,
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St, - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN B. WOOD.
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER.
Attorney's, Councellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT.
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & McCOWEN.
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWARD H. HOAG,
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St, Tecumseh, Mich.

Henry Nyland,
Dealer in Boots & Shoes & Leather.
One door west of Bank, Tecumseh.

EMLAY & COURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harness and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HORACE BREWER.
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mach.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS.
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT.
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS.
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL.
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE.
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St - - Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St. Opposite P O. office.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT,
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EXCHANGE HOTEL
Railroad St. - - - Tecumseh, Mich.
D. T. FISH, Proprietor.

The Tecumseh Herald.
C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.

(One inch of column constitutes a square.)

	1 wk	3 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$2 00	$3 00	$5 00	$10 00
2 Squares	1 75	3 50	5 00	12 00	15 00
3 Squares	2 75	5 00	11 00	16 00	20 00
¼ Column	5 00	9 00	12 00	18 00	25 00
½ Column	7 50	12 00	18 00	25 00	35 00
Column	12 00	15 00	20 00	35 00	60 00

No advertisement considered less than one square. Transient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted on $3 50 per year.

Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

We will take wool, butter, lard, eggs, potatoes, and all kinds of farm produce, on subscription for the "HERALD." So bring it along.

To Our Friends.

You will confer a favor on us by soliciting the Judge of Probate to publish Probate Notices in the HERALD, and you will also find it convenience to yourselves to have the advertisements in the paper you receive.

Any one wishing to purchase a first class turning lathe are requested to call at this office. We have one to sell at a great bargain.

Grand Trunk Railway.

The Cheapest, Quickest, and Safest route TO THE EAST.

Tickets to all the Eastern cities and intermediate places for sale at this office.

The second annual Festival of the Southern Washtenaw Sheep-Shearing and Wool Growers Association will be held at Manchester, on the third and fourth days of May. 1866.

Leather travelling Bags—for Ladies—at the Dry Goods store of R. C Moore.

The suit of Moore vs. Fisher, which was recently tried before Charles Hewitt Esq., has been decided—judgement having been rendered in favor of the plaintiff for the amounts of the bill and costs. We understand that Fisher intends to carry the case up to the Circuit Court.

Nervous Headace, Sick Headache, Dyspesia, Constipation of the bowels, Costiveness and Diseases of the Liver, can be cured by the use of Dr. P. N. Curtis' Headache and Dispeptic Pills.—Price 50 cents a box. Every box warranted to give satisfaction or money refunded.

SHADE TREES.—Now is the proper time to set shade and ornamental trees. Those of our citizens who have not already surrounded their premises with them should lose no time in doing so.—Nothing adds more to the beauty and attractiveness of a place, or to the comfort and enjoyment of its inhabitants, than plenty of shade trees.

CARPETS, CARPETS CARPETS.—It is a fact is established that MOORE is selling superfine Ingrains, and Hemp Carpeting, as low as they can be purchased in this State. Those in need of Carpets, are advised to call early, and secure the pattern wanted, as they are being sold rapidly and will be gone before you know it. His styles are much admired by all who see them.

Woolen Factory in Clinton.

The new Woolen Factory, which has been so long in contemplation at Clinton, has finally become a fixed fact. One hundred thousand dollars have been subscribed and a stock company organized with the following officers:

President—F. S. Snow.
Secretary—Danforth Keyes.
Treasurer—John Smith.

A Board of nine directors. A site for the building has been selected on the bank of the Raisin just west of Edwin Smith's residence and north of the flouring mill in the village of Clinton. The officers are now completing the arrangements for manufacturing the brick and the work will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible.

The J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap is one of those articles that should be in every household, and the lady who neglects to furnish herself or domestics with it, loses a boon which it will be impossible to find a subititute for. It takes less in quantity, and washes as no other soap can do. It makes rough hands smooth, and softens and whitens the skin, as well as making clothes look so white. Try it.

For the Tecumseh Herald.

THE LITTLE COFFIN.

Passing an Undertaker's door,—
(Where often I had passed before;)
Within the window, I did view
A tiny, rosewood casket, (new)—
So finely polished, 'twas, and bright—
With screws and handles silver (white)
And little silver plate:—
Whereon to grave the name and age,
Of some young, fair inmate.

This lovely little casket (rare)
Was lined with silver, white and fair;
A tiny pillow, soft, (like down)—
For some fair head to rest upon;
But what fair head, none knew, as yet,—
Perhaps a Parents—"only pet"—
Might soon sleep there;
A lily in its loosened grasp—
And snow-drops 'mong its hair.

Who knows what love-watched cradle bed,
Is holding now the nestling head?
Or on what loving mother's breast—
The little cherub form may rest;
That may ere long, with lustress eye
This casket grace!
All robed in white the stiffened form,
Waxen the Angel face.

What tender parent's tears shall stain
The satin, pure—like sheets of rain?
Or whose fond hopes, now towering (high,)
May with this coffin-bed soon lie?
The plate scarce large enough to bear
The pet name, soon to be graved there—
Upon the surface, [white;]
What loving hands shall wreath fair flowers
Among those tresses bright?

How thoughts of sadness midst the gloom!
Rise in an Undertakers room;
How still, and darksome! is the shade
Where we see, "coffins ready made"—
Sad! to see young buds drop, and die,
As withered leaves, from trees fly—
And rest upon the ground,
To see them placed—enclosed for aye—
E'en in the casket—silver-bound.

L.

Memphis, Tenn. April 1866.

The Drummer Boy.

We clip the following from an exchange: "Robert Henry Hendershot, the 'Drummer boy of the Rappahanock' in June enters the Military Academy at West Point. He obtained the appointment through the personal solicitation of Mr. Lincoln."

Time makes all things even. But a few short years ago ragged Bob, as he was then called, was running about our streets in poverty and want. His mother, who was a widow, had a large family of children to support, and Bobby with his two older brothers naturally had to shift for himself. His occupation in winter consisted in hanging about the stores to keep himself from freezing—and in summer, in fishing and swimming—in the two latter he was decidedly an expert,—Bob could swim farther and catch more fish in a given time than any other boy of his inches in Tecumseh. He could not work—no one would hire him; he could not go to school, for he had no suitable clothes. These few words sum up the history of the Drummer Boy's earlier life. About the year 1859, his elder brother John found employment in Jackson as Hack driver, and soon after Mrs Hendershot moved to that city with her family.

For a time Bob was missed by his professional companions and those who had suffered from his mischievous pranks, but the family was soon forgotten, and nothing more was heard of our hero until the pen of the reporter chronicled the bloody assault at Fredericksburg and the noble charge of the gallant Mich. 7th across the Rappahannock, in which, among the foremost, was the Drummer Boy. From that date Bob was a hero. His subsequent history—including his travels about the country, his adoption by Eastman and his attendance at the Commercial College at Poughkeepsie is familiar to all readers of the news—and so crown his good luck he has now been appointed Cadet at West Point. Robert is a young man of no ordinary ability and is evidently bound to make his mark in the world yet.

SOLDIERS.

All soldiers and sailors of the late war, now residents of the townships of Tecumseh, Raisin, Franklin and Macon, who have been honorably discharged the service of the United States are earnestly requested to meet at the village of Tecumseh at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of Saturday May 5th, for the purpose of forming a branch organization of the "Soldiers and Sailors National League."

Abe Pelham, Tecumseh; L. Saviers, Franklin; W. H. Gray, Tecumseh; John W. Britton, Ridgeway; E. Gray, Tecumseh; W. K. Powers, Tecumseh; C. J. Moore, Tecumseh; O Emlay, Tecumseh; A. B. Cleveland, Tecumseh; H. Romyen, Tecumseh; Chas. Bidwell, A. W. Slayton, D. L. Heath, M. Wishart, A. D. Lawrence, Jas. M. Ingersoll, M. Burgher, J. Merritt, C. K. Spafford, S. W. Sadler, Tecumseh; G. F. Nivison, Ridgeway.

The Accident.

Is the name of a spicy little sheet published monthly by the Accident Ins. Co of Columbus O., and devoted to the interests of accident Insurance. It is furnished to agents for gratuitous circulation. Every one should take an accident Policy. The expense is very small, and the benefit proportionately great. S. C. Stacy is the Agent for the Columbus at Tecumseh.

CURE FOR CHOLERA.—The National Intelligencer has the following: Rev. Dr. Hamlin of Constantinople, saved hundreds of lives by the following simple preparation, during the terrible raging of cholera in that city a few years since.—In no case did the remedy fail where the disease could be reached in season. It is no less effective in cholera morbus and ordinary diarrhea:

One part laudanum.
One part camphorated spirit.
Two parts tincture of ginger.
Two parts capsicum.

DOSE—One teaspoonful in a wine glass of water. If the case is obstinate repeat the dose in three or four hours.

A FAMILY REMEDY.—"Coe's Cough Balsam." These have become household words with very many families, and the merits of the article justly entitle it to our confidence and patronage. The originator does not claim to be a physician, but has evidently hit upon a prescription that meets the wants of a large class of sufferers. Some are testifying that it has actually cured them of consumption. It is no doubt the consumptive's best friend, while for coughs, hoarseness, and kindred troubles, we think it has no equal. We predict for it a world-wide reputation and extensive sale.

A slight row occurred on the street last Saturday. It appears that one James Curry of Ridgeway had come to town with his brother to do some trading—had purchased a barrel of flour at Anderson's and had purchased—judging from his subsequent actions—a little old rye for himself. After getting his flour he was driving very rapidly through town and drove several times round one of the squares. He afterwards hitched his team and while making considerable noise about the streets, Dept. Sheriff Bidwell ordered him to be quiet, when an altercation ensued and Curry struck Bidwell. The of the law must be vindicated then anyhow. So Curry was arrested and taken to Jail by constable Niblack, where he boarded at the public expense until Monday morning. He was then released upon paying the costs that had accrued, and went home a poorer and soberer man.

Burglars Arrested.

The parties engaged in the burglary of Hoods store, in Dundee, have been arrested. Their names are Henry Arnold, M. B. Shears, and Allen Graves. They have been perambulating the country with a one horse show, making their headquarters at Monroe. They were arrested at Mosherville, tried, confessed the crime and were committed for trial in the Circuit Court, and on Tuesday they were taken to Monroe and placed in jail. They gave information where about $100 worth of the property could be found.

It has since transpired that they were the same parties that broke into Bidwell's and Robbin's week before last. The gold head from the cane taken at Robbin's was found in the possession of one of them, and a few articles taken from Bidwell's were identified. They lived in the neighborhood of Dundee, and have been troubling the surrounding country with their depredations for some time past.

William Taylor was arrested last Tuesday and brought before Esquire Hewitt charged with stoning the house of one Aunes T. Smith, in Ridgeway.—The parties appeared and the case was put over till Wednesday. Wednesday forenoon at 10 o'clock the examination was commenced and the complainant Mrs. Smith and Augustus Miller were sworn before dinner, when the court took a recess of half an hour. The matter was then compromised and the case went down on account of the non-appearance of the complainant.

Runaway.

A team from the neighborhood of Lake Ridge ran away on Chicago st. on Tuesday, upsetting another wagon and spilling a woman upon the ground who came very near fainting away. We did not learn the woman's name, nor the name of the owner of the team. One wagon was injured somewhat but aside from that there was no serious damage done.

Charley Bidwell's Livery stable caught fire Wednesday afternoon, by a spark from the locomotive as the train was going south. The fire, however was immediately discovered and put out without any trouble.

E. Gray will be at Clinton, every Monday with the famous thorough bred horse Don-Juan. All lovers of good stock should call and see him.

From the annual report of the Michigan Southern R. R. we clip the following, being the amount of freight received at the different stations in Lenawee county: Knights, 160,395 lbs. Blissfield, 720,766 lbs, Clayton, 1,529,941 lbs, Hudson, 5,625,313 lbs, Deerfield, 419,154 lbs, Wellsville, 12,416 lbs, Tecumseh, 6,014,956 lbs. The amount of freight forwarded from these stations is as follows: Knights, 810,091 lbs, Blissfield, 3,731,111 lbs, Palmyra, 591,399 lbs, Adrian, 17,543,733 lbs, Clayton, 3,667,066 lbs, Hudson, 14,388,164 lbs, Deerfield, 826,671 lbs, Sissons, 751,800 lbs, Wellsville 161,800 lbs, Tecumseh, 12,376,220 lbs, Clinton, 3,178,459 lbs.—Total amount of freight forwarded from stations in this county, 57,975 295 lbs.

On Monday Judge Johnson held an adjourned term of the Circuit Court for the hearing of Chancery cases, and the argument of motions for a new trial in two or three civil cases.

Albert Anderson has commenced breaking ground for the new Hotel.

H. C Conkling has gone to New York for new goods. Look out for his advertisement when he returns.

Get the best—for a reasonable price—no shoddy—See advertisement of Empire Shoe Store in to-days paper.

R. C. Moore has the largest and best selected stock of Dry Goods in Tecumseh.

Tecumseh Market.

April 26th, 1866.

White wheat	$1 50 a $1 75
Red do	75 a 1 75
Beans	75 a 1 00
Corn	40
Clover seed	4 55
Apples green	25
Butter per pound	25
Cheese " "	18
Hams " "	15
Lard " "	12
Eggs per doz	10
Potatoes, per bush.	35

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Mich., April 25, 1866.

Benson Mrs. C. G.	Biglow Mrs. Mary
Britten Charley	Clark Mrs. S.
Cressman E. M.	Eason A. E.
French Mrs. Ann	Hall Edward S.
Odell John	Lyman Miss Mary
Stranahan M. V. B.	Reed Reuben
Wilson J. F.	Widnober Nicholas
Wilson A. C.

W. ANDERSON, P. M.

Wall Paper at J. D. Robbin's—The largest assortment in town. Give him a call and don't fail to get Judd's Patent Window fixtures for your Curtains, they are the best.

Black List.

We offer the following accounts for sale at low rates:

E. C. Hubbard	Tecumseh,	$4.00
H. Morseman,	"	4.00
L. T Slater,	"	4.00
W. H Stout,	"	4.00
R. Covell,	Ridgeway,	6.00
L Allen,	"	6.00
L Shaffer,	Springville,	6.00
Dan Seaman,	"	6.00
M. Miller	Lake Ridge,	4.25
Richard Bates,	"	3.00
Wm. Stewart,	"	4.50
James Miller,	"	4.25
M. Collom,	"	4.50
F Whiting,	"	5.00
L. D Baker,	Adrian,	6.00
M. Kidder	Saline,	6.00
Ambrose Lamb,	"	5.50

We shall offer another batch in a short time. We shall be ready at all times to ease names from the black list on receipt of our pay.

EUREKA.
NOT CALIFORNIA WITH ALL ITS GOLD,
BUT THE PLACE TO BUY
Boots & Shoes at
Prices that suit the times, at
MC'NICHOL & WILSON'S EMPIRE
Boot & Shoe Store.
We shall keep constantly on hand a full assortment of the BEST
Eastern Work to be Found
Consisting of
LADIES' CALF, GOAT AND KID GAITERS, BALMORALS, SLIPS, BOOTEES, BUSKINS.
MENS' FINE CALF AND KIP BOOTS, MENS' CALF AND CLOTH GAITERS, &c. &c.
YOUTHS' GAITERS, BALMORAS,
And an endless variety of EVERYTHING usually found in a First Class Boot & Shoe Store. Our manufacturing department will be ably conducted and all work done by us warranted to give satisfaction. Those in want of Boots or Shoes will save money by calling, and will be sure to buy, for they can't fail to "see it."
Remember the place—one door east of Curtis Drug Store.

LARGEST ASSORTMENT and CHEAPEST GOODS at TRIBOU & BIDWELL Bros.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

General Intelligence.

More forged wheat receipts, to the amount of $5,000 or $6,000, have come to light in Chicago.

A case of trichina is reported at DeWitt, Iowa, and a quantity of diseased pork discovered.

Never since the first of the war has there been so much activity manifested at the different navy yards as at the present time.

The heirs of the Revolutionary General Kosciusko have lost a suit of 600 acres of land situated near White Sulphur Springs, Ohio.

The Washington people were excited over a report that gold-bearing quartz had been found on the Potomac, 14 miles from the city.

Two hundred and forty Sioux Indians who have been two years in confinement at Davenport, have started for their new reservation on the Niobrorah river.

The Montreal Gazette of the 11th inst., says: "We learn by a telegram from Quebec that Ole Bull, the celebrated violinist, died in that city yesterday morning."

There is no official evidence that Louis Napoleon is withdrawing his French troops and that Maximilian is substituting French, Austrian, and Belgian recruits.

The United States Treasurer lately received from an unsophisticated individual a counterfeit fifty certificate note with a request to send a genuine one in exchange.

The death of Senator Foot, the Patêr Senatus, leaves the honor of oldest member to be divided between Senators Wade and Sumner, who have each been there sixteen years.

The Lawrence Tribune says that it is computed at a low estimate, that the number of people now coming into Kansas to settle is not less than one thousand per week, or two hundred families.

The Postmaster General will soon issue a postage stamp of the denomination of fifteen cents. It bears the likeness of Abraham Lincoln, and will be convenient in paying foreign postage.

A mule rinderpest prevails in Upper Louisiana and Mississippi. Buffalo gnats are killing off mules and horses. On one plantation 38 were killed in one night; on another 25; on another, 20.

The strike of the New York car drivers is ended by a compromise allowing them $2.00 per day for ten hours' work. Prior to the strike they received only this amount for twelve and fourteen hours' labor.

The American Consul at Aspinwall informs the State Department, under date of April 1, that a disease similar to the rinderpest has broken out along the Panama railroad, quite a number of cattle dying daily.

The notorious murderers, Terrell and Wilters, were rescued from the Spencer county, Ky., jail on the 13th, by a party of seven disguised and armed men, who threatened the life of the jailor on refusal to unlock the cell.

Mrs. Jeff. Davis left New York on the 13th, en route for Canada, where her two elder children, mother and sister are temporarily residing. She has not been to Washington, nor has she been able to obtain permission to see her husband.

The steamer Virginia arrived at New York on the 18th, from Liverpool, with 1,043 passengers. During the trip there were 38 deaths on board,—the disease being similar to that on the steamer England. There was a death from cholera at Portland, Me., on the 18th.

The lists of dead Union soldiers are completed, numbering two hundred and eighty thousand seven hundred and thirty-nine. Ninety-one thousand men and five thousand officers were killed in action or died from wounds, and one hundred and eighty-five thousand died from disease.

Judge Balcom of the New York Supreme Court, sitting at Binghamton, has decided that the law relative to the State Inebriate Asylum is unconstitutional and void. All parties committed to its walls by order of the Supreme Court are entitled to be released.

The steamship England, which put into Halifax some two weeks since with the cholera on board, has arrived in New York lower bay. She has on board a crew of 122 men, sixteen cabin passengers, and 1,202 steerage passengers. The number who have died from the cholera is 200. All are now doing well.

Edward W. Green, the murderer of young Converse, at the Malden Bank, about two years ago, was executed on the 13th, in the jail yard at East Cambridge, Mass. Between two and three hundred persons were present within the walls and an equal number outside. Green behaved with comparative calmness, and died with hardly a struggle.

W. M. Jackson, United States Consul at Halifax, writes that the physicians, after further developments of the disease on board England, and fuller consultation, concur in pronouncing it Asiatic cholera. The passengers are detained at the quarantine ground, and other precautionary measures have been adopted to prevent the disease from spreading.

The coroner's jury in the case of the murdered Deering family, in Philadelphia, have returned a verdict that, in their opinion, the whole eight came to their death at the hands of Anthony Probst. The man arrested at London, Canada West, on suspicion of being concerned in this eight-fold murder proves to have been in Madison, Wis., all winter, and of course entirely guiltless.

Dr. W. A. Spence, who was surgeon of the post hospital at Richmond during the rebellion, states, in reply to an inquiry made by the Government authorities, that he had induced the undertaker to keep a record of all Federal soldiers that were buried there, and to mark their graves; but the object sought was frustrated by the destruction of the records in the great fire that occurred on the evacuation of the city.

The Secretary of War has finally consented to the sale of the Presidential car to Thomas C. Durant, Vice-President and General Manager of the Union Pacific railroad, who tenders its use to his company for the accommodation of the officers on special occasions. It will leave New York in a few days for the West, with several of the Government Directors, who go out to examine the condition of the work on the road.

Clement C. Clay was released from Fortress Monroe on the 18th, by order of the President. The conditions of his release were, that he should take the oath of allegiance to the United States, and give his parole of honor to conduct himself as a loyal citizen of the same, and to report himself in person at any time and place, to answer any charges that may hereafter be preferred against him by the United States.

The Omaha Republican of the 9th, has some rather exciting news from Utah. It learns that "the greatest excitement prevails among the Mormons, and a fixed determination on their part to drive out or exterminate all Gentiles. Eight men have recently been assassinated, while the editor of the Vidette, with all other Gentiles has been notified to quit the country, or fare worse. Placards are posted up in Salt Lake City warning all Gentiles to leave immediately."

A shameful April fool hoax was perpetrated by a lady in Philadelphia, who sent to the pulpit in a Methodist church, a notice of a meeting to be held in aid of another church. Names of prominent clergymen were mentioned as to take part in the exercises. The preacher read the manuscript to his large congregation without hesitation, until he came to a passage announcing that a certain layman would sing a comic song, when he became confused, suddenly remembered the day, and abruptly sat down.

A most remarkable flow of natural burning gas was recently discovered while boring for oil at Getzville, near Buffalo. A company has been formed with ample capital, who are about to develope and utilize this gas by introducing it into that city in mains. A contract has already been made with the city gas light company, by which they are to receive forty thousand cubic feet of gas per day, at $1 per thousand. The company have recently procured from Professor Hadley accurate tests of the gas produced, showing its superior quality.

Detective Major has made a very voluminous report in reference to bounty-jumping frauds perpetrated under the calls for troops. He traces the jumpers from the time of being sworn in till their reaching the field. He shows that of the five hundred thousand men called out and sworn in by the Government, only one hundred and sixty-eight thousand reached the field as soldiers, although thousands of others received their bounties. This wholesale system of fraud is shown to have been perpetrated in nearly every loyal State.

Political Matters.

The Massachusetts House of Representatives have rejected the Eight Hour Labor Bill by a vote of 109 to 51.

The Tennessee Legislature has before them bills for incorporating forty-three oil companies, showing that petroleum history is repeating itself in Tennessee.

The President made a speech on the 18th, to a party of soldiers and sailors who had called upon him. He gave his views on the reconstruction question, insisting that the rebel States were entitled to representation in Congress.

President Johnson has written a letter of condolence and sympathy to the widow of Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson, and, in conformity with a last request of the deceased, has appointed S. G. Courtney, his son-in-law, to the office of United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, made vacant by Mr. Dickinson's death.

Mrs. Clement C. Clay has had before the President recommendations for her husband's release on parole from such officials as General Grant, Senator Wilson, and Thad. Stevens. They all express the opinion that Mr. Clay will observe his parole and that his conduct in voluntarily giving himself up to the authorities entitles him to this much consideration. His release from confinement at Fortress Monroe is expected within a few days.

The Fenians.

On the 18th, a party of English soldiers crossed from St. Stephens, N. B., to Calais, Me., and got into a fight with some Fenians, who, with the aid of citizens, drove the "red coats" out of town.

The War Department has ordered a small detachment of regular troops to the Maine border under Gen. Meade to preserve peace and to ensure an observance of the neutrality laws. A fleet of gunboats has also sailed for Eastport with the same objects in view.

Mr. A. Pardee of Hazleton, Pa., has given fifty thousand dollars to the Fenian fund, and pledged himself that, as soon as hostilities between the Fenians and England should commence, he would increase the sum to one hundred thousand dollars.

An Eastport special says: "There is no border war, and there has been none. No fights have occurred at Calais, nor did the Fenians capture any English flag. There is no excitement on this side the boundary. The presence of a few Fenians, organizing Circles, coupled with the Provincial Confederation scheme, is the foundation for the sensations. The special despatches sent to the New York papers have been villainously false, and they have drawn hither many strangers, who came to join in the strife. Gen. Meade will officially explode the bubble."

Southern News.

A lady in Boone county, Ky., recently gave birth to twins—a boy and a girl—one of which had eight teeth, and the other four.

A man named George Weeks was lynched on Saturday, near Midway, Ky., he having confessed to the murder of a boy named Nichols. Object, robbery.

By the breaking of the Mississippi river through its banks near Baton Rouge, La., the country has been overflowed for many miles, and "it looks like an ocean."

Thomas Shields, convicted of the deliberate murder of Robert Taylor, was hung on the 20th, in Libby Prison, at Richmond. He was unrepentant to the last moment.

The boys of Norfolk are admitted into the circus stopping in that city at the price of one cat a piece. The animals are said to be the highly relished food of the lions.

Gen. Canby, at New Orleans, has issued an order explanatory of the President's proclamation. He says it does not suspend martial law, or suits already before military courts.

At the Methodist General Conference at New Orleans, on the 16th, a telegram was received announcing the extreme illness of Bishop Soule, and the expectation of his early death.

Gen. Forrest, who killed a freedman some weeks ago, in a personal encounter, has been admitted to bail in Sunflower county, Miss., without examination, by Judge Yerger, under bonds of $10,000.

New Orleans is represented as perfectly healthy and crowded. Deaths last week, 109: no tendency to any particular disease. Emigrants to Mexico are numerous, and several new steamers are advertised for Vera Cruz.

An attempt was made last week by the federal forces stationed at Leesburg, Va., to arrest Mosby, for appearing in the streets dressed in confederate uniform. The exguerilla took to the woods and made good his escape.

Hon. Francis W. Kellogg, Collector of Internal Revenue at Mobile, is now in Washington, and says that the negroes are working well, and that the cotton crop in Alabama this year will be three-fourths as large as that of 1860.

A case of cholera occurred in Richmond, Va., on the 8th inst. The victim was a Miss Palmer, staying at the house of ex-Mayor Saunders. She was attacked during the night, and died at 9 o'clock the next morning. Dr. Coleman, the attending physician, pronounced the disease cholera.

The negroes at Norfolk, Va., celebrated the passage of the civil rights bill on the 16th. While the procession was passing through the streets, a difficulty occurred between the negroes and whites, during which one white man was killed and his brother and stepmother were mortally wounded. Order was restored by the military.

The James is taking advantage of Gen. Butler's "Dutch Gap Canal," below Richmond, and so enlarging and completing it that small craft now pass through it at high stages of water, saving several miles by a cross-cut of less than one. Ten years hence this will doubtless be the main channel, though it may cost something more to make it so.

Incidents and Accidents.

A little girl in Story county was recently scalded so badly by upsetting a cup of coffee into her bosom that death soon ensued.

A Mr. Evans, living near Salem, Ill., died from lockjaw on Tuesday. A mashed thumb which had taken cold was the cause.

Thomas C. Norris committed suicide, on the 11th, near Franklin, Ind., by sticking his head under the main crank of a saw mill.

A married lady in Bridgeport, Conn., took a dose of medicine to produce an abortion, and after four days of intense suffering died in great agony.

A destructive fire occurred in Battle Creek, Mich., on the night of the 14th, completely destroying the Battle Creek House and several adjoining stores.

Lieut. Louis Ohrem, of the Veteran Reserve Corps, committed suicide in Washington on the 19th, by shooting himself with a pistol, the muzzle of which he placed in his mouth.

A queer accident occurred at the Reed well, on Cherry Run, Pa., one day last week. A team of horses, attached to an oil wagon, became frightened at the locomotive of the Reno Railroad and ran away. The wagon tongue came in contact with an oil tank, broke through it, and about 600 barrels of oil were thus lost.

An armed mob, represented as numbering from 25 to 200, attacked the tanks of Harley & Co., at Shaffer, Pa., on the 20th, drove off the watchmen, and set fire to the tanks, which were entirely consumed. The mob defied the people, and prevented any effort to extinguish the flames. The guilty parties are known to be teamsters who are out of work.

On the 14th, a little girl and boy, children of Mr. Stanbeck, living three miles west of Princeton, were burned to death. They went into a barn to play, and while there set some straw on fire near the door. Being quite young, they did not know enough to run out of the barn until it was too late, when the devouring flames wrapped around their little bodies until they were charred almost to coal.

Congressional Doings.

The Senate was not in session on the 14th. In the House, Mr. Garfield delivered a brief, eloquent, and stirring eulogy on the martyr Lincoln, and then the House adjourned.

In the Senate, on the 16th, a bill was reported for the establishment of assay offices in Arizonia, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah, Idaho, Montana, and Minnesota.....A resolution was introduced for the appointment of a Commission to report as to the proper place of bridging the Mississippi river..... The bill to establish a volunteer militia force was reported, from the Military Committee, without amendment.....On a bill relative to the Sioux City and Pacific Railroad, a highly personal colloquy took place between the California Senators, Messrs. Conness and McDougall.....The Senate agreed to a conference committee on the bill prohibiting the sale of liquor in the Capitol.

In the House, on the 16th, resolutions were adopted inquiring into the propriety of passing a bill to punish claim agents who swindle soldiers, calling for the report of the evidence in the Wirz case, and asking the President for the official correspondence with the French Government respecting the withdrawal of French troops from Mexico.....Mr. Stevens offered a resolution to furnish three copies of the Washington Chronicle to each foreign Minister, Consul, and Commercial Agent abroad.....The bill for reorganizing the army was considered, and some further amendments adopted, among which was one that two of the twelve regiments of cavalry shall be composed of negroes. A sharp personal controversy arose in the course of debate between Messrs. Ingersoll of Illinois and Eldridge of Wisconsin. No final action was taken upon the bill.

In the Senate, on the 17th, Mr. Grimes introduced a bill regulating the appointment of officers of the navy. It provides for one Vice-Admiral, 11 Rear Admirals, 25 Commodores, 50 Captains, 90 Commanders, 108 Lieutenants, and 160 Ensigns..... It was stated that the cost of the public printing for the last year was $1,750,000, of which only $690,000 was for Congress .....The bill for the relief of the naval contractors was taken up, and its discussion occupied the entire day.

In the House, on the 17th, the consideration of the bill reorganizing the army was resumed. The motion to strike out the part relating to the Veteran Reserve Corps was negatived, yeas 30, nays 84. Several amendments were offered and disposed of to other sections.

In the Senate, on the 18th, a joint resolution was adopted, appropriating $127,085 for fulfilling certain treaties with Indian tribes on the Upper Missouri and the Upper Platte.....The bill to amend an act relating to the habeas corpus was discussed.

In the House, on the 18th, the bill to increase the salaries of the officers of the Pension Bureau was defeated; but a motion to reconsider was carried.....A resolution of the Texas Convention, in favor of a Southern Branch of the Pacific Railroad, was Presented by the Speaker, and, after some discussion, was referred to the Committee on the Pacific Railroad.

In the Senate, on the 19th, the bill for the admission of Colorado as a State was taken up and discussed, and at the expiration of the morning hour its further consideration was postponed until Tuesday. .....The habeas corpus bill was then taken up, but so many Senators were absent that the Senate thought proper to adjourn.

In the House, on the 19th, the bill increasing the salary of the Commissioner of Pensions was reconsidered and passed..... Mr. Van Horn of New York introduced a bill for the construction of a ship canal around Niagara Falls, which was discussed until the expiration of the morning hour, when the army bill was taken up. Several amendments were proposed and disposed of, and some progress made in perfecting the bill. The joint resolution making an appropriation to enable the President to negotiate treaties with certain Indian tribes, was passed.....Mr. Stephens, in reply to a question, said that all the appropriation bills were passed, except the deficiency, the miscellaneous, and the Indian appropriation bills.

In the Senate, on the 20th, a reward was voted to the officers and crews of certain vessels who assisted in the rescue of 500 Americans from the wreck of the steamship San Francisco.....Most of the session was spent in the discussion of the bill relating to the habeas corpus. An amendment exempting from indemnification unlawful acts committed by army officers in States where the habeas corpus was not suspended, was lost—yeas 10, nays 29. A somewhat heated controversy arose in course of the debate, between Senators Clark and Saulsbury, upon the latter's asserting that if he were a judge he would pay no attention to the bill, believing it to be unconstitutional. The bill finally passed,—yeas 30, nays 4; Messrs. Buckalew, Guthrie, Hendricks and Saulsbury voting in the negative.....The Senate adjourned to Monday.

In the House, on the 20th, a bill was passed, after some debate, granting a pension of $422 50 to Ishmael Day of Baltimore county, Md., as a recognition of his heroism in defending the national flag from Gilmore's rebel raiders, July 12, 1864, and for his loss of property on that occasion..... The printing deficiency bill, appropriating $660,000 for deficiency in public printing, paper, and binding, was passed.....The House resumed considering the army bill, and voted down Mr Schenck's amendment to the section relative to the Adjutant-General's Department. The present organization is to be continued, with one Adjutant-Genearl (a Brigadier), four Assistant Adjutant-Generals (Colonels), five Assistants (Lieutenant-Colonels), and ten Assistants (Majors). The sections relative to Inspectors-General and the Judge-Advocate-General were considered and passed upon, and the Quartermaster's Department taken up, pending the consideration of which, the House adjourned.

The Senate was not in session on the 21st, and in the House, speech-making was the order of the day. No business of moment was transacted.

The Tax Bill.

Somebody proposes the following new amendment to the tax bill:

For kissing a pretty girl, one dollar.

For kissing a homely one, two dollars, the extra amount being added probably for the man's folly.

For ladies kissing one another, two dollars. The tax is placed at this rate in order to break up the custom altogether, it being regarded by our M. C.'s as a piece of inexcusable absurdity.

For every flirtation, ten cents.

Every young man who has more than one girl, is taxed five dollars.

For courting in the kitchen, twenty-five cents.

Courting in the parlor, one dollar.

Courting in a romantic place, five dollars, and fifty cents for each offence thereafter.

Seeing a lady home from church, twenty-five cents.

Going from church without accompanying a lady, five dollars.

Seeing a lady home from the Mite Society five cents, the proceeds to be devoted to the relief of disabled army chaplains.

For ladies who paint fifty cents.

For wearing a low-necked dress, one dollar.

For each curl on a lady's head above ten, five cents.

For any unfair device for entrapping young men into matrimony, five dollars.

For wearing hoops larger than eight feet in circumference, eight cents for each hoop.

Old bachelors over thirty are taxed ten dollars and banished to Utah.

Each pretty lady to be taxed from twenty-five cents to twenty-five dollars, she to fix the estimate of her own beauty. It is thought that a very large amount will be realized from this provision.

Each boy baby, fifty cents.

Each girl baby, ten cents.

Families having more than eight babies are not to be taxed, and for twins a premium of forty dollars will be paid out of the funds accruing from the tax on old bachelors.

Each Sunday loafer on the street corners, or about church doors, to be taxed his value, which is about two cents.

—Why do the birds feel depressed early in a summer morning? Because their little bills are all over dew.

—"There, John, that's twice you've come home and forgotten that lard." "La, mother, it was so greasy that it slipped my mind."

—The month in which we are has been an eventful one in our recent annals. In April, the war began. In April, it ended. In April, Lee surrendered, and in April President Lincoln was murdered.

—"How are you, John? I'm deuced glad to see you." "Very well, Charley. Come and take a drink, old fellow. 'Tisn't often we meet." "That's a fact, John—and when we do, it's meet and drink!" —A man out west says he moved so often during one year, that whenever a covered wagon stopped at the gate, his chickens would fall on their backs, and hold up their feet, in order to be tied and thrown in.

Report of the Associated Press.

Speech of the President.

WASHINGTON, April 19.

The celebration of the emancipation of slavery in the District of Columbia took place to-day. Two regiments of colored troops, and various civic associations, with many colored citizens, assembled in front of the Executive Mansion, making a dense mass of colored faces, relieved here and there by a few white ones. After the firing of cannon and the playing of a few martial airs, three cheers were given for the President of the United States, who having been escorted to a prominent position by U. S Marshal Gerding, and his private secretary Col. Wm. G Moore, addressed the assemblage as follows:

MY COLORED FRIENDS: I have nothing more to say to you on this occasion than to thank you for this compliment you have paid in presenting yourselves before me on this your day of celebration. I come forward for the purpose of indicating my approbation and manifesting my appreciation of the respect thus offered or conferred. I thank you for the compliment, and I mean what I say; and I will remark in this connection, that the time will come, and that, too, before a great while, when the colored people of the United States will find out who have selected them as a hobby and pretence by which they can be successful in obtaining and maintaining power, and who have been their truest friends, and wanted them to participate and enjoy the blessings of freedom. The time will come when it will be made known who contributed as much as any other man; and who, without being considered egotistical I may say, contributed more, in promoting a national guarantee of the abolition of slavery in all the States by the ratification of the amendment of the Constitution of the United States, giving a national guarantee that slavery shall no longer be permitted to exist or be restablished in any State or under the jurisdiction of the United States. I know how easy it is to cater to prejudice, and how easy to foster prejudice and feelings unkind. I care not that I have been engaged in this work, in which my all has been perilled,

I was not engaged in it as a hobby, nor did I ride the colored men for the sake of gaining power. What I did was for the purpose of establishing the great principle of freedom, and, thank God, I feel and know it to be so that my efforts have contributed as much, if not more, in accomplishing this great national guarantee than those of any other living man in the United States [Enthusiastic applause.] It is very easy for colored men to have pretended friends in high places, and far removed from danger; whose eyes have only abstractly gazed on freedom; who have never risked their limbs and property, and who never contributed one sixpence in furtherance of the great cause, while another perilled his all and everything that was dear to man, and those whom he raised and who lived with him, and who now enjoy his property with his consent, and who now receive his assistance and aid, and yet some assume who have never been the great defenders of the colored men. I repeat, that the day will come when it will be proved who is practically your friend, and not for place or power. I had these already. It has been a principle with me, and, thank God, the great principle has been established, that whenever any individual in the language of a distinguished orator, "Treads American soil, his soul within him feels and appreciates the fact that he stands forth redeemed, regenerated, and disenthralled by the genius of emancipation." Then let me mingle with you in celebrating the day which commenced your freedom I do so in sincerity and truth, and trust in God that the blessings which have been conferred may be enjoyed and appreciated by you, and that you may give them a proper direction. There is something for all to do. You have solemn duties to perform, and you ought to remember that Freedom is not a mere idea. It must be reduced to a reality. Men, to be free, endure many things which seem to be embraced in the idea of universal freedom. It is for you to give evidence to the world and to the people of the United States, whether you are going to appreciate this great boon as it should be, and that you are worthy of being freemen. Then let me thank you with sincerity for the compliment you have paid me by passing through here to-day and paying your respects to me. I repeat again, the time will come when you will know who have been your best friends, and who have not been your friends from mercenary considerations. Accept my thanks.

The bands then struck up a lively tune. Meanwhile the President remained, every man of the colored persons approaching and shaking hands with him. The procession then reformed, and took up the line of march along Pennsylvania avenue.

When passing the Capitol, cheer after cheer rent the air in compliment to their legislative friends. Never before has there been such a demonstration of the colored population in this city, who were joined by friends from other localities. There were 4 000 to 5,000 colored men in the procession while 10,000 of the same race were interested spectators, manifesting their joy and gladness by waving their hats and handkerchiefs, and cheering lustily the passing procession.

NITRO-GLYCERINE.

Terrific Explosions.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16.

A terrible explosion of what was supposed to be nitro-glycerine occurred 1½ o'clock today, near Wells, Fargo & Co.'s building. The explosion shook the earth like an earthquake for a circle of a quarter of a mile.

Samuel Knight, Superintendent of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, died in half an hour of injuries received. G. W. Bell, Supervisor and Assayer, was instantly killed. Mr Wallub, John Gallagher, Frank Webster, and William Justin were also killed. Eight bodies were so mutilated that they could not be identified.

Louis McLane, Capt. Eldridge of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, and Judge Hoffman, were bruised and cut. Felix Lamix, D Stacy, Jefferson Taylor, H. Blaine, clothing dealer, Capt. J. E Ayres, Fred. Leiz, Frank Morris, and others were injured, but not fatally. Some will never be identified, as fragments of human flesh, bones and brains were found nearly two blocks distant.

Montgomery, Sacramento, and California streets were lined with broken glass, scarcely a window for several hundred feet remaining whole. Wells, Fargo & Co.'s house and everything in the vicinity, animate or inanimate, were blown into fragments.

The damage is estimated at least $200,000. William Havens, a book-keeper of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, is ascertained to be among the killed. The cause of the explosion is a mystery. The freight agent of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company says two boxes, each measuring about four cubic feet, were taken from the steamer's dock to the place where the explosion occurred.

One box was consigned to Idaho City, and the other to Los Angelos. Both were stained with oil. The contents are not known. Forty men are now engaged in removing the ruins.

NEW YORK, April 20.

The steamer Arizona, from Aspinwall, has arrived with $820,000 in specie.

A terrible disaster occurred at Aspinwall, on the 3d inst. There was a fearful explosion on board the steamer European, destroying the ship and 400 feet of her wharf. The cause of the explosion is said to be from nitro-glycerine on board. About 50 persons were killed; among them the captain and officers of the boat.

The Panama Railroad Company's splendid freight house is a pile of ruins. Scarcely a building in the place is undamaged. Two clerks of the Panama Railroad were killed, as well as 13 natives or Jamaicans, employed on the wharf or in the freight house. It is also believed that a small gang of native laborers were killed. The total loss of life is about 50. The damage is stated at a million of dollars.

Col. Otto Burnstenbender was arrested in New York, on the 10th, on the complaint of Fire-Marshal Baker, for shipping a quantity of nitro-glycerine to California—the same that exploded there, about 200 pounds in all—without labelling the packages or informing the captain of the vessel in which it was shipped, of the nature of the article. The Mayor issued an order directing the Fire-Marshal to search all places in the city wherein he had reason to believe that any nitro glycerine was stored, and to remove it to some safe place Mr. Baker has already discovered about 300 pounds of the glycerine in a storehouse up town, and also a large quantity on board a vessel in the harbor. It will all be removed to some place where its explosion cannot cause any serious consequences.

[From the New York Herald, April 18.]

According to information taken here, in New York, the superintendent of a New York mining company had sent, some weeks ago, to San Francisco, by the Pacific Mail Company, several boxes of nitro-glycerine, weighing over 200 pounds, imported from the factory of Mr. Alfred Nobel, of Hamburg, Germany.

It was intended to sell this oil to mining companies, the immense exploding power of the new chemical compound offering great advantages, not only in the saving of labor of drill holes, but also in freight, because one pound of this blasting oil does the same destructive work as 12 to 15 pounds of common blasting gun-powder.

The blood stirs if we think that the 200 pounds sent by the Pacific mail steamer had exploded during the sea voyage, tearing to pieces and burying in the waves the seven or eight hundred passengers on board. And could not the accident which took place at the freight office of Wells & Fargo's company, in San Francisco, without any apparent cause, have happened quite as well on board of the steamer which carried the mysterious and dangerous freight?

In the small city of Bochum, in one of the coal districts of Westphalia, Germany, a storekeeper kept for sale to the miners some stock of Nobel's nitro glycerine. One morning a miner came to buy two pounds, and brought with him a tin can to carry it, the glass bottles in which it was sold being inconvenient for him. The clerk opened the bottles, and poured the oil into the tin can; but, lo, in the same moment it exploded, tearing to pieces the poor clerk, killing the miner and destroying the store. The Prussian government appointed a commission to investigate the matter, and it was found that the tin can had contained turpentine oil, and that turpentine oil in contact with nitro-glycerine possibly would occasion a sudden explosion. Singularly enough, the accident happened on the same day that the Wyoming hotel accident took place in this city.

Near Glatz, in the Prussian province of Silesia, a laborer who was occupied in blasting away some rocks on the railroad track came very early in the morning (Jan. 6, 1866) to his work. He was to pour oil in his drill-hole, but found it had frozen over night—the oil having the peculiar quality of freezing six degrees above the water freezing point. The oil was in a gutta-percha flask, and little being left, the unfortunate working man cut open the flask and took a hatchet to cut off a piece of the frozen oil. The moment the hatchet touched the frozen lump it exploded, killing instantly the poor man, whose limbs were scattered in fragments, and found two miles distant from the place where the accident happened.

We call, therefore, the attention of the competent authorities to these facts and hope the law will interfere to regulate the transport and storage of this powerful destructive compound. It would be the surest to adopt simply the Prussian law regulating the transportation of nitro-glycerine oil on public roads, because this law is the work of some of the best scientific authorities of Europe, the committee having been composed of three professors of chemistry, three directors of insurance companies, and three freight superintendents of railroads.

—The Hon. Richard Busteed, U. S. Judge for the District of Alabama, has decided that a New Orleans steamboat captain is responsible for money lost at poker by a minor when a passenger on board his boat.

—The cause of the fertility produced by the overflow of the Nile is not occasioned by vegetable but by animal matter, according to the researches of Ehrenberg, who found the mud deposited to be largely composed of infusoria.

—There is a cat in the town of Goldsboro, N. C, now engaged in the responsible duty of rearing nine members of a family—four kittens and five young rats. She is equally as tender of the latter as the former. She killed the mother rat and assumed the task of rearing the orphan young.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, April 21.
COTTON—Middling	$	@	.37
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	8 10	@	9 00
WHEAT—New No. 1. Spring	1.60	@	1.85
BARLEY		@	.90
CORN—Sound Western	.85	@	.87
OATS—New Western	.43	@	.50
PETROLEUM—Crude	.24½	@
PORK—Mess new	26 50	@	26 62
BEEF HAMS	38.00	@	39 00
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	14.00	@	17.00
DRY GOODS—Merrimacs	.19	@	.20
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville		@	.37½
Brown Sheetings—Amoskeag		@	.25
Delaines—Manchester		@	.22½
Denims—Manchester		@	.37½
GOLD—1.26⅝.
CHICAGO, April 23, 1866.
BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$80.00	@	120.00
BEEVES—Stock to prime	4.25	@	5 75
BEANS	75	@	1 25
BRAN	9 00	@	10 00
BUTTER—Good Tub	.25	@	.28
CHEESE—Western	.18	@	.19
COFFEE—Rio	.26	@	.28
Java	.39	@	.40
EGGS	.17	@	.18
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	6.00	@	7.00
Malaga Lemons	7.00	@	7 25
Dried N. Y. Apples	.16½	@	.16
Peaches Pared	.38	@	.35
Raisins, M. R.	4.00	@	4.00
FLOUR—Winter White	9.00	@	13 25
Spring Extra	7.75	@	8 10
Rye per bbl		@	4.50
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	10.00	@	10.25
Whitefish, " "	8.25	@	8.50
Codfish, per hundred	6.00	@	8.50
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.46½	@	.46
Oats "	.27	@	.28
Rye	.56	@	.60
Wheat—Spring No. 1	1.42	@	1.43
Barley Canadian—sample	98	@	1 04
HIGHWINES		@	2.21
LARD	.18	@	.8½
PORK—Mess	25.25	@	25.50
POTATOES	45	@	.60
SHEEP—First and second class	4.50	@	5.75
SUGARS—Cuba	.12½	@	.14
New York Refined	.17	@	.17½
White A	.16	@	.16½
White B	.15½	@	.15¾
Yellow C	.14½	@	14½
SEEDS—Timothy, ⅞ bag	4 60	@	5.12
Clover	0.25	@	6 00
SALT—Fine	2.25	@	2.50
Coarse		@	2 00
TALLOW	.10½	@	.11

Metropolitan Hotel!

COR. RANDOLPH & WELLS STS.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

B. H. SKINNER, - - - PROPRIETOR.

This Hotel has recently been enlarged by the addition of the May Hotel, and now contains Two Hundred and Fifty Rooms, well furnished and lighted with gas.

The Little Corporal,

Is acknowledged by the leading papers to be the Best Children's Paper in America!

Published Monthly, at One Dollar a year, (ten cents for sample copy) by

ALFRED L. SEWELL,

Circulars sent free. Chicago, Illinois

DR. SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS.

A Healthy Tonic, Gentle Stimulant, and Unequaled Morning Appetizer, prepared in

RIPE OLD BOURBON WHISKEY

FREE FROM GRAIN OIL,

With Flowers, Buds and Barks of the Highest Medicinal Virtue.

By increasing the appetite, assisting digestion, regulating the bowels, and giving tone to the system, they impart strength and vigor to the body and cheerfulness to the mind.

☞ If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters, have him send for them.

☞ Remember the name, and take no other.

For sale by leading Druggists and Grocers everywhere.

C. H. SWAIN,

Proprietor, 34 S. Water St., Chicago.

GARDEN CITY Gift Enterprise

TO BE DRAWN AT

CROSBY'S OPERA HOUSE,

CHICAGO, ILL.,

ON APRIL 25TH, 1866,

And every fourth Wednesday thereafter.

10,000 GIFTS, VALUED AT $60,000

65,000 Tickets will be Disposed of.

One Gift, in Greenbacks	$5,000
One Gift, a Residence	5,000
One Gift, in Greenbacks	3,000
One Gift, a Residence	4,000
One Gift, a Lot	2,000
One Gift, in Greenbacks	1,000
One Gift, do	500
5 Gifts, 5 Pianos	2,500
50 Gifts, 50 Gold Lever Watches	10,000
50 Gifts, 50 Ladies' Gold Watches	5,000
50 Gifts, 50 Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines	5,000
1000 Gifts, 1000 Gold Lined Cups and Goblets	1,000
100 Gifts, 100 Ladies' Gold Chains	1,500
5000 Gifts, 5000 Gold Pens	7,500
3,738 Gifts, in Cash	7,000
10,000	$70,000

In order to facilitate the distribution of Tickets, they will be given away in the following manner:

65,000 Prize Packages will be Sold at One Dollar each, and a Ticket will be given with each Package.

Each Prize Package contains some of the following list of Articles.

Diamond Set, Lava Set, Pearl Breast Pins, Finger Rings, Gold Studs, Sleeve Buttons, Gold Ear Rings, Ear Drops and Crosses, Mourning Pins, Hair and Bead Work, Ladies' Gold Finger Rings, Gents' Gold Finger Rings, and Fancy Bosom Studs in Sets, and many other Articles of value.

Every package contains something of value, and entitles the holder to a ticket. Send in your money at once, and buy a prize package. Send 3 stamps to pay the return of the package by mail; a ticket will be sent with each package. Each ticket has its duplicate, of the same number, which is registered before being sent out. The drawing will take place at Crosby's Opera House, or some other public place, where thousands of ticket holders can witness the drawing. The duplicate tickets will all be placed in a wheel, and drawn out by some disinterested person, chosen from the audience present on the day of drawing. A list of the numbers so drawn will be sent at once, or soon as made out, to each ticket holder, who then can compare his number with the list of drawn numbers; the moneys or goods will then be held to his order, to be sent by Express or otherwise, as he may direct. Our enterprise is upon the grandest scale ever known. As every ticket holder will obtain one prize on purchasing a prize package, and have as good an opportunity to obtain a Five Thousand Dollar Prize, as a person could have in any similar Gift Enterprise.

THE GARDEN CITY ENTERPRISE is so arranged that the tickets will be rapidly disposed of so much so that, very seldom if ever, any postponement of the day of drawing can occur. And in no case will the postponement be for a longer time than 4 weeks. The articles contained in our enterprise are all of the most approved kind, of the best manufacturers, and all warranted new and in perfect order. A new list of similar articles will be made up after each drawing, for the next monthly distribution. All orders will receive prompt attention.

Examine our unprecedented club rates; every active lady or gentlemen may take part in forming a club. Don't waste your money on foolish amusements, but buy our prize packages and get something of real value. No blank packages. Parties are recommended to get up small clubs first; when they become quainted with the work they can get up larger ones.

INDUCEMENTS OFFERED TO AGENTS—Club Rates.

Any person or party procuring a club of 5 or more names for prize packages, and forwarding us the money for the same, will be allowed the following commission:

We will send

5 Packages,	Ticket with	each		$4 50
10	do	do	do	9 00
20	do	do	do	17 00
30	do	do	do	25 00
40	do	do	do	32 00
50	do	do	do	39 00
100	do	do	do	76 00

Be particular to send the name and address of each individual subscriber. Money sent by draft, Post Office order, Express, or in registered letters, may be sent at our risk.

Garden City Gift Enterprise Co.,

Miscellany.

THE SINGULAR MAN.

There was a young man, you may think very strange,
But sometime or other a little deranged;
And if it be true, then, as I have been told,
He was once a mere infant, but age made him old.

His face was the oddest that ever was known,
His mouth stood across 'twixt his nose and his chin.
And whenever he spoke, it was with his voice,
And in talking he always made some sort of noise.

He'd an arm on each side, to use when he pleased,
He never worked half when he lived at his ease;
Two legs he had got to make him complete,
But what was most strange, at each end was his feet.

His legs, as folks say, he could use at his will,
And when he was walking, he never stood still;
If you had but seen him, you'd laugh till you burst,
For one leg or 'tother would always go first.

Another strange thing as e'er I did meet,
Was when he was hungry he always did eat;
He drank when he was dry, and then, if you'd note,
Whatever he drank always went down his throat.

If this whimsical fellow had a river to cross,
If he couldn't get over, he staid where he was;
And though he ne'er went off the dry ground,
So great was his luck that he never was drown'd.

Another strange thing about him I'll tell,
For when he was sick he was always unwell;
He gave a deep sigh, then op'ed his mouth wide,
And somehow or other this old fellow died.

But the reason he died, and the cause of his death,
Was simply, poor soul for the want of more breath;
And now he is left in the cold earth to moulder,
If he had lived a day longer he'd have been a day older.

A Private Inquiry.

One evening, some months ago, I was seated before the fire waiting for my wife, whom I had promised to take to the theatre, when the servant brought in a card, saying that a gentleman particularly desired to see me. I looked at the card; it bore the name of "Chr. Waitzen," with an address, and in the corner, "Private Inquiry Office." The name was known to me merely, from my having remarked it at the foot of mysterious advertisements; of the bearer of it I knew no more than the card told me.

"Did he say what he wanted, Jane? I'm just going out."

"No, sir; but he wishes to see you most particular. Missus won't be ready for a quarter of an hour," she added.

"Show him in," I said. "What the deuce can he want with me?" I muttered to myself, as I looked at the clock.

The servant returned in a few moments, ushering in a tall man, to whom I offered a seat. Mr. Waitzen, who, I afterwards learned, had formerly been in "the force," had still about him marks of the policeman, in spite of his evident attempts to repress them. I have observed about detectives that they never appear quite at home in their clothes; I suppose that, from constantly assuming all kinds of garments as disguises, they never become thoroughly used to one style of dress. From this cause, or from some other with which I am not acquainted, it results that a detective's dress never has the individuality which in some degree, however faint, marks that of the rest of men. Chr. Waitzen had deserted "the force" for some years, but his old trade was discernible at times. The official boots, to which, in spite of the fact that they at once betray any disguise, the ordinary detective clings as a drowning man to a hencoop,—these this gentleman had forever discarded.

"Mr. Waitzen?"

"That is my name, sir."

"To what—to what fortunate occurrence, sir, am I indebted for this visit?" I asked, with a slight irony in my manner; for, to tell the truth, I did not feel very well disposed towards the race of "Private Inquirers." "May I ask whether I am the bject of some delicate inquiry?"

"Not at all, sir. I have come to beg your assistance in a matter of business; may I reckon on your aid?"

"That depends entirely on what you require. I must know first what is the assistance you desire, and for what purpose."

"Of course, I should not for one moment think of asking you for any aid without giving you every assurance you could require that the information is sought for a proper purpose." He took a little notebook from his pocket. "You are skilful in reading ciphers?" he asked.

"Well," I said, "I've amused myself sometimes in that way; but how did you know it?"

"Excuse me; it is my business to know everything by myself or through others. You sent to the Times last autumn a solution of an advertisement in cipher?

"I did; but—"

"I made a note of the initials (you did not sign your name) and of the address: I thought it might be useful some day. Your letter was dated from C——, a small watering-place in Dunshire. I intended, when I might be that way, to see whether you lived there (highly improbable), or if not, to get your address. I had no difficulty in finding the house at which you had lodged; but they had forgotten your place of abode in London. Very awkward! But you had had a check sent down to you, and that check you changed. The bank had not kept the name of the drawer, but the check was drawn on Coutts's. I found the name of the drawer—"

"My aunt," I interposed.

"Exactly," continued Waitzen; "got your address, and here I am."

"Well," I said, "this is a nice specimen of the way in which you look into people's private affairs!"

"What could I do, sir? If you had signed your name, I should have been saved a journey. And now, sir, before asking your assistance, you, a gentleman of honorable and delicate feeling, will, of course, insist on knowing the object for which that assistance is required. You're quite right, sir; this system of private inquiries is very low and dirty, but what can I do? It's my trade. Will you aid me, if I convince you that all is straightforward?"

"Let me hear," I said.

He again looked at his note-book. "Last settling-day on the Stock Exchange, J. C. disappeared, carrying with him, fraudulently, an immense number of bonds and other securities, which he can easily negotiate on any Bourse. The police are after him; but several members of the Stock Exchange, acting in concert, have, in addition, authorized me to make inquiry. I have reason to believe that he is in England, and I also believe, from the active pursuit set on foot immediately, and from other circumstances, that it is not likely he can have got off with all the securities in his actual possession. I have also reason to believe—I need not explain why, but partly from the word at the head,—that this advertisement in cipher is either from him, or addressed to him. Now, sir, that I have told you my story, will you undertake to help me? Here he handed to me an advertisement, cut from a newspaper. It ran thus:—

FRED. (112·18) 236·49) (207·76) (132·3) (27·61) (142·54) (121·82) (12·82) (72·6) (202·30) (38·106) (262·51) (78·22) (63·94) (110·6) (262,51) (19·38) (160·60) (230·92) (87·51) (210·29) (204·79) (15·67) (148·61) (121·82) (236·54) (87·101) (21·17) (236·54) (238·78) (5·1) (175·75) (148.61) (13·7) (204·79) (114·) (10.102) (121.82) (182.15) (78·112) (157·62) (100·58) (134·19) (264·30) (268·66) (5·1) (187·71) (80·45) (117·75) (265·62) (9·101) (245·62) (154.55) (158·46) (256·41.)

"Well," I said, after looking at it for a few moments, "this cipher does not seem to be of the simplest kind! Before undertaking the task, I should like to know the terms." He mentioned them, and I am bound to say that they were very liberal. "But, after all," I said, "this may not be J. C.'s advertisement. Yet I shall have the trouble all the same!"

"And the check also, my dear sir," said Waitzen with fervor.

"Very good; on those terms I undertake it. If I cannot succeed in reading the cipher, I agree to lose my pains."

"One thing more," said the private inquirer; "you see the importance of my knowing the meaning of this advertisement as early as possible; when can you let me have the translation?"

"I'll do all I can," I replied; will you look in at noon to-morrow? I shall have it for you by then, most likely, if I can decipher it at all."

At this moment the door opened, and my wife entered, dressed for the theatre. Waitzen bowed to her, and then glancing with evident anxiety at my dress-coat, whispered: "You will surely begin at once? You are not going out? Only think of the little time you will have!"

"I really must go," I said. "I shall leave the theatre after the first piece, and shall have plenty of time; besides, I shall look over it at the theatre."

He implored me to remain at home, and to begin work at once; but I was quite deaf to his entreaties, and, taking my wife's arm in mine, went down stairs. At the theatre, I remarked some half-hour after our arrival, a face which seemed always turned towards us, except that, when I looked in its direction, it became averted. After noticing this for two or three times, I discovered that the face was the face of Chr. Waitzen, who had come to the theatre in disguise, to see, apparently, whether I carried out my promise of looking over the cipher in my box. To punish him for his distrust, I kept my eyes on the performance the whole time.

On our return home, I bade my wife good-night, explaining that I was going to sit up to work. It's all very well to preach "early to bed and early to rise;" but if you have any head-work to do, there's no time like that between 11 p. m. and 2 a. m., when all your household is asleep. Everything is quiet; even the street noises, unless you live in a populous and late quarter, are hushed, and, above all, you are safe from interruption. As you sit in the genial warmth of a fire, with the light of your lamp concentrated on your papers or books, you hear, perhaps, now and then, a passing cab coming home from the theatre, or, later, the cry of some roisterer, singing the vulgar music-hall melody that he heard an hour ago, when a little less drunk than now; you catch the tread of the solitary policeman, and notice that he tries your door as he passes; but all these sounds are momentary, and do but serve to intensify the quiet. Mind and body are nicely balanced; body has had its proper allowance of exercise, but not yet tired, consents to let mind be at peace. But the morning! At what hour can you rise when you will not be disturbed by noises? You are hungry; ten months out of the twelve you are cold, for you are without fire; and the other months it is so fine, that everybody wants to be abroad in the bright, smokeless day. No! if you want to do work set up late.

It was what, at all events, I made up my mind to do, so, after stirring the fire, I sat down to look at the mysterious scrap of paper left me by Waitzen. My first step was to get some inkling of the nature of the cipher, of the plan on which it proceeded. Exclusive of the word at the head, I found that the specimen I had, consisted of 252 figures, divided by brackets into 55 groups, a dot, in every case, again separating the figures within each bracket into two parts. The number of figures enclosed in each bracket varied from 2 up to 5; the proportions in which the various combinations were found differing widely, there being only two instances of groups of 2 figures each; 2, of 3 each; 13, of 4 each; and 38, or more than three fifths of the whole number, of 5 each. Now, the object of these brackets and dots might quite possibly be merely to increase the difficulty of reading the cipher; it was, however, equally possible that they were there to serve their ostensible purpose, the division and subdivision of the figures. Carefully guarding against absolutely assuming the correctness of this latter view, I sought in the cipher itself for something to lead me to its adoption or rejection. I found that the characters used were the numerals from 0 to 9. I looked at this "0" a little more closely, and found that it occurred 19 times. Now, had the division and subdivision of the figures been arbitrary merely, it would require no proof to show that it should have occurred once, at the very least, at the beginning of a group. It did not so occur. The first step was gained; the division was a necessary part of the cipher.

The fact I had remarked led me on another step. Had the plan of the cipher been to represent certain letters by certain figures, I should have been entitled to expect the "0" at the head of a group; since, in English, the language in which the cipher was probably written, there is no letter of frequent occurrence which is not also an initial letter, a rule which holds good in all the European languages with which I am acquainted.

I should have been already almost justified in concluding that the meaning of the cipher depended on the grouping, but I found other proofs, which at the same time led me still further on. I have already remarked the frequency of groups of 5 figures. Now, this singular predominance of groups of 5 figures would scarcely harmonize with any plan which represented letters by single arbitrary signs, although it would no doubt be possible to compose sentences consisting chiefly of words of 5 letters, retaining or rejecting the vowels. But in the great majority of cases of 5 figures, I found 3 figures before the debt. To these figures before the dots, I, for the moment, restricted my attention, I found that (taking all the groups) they ranged, with intervals, from 5 to 268; in 37 cases out of the 55, there were three figures. Discarding repetitions, I found that under 100 there were 15; between 100 and 200, 15; and from 200 to the end, 13; a degree of uniformity higher than I had expected to find, and high enough to establish that it was the result of the grouping being dependent on a plan.

I had thus determined that the divisions were not arbitrary, and that the characters used did not singly represent letters; by inference, therefore, as they must be held to mean something, that in groups they represented letters or words.

I now went over the groups of figures after the dots, and found that they ranged from 1 to 112. Dividing the numbers between these points equally at 56, I found, discarding repetitions, that up to that number there were 27; above it, 22. With the light I had now got, all converging on one point, I should, in a long specimen, have expected a far more exact proportion; it was one of my difficulties that I had to deal with so short a piece of writing. The proportion, however, was, as in the former case, sufficient to prove the existence of a system. The numbers stopped short at 112, whereas, in the other groups, they went as high as 268; the two systems, regulating the groups before and after the dots, were therefore different. It did not absolutely follow that they depended one on the other, but the bracketing rendered it highly probable that they did. I considered myself justified in assuming that each bracketed groupe represented a letter or a word.

So far, the conclusions at which I had arrived had been almost forced upon me. There was now, however, less certainty in my progress. My examination of the cipher had, nevertheless, shown me in what direction the probabilities lay. They pointed to a conclusion which might well have made Chr. Waitzen tremble for the success of my attempt. The first instinctive notion I had formed of the cipher had been confirmed by all I had arrived at; it was, that the numbers referrod to a book,—the first group of figures in each bracket indicated a page, and the second, a word or line in that page.

Now, when Poe, in his remarkable story of The Gold Beetle, tells us "that it may well be doubted whether human ingenuity can construct an enigma of the kind" (he is speaking of cryptograms), "which human ingenuity may not, by proper application, resolve,"—a proposition safe in its vagueness,—he must be held to speak only by ciphers which proceed on a plan the very method of which affords a guide to its solution. Taking the cipher in his tale, for example, each letter being represented by a distinct sign, the frequency of recurrence of particular signs leads to their identification with certain letters. His remarks can hardly apply to cases where, the signs used being purely arbitrary, their solution requires a knowledge of the prearranged plan. In the cipher, the meaning of which I was attempting to discover, I had reason to believe that the signs represented, in an arbitrary manner, letters or words. If this view was correct, the cipher did not contain within itself the means by which it might be read; I could only be successful by discovering the very books used in its construction, and the mode of using that book. The task, at first sight, appeared hopeless; but, upon consideration, I saw enough to induce me to proceed.

I remarked several repetitions. Now, in a cipher constructed with the ingenuity of which this gave evidence, it would have been very easy, had each sign, by the indication of a page in a book, and a line or word in that page, represented a letter only, to pick out dozens, or even hundreds of each letter, so as to avoid a recurrence of signs which might afford a solution to the enigma. The repetitions, on the other hand, were too few to allow of the possibility of each sign representing a distinct letter. The recurrence, but not too frequent recurrence, of signs led me to believe that each group of figures within a bracket represented a word. I had arrived at the conclusion, that the number before the dot gave the page; I was convinced that the number after the dot represented a line in each page. The highest of these numbers was 112; now, it must be a very empty page indeed which does not contain many times 112 words. The second number could, then, hardly refer to the sequence of words, it could only represent the line.

Now, what book would one take by preference for the construction of a cipher of this character? In any ordinary book, there would be extreme difficulty in finding the particular word required, amounting, in many cases, to impossibility; there is only one class of book which will furnish immediately, without labor, every word wanted,—a dictionary. If a dictionary were used, there would be no necessity to indicate more than the line in which the word, in its alphabetical order, was found; with other books, three numbers would be required—for the page, the line, and the word, respectively. This confirmed my suspicion. By a fresh examination of the cipher, I might test this view, and I therefore arranged in a table, like the following, the numbers before the dots, indicating by a mark, for a reason which the reader will see presently, the place of the absent numbers.

				110					245
(1)	5
				114
				142
				(2) 143
	9	63		117
	10	(2) 37
	12	38
	13
			(3) 121			175	202		256
	15							230
							(2) 204
	19	72					207
	21		100		154				(1) 262
								(2) 236
							210		264
					157			238
					158
		(2) 78	(2) 132
					160	187			268
	27	80		134

I had still something to do before I could apply my test, which was the frequency of occurrence of initial letters. The frequency of initial letters, as they occur in a dictionary, that is, without repetitions, is as follows: S, C, P, D, A, R, B, T, M, I, F, E, U, H, L, G, W, O, V, N, J, Q, K, Y, X, Z. But the reader will at once see that the recurrence of words of frequent and inevitable use may entirely upset this order. This is what does in fact happen. For my purpose, I had to ascertain the frequency of occurrence of initial letters as they are found in ordinary writing, or more properly for my purpose, in conversation. To arrive at this, I took up a number of "Chambers" that was lying on the table, and made an analysis of a few pages of a tale written in the first person. I found that the order of initial letters was this: T, A, I, W, H, O, M, S, B, F, D, C, N, P, L, G, E, R, U, J, K, Y, V, Q, X, Z. The letter T predominates largely over all the others, owing to the frequent use of such words as the, that, this, then there, their, them they, these, those, to. Next comes A, owing to the frequency of the words a, an, and, am, are, at, all, &c.; then I, under which letters we have I, is, it, its, in, into; and next W, including many such words as we, where, when, was, were, who, which, what, whose, would, will, &c. In any moderately long specimen of "conversational" writing, these four letters, as initials, will largely predominate over all others. Now, of these four letters, A is at the head of the alphabetical order, I at about the middle, and W at the end, except by a few pages, in large dictionaries. I now proceeded to apply my test, and found that the numbers lay in a cluster towards the beginning and end. Those quite at the end, I was justified in assuming represented words beginning with W. Taking the last number, 268, as given, probably, almost the last page in the key, I found that in a dictionary of about that length the letter I should begin at about page 120, or a few pages before, since the small dictionaries omit numbers of words with the prefixes in, un, add re, which go to swell the latter part of large dictionaries, such as that I was using as a guide. On referring to my table, I found that there was no great indication of clustering towards the middle; but the specimen on which I was operating being so very short, I could scarcely expect to find all the points in my favor. Had I had several pages to deal with, I could have indicated pretty correctly the limits of all the important letters.

The key required to read the cipher was, then, a pocket dictionary of about 268 or 270 pages. It was very late when I arrived at this result, but before going to bed, I just looked at another point which I had remarked. I found two groups of figures identical as regards the numbers before the dots, but varying in those after; they were (236·49) and (236·54). By calculating the proportion to be given to each letter in a dictionary of 268 pages, I found that the two words indicated by these numbers should begin with th. There was an interval of five words between them. The compilers of small dictionaries proceed with so little method, that this interval did not guide me to the positive identification of these two words, but assuming that they were of common occurrence, I thought I [illegible] determine that they must form one of [illegible] pairs—that, the; the, their; their, them; them, then; these, they.

I had now done all that I could for the present, and went to bed with fair hopes of being able to find the dictionary used as a key, for I reflected that two copies must have been required—one to compose, the other to decipher, the cryptogram. I could probably, then, be a dictionary in ordinary use, so ordinary that two copies of it could be purchased at the same time, probably at the same shop.

In the morning, therefore, I took a cab to Paternoster Row, where as the reader probably knows, there are wholesale book-sellers at whose warehouses small shopkeepers can supply themselves without the trouble of sending to different publishers in quest of works. At one of these warehouses I was known, and was allowed to make an inspection of all the pocket-dictionaries in stock. I selected about a half a score, that seemed more or less likely to meet my requirements, and then hurried home, having foolishly left my cipher behind me. On reaching home, I carefully tried my dictionaries one by one, in every way suggested by what I had already learned of the nature of the cipher. I at last found one, which, by taking the first number of the page, and the second for the word, not counting lines, but only words in their alphabetical order, gave sense. The title-page informed me that it was Webster's Dictionary, the "one hundredth thousand," and was published at 158 Fleet Street. With very little trouble, I made out the following:—

FRED. I hear that search is being made in all direction s canal drag d H was arrest on suspicion but servant saw another man in the cab at the time a policeman also saw him afterwards in it cab man not found stay where you are I will advertise twentieth Nov.

I need only say in explanation, that where a word, like "are" was not in the dictionary, it was spelt by indicating the letter of the alphabet at the head of each division in the dictionary; a plan also adopted in the word "dragged," the termination being indicated by the separate "d." It was thus possible to spell any proper name or word which might not occur in the dictionary.

The contents of the cipher were so different from what Waitzen had led me to expect, that it was evident there was some mistake. Yet what could it be? He could not have given me a wrong slip, for he had called my attention to the word at the head. I had fairly earned the promised reward, but there was so clearly a mistake somewhere, that I was anxious to ferret out the mystery. Waitzen had given me the date of the paper, and I therefore sent for a copy, which was got after some delay. Singularly enough, there was in it, just below the advertisement I had deciphered, another one, also in cipher. The second cryptogram was of the simplest description; one letter was substituted for another. In ten minutes, I had a translation of it lying before me. Here it is:—

FEDE. I don't think that I am watched; not sure. Police went down to Liverpool after you. Get as soon as you can to A, where I will join you. I got the bag all right. Steamer sails on the seventeenth.

This looked much more like Chr. Waitzen's affair. I had just deciphered it when I heard his knock at the door. I showed him my reading of the first advertisement; he looked at it in blank dismay, but when I assured him that there could be no mistake, and producing the key, showed him, greatly to his wonderment, how to use it, he took from his pocket-book a check which he filled up, and handed to me. "One moment!" I said, handing him the second: "is that what you want?" I saw by his face that it was, and he assured me that the information given, slight as it was, was quite enough for him. I explained to him how I had hit upon it. But the words at the top! Well, after all, they were not very dissimilar, in the letters that composed them, at all events; and if they had got changed by some mistake, perhaps the confusion was not altogether without precedent. Chr. Waitzen enlarged the figures on the check, and was preparing to give immediate chase, when I stopped him. "Do you know anything about the other affair?" I asked.

"Yes," he said, "and a curious affair it is; would you like to hear it?"

I nodded assent, and offered him a chair.

"Two friends, A. and the H. of the advertisement, went one day about a month ago, to dine at a foreign restaurant at the West End, and having dined, returned home together in a cab, both living in the same neighborhood,—St. John's Wood. H. lived nearer to town than A., and to his house accordingly the cabman drove first. It was a wet night and the cabman got down to knock at the door, telling the friends as he did so that it was raining. It was perhaps lucky for H. that things so fell out, for the servant who came to the door, and who knew A., saw him in the cab. H., after bidding A. good night, went into the house, and as he did so, saw the cab drive off with A. in it. A policeman whom the cab passed a little further on also saw a man within it. That was the last seen of A., alive or dead from that time to this."

"A curious story," I said, "what can it mean?"

"Don't know," replied Waitzen; "but A., who was very close on the subject, had passed years of his life abroad in Italy, roving about no one knew where or how. His disappearance may in some way be connected with his old continental life, and H. remembers a trifling circumstance that seems to make this probable. He observed that when at the restaurant, a foreign one, as I have said, A. suddenly started, as if he had received a shock; in answer to H.'s inquiries, he refused to explain himself, but altered his position, so as to face round. There was a change in his manner noticeable through the whole evening; and when he bade H. good night, there was an earnestness in his tone that seemed to betoken apprehension of a coming evil. H had wished to see him home, but this he refused. I can only guess at the rest. Some act of vengeance probably the long dread of which had always kept A. silent on his foreign life."

"But the police?" I said.

"And Foschina, — and the Waterloo Bridge business?" replied Waitzen, shrugging his shoulders.

"The Waterloo Bridge affair?" I asked.

"Yes, there was an Italian brain at the bottom of that, as surely as Italians were concerned in the case of Foschina, whose habits, residence and person were all known to the police, but who got off in spite of them. It was well done that Bridge business," he continued half closing his eyes, and with the tone of a critic who dilates on a masterpiece,—"Italian beyond a doubt. A few months later, and the shells of the Orsini burst in front of the Opera House. Such plans didn't bear interruption. The police are powerless before associations, where the tie is strong. Good day," he added, after a pause. "If I don't call on you, as I hope you will permit me to do at times, I think you will hear of my man in the police reports in a few days."

I did; Waitzen's "man" was arrested a few days later, at Southampton, on board a boat which was on the point of leaving for the West Indies, whence he would no doubt have made his way to America.

I never heard anything more of A. or of his mysterious disappearance, on the story of which I had so strangely stumbled. And here ends my history of A Private Enquiry.

TRICHINA AGAIN.—The committee of the Chicago Academy of Sciences report that trichinæ have been found in swine slaughtered in that city, and that, out of 1,394 examined, 28, or about 1 in 50, were infected. They also report that persons eating this meat render themselves liable to contract trichinasis, and that in their opinion cases of such a disease have occurred in America, although very seldom. And in concluding they unanimously declare that swine may be kept from contracting the disease if not allowed animal food; and that pork may be used without the lightest apprehension if the following conditions are complied with: That every portion of the meat cooked experience a temperature of at least 160 degrees Fahrenheit; or that it be properly salted and smoked for ten days; or that it be thoroughly desiccated. Pickling, it appears, produces but a slight effect.

CURRENT ITEMS.

Domestic Paragraphs.

—Strawberries were being sold in Philadelphia, last Friday, at three cents a piece.

—A census of Indianapolis, Ind., is just being completed. The population is about 40,000.

—The meanest reason for getting married that we ever heard was from a man who said he wanted some one to part his back hair for him.

—The former "Indian wife" of Jeff. Davis is living at Kenosha in Wisconsin. She is said to have lived with him when he was stationed at Winnebago.

—The editor of an Eastern paper says:—"We have adopted the eight hour system in this office. We commence work at eight in the morning, and end work at eight in the evening."

—The Brinsley brothers, who have been astonishing the San Francisco people by performing all the usual acrobatic feats on a horizontal bar attached to a balloon, 1,000 feet in mid-air, are coming east.

—The Boston Journal reports the case of a man who left off chewing tobacco, and in a few weeks gained twelve pounds of flesh, and had an enormous appetite. The Providence Press has a similar case in its office.

—Speaking of "moving," a family living in Springfield, Mass., has "moved" fifteen times in the last seven years, and is getting ready to do it again. "There's no place like home," but "home" is sometimes rather miscellaneous as to locality.

—As a large maple tree was being sawed into stove wood at Lyndon, Vt., the other day, a stone, measuring nearly four by six inches, was found imbedded within it. The stone was about 16 feet from the roots of the tree, and 120 annual layers of wood had grown over it.

—John Blair, a resident of Jackson county, Wis., will be 108 years old on the 15th of May next. He was a soldier of the revolutionary war, as also of the war o. 1812. He never received a pension, can walk 10 miles per day, keeps his eyesight, and loves to converse with strangers.

—A boy brought an egg to school lately in Linn county, Iowa. The teacher broke it over the child's head, and told him to go home and have his mother wash his hair. Boy did so. Mother came with a club, hit the teacher with it over the head, and then closed one eye with her fist.

—The Cincinnati Gazette says that pure "Essence of Coffee," is now made in that city out of the "cheapest, dirtiest and nastiest molasses," which is boiled until it ropes, cooled in pans, and when hard broken up and pulverized. Ground rye is then mixed with it, after which it is boxed up, each box being sold at eighty cents, and labeled "Pure Essence of Coffee."

—A man in Bay City, Michigan, lost his wife by death, and in twelve hours had married his servant girl, who was one of the principal mourners at the funeral. Another man in Davenport, forgot all about his appointed wedding, and on being sent for by the friends who had gathered for the ceremony, was found in bed at his boarding house. He complained of having his sleep disturbed, but got up and proceeded to the appointed place, where he was speedily married.

Foreign Gossip.

—Flour is $45 per barrel in Mexico.

—In Paris there are twenty-seven thousand seven hundred and eleven public billiard tables.

—The British army in England is 40,000 strong, in every regiment of which arrests for Fenianism have been made.

—Louis Bonhier died recently at Nieuella Dolent, La Vendee, France, at the age of one hundred and six years. He served in the armies of the first Republic for many years, was subsequently married and became the father of seventeen children, and to the last retained all his faculties, being remarkable for the correctness of his memory.

—One of the British officers examined on charge of cruelty toward the blacks of Jamaica when putting down the insurrection, tried to be grimly humorous when he alleged that he flogged twenty negroes a day out of pure kindness, which they appreciated so highly that they came to him regularly with shirts off, saying, "Here, massa, me ready for flog."

—A funny illustration of the difficulty of understanding nicknames in foreign languages is found in Victor Hugo's new novel. He translates Henry Clay's popular title of "the Millboy of the Slashes" to mean the mill-boy of the scar, supposing Mr. Clay to have received in the early part of his life a slash from some sharp weapon, which left a scar upon his features.

—A man in a mask recently left at the door of a Paris theatre a four-act vaudeville, accompanied by a letter in the following words:

"Sir, if you open my piece you will read it; if you read it you will put it in rehearsal; if you put it in rehearsal you will play it; if you play it you will have a great success; if you don't play it I will murder you. Aliquis."

—A Waterloo soldier who was supposed to have fallen in that battle, and whose name has for fifty years been inscribed on the monument of heroes at Wiesbaden, has returned to Europe from America, whither he emigrated while the battle was raging, and has had his name erased from the monument. His name is William Wust, and he was in the Nassau force attached to the English army.

—Hattersley's type-setting machine has been in operation for the last six months in the office of a newspaper in Hull, England. It is said that by the use of this machine a clever compositor can set up and justify at the rate of between three and four thousand types per hour, and that a much larger number per hour can be set up by those better accustomed to the manipulation of the machine. It should be understood that the English method of measuring type is by the "n" instead of the "m;" the "n" being considered the average size of the letters of the letters of the alphabet. This English machine, therefore, sets about one half the amount per hour which is accomplished by the Alden machine, an American invention.

Personal and Literary.

P. T. BARNUM has been elected to the Connecticut Legislature.

THE artist-author, J. Ross Browne, is sick in Arizona.

CHESTER HARDING, a Boston portrait painter of some note, died last Sunday evening. He left an unfinished portrait of Gen. Sherman on his easel.

MR. THEODORE TILTON avers in The Independent that three hundred babies in Indiana have been named after Hon. Schuyler Colfax by their admiring parents.

IT is a singular fact that Mr. Foot's predecessor in the Senate, Samuel S. Phelps, died upon the same day of the month with him, and just eleven years before him.

MR. CULVER, whose recent failure created such an excitement in the Pennsylvania oil regions, has been summoned home to the death-bed of his wife. Misfortunes do not come singly.

JOSEPHINE was passionately fond of musk, though Napoleon strongly objected, and her dressing room at Malmaison is still redolent with its odor, spite of years, scrubbing, paint and aquafortis.

JAMES GORDON BENNETT, when a young man wandered about Boston seeking employment for two days, penniless and without food, and was relieved only by finding a shilling on the Common.

GENS. GRANT and Butler are again on good terms with each other, and it is presumed that the latter will now withhold from publication the vindication which he had prepared for the press.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES HASKELL, of West Gloucester, Mass., celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding a few days ago. Mr. Haskell lives in the house where he was born, 83 years ago.

WALTER H. STEWART, of Brownfield, Maine, has neither hands nor feet, but he can feed himself without assistance, thread a needle, sew on buttons, go up and down stairs, and write a good, legible hand.

IT is said that the wife of Thomas Carlyle, becoming tired of her husband's absorption in his history, told an inquiring friend the other day, that she wished the great Frederick had died when he was a baby.

THE aged Indian Ska dyoh-gwa-deh, or, as he was more familiarly known, Philip Kenjockety, died April 1, at Newton, N. Y., on the Cattaraugus Reservation. His age was unknown, but generally believed to be from 120 to 130 years.

COMMODORE VANDERBILT is seventy, but active as ever. He has built and paid for one hundred steamers, and is now the largest owner of railroad stock in the United States. He controls both the Harlem and Hudson River Roads, while his interest in the New York Central is not less than half a million.

WILLIAM CRAFT, famous as a fugitive slave in Theodore Parker's days, is laboring successfully in Africa, both commercially and philanthropically. He has established lawful commerce and a large school at Whydah; and the King of Dahomey testifies his appreciation of him by sending him a present of six slaves!

AT Liverpool, recently, Mr. Charles Mathews, the actor, said to a friend: "By the way, it is exactly sixty-two years since I made my first appearance in Liverpool." "Dear me! in what character was that?" asked the friend. "In the character of a baby," was the reply, "I was born in the next street just sixty-two years ago."

AN exchange recently announced that Dr. Winship of Boston was 160 years old, weighed a pound and a quarter, and could lift 82 tons. Next week the editor gave the correct version as follows:

Dr. Winship, of Boston, now weighs one hundred and sixty pounds, is thirty two years of age, and can lift a ton and a quarter.

IN one of Brigham's sermons, he said: "The man that sells liquor, and thinks to escape damnation, fools himself." He has, however, changed his sentiments on the subject, and has determined to save the whole class of liquor-venders from their hard fate by taking the damnation upon himself alone. He has forbidden all to sell, and has opened a bar himself, the only one in Salt Lake City. He claims and exercises the sole right to sell liquor by wholesale and retail.

An Accommodating Judge.

The following story—only the concluding portion of which we give—is told of Judge J——, of Jackson, Texas, and John Rolfe, a backwoodsman. Rolfe, a tall hunter, dressed in deerskin and armed with a revolver, rifle and bowie-knife, visits Jackson, calls on the Judge at his residence (with the narrator) and thus relieves his mind:

"You see, Judge, early day before yesterday morning, I started for this place, and, as I wouldn't chisel, I went without eating the whole day. I slept in the woods, and yesterday morning I got up as hungry as a panther; as I walked along, thinks I, what am I to do? I never see game so scarce; there wasn't so much as a squirrel to be found. I'm above cheating any man out of his dinner, but I felt that a dinner I must have. Just then a fellow came riding along the road. I talked to him, and tried to borrow, swearing to pay at any place he might name, in a week; but the critter told me he paid his way out of his own pocket, and he had too little to divide.

"'How much have you got?' says I.

"'Two, fifty,' says he.

"Now, thinks I, that is too little to divide. So, when he was looking the other way, I shoots him through the head, and gin him as decent burial as I could under an old log, and took the two dollars and a half. But it won't do; my conscience misgives me. I'm sorry for it, and wish the fellow had his money back, if he could be alive. Between you and me, as it is late for that, I think I ought to be hung."

The Judge called his little black boy, ordered pipes and tobacco, and we smoked in silence.

"Then you really think you ought to be hung?" he said with compassion, as he whiffed a cloud of smoke towards the ceiling.

"I do, in fact," answered Rolfe, emitting a similar volume of vapor.

The Judge smoked, and considered again.

"Well, we'll try to hang you," he said.

There was an expression of gratitude in Rolfe's eye, as he replied:

"Thank you. That will ease my conscience."

The Judge knocked the ashes from his pipe, and spoke:

"Well, come here in half an hour. I'll have to get a jury."

Rolfe and myself, having laid our pipes on the table, were about leaving, when the Judge asked us to take a drink, which having done, we bade him a good morning.

At the expiration of half an hour, we returned, when we found some twelve men drinking and smoking with the magistrate, awaiting us. We were politely requested to sit down.

"Now," said the Judge, addressing himself to Rolfe, "tell these gentlemen what you have already told me."

Whereupon Rolfe repeated the statement he had before made.

"Now, gentlemen," continued the first speaker, "I wish to say, if this gentleman—Mr. Rolfe, your name is, eh? Well, there is some fine old brandy; make yourself perfectly at home—whether, gentlemen, you find John Rolfe guilty or not guilty of murder. In addition to what he said I will observe for your information, that I have sent out and found the body just where he stated it to be."

The jury smoked, rose up, took a little brandy and water, and then sat down again and smoked in silence for some time. At last one of them, who appeared to be the foreman, said:

"The case is tolerably clear, and we rather think he's guilty."

"There's more tobacco on the table," said the Judge to Rolfe, "the best you can find anywhere. You have heard what these gentlemen have said. Well," he continued, "I don't like to tell you in my own house; but——"

"Let that be no hindrance," said Rolfe, filling and lighting his pipe.

"Well, then," said the Judge, "come here at ten o'clock to-morrow morning, and I'll have you hung."

Rolfe looked disconcerted, and appeared mortified at the idea of asking a favor.

"You—you have been so kind to me," he said, hesitatingly, "that I hardly like to ask you for anything more."

"Not at all," replied the Judge. "Out with it; you are welcome to it before you ask."

"Well," said Rolfe, "I wish—to-morrow is my ague day, and the shakes come on at ten—would you be so kind as to hang me at nine?"

"With the greatest pleasure," answered the good-hearted Judge, shaking Rolfe by the hand. "Nine it shall be."

Accordingly, John Rolfe went to the inn, paid his bill, and the next morning was hung as the clock struck nine.

Agricultural and Scientific.

A newly invented harpoon contains a pound of powder, with a ten second fuse, and is instant death to a whale.

Two London telegraphers claim to have contrived a printing telegraph, by which, with one wire, 300 words a minute can be printed.

AN Australian paper describes the fossil remains of a bird found in that country, which, when alive and in full feather, must have stood twenty-five feet high.

THE great bridge across the Ohio river is said to be nearly completed. It is two thousand feet long, and one of the spans, measuring over one thousand feet, is said to be the largest in the world.

ASTRONOMERS have discovered that the moon is drawing gradually nearer to the earth, by about an inch every year. They have also discovered that the day is about one-hundredth of a second longer now than it was two thousand years ago.

How long a horse can live without food is decided by experiments recently made in France. It was ascertained, by cruel means, that a horse will live for twenty-five days without solid food, merely drinking water. He may live seventeen days without eating food or drinking. He can live five days when consuming solid food without drinking. After taking solid aliment for the space of ten days, but with an insufficient quantity of drink, the stomach is worn out. The above facts show the importance of water in the sustenance of the horse. A horse which had been deprived of water for three days, drank eleven gallons in the space of three minutes.

PLOWING WITHOUT DEAD FURROWS.—Dead furrows are a nuisance, especially in a meadow, where a mower will not work well, not yet a horserake. To plow a field without leaving dead furrows, commence in the centre of the field, so when it is finished the whole field will form one land. For a square field find a point equally distant on three sides, and plough along till you come to a corresponding point, then return. Occasionally the sides should be measured, to see that the distance from the outer edge is being kept equal. In this way a field of almost any shape, let it be three cornered, diamond shaped, or even five-sided, can be ploughed in one land, leaving not a furrow, but making a nice, smooth, evenly ploughed surface, and leaves no badly ploughed headlands nor trodden ploughed ground.—American Agriculturist.

CURING HAY.—LIME.—It has been affirmed by eminent agriculturists that hay could be safely deposited in the mow in a semi-green state, and come out green, fragrant and exceedingly palatable to stock, by sifting upon each load from four to six quarts of air-slacked lime. The philosophy of it lies in the chemical fact that lime is a powerful absorbent. Rev. E. Willis, of this city, tested this process last season. It will be remembered that the weather was most unpropitious for making hay. Finding that it would be impossible to save his hay by out door ex

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan.

One of the best filled Establishments.

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied

S ck of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NE BUILDING,

So Chicago St, Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may found,

Vari styles and Prices

OF SOFAS,

TETE A TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY,
WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH, COTTAGE,
COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP,
WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Show Cases, Stands, Book Cases, Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short notic by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pic. ures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VanTine,
G. Smith,

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old, Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

TECUMSEH, - - MICH A

you will always find him ready to anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions

largest and best assortment of

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS,
FRUITS,
SALT
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,
&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had eleven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the busines I you dont believe it, ask your neighbors where they get their Groceries and where they buy them the

CHEAPEST.

and judge for yourselves.

AJAMES

Subscribe for the HERALD.

L. DREW'S
NEW HARDWARE!!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz:

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass. Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a

Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron, and Zinc,

Also the Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New

Yisnow opening a new stock of

roceries, Paints, Oils &c

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago

---

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the

Nicest, Best and Strongest,

WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS,

and in fact everything in his line from a baby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition. So call and leave your orders.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM,

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Prices

---

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co. are now prepared to present to the public, every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART,

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and ellegance to the figure.

India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite

in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices.

and a general assortment of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government,

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.

n790lysmp

A. J. HOAG,

Sccessor to WM. REITERMAN & Co.

WHOLESALE DEALER IN

Ambrotype and Photograph Stock,

235 Summit St. - - Toledo, O.

Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the HERALD.

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL

IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor, show room the same 3 doors east of A. Hood & Co's clothing store.

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS,

is the place to get good grinding done. I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING.

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Wheat

Mill Feed of allkinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Bills of hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shall endeavor to do as good work, and even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

HALL'S

Vegetable Sicilian

HAIR RENEWER,

As the name indicates, not only RENEWS the growth of the hair when thin and falling off, but positively renews the color to its original shade when it is turning grey or white, whether caused by disease, grief or old age.

It will certainly do what is claimed for it, a fact to which hundreds, nay thousands, who have used it, are ready and willing to testify Where one bottle is fairly used, in any community, its reputation "spreads like wild fire," and is the best advertisement and recommendation we desire. In the Eastern States, where the "RENEWER" originated, the young ladies use it as a hair dressing; it is found on the toilet tables of young men, (also at their barbers), while older men and women who desire a Renewer and Restorative for their grey locks and bald heads will not be without this article, which gives in every instance, entire setisfaction.

CAUTION.

Don't let any druggist or dealer urge upon you a different article, as there is no preparation in the world like this, Beware of any article purporting to be the same.

Try HALL'S HAIR RENEWER according to Directions, and you will use no other.

If not sold at druggists in your town, a trial bottle will be sent you by express, upon receipt of one dollar by mail, thus giving you an opportunity at once of testing its excellent qualities.

Orders for trial bottles must be addressed to

C. A. COOK, Chicago.

Gen'l Agent for Northwestern States.

R. P. HALL & CO., Proprietors, Nashua, N. H.

Sold at WHOLESALE in Chicago by FULLER, FINCH & FULLER, HUNNIMS & VAN SCHAACK, LORD & SMITH, SMITH & DWYER, J. H. REED & CO. CHAS. G. SMITH, DUETZSCH, BLOCKI & CO., H. SCOVIL W. D. HARRIS & CO., POST & BADEAU, and by druggists and dealers generally

---

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.

Publiseed for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supploing at the same time the means of Self-Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a post-paid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, mhy be had of the author

NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Brooklyn,

n790lysmp Kings Co, N. Y.

Great Sale

Of Watches, Jewelry, Engravings &c.

All sold for ONE DOLLAR EACH,

Send a three cent stamp for a circular.—Addreis WOOLEVER & BALDWIN, Agents for Manufacturers, Arkport, N. Y,

P. S.—All Newspapers inserting the above card, and this notice to the amount of $3, and sending a marked copy to the above address, shall receive in payment one of Johnson's Mammoth Gold Pens in ebony holder, by return mail. (post paid.) Price $4 00.

Real Estate for Sale.

Our old friend John Davenport wishes to dispose of the following property:

60 acres of fine timbered land lying near Franklin Centre.

120 acres of timbered land on Evans Lake.

Saw mill and 20 acres of land near Franklin Centre.

Brick House and 4 acres of land known as the Stitts property in the village of Tecumseh, now occupied by A Hood

House and lot on Logan St. known as the Mrs Bissell property

Also—House and lot of J. E. Merritt Maiden Lane, in the village of Tecumseh.

Terms easy or to suit purchasers. For particulars call on or address the subscriber at Tecumseh, Mich.

JOHN DAVENPORT.

Dated Jan. 18th, 1866.

Boots are Down!

Shoes are Down!!

BOOTS & SHOES

ARE DOWN!!!

AT HOAG'S

MAMMOTH

SHOE STORE,

AT HOAG'S MAMMOTH,
AT HOAG'S MAMMOTH,

Don't pay War prices to men that tell you that Boots & Shoes are no cheaper.

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!!

Boots & Shoes are Cheaper!!!

AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE

AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE

AT HOAG'S CHEAP CASH STORE.

Having made extensive purchases at greatly reduced rates he has marked down his entire stock to correspond.

Call and examine—compare prices, and save money by buying at Hoag's.

Repairing done promptly—prices reduced.

E. H. HOAG.

Tecumseh, March 27th, 1866.

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartnership in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE AND FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions,

Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected

stock of

Crockery and Glass-Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

C. H. ADAM & CO.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct 2tf TECUMSEH, MICH.

---

18 Pronunciemento. 65.

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see

How well we can do For them.

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd est Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholasale or Retail.
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
Fine Midlings, B. WFour,
Ship Stuffs, B. W. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE.

They will always also usally find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE,

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL,

Corn In the Ear and Shelled.

A goo assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantable Lumber.

Wm. HAYDEN

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian on Monday the 12th day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six

Present, Robert R. Beecher, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Stephen E. Cole deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Osmond Tower prayingthat the administrator of said estate may be required and directed by said court to deed to him certain lands of said deceased for reasons in said petition stated.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday, the 14th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for six successive weeks previous to said day of hearing

ROBERT R. BEECHER,
Judge of Probate.

(A true Copy.) 750w4

Dissolution.

The co-partnership heretofore existing under the name of Curtis & McCowen is this day dissolved by mutual consent. All persons indebted to said firm are requested to settle without delay

GEORGE CURTIS,
WM. McCOWEN,

Tecumseh, March 5th 1866.

The undersigned have this date formed a co-partnership under the firm and name of Curtis & Parsons, for the purpose of continuing the Hardware Business, at the place lately occupied by Curtis & McCowan.

GEORGE CURTIS,
WM. A. PARSONS,

Tecumseh, March 5th, 1866. n798w4

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

GREAT CENTRAL.

United States Mail Route.

THREE EXPRESS TRAINS leave Windsor (opposite Detroit) daily for the East, on the arrival of Trains of Michigan Central Detroit and Milwaukee, and Michigan Southern Railways from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati and all points West North-West and South West.

This is the only route via Niagara Falls and suspension Bridge, and is the direct route to Buffalo, New York, Boston, London, Paris, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Prescott, Ogdensburgh, Montreal, Quebec and Portland.

Passenger Cars are furnished with Patent ventilators.

Luxurious Sleeping Cars attached to all night trains, and Smoking Cars to all day trains.

United States Currency taken at par for through fares, sleeping Car berths and meals at Refreshment Saloons

CHARLES McCABE,
Western Passenger Agent, Detroit

THOS SWINYARD, General Manager, Hamilton, C. W

JAS CHARLTON, General Agent, Hamilton, C W

An Old Song, set to a New Tune.

1866.

"As spring approaches
A ts and Ros hes
From their holes come out,
And Mice and Rats,
In spite of Cats
Gaily skip about."

"18 years established in N. Y. City,
"Only infallible remedies known."
"Free from Poisons,"
"Not dangerous to Human Family,"
"Rats come out of their holes to die"

"Costar's Rat, Roach, &c. Exeter's, Is a paste—used for Rats, Mice, Roaches, Black and Red Ants &c &c

"Costar's" Bed Bug Exterminator, Is a liquid or wash—used to destroy, and also as a preventive for Bed-Bugs, &c.

"Costar's Electric Powder for insects is for Moths, Musquitoes, Fleas, Bed-bugs, insects on Plants, Fowls, Animals, &c,

Beware of all worthless imitations.

See that "COSTAR'S" name is on each Box, Bottle and Flask, before you buy,

Address, HENRY R COSTAR,
482 Broadway, N. Y.

Sold in Tecumseh, Mich, by Gould & Waldo, P. N Curtis, and M. Wright, and all Druggist and Retailes.

1866.

INCREASE OF RATS.—The "Farmer's Gazette (English) asserts and proves by figures that one pair of RATS will have a progeny and descendants no less than 651 050 in three years. Now, unless this immense family can be kept down, they would consume more food than would sustain 65,000 human beings.

See "COSTAR'S" advertisement above

1866.

RATS versus BIRDS:—Whoever engages in shooting small birds is a cruel man; whoever aids in exterminating rats is a benefactor. We should like some one to give us the benefit of their experience in driving out these pests. We need something besides dogs, cats, and traps for this business.—[Scientific American, N. Y.

See COSTAR'S advertisement above.

1866.

"COSTARS" RAT EXTERMINATOR is simple, safe, and sure—the most perfect RATification meeting we have ever attended.—Every Rat that can get it, properly prepared, will eat it; and every one that eats it will die, generally at some place as distant as possible from where it was taken.—[Lake Shore, Mich, Mirror,

See "COSTAR'S" advertisement above,

1866.

HOUSEKEEPERS troubled with vermin need be so no longer, if they use "COSTAR'S" Exterminator. We have used it to our satisfaction; and if a box cost $5, we would have it. We have tried poisons, but they effected nothing; but Costar's article knocks the breath out of Rats, Mice, Roaches, Ants and Bed-Bugs, quicker than we can write it. It is in great demand all over the country.—[Medina, Ohio, Gazette.

See "COSTAR'S" advertisement above,

1866.

A VOICE FROM THE FAR WEST.—Speaking of "COSTAR'S" Rat, Roach, Ant, &c, Exterminator—"more grain and provisions are distroyed annually in Grant County by the vermin than would pay for tons of this Rat and Insect Killer."—[Lancaster, Wis. Herald.

See "COSTAR'S" advertisement above,

1866

FARMERS and HOUSEKEEPERS—should recollect that hundreds of dollars' worth of Grain provisions, &c, are annually destroyed by Rats, Mice, Ants, and other insects and vermin—all of which can be prevented by a few dollars' worth of "COSTAR'S" Rat, Roach &c, Exterminator, bought and used freely.

See Costar's advertisement above.

Mutilated Postage currency wanted at G. T. Ketchams in exchange for goods. Rush in the Rags, no matter how badly they are torn, they will be taken at their full value as long as the denomination of the peice can be told

---

Have your job printing done at the Herald Office,

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Neary, and Bridget Neary, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March, A D. 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber 'M' of Mortgages, on folios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] two, on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village, (now city) of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriet A. Bradbury on the twenty first day of March, A. D. 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 17th day of February, A D 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, which said mortgage, was afterwards, to wit; on the eighth day of February, A. D. 1866 duly assigned by said Harriet A Bradbury to Addison J Comstock, which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money, and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents, [$573.12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty fifth day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage

ADDISON J COMSTOCK,
Assignee of said mortgage.

M N. HALEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb. 21, 1866.

Drs Jackson, Herbert & Co.

15 Greatest Medical Circular Ever Published! Fifteen on large letter paper for two 3 cent stamps. 15

Prof. EGBERT JACKSON, ROBERT HERBERT, M D DR EUGENE VELPEAU, JR.
THE NATIONAL DISPENSARY,
Established 1859.

Six years of unrivalled success in the cure of every form of private disease incident to either sex:

Science and fair dealing victorious over Empiricism and fraud

We infallibly cure Syphillis, Gleet, Gonorrhœa Impotency Nocturnal and Diurnal Emissions, Complaints peculiar to females, and every form of private disease of whatever name or nature. Spermatorrhœa or Self Abuse, that curse of Modern Manhood easily and speedily cured and every trace of its terrible effects eradicated from the system, without detention from business:—Young men bear this in mind, that we are in possession of the Secret Receipts and methods of practice of Culverwell, Lallemand, Hunter, Velpeau, Sen., Ricord and other great lights in modern medical science; for it is a fact of the very greatest importance, and we would ask any man of average common sense how can the thousand and one shallow pretenders hope to compete with us?

Ye unfortunates, ere trusting your health and money to heartless charlatans, at least write to Drs. Jackson, Herbert & Co., who will at once return you a kind, discreet and explicit answer. Ladies write for our circular.

Dr. Jackson's Female Monthly Pills, for a safe and effectual remedy for all irregularities and obstructions, from whatever cause. Price $1 per box, or four for $5.00.

The Mountain of light or medical protector and Marriage Guide, and an Explicit Key to Love and Beauty Containing 300 plates.—

This is THE book you want price 50 cents 3 for $1.

Send for our splendid Circular containing more in quantity and of far superior quality to any of the so called "pamphlets." Remember that we send a written reply to every letter, especially adapted to the particular case under consideration, because in the nature of things each case differs from every other

DR JACKSON'S ORIENTAL LINIMENT removes all coldness and disability, and rejuvenates organs which have lain dormant for many years.

DR. JACKSON'S FRENCH PATENT MALE SAFE,

It is perfectly safe and never fails to give satisfaction It is the only sure and safe preventative against contracting disease ever invented Price $1 each, per half dozen $4, and per dozen $7, sent by mail.

Inebriates or Moderate Drinkers who desire to reform, but have found it difficult to refrain, can wholly eradicate all desire for any kind of liquor, by using Dr Herbert's Anti Alcoholic Compound, an unfailing remedy for intemperance; write for particulars.

Medicine and instructions sent promptly to any pait of the country. Consulting Rooms of the Dispensary, No 167 Sycamore street Cincinnati, O P. O. Box, No, 430. Send for a circular.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF Lenawee, s.s.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Adrian, on Friday the 6th day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six.

Present, Robert R Beecher, Judge of Probate In the matter of the estate of John Osborn, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified of Stephen V R Ely, Administrator on the estate of said deceased, praying for the allowance of his final account with said estate and for distribution of moneys in his hands and for his discharge as administrator

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday the 7th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the Peitioner should not be granted:

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioneer give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ROBERT R. BEECHER, Judge of Probate

(A true copy) n790w4

G R PALMER, Attorney at Law, and Notary Public, Lake Ridge, M

Particular attention paid to collections in any part of Michigan. Is prepared to draw and execute Deeds, Mortgages, Wills, &c.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at

A. JAMES

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVI. NO. 50. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, MAY 3, 1866. WHOLE NO. 806.

G. T. KETCHAM'S
BOOK STORE,
Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.
(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)
DEALER IN
CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER,
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.
—o—
I will sell any of the above goods as
Cheap or Cheaper
than any other dealer in the country, and
WARRANT
all goods sold as good as recommended.
—o—
CASH FOR RAGS!
—o—
Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.
J. D. Robbins.
TECUMSEH. - - - - - - MICHIGAN.

Glorious News,
Not from Mexico, but from the establishment of
MERRITT, MEEKER & Co
The people are just finding out that they can save from five to ten per cent in buying their Goods at the
CHEAP CASH STORE.
They have received and are still receiving every week additions to their
STOCK OF GOODS,
And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of
DRY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.
Particular attention is called to their stock
Of Boots and Shoes
which they are selling at from 10 to 20 per cent lower than any other establishment this side of sunrise. All who are in doubt can be convinced by calling and examining for themselves.
You will find Wm VanCamp on hand and ready at all times to show you any goods you may please to see, and who esteems it a pleasure to wait upon customers, and he will sell for our motto is "quick sales and small profits." Remember the place one door west of Drews Hardware Store

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN.—County of Lenawee, ss.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian on Wednesday, the 24 day of may in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six.

Present, Robert R. Beecher, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Moses Burroughs deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of John P. Silvers praying that he may be appointed administrator on the estate of said deceased for reasons stated in said petition.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday, the eleventh day of June next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That the said Petitioner . . give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. ROBERT R. BEECHER,
(A true Copy). n806 Judge of Probate.
C. C. Coats, Register.

Tecumseh Union School!
O. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.
THE SPRING TERM of this institution will open April 9th, 1866, and continue twelve weeks.
Scholars will be received at any time and laced in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.
CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.

Express Freight,	6:35 A. M.
Mail and Express,	1:25 P. M.

GOING NORTH.

Mail and Express,	9:15 P. M.
Accommodation,	8:20 A. M.

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOV & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

GEORGE HEESEN.
Dealer in Ready Made Clothing, &c.
One door west of the Bank.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BROS.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

RICHARD C. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO.
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street. Tecumseh, Mich.

ALFRED JAMES.
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT.
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilet, &c.
Chicao St. Tecumseh, Mich.

P. N. CURTIS.
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER.
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

GOULD & WALDO,
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St. - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN R. WOOD.
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER.
Attorney's, Counsellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT.
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & McOWEN.
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWARD H. HOAG.
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

Henry Nyland,
Dealer in Boots & Shoes & Leather.
One door west of Bank, Tecumseh.

EMLAY & COURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harness and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich,

HORACE BREWER.
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT.
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS.
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

W. K. FOWERS & CO.,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL.
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE.
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St - - Tecumseh, Mich

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St. Opposite P. Office.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT.
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EXCHANGE HOTEL
Railroad St. - - - - Tecumseh, Mich.
D. T. FISH, Proprietor.

The Tecumseh Herald.
C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.

(One inch of column constitutes a square.)

	1 wk	3 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$2 00	$6 00	$7 50	$10 00
2 Squares	1 75	3 50	8 00	12 00	15 00
3 Squares	2 75	5 00	11 00	16 00	20 00
¼ Column	5 00	9 00	12 00	18 00	25 00
½ Column	7 50	12 00	18 00	25 00	35 00
1 Column	12 00	15 00	20 00	35 00	60 00

☞ No advertisement considered less than one square. Transient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted one year $5 00 per year.

☞ Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable.

☞ We will take wood, butter, lard, eggs, potatoes, and all kinds of farm produce, on subscription for the "HERALD." So bring it along.

To Our Friends.

You will confer a favor on us by soliciting the Judge of Probate to publish Probate Notices in the HERALD, and you will also find it convenience to yourselves to have the advertisements in the paper you receive.

☞ Any one wishing to purchase a first class turning lathe are requested to call at this office. We have one to sell at a great bargain.

Grand Trunk Railway.

The Cheapest, Quickest, and Safest route TO THE EAST.

Tickets to all the Eastern cities and intermediate places for sale at this office.

☞ Nervous Headache—Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Constipation of the Bowels, Costiveness and Diseases of the Liver, can be cured by the use of Dr. P. N. Curtis' Headache and Dyspepic Pills.—Price 50 cents a box. Every box warranted to give satisfaction or money refunded.

☞ Wall Paper at J. D. Robbin's—The largest assortment in town. Give him a call and don't fail to get Judd's Patent Window fixtures for your Curtains, they are the best.

Married.

In Clinton, on Wednesday April 29th, by the Rev. Mr. Donelly, Mr. JOHN F. WILSON, of Jackson and MISS JENNIE ADAMS of Tecumseh.

In the same place on Saturday April 28th, by the Rev. Mr. Peck, Mr. JACOB VANTINE and Mrs. FRANCIS ROBERTSON all of Tecumseh.

☞ For stove-pipe Hats go to Merritt, Meeker & Co

☞ There has been a great rush for Boots and Shoes at the Empire Store.—Mr McNighol goes East for a new supply this week.

☞ A few more of those splendid Tilting Silver Hooped Skirts at Moore's: Young Ladies!—"Go in"

☞ If you want good Photographs and Ambrotypes, go to Mrs. Bissell's Rooms, opposite the New Methodist church. She has now two extra fine Cameras, one for large pictures, the other for Card Photographs, and she will not be excelled in the business.

☞ The Daily Post of April 30th, contains a column and a quarter article on "Tecumseh." Those wishing to see what a traveler thinks of Tecumseh, should procure a copy. Ketcham has copies for sale.

☞ The Free Methodists are storming the strongholds of Mooreville with remarkable success. The meetings are conducted by the Rev. Mr. Riley, from Canada.

GRAND CONCERT.—Alf. Howard the Violinist, Vocalist and Guitarist, will give one of his grand concerts at Bidwell's Hall, this (Thursday) evening, May 3d. As a Violinist he stands without a Rival in the United States. As a Vocalist and Guitarist he ranks with the best talent in our land. From the character of music as seen in the programme, it is hoped all lovers of good music will give him a liberal patronage.

☞ The friends of the Rev. Mr. Howell of Macon, paid him a donation visit at the house of Ira Stewart Esq., a short time since, and $115 in cash was presented to him, with appropriate remarks by Dr. Loree of Ridgeway. The entertainment was a pleasant one, to which Mr. Stewart and his family materially contributed and became entitled to many thanks from the company present.

Correspondence of the Herald.

Coldwater, April 28th, 1866.

MR. EDITOR:—I stop my press, as the Editors have it, to tell your readers a few things about the burning of the Depot buildings in Detroit on Thursday night last. It seems that disasters come not singly—but like wolves, they hunt in pairs, for as if it was not enough that the Central Depot should be licked up by the Great Red Dragon, the Southern Depot must make up the dessert—costing more than the original feast.

It was 6 P. M. when I left the train at that very Depot. As I passed along, an aged lady under my charge, who has children here, in my society, remarked upon the "fine Depot," and said she believed she would save her trunk under the check, till next morning, in the Baggage room. I replied, madam, suppose your trunk should be burned up in the Depot, or broken open, it is doubtful whether your check would ensure you any pay for it—after the company could prove its delivery here in safety. In four hours after, her trunk went in, it went up in the common mass of the great conflagration. "I went to the Exchange in the morning to see if she had heard the news; but she was out, I suppose, looking for her trunk and, as a gentleman remarked, on my telling him this case, "the loss of a trunk, to a lady, is a life long grief."

I was just going to my room, on the third story of the Biddle House, when the light of the fire caught my eye. In the Hall window, I had a fine view of it, and it was already bursting out through some six openings in the roof—streaming up as so many Furnaces ablaze. The west end of the sheds, by the wharf, and the steam Ferry-boat "Windsor," were all ablaze. Quicker than a great flying Serpent, the fire leaped along East, through and out of, and beyond, the Depot; and gleamed through the long trains of Passenger, and Freight cars—the very cars, indeed that I had left just four hours previous. The sight became awfully grand. The buildings were mostly wood and the floors were saturated with grease and Benzine oil, all ready to ignite, like powder. Every once in a while, we could hear barrels of Kerosine explode, and see the flame shoot up, and spread as the infernal fluid and gasses made food for the great fiery tongues of the Fiend. The smoke rooled in awful majesty, and then the whole would become illuminated as a burning sunset, and sparks and cinders rose and sailed off in a grand pyrotechnic display, till they sank in the River. The streets were filled with people. The roofs of all the houses around, were crowded, and thousands of forms were seen across the River, on the Canada side, as the river was lighted up by the Buildings, and by the burning Boat, which went gliding "a pillar of fire by night" along shore among the crafts on the River, and carrying fear before it, like the Fire Rafts set off by the Rebels among our Navy at New Orleans, and on the Mississippi.

I am glad I could not see the horror on board that Boat, and in the water around it, where some 25 of the crew and others, perished by fire or flood; some say that there was loss of life among the passengers on the sleeping car that was about to go out, but I looked among the debris of the tram, the next morning and saw no charred bones. One mother rushed before the flame, in the Depot, to rescue three children from the train.

The firemen, and the five Steam Fire Engines were doing the best they could in keeping the flames from spreading towards the city and in this, they were favored in having the wind towards the River. As it was, the heat became intense at the Biddle House and I left my stanpoint there, and went down towards the scene of the disaster, as near as I could bear the heat. I said to my self, "In one hour is so great riches come to nought!" It was just one hour, and the agony was over; but not the agony of those who had lost property, nor the greater sorrow of those who had lost friends.

It shows the power of the Railroad Companies, that the cars went out as usual the next morning at 6 o'clock on the Michigan Southern and Milwaukee Roads, and the workmen were making the grounds clear the next day, for rebuilding. J. W. R.

☞ Fresh arrivals at Gould & Waldo's. Large assortment of Cod-fish, Mackerel and Whitefish—also, a fresh supply of Drugs and Groceries for Spring trade at low prices. Cash paid for Butter and Eggs. Call and examine stock and prices.

TECUMSEH,

We clip the following from a correspondence of the Adrian Times who has been on a visit to our place:

In our ambulations we happened to meet with the Rev. Mr. Burnham, of the M. E. Church, who kindly volunteered to show us through his church, and who acquinted us with its history. This edifice was constructed not long since at an expence of $13,000, of which amount every cent has been paid—the last $2,400 having been raised within the last few months, through the efforts of the present pastor. The location is a very desirable one, corner of Chicago and Pearl streets, in full view from the cars as they glide through the village. We will not attempt a description of the church, but will be content in saying that it is by far the most elegant structure of its kind in Southern Michigan, excepting the M. E. and Plymouth churches of Adrian. On the ceiling and on the wall in the rear of the pulpit, in the audience room, there are presented some elegant stucco and beautiful fresco designs. In this room 500 people can be comfortably seated.—In the pastor's well furnished study, in basement of the building, we were favored with the inspection of one of the largest and most valuable private cabinets in the State. In this cabinet nearly every part of the world is represented. Hundreds of specimens of agate, copper, coal and silver from the regions of Lake Superior, shells of exceeding beauty and variety from different seas, remains of queer little animals of the reptile species from many different countries, wonderful pieces of mechanism, a piece of the famous Charter Oak, a piece of the rebel-clad Merrimac, relics from the battle-fields of the late war, and other curiosities almost innumerable are presented to the view and touch of the delighted beholder. In truth, we confess our inability to give a full description of this select cabinet of curiosities, but advise the curious, of whom Adrian has a few to pay Mr. Burnham a visit.—We promise them ample remuneration for their trouble and expense. This rare cabinet, which has been collected at a considerable expense of money, time and labor, has been promised by its owner to the college at Albion, and will some time be removed thither. Continuing our walk on Chicago street, we observed workmen breaking ground for the erection of a new brick hotel, of which this city stands sadly in need. In conversation with a citizen, we were informed that great improvements were in contemplation, and that they were determined that Tecumseh should not be outstripped in growth and activity by any of its sister villages.

Suicide.

Macon, April 28th, 1866.

Charles E. Merritt committed suicide, this morning, by hanging himself with a rope in his own barn. Mr. M. was a man about 40 years old. He leaves a wife and two children.

For the past year he has shown some symptoms of mental derangement; no cause can be assigned for this disorganization of his mental faculties, except one or two unimportant though unsuccessful business transactions. When found, the body was yet warm though life was extinct; he had been dead perhaps twenty minutes. His inquest was held and the verdict of the jury was in accordance with the above facts.

Deceased had been a respected citizen of Macon for many years.

PETIT JURORS FOR THE TERM OF THE CIRCUIT COURT, COMMENCING MAY 22.—The following are the names drawn to serve as petit jurors at the next term of the Circuit Court at Adrian, May 22d 1866:

C. R. Lyon, Franklin; Gallup, Medina; Stephen Aldrich, Jestus Andrews, Frank Bateman, city; A. C. Osborn, A Harris, W. Binns, George Drake, Woodstock; George Runion, J. S. Kies, Tecumseh; R. C. Carter, Ogden; John B Garlinghouse, Lenni Kelley, Raisin; Charles Lewis, Gilbert Waring, Ridgeway; J. L. Remington, Macon; Amos Beach, Ezree Bertram, Rome; S. S. Hutchins, Hudson; Isaiah Lowe, H. S. Rockell, L. Leonard, Fairfield; Robin Robinson, Palmyra.

☞ Messrs. VanTine & Smith are receiving a large and choice assortment of New Furniture, at their ware rooms, in this village. They buy in New York, keep pace with the change in market and consequently can sell as cheap as can be bought elsewhere in the State. The piles of wares leaving their rooms weekly, shows plainly that people will find out where they can do the best for their money.

HOSIERY.—It will pay you well to buy Winter Hosiery at Moore's and keep them until next Fall—he is selling at very low rates—do not fail to look at them. He has also a splendid line of Hosiery and Gloves for spring, some of the best White Cotton Hose ever offered to any community—also Men's socks in great variety.

A HARD TRUTH.—The New Castle Gazette, in an article upon advertising, lats a certain class of men who are to be found in all communities, and who aspire to the dignity of "merchants"—the claim being founded on the fact that they sit on a barrel outside their "stores" day after day till they and their business are played out, which generally is not long. The Gazette says that when a man gets a few dollars worth of goods, puts them in a room, and sits down by the side of them waiting for customers, he follows pretty closely the style of some within his acquaintance. He don't advertise—he don't send out circulars—he merely waits. Now, if a customer comes, he must pay a large price for what he gets, because the sales are few, and the tradesman must live out of his profits. The goods get old and stale, and customers always lose money by dealing with men who do the mud-road, slow coach business. Consult our advertising columns if you desire to know who the live merchants are at this day.

☞ Merrat, Meeker & Co's. is the place to buy the best of Cloths at very low figures.

DUSTY.—Saturday was most emphatically a dusty day. The wind blew a perfect gale from morning till night.—The dust surged in great clouds down Main street, filling the eyes of the unfortunate pedestrian and playing sad havoc with dry-goods generally. It crept into the open doors and windows, covering everything with sandy powder. It found its way into stores and offices, hotels and private dwellings, giving everything a dingy line, and was voted by everybody a nuisance.

☞ Moore's Carpetings are selling off.—he is below Detroit prices; if you want any call soon.

☞ The province of the "local" is so small a dominion as our own, is necessarily limited; yet we shall endeavor to keep an observant eye upon the things 'in and about town,' and give such matters an airing in our columns as we may deem of interest to our readers, and a benefit to the place. The improvements and prosperity of Tecumseh will be a theme rife with notable incidents during the coming season, and our numerous enterprising business houses will receive an occasional glimpse from "ye local."

☞ A correspondent writing to the Jackson Citizen from Coldwater, says of this town:

Tecumseh is one of the best of villages, now pressing hard on 3,000, and growing faster than ever before. Its people are rough, as well as count, and its standard of business, morality and intelligence is unequalled by any place of its size, that I know of at the west.

MICHIGAN TROOPS STILL IN SERVICE.—There are three infantry regiments of Michigan volunteers still in the United States military service—the 3d, 4th and 28th.

The 3d is stationed at San Antonio, Texas, and its aggregate strength 431, officers and men. The 4th, with headquarters at the same place, is 414 strong. The 28th regiment is at Newberne, North Carolina, and along the railroad from thence to Goldsboro and Raleigh. Its complete strength, officers and men, is 529.

☞ Christians of all denominations. Politicians of all creeds—Teachers and all their pupils—Old ladies and handsome girls—Men, boys, children—anybody or anything—consumers of Dry Goods—can buy them at satisfactory prices at Moore's.

☞ Quite a number of barns have recently been visited by thieves in the vicinity of Macon and a considerable quantity of wheat and oats taken. In one or two cases one hundred bushels of oats were taken at a time. No clue to the thieves as yet.

☞ P. W. Adams, Esq., of Tecumseh, has sold his library and practice to T. Smith, Esq., from Pennsylvania. Mr. Adams leaves many friends who regret his departure and business will be a great loss to the Literary Society.—Kendallville Standard.

FINE—FINE—FINE.—Have you seen those fine Cali Boots made by Wm. McNaught? If you are certainly we advise every one that want a superior article to call at the EMPIRE and get them. They will give you a fit.

☞ H. C. Conkling returns from N. Y. this week. Look out for cheap and good Groceries at reasonable prices. Keep your eye on the Herald.

☞ Try Dr. Curtis' Headache and Dyspeptic Pills; every box warranted.

☞ Buy your wall paper of Dr. Curtis.

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Mich., May 2, 1866.

Bowo, L. F. N.	Benson, McC. G.
Dury Mrs R.	Hays, J.
Hill, John	Hall D. D.
Jefferson, Wm,	Moore, B. J.
Masmering, Richard	Osgood, Jenkie
Phillips, P. A.	Slater, Miss Lure
Wilson, Mrs Frances	Wilson, Geo. B.

W. ANDERSON, P. M.

☞ Summer Stuffs—appropriate for youth and old age—good for all bipeds who can wear trowsers—can be found at Moore's.

DIED.

In this village, on Friday April 27th, of Consumption, OSCAR G. ADAMS, aged 38 years.

☞ All persons going east can save money by buying their tickets at this office over the favorite route, the Grand Trunk Railroad.

Notice.

My wife Viola Wheelan having left my bed and board against my consent and without just cause or provocation, all persons are hereby notified and forbidden to harbor, trust or give credit to her on my account, as I shall pay no bills or accounts of her contracting. ERWIN WHEELAN.
Dated Franklin mich. April 26th 1866.

☞ E. H. Hoag has gone east after new goods.

☞ Do not fail to call and examine those splendid Cassimeres at Merritt, Meeker & Co's.

☞ The greatest discovery of the age is the soap just come out, and known as the J. Monroe Taylor Gold medal Soap; it really saves time in washing, but does the work in a much superior manner to all other soaps before the people. The makers claim it is manufactured on an entirely different principle, and that it is a great labor saving article, besides going much further than any other soap. Our experience confirms all the inventor claims for it. Try it, and we think all will be convinced of the fact, and will ever have the Gold medal or none.

☞ Buy your Paints and Oils of Dr. Curtis.

☞ There is nothing more certain to prevent female irregularities than Dr. Velpeau's Female Pills. They will in all cases cause a return of monthly sickness, without which no unmarried lady can enjoy perfect health. Sold by all Druggists.

"Got the Blues."

How often do we hear this complaint made. The reason generally ascribed is that something has gone wrong, but if you will question the patient in regard to health, habits, &c., you will very often find that indigestion is the prime cause; the intimacy of the brain and stomach is very close, and nothing so sours the feeling and disposition as dyspepsia. It is a singular fact that most suicides are dyspeptics. If our nourishment is properly digested the brain is free and unoppressed, and will solve our troubles, pointing out sunshine ahead, inclining us to look on the bright side of life; thus is it our duty to guard against this monster—indigestion—and we know of nothing so potent to assist digestion as Coe's Dyspepsia Cure. It has cured some very bad cases of dyspepsia of even ten or fifteen years standing.

NATIONAL GIFT
CONCERT.
IN
Crosby's Opera House,
CHICAGO, MAY 31st, '66.
25,000 VALUABLE PRIZES AMOUNTING TO $100,000 00 will be presented to the TICKET HOLDERS,
INCLUDING 25,000 DOLLARS IN MONEY.
ONLY
100,000 Tickets
WILL BE SOLD, THUS GIVING A PRIZE
FOR EVERY FOUR TICKETS.
A TICKET COSTS BUT ONE DOLLAR,
AND IT MAY DRAW
Ten Thousand Dollars,
I have just published a book which contains a Complete Descriptive List of all the Prizes, and much other matter of general interest. In this I have answered every other question that can possibly be asked, in connection with the Concert. Two copies of this book will be sent, FREE OF CHARGE, to any one sending for one or more Tickets, at the rate of Five Cents to pre pay postage. Remember, every prize named in this book will be drawn at the appointed time, WHETHER THE TICKETS ARE SOLD OR NOT, THE PRIZES ARE READY, and will be distributed immediately after the drawing is completed, and correct lists of the winning numbers will be sent to agents and ticket holders. Parties whose numbers appear on the list, will forward their ticket at once, with directions as to shipping goods and money.
Inducements for Forming Clubs.
Upon the receipt of $4 50 I will send 5 tickets. Upon the receipt of $7 00 I will send 8 tickets. Upon the receipt of $10 50 I will send 12 tickets. Upon the receipt of $21 50 I will send 25 tickets. Upon the receipt of $42 00 I will send 50 tickets.
How to Send Money.—Money may be sent at my risk, by Draft, Express, Post Office Order, or Registered Letter.
My references are any citizen of Chicago.
MARTIN O'BRIEN,
133 Dearborn St. Chicago, Ill.
Agents are authorized to offer the above inducements.

LARGEST ASSORTMENT and CHEAPEST GOODS at TRIBOU & BIDWELL Bros.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

General Intelligence.

Wm. Hopps, who killed his wife in Lee County, Ill., four years ago, and who had once been sentenced to be hung, has just been acquitted on the ground of insanity.

Probst, the murderer of the Deering family, was convicted of murder in the first degree, on the 28th, in Philadelphia. He is anxious to take his own life. His supposed accomplice has just been arrested in Washington.

Several cases of cholera are reported at Memphis.

The Mississippi river and its tributaries are at a very high stage. The Wisconsin is higher than ever known before, and travel on the Milwaukee & Prairie du Chien was suspended on the 28th.

The papers are full of the proofs of the frightful explosive violence of nitro-glycerine. Among others, we hear of an Aspinwall coachman, who oiled the wheel-hubs of his carriage with the article, supposing it to be common lubricating oil, and that the vehicle had only been in motion a few moments before a grand explosion occurred, demolishing the coach and killing the coachman. It is homœopathic among explosives, and apparently the less you use, the greater the result.

At Cincinnati a Safe Deposit Company is to go into operation, after the style so successful in New York, with fire and burglar-proof premises. The Lafayette Bank building has been secured for the purpose, and the Company will exclusively devote themselves to the care of valuables.

A fire in Genessee, N. Y., on Thursday of last week destroyed five new blocks of the value of $50,000. Cause—holding a lamp close to the faucet of a kerosene barrel, while drawing oil.

The cholera at the New York quarantine is declining.

The great letting of mail contracts, about 8,000 routes, has been concluded.

More forged wheat receipts, to the amount of $5,000 or $6,000, have come to light in Chicago.

Ten thousand Chinamen are now employed on the Central Pacific railroad, and more daily arriving.

The capture of Chihuahua by the Liberals, after a severe battle, is confirmed by information at the State Department.

Senator Fessenden and two members of the House are sick with the small pox—a disease that is quite prevalent at Washington just now.

Jesse D. Bright claimed about $15,000 for damages done to his farm during the war. The Indiana Military Auditing Committee has allowed him $9,476.44.

William Kellogg, a murderer, and Joseph Barry, a burglar, broke jail at Newton, Ia., a few nights since. From tools left behind it is evident that they had help from outside.

The work on the Lake Tunnel at Chicago has been progressing steadily and surely. 5,986 feet has been reached from the shore end, and 876 feet from the crib toward the shore.

It is reported that the President will soon issue a proclamation setting apart the 17th prox. as a day of fasting and prayer, in view of the anticipated visit to this country of the cholera.

There was a cholera panic among the contrabands in Washington on the 26th, caused by two sudden deaths; but investigation shows that the cause was eating too much fried fish.

Ten new cases of cholera have been received from the steamer Illinois, and there are now eighty patients in the hospital..... Three cholera hospitals are to be established in New York.

The health authorities have determined to remove the cellar population of New York and Brooklyn to more healthy abodes, and to establish temporary cholera hospitals in various parts of those cities.

The Deputy Health Officer of New York reports twelve additional deaths from cholera on the hospital ship, and the reception of five more patients from the steamer Illinois, making the number remaining in the hospital six.

The remittent fever which a year ago committed such ravages at St. Petersburg has broken out again with great violence at Moscow and Orenburg. At Moscow a new hospital has had to be opened for the accommodation of the sick.

On the morning of the 19th the steamer Sucker State reached St. Paul, the early bird of the season from down the river. She passed Lake Pepin without trouble from ice. It is the latest opening of the upper river navigation for twenty years.

A number of Chicago capitalists have purchased lands at Bergen Falls, New York, where they will erect extensive abattoirs on the Parisian plan. Cattle, etc., will be unloaded from the cars and there prepared for the New York, Brooklyn, Hoboken and Jersey City markets.

Wells, Fargo & Co. have sued the shippers of the nitro-glycerine, the explosion of which caused such destruction of life and property at San Francisco a fortnight since. They lay their damages at $100,000. The parties sued have been examined and held to bail in a sum equal to the damages claimed.

A man named Parker has been arrested and confined in the Hardin County jail, who turned State's evidence and gave the names of about sixty of the gang who had been stealing horses in the counties of Calhoun and Jersey, Illinois. These severe proceedings will no doubt put a stop to horse stealing in those parts.

The Quartermaster-General has reports of the interment of nearly 100,000 Union soldiers, a large portion of whom it will perhaps be necessary to remove to cemeteries. One million dollars will be required to protect them from desecration, and it is recommended that a general system be adopted.....Gen. Thomas has issued an order warning the people adjacent, from ploughing under or disturbing the graves of our dead at Atlanta.

The St. Paul Press describes as fearfully grand the breaking of the immense ice gorge above the Falls of St. Anthony, a few days ago. Twelve boom piers between suspension bridge and the falls were destroyed, causing a loss of about $6,000. A lumber sluice on the Minnesota side of the river was also carried away, involving a loss of $4,000. A portion of the upper bridge was also broken down. About $7,000 worth of logs was floated off. The suspension bridge was uninjured.

The monster iron-clad new vessel, Dunderberg, is now receiving the completing touches of the mechanics, in the yard of Wm. H. Webb, her builder, at New York. The Government has recently initiated to the contractor the necessity of completing the vessel at the earliest moment. The Dunderberg has her masts, machinery, and boilers on board, and the smoke-stack is set up.

The Austro-Prussian question was still regarded as threatening, all correspondence between the two powers having failed to bring about an amicable adjustment of the pending difficulties. Prussia still continues her warlike preparations. The London Times, in an article upon the alteration, remarks that affairs between the two powers present an aspect identical with that which has always preceeded the breaking out of war between powerful nations.

The Montreal Gazette of April 23, reports that "Slayter, one of the physicians who volunteered to attend the cholera patients on the England, at Halifax, was taken ill on Monday morning, and died of that disease on Tuesday night. Two other doctors, Garrie and Gossip, were attacked with the disease, but have recovered. Eight of the passengers made their escape from the quarantine ship, and, it is feared, may spread the disease. Three cases of cholera have also been reported at Halifax."

The Alta Californian of the 25th ult. contains a statement from Charles B. Brooks, formerly of St. Charles, Ill., exposing the utter emptiness of the Barbacoas gold bubble. He went to that locality and found only one paying gold claim. All else was a gloomy and desolate waste, populated with hungry and disappointed men. There was neither a present nor a prospect to this recently famous new Pacific diggings, and Mr. Brooks wants everybody to stay away.

In the examination of Otto Burstenbender, at New York, on the 25th, for the shipment of nitro-glycerine by Wells & Fargo's California Express, Alfred B. Nobel, the inventor, was called for the defence. He testified that he was the inventor of the practical adaptation of nitro-glycerine to blasting purposes. Nitro-glycerine is only explosive under certain conditions, as is the case with many other substances not considered explosive. Nitro-glycerine is not an inflamable substance, for, if fire is set to it, it does not catch fire like turpentine or spirits, but goes out when the match is withdrawn. It does not explode by the mere application of fire. Its use in blasting is only possible through the patent fuse, as a shower of sparks will not explode it. The application of fire has been tried hundreds of times. It requires 360 degrees of heat in a confined space before it explodes. Concussion will not explode it. We tried throwing it from heights of fifty feet, and it would not explode. In Hamburg the experiment was tried of throwing it up in a rocket, and its fall of more than one thousand feet did not explode it. We afterward exploded it, showing it to being pure nitro-glycerine.

Political Matters.

The Senate is acting upon the universal suffrage bill for the District of Columbia this week.

A Montreal despatch of the 26th says: "Mrs. Jeff. Davis has obtained permission, and will leave by the first train, to see her husband."

Messrs. Evarts, Clifford and Rousseau have been retained by the Government for the trial of Jeff. Davis which is expected to take place soon after Mr. Speed's return from the West.

An English paper observes: "If some of the speeches of our statesmen do not reach down to posterity it will not be because they are not long enough." The same remark is applicable here.

It is said the President has appointed Wade Hampton, a relative of the South Carolina rebel General, Postmaster at Pittsburg, Pa., removing the Radical incumbent.

The editor of The Tennessean, a paper published in the interest of the Freedmen's Bureau at Nashville, recently presented his subscription list to President Johnson, who, observing Senator Sumner's name thereon for $5, wrote a subscription of $25 thereunder.

Clement C. Clay was released from Fortress Monroe on the 18th, by order of the President. The conditions of his release were, that he should take the oath of allegiance to the United States, and give his parole of honor to conduct himself as a loyal citizen of the same, and to report himself in person at any time and place, to answer any charges that may hereafter be preferred against him by the United States.

In the Tennessee Senate, on the 24th, a bill passed its first reading, tendering the mansion house at the hermitage (Jackson's residence), and 200 acres of ground adjoining, on condition that the United States Government would establish upon it a branch of the West Point Military Academy, or some other public institution. The remaining acres of the estate, about 3000, are to be sold, and the proceeds to be applied to the payment of bonds issued by the State in payment for the whole property.

The Fenians.

Considerable excitement was caused, at Calais on the 23d, by an attempt of two "supposed Fenians" to shoot the guard at the bridge crossing to St. Stephen's, who refused to let them cross.....A lot of Springfield rifles, destined for Fenian use, was seized at Oswego on the 22d. It was said they were to be used in a Fenian expedition into Canada, the object of which was to capture Pictou and Belleville, and to "raise the green flag in a situation almost impregnable."

The Fenians are very indignant at the order to abandon the expedition against New Brunswick. One Wm. H. Grace said to have been Captain of the late Eastport expedition, is particularly disgusted with O'Mahony, whom he considers an "imbecile and a fraud," and says that the "expedition would have been a success had Gen. Killian been sustained." He declares that the only hope of success now is in supporting Roberts and Sweeny, who are said to have selected Ogdensburgh for their base of operations. Fenians are collecting there in large numbers, and artillery and small arms reach the place daily. The Fenian Senate has closed its session, in New York, to prepare for battle, and the Fenian Sisterhood call for donations of lint, bandages, etc.

Financial Items.

The Treasury Department intimates that the national increase of revenue for the present year will reach $500,000.

The net earnings of the Oil Creek railroad, in Pennsylvania, in 1865, was $341,094 20,—54 per cent. on the capital stock.

The American Screw Company at Providence, R. I., with a capital of $1,000,000, is reported to have divided $1,000,000 among its stockholders in 1864, and $1,200,000 in 1865.

Chief Justice Walker, of the Supreme Court of this State, has decided that shares of national banks shall be taxed. The revenue from this source will amount to nearly $500,000 per year.

On Monday last the Government commenced the manufacture of envelopes and paper from cancelled bonds, currency, &c., which were formerly burned. About nine thousand dollars yearly will be saved to the treasury.

The Secretary of the Treasury, believing that the time has come when the Government should no longer be in a position of a bowerer of money, has ordered the Assistant United States Treasurer to discontinue the reception of deposits for temporary loans.

No new national banks were chartered last week. The total number of these institutions now doing business throughout the country is 1,650. The total amount of their notes in circulation is $268,028,940. Treasurer Spinner had in his cash vaults on Saturday noon, legal tender notes, fractional currency, gold, silver, and other cash, amounting to $95,918,471.

There are one hundred and thirty millions of available funds in the National Treasury. The amount of bonds held by the Treasurer as security of National Banks, is three hundred and fifty-six millions. The total amount of National Bank circulation is two hundred and sixty-eight millions. It is expected that the next monthly statement will show a reduction of six millions in the national debt.

The Secretary of the Treasury is considering the proposition of putting a 5 per cent. long loan on the market, as a means of retiring our rapidly maturing obligations. Such have been the successful arrangement of our finances, and the faith of the American people in the national securities, that such a loan is deemed warranted, and is thought to promise success, by many of the best financiers in Congress.

In reply to a question from the Secretary of the Treasury, the Chairman of the Revenue Commission states that the equalization of soldiers' bounties would add $250,000,000 to the public debt, the annual interest on which would be equal to $15,000,000, a sum which can only be raised by taxing the common necessaries of life, such as cotton, hardware, earthenware, harness, and the like, and his opinion is decidedly unfavorable to the proposition.

The United States Treasurer, a day or two since, received from Bowling Green, Ky., two packages of money, amounting to $199, which had become infected by small-pox. The money belonged to eight soldiers in the small-pox hospital at Bowling Green, and was forwarded by the surgeon in charge of the hospital, to be destroyed. The treasurer personally inspected the opening of the boxes and the burning of the notes. An equivalent amount has been sent to the soldiers.

Southern News.

The suspension bridge at Nashville, Tenn., is nearly completed. It will cost $80,000.

Among the contributions to the Southern Relief fair in Baltimore was one of $200 from ex-President Buchanan.

Large numbers of idle freedmen at Newbern and on Roanoke Island have been notified that they cannot have rations after May 1 next.

In Hawkens county, Tennessee, on the 15th, four men were shot during the preaching of the funeral sermon of a man named Ellis, who had been a rebel soldier.

Judge Hatch and Judge Williamson, of Iowa, who went to reside in Texas, have returned to their old homes, and report it impossible for Union men to live in Texas under the present plan of reconstruction.

At Brandenburg, Kentucky, on the 20th, an altercation between two brothers, Kenerick and Allen Stanfield, respecting an old partnership, the latter, having drawn a pistol, was instantly killed by the former.

The Charleston South Carolinian chronicles a new phenomenon in that city, namely, a demand on the part of the blacks for higher wages. The colored stevedores are unwilling to work unless paid $2 a day.

At Memphis, on the night of the 14th, the Delmonico House was entered by burglars, and the room of Col. Lycurgus E. Stewart of Sumner county, Tenn., was plundered of notes of hand, payable to himself, to the amount of nearly $80,000.

A mob at Bowling Green, Ky., attempted to take from the Sheriff a negro murderer, with the intention of hanging him, but were prevented. The excitement was very great, and the Sheriff had sent to Louisville for assistance, and a company of soldiers were sent to his aid.

Montgomery (Ala.) papers received contain accounts of suffering and destitution in various counties of the State. As many as 300 women have been seen at one time around the Court House on days when rations were expected, having walked from 15 to 20 miles; and within 40 miles of Montgomery there are 700 destitute in actual want of food to sustain life.

Incidents and Accidents.

A married lady in Mercer, Pa., committed suicide by tying his feet together and pitching into the cistern.

On Friday a little boy in Cincinnati bit his tongue nearly in two. A doctor was called in who sewed it up while the boy was under the influence of chloroform.

According to the Oil City Register, the total loss of the oil regions this season arising from fire and floods is not less than five millions of dollars.

Two men, whose names are not given, were bitten by a mad dog at Iowa City, Iowa, last week. The dog was slain, and the men will probably die of that terrible disease, hydrophobia.

About a week ago, the house of a German living ten miles south of Fond du Lac, Wis., was destroyed by fire; his wife and brother-in-law were burned to death, and his son was severely injured.

A little girl about 10 years of age was drowned at Lansing, Mich., on the 20. Her shaker blew into the river near the dam, and she waded in after it, when, the current being swift, she was carried over the dam.

The proprietor of a restaurant in Blairsville, Ind., well to do in the world, and with no family troubles, cut his throat a few days ago because a new liquor law for the county in which he lived had been passed by the last legislature.

A young man named James E. Harris, residing in the town of Westfield, Wis., committed suicide on the 10th by taking strychnine. This was the fourth time he had attempted to take his life. Three times he tried laudanum and failed.

A laboring man in Boston, Mass., by mistake, drank a glass full of solution of Potash, used in tempering steel. Before he could be made to vomit, his entire body turned a bright red color. His life was finally saved after enduring terrible agony for several hours.

The ferry boat Windsor, belonging to the D. & M. R. R. Co. as well as the passenger and freight depots of that company and of the Michigan Southern R. R. Co. at Detroit were all burned on the night of the 26th. Twenty-eight lives are believed to have been lost. The destruction of property is valued at $500,000.

Two brothers went into a drug store at East Saginaw, Mich., the other day, and bought a quantity of quicksilver and aquafortis, which they put in the same bottle. One of them gave it a shake, causing an explosion, throwing part of the contents in their faces and eyes, and causing temporary, and perhaps permanent blindness.

An old man in Johnson county, Ill., was killed by his two children, aged thirteen and fifteen, who beat him to death with clubs, after which they secretly buried him. The neighbors suspected all was not right, visited the house and questioned the children, when they ascertained they killed him because he was old and sick and a great deal of trouble.

A gentleman named Barnes, living in Jefferson county, Ind., was to have been married on last Thursday, to a lady named Jones. On Sunday he called at the house of his intended, and the same day both of them became sick; she died the same night, and he on Tuesday. The affair is as sad as singular.

English papers give an account of the destruction by fire, April 1, of the packing-house of Thomas Sinclair & Sons, at Belfast—the largest in Ireland—by which one-eighth of the bacon packed in the United Kingdom was destroyed. Among the items were 34,000 hams. The total loss is estimated at $750,000.

Gen Burnside met with an accident at the New Haven Railroad depot, in New York, a few days ago, which, fortunately, was unattended by very serious results. He was about getting on a car to start for home, when a man getting off crowded him back, and he was caught between the moving car and an iron post, and rolled along in a very narrow space. He suffers some from the bruises, but the surgeons decide that he is not internally injured.

A Memphis despatch says that the steamer John Raymond exploded her boiler and took fire, when near Island No. 40, at 10 o'clock on the morning of the 24th. The first engineer was blown overboard and lost. The second engineer was badly scalded. Six firemen and deck hands were more or less injured. After floating five miles down stream, the fire was extinguished, and the passengers were rescued by the steamer Tennessee, and taken to Memphis. The Raymond was valued at $15,000. The damage will amount to about $2,000.

The Providence Journal notes it as a singular coincidence that in the recent disaster on the Sound, David Crowley, who had charge of one of the Electra's boats which went to the succor of the passengers and crew of the ill fated steamer City of Norwitch, was one of the four men who successfully struggled for life in that terrible night when the steamer City of Lexington was burnt, near the same place, twenty-six years ago, while Charles B. Smith, the chief engineer of the Electra, who had charge of another boat, which aided in the escape of so many drowning people, was also a survivor of the Lexington disaster.

Congressional Doings.

In the Senate, on the 23d, the bill to regulate inter-State commerce and postal communication was made the special order of Friday.....The house bill for the better organization of the pay department of the navy was passed.....The Postoffice appropriation bill was considered, without action .....A resolution was adopted instructing the Committee on Commerce to inquire into the expediency of providing against the importation, transportation, or sale of nitro-glycerine.

In the House, on the 23d, a resolution was adopted to hold an evening session on the 24th, for the purpose of allowing the Pacific Railroad Committee an opportunity to report.....Resolutions were introduced, but decided out of order, relieving the Reconstruction Committee from further consideration of the representatives from Tennessee, and declaring that State entitled to representation.....Resolutions calling for the speedy trial of Jeff. Davis were referred, after debate, to the Judiciary Committee..... The army bill was further considered.

In the Senate, on the 24th, the bill for the relief of certain naval contractors was considered, amended, and postponed..... The Senate refused to concur in the House amendments to the habeas corpus bill, and asked for a Committee of Conference..... The bill for the admission of Colorado came up, the pending question being the motion to reconsider the vote rejecting the bill, and was discussed by Messrs. Nye, Doolittle, Sumner, and others. The question was not decided.....The printing deficiency bill was passed.

In the House, on the 24th, the Niagara ship canal bill was discussed, without action.....Consideration of the army bill was resumed. The 20th section, providing for a Provost Marshal General's bureau, was stricken out, after a lengthy debate, in which Gen. Fry and his deputies were bitterly assailed by Roscoe Conkling of New York, and defended by Mr. Blaine. Mr. Woodbridge defended the loyalty of West Point officers. No final action was taken on the bill.....The evening session was devoted to reports from the Pacific Railroad Committee.

In the Senate, on the 25th, the veto rejecting the bill for the admission of Colorado was reconsidered, Mr. Sumner offered an amendment providing that there should be no denial of the elective franchise, or any other right, on account of race or color; which was lost,—7 to 27. The bill was then passed by a vote of 19 to 13.....Mr. Doolittle made some remarks in reference to the action of the Wisconsin Legislature in his regard, and was replied to by Mr. Howe.

In the House, on the 25th, a heated colloquy took place between Messrs. Conkling and Blains—each charging the other with falsehood and cowardice.....A bill imposing a duty of 20 per cent. ad valorem upon imported cattle, mules, sheep, and hogs, was passed.....The Northern Pacific railroad bill was discussed.....The Committee of Ways and Means reported a bill amendatory of the internal revenue act, which was referred to the Committee of the Whole, and made the special order for the 3d prox. and thereafter until disposed of.

In the Senate, on the 26th, Mr. Sumner presented a petition for the expulsion of Garrett Davis, because he had said that if the civil rights bill passed he should regard himself as an enemy of the Government. .....The bill to regulate inter-State postal and commercial communication was considered, and the Senate went into executive session.

In the House, on the 26th, the Senate bill to facilitate telegraphic communication with the West Indies was passed, after a slight amendment, fixing $3.50 as the maximum charge for a message of ten words.....The bill for the relief of paymasters was amended and passed.....A resolution was introduced and referred, appropriating $25,000 for cleaning Washington City, in view of the approach of cholera.....The bill extending the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims was amended and passed.....Consideration of the Northern Pacific Railroad bill was resumed, and speeches were made by Messrs. Farnsworth and Washburne of Illinois against the bill, and by Messrs. Randall, Donnelly, and Dodge in its favor. No final action was taken.

In the Senate, on the 27th, a Committee of Conference was appointed on the bill to establish telegraphic communication with the West Indies, the Senate having refused to concur in the House amendments..... The bill for the relief of certain naval contractors passed, after a lengthy debate. .....Mr. Wilson offered a resolution amending the Constitution, which was ordered to be printed. It prohibits payment for the emancipation of slaves and of any debt incurred in behalf of the rebellion, and provides for the apportionment of representatives in Congress on the basis of the voting population.

In the House, on the 27th, a number of private bills were passed, and some important business disposed of during the morning hour, after which the House resumed consideration of the Northern Pacific railroad bill. The debate was a long one, the question being on the adoption of a substitute proposed by Mr. Stevens. Messrs. Bingham, Rogers, Grinnell, Stevens, Banks, and others spoke in favor of the bill, and Messrs. Wright, Harding, and others in opposition. Finally, Mr. Price of Iowa moved the previous question, when Mr. Spalding of Ohio moved to lay the bill and pending amendments on the table. This motion not being debatable was put, and the vote was taken amid intense excitement, resulting, yeas 76, nays 56. This vote was afterward made final by a motion to reconsider, which was laid upon the table, so the bill is defeated for the present session. A Committee of Conference was ordered on the West India telegraph bill.

Distribution of Rewards.

Rewards for the Capture of Booth and Harold.—Brig-Gen. L. C. Baker, $3,750; Capt. E. P. Doherty, 16th N. Y. Cavalry, $7,500; E. J. Conger, detective, $4,000; L. B. Baker, detective, $4,000; Sergt. B. Corbett, 16th N. Y. Cavalry, $2,546; A. Wendell, $2,545; Corp. Chas. Zimmer, Michael Uniac, John Winter, Sherman Newgarten, John Waltz, Oliver Lonpay, each $2,290. The remainder of the reward is distributed among seventeen privates of the same regiment.

For the Capture of Atzerodt.—Major Artman, 213th Pennsylvania Volunteers, $1,220; Sergt. Gimmill, 1st Delaware Cavalry, $3,598; The remainder of the $25,000 is distributed among seven others.

For the Capture of Payne.—Brig-Gen. H. Wells, Provost-Marshal, $625; Col. H. S. Olcott, Special Commissioner, $625; Brevet Maj. H. W. Smith, A. A. G., $2,500; B. C. Morgan, assistant to Col. Olcott, $1,706; W. M. Wermerskerch, assistant to Col. Olcott, $1,436; Detectives Eli Devoe, C. H. Rosch and T. Sampson, each $1,005 75.

For the Capture of Jefferson Davis.—Lieut Col. B. D. Pritchard, 4th Michigan Cavalry, $10,000; Capts. C. Hathaway and C. T. Audson, each $729 60; First Lieuts. Ripley, Palmer, Boutwell, Bachus, Stauber, Fisk and Hazleton, and Second Lieuts. Treat, Bennet, Rickford, Southworth, Rurlington, Remington and Murphy, each 555 88. Three others receive $660, one $555, one $271, one $239, one $229, sixty-one $250 each, and about four hundred receive from $166 to $187. There are about eighty of the claimants who are adjudged to be entitled to no compensation.

Religious and Educational.

The night is mother of the day,
The winter of the spring;
And ever upon old decay,
The greenest mosses cling.
Behind the cloud the starlight lurks,
Through showers the sunbeams fall;
For God, who loveth all his works,
Has left his hope with all.

—The Indiana State Sunday School convention is to be held this year at New Albany, commencing the evening of the 5th of June and continuing during the 6th and 7th.

—The Scattered Nation—a paper devoted to the interests of the Jews—says that more than 20,000 of them have been converted during the present century. One minister at Berlin has baptized 200. There are 3,000 Jewish proselytes living in that city.

—There are in the United States 37,000 churches, being one for every 645 of the entire population. The total value of church property is $87,000,000. There are 27,000 clergymen, and accommodations in the church edifices for 14,000,000 of hearers.

—Two daughters of a man named Wood, living at Neshonoc, Wis., were recently converted, and on the dry appointed for their baptism, were assured by their father that if they left home he would hang himself. They persisted, however, and so did he; and the next day they attended his funeral.

—It is said by a Wisconsin preacher that certain children of the devil dressed in Christian clothes are trying to join a Wisconsin church. One of these is the card table, which, it is insisted, is perfectly harmless, if only used without stakes. Another is small domestic billiard tables. Another still is domestic wine. And still another is parlor dancing, and now and then a public ball.

A Tale of Horror.

PART FIRST.

Jane Ann Pilkinhorn was the only darter of poor but honist parents. They had no other child but her. She was their all, and besides their dog Trowzer, (who was a dog and warn't partikerly overburdened with branes,) she was the only human being they had to luv. That, howsumdever, was their misfortin and not their fault. Her ize shone like a new brass kettle, and her cheeks were as red as a temperance leckter's nose. Her hare was the color of safron tea, and her form was as graceful as a hound pup. So much for Jane Ann Pilkinhorn.

PART SECOND.

Jethro Snodgrass was an adopted son of the Rev. Mordecai Mumblechops, the village parson. He was a 'fair and kumly youth,' as the poet sez, and stood six feet in his stockins. (That is in Winter. In summer he don't wear stockins.) His compleckshun was as clear as the compleckshun of a taller candle, and his hare curled as nateral as the tail of a yelpin cur when gettin a bastin from his master. But Jethro had one falein. Althow adopted, he was in every respekt a minister's son. He driv a fast hoss, and was pertikilerly fond of femail society. He smoked segars and drinked beer, and was very much inklined for society of wimmin. He played keerds and pitched quates for a shillin a game, and was constantly running arter the gals. He liked to danse all nite to the feerful raspin of the country fiddle, but his topmost passion was hankering arter the opposite sect. Otherwise he wouldn' have been a minister's son; And there's where the laff comes in! So much for Jethro Snodgrass.

PART THIRD.

I beleeve that I have previously intimated that Jethro Snodgrass was fond of wimmin of the femail sect. But of all the wimmin in town, Jane Ann Pilkinhorn was his fust choice and his best holt. He luved her very muchly, and she dittoed him full as muchly if not muchlier. Their too luves blended together like bordin-house blankets (which can't be pulled apart without using the pinchers and claw hammer.) And can it be possible that too fond hearts like theirn must be forcibly ripped assunder? Yes, gentle reader, it is possible, and a good deal possibler.

PART FOURTH.

It was a cold nite in the month of Janeway. Jerusalem! how cold it was! It was cold enuff to freeze the nose on a graven immidge. It was cenymost as cold as a rich relation's greetin. Jane Ann Pillkinhorn and Jethro Snodgrass were "trippin the light fantastic hoof," (as Spurgeon sez,) in the dancin hall of Bill Baxter's tavern. "The taller candles shone o'er fair wimmin and brave men, and all went jolly as a dinner bell. But hark! what sound is that? That feerful sound kawses the dancers to dry up on their dancin, and even the fiddler to cease his onairthly strains! Jane Ann Pillkinhorn has fainted and tumbled kerchunk onto the bare floor!

"Water! water!" shouts Jethro Snodgrass, frantically.

Reemarkin as how it was the fust time in ten years that he'd heard young Snodgrass call for water, and that he didn't keep the stuff in the house, Bill Baxter (the tavern keeper) run to the bar and fetched up a decanter of airthquake jin, which he throwed into Jane Ann's face. Jane Ann immejitly rekivered. Jethro Snodgrass took her into his arms, and toted her into the parlor. She put her arms clean round his neck, exclaimin:

"My preserver! my preserver!"

"Not by a darned site!" sez Bill Baxter, who was standin by, and who had a sneakin noshun arter Jane Ann himself, (bein a bachelor, and onmarried,) and was thereafelus—"not by a darned site! You'd never come to if I hadn't slung thirty-seven cents worth of jin in your face, and now Snodgrass is gittin the credit of it."

"Beware!" sez Snodgrass. "Beware how you provoke my rath, or I'll smash your jaw!"

Bill Baxter, not bein a fitein man immejitly retreetid, vowin venjunce onto Jethro. And he had it speedily.

Ten minutes arterward, Jethro Snodgrass entered the bar room, and throwing three cents on the counter, exclaimed in a voice of thunder and litenin:

"Give me a glass of your best jin!"

Bill Baxter, with a leer in his sore eyes, such as only a fiend incarnit cood immytait, tot out the bottle. Jethro took swig arter swig, and in a few hours was a ded dog in the bag.

Baxter, the tavern keeper, was arrested and tried for highboggery in third person singular, but on ackount of the manufacturer of the jin that Bill sold bein foreman on the jury, the jury coodent agree, and Bill was discharged. A few months arterwards, he was smashed to deth under a pile driver, and was obliged to go south for his health. Sich is life.

MORRIL—Don't drink airthquake jin.

Eugenie's Latest Whim.

PARIS, March 15.—The fashionable female world will be astounded at the latest whim which has seized the beautiful Empress. For some time, odd rumors have been circulated, which are now thought to have an origin in the far-reaching policy of the Emperor, rather than in any change of the Empress. Visitors admitted to the privilege of seeing their Majesties in the retirement of domestic life have expressed their astonishment at the simplicity of dress adopted by Eugenie. A plain dress without trimming, and worn with only a linen collar and cuffs, was said to be her costume on one occasion. In the resent speech made by the Emperor before the Corps Legislatif, he declared himself tired of hearing about more liberty for France. What France wanted was not more liberty, but greater simplicity, virtue and happiness. To this speech Jules Favre made a terrible reply. He showed that under the Empire, virtue and happiness were not to be found; that idleness and luxury had taken their place; that vice and wantonness stalked boldly abroad at mid-day in Paris, and were openly copied and countenanced by the leaders of Parisian society.

The effect of this scathing rebuke has been somewhat neutralized by an incident which occurred the other day, and which has been idustriously circulated. A deputation of Lyons workmen waited upon Her Majesty with a sample of antique and very costly brocade, which she was requested to bring into fashion. "I am very sorry I cannot comply with your wishes," said the Empress, with her peculiarly charming smile, "but there are many ladies whose husbands could not afford them toilets as expensive. My own is among the number." Of course, the deputation left puzzled, bewildered at the Emperor's poverty, but completely fascinated. I have not told you, however, of the latest Imperial whim, which has taken the direction of Sewing Machines A few weeks ago the Empress issued an order for several different kinds of Sewing Machines—one of which, a beautiful Grover & Baker, captivated her fancy, and it is said that she has not only become an expert operator herself, but that greatly to the disgust of her ladies, she ordered several more of the same kind, and insists upon an hour's practice as one of the daily morning recreations. A sort of Court Society has thus been formed, the substantial results of which are to be given to the poor. The news of this new whim of the Empress has been received with enthusiasm in fashionable quarters and an immense rush created for the Grover & Baker Machines. It is to be hoped the new whim will last long enough to clothe some of the miserable poor of Paris.

[From THE WESTERN RAILROAD GAZETTE.]

THE BURDETT COTTAGE ORGAN.

LYON & HEALY, AGENTS, CHICAGO.

Messrs. R. Burdett & Co., of Chicago, have recently come into possession, by purchase, of the entire property of the firm of J. Estey & Co. (in which they were former co-partners) and will henceforth, under more favorable auspices than ever before continue the business of manufacturing Organs and Melodeons at the old stand Nos. 77, 79 and 81 Sedgwick street. Mr. Burdett originated and developed the Estey Cottage Organ, its present perfection being the direct result of his inventive genius and skill. The most popular features of this Organ, the "Patent Harmonic Attachment" the "Patent Manual Sub Bass" the "Sub Bass Swell" the Patent Bass Damper," the "Improved Knee Stop" and the Patent "Tri-Reed Socket Board" are all the legitimate fruits of his invention, together with other minor improvements. In fact, the "Estey Cottage Organ" to all intents and purposes, in all its truly intrinsic, appreciative qualities is the work of Mr. Burdett and should have been properly designated as the "Burdett Cottage Organ" as all organs of this style hereafter made in Chicago will be so called. The musical public will be gratified to learn that henceforth every portion of the work will be done under the personal supervision of Mr. Burdett, and that the present firm will spare neither pains nog expense to fully maintain the well deserved reputation these instruments have acquired, and that every improvement that a refined musical taste and a fertile inventive genius can originate, will be added thereto.

Superiority for these instruments is claimed on the following important points:

FIRST.—Volume, Purity and Roundness of Tone, Power and Variety of Expression, approaching nearer the Pipe Organ than any other reed instrument in existence.

SECOND.—Delicacy, Elasticity and Promptness of Action, rendering them superior to any other Reed Instrument for the execution of rapid passages.

THIRD.—Their Perfection of Construction, and ease with which they are operated, being so adjusted as to render it almost impossible for them to get out of working order.

FOURTH.—The "Improved Patent Harmonic Attachment," an ingenious device, by means of which the octaves are coupled when required, thus doubling the power of the instrument. By the use of this stop, an instrument of two sets of reeds is rendered instantly equal to one of four sets; one of three sets, equal to six sets, etc.

FIFTH.—The "Improved Patent Manual Sub-Bass and Sub-Bass Swell," which brings into use an independent set of powerful bass reeds, is played upon the ordinary key-board, and being controlled by a stop, may be used or not, at the option of the performer. Owing to the peculiar manner of arranging the reeds, the power of the instrument is increased nearly one-third, while its size is not increased thereby.

SIXTH.—The "Improved Knee Stop," which swells or diminishes the tone, by a slight movement of the knee, without interfering with the action of the feet, and by means of which the volume of tone may be increased or diminished without waiting for a change in the action of the bellows.

SEVENTH.—The "Vocal Tremolo." This is a new feature, for the first time inserted in these Organs, by the use of which the most charming effects may be produced. It requires no additional pedal and unlike the common tremolo, never gets out of order. It is intended chiefly for solo passages and with a delicate left-hand accompaniment it gives all the expression and tenderness of the human voice.

For volume, evenness of tone, sensitive touch, exquisite modulation, and ease of playing, the Burdett Cottage Organs are pre-eminently first class instruments. While their interior construction is the perfection of musical ideas carefully elaborated, their mechanical finish, though simple is tasteful and rich. They are made in various styles, of walnut, oak, rosewood, carved and panelled, and also in jet imitation of ebony beautifully gilded, forming an elegant ornament for the parlor or drawing room as well as a perpetual source of delight to every household in the land.

Of the present leading proprietor, it may not be amiss to say a few words. Mr. Burdett has been engaged in the manufacture of musical instruments for the past twenty years, most of the time superintending the parent factory at Brattleboro, Vt. He has an abundant capital, is energetic, thorough and one of the best practical mechanics and inventors of the day, as well as a musician of superior culture and refined taste. Perhaps the best proof of the excellence of his inventions that can be adduced, is the fact that the foremost makers of Reed Organs in this country have endeavored to copy his most important improvements as closely as possible without infringing his patent rights. Messrs. Burdett & Co. have judiciously retained the well known firm of Lyon & Healy to act as sole agents for the sale of all instruments of their manufacture. The trade and retail buyers will be promptly supplied by them upon the most favorable terms. We invite special attention to the "Burdett Cottage Organs" now on exhibition at their warerooms in Smith & Nixon's block.

Of Messrs. Lyon & Healy it is almost superfluous to speak. Although it is but little over a year and a half since they "pitched their tent" in Chicago, they have already built up a wholesale trade unprecedented in the business annals of this go ahead city. Representing some of the oldest and wealthiest musical establishments on the continent their facilities have been unusually extensive, while their long experience and practical theoretical knowledge of their business has enabled them to compete on equal terms with the oldest houses in the northwest. They make nothing in the music line a specialty, like many other dealers, but are manufacturers, publishers and importers of all kinds of music and musical instruments. Their stock is the fullest, most carefully selected and complete of any west of Boston or New York. Anything from a Jewsharp to a Church Organ, from a popular song to the ponderous works of the greatest living or dead composers, can be obtained at their store. They give their personal attention to the requirements of their patrons and welcome with equal courtesy the person who has but 25 cents to invest, as the purchaser of an organ or a grand piano. They treat all their customers with the same civility, and this superadded to integrity, honesty and rare business qualifications has insured them a personal popularity and a material prosperity as great as it has been well deserved.

Novelty in Marine Architecture—A Revolving Ship.

[From the Baltimore Sun, April 20.]

At the ship-yard of Messrs. Brewster & Potter, Canton, there is to be seen a real novelty in the way of marine architecture. It is a working model of a "revolving vessel," so called, the "hull" of which is so constructed as to bear the appearance of an immense hogshead, rather than that of anything designed to be propelled in the water. It is rather difficult to describe, from its singular peculiarities. The model is a cylinder 12 feet in diameter and 11 feet width of beam. Through this cylinder is a shaft acting as an axle, upon which the vessel rolls in the water, making but little displacement; and it is contended that it will even pass over bars where there is little or no water. Outside of the cylinder or "hull" are placed paddles at different points, which are to be protected by four keels going around. The machinery is attached to the shaft inside of the cylinder; where also, are to be placed cabins, etc. The idea of this vessel is that instead of displacing or running through the water, she rolls over it, making a plane of a liquid surface. The model has already been tried in the river, and to those interested in its operations was deemed satisfactory. The inventor of this novel conception is Mr. George T. Snyder, of Pennsylvania, who has obtained a patent, and he appears sanguine of its success. To test its ultimate utility, a joint stock association is now

NITRO-GLYCERINE.

From the Panama Star and Herald, April 12.

It is our painful duty to record to-day one of those terrible accidents which throw a gloom over the whole community, and which occurred at Aspinwall on Tuesday morning, the 3d inst., by the explosion of the British steamer European, causing the total destruction of the ship, and the loss of the lives of her captain and the majority of her officers and crew, as well as of several persons resident in Aspinwall, besides doing an immense amount of damage to property on shore.

Immediately after the intelligence was telegraphed to Panama, we proceeded to Aspinwall to ascertain as correctly as possible the full extent of the damage, particulars of which we are now able to place before our readers.

THE EXPLOSION.

The European arrived at Aspinwall on the morning of the 2d inst., and on the afternoon of the same day came alongside the railroad company's wharf, generally used by this line, and commenced discharging her cargo. Nearly, if not all, the local freight had been delivered, when about 7 o'clock on the morning of the 3d, a terrific explosion occurred on board, which tore away the upper parts of the ship and blew away large plates off the side. The wharf at which the vessel was unloading, and which was some 400 feet long, was literally torn to pieces; the superstructure was completely demolished to within 100 feet of the freight-house, and hardly a plank remained in the entire length of the structure which was not wrenched from its fastenings. Immediately in front of where the vessel lay, a gap was cut thro' the wharf, piles, planking, etc., all disappearing. The ship and wharf both caught fire, and the latter was saved from entire destruction only by the exertions of several citizens, who got the fire engine to work, and after a few hours extinguished the flames, regardless of the risk they incurred from another explosion of the burning ship. The P. R. R. Co.'s splendid freight-house is left a pile of ruins. The force of air caused by the concussion seems to have raised the roof—which was constructed of iron and slate—upwards, a few feet, its own weight bringing it down with immense force into the building, and carrying with it both the end walls, leaving the house, excepting the side walls, which appear but little, if at all injured, a mass of ruins. It would be difficult to imagine a more complete wreck than that presented by the freight-house and wharf.

DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY.

Scarcely a building in the place escaped without more or less damage, those of a substantial nature suffering most; nearly all the brick and stone buildings were badly injured; but the freight-house is the only one we heard of which was rendered uninhabitable. Hardly a whole window of glass remains in the city, and the destruction of glassware, crockery, and such like, is really wonderful. Although many vessels were lying in close proximity to the European at the time of the disaster, none excepting the Caribbean, of the same line, sustained any serious damage. The last-named vessel was moored at the opposite side of the wharf from the European, and received very serious injury. Her hull externally appears untouched; but the effect of the concussion internally was very severe. We are assured that some immense iron girders, nearly 12 inches deep, were snapped off like pipe-stems; 13 of her frames were broken, and knees and braces of the heaviest timber were torn from their places. The strain upon the ship must have been of immense force, and nothing but the superior build and structure of the vessel saved her from being knocked to pieces. All her boats, and, in fact, everything of a fragile nature, were rendered useless.

DREADFUL LOSS OF LIFE.

The most awful part of the catastrophe was the dreadful loss of life and suffering attending it. Of the number of killed and missing it is impossible to give a correct estimate, but from present data the number may be safely put down at fifty, and is, we fear, more likely to prove over this number than under it. Of the forty-one men comprising the crew of the European, nine have been killed and twelve are missing. Two clerks engaged on the wharf—Mr. Swainson, of the West India and Pacific Steamship Company, were both instantly killed, and of thirteen natives or Jamaicans employed on the wharf and in the freight-house, none are supposed to have been saved; besides it is believed a small gang of native laborers who had gone on board the unfortunate steamer have met the fate of the others. It will be several days before a correct estimate can be made of the loss. Many bodies were no doubt thrown into the water and picked up by sharks, whilst others are still buried beneath the ruins of the freight-house and wharf, or went down with the ill-fated ship. The scene in Aspinwall, after the first explosion, cannot be described—it was harrowing in the extreme. Whilst the ruins gave an air of desolation to the place, the mangled and lacerated bodies, or pieces of bodies, to be met with in every direction for a great distance around the ruin of the disaster, were heart-rending, and the suffering of the poor mortals, crushed and bruised, in whom life was not extinct, was really dreadful.

A SECOND EXPLOSION FEARED.

Fears being entertained that a second explosion would occur, and as the cause of the disaster was still unknown, and none of the officers or crew of the ship were left who could give any explanation of the cause, it was thought best to have the burning ship towed into the stream. The royal mail steamship Tamar, Capt. Moir, which has arrived the evening previous, immediately got up steam and prepared to tow out the burning ship; but before this could be acplished another explosion took place, though not of sufficient force to cause any injury. It was supposed to be the magazine which contained a small quantity of powder for ship's use. The Tamar then made fast to the burning hulk and towed her out. The two vessels had barely reached the opposite side of the bay when another explosion more terrific than the first occurred, but fortunately the ship being far from the city and in deep water no harm resulted. The last explosion is supposed to have broken up the hull, as in less than half an hour the unfortunate ship went down. The top of her smoke stack is the only part now visible.

At first the cause of the explosion was wrapped in mystery, and as no one was saved from the wreck who could give any satisfactory explanation all was left to conjecture. A boiler explosion was impossible as there was no steam on the main boiler, and there was no necessity to use the engines, as the ship had been lying at the wharf over eighteen hours discharging a cargo. Gunpowder seemed most plausible, but there was none known to have been on board, except a few pounds in the magazine for ship's use which could not possibly cause so much destruction. If any were on board it must have been under a false bill of lading, as none appeared on the ship's manifest. Besides it seemed impossible that powder would explode in such immense quantities without creating a cloud of smoke and leaving its marks on everything around, whereas in this case a few minutes after the explosion no traces whatever were visible, excepting the general ruin. It was then discovered that some seventy cases of glonoine or nitro-glycerine, one of the most powerful explosive agents known at the present day, was on board under an ordinary bill of lading. This at once cleared up the mystery. This compound is used for blasting purposes, and was shipped from Liverpool to California. It is, we understand, of a similar composition if not the same, as a barrel or box of oil which exploded in Greenwich street, New York, a short time ago. It will be remembered the package was accidentally dropped on the street, and immediately exploded, tearing down two or three large buildings and damaging many others.

THE LOSS.

The amount of damage caused by the explosion is roughly estimated at $1,000,000 which is about the lowest figure at which it can be placed.

The wounded, so far as found, have all been well cared for, and nothing has been left undone that could add to their comfort. Many of the poor fellows had to undergo severe surgical operations. Several only survived a few hours after reaching the hospital.

PARTIAL LIST OF THE KILLED.

The following is an official report of the lives lost, so far as known last evening, from the explosion on the European:

Known to be killed on ship—Capt. Cole, Mr. Glass, chief officer; Mr. Paison, second officer; Dr. Burrows, surgeon; Edward Davis, carpenter; W. Pritchard, sailor; J. A. Young, sailor; W. Beremond, sailor; and Richard, Cabin boy.

Also, missing from ship, 12. Killed on shore—Mr. Calvo; Mr. Swainson, and 19 others.

Total killed and missing, 42. The number of missing from shore has not been definitely ascertained.

SIXTY-THREE KILLED, WOUNDED AND MISSING.

We have received from Aspinwall the latest report of the killed, wounded, and missing by the late sad accident:

There have been buried up to the present time	26
Missing from the ship	1
Missing from the shore	8
Seriously wounded in hospital, of whom five will probably die	17
Total	63

Besides these there are a number at their own homes slightly wounded.

We may infer from the above that our first surmise of 50 being the number of unfortunate persons killed is about correct.

HAIR-BREADTH ESCAPES.

Some remarkable instances occurred, in which property, apparently exposed to the full force of the concussion, escaped uninjured, whilst some, less exposed, was destroyed. One of the most remarkable is that of the American brig Kremlin, of the Boston Ice company, which lay not more than 100 feet astern of the European, immediately between her and the freight-house. The brig escaped almost uninjured; her deck-cabin was strained a few inches out of place, whilst the freight-house is a complete ruin.

Fortunately, at the time of the accident, only four of the clerks connected with the freight department in Aspinwall were at their posts. Two on the wharf, as stated above, were instantly killed, the other two, Mr. Burnham and Mr. Forman, were in the freight-house, but with wonderful presence of mind, on seeing the roof falling, one climed over a car, and sheltered himself in a window, while the other stepped into a doorway, and both were saved. The balance of the clerks were in the neighborhood of the ticket office, seeing the train start for Panama, which by some good providence had been detained nearly half an hour behind time, and thus saving the lives of most of the young men connected with the freight offices. Had they been in the building many of them must have perished.

The Panama correspondent of the N. Y. Herald says:

The effects of the concussion are visible over the whole length and breadth of Aspinwall. At the railroad company's mess house, distant about a third of a mile to the northward, the glass and crockery were extensively demolished; beyond that, in the new church, many of the beautiful stained glass windows were shattered. To the southward, about the same distance, at the Pacific Mail Steamship company's wharf, the residence of the superintendent was very much strained; while to the eastward nearly everything of a perishable nature, such as glass and earthenware, was destroyed. Stone and brick buildings suffered more than frame, many of them requiring extensive repairs before they will be again fit to be considered in good condition. Fragments of the brick were thrown to immense distances and in every direction. I saw a small iron knee, weighing four or five pounds, that was picked up over a thousand yards from the steamer. Another piece of metal, apparently belonging to the ship's machinery, fell on the roof of a house 500 yards distant and passed through to the floor, and hundreds of similar instances could be related if the space could be spared to give them all.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS.

While the Tamar was towing the ill-fated steamer out from the wharf, at many of the "dead eyes" faces were seen in agony and arms thrust out waving in vain for help. Outside the wharves are buoys intended to anchor vessels and prevent them from dashing against the piers in rough weather. The screw of the European fouled in one of these buoys, and carried it across the bay. When she sunk the buoy served as a mark to designate the spot. One man standing at a short distance from the railroad ticket office was carried by the force of the explosion across the track almost to the edge of the lagoon. The explosion was heard at a considerable distance from the city, and its effects were not confined to the immediate vicinity of the wharf. I never saw terror depicted on the human countenance in a more striking manner than on the faces of the clerks and other employes of the railroad company who were so fortunately around the train at the fatal hour that the murderous glycerine exploded. For many days some of them shivered with fear at the most trifling noise, and went around with pallid faces, listening to the different versions of the horrible affair retailed by every group at the street corners. The very name of nitro-glycerine will long be the terror of the people of Aspinwall and the most harmless oily fluids regarded with distrust if not well known or tested.

Prof. Albert Nobel of Germany, the manufacturer and inventor of nitro-glycerine, is in New York. He regrets profoundly the accidents which have resulted from its transportation, but still insists that it is impossible for his oil to ignite under a temperature of 320 degrees. He says the authorities of Hamburg entertained the same objections against its use originally, but, after scientific experiments, now consider it safer and more convenient than gunpowder. He proposes to give, in a few days, experiments to show its effectiveness, and harmlessness in transit. He calls attention to the fact that the explosion at Aspinwall was preceded by a fire.

The coroner's jury, in the case of the recent fatal nitro-glycerine explosion in San Francisco, express the opinion that the shipper of that destructive material is guilty of man-slaughter.

Mayor Hoffman of New York has ordered all nitro-glycerine to be stored in vessels filled with water.

Three more persons died in San Francisco on the 18th, from the effects of the nitro-glycerine explosion, making in all nineteen deaths.

On the 18th, some miners, near Colfax, Cal., were blasting a rock with nitro-glycerine. The compound prematurely exploded, and six men were killed.

A BIRD "PLAYING POSSUM."—A naturalist says: Last summer, while walking in my park, I observed a green woodpecker alight on the ground some 50 paces before me, look around to see if he was observed, then lie down and simulate death by stretching out himself motionless and hanging his tongue out as far as possible. He occasionally pulled it in his bill. He had selected a place near an ant-hill. The ants, thinking him dead, would cover his tongue to devour it; when it was black with ants he would swallow them and repeat his trick until his maw could hold no more.

CURRENT ITEMS.

Personal and Literary.

A PAPER has just been started in Texas with the euphonious title of "Semi-Weekly Jimplecute.

RAPHAEL SEMMES, the pirate, recently released by order of President Johnson, is a candidate for Judge of Probate of Mobile county, Ala.

THE New York papers record the marriage on the 10th inst., of Mr. Norman Wiard, the cannon maker, to Miss Mary Carlin, a sister of Wm. J. Florence.

IT is stated that Mr. Charles F. Brown (Artemus Ward) has received an offer of $20,000 in gold, and his ordinary expenses, for a lecturing tour in England of six months.

The Navy Department has given a medal to John Rountry, of Taunton, for risking his life to extinguish a fire in the room next to the powder magazine on the iron-clad steamer Montauk.

SPANGLER, Mudd and O'Laughlin, at last accounts from the Dry Tortugas, are taking their imprisonment very philosophically, and have conducted themselves so as to get released from the heavy irons they have been wearing.

GEORGE CRUIKSHANK is an enthusiastic teetotaler, and took occasion the other day, when invited to show his remarkable picture, the Worship of Bacchus, to Her Majesty, to give Queen Victoria a regular temperance lecture.

LETTERS received in Boston from Professor Agassiz's expedition report that up to February he had discovered fourteen hundred new species of fish and other animals—a number far greater than he had any reason to expect.

MR. WM. C. PETERS, the well-known music-publisher, died suddenly in Cincinnati on the 21st. The destruction by the late Opera House fire, of his immense collection of plates, the creation of which had been the labor of his life, no doubt hastened the event. His catalogue was the most extensive in the West previous to the conflagration.

EDWIN FORREST's engagement in California is for fifty nights, at $1,000 a night. The contract is the most extraordinary ever made with any actor, either in this or any other country, for the reason that on arriving at California, Mr. Forrest is bound to act if he does not feel disposed to do so, while the management makes it binding upon itself to do its own part. Madame Ponisi, Miss Lillie, and Mr. McCullough accompany the tragedian.

THE Augusta (Georgia) papers announce the advent in that city of Miss Ann Eliza Leak, who was born in that State without arms. She is represented as exceedingly attractive in her personal appearance, and as exhibiting the most wonderful dexterity in the use of her feet. She writes with her toes much better than most people do with their hands, besides knitting, sewing, embroidering, crocheting, and doing all kinds of needlework with astonishing ease and rapidity.

THE difficult feat of two men writing novels, as Beaumont and Fletcher wrote plays, and with the success which crowned the joint authorship of those brilliant masters of our city drama—a feat never attempted, we believe, in England, and but once in this country, when the late G. P. R. James and Mr. Maunsell B. Field produced between them a forgotten novel, "Adrian, or Clouds of Mind"—this remarkable feat, we say, has been, and still is being, accomplished in France, by two writers of repute, Emile Erckmann and Alexandre Chatrain, who have written together at least six novels within the last four or five years.

SPURGEON, the great pulpit orator of England has notoriously drawn a great deal of his eloquence from the inspiration of tobacco smoke and beer. His appearance betokens a man inclined to anything but ascetism. He has shown great persistency in resisting the appeals of reformers with reference to the two creature comforts I have named. A few years ago, an anti-tobacco delegation waited on him, and laid their good old stock arguments before him. When they had done, Spurgeon replied that he had listened attentively to their remarks, and this he would promise them, that the very next pound of tobacco he got he "would burn it." The committee collapsed. They gave him over as a fuliginous reprobate. Ephraim was joined to his idols and his pipe. Then the teetotallers have fired their broadsides into him for ten years; and like an unconquerable Briton he stood manfully by his beer barrel. At last, however, he has surrendered on the latter point. He has sworn off from beer and grog; but he will smoke.

Domestic Paragraphs.

—Aaron Jones, the famous English pugilist, is punching heads for the amusement of the Savannah public.

—The burglars in Petersburg, Va., bore a hole in a store, throw in a fishing line, catch a bundle of goods, and then draw it out.

—A New York company has purchased Howe's Cave for $250,000. The cave is located somewhere along the line of the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad.

—The boys of the grammar schools of New Bedford, Mass, have organized themselves in a society for the suppression of profanity and vulgarity in their schools.

—A New Haven firm has shipped a splendid carriage to Maximilian, in Mexico. The carriage was lined with blue satin, and was known as the Landeau style of carriage, and cost $2,500

—The trick of cutting off a man's nose, as performed by Heller, in Worcester, Massachusetts, on Wednesday night caused one of the audience—a man—to faint away. He was taken out on one of the settees.

—The St. Louis Democrat, of a late date, says: "Michael Griffin, the man with Hyperion curls, who was sent to jail yesterday by the Recorder on a charge of bigamy, is blessed with no less than thirteen wives!"

—In the town of Corry, Pa., one of the head-centres of the oil region, there is a newspaper man who owns and edits two journals—one of the extreme Democratic type and the other as radically Republican. The public "pays its money and takes its choice."

—A returned New Hampshire soldier, who had been sent to the State Prison two years for stealing a turkey, has been pardoned by Governor Smythe, who took into consideration the temptations in that direction to which he had been subjected while in the army.

—A lady who advertises herself as "an orphan, 18 years of age, and loves the water," proposes, through the Pittsburgh Dispatch, to swim in public for a reasonable sum. She says that "no doubt people will think it a wild idea," but that she "understands her business." We haven't any doubt of it.

—A fashionable wedding took place in New York last week, the daughter of one of the wealthiest citizens of the metropolis marrying a young lawyer from Troy. Jenkins informs the public that the bride's toilette cost $15,000, and that of each of the bridesmaid's $7,000, each being a present from the bride, who received $100,000 from each of her parents as a wedding portion.

—Eight or ten fires have occurred in Stonington, Conn., lately, and it has been ascertained that they were set by two colored boys who were hired to do the work by Palmer Loper, a son of one of the richest men in the state. His object seemed to be to make opportunities for distinguishing himself by extinguishing conflagrations. All parties are under heavy bonds for trial.

—The New Albany Ledger tells of an individual who had doubtless been reading cholera accounts, who presented himself before a physician the other day, expressing apprehensions that he was about to have it. In a few hours he was attacked with every symptom of the disease, and the next morning was almost hopelessly sick, having passed through the various stages of this terrible disease. It is a plain case of probable death from morbid imagination.

—A joint stock company has been organized at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for the purpose of building a corn starch factory. The amount of capital stock is $30,000, which has all been taken. The water power has been secured and steps taken to insure the early completion of the building, which is to be 120 feet square, and will cost $20,000. The company propose to use 200 bushels of corn per day, or about 60,000 bushels each year. This amount of corn will yield 6,000 pounds of starch per day, or 1,800,000 pounds per year.

—A joke was perpetrated upon some of the residents of a town in Wisconsin a short time since. A wag gave out that he had a "dime and pin" in his possession and desired to raffle it, whereupon a number of speculative persons became eager to secure a "throw" of the dice in its behalf. Thirty or forty handed in funds for this privilege; but as soon as the raffle was over, and the name of the fortunate winner declared, the facetious friend cooly drew from his pocket a ten cent piece with a pin through it, and with the most audacious gravity presented it, congratulating him at the same time upon his good fortune. A general laugh ensued, and the wag in propitiation of his villainy, treated to the oysters.

Foreign Gossip.

—A man at Ottawa, C. W., for attempting to destroy his life in a fit of jealousy, was sentenced to seven days' imprisonment!

—There is a young man in Bohemia, twenty-three years of age, who speaks thirty languages, including those of China and Japan.

—A Fenian Sergeant in the English army was sentenced to be shot for treason. Queen Victoria commuted his sentence to penal servitude for life.

—The Prince of Wales witnessed a recent launch, and, after it was over, the workmen took the plank on which he stood and cut it into chips, as souvenirs.

—Gen. Prim has been sentenced to be shot by the Spanish authorities; but, considering that he is in London, he will probably not feel very bad about it.

—Dr. Livingston recently stated in a lecture that no less than 40 missionaries succumbed to the deadly effects of the climate of Africa, before a single conversion took place.

—One hundred years ago Germany had no surplus agricultural projects other than wine. To day with nearly a quadruple population, she exports all manner of agricultural products, including cattle and sheep.

—The earl of Harrington, who died lately in France, of consumption, was just of age. His title and estates, worth £30,000 a year, go to a poor devil with 13 children who has been scratching hard for a bare living.

—Thirty-six thousand "moves" occur on an average every year in Paris—generally in April. The business of "moving" is carried on by firms of great skill in handling furniture, often packing the furniture of a whole house in one van.

—Whatever may be said about Napoleon's private character, scandal has never yet assailed the empress, and she is admitted by all to be as pure and irreproachable in her private character as Queen Victoria herself, who is the model of all excellence in this respect.

Cautious Testimony.

The following, which we take from the Meridian (Miss.) Messenger, shows how Old Dan Tucker stands an examination:

Amusing scenes sometimes occur in our County Court. As a general thing colored witnesses have a terrible idea of Court and its awful ceremonies; and giving evidence, with them, is accompanied by a smiting of the knees together and a painful confusion of the tongue. There was one on the stand the other day, whose manner was as deliberate as his answers were guarded. Old Dan Tucker, plaintiff, was called on to testify against Henry Cline, on trial for shooting Tucker's dog. There was a cautious smile playing around Daniel's ivory, while the following questions were propounded him by counsel for defendant, that was highly amusing:

Counsel—"What is your name, old man?"

"Daniel Tucker, sir."

Counsel—"Are you related to the old Dan Tucker we all used to sing about?"

"No, sir; another breed of dogs entirely."

Counsel—"What was your dog's name, Daniel?"

"Lawyer, sir."

Counsel—"Ah! strange name; why did you call him that?"

"Well, sir, he was always getting into fusses with other dogs, and poking his nose in what didn't concern him."

Counsel (with a majestic frown)—"What sized dog was Lawyer; answer me that?"

"Couldn't exactly say, sir."

Counsel—"Was he as large as a two-year old calf?"

"Couldn't say, sir; some two year old calves is large, some is small, and some is middling."

Counsel—"Was he a heavy dog?"

"I never weighed him, sir."

Desiring to obtain the location of the shooting, counsel proceeded:

"Do you live in Lowndes county?"

"They call it Lowndes county, sir; I don't know that it is."

Counsel—"Was your dog killed in Columbus?"

"Yes, sir."

Counsel—"Ah, yes, in what part of Columbus, Daniel?"

"Near my house, sir."

Counsel—"Where do you live?"

"At home, sir."

Counsel—"Where is your house?"

"On the ground, sir."

Counsel—"Of course it is; but where is the particular ground of yours?"

"Close by Mr. Green Hill's lot, sir."

Counsel (grimly smiling)—"Where is Mr. Green Hill's lot?"

D. T.—"Close by Mr. Wolmelsdorff's, sir."

Counsel—"Tell the jury where Mr. Wolmelsdorff's is?"

D. T.—"Cross the street from Mr. Atwater's, gentlemen."

Counsel—"Exactly; where is Mr. Atwater's place?"

D. T.—"Jist 'cross the street from Mr. Wolmelsdorff's, sir."

Counsel—"Be a little more explicit, Daniel; where did the defendant's bullet strike your dog?"

D. T.—"Right in de middle of his forehead, sir."

Counsel (playfully)—"That was one lawyer killed, Daniel?"

D. T.—"Not as many as dey ought to be, sir."

Counsel (with dignity)—"Now, Daniel Tucker, on your oath, did you see defendant shoot the dog?"

D. T.—"Well, sir, I saw smoke coming out of de gun, and de dog fell at de same time; didn't see the bullet when it struck him, sir."

Counsel—"You can stand aside, old man."

It was evident to all present that Daniel Tucker was determined the lawyer should not get his head wool gathered.

Agricultural and Scientific.

PEAS covered not less than six inches deep are said to hold green longer than those planted more shallow.

THERE is now a pretty little steamer on the Thames which runs 10 miles an hour without paddle-wheel or screw. She takes in water well forward, and expels it aft under each quarter, and can steer without her rudder, and can stop in less than her length when going at full speed. As all of this may be below the water-line, and not liable to injury, it is worth trying.

HOW TO TELL OIL THAT WILL EXPLODE.—Fill a tumbler three-fourths full of moderately cool water, then pour half a teaspoonful of oil into it, stir them together; then hold a lighted match over the tumbler, and if it takes fire from the vapor before the flame comes in contact with the oil, then it is dangerous, as good oil will not thus ignite, and, indeed, will not burn readily when the flaming match is thrown into it; while those which have been much adulterized with benzine will emit a vapor which is nearly as explosive as gunpowder, and the oil will then burn freely. Kerosene ought always to be tested in this way before using.

FOWLS EATING THEIR FEATHERS.—This is one of the most annoying habits to which domestic fowls are addicted. It is a morbid appetite, apparently induced by the impatience of the fowl under confinement. The best preventives are animal food, raw bones, oyster shells and charcoal, broken fine, and a variety of grains, with clean water and clean apartments. Sometimes a particular fowl shows a more inveterate disposition to eat feathers than the rest of the flock; it is best in such cases to remove or kill such fowls It is supposed that this habit is first induced while the fowls are moulting and their pin feathers are filled with blood, of which they are very fond.

CHARCOAL FOR HOG CHOLERA.—Bituminous coal is recommended as a preventive of hog cholera. I can endorse this from six years' trial, having lost but one hog in that time. In 1860 I had nineteen hogs intended for fall porkers, but the cholera got among them and killed eighteen. I made use of all the remedies I could hear of, until I saw it stated by some writer, that "stone" coal was an antidote for cholera. Since then, I have kept coal in their range, and have lost but one since, (whether from cholera or not I cannot tell) although hogs have been dying with cholera all around me; as many as a hundred on one farm. I have found coal ashes taken from grates, better than unburnt coal. The small pieces of coal and coke the hogs eat much more freely than the entire coal; it is softer and more easily masticated. If any one should be induced to try the ashes, they will be surprised to see the quantity hogs will eat, particularly, when generously fed on grain. —Cor. Prairie Farmer.

MUTTON.—Experience has proved that mutton for farmer's use is cheaper than all other meats. The cost of keeping sheep is more than balanced by the fleece that is generally taken from them, and especially may this be said of sheep in mild climates, where the farmer is not compelled to fodder but a small portion of the year.

Another important item is the yearly increase. From it, if he desires, the farmer can supply his table with mutton through the year; we would, therefore, advise saving the lambs, and kill, as far as may be necessary, the older sheep.

It is also a very convenient meat for the larder. A farmer's family can very rapidly consume a sheep before it will spoil, while this cannot be done with a beef, or other animals of a large size, without adopting some method of preservation. Besides, the time and labor employed in killing and dressing sheep is but little compared with what is necessary for large animals. Hence as a matter of convenience and economy, we advise every farmer to keep a flock of sheep.

That it is a healthy article of food, needs neither argument nor facts to prove. We know that pork is the chief meat of farmers, but when we consider the cost of making it as compared with mutton, and the results obtained in the profits therefrom, we think farmers generally will give mutton the preference.

HOW A FARMER MAY LOSE MONEY.—By not taking his country paper.

Keeping no account of farm operations.

Paying no attention to the maxim, "A stitch in time saves nine," in regard to the sowing of grain and planting seed at the proper time.

Leaving reapers, plows, cultivators, &c., unsheltered from rain and the heat of the sun. More money is lost in this way, annually, than most persons would be willing to believe.

Permitting broken implements to be scattered over the farm until they are irreparable. By repairing broken implements and tools at the proper time many dollars would be saved—a proof of the assertion that "time is money."

Attending auction sales, and purchasing all kinds of trumpery, because, in the words of the vender, the articles are "very cheap."

Allowing broken fences to remain unrepaired until "strange" cattle are found grazing in the meadow, grain field, or browsing the fruit trees.

Disbelieving the principle of a rotation of crops, before making a single experiment.

Planting fruit trees with the expectation of having fruit, without giving the trees half the attention required to make them profitable.

Practicing economy by depriving stock of proper shelter during the winter, and feeding them unsound food, such as half-rotten corn, mouldy hay, &c.

Keeping an innumerable tribe of rats on the premises, and two or three large, lazy dogs, who never molest the vermin.

Spending rainy days in groceries and barrooms, instead of being at home putting things to rights while you have leisure.

Reader, if any of the foregoing hints are applicable to yourself, we hope their perusal will benefit, instead of offending you. "Whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well," should be the farmer's motto.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.—A New Child's Paper.—We have received two copies of The Little Corporal, a monthly paper for children, the publication of which has been commenced at Chicago, Illinois, by Alfred L. Sewell. Judging from these specimens, it is the cleverest thing of its kind yet realized in America. Its whole appearance is in capital taste, and there is evidence in it that its editor has rare tact in catering for the wants of the little ones.—Roxbury (Mass.) Journal.

The subscription price is $1 a year. Specimen copies ten cents.

Take Time by the Forelock.

The miasma which generates epidemic fevers is now rising in clouds under the blazing beams of the dog day sun. Every living body, as well as refuse animal and vegetable matter, emits unwholesome vapors, and in crowded cities and the dense assemblages which business and pleasure call together the elements of disease are evolved. The pressure upon every vital organ is never so great as in the summer, and common sense teaches us that these organs require to be reinforced to meet it.

We hold our lives, so to speak, on a repairing lease, and this is the season when the process of dilapidation is most rapid and repairs are most required. Therefore build up, prop and sustain the powers of nature with that mighty vegetable recuperant, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. He who takes it may be said to clothe himself in sanitary mail, against which epidemic disease will hurl its poisoned shafts in vain. This is no gratuitous assertion, but a great medical fact, attested by twelve years' experience in every climate of the habitable globe. Extremes of temperature always disturb the functions of the stomach, the bowels, the liver and the skin. It is through these that the most dangerous maladies assail us. Tone them in advance with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS, and defy heat and malaria.

A Word About Gift Concerts.

The following we clip from the Chicago Evening Journal of April 28th:

When hundreds are investing in Gift Concerts every day, and thousands of others are intending to do so, a word about their respective claims may be of some importance. We advise all our readers to govern themselves by the following facts:

1st. The National Gift Concert is the only one owned and controlled by a party of established business reputation and ability. Martin O'Brien, the proprietor, carries on a large legitimate wholesale and retail business apart from this enterprise and of ten times more value. Indeed, the concert is used by him merely to advertise his regular business, and not as a means of making money. On this account he is able to give in prizes the money that the proprietors of other concerts must retain for their own profits.

2d. Mr. O'Brien is the only party who is vitally interested in making the drawing and distribution of gifts fair and honest. His success in using it for an advertising medium, and indeed his entire future business depends upon making his concert satisfactory to every ticket holder. His past experience in these matters is the best guaranty for the future. Of the three gift enterprises already carried through by him, we have never heard a word of dissatisfaction. In every instance the prizes were ready for delivery before the drawing, and were all drawn and all delivered as fast as called for. And he is the only one who has never postponed the time of drawing.

3d. Mr. O'Brien is the only proprietor of the gift concerts who gives a full list of his prizes completely numbered, and who gives a full and satisfactory explanation of the manner in which the prizes will be drawn and delivered. This he does in a neatly bound book which, besides this, contains many valuable statistics, and is sent free of charge with every ticket.

4th. Mr. O'Brien's concert offers better inducements than any other concert or gift enterprise in existence.

It gives a larger proportion of its prizes in money than any other.

It is the only one that gives its ticket holders the privilege of exchanging their prizes for other goods.

It is the only one whose small prizes are not made up of cheap jewelry or other worthless articles.

It is the only one that is extensively patronized by the citizens of Chicago.

5th. If you are not satisfied of these facts, and that O'Brien's is the place to buy tickets, we would suggest that you send your money to some friend, or to any reliable merchant, banker or editor in Chicago, with instructions to invest in the most reliable one without naming any. In ninety-nine cases in a hundred they will buy at O'Briens.

6th. There is no danger of losing money in sending by mail. Address plainly, M. O'Brien, 122 Dearborn Street, Chicago, and you will receive tickets and book by return mail.

Read the advertisement on the third page.

Remember the drawing takes place May 31st, and the tickets are nearly all sold already.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, April 28.
COTTON—Middling	$ .32	@	.33
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	8.75	@	9.15
WHEAT—New No. 1. Spring	1.88	@	1.91
BARLEY		@	.90
CORN—Sound Western	.86	@	.88
OATS—New Western		@	.49
PETROLEUM—Crude	.25	@
PORK—Mess new	27.87	@	28 12
BEEF HAMS	39.50	@	40.00
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	12.00	@	16.00
DRY GOODS—Merrimac	.19	@	.20
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville		@	.37
Brown Sheetings—Amoskeag		@	.22½
Delaines—Manchester		@	.22½
Denims—Manchester		@	.37½
GOLD—1.26¾.

CHICAGO, April 30, 1866.
BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$80.00	@	120.00
BEEVES—Stock to prime	4.25	@	$ 6.75
BEANS	.75	@	1.25
BRAN	9.00	@	10.00
BUTTER—Good Tub	.20	@	.22
CHEESE—Western	.20	@	.21
COFFEE—Rio	.26	@	.28
Java	.39	@	.40
EGGS	.15	@	.16
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	6.00	@	7.00
Malaga Lemons	7.00	@	7.25
Dried N. Y. Apples	.16	@	.17
Peaches Pared	.33	@	.35
Raisins, M. R.	4.00	@	4.00
FLOUR—Winter White	9.00	@	13.25
Spring Extra	9.00	@	9.75
Rye per bbl		@	4.30
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	10.25	@	10.00
Whitefish, " "	8.50	@	8.75
Codfish, per hundred	6.00	@	8.00
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.49	@	.50
Oats "	.30	@	.31
Rye	.59	@	.60
Wheat—Spring No. 1	1.52	@	1.53
Barley Canadian—sample	1.05	@	1 12
HIGHWINES		@	2.23
LARD	.20	@	.21
PORK—Mess	27.00	@	28 00
POTATOES	.45	@	.60
SHEEP—Medium wooled	5.00	@	5.50
SUGARS—Cuba	.12½	@	.14
New York Refined	.17	@	.17½
White A	.16	@	.16½
White B	.15½	@	.15¾
Yellow C	.14½	@	.14¾
SEEDS—Timothy, ⅞ bag	5.50	@	5.75
Clover	6.25	@	6.50
SALT—Fine	2.25	@	2.50
Coarse		@	2.00
TALLOW	.10½	@	.11

MORRELL'S ELECTRO MAGNETIC FLUID is the cheapest and best Lotion in use, being diluted with pure water before using. One bottle at $1 is equal to four at 25c each. Its curative powers are unequaled. See advertisement.

A FRIEND recently complained to us that he was suffering from a severe pain in the back across the kidneys and inflammation in the urinary organs. We recommended the use of DR. SWAIN'S Morning Beverage, and he informs us that the effect was all that he could wish; giving him early relief and restoring the system to a healthy tone.

USE SWAIN'S HAIR BALSAM.

DR. SWAIN'S
BOURBON BITTERS.
A Healthy Tonic, Gentle Stimulant, and Unequaled Morning Appetizer, prepared in RIPE OLD BOURBON WHISKEY
FREE FROM GRAIN OIL,
With Flowers, Buds and Barks of the Highest Medicinal Virtue.

By increasing the appetite, assisting digestion, regulating the bowels, and giving tone to the system, they impart strength and vigor to the body and cheerfulness to the mind.

☞ If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters, have him send for them.

☞ Remember the name, and take no other.

For sale by leading Druggists and Grocers everywhere.

C. H. SWAIN,
Proprietor, 34 S. Water St., Chicago.

Metropolitan Hotel!
COR. RANDOLPH & WELLS STS.,
CHICAGO, ILL.
B. H. SKINNER, - - - PROPRIETOR.
This Hotel has recently been enlarged by the addition of the May Hotel, and now contains Two Hundred and Fifty Rooms, well furnished and lighted with gas.

FAIRBANKS'
STANDARD SCALES
OF ALL KINDS.
Fairbanks, Greenleaf & Co.,
226 & 228 LAKE STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

The Little Corporal,
Is acknowledged by the leading papers to be the Best Children's Paper in America!
Published Monthly, at One Dollar a year, (ten cents for sample copy) by ALFRED L. SEWELL,
Circulars sent free. Chicago, Illinois

GARDEN CITY
Gift Enterprise
TO BE DRAWN AT CROSBY'S OPERA HOUSE,
CHICAGO, ILL.,
ON MAY 23D, 1866,
[Postponed from April 25th.]
And every fourth Wednesday thereafter.

10,000 GIFTS, VALUED AT $60,000
65,000 Tickets will be Disposed of.

In order to facilitate the distribution of Tickets, they will be given away in the following manner:

65,000 Prize Packages will be Sold at One Dollar each, and a Ticket will be given with each Package.

Each Prize Package contains some of the following list of Articles.

Every package contains something of value, and entitles the holder to a ticket. Send in your money at once, and buy a prize package. Send 3 stamps to pay the return of the package by mail; a ticket will be sent with each package. Each ticket has its duplicate, of the same number, which is registered before being sent out. The drawing will take place at Crosby's Opera House, or some other public place, where thousands of ticket holders can witness the drawing. The duplicate tickets will all be placed in a wheel, and drawn out by some disinterested person, chosen from the audience present on the day of drawing. A list of

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern Michigan

A LARGE STOCK

Most Varied

Stock of Furniture

VanTine & Smith's

NEW BUILDING,

Great Bargains

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS

MATTRESSES

CASKETS.

COFFINS,

A. JAMES

is Still at the Old Stand

Groceries & Provisions

SALT

TOBACCO,

CIGARS,

WOOD,

WILLOW,

STONE WARE,

DRUGS

DR. A. PELHAM.

Resident Dentists

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN

SHERMAN'S

Ambrotype Gallery.

Ambrotypes and Carte de visite

PERFECT MANNER.

Farms at all Prices.

VERY CHEAP.

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Authorized by the Spanish Government.

SCHEMES

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

FAYLOR & CO. Bankers, 14 Wall st. N. Y.

n790 3mp

A. J. HOAG,

Successor to Wm. Heffernan & Co.

WHOLESALE DEALER IN

Ambrotype and Photograph Stock,

No. 363 Front St. Toledo, O.

Agent for the Herald.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

DREW'S

New HARDWARE!!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass, Window Sashes

House Trimmings,

Carpenters Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Belts, and a Variety of SHELF GOODS,

THE LATE ADVANCE

THE WORLD

Copper, Sheet Iron and Zinc,

COOKING STOVES

NEW DRUG STORE.

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid in for good White and Amber Wheat. Mill Feed constantly for Sale.

In Greenbacks

SAWING DONE.

LUMBER for SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard

Woolston Comfort.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

United States Mail Route.

Real Estate for Sale.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN

SHERMAN'S

Ambrotype Gallery.

Groceries & Provisions

Farmers! Farmers!

RAISIN MILLS.

CUSTOM GRINDING.

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT,

SOUND.

Wheat taken in store for Bread

In Greenbacks

SAWING DONE.

LUMBER for SALE

Woolston Comfort.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

United States Mail Route.

Real Estate for Sale.

What is the Matter!

The Fact is the new firm of

SLAYTON TINDALL &Co.

FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT

By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff. And all the people are rushing to it. Come in we give a large stock of such when at hand yet, also

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,

CORN MEAL,

PLASTER,

WATERLIME,

CLOVER SEED,

TIMOTHY SEED,

CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF

Grain and Seeds!!

SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO.

Tecumseh, Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

Children's Heavy Skirts—from 6 to 11 years old

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartnership in the business of Tailoring, and offer for sale, at the old stand, Tecumseh, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE & FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions.

Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimmings &c. Also a large and well selected stock of

Crockery and Glass Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED

A. HOOD & CO.

Are Just receiving a Splendid

STOCK OF

Cloths Vestings,

Hats & Caps,

AND

Gents Furnishing goods

LOWEST FIGURES.

DEFY COMPETITION.

EUREKA.

NOT CALIFORNIA WITH ALL ITS GOLD,

Boots & Shoes at

Prices that suit the times, at

MC'LICHOL & WILSON'S

EMPIRE

Boot & Shoe Store.

Eastern Work to be Found

LADIES' CALF, GOAT AND KID GAITERS, BALMORALS, SLIPS.

What is the Matter!

The Fact is the new firm of

SLAYTON TINDALL &Co.

FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,

CORN MEAL,

PLASTER,

WATERLIME,

CLOVER SEED,

TIMOTHY SEED,

CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF

Grain and Seeds!!

SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO.

Tecumseh, Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

Children's Heavy Skirts—from 6 to 11 years old

C. H. ADAM & Co.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.

Published for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supplying at the same time the means of Self Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a post-paid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, may be had of the author.

NATHANIEL MAYNAIR, Esq., Brooklyn, Kings Co., N. Y.

n790 1ysmp

18 Pronunciemento 65

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grist for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would have others to try and see

How well we can do For them

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,

Best Red Wheat Flour,

2nd and Red Wheat Flour,

At Wholesale or Retail

Corn Meal, Feed and Coarse,

Fine Middlings, Best White,

Ship Stuff, Brown,

Mixed feed for horses and cattle,

Corn and Oats ground for horse feed

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE. They will always also usually find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING

Coarse and Fine Salt

WATERLIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster Paris, Lime

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL,

Corn In the Ear and Shelled

A good assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak, Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed, White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantable Lumber

Wm HAYDEN

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian on Monday the 12th day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six

Present, Robert R. Beecher, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Stephen E. Cole, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Osmond Tower praying that the administrator of said estate may be required and directed by said court to deed to him certain lands of said deceased for reasons in said petition stated

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday the 14th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for six successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ROBERT R. BEECHER,

Judge of Probate

(A true Copy.) 750w1

An Old Song, set to a New Tune

1866.

"18 years established in N. Y. City.

"Only infallible remedies known."

"Free from Poisons."

"Not dangerous to Human Family."

"Rats come out of their holes to die."

"Costar's Rat, Roach, &c., Exeter's, Is a paste—used for Rats, Mice, Roaches, Black and Red Ants &c. &c.

"Costar's" Bed Bug Exterminator, Is a liquid or wash—used to destroy, and also as a preventive for Bed Bugs. &c.

"Costar's Electric Powder, or Insects is for Moths, Mosquitoes, Fleas, Bed bugs, insects on Plants, Fowls, Animals, &c.

☞ Beware of all worthless imitations.

☞ See that "Costar's" name is on each Box, Bottle and Flask before you buy.

☞ Address, HENRY R. COSTAR, 482 Broadway, N. Y.

☞ Sold in Tecumseh, Mich. by Gould & Waldo, P. N. Curtis, and M. Wright, and all Druggists and Retailers 1866.

INCREASE OF RATS.—The "Farmers Gazette" (English) asserts and proves by figures that one pair of RATS will have a progeny and descendants no less than 351,000 in three years. Now, unless this immense family can be kept down, they would consume more food than would sustain 65,000 human beings.

☞ See "Costar's" advertisement above

1866.

RATS versus BIRDS.—Whoever engages in shooting small birds is a cruel man, whoever aids in exterminating rats is a benefactor. We should like some one to give us the benefit of their experience in driving out those pests. We need something besides dogs, cats, and traps for this business.—[Scientific American, N. Y.

☞ See COSTAR'S advertisement above.

1866.

"COSTARS' RAT EXTERMINATOR is simple, safe, and surely the most perfect RAT affair at meeting we have ever attended.—Every Rat that can get it, properly prepared, will eat it, and every one that eats it will die generally at some place as distant as possible from where it was taken.—[Lake Shore, Mich. Mirror.

☞ See "Costar's" advertisement above.

1866.

A VOICE FROM THE FAR WEST.

Speaking of "Costar's" Rat, Roach, Ant, & Exterminator—"more grain and property have been destroyed annually in Great Utah by the vermin than would pay for tons of this Rat and Insect Killer."—[Deseret News.

☞ See Costar's advertisement above.

1866

FARMERS and HOUSEKEEPERS—should recollect that hundreds of dollars worth of Grain provisions, &c. are annually destroyed by Rats, Mice, Ants, and other insects and vermin, all of which can be prevented by a few cents worth of "Costar's" Rat Roach, Ant Exterminator, bought and used freely.

☞ See Costar's advertisement above.

Ladies, take Particular Notice.

THE REAL VELPAU FEMALE PILL

[WARRANTED FRENCH.]

THESE PILLS, so celebrated many years ago in Paris for the relief of female irregularities, and afterward so notorious for their criminal employment in the practice of abortion, are now offered for sale for the first time in America. They have been kept in comparative obscurity from the fact that the originator, Dr. Velpau, is a physician in Paris of great wealth and strict conscientious principles, and has withheld them from general use, lest they should be employed for unlawful purposes. In overcoming Female Obstructions, Falling of the Womb, Whites, Green Sickness, Suppression, Retention, or Immoderate Flow of the Monthly Discharges, they seem to be truly omnipotent, bursting open the flood gates from whatever cause may have stopped them; but they are offered to the public only for legitimate uses, and all agents are forbidden to sell them when it is understood that the object is unlawful. Married ladies should never take them when there is any reason to believe themselves pregnant, for they will be sure to produce a miscarriage.

These pills are entirely safe under all circumstances, being composed entirely of substances from the vegetable kingdom.

Each box has the coat of arms for the City of Paris stamped on the box, with the words "Trade Mark" in French, to counterfeit which is a misdemeanor, and all persons will be dealt with according to law.

☞ Full directions accompany every box.

Ladies can obtain a box sealed from the eyes of the curious, by inclosing One Dollar and six post-office stamps to any respectable druggists, or to Q. G. STAPLES, General Agent for the United States, Watertown, N. Y.

Agents,

☞ Have you job printing done at the Herald Office.

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Neary, and Bridget Neary, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March, A. D. 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber "M" of Mortgages, on folios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J. Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] two, on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village [now city] of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid. Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriet A. Bradbury on the twenty first day of March, A. D., 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 17th day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber H. of mortgages on page 612; which said mortgage was afterwards, to wit: on the eighth day of February, A. D. 1866, duly assigned by said Harriet A. Bradbury to Addison J. Comstock, which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber H. of mortgages on page 612, no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage. Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money, and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents, [$573.12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty fifth day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage

ADDISON J. COMSTOCK,

Assignee of said mortgage.

M. N. HALSEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb. 21, 1866

Drs Jackson Herbert & Co.

15 Greatest Medical Circular Ever Published! 15

☞ Fifteen cents in large letter paper for two 3 cent stamps.

Prof. ELECT JACKSON, ROBERT HERBERT, M. D. Dr. EUGENE CLEPEAU, Jr.

THE NATIONAL DISPENSARY,

Established 1854.

Years of uninterrupted success in the cure of every form of private disease incident to adult age.

Science and fair dealing victorious over Empiricism and fraud.

We infallibly cure Syphilis, Gleet, Gonorrhœa Impotency Nocturnal and Diurnal Emissions, Complaints peculiar to females, and every form of private disease of whatever name or nature. Spermatorrhœa or Self-Abuse, that curse of Modern Manhood easily and specdily cured and every trace of its terrible effects eradicated from the system, without detention from business.—Young men bear this in mind, that we are in possession of the Secret Receipts and methods of practice of Culverwell, Lallemand, Hunter, Velpeau, Sen., Ricord and other great lights in modern medical science; for it is a fact of the very greatest importance, and we would ask any man of average common sense how can the thousand and one shallow pretenders hope to compete with us?

Unfortunates, ere trusting your health and money to heartless charlatans, at least write to Drs. Jackson, Herbert & Co., who will at once return you a kind, discreet and explicit answer. Ladies write for our circular.

Dr. Jackson's Female Monthly Pills, for a safe and effectual remedy for all irregularities and obstructions, from whatever cause. Price $1 per box, or four for $5.00.

The Mountain of Light or medical protector and Marriage Guide, and an Explicit Key to Love and Beauty. Containing 300 plates.

☞ This is THE book you want price 50 cents, 3 for $1.

Send for our special Circular containing more information and of far superior quality to any of the so called "pamphlets." Remember that we send a written reply to every letter, especially adapted to the particular case under consideration, because, in the nature of things each case differs from every other.

DR. JACKSON'S ORIENTAL LINIMENT removes all cause of disability and restores organs which have lain dormant for many years.

DR. JACKSON'S FRENCH PATENT MALE SAFE.

It is perfectly safe and never fails to give satisfaction. It is the only sure and safe preventative against contracting disease ever invented. Price—1 each, per half dozen $4, and per dozen $7, sent by mail.

Ladies or Married Females who desire to restore the love lost, or have found it difficult to obtain, can without exposure fulfill desire by using Dr. Herbert's Anti Aicoholic Douche, and an unfailing remedy for intemperance, write for particulars.

Medicine and instructions sent promptly to any part of the country. Consulting Rooms of the Dispensary, No. 197 Sycamore street, Cincinnati, O. P. O. Box, No. 538. Send for a circular.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF Lenawee, s.s.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, on Friday the 6th day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six.

Present, Robert R. Beecher, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of John Osborn, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified of Stephen V. R. Fly, Administrator, in the estate of said deceased, praying for the allowance of his final account with said estate and for distribution of moneys in his hands and for his discharge as administrator.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday the 7th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted:

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ROBERT R. BEECHER, Judge of Probate

(A true copy) n790w4

G. R. PALMER, Attorney at Law, and Notary Public, Lake Ridge, M. Particular attention paid to collections in any part of Michigan. Is prepared to draw and execute Deeds, Mortgages, Wills, &c.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c. at

A. JAMES

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVI. NO. 51 TECUMSEH MICHIGAN. THURSDAY EVENING, MAY 17, 1866. WHOLE NO. 807.

NEW GOODS,

PRICES DOWN!

H. C. CONKLING

Would call the attention of the public to his new stock of

CHOICE GROCERIES

Just purchased in New York at the

RECENT DECLINE,

which he offers for sale

CHEAP.

All Goods warranted to give satisfaction. Cash paid for Produce, as usual,

5000 Firkins

Of Butter Wanted!!

Butter firkins to put out to be filled:— ☞ Call and see those choice Teas. Don't forget, the old stand of Ketcham & Conkling

H. C. CONKLING

Tecumseh, May 7th, 1866.

CURTIS & PARSONS

(DEALERS IN)

Having become proprietors of the well known establishment in Bidwell's Block on Chicago Street, would respectfully announce to the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity, that they are prepared to supply them with everything in the line of Hardware, Tin ware, Iron, Nails, Chains, Cutlery, Beds, Seeds, Glass, Cradles, Scythes, Forks, Rakes, Carpenter's tools, Doors, Axes, Hoes Cistern Pumps, Putty, Spades and Shovels, Chains, Ropes and every article usually kept in like establishments.

Especial attention is called to the large assortment of Cook and Parlor Stoves & Fixtures, of which they have a large variety, embracing all the latest improvements, We have also a Tin Shop in opperation, for manufacturing & repairing all kinds of Tin, Copper and Sheet Iron Ware, Stove-pipe, Eave Troughs, Milk-Pans, Dippers, Cups, Oil-Cans; and every conceivable article, from a Large Dish Pan down to a Tin whistle. We are sole agents for the Universal Clothes Wringer, for this vicinity.

NEW PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY.

The subscribers having leased the spacious Hall in Bills' Brick Block, over Wright's Drug Store, have, regardless of expense fitted up a

FIRST CLASS PHOTOGRAPH

Gallery, and are now prepared to furnish every style of Photographic Portrait known to the art. We have large and convenient rooms, with side and sky lights combined and every facility for doing the best quality of work, and with our long experience in the art we feel confident that we can produce a quality of Photographic Pictures which for durability, correctness and brilliancy of tone are unsurpassed in New York City.

We have facilities for making Cabinet size Photographs and coloring them in either oil or water colors or finishing them in India Ink, in a manner SUPERIOR TO ANY IN THIS STATE

Mr. H. is a Colorist of many years experience and is willing to compare his work with that of any colorist in this country

Particular attention paid to enlarging from old Daguerrotypes, Ambrotypes &c Those having such pictures of deceased friends can have them copied to any size and finished in oil or water colors or India Ink, in the best manner and at reasonable rates.

Our patrons can be assured of getting none but FIRST CLASS work as we shall not in any instance allow an inferior picture to leave our gallery.

Satisfaction guaranteed in every respect or no charge for work. Please call and examine our specimens

C. H. Hopkins & Co.

Tecumseh, May 5th 1866.

Notice.

At a regular meeting of the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh, held on the 7th day of May 1866, the following By-Law ordinance was duly passed,

Be it ordained, by the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh: That the Marshall of the village of Tecumseh, be and he is hereby directed and instructed to notify the owner or occupant of each lot or parcel of land situate in said village adjoining a street along the same side of which street a plank side walk exists which is now out of repair, to repair or reconstruct the same as the case may require, within forty days after such notice, by supplying new material so far as necessary in repair, and to repair, reconstruct, as the case requires, such sidewalk so that said walk shall be in order and durable, observing plan specification and providing material the same as required by the original ordinance requiring its construction, or in default thereof, that the said walk be immediately repaired or reconstructed by said Marshall, and that the expense thereof be assessed upon said lot, and payment required of the owner thereof.

CHARLES BURRIDGE, Recorder.

Notice.

The assessment Roll of the village of Tecumseh, has been left at the Recorder's office for the inspection of all persons interested; and for the purpose of hearing any objection to said Roll the Assessors of said village will meet at the Recorder's office on the 21st day of May 1866. Wm. VanCamp, Geo: W. Ketcham.

G. T. KETCHAM'S BOOK STORE,

Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.

(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)

DEALER IN

CLOCKS, WATCHES,

FINE JEWELRY,

SPECTACLES,

WALL PAPER.

SCHOOL BOOKS,

FANCY GOODS,

YANKEE NOTIONS,

TOYS, ETC., &c.

—o—

I will sell any of the above goods as Cheap or Cheaper than any other dealer in the country, and WARRANT all goods sold as good as recommended.

—o—

CASH FOR RAGS!

—o—

Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.

J. D. Robbins.

TECUMSEH, - - - - - - MICHIGAN.

Glorious News,

Not from Mexico, but from the establishment of

MERRITT, MEEKER & Co

The people are just finding out that they can save from five to ten per cent in buying their Goods at the

CHEAP CASH STORE.

They have received and are still receiving every week additions to their

STOCK OF GOODS,

And are now prepared to supply the wants of all who wish to purchase anything in the line of

DRY GOODS,

YANKEE NOTIONS,

BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS

AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Particular attention is called to their stock

Of Boots and Shoes

which they are selling at from 10 to 20 per cent lower than any other establishment this side of sunrise. All who are in doubt can be convinced by calling and examining for themselves.

You will find Wm VanCamp on hand and ready at all times to show you any goods you may please to see, and who esteems it a pleasure to wait upon customers, and he will sell for our motto is "quick sales and small profits." Remember the place one door west of Drews Hardware Store

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN.—County of Lenawee, ss.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 2d day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six.

Present, Robert R. Beecher. Judge of Probate In the matter of the estate of Moses Burroughs deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of John P. Silvers praying that he may be appointed administrator on the estate of said deceased for reasons stated in said petition.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday, the eleventh day of June next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That the said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. ROBERT R BEECHER, (A true Copy) n806 Judge of Probate. O. C. COATS, Register.

NOTICE.

The Drain Commissioners of Lenawee Co. will meet at the dwelling house of F. Coats, in the township of Ridgeway, on Friday the 8th day of June next, at 9 o'clock A M. for the purpose of letting jobs on drain No. 40 also at the Steam Mill of L. Point in Ridgeway, on Saturday the 9th day of June next at 9 o'clock A M for the purpose of letting Jobs on drain No. 88, also at the dwelling house of S. Linn in Ridgeway on Monday the 11th day of June next at 9 o'clock A. M to let jobs on drain No. 51 the said jobs will be let to the lowest bidder in sections to suit bidders.

By order of the Drainage Commissioners.

JUSTUS LOWE, Secretary.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.
Express Freight,	6:50 A. M.
Mail and Express,	2:49 P. M.
GOING NORTH.
Mail and Express,	9:55 A. M.
Accommodation,	9:24 P. M.

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

GEORGE HEBEN,
Dealer in Ready Made Clothing, &c.
One door west of the Bank
Chicago st Tecumseh, mich

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD C. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich.

ALFRED JAMES.
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT.
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilet., &c.
Chicao St. Tecumseh, Mich.

P. N. CURTIS.
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER.
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich

GOULD & WALDO.
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St, - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN B. WOOD.
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER.
Attorney's, Counsellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT.
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & McCOWEN.
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWARD H. HOAG,
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

Henry Nyland.
Dealer in Boots & Shoes & Leather.
One door west of Bank, Tecumseh.

EMLAY & COURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harness and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HORACE BREWER.
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS.
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT.
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS.
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich,

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL.
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE.
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St - - Tecumseh, Mich

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St. Opposite P Office.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT.
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EXCHANGE HOTEL
Railroad St. - - - Tecumseh, Mich.
D. T. FISH, Proprietor.

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.

(One inch of column constitutes a square.)

	1 wk	3 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$ 2.00	$ 6.00	$ 7.50	$10.00
2 Squares	1.75	3 50	8.00	12.00	15 00
3 Squares	2.75	5 00	11.00	16 00	20.00
¼ Column	5.00	9.00	12.00	18.00	25.00
½ Column	7 50	12.00	18.00	25 00	36.00
Column	12 00	15.00	20.00	35.00	60.00

☞ No advertisement considered less than one square Transient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted at 3.50 per year.

☞ Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

Grand Trunk Railway.

The Cheapest, Quickest, and Safest route TO THE EAST.

Tickets to all the Eastern cities and intermediate places for sale at this office.

☞ We will take wood, butter, lard, eggs, potatoes, and all kinds of farm produce, on subscription for the "HERALD." So bring it along.

To Our Friends.

You will confer a favor on us by soliciting the Judge of Probate to publish Probate Notices in the HERALD, and you will also find it convenience to yourselves to have the advertisements in the paper you receive.

☞ Do not forget that Tribou & Bidwell Bros. are receiving New Goods almost daily and are selling at very low figures.

☞ Nervous Headache, Sick Headache, Dyspesia, Constipation of the bowels, Costiveness and Diseases of the Liver, can be cured by the use of Dr. P. N. Curtis' Headache and Dyspeptic Pills.—Price 50 cents, a box. Every box warranted to give satisfaction or money refunded.

☞ Hon. F. C. Beaman, member of Congress for this District arrived in Adrian last Saturday.

☞ Dr. J. H. Champion, formerly Editor and proprietor of the Adrian Watchtower has removed to Owosso in this State.

☞ Wall Paper at J. D. Robbin's—The largest assortment in town. Give him a call and don't fail to get Judd's Patent Window fixtures for your Curtains, they are the best.

HOSIERY.—It will pay you well to buy Winter Hosiery at Moore's and keep them until next Fall—he is selling at very low rates—do not fail to look at them He has also a splendid line of Hosiery and Gloves for spring,—some of the best White Cotton Hose ever offered to any community—also Men's socks in great variety.

☞ Buy your Paints and Oils of Dr Curtis.

☞ Our townsman T. T. Kneeland, has received a patent for an improved Sorghum Evaporator. He will undoubtedly make good a thing of it.

☞ A new time table went into operation on the Michigan Southern Railroad last Monday. All the trains on the Jackson branch leave this station later than before, and they all connect at the Junction with trains on the main line, thus making the connections better than they ever were before. Passengers can go from here to Toledo or Detroit, do a fair days work and return the same night.

☞ Summer Stuffs—appropriate for youth and old age—good for all bipeds who can wear trowsers—can be found at Moore's.

☞ Ketcham has just received the largest stock of paper collars ever offered in Tecumseh, embracing all the leading varieties, qualities and styles. Particular attention is called to the new enameled 1 X L collar, which is constructed on such a principle as to remove all objections which have heretofore been made against enamelled collars.

☞ Buy your wall paper of Dr. Curtis.

☞ A few more of those splendid Tilting Silver Hooped Skirts at Moore's: Young Ladies!—"Go in"

☞ Call at Gould and Waldo's for Choice Teas at low Prices.

☞ Read the new advertisements.—H. C. Conkling, Groceries; Curtis & Parsons, Hardware; New Photograph Gallery; Tribou & Bidwell Bros. Dry Goods.

The New Photograph Gallery.

We paid a visit recently to the new Photograph Gallery of C. H. Hopkins & Co. and found it to be more complete even than we had anticipated. We hazard nothing in saying that they have the best and most convenient rooms in town—in fact, the internal arrangement of the rooms appears to be perfect. Their reception room is large and well proportioned; their operating room is furnished with the best of light and the dark closets are conveniently situated. There is a large water tank in the operating room, which will hold sixteen barrels of water, into which runs a conductor from the roof, by which arrangement they are furnished with an abundance of water.—There is a separate room partitioned off at the east window of the reception room which they design to use for painting and solar work. They commenced operations last Wednesday and have already received several orders from some of our first citizens—among others we noticed some beautiful specimen pictures of Hon. P Bills and Prof C. B. Thomas. They have facilities for taking all the styles and kinds of pictures known to the art of Photography;—including Ambrotypes, Albatypes or porcelain pictures, Cartes de visite, Vignettes, Gems, Medalions, Bon-Tons, and Cabinet card life size Photographs, finished in oil or water colors or India Ink They have several new styles of Vignetts for Albums. In short they are prepared to take pictures of all styles and sizes varying in price from ten cents to fifty Dollars. They are determined to suit all tastes, all ages, and all purses. We understand they design to pay particular attention to enlarging from old Daguerotypes and Ambrotypes, and to photographing buildings, landscapes &c. We trust our citizens will give them a call and examine their work. See their advertisement in another column.

A Record worth Having.

The following students of the Tecumseh Union School, have maintained a perfect standing in all their studies during the first four weeks of the spring term:

FIRST GRADE.—Ida Stevens, Martha A. McKinney, Amy A. Smith, Newton J. Satterthwaite.

SECOND GRADE.—Vernor B. Crane, Lucian Miller.

THIRD GRADE.—Howard A. Blackman Lewis M. Waldron.

FOURTH GRADE.—Francis M Bell, L. Saviers, John D. Chambers, Ella M. Schreeder.

Those whose names follow have been perfect in deportment for the same time: Fannie Richard, Alice Richard, Julia Robertson, Ophelia Hillman, Amy Smith, Dela Beal, Libbie Sherman, Virginia Webster, Charles Dell, Lewis Meeker, Fred Rosacrans, LaFayette Rowland, Lester Tribou

Many whose names do not appear have only fallen below the standard once or twice; but the list would be too long for publication if their names were given.

Fire.

Our village was visited with another fire last Friday afternoon. The dwelling house of Jerome Cleveland, situated near the west line of the corporation was discovered, about 2 o'clock, to be on fire, but the flames had already progressed so far that it was impossible to check them The fire probably originated about the chimney in the loft, as, when the alarm was first given, the chambers were filled with fire and smoke. Nearly all the family clothing and some of the best furniture were in the chambers none of which was saved. Most of the furniture in the lower part of the house was preserved. There was no wind, otherwise the adjoining houses might having taken fire also. The building was insured in the Climax.

☞ The recent destruction of Mr. Cleveland's house by fire should be a warning to all to have their dwellings insured. Be wise in time Insure to-day, for to-morrow your buildings may be burned. Go and get the genuine article of S. C Stacy Insurance Agent.

☞ Van Amburgh & Co's Menagerie will exhibit at Adrian to-day. This menagerie undoubtedly contains the largest and most complete collection of living animals that has ever been on exhibition in this country. It is well worth going to see.

☞ Whitefish, Codfish, and No. 1 Mackerel at Gould & Waldo's.

☞ Have you job printing done at the Herald Office.

☞ Gould & Waldo pay cash for Butter and Eggs.

Hotels.

Every town has its eras. Tecumseh had its Hotel Era last Monday. On that day Messrs. Merritt & Burgher opened the new "NATIONAL HOTEL" in the Usborne Block, by furnishing a free dinner from 3 to 7 o'clock P. M. The dinner was an honor to the House and was partaken of by a host of callers. The proprietors are energetic young men with some experience in the business and are determined to keep the best Hotel in the city, thereby being sure to gain the custom which such a House does (Merritt) merit, and being amply supplied with the means of making a 'Burgher' of all their patrons the NATIONAL, will thrive. At all events, they have made a very propitious begining and will doubtless receive their full share of the public patronage.

We wish our tale was told, but alas it is not. On the same day, the wing of the old Mansion House, situated next to the rising sun having been afflicted for some months past with an attack of old age, departed this life with scarcely a struggle, amid a host of admiring mourners and dragging with it to the dust hundreds of dependent lives. "O! what a fall was this, my countrymen." Our heart is so full for utterance. We will furnish our readers with the particulars of this sad demise in our next.

Married.

At the residence of the brides mother, on Monday May 14th, 1866, by Rev. S. E. Wishard, MR. LAVERN I. BIDWELL and MISS NELLIE J. BEERS, all of this village.

The interesting ceremony took place about 5 o'clock in the afternoon and at 6 the bridal party started for Adrian to take the western train for Chicago. And thus another couple have launched their bark for the journey of life with the brightest prospects before them. Lavern, we cannot forbear calling him once more by his old familiar name, is one of our most promising young men, and Nellie is second to none of our fair daughters in beauty, talents and accomplishments.—To use a military phrase, we consider that he is exactly "the right man in the right place." An old sailor fancies that a "fair start" is generally followed by a successful voyage, and if this be so, the future life of our young friends cannot but be happy and prosperous. May they be blessed with many years of health and prosperity. May their shadows never grow less, but rather increase in number, as the years roll by. May their children be as industrious as the bridegroon, as handsome as the bride, and as sweet as the cake which they presented to the printer. And finally, may their family squawls always be of the right kind.

May he prove a good Sailor on life's troubled sea,
Riding safe through its storms and its strife;
And may all of his Bin's full as fortunate be,
As the bid that he made for a wife.

At the Episcopal Church in this village, on Thursday May 17th, by the Rev. Mr. Staunton, MR. ALONZO ALLEN and MISS NELLIE A. NASH, all of this village.

So they go. One by one our village belles are surrendering their hearts and hands, and our village beaux, tiring of single life, are graciously "stooping to conquer" the fair ones, and assuming the dignitaries and duties of "father of the family." They have our best wishes for a long and happy life, blessed with "little responsibilities."

In this village, at the residence of, and by the bride's father, on the 9th inst. Mr. J. N DEPUY and Miss LIBBIE HILL.

In this village, May 9th, at the M. E Church, by Rev. J. H. Burnham, ALANSON B. BANGS and ALMEDA M. COLLAR.

☞ The Michigan Southern R. R. have lately put a new and beautiful locomotive Engine on the road, which is named "Tecumseh." A tip top name, at all events.

☞ A clerk, down east, having one morning in church proclaimed the bands of matrimony between a 'gal' and her 'feller,' was followed by the clergyman reading a hymn of Watts' beginning thus: 'Mistaken souls who dream of Heaven.

☞ Why do Merritt, Meeker & Co. sell Goods so cheap?

1st. Because they buy for Cash.

2nd. Because their expenses are small.

3d. Because they sell for Cash.

4th. Because they are satisfied with small profits.

If you want Fancy Dress Goods go to Merritt, Meeker & Co.

If you want Shirtings or Sheetings, Prints at one shilling per yard, Boots Shoes, Hats, Caps and Cassimeres go to Merritt, Meeker & Co's.

☞ Our readers will please bear in mind, that we are to be favored with two Dramatic entertainments, exhibited under a spacious tem that will hold 1200 people, by Hough's Theatrical troupe from Detroit. This company have been highly applauded, wherever they have been and our citizens can look for a rich treat.—This (Thursday) evening, will be enacted the Drama of "Uncle Toms' Cabin," and to-morrow evening, the celebrated Drama of "The Hidden Hand" in five acts, taken from Mrs. Southworth's Great Ledger Story.

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Mich., May 17, 1866.

Buston,	Blair Wm.
Clark S. D.	Donely Frank
Delong George	Graves Madison
Homer George	Hoag Abigal
Hall Jos. T.	Osborn Mrs. Margaret
Reynolds William	Slater J.
Simerson Mary	Wright C. H.

W. ANDERSON, P. M.

☞ Tribou & Bidwell Bro's. have just received a nice article of Ladies Cuffs and Collars. They are all the rage—only one dollar a sett.

☞ A splendid shower on Saturday night, visited this section, doing a vast amount of good. It was the first 'smart' shower for a month, and its effects on vegetation is already plain to be seen in the rapidly expanding foliage of the trees, and the deepening emerald of the meadows.

☞ Our Marshal has erected some very nice hitching posts in front of Mechanics' block.

Co-Partnership.

The subscribers have this day formed a co-partnership under the firm and name of Hoag & Stevens, to carry on the Boot & Shoe business, at the old stand of B. J. Bidwell, E. H. HOAG.

Tec. April 28th 1866. H. W. STEVENS.

All persons indebted to E. H. Hoag are requested to call and settle immedaiely and save costs.

☞ There is nothing more certain to prevent female irregularities than Dr. Velpau's Female Pills. They will in all cases cause a return of monthly sickness, without which no unmarried lady can enjoy perfect health. Sold by all Druggists.

HOW SOOTHING.—How sublimely beautiful are the sweet strains of Melody, as they come borne to us upon the wings of evening! How it fills the heart with gladness! Yet, midst all this joy and happiness, how it mars our pleasure to see our neighbors or companions suffering from the ravages of a violent cough or an obstinate cold. The soothing, quieting properties of Coe's Cough Balsam always all the irritations, and will speedily cure the most obstinate cases of croup, cough, sore throat, and influenza. Take it freely.

☞ A soft or green Quaker would be as great a curiosity as a dissipated Hebrew; but not so great a one after all as to find the woman who did not prefer for the J. Monroe Taylor Gold Medal Soap to any other the world can produce.—Wife says it makes old clothes look as well as new, and a cross man the pleasantest and most lovely creature on the globe. Try it, and our word for it, you will always patronize the Gold Medal Soap.

Hear Ye! Hear Ye!!

Do you want the best Card pictures in this section.

Do you want those gems of art, Opatotypes or Porcelains? Do you want work warranted? Do you want to suit yourselves? Do you want the best that Art affords? Then go to Powers rooms over the P. O. Tecumseh, Michigan, and you can find FIRST CLASS WORK of every description. He is bound not to be out done in any branch of the business. Pictures of any size done to order in INDIA-INK, WATER or OIL COLORS, on short notice and in the best style

Persons having small Negatives which they like can have pictures made from them life size or smaller as they choose and finished in India ink, water or oil colors. Give him a call and examine his work. You will find him gentlemanly, courteous and ever ready to oblige. He is bound to give satisfaction to all. No poor work allowed to leave the rooms He has the best instruments known and acknowledged to be such by all superior Artists. One half of the pictures that took the premium at the last County Fair, over A. J. Hoags name, were of Powers make. Do you want proof, call and examine. Powers has served three years in the army, and deserves the patronage of the public. You will find him prompt, active and always at his place of business

We would respectfully inform the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity that we opened a at McGee's old stand in Bidwell's warehouse where we shall keep on hand everything in our line that the market affords, of the best quality that can be had.

MEAT MARKET,

We have also made arrangements for the manufacture of SOFT SOAP, which will be sold at reasonable rates. Ashes and grease taken in exchange and Soap delivered when requested Thankful for past favors, we cordially invite our friends to give us a call. All orders left at the Market will be promptly attended to. W. TAYLOR & CO.

HEYKE & SCHUBERT

Artists in Fresco,

Encaustic and Decoations---Painting.

Office and Gallery at J. H. Cole & Bro's Building, Adrian, Mich.

Churches, Halls and Private Dwellings of the finest and best Style frescoed—Charges Moderate—P. O. Box 506.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

General Intelligence.

News from Venezuela, intimates that that Republic was very likely to side with Spain in her war against Chili.

The French residents of Valparaiso have put in claims for losses by the recent bombardment of that city.

Probst, the murderer, is said to have gained 20 pounds since his imprisonment,—a fact says an exchange, which is gratifying, as it will render the prompt dislocation of his neck more certain when he is hung.

The President has signed the bill incorporating the International Telegraph Company between the United States and Cuba.

Letters from Japan state that the ironclad vessel built in America for the Tycoon is a failure. The Japanese engineer who purchased her committed suicide.

The Secretary of War has ordered Gen. Terry to regard the President's peace-proclamation as doing away with martial law in Virginia.

The British Minister in Chili was requested to vacate the house occupied by him, and then was unable to obtain another, every one refusing to rent to him.

Thirty thousand copies of Bancroft's eulogy on Lincoln, ordered by Congress, will be ready in ten days. A beautiful steel portrait of Lincoln is in the frontispiece, engraved by the Government engravers.

A few months ago a gentleman made O'Mahony a present of 1,000 sabres, promising 500 more in a short time. A few days ago he called at Union Square and offered 500 more, when this distinguished Head Centre replied that "he did not want them now."

The Nova Scotia legislature has voted $2,000 to the widow of Dr. Slayter, who died by cholera while employed in attending on the England's passengers. It is also proposed to erect a monument to his memory on some conspicuous point of McNab's Island, in Halifax harbor.

The President has approved the bill extending the time for the completion of the Union Pacific railroad, Eastern Division, until the 27th of June, 1866 The time for completing each succeeding section of 100 miles is to be reckoned from that date. The bill also extends for two years the time for commencing and completing the Northern Pacific railroad and all its several sections.

Admiral Nunez has addressed a letter to the Spanish Minister at Washington, giving his version of the negotiations preceding the bombardment of Valparaiso. He states that he declined to accept the proposition of the United States officials, but offered to agree to that made by the British and French, provided the captured steamer Covadonga were restored; and says that both Admiral Denman and Commodore Rodgers approved the determination at which he arrived.

Western Matters.

The salary of the governor of California is $14,000 in gold.

The organ of the Fenians in San Francisco, Cal., is printed in green ink.

Edward P. Eastman, the head of the Chicago Branch of Eastman's Business College, died on the 10th inst.

An inflamable stone has been discovered in La Fayette county, Wis., which is of a clay color and burns like bituminous coal.

Jeffersonville, Ind., has been announced to be the principal depot in the Quartermaster's Department in the place of City Point, Va.

Three ministers were arrested at Palmyra, Mo., last week, and placed under $1,000 bonds each, for preaching without having taken the new constitutional oath.

Horace Rublee, Esq., of Wisconsin, has been nominated by the President as United States Consul to Rotterdam. Mr. Rublee, is editor of the Madison Journal.

William B. Shoemaker, Sheriff of Gentry county, Mo., was found dead in the road, a few days ago, with a pistol-shot in his head. He is supposed to have been murdered.

The steamer Enterprise was wrecked on Rock Island bridge on Monday. She sunk close to Davenport, Iowa. Loss estimated at $15,000.

A negro man at Cincinnati, O., sued the judge at an election for refusing his vote. He claimed $10,000 damages, and the jury gave him one cent.

The city government of Louisville, Ky., pays one cent each for every dead rat brought to it, killed within the city confines.

Mrs. Elizabeth Draebing committed suicide in Cincinnati on the 10th, by cutting her throat with a carving knife. This makes the seventh case of self-destruction in that city within two months.

On the 6th inst., a man named Drenin Nichols and his two children, living in Illinois, nearly opposite Muscatine, were drowned by the upsetting of a skiff. His wife made a narrow escape.

Thurlow W. Brown, the well-known pioneer of temperance, to which cause he has devoted nearly his whole life, died at Fort Atkinson on the 4th, of consumption from which he had suffered a year and a half.

A rabid dog bit some 40 fine merino sheep at Galesburg, Mich., some three weeks since, and within the last few days symptoms of hydrophobia appeared among them and 12 died in the course of a day or two.

On the night of the 7th, five fires occurred in Chicago, occassioning $150,000 loss. At one of them, barrels of kerosene exploded with a noise like cannon, and the oil running on Chicago river, gave it the appearance of a stream of fire.

Fort Goodwin, Arizonia, has been captured by the Indians, and its garrison, numbering one hundred and twenty-four persons, massacred, with one exception. It is thought the Indians gained admission to the fort under pretext of entering into a treaty of peace.

A Convention of Railroad officers was held at Indianapolis on the 10th, and a new schedule of freights, making considerable advance in prices, was adopted. Nineteen railroads were represented. The new rates make the following charges: For flour from Cincinnati and Chicago to New York, all rail, $1.40; from Louisville, $1.30; from St. Louis and Quincy, $1.40; from Columbus, $1

Sterling King, a notorious horse thief, and who made a confession some time since declaring that he was an accomplice in the assassination of President Lincoln, died yesterday on board the steamer plying between Louisville and Cincinnati. His death was brought about by starvation, he having refused all but the merest morsel of food for the past forty days.

The first regiment of Maryland colored troops returned to Baltimore on the 10th. Whilst passing through the western section of the city, a conflict occurred between some of the colored people following the soldiers and a number of whites. Blows were exchanged, fire-arms are reported to have been used, and one or two parties were wounded.

Eastern Matters.

The New York Herald is to be enlarged on 1st of July next to a sixteen page paper.

The Pottsville (Pa.) Miners' Journal says that coal is now selling in that region as low as it did in the first year of the war.

In Troy, N. Y., on the 5th, St. Mary's (male) Orphan Assylum was destroyed by fire, the work of incendiarism.

General Orris S. Terry was yesterday nominated as candidate for the United States Senate from Connecticut.

The Henrietta Grieve has arrived at St. Johns with 10,000 seals. This is the greatest cargo on record, obtained by a sailing vessel.

A jealous husband named Sutz, living at Fayette City, Pa., while prowling about in his own house, on Saturday night, was mistaken for a burglar, and shot.

By the explosion of the press mill of the Hazardville (Conn.) Powder Manufacturing Company, on the 7th, four persons were killed—John Keesan, Edwin Burke, William Agnew, and Patrick Bailey.

Gov. Hawley, of Connecticut, in his inaugural address, takes strong grounds in favor of negro suffrage, and advises that it again be submitted to a vote of the people of the state. With reference to federal relations he is as radical as the most radical.

A curious accident happened on Broad way Friday afternoon. A man tearing down the sidewalls of a seven story house near Broome street, partially suspended from a rope tied round his body, missed his footing on the wall, and, was nearly hung to death before being rescued, the rope having slid over his waist to his neck, where the noose tightened.

At New York, on the 9th, the celebrated trotting horse, Dexter, was sold at auction. The first bid was made by John Morrissey, who offered $12,000. Eventually, Mr. Louis Pettee bid $14,000, at which price the horse was knocked down to him,—Mr. Pettee buying him in for his former part owner, Mr. George Alley of Astoria, L. I. Dexter was eight years old this spring.

The Newburyport Herald says that "Hod" Annis—the Lord robber—"has exhibited his filial piety by purchasing a farm for his father, valued at $15,000, at Hocksett, New Hampshire, and stocking it in good shape. He is now in Canada, but will go to New York soon for the purpose of appearing before the State police authorities, who are overhauling the matter and questioning the detectives somewhat sharply. As the said detectives have, perhaps, $50,000 each, they can afford to be questioned.

The death warrant for the execution of Antoine Probst, on Friday, the 8th of June, was received by the Sheriff of Philadelphia on the 9th. The Evening Telegraph says that the prisoner received the announcement quietly and seemingly unmoved. He had previously told his confessor that he believed that death was the only expiation for his crimes, and that he was willing to suffer. No person except his confessor will hereafter be allowed to visit him. May 9, three years ago, Probst landed in this country.

Southern News.

The regular troops recently arrived in Texas are acting very badly, engaging in drunken rows and fights at Galveston.

Meridian, Miss., has increased within 12 months from an insignificant village to a smart town of 1,500 or 2,000 inhabitants.

On the 7th, a negro at Frankfort, Ky., who had outraged a little girl, was taken from jail by a mob of citizens and hung to a tree.

Red river planters say the cotton seed is universally rotten. Devastating overflows are feared. Red river is higher than ever known before.

A committee has been appointed by the citizens of Columbia, South Carolina, to ascertain whether Gen. Sherman or Wade Hampton set fire to that city.

The Memphis Argus proposes to inquire into the propriety of making a new State out of West Tennessee and North Mississippi, to be called the State of Jackson, with Memphis for its capital.

On the 10th, Jefferson Davis was indicted for treason by the grand jury of the United States District Court, now in session at Norfolk, Va., and the trial of the prisoner will take place, it is supposed, in June.

It is alleged that not less than 500 cows have died in the District within the last six months of the cattle plague, and several dairy men have abandoned their business on account of it. The disease was brought from Pennsylvania.

Secretary McCulloch, who has made a trip to Fortress Monroe and back, had, while at the Fortress, a few moments' conversation with Jeff. Davis. There was nothing of special interest in the interview, the conversation being general and quite brief. Davis is not enjoying good health.

Gen. Fisk, who is in Memphis, has signified his intention to have all the negro churches rebuilt in better style, and will see that the city foots the bill of damages committed by the late mob. He advertises for negro carpenters, masons, and laborers to do the work.

A military commission has been convened by order of Lieut. Gen. Grant, and is now in session at Norfolk, Va., for the purpose of investigating the causes which led to the recent riot in that city. The proceedings will be conducted with closed doors, and the evidence will be submitted directly to Gen. Grant.

The anniversary of the death of Stonewall Jackson was observed in Richmond on the 10th, by floral decorations of the graves of Confederate soldiers at Holywood and Oakwood. Both cemeteries were thronged with ladies and their escorts. Several brief addresses were made at each place. Business was generally suspended in the city.

Despatches from North Carolina reveal further acts of malfeasance on the part of the agents of the Freedmen's Bureau in that State. Col. Whittlesey, the Commissioner for the State, and several of his subordinates, it is alleged, have been discovered running plantations on private account, and working delinquent or disorderly darkeys on them for punishment. Several arrests have been made, and more will be.

On Monday night of last week an attempt was made to burn the African churches in Petersburg, Va., and one of three set on fire was consumed. The utmost indignation is expressed by the press and people of that city at the outrage, and the Mayor has offered a reward of $5,000 for the arrest and conviction of the perpetrators. The citizens have subscribled $4,000 toward rebuilding the burned church.

Since the arrival of Mrs. Davis at Fortress Monroe, she has tenderly looked after the failing state of her husband's health, and entertains, it is said, serious fears of his ultimate recovery, should he be attacked during the coming summer by one of his periodical spells of intermittent fever or congestive chills. The general health of Mr. Davis remains comparatively good, and it is only the long imprisonment that he has been subjected to, and the many anxious fears and doubts which have weighed so heavily upon his mind, that has produced the very noticeable change in his appearance during the past year.

Financial and Commercial.

The Government will lose by the Merchants' National Bank failure five hundred forty-seven thousand dollars.

It should be known that the Redemption Division of the Treasury will receive packages of mutilated national currency in sums amounting to over three dollars. So many packages of that sum are received that it is thought people are of opinion that is the limit.

The largest amount of revenue drawn from the British people in one year never exceeded $370,000,000, while the amount drawn the present year from the people of the United States is at the rate of $540,000,000 per annum.

The investigation now being made in Washington into the affairs of the Merchants' National Bank, brings to light an additional loss to the Government, amounting to $250,000. This sum was deposited by the disbursing clerk of the Treasury Department. There is said to be small prospects of the depositors realizing anything from the wreck of the concern.

The Internal Revenue Bureau, acting under the general law, requires all citizens of the South to render income returns for the year 1864, as well as for 1865. Some of the rebel officers residing in Alexandria, Va., are startled by calls of assessors upon them to furnish the required statements, and are surprised that rations received by them in the Confederate army are estimated at forty cents per diem. One of them expressed his readiness to pay his tax in Confederate money, but this was of course declined.

The Government has finally determined to hold the gold claimed by the Richmond banks as belonging to them. The proofs seem to establish clearly that the gold belonged to the so-called Southern Confederacy, and was in deposit with the banks, subject to the drafts of the Confederacy.

The Comptroller of the Currency states the actual receipts for the current fiscal year to April 1st were $410,041,232, and estimates the whole amount, to July 1st, at $540,000,000, to which may be added $20,000,000 for income tax. Mr. Clarke estimates that next year's revenue will not fall below this year's, and that, deducting expenditures, as now estimated, there will be a balance to the credit of the Government of $249,000,000 on the 30th of June, 1867.

The New York Evening Post publishes the following calculations:

"The saving of interest by the conversion of a six per cent. debt into one bearing only five per cent. is simply one per cent. per annum. An easy calculation shows that the amount of this on $2,000,000,000 would be as follows:

In 1 year	$ 20,000,000
In 20 years	400,000,000
In 40 years	800,000,000

"If, however, the amount should be semi-annually set apart as a sinking fund, bearing compound interest at five per cent. per annum, the following would be the result:

In 20 years the compound interest would be	$ 284,793,956
In 20 years the principal would be	400,000,000
Total	$ 684,793,956
In 40 years the compound interest would be	1,712,943,538
In 40 years the principal would be	800,000,000
Total	$2,512,943,488
In 36½ years, compound interest and principal	$2,050,557,200

"From this statement it appears that the annual saving of interest, which would be effected by a change from six per cent. to five per cent. would give us a sinking fund which would pay off the whole of our national debt in thirty-six and a half years."

Congressional Doings.

In the Senate, on the 7th, the postal appropriation bill was considered, the question being on the motion to reconsider the vote by which Mr. Trumbull's amendment, prohibiting pay to Presidential appointees to office, until confirmed by the Senate, was adopted. After a lengthy discussion, the motion to reconsider prevailed, 21 to 18. The Senate adjourned without taking any further action.

In the House, on the 7th, a resolution was adopted that the Judiciary Committee inquire into the expediency of reporting a bill prohibiting any Territory from denying negro suffrage; also, that hereafter no Territory shall be admitted into the Union unless suffrage be allowed, regardless of race or color.....A resolution was also adopted changing the place of holding the United States District Court in Virginia from Norfolk to Richmond, and regulating the terms of the Court.....Mr. Stevens offered an amendment to the Constitution, laying an export duty on cotton.....Correspondence was submitted between Earl Russell, Mr. Adams, and Mr. Bancroft, regarding alleged erroneous statements made by Mr. Bancroft in his Lincoln eulogy.....The amendatory tax bill was taken up and considered, Mr Morrill making a long speech in its favor.

In the Senate, on the 8th, the joint resolution congratulating the Russian people on the escape of the Czar from assassination passed, with a slight amendment.....The House joint resolution to prevent the introduction was amended and passed.....The House joint resolution exempting crude petroleum from internal tax was passed..... The remainder of the session was devoted to the consideration of Mr. Trumbull's amendment to the postal appropriation bill. An amendment to the pending proposition was offered by Mr. Trumbull, and adopted, more precisely declaring that only persons appointed in place of those removed by the President arbitrarily, should not be paid until confirmed. The debate took a wide, and somewhat personal range, and the Senate adjourned without final action on the amendment.

In the House, on the 8th, Mr. Garfield moved to postpone consideration of the constitutional amendment reported by the Committee of 15, until the tax bill shall be disposed of. The motion was disagreed to—51 to 82. The Committee on Banking was directed to inquire into the circumstances connected with the failure of the Merchants' National Bank, and also what further legislation is necessary to protect the public from failure of the national banks.....The House proceeded to the consideration of the constitutional amendment proposed by the Reconstruction Committee. Mr. Stevens made a lengthy speech in support of the amendment, in which he took the ground that two-thirds of the loyal States were only required to ratify the amendment, and that the third section did not disfranchise those persons pardoned under the general amnesty proclamation, or by special pardon of the Executive. Mr. Garfield and other Republican members spoke in opposition to the third section, disfranchising rebels until July 1, 1870.....The House held an evening session, which was devoted to consideration of the tax bill. Considerable discussion occurred over an amendment reducing the tax on cotton to three cents a pound, which was finally rejected, so that the tax remains at five cents.

In the Senate, on the 9th, a bill was introduced to regulate appointments to and removals from office.....A bill was reported repealing the city charter of Washington and Georgetown, and providing for their government by Commissioners.

In the House, on the 9th, the report of the Reconstruction Committee was debated; and notice was given by Mr. Stevens that he should move the previous question at 3 p. m. on the 10th.....At the evening session, the internal revenue bill was considered.

In the Senate, on the 10th, the House bill authorizing the Vice-Admiral to appoint a Secretary, with the rank of Lieutenant, passed.....A bill passed, imposing a tax of 20 per cent, ad valorem on all cattle imported into this country after ten days.....The resolution to prevent the introduction of cholera was discussed until the expiration of the morning hour, when the Postoffice appropriation bill was taken up. Speeches were made by Messrs. Nye, in favor of, and Doolittle against, Mr. Trumbull's amendment.

In the House, on the 10th, consideration of the constitutional amendment reported by the Reconstruction Committee was resumed. Speeches were made by Messrs. Randall of Pennsylvania, Strouse, and Rogers in opposition, and by Messrs. Banks, Eckley, Beaman, Farnsworth, Dawes, Bingham, and Stevens in support of the measure. Mr. Steven's speech excited close attention, especially his plea for the retention of the 3d section, which he considered the vital portion of the whole amendment, and without which there would be no power left to the friends of the Union in the next Congress. Upon the close of his speech, Mr. Stevens withdrew his motion to recommit the bill, and moved the previous question, which was ordered—yeas 84, nays 79; the Democrats voted in the affirmative, in order to prevent any amendment to the joint resolution, many of the Republican members wishing to strike out the 3d section. The resolutions were passed as reported by the Committee—yeas 128, nays 37; five Union members voting nay.....After disposing of some miscellaneous business, the House adjourned till Monday.

AN "eccentric" German has been shuffling off his mortal coils in a singularly systematic manner. For nearly two years the man Vellens, by trade a carpenter, had been lodging at the Sussex hotel, London. Of late his condition has been miserable in the extreme. His absence for some days had been remarked, and to ascertain the cause the door of the man's room was forced open, when the lifeless body of Vellens was seen partially lying on a form, face upwards, with one leg hanging down, and the head nearly severed, and the right hand clenching a razor. The floor was covered with dry clotted blood, from which it is supposed that the act was committed nearly a week since. The arrangements for effecting his own death must have taken the deceased some time to accomplish. The door of the cupboard was found open, with the bedstead placed near it, the form being alongside. The poor fellow had employed a hatchet used in his trade, in which he bored a hole, but finding the leverage not suited to his purpose he made another higher up the handle. This he fixed to the bed-post by a screw, and a piece of strong rope was then procured, to which was attached a heavy stone. The rope was then thrown over the cupboard door—the end being fastened on the one side and the stone hanging over the other. He must then have placed himself on his back on the form, raised the hatchet, and put his head so as to meet it when it fell. In this position he cut the rope with the razor, and the stone falling on the hatchet his death must have been instantaneous. Upon the door was a piece of paper on which was written—"Saturday—Gone out; will not be in until the afternoon. Leave your address in the bar, please."

—THE LARGEST MAN IN THE WORLD.—A number of years ago the Nashville Dispatch published a statement which was not generally credited at the time. The Editor, in a late number of the paper revives the story, and claims that he can substantiate it by hundreds of responsible citizens in Henderson county, Tenn. The substance of the original article is given as follows:

"Miss Darden was, beyond all question, the largest man in the world, at least since the days when there were giants in the land. His height was seven feet six inches—two inches higher than Porter, the Kentucky giant. His weight was a fraction over one thousand pounds. He measured around the waist six feet and four inches, and it took one hundred feet of plank to make his coffin. He was 55 years old when he died, full of humor and possessed of fine sense, though very sensitive on the subject of corpulency. We knew Mr. Darden fifteen years before his death. He then weighed only four hundred pounds, but continued to increase as he grew older."

BOARDING-HOUSE DIALOGUE.—"Your milk does not pay any income-tax, I suppose, Mrs. Skinpenny."

"Why not, sir?"

"I shouldn't think it was rich enough."

Fenians.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Stephens, the Head Centre of the Fenians, who arrived here yesterday, was met on his arrival by a committee of the Fenian Brotherhood and by thousands of Irishmen who were anxiously waiting for his arrival. He proceeded from the wharf to the Metropolitan Hotel, followed by the crowd, where he will remain for the present. Mr. Stephens remained in his room, conversing with the committee and receiving the calls of such friends as he chose to meet, in familiar conversation with the reporters of the press. Mr. Stephens gave a few hints of the object of his mission, and confidently asserted that the Irish army would fight on their own soil ere the expiration of the present year. The Committee of Arrangements expect the Common Council to give Mr. Stephens a reception. There will also be a grand demonstration at Jones' Woods, when the head centre would fully explain the object of his mission to this country.

Mr. Stephens was serenaded by the 99th regiment, Colonel O'Mahony, who arrived at his hotel about midnight. Mr. Stephens made a short address, not lasting over ten minutes. His manner of delivery was slow, and his voice so inaudible as to be scarcely heard. He said he did not belong to any party, but came here to unite all the Irish people, and he should let no one be accused until he was fairly tried and found guilty. Party expressions had been doing a great deal of harm to the cause, and he advised the sensible-minded Fenians to refrain from such a habit. He said he came here by invitation, and should keep quiet for a time. When the committee now appointed to inquire into the matters of the Irish Republic had made their report, then he would have something to say After expressing thanks for the serenade and other demonstrations, he continued his remarks by saying that the people of Ireland were prepared for a long time, but they had been disappointed in not receiving support before this.

Mr. B. Doran Killian has issued a war bulletin to the Brotherhood in which he states that he has made no report of his actions heretofore, because the public should not know everything connected with war purposes until the action proposed is defeated or successful. But he proceeds to state that his enterprise on the Eastern border is only temporarily baulked, not defeated. He concludes by stating that he and Mr. O'Mahony are on the best of terms—not enemies, as public report has it

Col. O'Mahony resigned his position as Head Centre of the Fenians this morning, which was accepted by the Chief Executive, Stephens. Mr. Killian has been removed, as Treasurer.

Large numbers of Irishmen have called upon Stephens to-day, to whom he invariably said he had come here to effect a reconciliation between the contending factions. He also announced that he had been induced to accept Col. O'Mahony's resignation with this view: He had approved of the choice of O'Mahony as Head Centre here, because he was opposed to the invasion of Canada, a measure which he was sorry to say had received the sanction of the Senate here. The last official movement of Head Centre O'Mahony, was to remove Killian, the Treasurer, which act Mr. Stephens approved.

Confession of the Murderer Probst.

The Evening Telegraph publishes the confession of Probst. After describing the murder of the boy Cary, he says: "The sight of the blood of the boy produced in me a devilish and bloodthirsty feeling, and I determined at once to murder the whole family. He disposed of the body of the boy as described before, and then deliberately walked over to the house. He entered, and told Charlie, the little boy next in years to Willie, who was absent, that he wanted him to help him do some work in the barn. The little boy followed him, and as soon as he got him inside the barn door, he dispatched him with a small ax he had secured. He then went back to the house, and told Mrs. Deering there was something the matter with one of the cows, and he wanted her to come to the barn. She went, and he followed, and as soon as she entered inside he struck her on the head and killed her. He then went back to the house and brought the children out one at a time, and taking them inside the barn, dispatched them one by one with the axe. In each instance he cut their throats, and placed their bodies in the corn crib himself, just in the position they were found. He then covered the bodies up and proceeded to wipe out all evidences of his guilt. He then went back to the house and awaited the arrival of Mr. Deering, not expecting that Miss Dolan would accompany him.

As soon as Mr. Deering arrived in the carriage, he got out, and Probst told him something was the matter with one of the cows, and asked him to go over to the barn with him. Mr. Deering went along with him, and Miss Dolan went into the house and took off her bonnet and furs. Mr. Deering did not even take off his gloves before going to the barn, but proceeded there at once with Probst, who had the axe concealed ready for use. As soon as Mr. Deering entered the door, Probst states that he struck him in the head and felled him to the earth, and then chopped at his neck with the edge of the axe.

Miss Dolan was the next and last victim She proceeded to the barn, after coming down stairs and not finding any of the family in the house, and Probst, who was in waiting for her, treated her in the same manner as he had done the rest of the family.

After laying out the bodies and covering them up with hay, the murderer went into the house and commenced searching for valuables. He states he got no money, but expected to secure a considerable amount. He states that Miss Dolan's pocketbook had very little in it. He saw nothing whatever of the two fifty dollar compound interest notes, and twenty dollar bill of the same character, that are missing. He remained about the house for some time, picked up the articles found in the black valise, and left about dark. His further movements were very much as brought out in the trial. Probst states that he would have confessed to all the murders before, but he feared that if he did so he would be torn to pieces by the mob.

.....A worthy Dutchman lately tried his neighbor a "gentleman from Erin," for killing a dog. In the course of his examination, the dutchman being asked what was the value of his dog, replied,—

"As for ter doghe vas wort shust nothing at all, but ash Pat vas so mean ash to kill him, I swear I makes him pay to full value of him."

.....It has been said that it is a greater misfortune for a man to be blind than a woman to be so, as in him it involves a deprivation of the greatest of all enjoyment the sight of a woman. But the reverse is true as to deafness.

.....A traveler announces a fact (though he is a traveler, we believe him) that he once in his life beheld people minding their own business! This remarkable occurrence happened at sea—the passengers being too sick to attend to each other's concerns.

.....When Dr. Beeswax had his seventh boy, he exclaimed to his wife,—

"Well, what in thunder shall we call him?"

"Why, huz, I've settled on Peter."

"I knew a man by the simple name of Peter that could never earn his salt."

"Well, then call him Salt Peter."

.....A contemporary suggests that a lady on putting on her corsets, is like a man who drinks to drown his grief, because in so-lacing herself she is getting tight!

RATHER EXCLUSIVE.—A Charleston, S. C., paper of a recent date has the following advertisement:

WANTED—PRIVATE BOARD WANTED.—A gentleman requires partial board in a strictly Southern family, where no Yankees are taken. Terms reasonable. Locality, about five minutes walk from St. Michael's Church. Apply by letter only to C. S., this office.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, May 12.
COTTON—Middling	34	@ .35
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	9 50	@ 10.00
WHEAT—New No. 1	1.95	@ 2.00
BARLEY		@ .90
CORN—Sound Western	.79	@ .81
OATS—New Western	48	@ .51
PETROLEUM—Crude	.28	@ .28¼
PORK—Mess new	29 62	@ 30 00
BEEF HAMS	41.50	@ 42.50
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	12.00	@ 16.00
DRY GOODS—Merrimack	.18	@ .19
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville,		@ .35
Brown Sheetings—Amoskeag		@ .31
Delaines—Manchester		@ .22½
Denims—Manchester		@ .35
GOLD—1.28½.
CHICAGO, May 14, 1866.
BROOM CORN—Per ton, fair	$80.00	@$120.00
SHEAVES—Stock to prime	4 25	@ 7.00
BEANS	.75	@ 1 25
BRAN	9 00	@ 10 00
BUTTER—Good Tub	.21	@ .23
CHEESE—Western States	.19	@ .20
COFFEE—Rio	.24½	@ .28
Java	.38	@ .40
EGGS	.14½	@ .15½
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	6.00	@ 7.00
Malaga Lemons	7.00	@ 7 25
Dried N. Y. Apples	.16	@ .17
Peaches Pared	.33	@ .35
Raisins, M. R	4.00	@ 4 00
FLOUR—Winter White	11 00	@ 15.00
Spring Extra	9 00	@ 10.00
Rye per bbl		@ 4.30
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	10.25	@ 10.50
Whitefish, " "	8.50	@ 8.75
Codfish, per hundred	5 00	@ 7.50
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.50	@ .51
Oats "	.32	@ .33
Rye	.71	@ .74
Wheat—Spring No. 1	1 60	@ 1.61
Northwest No 1	1.75	@ 1.79
Barley Canadian—sample	1.00	@ 1 02
HIGHWINES		@ 2.22
LARD	.22	@ .22¾
LUMBER—Common floring, rough	30.00	@ 32.00
PORK—Mess		@ 30.00
POTATOES	.45	@ .60
SHEEP—Medium, wooled	5.00	@ 5.75
SUGARS—Cuba	.12	@ .13½
New York Refined	.16½	@ .17
White B	.16¼	@ .16¾
SEEDS—Timothy, ⅞ bag	3.50	@ 4.00
SALT—Fine	2.25	@ 2 35
Coarse		@ 2 00
SHINGLES—No. 1, Sawed	3.50	@ 3.75
TALLOW	.10½	@ .11

BUY THE BEST REMEDY.—Morrell's Electro Magnetic Fluid, in all cases where ablution can reach a complaint, has been found the surest and speediest remedy known. Try it. See advertisement.

ATTENTION is directed to an advertisement of the Virgin Gold Mining Company, on this page. Those desiring to secure one or more "original interests" ($100 each) in this attractive enterprise should at once write for a "Prospectus," or send in their subscriptions.

ASTONISHING.—We refer to the effect of SWAIN'S Morning Beverage in cases of disease of the Kidney's and affections of the Bladder. This preparation is universally used now in such cases. It effectually restores the Urinary Organs to a healthy condition, and, being a well-known remedy, can be safely recommended to the afflicted.

USE SWAIN'S HAIR BALSAM.

A Household Necessity Exists for the use of Durno's Celebrated Catarrh Snuff.

The best known remedy for "a Cold in the Head," Headache, Snuffles, Sore Eyes, Deafness, and the worst forms of that loathsome disease, CATARRH.

It cleanses the entire head. Its effects are pleasant and wonderful, contains no tobacco, nor injurious ingredient. It has the highest professional testimonials. Sold by all Druggists for 25 cents per Box. Can be sent by mail on receipt of 30 cents for one Box, or $1 for four Boxes. Address JAS. DURNO, Postoffice Box 1235, New York City. Wholesale by D. BARNES & CO., 21 Park Row, New York.

DEAD HEADS,

or, in other words, heads whose once glorious locks have

Withered and Whitened,

can in a few moments be re-clothed with all their

YOUTHFUL ATTRACTIONS,

by a single application of that wonderful talisman,

Cristadoro's Hair Dye,

Grizzled whiskers and moustaches, ladies' curls into which the snow of age has prematurely drifted, and red, sandy, or whitey-brown hair, receive, as if by magic, the rarest shades of black or brown from this harmless botanical hair darkener. Manufactured by J. CHRISTADORO, 6 Astor House, New York. Sold by Druggists. Applied by all Hair Dressers.

A SINGLE BOX OF BRANDRETH'S PILLS contains more vegetable extractive matter than twenty boxes of any pills in the world besides; fifty-five hundred physicians use them in their practice to the exclusion of other purgatives. The first letter of their value is yet scarcely appreciated. When they are better known, sudden death and continued sickness will be of the past. Let those who know them speak right out in their favor. It is a duty that will save life.

Our race are subject to a redundancy of vitiated bile at this season, and it is as dangerous as it is prevalent; but Brandreth's Pills afford an invaluable and efficient protection. By their occasional use we prevent the collection of those impurities, which, when in sufficient quantities, cause so much danger to the body's health. They soon cure the liver complaint, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, pain in the head, heartburn, pain in the breast-bone, sudden faintness and costiveness. Sold by all respectable Dealers in Medicines.

To the Debilitated and the Decrepid.

For general debility and exhaustion of the powers of nature, whether occasioned by sickness, fast living, constitutional decay, old age, or any other physical or mental cause, the one thing needful and indispensable is HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS. When the fire of life seems to be absolutely dying out in the system, and the mind, sympathizing with the body, is reduced almost to a state of imbecility, this mighty Restorative seems, as it were, to lift the sufferer out of the Slough of Despond, and recruit and reinvigorate both the frame and the intellect. An old farmer in the Valley of the Monongahela, writes thus to Dr. Hostetter: "I can compare the operation of your Bitters upon me to nothing but the effect of rain after a long dry spell in the fall of the year. The rain falling on the meadows starts the second crop of grass, and wholesome medicine seems to have started a second crop of life and spirits in me." And this is truly the effect of this grateful and powerful preparation. Ladies of weak constitution, or whose strength has been impaired by sickness or age, find it a most efficacious and delightful Tonic, and it is administered with great success in marasmas or wasting of the flesh in young children. In fact, it is a much safer and safer cordial for the nursery than anything advertised specially for that purpose.

Metropolitan Hotel!

COR. RANDOLPH & WELLS STS.,

CHICAGO, ILL.

B. H. SKINNER, — — PROPRIETOR.

This Hotel has recently been enlarged by the addition of the May Hotel, and now contains Two Hundred and Fifty Rooms, well furnished and lighted with gas.

FAIRBANKS'

STANDARD

SCALES

OF ALL KINDS.

Fairbanks, Greenleaf & Co.,

226 & 228, LAKE STREET, CHICAGO, ILL

THE VIRGIN GOLD MINING COMPANY OF COLORADO. 1250 ORIGINAL INTERESTS—$100 EACH—of which 250 are reserved for working capital. The property of the Company consist of TWELVE Ledges, in extent nearly half a mile in length, situated near Central City, Colorado. Subscribers elect their own officers, and themselves manage the affairs of the Company. Each "original interest" $100, gives a subscriber his pro rata amount of stock in all the Corporations organized on these properties.

The Books for subscription are now open. For a Prospectus, giving full particulars, or to secure one or more of these "original interests," address at once, or apply to DUNCAN M. MITCHESON,

N. E. corner Fourth and Walnut Sts, Phila.

New Advertisements.

DR. SWAIN'S

BOURBON BITTERS.

A Healthy Tonic, Gentle Stimulant, and Unequaled Morning Appetizer, prepared in

RIPE OLD BOURBON WHISKEY

FREE FROM GRAIN OIL,

With Flowers, Buds and Barks of the Highest Medicinal Virtue.

By increasing the appetite, assisting digestion, regulating the bowels, and giving tone to the system, they impart strength and vigor to the body and cheerfulness to the mind.

If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters, have him send for them.

Remember the name, and take no other.

For sale by leading Druggists and Grocers every where.

C. H. SWAIN,

Proprietor, 34 S. Water St., Chicago.

The Little Corporal,

Is acknowledged by the leading papers to be the Best Children's Paper in America!

Published Monthly, at One Dollar a year, (ten cents for sample copy) by

ALFRED L. SEWELL,

Circulars sent free Chicago Illinois

SPRING TRADE!

Cash House!

Immense Stock

N. F. MERRILL,

Wholesale Dealer in

Kerosene Lamps.

Kerosene Lanterns.

Kerosene Chandeliers

Kerosene Chimneys.

Kerosene Burners.

Kerosene Wicks.

Kerosene Cooking Lamps

and Coal Oil Goods of every Description

Hotel & Table Glassware.

A local Agent wanted in every town in the North West, for

Fish's new Patent Kerosene Cooking Lamps

Orders from the trade solicited and promptly filled

71 and 73 Randolph Street, Chicago

P. O. Box 5566.

Reduction in Price of the

AMERICAN WATCHES

MADE AT

WALTHAM, MASS.

In consequence of the recent great decline in gold and silver and in all the materials used in the manufacture of our goods, and in anticipation of a still further decline, we have reduced our prices to as low a point as they can be placed

WITH GOLD AT PAR,

so that no one need hesitate to buy a watch now from the expectation that it will be cheaper at some future time. The test of ten years, and the manufacture and sale of

MORE THAN 200,000 WATCHES,

have given our productions the very highest rank among time-keepers. Commencing with the determination to make only thoroughly excellent watches, our business has steadily increased as the public became acquainted with their value, until for months together we have been unable to supply the demand. We have repeatedly enlarged our factory buildings, until they now cover over three acres of ground, and give accommodation to more than eight hundred workmen.

We are fully justified in stating that we now make more than one-half of all the watches sold in the United States. The different grades are distinguished by the following marks engraved on the plate:

1. "American Watch Co." Waltham, Mass.
2. "Appleton, Tracy & Co." Waltham, Mass.
3. "P. S. Bartlett," Waltham, Mass.
4. "Wm. Ellery."
5. OUR LADIES' WATCH of the first quality is named "Appleton, Tracy & Co." Waltham, Mass.
6. Our next quality of Ladies' Watch is named "P. S. Bartlett," Waltham, Mass. These watches are furnished in a great variety of sizes and styles of cases.

The American Watch Company, of Waltham, Mass., authorize us to state that without distinction of trade marks or price,

All the Products of their Factory are Fully Warranted

to be the best time-keepers of their class ever made in this or any other country. Buyers should remember that, unlike the guarantee of a foreign maker, who can never be reached, this warrantee is good at all times against the Company or their agents, and that after the most thorough trial any watch should prove defective in any particular, it may always be exchanged for another. As the American Watches made at Waltham are for sale by dealers generally throughout the country, we do not solicit orders for single watches.

Caution.—The public are cautioned to buy only of respectable dealers. All persons selling counterfeit will be prosecuted.

Robbins & Appleton,

AGENTS FOR THE A

Miscellany.

WOULD I?

Do you think if I'd a baby,
That I'd let him pull my hair?
Do you think I'd put on collars
Just for him to soil and tear?
Do you think I'd call it pretty,
When he bites his little toe?
Yet I've known some silly mothers,
With their babies, do just so.

Do you think I'd set him crying,
Just to see his cunning frown?
Do you think I'd set him walking,
Just to see him tumble down?
Would I call my baby pretty,
When he'd neither teeth nor hair?
Yet I've known some silly mothers,
With their babies think they are.

Would I buy him drums and rattles,
Just to hear him make a crash?
Would I watch him most delighted
Break my mirror all to smash?
Would I smother him in flannels,
Just because his voice was low?
Dose him up with bella donna?
Silly mothers treat them so.

Would I think his brow Byronic,
Just because it was so bare?
And his head Napoleon c,
In its shape—though minus hair?
Could I trace the marks of genius
In his eyebrows, arched and low?
Yet I've known some silly mothers,
With their babies, think just so.

Would I think my baby destined
To become a man of men,
And to govern and control them
By the might of sword or pen?
I dare say these noisy babies
Play the very deuce—I know,
And I've seen the wisest women,
With their babies, think just so.

Breaking a Jam.

I was born in Canada, and from the age of eighteen, have passed my life principally in the gloomy recesses of her woods, far from the abodes of civilization, following the arduous and often ruinous pursuit of a lumberman, as we who get out the timber are called, and amongst a class of men hardy and daring as the world can show, had become noted on our river, from a chance escapade of mine one spring in "driving."

We were well down the river, and had united our gang with several others whom we had overtaken; there were perhaps one hundred and fifty men altogether. We were running through a rapid, free from rocks, but still, from the enormous body of water pouring through a narrow passage, sufficiently wild to daunt the bravest among us, and prevent the men practising a favorite feat, and one in which lives are often lost—"running the rapids on a stick of timber." I was working at the head of the rapid, shoving the timber from the banks, when I suddenly became aware that the stick I was on—a red pine spar about eighty feet long—was bound for the rapid, and that I could not avoid being an unwilling passenger.

At first, I thought there was no great danger, my only fear being that either end of the long spar might strike the shore, in which case I should certainly be swept off, and most probably smashed by some other stick. However, we ran the rapid in splendid style, the spar keeping perfectly straight, and not rolling in the least; in fact, it was as steady as though it was on shore. The swells were running very high, and as I darted past the men who limed the banks, I saw by their alarmed faces that they thought I was in great danger; and now came the pinch; for as we drew near the tail of the rapid—boiling and seething like a Malstrom—I saw that a collision with another stick of timber, which was being whirled round in an eddy, was unavoidable.

I had a hand-spike in my hand, and thinking I might be able to get on the other stick, I ran towards the end of the spar. I had got within ten feet of the end, when the two sticks—going in contrary directions—struck, fortunately for me, exactly in the same line. I left my spar, of course, in a hurry, and describing a curve, alighted, after an aerial flight of some twenty feet, fair on the other stick. The handspike, grasped in both hands, and held in front across the body, saved me from falling. To spring up, run to the end of the stick, and swim ashore, was the work of a few moments. The men cheered, for they thought it was through my own agility that my life was saved; whereas, I was not a free agent in the matter, and had the sticks not met end on, should most probably have been drowned or smashed.

This feat established my reputation for courage; and the following adventure, almost unparalleled, I imagine, in the history of man's escape from apparently certain death, placed me at the head of our river, and I believe that the ignorant French Canadians who witnessed it think I bear a charmed life.

It was in the spring of '64. Embarking all my capital in lumbering, I had, during the winter, placed a very considerable amount of square timber on the Ko-wash-gong, a branch of the Madawaska, a large tributary of the river Ottawa; all my energies were strained to the utmost to get it down to market, for my future depended on the result. I had a gang of thirty good men, but unfortunately, as it turned out, I placed myself in all situations of danger; this, indeed, is always looked for from the "boss of the drive," but I ought to have engaged another man in that capacity. All went well for a time, and could I pass a dangerous and dreaded rapid without a jam—as an accumulation of timber, consequent on perhaps one stick jamming up the passage, is called—I felt secure of a profitable return for my winter work.

It is usual, before running timber through a rapid, to throw a boom across the river, at a short distance above, to confine the timber, which being allowed to pass down in small quantities, and entirely stopped, if necessary, cannot, under proper management, jam to any extent; but such was the rapidity of the river at this point, that we were obliged to have our boon some three miles above the rapid, and the quantity of timber in that three miles was quite sufficient to cause a very large jam, should any hitch occur. I was well aware of the danger, and had my best men stationed at the rapid, to guide the timber into the channel, and was there myself most of the time.

We had run a large number through successfully, and I was congratulating myself that all would go well, when, towards evening, a rush of timber came down; one large piece struck first one shore, slewed round, and caught the other. In a moment a jam was formed. Now, could we have stopped the timber from coming down, we could have easily broken the jam, but the timber came down so fast upon us that our efforts were useless, and for that evening we gave up, and returning to camp, which was up at the boom, awaited the daylight with a similar feeling of coming danger that I should think hangs over an army the night previous to a battle. It was, we knew, almost a certainty that some of our small number would not live to see that jam broken.

In the morning, we started for the rapid; I and another man went in a boat, the rest by land. About a mile above the large rapid was another one, at the head of which we were in the habit of leaving the boat, for the only attempt hitherto made to run it resulted in the death of the adventurers, two Yankees; but this morning I saw with dismay that a boat might live through it; the cause I well knew; it was caused by the jam damming back the water, and it enabled me to form an estimate of the pile of timber that must have accumulated during the night.

Although there was nothing to be gained by running the boat through the rapid, I felt reckless, and determined to do what in all probability could not be done again; so receiving an assurance from the man with me that he would risk his life on the issue, I put the boat in the channel. We passed in safety, though we had several very narrow escapes, and soon arrived at the jam.

What a scene it was, and how hopeless it seemed, that man could do anything amidst such a mighty rush of waters! I had seen a jam on which three hundred men had worked for three weeks before breaking it; but this looked worse: the snow-distended river, hemmed in between precipices thirty feet high, and still further obstructed by the huge mass of timber piled up level with the banks was boiling with impetuous rage. The timber itself was matted and interlaced in every conceivable manner; some pieces reared right on end, and the whole forming a mass fully thirty feet above the ordinary level of the water, but which was now pouring over it. To make the matter worse, I found that only about ten men had arrived; the rest, having lost their way, did not make their appearance until evening.

After a careful examination, I found that the mischief was caused by one stick lying across the channel, and I thought if that could be cut, the jam would break; but this was an operation of such extreme danger, that all the men hung back, and refused to attempt it. The only portion of the stick visible was in the centre of the stream, for the water, though pouring in masses over the sides of the jam, did not overtop the middle. My idea was to fasten a rope to the stick, and then cut it nearly through; then, by means of the rope, all hands could break it, and all might be well.

At length one of the men agreed to go down with me; but after working a short time, he became frightened, and went on shore. All at once, the stick broke, and the jam began slowly to move. My first feeling was that of joy, for I remember thinking I had made one thousand pounds by that operation; and even after I had attained the summit of the jam, I did not apprehend any great danger.

I had noticed one place above the rapid where the water eddied into shore, and I felt sure that by jumping in there, I should be able to catch some overhanging branches, and be all right; but when I reached the spot, it was changed, and the water on both sides was running like a mill-rate. I still ran on, now thoroughly alarmed, jumping from stick to stick, hoping to find some chance to get ashore. But I soon saw that though I was going very fast up the timber, I was also going fast into the rapid. I immediately turned, and ran down, hoping that perhaps the timber might go through without breaking up; but before me, as I opened the rapid, I saw a sight that at once took away from me all hope of going through alive.

The banks, as I have said before, were about thirty feet high, and in the stream were here and there hugh rocks, which broke the straight line of the channel: the whole ravine, on which I now gazed, elevated above, and about to make the fatal pludge into it, was one tumultuous heaving mass of timber; hardly any water could be seen; but the huge sticks were thrown in all directions, many of them turning end over end. I knew no man could go through that and live.

Hoping that at least I should be killed at once, I sat down on a stick, and I distinctly remember seeing one of the men who had run down the the rapid as soon as the jam broke, and managed to clamber down the rocks, making motions for me to seize his pole. I shouted to him: "It is no use," for I knew I should have pulled him in. An instant afterwards, I was struck in the back with a piece of timber, and this, which was the danger I most dreaded, proved the means of saving my life.

I was thrown forward, and where I fell, the timber opened a little, and I slipped through. This was an extraordinary escape; for perhaps—so tightly was the timber packed—in no other part of the jam could I have done so, and it is to this I owe my life. From boyhood, I had been accustomed to diving, and it at once occurred to me, that though I must be killed on the surface, I might perhaps live through, if I could keep below the timber; and I found I had just hit the channel, which formed a sort of canal perhaps six feet deeper than the main floor of the rapid.

The timber not being able to fill this up, the water was rushing along in an unbroken mass; but I question whether I should have been able to keep down, if I had not fallen in with a small stick of red pine, which, from its weight, had sunk below the main body of timber. I grasped this, placing my arm round it, but even in the fearful position I was in, I was cool enough to remember, that probably as we passed along my arm would be broken by contact with the rocks, so I changed the arm, merely putting my elbow on it.

How anxiously I looked for light overhead! The noise was deafening, but all was dark. I have since calculated, by watching timber going through, that I was about one and a quarter minutes under water, but to me it seemed never-ending. I had at last made up my mind that though it was certain death, up I must go, when I saw daylight overhead, and knew that we were through; I let go my stick, and struck out for the surface.

I don't know how, in my disabled state, I managed to do it, but I soon found myself lying on a stick of timber, and whirling round in an eddy at the foot of the rapid. My situation was still full of danger, for I now found I could not move; I felt paralysed with the blow I had received when knocked into the water; I was also fearfully bruised by scraping against the rocks under water.

The same man who had offered me his pole as I went into the rapid, and, indeed, the only one who saw me go down—for the rest seeing me run up the jam, had gone up to help me—here nobly came to my assistance, and at the imminant risk of his life, succeeded in gaining the stick I was on. He said: "I need not ask you if you are hurt, for you would not lie there if you were not; can I help you?" I said: "No; but if I fall off, you must jump in on the other side of the stick, and hold me up." I told him he would likely be hurt, but he said he would stay by me until the men came up. We went spinning round for some, for the men, when they did come, seemed afraid; but at length they succeeded in catching hold of the stick I was on, and I was saved.

For three days, I lay on the bank, unable to be moved; but thanks to a constitution that seems to defy bodily injury, I am now all right, excepting that my knee-cap was broken under water, and still pains me now and then; and this winter again sees me in the woods, again to drive timber, I hope with a better result, through the same rapid.

ARTEMUS WARD ON NAPOLEON'S LIFE OF CÆSAR.—I sot up a spell by the kitchen fire reading Lewis Napoleon's Life of Julius Cæsar. What a reckless old cuss he was! Yit Lewis pictures him in glowin' cullers. Cæsar made it lively for the boys in Gaul, didn't he? He slewed one million of citizens, male and female—Gauls and Gaulusses—and he sold another million of 'em into slavery. He continnered this stile of things for sum time, when he was 'sassinated by sum high-toned Roman gentlemen, led on by Mr. Brutus. When old Bruty inserted his knife into him, Cæsar admitted that he was gone up. His funeral was a great success, the house bein' crowded to its utmost capacity. Ten minutes after the doors were opened the ushers had to put up cards on which was printed, "Standin' Room Only." I went to bed at last. "And so," I said, "thou hest no ear for sweet melody?" A silvery snore was my only answer. Betsy slept.

THE PEEL OF A BELLE.—After quoting from John Locke, that a blind man took his idea of scarlet from the sound of a trumpet, a witty fellow says that a hoop skirt hanging out of a shop door reminds him of the peel of a belle.

A "Moving" Story.

The "local" of the Buffalo Commercial has been moving. Hear him:

Yesterday was the 1st of May, and everybody, except those who were so unfortunate as to own their houses—thereby being liable at any time to be sent to State Prison for the taxes—moved.

We moved.

And it was the movingest sight we ever saw.

Our readers ought to have seen the scene.

Our folks commenced pulling up and tearing down the traps a week ago.

Most of the "plunder" was thrown into a heap and humped off into loads, with a total disregard of ordinary rules.

The paregoric and hive syrup vials were packed in our new hat—one of Mackenzie's latest and best.

The castor bottles were placed in our other boots, it being so handy to carry them by the loops. The stopper came out of the one containing tomato catsup, and the top of the mustard concern was broken off.

That is the best seasoned pair of boots we ever had.

The other family insisted on coming into the house before we got out.

And so the things got mixed up some.

But we got all that belonged to us, at least.

The cartmen swore because the cook-stove was so heavy, and one said "d—d if he'd have it if we offered it to him."

Didn't offer it to him, but offered both of them a drink out of a quarter barrel of ale, nearly full, standing in the kitchen.

They took it—very kindly, but it made 'em thirsty all the forenoon.

Guess the spigot must have got out of the barrel on the road, for we couldn't squeeze half a glass out last night.

Finally got moved.

Thought we'd have our supper before we tackled the bedsteads and back room stove.

Better half, with patch of soot on her nose, said supper was ready.

She was mad, because, when she asked us to bring home a keg of soft soap, we proposed an amendment, substituting a keg of powder and a slow match.

We hate soft soap—have to use so much of it every day in noticing men and things.

Sat down at the table and took a cup of tea that was handed to us.

Thought it tasted strangely and prospected the bottom of the cup. Found the brimstone ends of three broken matches.

Didn't drink any more tea.

Came near breaking one of our teeth on a carpet tack in the butter, and thought we'd had supper enough.

Commenced playing put up bedsteads. It's fun, when you like it.

But people don't like it, mostly.

None of the blasted rails would fit. Got the wrong ones into the wrong posts, and couldn't screw them up.

Marked them all with a pencil before we took them down, and thought we'd know how they went together again; but somebody wiped the marks all out.

And there we were.

Better-half suggested that one at our time of life ought to have more patience, and gave it as her opinion that we "couldn't swear the beadsteads together.'

Found we couldn't.

Finally got 'em up—four of 'em—and commenced putting the cords on.

Cords broke, and we had to tie them together.

The knots wouldn't slip around the pegs, and we couldn't draw the rope tight.

More remarks from the children's mother on the subject of profanity.

Didn't pay any attention to her, and thus succeeded in getting through with the job.

Then went down and "harnessed" the stove.

The legs all fell out when we tried to lift it on the zinc, but got it into position at last.

Two lengths and one elbow of the pipe missing.

Finally found the elbow in the bureau drawer, and the two lengths rolled up in the parlor carpet.

Got a hatchet and a stick of wood and commenced pounding the pipe together.

Knocked a chunk out of one of our knuckles, and got the elbow on wrong end up.

Had to take it all apart and change it. Commenced pounding again, but couldn't make it jibe.

Pounded more.

The more we pounded, the more it wouldn't fit, and thought we'd give it up.

Expressed our opinion in relation to stove-pipes in general and this one in particular, and made some allusions to the original inventor of this kind of furniture.

Went to the corner grocery and got "zwei lager;" felt refreshed, and resumed the attack on the pipe.

Found out that what ailed us before was that we hadn't pounded it enough.

Remedied the defect, and the job was done. Stove smoked beautifully.

Got wife to tie rags around three of our fingers and one thumb, and thought we'd sit down and have a smoke.

Found meerschaum after a while, and discovered amber mouth-piece broken.

Got the tobacco can, but on ascertaining that the salt cellar had been emptied into it, made up our mind that we wouldn't smoke.

We concluded we'd better go to bed, and started to pick our way through the mass of things piled up and scattered about.

Stumbled over the long rockers of a chair and barked one shin. Returned no answer to an interrogatory as to why we "didn't break our neck;" repeated "Now I lay me," and turned in.

Having a strong constitution, which enables us to bear a good deal of sleep, and always paying strict attention to our sleeping, didn't know anything till morning.

Went down stairs and found wife getting breakfast, with tears in her eyes.

Told us she "was deceived in the house,"—if she'd "known what it was, she would never have moved into it," and that she'd never be able to "settle" in it

This settled us, and declining to partake of the frugal morning meal which had been provided—we remembered the supper—we took our departure, promising to call in the early part of the ensuing week, when things had been "put to rights."

And we mean to go.

....."Ah, Pat, Pat!" said a school-mistress to a thick headed urchin, into whose muddy brain she was attempting to beat the alphabet, "I'm afraid you will never learn anything. Now what's that letter, eh?"

"Sure an' I don't know ma'am," replied Pat.

"Thought you might have remembered that."

"Why ma'am?"

"Because it has a dot over the top of it."

"Och, ma'am! I mind it well, but sure I thought it was a fly speck."

"Well, now remember Pat, it's I."

"You, ma'am?"

"No! no! not U, but I."

"Not I, but you, ma'am—how's that?"

"Not I, but you, blockhead."

"Och, yis, faith, now I have it, ma'am. You mean to say that not I, but you are a blockhead!"

"Fool! fool!" exclaimed the pedagogues, almost bursting with rage.

"Jest as you please," quietly returned Pat, "fool or blockhead—it's no matter as long as yer free to own to it."

—Green cucumbers, the best promoters of cholera known, are selling in the Cincinnati markets at $2 per dozen. The poor are not likely to take the disease from eating them.

—"What is the difference between a spider and a duck?"

"One has its feet on a web, and the other a web on his feet."

Humorous.

We are indebted to the "drawer" of Harper's Magazine for the following bits of humor:

"Do not take that egg. The hen will not lay without you leave one egg in the nest," said a mother to a child five years old. "Do they keep the egg for a pattern, mother?" asked the child.

—I heard once of an editor in the goodly city of Louisville that isn't bad. In coming home he was met at Cincinnati by one or two persistent newsboys, screaming in his ears, "Here's your Louisville Democrat, Journal, and Courier!—take a paper, sir! take a paper!" until they annoyed him, and he said, "Go away! I make them things!" meaning the newspapers. "Come along, Bill!" shouted the impertinent newsboy, at the top of his voice, to his companion; "that's the reason we can't sell 'em!"

—In a small town in northern Indiana an attorney by the name of H—— was arguing a question before Judge C——, after the court had plainly intimated its view of the matter. H—— persisted in his remarks, and the judge, who was in a hurry at the time, said:

"The court has made up its mind on that subject; if you don't think it is right, you can take it up to the court of errors and have the decision reversed."

"If this is not a court of errors," was the reply, "I would like to know where you would find it."

—Mr. Wm. Randolph, one of the lawyers in the celebrated Gaines case, returned home from a journey, and had purchased some trinkets and toys for little Fan—among others, one of these patent automaton rats that run by clock work all around the room. As it happened, a brilliant little spark of femininity, the child of a friend, was unexpectedly present when the magic rat began its peregrinations. There was a little flash of envy in her eyes, a little pout on her lip, as she pettishly said: "'Tisn't much; we've plenty of rats at our house; and you don't have to wind 'em up either!"

—Poor, eloquent Tom Marshall! Poor Tom's a cold now; but in his life he represented at once the genius, passion, wit, and worst follies and weaknesses of Kentucky. In his latter days he did not belong to more than two or three temperance societies at a time; and once, in a wild fever of dissipation, was taken to a room in the Mansion house at Lexington by a friend. When there he found the old school-boy warning that "What goes up must come down" entirely reversed, and his friend, hearing the upheavings from the vasty deep, said:

"Are you unwell, Mr Marshall?"

"Oh no," was the reply; "only throwing up for fun."

—An old fellow, who is original in all things, especially in excessive egotism and profanity, and who took part in the late great rebellion, was one day blowing in the village tavern to a crowd of admiring listeners, and boasting of his many bloody exploits, when he was interrupted by the question:

"I say, old Joe, how many rebs did you kill during the war?"

"How many did I kill, sir? how many rebs did I kill? Well, I don't know just 'zactly how many; but I know this much—I killed as many o' them as they did o' me!"

—Judge P——, of Syracuse, N. Y., although devoted to what many call a dry profession, nevertheless has a high appreciation of a joke, and tells one well. The judge is an accomplished scholar and an able mathematician. On a recent occasion he was endeavoring to perform that impossibility of science—squaring the circle. Of course he soon relinquished so hopeless a task; but his friends, willing to vex him by recalling the visionary scheme, were constantly asking the question:

"Judge, have you squared the circle yet?"

At last he surprised one of them by answering, "Yes."

"Why, how, judge?"

"I drove a four-inch scantling through a knot-hole!"

—Judge H——, of northwestern Illinois, tells the following story of his early practice:

Soon after I commenced the practice of law I was engaged in trying a small matter of accounts before a justice of the peace, another young lawyer being employed on the other side. There was not much to be said, it is true; and about the time we got through with the testimony I noticed the justice figuring on a piece of paper and writing in the docket. As soon as the last witness was through I got up to argue my side of the case. The court, who was of a thirsty temperament, got up, and as he left the bench said, coolly: Young men, you can go on with your arguments; I will be in pretty soon. The judgment is $50!" We didn't proceed.

—I was in Grant's army (writes a soldier), operating against Vicksburg. McPherson had already crossed the river near Grand gulf, and in action with the enemy had taken quite a number of prisoners. As they were being sent to Old camp, at Young's point, they passed our division. One of the prisoners was a great rawboned, giant sort of a fellow, and attracted the notice of all us "Yanks." Many were the remarks made to him of both a pleasant and an insulting nature, but he seemed indifferent to all. When just opposite where I was standing the prisoners were halted, and feeling full of fun I thought I would have some sport with the fellow above mentioned. Stepping up to him, followed by quite a number of my comrades, I said:

"How are you, Johnny? Where you going?"

"Up north, you old fool, where all southern gentlemen go for their health and pleasure in the summer time!"

The "laff" was on me.

—You don't know young Mr. Robert Breckinridge perhaps. He stands very high in the medical profession, having filled various responsible positions in college faculties and hospitals. I heard a pass between him and poor Phil Poindexter, the lawyer—God bless him! he is lying under the daisies in his own sunny south now—that is worth preserving. We were at supper at Sam Gwyn's, and over "the walnuts and the wine" were chatting socially, when Dr. Breckinridge casually remarked, speaking of his profession:

"You know the fool of the family is always made a doctor."

Poindexter, pointing his remark with a little bow to the doctor, said, gravely: "Yes, I have never known an exception to the rule."

Of course the dryness of the remark added to its spice, and it was received with shouts of laughter; but when order was restored Breckinridge returned the bow in the same manner, and said, quietly:

"I have."

Poindexter went up. There was no suitable retort to be found.

.....Little "Mame" was discussing the great hereafter with her mamma, when the following ensued:

Mame—"Mamma, will you go to Heaven when you die?"

Mamma—"Yes, I hope so, child."

Mame—"Well, mamma, I hope I'll go too, or you'll be lonesome."

Mamma—"Oh, I hope your papa will go too."

Mame—"Oh, no, papa can't go, he can't leave the store."

Mamma thought she had a good one on papa, as he can't often "leave the store" to go to prayer-meeting.

—Duty, faithfully performed, opens the mind to truth.

CURRENT ITEMS.

Domestic Paragraphs.

—Statistics show that the cost of living in San Francisco has diminished one-half within the past year.

—Mrs. Palmer of Cincinnati has sued her husband for $10,000 damages for putting her in a mad-house.

—It is estimated that 175 different styles of hats may be counted on the heads of the fair sex any fine day in Broadway.

—A rich man in Albany recently purloined two eggs from a farmer's wagon, and paid $100 to have the matter hushed up.

—The San Jose Courier says that the people of that town frequently hear the firing of cannon in San Francisco, forty miles distant.

—A New Jersey lighthouse keeper put out the lights at midnight, on the ground that he thought all vessels should be in the harbor at that time.

—Gilbert Pearcefield, for the murder of John Tanner in March last, has just been tried at Columbus, O., and sentenced to 21 year's imprisonment.

—A woman named Eva Glance, eighty years old, was brought up before a court in Philadelphia, charged with assaulting Maria Callender, seventy-eight years old. Girlhood is ever impulsive.

—A gay newsboy, ten years old, who had read the papers, put his arm affectionately around a peanut girl at a stand in Philadelphia, the other day, and deliberately kissed her. The damsel had him arrested, and he was locked up for six hours.

—The Council Bluff's Nonpareil has the following official: Married, at the residence of Mr. Ben. Jarvis, in Marshalltown, Iowa, by the Rev. Mr. Willey, Joe Baugh, (that's us) and Miss Mary C. Swanson, (that's more of us.)

—Easterbrook, Jr., of Camden, Me., insured his life for $3,000 some time ago, and afterwards became deranged and committed suicide by shooting. The insurance company refused to pay the policy, but the Maine Supreme Court decides that they must pay the $3,000, and the costs besides.

—A boy born in Brownfield, Me., has neither hands nor feet, can feed himself without assistance, thread a needle, tie a knot in the thread, and sew on a button with considerable dexterity. He gets on and off his chair, hobbles around the room and up a flight of stairs, nearly as quick as though he were full-limbed. He can also write a good and legible hand. His name is Walter H. Stewart.

—One of the features of the metropolitan police system of New York is the Lost Children Department, presided over by a lady. During the pleasant summer evenings, when children are apt to wander away from their homes, as many as 65 or 70 are sometimes brought in by the police from the various precincts throughout the great city, and restored to their parents through the medium of the telegraph.

—A singular wedding came off in Dedham jail, near Boston, not long since. Two men were imprisoned for assault upon a German woman. To prevent her testimony, one of them proposed to marry her, and the ceremony was performed, the couple not joining hands, but answering the questions of the Justice from distant parts of the jail rotunda. It was a sharp dodge of the defendant's counsel, who saw no other way of escape for his client.

—A business firm in Memphis detected a thief quite adroitly, recently. They had missed money from the till for some days, amounting to $350, but could not detect the guilty party. The cashier emptied into the drawer a cup filled with nitrate of silver. The thief went to the till to make his evening's capital, and in abstracting the money covered his hands with the nitrate, which he was unable to get off. An examination of his paws in the morning proved the faux paws, or thief's, and the guilty party was arrested.

—A Milwaukee lady was lately a bigamist for a day. She had been married, but had applied for a divorce. Her lawyer assured her the papers should be concluded and signed on a certain day. Trusting to this, she was married to husband No. 2. Unfortunately the judge was taken sick and could not sign the papers; moreover, he had doubts, on hearing the evidence, whether he ought to grant the divorce at all. The consternation of the newly-married couple at this stage of the proceedings can be imagined. But upon the fact of the marriag being made known to the judge, he waived his scruples and granted the divorce, the day after the wedding, greatly to the relief of the woman.

Personal and Literary.

EDWIN FORREST arrived at San Francisco on the 3d.

THE Empress Eugenie was 40 years old on the 5th inst.

ANTHONY TROLLOPE, who is a traveling inspector for the postoffice, writes the greater part of his novels while traveling by railway.

MRS. GEN. TOM THUMB is at the Clifton-super-Bristol, England. It is said "that she is preparing for a little event that usually makes quite a commotion in a family."

WILLIAM HUTCHINGS, the last surviving Revolutionary soldier in the State, and the last but two or three in the Union, died, Thursday, in the town of Penobscot, Maine, aged 102 years.

ARTEMUS WARD has instituted an action against the publishers of the funny (!) book called "Betsy Jane Ward—husband of Artemus," to restrain them from issuing it. He says it hurts his fair fame and libels his fair flame.

AN anecdote of Rossini is circulating in Paris to the effect that one day a visitor found him at his piano, evidently engaged in deciphering the "Tannhauser." "Maestro!" exclaimed the visitor, "you have got the work up side down." "Yes," good humoredly replied the author of "Guillaume Tell," "I tried it the other way, but that wouldn't do."

THE Washington correspondence of The New York Express says: "President Johnson works from 8 a. m., to 11 and 12 p. m., often receiving delegations from 10 in the morning to 11 at night, excepting two days in the week, between the hours of 12 and 2 or 3 o'clock, Tuesdays and Fridays, which he devotes to the regular meetings of the Cabinet. On pleasant afternoons he sometimes steals aways one hour to ride abroad. He is not even free on Sundays, for then Senators and Representatives call as usual; while business men, office-seekers, cotton brokers and friends, disregarding the sacredness of the seventh day, seek interviews and, many obtain them."

Foreign Gossip.

—A correspondent in Havana writes that if he wanted to describe the Island of Cuba in a single line he should call it, "The land of the flea and the home of the slave."

—At a recent meeting of factory hands in England, it was resolved that workmen ought never to be content till they get "eight hours' work, eight hours' play, eight hours' sleep, eight shilling a day."

—A French poet, Charles Bandelaire, has died is a madhouse. He was a most eccentric man, lived on opium, and was an admirer of De Quincey's works, and adopted his system of exciting his brain.

—The rinderpest has appeared in the Cadnon Forest, England, among the famous breed of wild cattle belonging to the Duke of Hamilton. The Duke, with a view to preserve his valuable herd of Ayrshires, has put them down in his coal pits, where they are enjoying complete immunity from the plague, though it is raging above.

—According to M. Chevalier, the use of opium in England is increasing enormously. The quantity now used is certainly enormous. In 1841 the consumption was 38,229 pounds; in 1863 it was 144,213 pounds.

—Such is the cupidity of the male nurses in Paris Hospitals, stimulated by dealers in hair, the moment a female patient dies her whole head of hair is cut off. One male nurse at the Hotel Dieu is said to have made 800 francs by selling the hair and teeth of dead patients in his ward! for dentists are as eager purchasers of corpses' teeth as hair-dressers are of corpses' hair.

—A girl seventeen years of age attempted to commit suicide, by drowning, a few days since, in Paris. Her sweetheart had forsaken her. The first words she uttered when she recovered her senses were: "Mon Dieu! how cold the Seine is!" The boatman who rescued her stood near, and exclaimed: "Ah! my little darling, it has nobody to warm its bed."

—An American letter-writer in England, having intimated that Mr. Spurgeon was aiming to form a new sect, to be called after his own name, Mr. Spurgeon says, in reply, in the columns of The Sword and Trowel, "There is no word in the world so hateful to our heart as that word Spurgeonism, and no thought farther from our soul than that of forming a new sect."

Religious and Educational.

—Incessant talkers generally exhaust their fund of knowledge sooner than they are aware.

—Religious opinions and religious feelings form a highly important part of the mental character.

—A gentleman will have no occasion to appear haughty in order to preserve a dignity of manners.

—Whoever desires that his intellect may grow up to soundness, to healthy vigor, must begin with moral discipline.

—The Rev. T. E. St. John, D. D., pastor of the Universalist church, at Worcester, Mass., has accepted a $4,000 call from Chicago.

—The Baptist State convention at Macon, Ga., has unanimously resolved that it is inexpedient to attempt to form any union with the Disciples.

—The exaltation of talent, as it is called, above virtue and religion, is the curse of the age. If divorced from rectitude, talent will prove more of a demon than a god!

—No matter how deeply laid have been the plans of the criminal, or how desperately executed, detection pursues him like a blood-hound, and tracks him to his fate.

—To surround anything, however monstrous or ridiculous, with an air of mystery, is to invest it with a secret charm and power of attraction, which to the crowd is irresistible.

The most ignorant class of respectable females in society, are those incessant, careless, loose readers—especially of trashy fiction,—who read, not for information, but all for excitement.

—The Southern Methodist Conference, at New Orleans voted on the 27th, to change the name of the church from Methodist Episcopal Church South, to simply the Methodist Church.

—The time for holding the proposed New England Methodist convention has been settled to commence in Boston, Mass., on the 5th of June next. The convention is expected to hold three days and close with a grand centennary celebration on Thursday, June 7.

—The corner-stone of a new Methodist Episcopal church at Ithaca, N. Y., was laid on Tuesday last, in the presence of 150 clergymen and a large concourse of people, but on Friday night some thief moved away the cap stone and stole the box and its contents.

—We have seen in our time sundry contemptible parish transactions towards their pastors, but one of a Connecticut parish where a subscription paper was recently started for the support of preaching, and laid first before the minister for his subscription, as a member of the parish. He subscribed twenty dollars; no other one subscribed as much. His pay that year was less than four hundred dollars, including his own subscription:

—The italicised words in the King James' translation of the Bible are not emphatic words as some people seem to suppose, but are so printed in order to indicate that they are supplied by the translators, to perfect the expression. The habit of emphasizing such words in reading sometimes leads to absurdities,—as in the case of the schoolboy who read the 27th verse of the 13th chapter of 1st Kings thus: "And he spake to his sons, saying, Saddle me the ass. And they saddled him."

—At the University of Notre Dame, at South Bend, Indiana, a most solemn and imposing religious ceremony will take place on the 31st of May next. At least some twelve Bishops, and among them Archbishops Spaulding and Purcell, have accepted the invitation to be present and take part in the ceremonies of blessing and erecting upon the dome of the University of Notre Dame, a colossal statue of the Blessed Virgin Mary. It is expected that the ceremony will eclipse everything of the kind which has ever taken place in the United States.

—Washington, Madison, Monroe, Harrison, Tyler, and Taylor were Episcopalians; Jefferson, John Adams and John Quincy Adams were Unitarians; Jackson, Polk, and Lincoln were Presbyterians; VanBuren was of the Dutch Reformed church. The surviving presidents are Fillmore, a Unitarian, Pierce, a Trinitarian Congregationalist, till recently he has joined the Episcopal church; Buchanan, an Episcopalian during his term of office, but is said to have joined the Presbyterians this year; and Johnson is a Presbyterian.

—A singular incident has taken place at Neuchatel, in Switzerland. At the death of a merchant in that city, on the credit side of his book the name of "God" was found to be inscribed for a considerable sum. No one knew of such a creditor, and on investigation evidence was obtained that deceased, who was a man of great piety, had opened an account to the Father of All, and entered to it each year a share of his profits. The clergy have claimed the sum on the ground that they represent God upon earth, while their demand is opposed by the authorities of the canton.

—Dean Swift was once traveling through one of the rural parishes, some leagues from London, and introducing himself to the parson as a member of the same profession was invited to partake of his fraternal hospitalities. The Dean consented, and accompanied the parson to his church the next morning. And there the Dean had the satisfaction of hearing one of his own sermons preached by an ignorant minister without a word of acknowledgement. When the service was over, the Dean asked the preacher how long it took him to write such a sermon. "Oh," said the minister, "I wrote that sermon in about two hours."—"Did you, indeed?" said the Dean in reply. Why, it took me over two months to write that very article.

Scientific Brevities.

—The solar heat in a year is sufficient to melt a coating of ice spread over the globe 46 feet thick.

—Henry S. Bigelow, M. D., of Boston, has discovered a new anæsthetic agent, which he calls rhigolene. It is hydro-carbon, and is obtained from petroleum.

—It is said that a person fond of good fruit rarely becomes a hard drinker. The two tastes are antagonistic. The culture of good fruit ought, then, to go hand in hand with temperance reformation.

—Dr. Ebrard observes that an adult leech, gorged with blood, requires nearly eighteen months in a state of captivity for the process of digestion. Young and free specimens require from six weeks or two months.

—A great many examinations of air are now making by scientific men. The very worst atmosphere yet found was in a court-room, the specimen showing that 5,000 parts of oxygen were absent in each 1,000,000 of air. To have 1,000 parts gone is bad, and 2,000 very bad. The only parallel to this court-room was found in the under galleries of coal mines.

—The ordinary methods of crushing large masses of cast-iron into fragments are both cumbersome and expensive, but the new French method consists in drilling a hole in the mass of cast-iron for about one-third of its thickness, filling this with water, closing it with a steel plug which fits accurately, and letting the ram of a pile-driver fall on the plug. The very first blow splits up the mass.

—Dr. Badt, of Berlin, lately performed the operation of transfusion of blood, which was attended with the utmost success. A young man, having to all appearances been stifled by an explosion of gas, was restored to life by this new process; blood was taken from two different persons, and infused into the body of the patient, who about an hour after began to show some signs of life. He, however, remained for a space of 11 hours in a soporific state. We hear the young man is now in a fair way of recovery.

—Prof. Newman says, contrary to the generally received opinion, birds prefer to fly against the wind. The quails of Europe almost invariably start on their passage of the Mediterranean with a head wind, and if it chops round and blows fresh from the southwest, they are drowned by thousands, and their dead bodies are washed ashore for weeks afterwards. When the wind is abaft, it gets under the bird's feathers in the most aggravating manner, and upsets his equilibrium and equanimity at the same time.

Leaks in the Household.

Mrs. Haskell, in her recently issued "Household Encyclopedia," throws together some of the small leaks in the household, which we copy for a double purpose: First, to show the men that their wives have a multitude of cares, of little details to look after—generally far from items than occur in man's business pursuits; and second, to perhaps in some cases to indicate household details that they may not have thought of before:

"Much waste is experienced in the boiling, etc. of meats. Unless watched, the cook will throw out the water without letting it cool to take off the fat, or scrape the dripping pan into the swill pail. The grease is useful in many ways. It can be burned in lamps mixed with lard: or, when no pork has been boiled with it, made into candles. When pork has been boiled alone, it will do to fry cakes, if cleansed. Again, bits of meat are thrown out, which would make hashed meat or hash. The flour is sifted in a wasteful manner, or the bread-pan left with the dough sticking to it. Pie crust is left, and laid by to sour, instead of making a few tarts for tea, &c. Cake batter is thrown out because little is left. Cold puddings are considered good for nothing, when often times they can be steamed for the next day, or, as in case of rice, made over in other forms. Vegetables are thrown away that would warm for breakfast necely. Dish-cloths are thrown down where mice can destroy them. Soap is left in water to dissolve, or more is used than is necessary. If bath brick, whiting, rotten stone, etc., are used, much is wasted uselessly. The scrub-brush, is left in water, pails scorched by the stove, tubs and barrels left in the sun to dry and fall apart, chamber pails allowed to rust, tins not dried, and iron-ware rusted; nice knives used for cooking in the kitchen; silver spoons are used to scrape kettles, or forks to toast bread. Rinsings of sweetmeats, and skimmings of syrup, which make good vinegar, are thrown out; cream is allowed to mould and spoil; mustard to dry in the pot, and vinegar to corrode in the cellar; tea, roasted coffee, pepper, and spices, to stand open and lose their strength. The molasses jug loses the cork, and the flies take possession. Sweet meats are opened and forgotten. Vinegar is drawn in a basin and allowed to stand until both basin and vinegar is spoiled. Sugar is spilled from the barrel, coffee from the sack, and tea from the chest. Different sauces are made too sweet, and both sauce and sugar wasted. In many other ways a careless and inexperienced housekeeper will waste, without heeding the hard earned wages of her husband; when she really thinks—because she buys no fine clothes, making the old

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan.

One of the best filled Establishments!

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied

Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

VanTine & Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South Side Chicago St, Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS,

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY,
WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH, COTTAGE.
COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP,
WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Show Cases, Stands, Book Cases, Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short notic by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pic. ures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and finished and trimmed in the best style.

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

D. VanTine,
G. Smith,

Tecumseh, June 11th, 1863.

A. JAMES

Is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

M SEH, - - MICH A

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions.

I keep the largest and best assortment of

ERIES,
ROVISIONS,
RUITS,
SALT
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,
&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had eleven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the business. I you dont believe it ask your neighbors where they get their groceries and where they buy them the

CHEA 'EST.

and judge for ourselves.

0 - AJAMES

Subscribe for the HERALD.

L. DREW'S
NEW HARDWARE!!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass. Window Sashes.

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a

Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron, and Zinc,

Also the

Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New

Yisnow opening a new stock of

oceries, Paints, Oils &c

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago

---

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the

Nicest, Best and Strongest,

WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS,

and in fact everything in his line from a baby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition. So call and leave your orders.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM.

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Prices

---

SUNBEAM

Photograph Gallery.

Powers & Co are now prepared to present to the public, every new and desirable style know to the

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART,

He has in his rooms everything calculated to give ease and ellegance to the figure. India Ink and Colored work finished in the most elaborate manner.

Ambrotypes and Cartes de visite

in every variety. Pictures copied and enlarged to any size, and everything pertaining to the business executed in the most

PERFECT MANNER.

Call and see for yourselves one of the most desirable Galleries in the west

He also keeps constantly on hand a full supply of

Albums at all Prices.

and a general assortment of Card Photographs of the Notables of the Nation which he offers

VERY CHEAP.

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government,

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.

n790lysmp

A. J. HOAG,

Successor to WM. REITERMAN & Co.

WHOLESALE DEALER IN

Ambrotype and Photograph Stock,

235 Summit St. - - Toledo, O.

Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the HERALD.

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL

IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE

ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

in all their varied forms, in her rooms, on the first floor, show room the same 3 doors east of A. Hood & Co's. clothing store.

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS,

is the place to get good grinding done. I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING,

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Wheat

Mill Feed of all kinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Bills of hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shal endeavor to do as good work, and even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

NATIONAL GIFT

CONCERT.

IN

Crosby's Opera House,

CHICAGO, MAY 31st, '66.

25,000 VALUABLE PRIZES AMOUNTING TO $100,000 00 will be presnted to the TICKET HOLDERS, INCLUDING 23,000 DOLLARS IN MONEY.

ONLY
100,000 Tickets
WILL BE SOLD, THUS GIVING A PRIZE
FOR EVERY FOUR TICKETS.
A TICKET COSTS BUT ONE DOLLAR,
AND IT MAY DRAW
Ten Thousand Dollars,

I have just published a book which contains a Complete Descriptive List of all the Prizes, and much other matter of general interest In this I have answered every other question that can possibly be asked in connection with the Concert. Two copies of this book will be sent, FREE OF CHARGE, to any one sending for one or more Tickets, and enclosing Five Cents to pre-pay postage. Remember, every prize named in this book will be drawn at the appointed time, WHETHER THE TICKETS ARE SOLD OR NOT, THE PRIZES ARE READY, and will be distributed immediately after the drawing is completed; and correct lists of the winning numbers will be sent to agents and ticket-holders Parties whose numbers appear on the list, will forward thrir ticket at once, with directions as to shipping goods and moneys

Inducements for Forming Clubs.

Upon the receipt of $4 50 I will send 5 tickets. Upon the receipt of $7 00 I will send 8 tickets Upon the receipt of 10 50 I will send 12 tickets Upon the receipt of $21 50 I will send 25 tickets. Upon the receipt of $42 50 I will send 50 tickets.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.—Money may be sent at my risk, by Draft, Express, Post Office Order, or Registered Letter.

My references are any citizen of Chicago.

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
122 Dearborn St. Chicago, Ill.

Agents are authorized to offer the above inducements.

Tecumseh Union School!

C. B. Thomas, A. M. Principal.

THE SPRING TERM of this institution will open April 9th, 1866, and continue twelve weeks

Scholars will be received at any time and placed in classes where their previous study has qualified them to enter.

CATALOGUES FURNISHED FREE on application to the Principal, giving all needed information as to Course of Study, Text Books, Expenses, &c.

G. R. PALMER, Attorney at Law.

and Notary Public, Lake Ridge, M

Particular attention paid to collections in any part of Michigan Is prepared to draw and execute Deeds, Mortgages, Wills, &c.

Notice.

My wife Viola Wheelan having left my bed and board against my consent and without just cause or provocation, all persons are hereby notified and forbiden to harbor, trust or give credit to her on my account, as I shall pay no bills or accounts of her contracting. ERWIN WHEELAN.

Dated Franklin Mich. April 26th 1866.

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartnership in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE & FANCY GOODS,

consisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions,

Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected

stock of

Crockery and Glass Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

A. HOOD & CO.

Are Just receiving a Splended

STOCK OF

Cloths Vestings,

Hats & Caps,

AND

Gents Furnishing goods

BOUGHT IN NEW YORK,

AT THE

LOWEST FIGURES,

AND WILL BE SOLD AT PRICES THAT

DEFY COMPETITION.

Call and see them before purchasing elsewhere.

EUREKA.

NOT CALIFORNIA WITH ALL ITS GOLD,

BUT THE PLACE TO BUY

Boots & Shoes at

Prices that suit the times, at

MC'NICHOL & WILSON'S

EMPIRE

Boot & Shoe Store.

We shall keep constantly on hand a full assortment of the BEST

Eastern Work to be Found

Consisting of

LADIES' CALF, GOAT AND KID GAITERS, BALMORALS, SLIPS.

And an endless variety of EVERYTAING usually found in a First Class Boot & Shoe Store. Our manufacturing department will be ably conducted and all work done by us warranted to give satisfaction. Those in want of Boots or Shoes will save money by calling, and will be sure to buy, for they can't fail to "see it."

Remember the place—one door east of Curtis Drug Store.

C. H. ADAM & CO.,

DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS,

Yankee Notions, &c.,

No. 2 Mechanics' Block,

oct 2tf TECUMSEH, MICH

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.

Published for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Dubility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supplying at the same time the means of Self-Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a post-paid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, mhy be had of the author

NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Brooklyn,

n790lysmp Kings Co., N. Y.

---

18 Pronunciemento. 65.

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

Now in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see

How well we can do For them.

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd est Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholesale or Retail.
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
Fine Midlings, B. WF our,
Ship Stuffs, B. w. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE. They will always also ussally find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL,

Corn In the Ear and Shelled.

A goo assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices,

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantible Lumber

Wm. HAYDEN

An Old Song, set to a New Tune.

1866.

"As spring approaches
Rats and Roaches
From their holes come out,
And Mice and Rats,
In spite of Cats.
Gaily skip about."

"18 years established in N. Y. City,
"Only infalliable remedies known."
"Free from Poisons,"
"Not dangerous to Human Family,"
"Rats come out of their holes to die."

"Costar's Rat, Roach, &c., Exeter's, Is a paste—used for Rats, Mice, Roaches, Black and Red Ants &c &c.

"Costar's" Bed Bug Exterminator, Is a liquid or wash—used to destroy, and also as a preventive for Bed-Bugs, &c.

"Costar's Electric Powder, or insects is for Moths, Musquitoes, Fleas, Bed bugs, insects on Plants, Fowls, Animals, &c,

Beware of all worthless imitations.

See that "COSTAR'S" name is on each Box, Bottle and Flask, before you buy,

Address, HENRY R COSTAR,
482 Broadway, N Y.

Sold in Tecumseh, Mich, by Gould & Waldo, P. N Curtis, and M. Wright, and all Druggist and Retailes.

1866,

INCREASE OF RATS.—The "Farmer's Gazette (English) asserts and proves by figures that one pair of RATS will have a progeny and descendants no less than 651 050 in three years Now, unless this immense family can be kept down, they would consume more food than would sustain 65,000 human beings.

See "COSTAR'S" advertisement above

1866.

RATS versus BIRDS.—Whoever engages in shooting small birds is a cruel man: whoever aids in exterminating rats is a benefactor. We should like some one to give us the benefit of their experience in driving out those pests. We need something besides dogs cats, and traps for this business.—[Scientific American, N. Y.

See COSTAR'S advertisement above.

1866.

"COSTARS" RAT EXTERMINATOR is simple, safe, and sure—the most perfect RATification meeting we have ever attended,—Every Rat that can get it, properly prepared, will eat it, and every one that eats it will die, generally at some place as distant as possible from where it was taken.—[Lake Shore, Mich. Mirror,

See "COSTA 'S" advertisement above, 1866.

HOUSEKEEPERS troubled with vermin need be so no longer, if they use "COSTAR'S" Exterminator. We have used it to our satisfaction, and if a box cost $5, we would have it, We have tried poisons, but they effected nothing, but Costar's article knocks the breath out of Rats, Mice, Roaches, Ants and Bed Bugs, quicker than we can write it, It is in great demand all over the country.—[Medina, Ohio, Gazette.

See "COSTAR'S" advertisment above,

1866.

A VOICE FROM THE FAR WEST.—Speaking of "COSTAR'S" Rat, Roach, Ant, &c. Exterminator—"more grain and provisions are distroyed annually in Grant County by the vermin than would pay for tons of this Rat and Insect Killer,"—[Lancaster, Wis. Herald.

See "COSTAR'S" advertisement above,

1866

FARMERS and HOUSEKEEPERS—should recollect that hundreds of dollars' worth of Grain provisions, &c, are annually destroyed by Rats, Mice, Ants, and other insects and vermin—all of which can be prevented by a few dollars' worth of "COSTAR'S" Rat, Roach &c. Exterminator, bought and used freely,

See Costar's advertisement above.

Ladies, take Particular Notice.

THE REAL VELPAU FEMALE PILL.

[WARRANTED FRENCH.]

THESE PILLS, so celebrated many years ago in Paris for the relief of female irregularities, and afterward so notorious for their criminal employment in the practice of abortion, are now offered for sale for the first time in America. They have been kept in comparative obscurity from the fact that the originator, Dr. Velpau, is a physician in Paris of great wealth and strict conscientious principles, and has withheld them from general use, lest they should be employed for unlawful purposes. In overcoming Female Obstructions, Falling of the Womb, Whites, Green Sickness, Suppression, Retention, or Immoderate Flow of the Monthly Discharges, they seem to be truly omnipotent, bursting open the flood-gates from whatever cause may have stopped them; but they are offered to the public only for legitimate uses, and all agents are forbidden to sell them when it is understood that the object is unlawful. Married ladies should never take them when there is any reason to believe themselves pregnant, for they will be sure to produce a miscarriage.

These pills are entirely safe under all circumstances, being composed entirely of substances from the vegetable kingdom.

Each box has the cont of arms for the City of Paris stamped on the box, with the words "Trade Mark" in French, to counterfeit which is a misdemeanor, and all persons will be dealt with according to law.

Full directions accompany every box.

Ladies can obtain a box sealed from the eyes of the curious, by inclosing One Dollar and six post-office stamps to any respectable druggists, or to O. G. STAPLES, General Agent for the United States, Watertown, N. Y.

Agents,

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

GREAT CENTRAL.

United States Mail Route.

THREE EXPRESS TRAINS leave Windsor (opposite Detroit) daily for the East, on the arrival of Trains of Michigan Central, Detroit and Milwaukee, and Michigan Southern Railways from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati and all points West North-West and South West.

This is the only route via Niagara Falls and suspension Bridge, and is the direct route to Buffalo, New York, Boston, London, Paris, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Prescott, Ogdensburgh, Montreal, Quebec and Portland.

Passenger Cars are furnished with Patent ventilators.

Luxurious Sleeping Cars attached to all night trains, and Smoking Cars to all day trains.

United States Currency taken at par for through fares, sleeping Car berths and meals at Refreshment Saloons

CHARLES MCCABE,
Western Passenger Agent, Detroit.

THOS SWINYARD, General Manager, Hamilton, C. W.
JAS. CHARLTON, General Agent, Hamilton, C. W.

Mortgage Sale.

Patrick Neary, and Bridget Neary, on the twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, by one certain Indenture of mortgage executed on the day and year aforesaid and Recorded on the twenty first day of March, A D. 1850 at 5 o'clock P. M., in Liber 'M' of Mortgages, on folios 104 and 105, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee County, in the state of Michigan, mortgaged to Parley J Spalding his heirs and assigns forever all that tract or parcel of Land situated in the township of Adrian, in the county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, being in the village [now city] of Adrian and described as village lots number one [1] and [2] two, on block fifteen [15] on the plat of the village, (now city) of Adrian, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid; Which said Mortgage was duly assigned by the said Parley J. Spalding, the said mortgagee to Harriet A. Bradbury on the twenty first day of March, A. D. 1850, which said assignment was Recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Lenawee county, Michigan on the 17th day of February, A D 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, which said mortgage, was afterwards, to wit on the eighth day of February, A D. 1866 duly assigned by said Harriet A Bradbury to Addison J Comstock, which said last named assignment was recorded in the office of the Registr of Deeds in and for Lenawee county aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1866, in liber 44, of mortgages on page 642, no other assignment of said mortgage has been made, and the said Addison J. Comstock is the present owner of said mortgage Default having been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which was given to secure the payment of a certain sum of money, and whereas there is claimed to be due, at this date, on said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of Five hundred and seventy-three dollars and twelve cents, [$573 12] and no proceedings at law, or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Notice therefore, is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, the above described Mortgaged premises will be sold, at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder at the door of the old Methodist church building on Toledo street in the said city of Adrian, in Lenawee county aforesaid, that being the place of holding the Circuit in and for said County at two o'clock in the afternoon of the Twenty fifth day of May next, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interest and costs allowed by law, together with a reasonable charge for attorney's services as provided by said mortgage

ADDISON J COMSTOCK,
Assignee of said mortgage

M N. HALSEY, Atty.—Dated, Feb 21, 1866.

Drs Jackson, Herbert & Co.

15 Greatest Medical Circular Ever Published! Fifteen large letter pages for two 3 cent stamps. 15

Prof. EGBERT JACKSON, ROBERT HERBET, M D. DR EUGENE VELPEAU, JR.
THE NATIONAL DISPENSTRY,
Established 1859.

Six years of unrivalled success in the cure of every form of private disease incident to either sex.

Science and fair dealing victorious over Empiricism and fraud

We infallibly cure Syphillis, Gleet, Gonorrhœa Impotency Nocturnal and Diurnal Emissions, Complaints peculiar to females, and every form of private disease of whatever name or nature Spermatorrhea or Self Abuse, that curse of Modern Manhood easily and speedily cured and every trace of its terrible effects eradicated from the system, without detention from business—Young men bear this in mind, that we are in possession of the Secret Receipts and methods of practice of Culverwell, Lallemand, Hunter, Velpeau, Sen., Ricord and other great lights in modern medical science; for it is a fact of the very greatest importance, and we would ask any man of average common sense how can the thousand and one shallow pretenders hope to compete with us?

Ye unfortunates, ere trusting your health and money to heartless charlatans, at least write to Drs. Jackson, Herbert & Co., who will at once return you a kind, discreet and explicit answer. Ladies write for our circular.

Dr Jackson's Female Monthly Pills, for a safe and effectual remedy for all irregularities and obstructions, from whatever cause. Price $1 per box, or four for $5 00.

The Mountain of light or medical protector and Marriage Guide, and an Explicit Key to Love and Beauty Containing 300 plates

This is THE book you want price 50 cents 3 for $1.

Send for our splendid Circular containing more in quantity and of far superior quality to any of the so called "pamphlets." Remember that we send a written reply to every letter, especially adapted to the particular case under consideration, because in the nature of things each case differs from every other

DR JACKSON'S ORIENTAL LINIMENT removes all coldness and disability, and rejuvenates organs which have lain dormant for many years

DR. JACKSON'S FRENCH PATENT MALE SAFE.

It is perfectly safe and never fails to give satisfaction It is the only sure and safe preventative against contracting disease ever invented Price $1 each, per half dozen $4, and per dozen $7 sent by mail.

Inebriates or Moderate Drinkers who desire to reform, but have found it difficult to refrain, can wholly eradicate all desire for any kind of liquor, by using Dr Herbert's Anti Alcoholic Compound, an unfailing remedy for intemperance; write for particulars,

Medicine and instructions sent promptly to any part of the country. Consulting Rooms of the Dispensary, No. 107 Sycamore street Cincinnati, O P. O Box, No, 486. Send for our circular.

What is the Matter!

The Fact is the new firm of

SLAYTON TINDALL & Co.

are selling

FLOUR FROM SOUND WHEAT

By the pound, sack, or barrel—none of your sticky grown stuff And all the people are rushing for it. Come on we have a large stock of such wheat on hand yet, also

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR,
CORN MEAL,
PLASTER,
WATER LIME,
CLOVER SEED,
TIMOTHY SEED,
CASH FOR ALL KINDS OF

Grain and Seeds!!

SLAYTON, TINDALL, & CO.

Tecumseh Feb. 22d, 1866.—3m.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at

A. JAMES

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME, Publisher. "The Constitution, the Union, and the Enforcement of the Laws." Terms per year $2 00 in Advance.

VOL. XVII. NO. 1. TECUMSEH MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, MAY 31, 1866. WHOLE NO. 809.

G. T. KETCHAM'S
BOOK STORE,
Post Office Building

J. D. ROBBINS.
(Successor to ROBBINS & DEWOLF)
DEALER IN
CLOCKS, WATCHES,
FINE JEWELRY,
SPECTACLES,
WALL PAPER,
SCHOOL BOOKS,
FANCY GOODS,
YANKEE NOTIONS,
TOYS, ETC., &c.
—o—
I will sell any of the above goods as
Cheap or Cheaper
than any other dealer in the country, and
WARRANT
all goods sold as good as recommended.
—o—
CASH FOR RAGS!
—o—
Butter, Eggs, Lard, Produce, Old Iron, Brass, Copper, or anything a Farmer has to sell, taken at the highest market price in exchange for goods.
J. D. Robbins.
TECUMSEH. - - - - - MICHIGAN.

Groceries & Provisions.

I am daily receiving additions to my Large Stock of
GROCERIES,
Which I offer to the public at prices
AS LOW AS THE LOWEST,
and qualities that cannot fail to please.
Those wishing to purchase will find it to their advantage to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere.
THE HIGHEST PRICE IN CASH PAID FOR ALL KINDS OF PRODUCE.
50001 Firkins
OF BUTTER WANTED,
Firkins constantly on hand for those wishing to pack Butter.
I invite and hope to merit a fair share of the public patronage.
J. S. HENDRYX.

NEW GOODS,
PRICES DOWN!
H. C. CONKLING
Would call the attention of the public to his new stock of
CHOICE GROCERIES
Just purchased in New York at the
RECENT DECLINE,
which he offers for sale
CHEAP.
All Goods warranted to give satisfaction.
Cash paid for Produce, as usual.
5000 Firkins
Of Butter Wanted!!
Butter firkins to put out to be filled.—
Call and see those choice Teas. Don't forget, the old stand of Ketcham & Conkling.
H. C. CONKLING.
Tecumseh, May 7th, 1866.

C. H. ADAM & CO.,
DEALERS IN
DRY GOODS,
Yankee Notions, &c.,
No. 2 Mechanics' Block,
oct 26 TECUMSEH, MICH.

TECUMSEH TIME TABLE

GOING SOUTH.

Express Freight,	6:50 A. M
Mail and Express,	2:49 P. M.

GOING NORTH.

Mail and Express,	9:55 A. M.
Accommodation,	9:24 P M.

Business Directory.

TEMPLE & MURRAY
Carpenters and Joiners, Manufacturers of Doors, Sash, Blinds, Gates &c.
S. W. Temple's Shop, Tec. Mich.

A. HOOD & CO.
Dealers in Hats, Caps and Clothing, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

GEORGE HEEBEN,
Dealer in Ready Made Clothing, &c.
One door west of the Bank.
Chicago st T cumseh. mich

TRIBOU & BIDWELL BRO'S.
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh. Mich.

WARD & STRICKLAND,
Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries Ready Made Clothing &c. &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD C. MOORE.
Dealer in Dry Goods, Fancy Goods &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MERRITT, MEEKER & CO,
Dealers in Dry Goods and Fancy Goods
Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich,

ALFRED JAMES,
Dealer in Groceries, Confectionaries, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HENRY C. CONKLING.
Dealer in Groceries Provisions, &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, M.

MOSES WRIGHT.
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Toilets, &c.
Chicao St. Tecumseh, Mich.

P. N. CURTIS,
Dealer in Drugs, Paints, Oils, & Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

FISHER & BAKER,
Dealers in Drugs, Medicines, Paints &c.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich

GOULD & WALDO,
Dealers in Drugs, Groceries &c.
Chicago St, - - Tecumseh, Mich.

EDWIN B. WOOD.
Attorney, Counsellor, and Notary Public.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

C. A. STACY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

BILLS & BAXTER,
Attorney's, Councellor's and Solicitors.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

McNAIR & HEWITT.
Justice's of the Peace, Insurance Agents.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich

CURTIS & PARSONS,
Dealers in Hardware, Tubs, Pails, &c.
Chicago St, Tecumseh, Mich;

EDWARD H. HOAG,
Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Leather &c., &c.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

Henry Nyland,
Dealer in Boots & Shoes & Leather.
One door west of Bank, Tecumseh.

EMLAY & COURTER
Dealers in Saddles, Harness and Leather.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

HORACE BREWER.
Steam Engine and Machine Founder.
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

SLAYTON, TINDALL & CO.,
Dealers in
Produce and Agricultural Implements
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

J. D. ROBBINS,
Dealer in Jewelry, Clocks and Notions.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

G. T. KETCHAM.
Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

WOOLSTON COMFORT.
Raisin, Flouring, Grist and Saw Mills
Tecumseh, Michigan

H. B. MATHIAS,
Dealer in Tobacco, Cigars, and Pipes.
Chicago St Tecumseh, Mich,

W. K. POWERS & CO,
Photographs, Ambrotypes and Albums,
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

MRS. C. M. BISSELL,
Photograph and Ambrotype Artist, &c.
Pearl & Chicago St's. Tec. Mich

SMITH & VANTINE,
Dealers in Furniture and Upholstery.
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

DR. A. PELHAM,
Surgical and Mechanical Dentist,
Chicago St - - Tecumseh, Mich

DR. E. HAUSE,
Surgical, and Mechanical Dentist.
Chicago St, Opposite P Office.

MANSION HOUSE,
Chicago Street, Tecumseh, Michigan.
WILLIAM NIXON, - - Proprietor.

HIRAM WESCOTT,
Paper Hanging, Whitewashing, &c., &c
Chicago St. Tecumseh, Mich.

EXCHANGE HOTEL
Railroad St. - - - Tecumseh, Mich.
D. T. FISH, Proprietor.

The Tecumseh Herald.

C. M. BURLINGAME,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Rates of Advertising.
(One inch of column constitutes a square.)

	1 wk	3 wk	3 m	6 m	1 yr
1 Square	$1 00	$ 2.00	$ 6.00	$ 7.50	$10.00
2 Squares	1.75	3 50	8.00	12.00	15 00
3 Squares	2 75	5 00	11.00	16 00	20.00
¼ Column	5.00	9 00	12.00	18.00	25.00
½ Column	7.50	12.00	18.00	25.00	36.00
Column	12 00	15.00	20.00	35.00	60.00

☞ No advertisement considered less than one square Transcient advertisements must be paid for in advance. Advertisements unaccompanied with directions for the number of insertions, will be continued until ordered out, and charged accordingly. Business cards of five lines, or less, inserted on 3.50 per year.

☞ Work neatly executed at this office. Charges reasonable

Grand Trunk Railway.
The Cheapest, Quickest, and Safest route
TO THE EAST.

Tickets to all the Eastern cities and intermediate places for sale at this office.

☞ We will take wood, butter, lard, eggs, potatoes, and all kinds of farm produce, on subscription for the "HERALD." So bring it along.

To Our Friends.

You will confer a favor on us by soliciting the Judge of Probate to publish Probate Notices in the HERALD, and you will also find it convenience to yourselves to have the advertisements in the paper you receive.

☞ Do not forget that Tribou & Bidwell Bros. are receiving New Goods almost daily and are selling at very low figures.

☞ Nervous Headache, Sick Headache, Dyspesia, Constipation of the bowels, Costiveness and Diseases of the Liver, can be cured by the use of Dr. P. N. Curtis' Headache and Dyspeptic Pills.—Price 50 cents a box. Every box warranted to give satisfaction or money refunded.

Don't fail to try the $1 Tea at CONKLIN'S!

CONKLING buys his Goods in New York.

☞ The village ordinance relative to mad dogs went into operation last Monday. On Tuesday morning one unlucky "purp" was knocked over by the Marshal, but we have heard of no farther casualities since.

☞ Our whilom townsman P. W. Adams has sold out his business in Ligonier Ind. and has returned to Tecumseh to reside. We welcome him back among us, and trust he will succeed in whatever enterprise he may undertake. People may talk as they please but Tecumseh doesn't make a very bad home, after all.

☞ A movement is on foot in Adrian to build a Woolen Factory there. A meeting was held by the citizens last Saturday evening and a committee appointed to solicit subscriptions to the capital stock, which will be $50,000.

While the towns around us are wide awake on the subject of improvements, Tecumseh appears to be taking a comfortable nap.

☞ The Circuit Court commenced its May session on Tuesday of last week at Adrian, Hon Franklin Johnson presiding. Lossing, the man who passed a forged check for $500 at the Tecumseh Bank last winter, has been tried and convicted. Mhe case was very warmly contested the Prosecuting Attorney appearing for the people, and Judge Stacy and Mr. Turner of Coldwater appearing for the defense. Sentence has not yet been passed upon him.

☞ The fact that those Cheap Teas are going off like Hot Cakes, is the best evidence that CONKLING'S is the place to buy the best Sugar. The best Coffee, the best Molasses, can be bought at CONKLING'S.

☞ Mad Dog excitement—this excitement has been great but it is merely nothing, in comparison with the great rush for Boots and Shoes at the "Empire" Shoe Store. People have found out that nothing but the best of work can be had at this establishment.

☞ On Tuesday evening last, our citizens were favored with a Grand Exhibition by ten small girls of the place.—The entertainment was composed of three Charades, and the parts throughout the entire programme, were supported in a style that would do credit to many older performers. We are glad to learn that this exhibition was in every way, a perfect success.

A New Volume.

With the present number of the Herald commences the 17th Vol. During the sixteen years of its existence it has passed through many varying scenes.—It has survived one fire and made an acquaintance with many different publishers. Like all newspapers it has had its ups and downs, now making a fair business profit and now making nothing. The first number of the first volume was issued in a village that was quite insignificant, compared with the Tecumseh of to-day. Our population has doubled, and in wealth and enterprise our village is more than 100 per cent better than it was sixteen years ago, nor has its growth been of the mushroom kind, but steady and substantial.

And during this time the Herald has always exerted its utmost efforts to promote the best interests of our community and to furnish its patrons with a live local newspaper.

The past year has not been a very profitable one to us, pecuniarily, on account of the time and money we have expended on the improvements of our paper, engaged, as we have been, in the laudable effort to make our paper one of the very best in Lenawee County We feel that we have succeed to a great extent in our undertaking, and the approval of our own judgement, and that of our friends, is a sufficient recompense for the outlay. We feel under great obligations to our friends througout the country for the many generous favors of which we have been the grateful recipients, and shall work in the future with more faith in the intelligence and generosity of the people. There are some of our patrons, however, who are neither just nor kind to us. We have sent them a paper for year, at a great cash expense to us, and yet they have never offered to pay us one cent on their subscription. If we had been the debtor and they the creditor, our ears would have tingled a hundred times with the justly earned reflections which they would have cast upon our honor as a business man. We hope those knowing themselves indebted to us, will do something towards paying up, so as to enable us another year to express our grateful thanks to each and all of our patrons.

We propose to make the 17th Vol. superior to any that has preceeded it, and we hope to increase our subscription list by several hundred during the succeeding year. The position of the Herald, on politics will remain as it always has been since we assumed the management of the paper.

Fourth of July Celebration.

The young men of this village and surrounding country have taken it into their heads to have a grand celebration on the 4th day of July, at this place. We are glad to hear of this move at this time, and we are glad to see the young men have spirit and ambition enough to move in this matter, and not wait for the old men. It is the young men that are soon to own this country and all its institution. The old men are to pass away, and leave all the interests in this life in the hands of the young men of this country, and how fitting and proper it is for them to begin to act and to feel all the responsibilities of life, without entirely leaning on the old men, or waiting for them to be the movers in every project. This great war has not been without its uses. It has learned many a young man to be self reliant and to act as if he was master of his own destiny. It has also inspired them with a love for the free institutions of our land, and they have learned to prize them from the fact that it has cost so much precious blood and treasure to defend and preserve them. Again we say, we are glad to see this move on the part of our young men, and we really hope they will have a good time and make the celebration a grand success, and whilst they celebrate the birth day of our nation let all have a grand and noble purpose in doing so, and not merely a gala day. Let us all remember the past of our nation, and the terrible struggles through which we have triumphed, and that peace is restored. Let us rejoice in the future, in view of the glory and and grandeur that awaits our beloved country. Let the aged in every way assist the young men in this laudable work of celebrating anew the nation's birth day.

☞ Silk, Fur, Wool, Straw, and Palm Hats, at A. HOOD & Co's.

CALL AND SEE!
We will not be undersold on Cloths. We have got a good assortment. Call and see them! A. HOOD & Co.

ANOTHER SUICIDE.

We are called upon to record another case of suicidal death, in which, as in that of young Keiser, the victim has passed to the other side, without leaving a word or deed to account for so singular an action. There is something impressively solemn in the contemplation of a death by suicide under any circumstances: but when we are made to look upon it in a case like this, we involuntarily look to God, that Being who knows the inmost thought of every heart, and pray for mercy to the departed soul.

John Hurry, for thirty years a resident of the town of Franklin, in this county, hung himself on his own farm, on Wednesday afternoon of last week. The circumstances, as we learn them from Dr. Clark, of Franklin, are as follows:

On Wednesday morning, Mr. Hurry left the house at an early hour, as was his custom, for the purpose of looking about the farm, to see that everything was put to rights, he being a farmer of much system, and requiring everything about his premises to be kept in the most perfect order. At about 11 o'clock he returned from the fields, and after a short visit to the house, during which he showed no symptoms of emotion or derangement, he went to the barn. This was the last time he was seen in this life. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon, his wife, wondering at his absence from dinner, went in search of him, when he was found hanging, six feet from the ground, to the limb of an oak tree in the woodland on his own farm. It is supposed that he had climbed the tree to the limb, which was about 15 feet high, and having adjusted the rope, dropped off. There was about four feet drop to the rope, and the fall probably broke his neck, causing instant death.

Upon discovering him, his wife immediately informed the neighbors, who came and took down the body. A Coroner's inquest was held upon the remains at an early hour, and the jury rendered a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death by suicidal hanging.

Mr. Hurry was about 55 years of age, temperate in his habits, and a member of the Methodist Church. He was a man of considerable property, owning a large farm, and having quite an amount of money at interest. There was nothing discovered unusual in his demeanor, and his friends cannot account for the cause of his death, unless, possibly, it may have been provoked by the failure of his crops, his fields of wheat and clover being worthless. He leaves a wife and one son.

NOT TOO SOON.—Proper caution should always be exercised in the matter of exchanging winter clothing for summer fabrics. Many a cough and rheumatism, have been aggravated by an injudicious throwing off of the thick under clothing on the first warm day of Spring. All sudden changes in the system are attended with more or less danger, especially in cases where the individual in not of robust health. It is better to put on thinner outer garments at first, as the warm days come, for these can more readily be adapted in thickness to the changable state of the weather from day to day, but keep on your under clothing till the middle of June in this latitude, or until settled warm weather begins, and then exchange the thicker for a lighter material so that the body can adapt itself gradully to the new condition without disturbing the external circulation. Morning is the proper time of day to make the change—never in the middle or after part of the day, when the body is heated and the system exhausted by over-exertions.

TRADE.—During the past week business his been comparatively quiet. The downward tendency of goods—although they are believed to have reached the bottom now—has rather cautioned consumers to make few purchases. Another reason for the small amount of trade is the scarcity of money, and the small prices offered for coarse grains which are about all that sell at this time of the year. The best evidence of the scarcity of money among consumers is the great abundance of fractional currency, and the not unfrequent parting with the little silver which has been laid by during war times. Merchants, however, are looking for large trade in the wool season, anticipating a reasonable price for that article.

CLINTON WOOLEN FACTORY.—The stone mason work for this work has been let to J. H. WOOD, of Adrian, and N. WEAVER, of Clinton, and was commenced on Monday last. The walls to the foundation are to be five feet thick at the base, consuming 700 perch of stone, and the foundation will be solid and gigantic, surpassing anything of the kind ever before constructed in Lenawee county. The Clintonites are bound to have their enterprising Institution right and perfect in every particular. We can but exclaim to our own town's people: "Go thou and do likewise."

☞ Read the advertisement of J. S. HENDRYX, on this page. We know it is a good place to buy all kinds of Groceries and provisions; also to sell Butter, Eggs, Lard, &c., &c.

☞ A nice lot of all kinds of Shirts, at A. HOOD & Co's.

I. O of G. T. Convention.

According to appointment, a Convention of Delegates from the Lodges of I. O. G. T., from Tecumseh, Morenci, Blissfield, Clayton, Medina, Deerfield, Palmyra, Clinton, Ridgeway, and Manchester, met at Odd Fellows' Hall for the purpose of advancing the interests of the Order, and increasing new interests in the cause of Temperance throughout the County.

The Convention was temporarily organized by the appointment of D. C. WRIGHT, D. G. W C. T., W. C. T., and filling the other Offices.

A Committee on Credentials was appointed and reported. Committee on Nominations reported for permanent organization the following names: Miss MARY RICHARDS, of Morenci, W. C. T.; GEO. TRAIN' W. V. T., and other offices filled, which report was accepted and officers elected.

On motion, one from each of the Lodges represented were appointed a Committee to arrange business for the Convention. S. J. FULTON was appointed Chairman.

The Committee recommended an order of business, which was acted upon. Motion was made that we adjourn till 2 P. M. Convention, at 12 M., adjourned.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Convention met and continued to discuss propositions which came before the Convention with reference to the good and working of the Order. Committee of Arrangements further recommended that reports be received from the different Lodges in Convention. Lodges in Clayton and Morenci, report favorably, and are working faithfully in prosecuting Liquor-sellers and suppressing the traffic in Liquors. Blissfield, and Deerfield Lodges, and others, are laboring earnestly for the cause.

The following resolution was considered:

Resolved, That this Convention fix upon a certain day when they will unite to prosecute Liquor Sellers, and suppress the traffic throughout the County.

Strong addresses were made by Rev. D C. WRIGHT, Rev. S. E. WISHARD, and Hon S. W. FOWLER, after which, the resolution was adopted.

Committee of Arrangements recommended that we adjourn to meet at 7 1-2 P. M, at Bidwell's Hall to listen to the addresses from Hon. S. W. FOWLER, and Rev. D. C. WRIGHT.

Convention adjourned.

EVENING SESSION.—Met at Bidwell's Hall, which was crowded, where we listened to one or two songs from the Band of Hope, followed by a spirited address by Hon S. W. Fowler of Jackson, G W. C of I. O. of G. T. showing most conclusively the perfection of the Law of Michigan and ability to suppress the traffic in intoxicating Liquors, which is productive of more misery than all other separate causes. Its demoralizing effects were fully shown and the so called arguments of its supporters were most fully met and answered.

The audience were held in close attention for more than an hour, no one seeming weareid; after the address D. J mes. a G. T. sang with good effect, an affecting song, entitled the "Husband's dream."

After a few remarks by Rev. D. C. Wright, D. G. W. C. T. and another song from the Band of Hope, the meeting adjourned.

☞ Mr. Henry Smith, has purchased the interest of D. VanTine in Furniture Ware-rooms here. We understand the brother's G. & H. Smith, intend to add largely to the hugh pile of furniture already in store, thereby furnishing an Establishment that cannot be excelled by any similar one in the County. We are happy, also, to learn that "JIM" is still to continue at the sales rooms, and those in want of anything in their line, cannot do better than to call on him.

☞ The new Masonic Hall in Adrian will be formally dedicated, etc., on June 25, with ceremonies of unusual splendor and impressiveness. The programme comprises a grand procession at 3:30 p. m.; an oration at Agricultural Hall at 4:30 p. m., by Cornelius Moore, editor of the Cincinnatti Masonic Review; a festival at the Masonic Temple at 7 p. m., and a promenade at the new Union Hall in the evening. The Committees of arrangements have been already appointed and are at work, and many invitations have been issued. No pains will be spared to make it a grand affair in every sense of the word.

Died.

In this village, May 21st, 1866, at the residence of his father, of Chronic Diarrhea, CHARLES F. DOKE, in the 22d year of his age.

On the evening of May 26th Rev WM. RILEY preached at Ridgeway to a large audience. From the unwonted success of Mr. RILEY in Milan and York, as an Evangelist, the past winter and spring, much anxiety was manifested to see and hear the stranger. The people began to assemble about 6 P. M., and occupy positions near the M. E. Church, expecting preaching to be out doors. Subsequently they repaired to the School House, but it soon becoming evident that the place would be too straight for them, the Church was opened and soon filled with the eager throng. The appearance of the young Minister was fine and commanding. The sermon was followed by a general speaking exercise, and many declared themselves sanctified throughout, by faith in Jesus Christ.

PATRONIZE HOME MANUFACTURES.—MERRIT, MEEKER, & Co., have this day received a fine assortment of Cloths, from the New Woolen Mills of Ypsilanti, which for durability and style of finish, cannot be surpassed. Farmers and Mechanics will save money by examining these Cloths, before purchasing elsewhere.

Sad Accident.

On Tuesday afternoon 28th inst., while a little son of Mr. S. W. Temple, of this village, was attempting to drive his fathers horse from the door yard, in obedience to the request of his father, he received a kick on the head, which proved fatal, and the boy died in a few hours.

☞ Several heavy frosts have occurred in this vicinity during the past week, to the detriment of sundry "garden sass" that had the temerity to raise its head above the ground as early as the third week in May.

☞ You need not go one door East of CONKLING'S to buy your Groceries, but go directly to headquarters, where any thing you want can be bought at the lowest prices. H. C. CONKLING.

MAD DOGS!—Great excitement concerning mad dogs has been prevailing for the last week, but those buying their Goods at GOULD & WALDO'S are never bitten, neither do they run mad.

☞ A. HOOD & Co., have just received from New York another splendid lot of Cloths.

☞ The largest Stock, and the best Assortment of Stationery in town can be found at KETCHAM'S.

☞ For the best Cottonades and Summer Cloths, go to A. HOOD & Co's

☞ Fine French Note-paper, with Envelopes to match, at KETCHAM'S

☞ If you want a nice Suit got up at reasonable rates, go to A. HOOD & Co's.

☞ A. S. MATHEWS has purchased the Meat Market again and will soon be in readiness to furnish meats of all kinds.

☞ The Northern Lenawee S. & S. Union will hold their second meeting at Union Hall, Saturday, June, 2d, 1866, at 3 o'clock, P. M.

CROUP.—Almost daily we are called upon to chronicle the death of some lored one, by this dread direase, which often takes its victim away from loving parents with only very short notice Every mother should supply herself with Coe's Balsam, for it is no exaggeration to say it will cure ninety-nine cases in every one hundred, if taken in season. There are very many mothers who will tell you they owe the dear life of some dear one to this wonderful medicine One very desirable quality is, that it leaves no bad effect, it being perfectly harmless In cases of cough, hoarseness, or tickling in the throat, it has no equal.

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Mich., May 31, 1866.

Albro, D C	Rix B F
Blair Annie	Smith Alvin
Gifford Mrs Sarah	Stephens J M
House, Miss Mattie	Seymour Mary
Hodgson George	Trask, P. D.
Lane, James	Tellers, Daniel
Krom, Mrs Mary	Taylor Miss Mary
Perry, Mrs Henry	Ward, Charles

W. ANDERSON, P. M.

My wife Phoeba A., having left my bed and board without just cause or provocation I hereby forbid all persons harboring or trusting her on my account, as I shall pay no debts of her contracting after this date. TRUMAN F. MATTISON.
Tecumseh, May, 30th, 1866

Auction.

The subscriber having sold his Farm, will sell by auction, at his residence, one mile North and one-half mile West of Ridgeway, on Friday, June, 8th, 1866, at 1 o'clock P. M. the following property: One span of Horses; Lumber Wagon, sett double Harness; Two yearling Colts; Two Shoats; Two Heifers; One Sow with Five Pigs; Three Cows. Two yr. old Bull; a few Sheep; Fanning Mill, Plow, Drag, Cultivator, Grain-cradle, and entire Household Furniture.
PETER SCHEVER.
Uncle SIM. DAVIDSON, Auctioneer.

Mrs. C. M. BISSELL
IS NOW PREPARED TO TAKE
ALL KINDS OF LIKENESSES

New stock of Hoop Skirts just received at the cheap store of Tribou & Bidwell Bro's.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

General Intelligence.

The Atlantic and Gulf Squadrons are being rapidly reduced.

A few deaths from cholera have occurred in Liverpool, England.

News from Europe to the 16th states that war prospects are unchanged. The financial panic has subsided.

The Episcopal Convention of Louisiana, after several ballots, chose Mr. Wilson as Bishop of the diocese of Louisiana, to succeed Bishop Leonidas Polk.

The President has made four "at large" appointments to West Point,—one of the parties being Douglas Grant of Illinois, a son of the Lieutenant General.

The mortality is great among the negroes in the southwestern parishes. People say there will be none left in twenty years. Whites are working most of the plantations.

Among the amendments to the tax bill is one taking off from passengers the 2½ per cent. tax saddled upon them by the internal revenue bill. It will be put upon the corporations.

It is in contemplation to build a new and costly Executive Mansion on the high grounds east of the Capitol, and turn the White House into a fire proof building for the State Department.

Gen. Orris S. Ferry was, on the 23d, elected United States Senator from Connecticut for six years, in place of Mr. Foster, now President of the Senate, whose term of service expires on the 4th of March, 1867.

General Grant has directed the muster-out of six more colored regiments, while seventeen thousand will be retained in the service. It is intended to send a number of them out to the far West.

The German question is more threatening than ever, and war seems inevitable between Austria and Italy, as well as with Prussia. Troops are being hurried into the field, and all possible preparations made by all the powers.

It is reported upon good authority that the Judiciary Committee have come to the conclusion that the evidence produced before them does not warrant the charge that Jeff. Davis is guilty of complicity in the assassination of Mr. Lincoln.

The instructions to Mr. Campbell, our minister to Mexico, will not be completed until the return of Mr. Seward, who, it is said, is opposed to giving any decided aid to Liberals. For this reason, it is also said, Gen. Logan declined the mission.

The health of Jeff Davis is reported to be improving. He is allowed abundance of liquors, and cigars, and other "little comforts" are extended him through the courtesy of the officers. His wife is allowed uninterrupted access to him at certain hours.

Two boats loaded, it is supposed, with Fenians, effected a landing on Indian Island, near Eastport, on the 21st, and several rounds of shot were exchanged. The British war steamer Niger steamed from Campo Bello to the scene of action, when the Fenians retreated.

It is reported that Spain is actively preparing for the coming shock of the great European war. Her Mediterranean positions are being reinforced. It is thought that an offer on the part of the United States of mediation between Spain and her enemies on the Pacific would be very agreeable to the Cabinet of the Queen.

Newspaper accounts from Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina and North Carolina, represent the growing crop of cotton as seriously impaired by cold weather, heavy rains, and the overflow of cotton lands, and stands are bad. Defective seed, in a great measure, is the cause of failure.

The recent attempt upon the life of Count Bismark was made by a young man, a stepson of the well known republican refugee in London, Karl Blind. Count Bismark himself seized the would-be assassin, who, after being taken to jail, contrived to stab himself nine times in the throat, and died the next morning of his wounds.

Jeff. Davis has been allowed the freedom of Fort Monroe on his parole. Messrs. Shea and O'Conor, his council, are allowed free access to the Fort, and private interviews at any time. It is thought that his trial will be postponed until August or September next, in consequence of the strong feeling in Richmond on the subject.

A fearful explosion took place on board the steam tug Lion near Hochelaga, on the St. Lawrence river, on the 15th inst. The boiler exploded, large pieces being thrown into the air and landed on shore about 26 yards distant. It is supposed that six lives were lost by the accident. About 30 persons were on board. The captain had a miraculous escape, having been thrown 30 feet in the air, and having fallen into the river. Seven persons severely injured are in the Hotel Dieu.

The Sun learns that the arrival of Stephens, Head Centre, or central figure of the Fenian movement, has rather widened than healed the breach between the two antagonisms. The chief makes an open issue with the Roberts-Sweeny party, and seems to go on with business on his own account, and the Fenians are asking each other what they have gained by exchanging O'Mahony for Stephens. It is said that the English Government is regularly supplied with official secrets of the Fenian headquarters.

Advices from the city of Mexico, up to May 3, state that a number of ex-Confederate settlers in Mexico had an interview with Maximilian, during which the Emperor welcomed them as exiles, and expressed his desire to see American capitol and labor introduced into the country, and urging them at the same time to take no part in the political discussion on the question of slavery. Maximilian is especially strong in his condemnation of forced labor of every description.

The Mexican Club of New York has passed resolutions not at all complimentary to General Santa Anna, styling him, among other titles, "The most obnoxious man to Mexico; the source of her evils and calamities; the promoter of discord and anarchy; the violator of every law; the destroyer of freedom; the oppressor of the people, and the corrupter of society." They claim that he instigated the Maximilian intervention, and protest, in behalf of the Mexicans, against any sympathies being extended to him as a friend of that unhappy county.

The Spanish fleet bombarded Callao on the 20th inst., but were met with such a vigorous resistance from the shore batteries, that the ships were compelled to retire, some of them badly damaged. The Spanish Admiral was wounded in the engagement, and Senor Galvez, Secretary of War, killed by the explosion of a battery. The damage to Callao was insignificant. Ten Peruvians were killed, and about twenty wounded. The Spanish loss is supposed to have been large. The news of the defeat created great enthusiasm among the Peruvians. The blockade of Valparaiso has been raised.

Secretary Seward made a speech to a meeting of his friends and neighbors at Auburn on the 22d, in which he explained the President's policy and the present aspect of the political questions now before the country. He regards reconciliation as the one thing now requisite, not reconstruction, and thinks the President and Congress differ only in non-essentials, and that no disruption of the great National Union party will result from these differences. His speech, though a defence of the President's policy, is conciliatory in its tone, and the Secretary takes the same hopeful view of affairs which has always characterized him.

Postmaster General Dennison, in the concluding portion of his speech at the serenade in Washington on the 22d, said: The theory of the Executive programme for the restoration of the Southern States looked to an early admission of loyal Senators and Representatives, while the Congressional programme looks to delay, conditioned upon the adoption of certain constitutional amendments. He thought that, unless the difference was adjusted, it would lead to unfortunate results to the whole country; still, did not think these difficulties were irreconcilable. Indeed, Congress and the President were nearer together than they were at the meeting of Congress.

A serenade was given on the night of the 23d, to the President and members of the Cabinet, and speeches were made in response favoring Mr. Johnson's policy of reconstruction. The remarks of the President were very brief. Mr. Stanton spoke at considerable length. He stated that he had been inclined to favor negro suffrage in the rebel States, but that, after calm and full discussion, his judgment had yielded to adverse arguments; that the Freedmen's Bureau and civil rights bills had ceased to be subjects of debate; and that he was not able to give his assent to the plan of the Reconstruction Committee,—being unable to perceive the necessity, justice, or wisdom of the third section thereof, which excludes rebels from suffrage until 1870.

Southern News.

Eight parishes of Louisiana are overflowed, and half of the people are without food. Relief is going from New Orleans. The Red river floods have fallen.

On the 21st, Mayor Park, of Memphis, sent a challenge to one of the editors of the Argus. The invitation to fight was declined, and the Mayor published a card denouncing the Argus man as a coward.

The colored levee laborers at Memphis struck for higher wages on the 22d, and attempted to parade the streets. The Freedmen's bureau authorities, fearing another riot, caused the arrest of the strikers, and conveyed them to the fort.

The children of Richmond are raising funds among themselves to erect a monument to Joseph Davis, a little son of Jeff., who was accidently killed a short time before the evacuation of the city by the rebels.

A destructive tornado swept over Charleston, S. C., and the adjacent country, on the 17th inst. Its force, however, was most severe in the counties of St. John and Berkley, where the destruction of crops &c., was very great. Two lives are known to have been lost, and several persons were injured. .....A tornado on the 14th, nearly demolished the freedmen's village on Port Royal Island, S. C. Forty houses were demolished, and thirteen persons were severely injured —two mortally. The damage on St. Helena Island is reported severe, St. Helenaville being nearly destroyed, with several lives lost and many persons injured.

Western Matters.

Col. Starr, of the 20th Wis. Infantry, has been appointed Postmaster at Milwaukee, in place of Mr. Wells, removed.

George W. Gage, the child murderer, was executed on the 25th, at Vernon, Jennings county, Ind.

Trains on the Milwaukee & St. Paul road now run regularly, ferrying the Wisconsin river at Kilbourn City.

A fire broke out in St. Paul on the 25th, destroying ten or twelve buildings with a loss of between $50,000 and $60,000.

A destructive fire occurred at Cairo on the 22d, destroying the Virginia Hotel and twelve other buildings on the Ohio levee. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

A fire at Cincinnati, on the morning of the 22d, destroyed the stables belonging to the Indianapolis Railroad, together with an iron foundry and several houses. Loss $25,000

A fire occurred on the 22d inst. at St. Clairsville, Belmont county, Ohio, by which an entire square was destroyed. The loss is variously estimated at from $150,000 to $200,000.

Chas. A. Dana, formerly of the New York Tribune, afterwards Assistant Secretary of War, and more recently editor-in-chief of the Chicago Republican, has just resigned the last named position.

Extensive fires have prevailed in the woods along the Bay shores and on the north peninsula of Michigan. Near Negaunee and Marquette those interested in the timber had to turn out and fight fire.

A. Mrs. Galloway, living in Tipton township, Iowa, was bitten by a rattlesnake on Saturday of week before last. Every remedy was administered, but all to no avail. for the poor woman continued to grow worse until a week ago to-day, when she died.

Mr. J. H. Stevens, keeper of a billiard saloon at Wilmington, Ill., was killed recently by jumping from an express wagon. One of his feet struck upon a round stone, which turned, and he received a compound fracture of the leg, which was afterward amputated, but the operation did not avail to safe his life.

In the Old School Presbyterian Assembly, on the 25th, a report recommending union with the New School and with the Free Church of Scotland, was adopted,—an amendment, proposing union with the Southern Church having been laid on the table. In the New School Assembly, on the 25th, radically loyal resolutions upon the state of the country were adopted.

Lieutenant General Grant has received a dispatch from Major General H. W. Halleck, in California, in which he says that there is not a word of truth in the report that Fort Goodwin has been captured by the Apaches and the garrison killed.

Forrest City, on the Upper Missouri, was nearly destroyed by the recent high water in the river. Several fine frame houses had to be removed. The bank in front of the city has fallen in from twenty to twenty-five yards, and the Planters' House, on the main thoroughfare, is now only two hundred yards from the water.

The Presbyterian General Assemblies, Old and New Schools, met at St. Louis on the 17th. In the former, the sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. John M. Lowrie; and in the letter, by the Rev. Shaw Buffalo. The Rev. Dr. R. L. Stanton was chosen Moderator of the Old School body, and Prof. Hopkins, of Auburn, N. Y., of the New School.

A destructive fire visited the town of Hudson, Wis., on the 19th, destroying the whole business portion of the town. Loss estimated at $350,000, the insurance on which is about $100,000. The telegraph line was destroyed the whole length of the town. Only one place of business was left standing. Several handsome dwellings were among the property destroyed by the conflagration. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Mr. Pike has written a letter to a citizen of Cincinnati, in which he says he will rebuild the Opera House, provided the public of Cincinnati will purchase $150,000 worth of tickets for the first season—the money to be subscribed at once. If this is done, he engages to make the Opera House more magnificent than ever, give double the facilities for ingress and egress, and have it completed by the 15th of March, 1867.

On the 19th inst., the handsome railroad and carriage bridge on the Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad, over the Wisconsin river at Kilbourn City, was destroyed by fire, which doubtless originated from sparks from a locomotive. This line had been hauling over it more than 50,000 bushels of wheat per day, and large quantities of other freight, all of which traffic will have to be suspended. One effect of the disaster was to raise the wheat market, already abnormally high, nine cents per bushel within two hours. Kilbourn bridge was built in 1857 and cost about $25,000. It was 450 feet long, and 72 feet above the water, of the Howe truss plan, very thoroughly built, and the best railroad bridge in the State. It will be rebuilt within two months.

Financial and Commercial.

The Committee of Ways and Means having broken up the monopoly in the lottery business, propose to impose a tax of at least ten per cent. on the traffic. The Treasury Department, in order to examine into the frauds alleged to have been practiced in the Kentucky lotteries, have sent an agent to New York to make a thorough investigation of them.

A tremendous financial panic culminated in England on the 10th, and the greatest excitement known since 1825. A multitude of heavy failures occurred almost simultaneously, among them that of the house of Sir Morton Peto the head, for four million pounds sterling. It is believed, however, that their assets are abundant to cover all their liabilities. The entire community was in the wildest commotion, and the panic was only quieted by the announcement that the Government had resolved to suspend the bank charter act. The Bank of England increased its rate of discount to nine per cent. At the time of sailing of the steamer, the panic had almost subsided.

Eastern Matters.

"Admiral" Semmes is in Washington, after a pardon."

Mrs. Jeff. Davis has been at Washington, and has had an interview with the President.

The city of Newark, N. J., celebrated the two hundredth anniversary of its settlement on the 18th.

In the past two months. 22 persons have died in New York from starvation, 10 have committed suicide, and 27 died from drunkenness.

Senator Wright, of New Jersey, is not dead, as reported, but is said to be "physically better, and in full possession of his mental faculties."

In New York, on the 23d, gold ran up as high as 139½. Several failures occurred in the Gold Room. The specie shipments of the day reached $5,000,000.

A large portion of the tunnel on the Mount Joy branch of the Pennsylvania railroad fell in on the 26th. No person is known to have been in the tunnel at the time.

Seth C. Chandler, a young astronomer of Boston, has discovered a new star of about the third magnitude, and of variable brightness, in the constellation of the Northern crown.

A Boston jury has returned a verdict of $1,000 damages against Dr J. H. Prouditch, an examining surgeon in the Provost Marshal's office, for branding James Mulcherry with the letter "D," (deserter.)

A despatch from Erie, Pa., says eighty-seven cases of arms. belonging to the New York Fenian Senate, have been seized in that city. They were consigned to J. F. Cronin, Head-Centre for that county.

Rochester, N. Y., was visited by a heavy storm of wind and hail on Sunday, the 20th, which unroofed houses, tore down awnings, broke down thousands of panes of glass, and injured a number of persons. The storm only lasted a few minutes, but did a great deal of damage.

Dr. Solomon Andrews, with three others, made an ascent in his "Ærcon," or flying ship, from New York, on the 25th. After remaining an hour in the air, he landed at Astoria, five miles distant. He found no difficulty in making headway against the wind, and has no doubt of his ability to navigate the air.

At the New York Academy of Music, on the evening of the late fire, while Madame Gazzaniga, who had appeared in the opera, was dressing to leave, two strangers came to her room and advised her to get out as soon as possible, or she might get hurt. Acting upon this warning she immediately left the building.

The great opera house of New York—the Academy of Music—together with the Medical University, on Fourteenth street, Ihne & Co.'s piano warehouse, on the corner of Third avenue and Fourteenth street, Worcester & Co.'s piano warehouse, the Lutheran Church, on Fifteenth street, and several other large buildings contiguous to the Academy of Music, were destroyed by fire after midnight May 21-22. The fire broke out an hour after the opera performance closed. Two firemen perished, and one other was badly burned. The Academy of Music was valued at $355,000; insured for $180,000, and scenery, &c., for $30,000. Maretzek's loss is $70,000, Grau's loss is $40,000, neither insured. The University Medical College was valued at $45,000; insured for $25,00. The loss is estimated at over a million of dollars. Barrels in a restaurant in the rear of the Academy, set on fire, caused the conflagration. It was no doubt the work of an incendiary.

Congressional Doings.

In the Senate, on the 21st, the Military Committee reported the House bill creating the grade of General.....The Judiciary Committee was directed to enquire into the expediency of adopting a uniform and legal mode of electing U. S. Senators.....Owing to Mr. Fessenden's illness, the Reconstruction resolutions were not taken up.....Consideration of the Colorado veto was made the special order for a week from Tuesday .....The Fortification Appropriation Bill was passed.

In the House, on the 21st, a number of bills and joint resolutions were introduced and referred.....A resolution passed for a Joint Committee to investigate the action of the Freedmen's Bureau and its officers with all necessary powers.....The House resolved to hold evening sessions after the 23d for the consideration of the tax bill.....The tax bill was considered in Committee of the Whole, and five more pages disposed of..... A number of amendments to House bills and resolutions were taken up and referred.

In the Senate, on the 22d, Mr. Wilson reported a bill for the equalization of bounties, giving any soldier, white or colored, $8.33 per month during the time of his enlistment.....The bill passed opening the the public lands of the South to settlement under the homestead act.....The bill for consolidating and funding the public debt was considered, and postponed until the following day.....The bill passed making further provisions for the Armory at Rock Island.....The bill amending the postal law passed.....The Senate went into Executive session, and adjourned.

In the House, on the 22d, the bankrupt bill passed—sixty-eight to fifty-nine. It provides that bankrupts to the amount of $300 may be discharged after surrendering all property to assignees, appointed by the creditors, and a sale and ratable distribution of the proceeds. Creditors to the amount of $250 may force dishonest debtors into bankruptcy, and compel the sale of property to pay debts ratably to creditors. The provisions against fraud and concealment of property are very stringent. The machinery of the law is to be performed through the United States Courts. One Register to assist the Judges, is to be appointed in each Congressional District. The law is to take effect November 1 next.....The Select Committee on Freedmen reported a bill continuing the Freedmen's Bureau in force for three years.....Consideration of the tax bill was resumed, and continued to the close of the evening session.

In the Senate, on the 23d, the morning hour was spent in the discussion of a bill to bridge the Mississippi at Winona, Minnesota.....The reconstruction resolutions were taken up, and several substitutes offered by different Senators, all which were ordered printed.....No further action was taken and the Senate, after executive session, adjourned.

In the House, on the 23d, a joint resolution passed, authorizing the Postmaster General to increase the pay of letter carriers in San Francisco.....The House disagreed to the Senate amendments to the bill for opening the public lands in the South to settlement, and a committee of conference was asked for.....The bill continuing the Freedmen's Bureau in force was taken up, and an amendment adopted, reducing the term of the continuance from three to two years. It was discussed until the expiration of the morning hour, when the tax bill was taken up, the consideration of which occupied the balance of the day and the evening session. When the House adjourned, it had reached the 123d page..... It was decided, in the discussion of the bill, to leave the tax on incomes as it now stands, with a tax of five per cent. on incomes up to $5,000, and ten per cent. on the excess over that amount, the limit of the first $600 being extended to $1,000. Another amendment was adopted, providing that lists of incomes shall not be published or furnished for publication, but that they shall be open to public inspection in the office of the Collector.

In the Senate on the 24th, Mr. Trumbull obtained leave to withdraw from the files a petition from citizens of Stanton, Va., praying for military protection to loyal men, the signers of the petition having been persecuted by the rebels.....A select committee was appointed to enquire into the deposits of Government money in national banks. .....The West Point Academy bill was discussed during the morning hour, when the reconstruction report was taken up, and Mr. Stewart of Nevada spoke at length in favor of universal suffrage and universal amnesty. Mr. Johnson moved to strike out the third section, and further consideration of the subject was postponed for the day. .....A joint resolution passed giving $100 bounty to soldiers in the Indian regiments. Mr. Sherman submitted a plan of reconstruction, which was ordered printed.

In the House, on the 24th, the Senate amendments to the joint resolution to prevent the introduction of cholera were concurred in.....An amendment to the Freedmen's Bureau bill was adopted, prohibiting the restoration of the Sea Island lands to their old owners.....Other amendments were offered, but the morning hour expired without action upon them.....The bounty bill has been so amended as to deduct local bounties paid to soldiers from the sum that may appear to be due. This will cut off most of those who enlisted after the payment of liberal local bounties commenced. .....Consideration of the tax bill occupied the remainder of the session. Several amendments of various degrees of importance were made. Mr. Morrill gave notice that he would insist upon having the bill acted upon until disposed of.

In the Senate, on the 25th, a resolution was adopted, calling on the President for information as to what Executive action had been taken under the various bills for colonizing negroes, the number so colonized, &c.....The joint resolution regulating the appointment of cadets to the Military and Naval Academies was considered and passed .....The Senate adjourned to Monday.

In the House, on the 25th, the Senate amendments to the House pension bill were non-concurred in, and a Committee of Conference asked for.....A bill was reported to secure and regulate the safe keeping of public money, and to provide for its deposit by officers to whom it is intrusted.....The bounty bill, or a substitute therefor, was reported by Mr. Schenck, who moved the previous question, and the bill was passed, 139 to 2. It deducts from the bounty of $100 a year to be paid by Government all State and local bounties received, and exempts from its provisions persons who enlisted as substitutes.....The House resumed consideration of the tax bill, which was continued through the evening session, 32 additional pages of the bill having been disposed of. An amendment to reduce the tax on whiskey to one dollar a gallon was rejected.

Secretary Stanton's Speech.

On the occasion of the serenade given by the Union National Club to the members of the Cabinet, the following speech was made by Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

GENTLEMEN: On the afternoon of Thursday, the 17th of this month, I received a note from the Secretary of the National Union Johnson Club, telling me that it was the design of the Association to serenade the President and his Cabinet, and that I would be called upon at my residence. Immediately on receipt of the note, a reply was sent to the Secretary expressing my thanks for the compliment, and declining the honor of the serenade. A similar compliment by the patriotic Association of the Soldiers' and Sailors' League had previously been declined. Two reasons induced my action. The last time a public speech was made from this spot, in answer to a serenade, was the night of Friday, the 14th of April, 1865. At that moment, when we were rejoicing over the downfall of the rebellion, one of its instruments was murdering Mr. Lincoln. You will not think it strange that a compliment fraught with such associations should not be coveted. Besides, as the head of a department, my public duties have been simply executive.

"After four years of war, the authority of the Federal Government was established throughout the whole territory of the United States, at a sacrifice of over 300,000 lives of loyal soldiers, and a cost of more than 3,000,000,000. Every household in eighteen loyal States is mourning its loved ones slain by rebels. A tax which may last for generations is laid upon the food, and raiment, and necessities of every family; and, in the price of their daily bread, the 20,000,000 inhabitants of the loyal States feel, and will continue to feel, what it costs to uphold their Government against rebellion.

"The office of President devolved on Mr. Johnson after the death of Mr. Lincoln, on the 15th day of April, 1865. Thirteen days before that time, Richmond, the seat of the rebel Government, had been captured; and, six days later, the rebel Commander-in-Chief, Robert E. Lee, routed and vanquished; surrendered his army as prisoners of war to General Grant and the forces under his command. By these rapidly succeeding events the rebel Government was overthrown, and the official authorities gave themselves up as prisoners of war.

"The President's annual message to the present Congress thus clearly states the condition of the country and the question thereby imposed upon him:

"'I found the State suffering from the effects of a civil war. Resistance to the General Government appeared to have exhausted itself. The United States had recovered possession of their forts and arsenals, and their armies were in occupation of every State which had attempted to secede. Whether the territory within the limits of these States should be held as conquered territory, under military authority, emanating from the President as the head of the army, was the first question that presented itself for discussion.'"

Mr. Stanton quoted at length some of the President's messages concerning the reopening of courts, postoffices, and ports, and continued:

"By some it was thought just and expedient that the right of suffrage in the rebel States should be secured in some form to the colored inhabitants of those States, either as a universal rule, or to those qualified by education, or by actual service as soldiers, who ventured life for their Government. My own mind inclined to this view; but, after calm and full discussion, my judgment yielded to adverse arguments, resting upon the practical difficulties to be encountered in such a measure, and to the President's conviction that to prescribe a rule of suffrage was not within the legitimate scope of his power. The plan of organization embodied in the proclamation to the people of North Carolina, and the instructions to the Provisional Governor of the State, exhibit the system and principles prescribed by the President for the substitution of civil authority in the place of universal military rule in insurrectionary States. In this plan, two things represented in the proclamations and the President's instructions are worthy of special notice:

"First—That the organizing power is specifically and absolutely restricted to the people who are loyal to the United States, and no others. This is in accordance with the views often declared by Mr. Johnson from the commencement of the rebellion, and under most impressive circumstances.

"Second—The choice of delegates was not only limited to loyal people, and no others, but constitutional guarantees were required in respect to the emancipation of slaves and repudiation of debt.

"A second reason for such guarantees in respect to slavery is stated by the President in his message, namely: The necessity of evidence of sincerity in the future maintenance of the Union. These views, expressed by the President in his message, received, and continue to receive, my cordial acquiescence, and support. Who are loyal people, is a question that ought not to be difficult of decision:

"In thus distictly recognizing the constitutional right of each House of Congress to judge of the election returns, and qualifications of its own members, the President has conformed to the plain letter of the Constitution. It being the function of each House to judge of the election returns, and qualifications of its own members, the obligation is implied of taking testimony, weighing evidence, and deciding the question of membership. What testimony has been taken, or what evidence presented, on the question, to either branch of Congress, or what judgment is to be given, is not known to me, nor have I the right to inquire.

"Besides the steps taken by the Executive to restore the constitutional relations of the States, his annual message called the attention of Congress to the necessity of securing the security of the freedmen, reminding Congress that, while he had no doubt that the General Government could not extend the elective franchise, it was equally clear that good faith required the security of the freedmen in their liberty and their property, their right to labor, and their right to claim a just return of their labor; and observing further, that the country was in need of labor, and the freedmen in need of employment, culture, and protection. In connection with this subject the President further remarked:

"Slavery was essentially a monopoly of labor, and as such, locked the States where it prevailed against the incoming of free industry. Where labor was the property of the capitalists, the white man was excluded from employment, or had but the second best chance of finding it, and the foreign immigrant turned away from the region where his condition would be so precarious,' &c.

"These views of the President in relation to the freedmen received, and continue to receive, my hearty concurrence. They have guided the action of the War Department, and were substantially advocated, in its annual report. In what I believe an honest desire to conform to them, a bill was passed by Congress, regulating the Freedmen's Bureau; but the provisions of the bill did not meet the President's approval, because he believed the power conferred upon him, and upon the agents to be appointed by him to be unwise and unconstitutional. Concurring in the object of the bill, and regarding the power as temporary and safe in his hands, I advised its approval; but having been returned to Congress, with the President's objections, and having failed to receive the needful support, it is no longer a living measure, nor the subject of debate or of difference of opinion.

"Another Congressional measure, called the civil rights bill, has been the subject of conflict. That bill, now a law, has for its object the security of civil rights in insurrectionary States. It was well observed by the President, in his annual message, that peaceful immigration to and from that portion of the country, the Southern States, is one of the best means that can be thought of for restoration of harmony. It is possible that interference with such immigration was one of the chief objections to military rule, and by some it is thought that the influence of class legislation in favor of the slaveholding monopoly heretofore existing in the Southern States would be strongly excited to prevent peaceful immigration into those States, and would exclude the laboring population of the North from the soil of exuberant fertility and friendly climate,—that productive region, embracing the eight or nine States nearest the Gulf of Mexico; and that hence civil rights in those States should be evidently protected by Federal laws and Federal tribunals. Although the measures enacted by Congress for this purpose failed to receive the Executive sanction, yet having been adhered to by a two third vote in each House, they have now passed to the statute book, and ceased to be a subject of debate.

"Another measure, or series of measures, of prime importance, now pending before Congress, merits a brief remark, namely: The plan of restoration, reconstruction, as it is sometimes called. To this plan, reported by the Joint Committee, I have not been able to give my assent. It contemplates an amendment to the Federal Constitution, the third section of the proposed article being in these terms:

"Sec. 3. Until the fourth day of July, 1870, all persons who voluntarily adhered to the late insurrection, giving it aid and comfort, shall be excluded from the right to vote for members of Congress, and for electors of President and Vice-President of the United States.'

"It is urged by the advocates of this plan that the third section is the vital one, without which the others are of no value. Its exclusive action will no doubt commend it to the feelings of many as a wise and just provision; but I am unable to so regard it, because for four years it binds Congress to exclude from voting for Representatives or Presidential Electors all persons who voluntarily adhered to the late insurrection, giving it aid and comfort, no matter what may be the condition of the country, or what proofs of present and future loyalty may be given. An absolute bar is to be erected for four years against a large class of persons. Change of circumstance and condition often works rapid change in party and political sentiments, and nowhere with more marked result than in the South. It is believed that the elements of change are now at work there, stimulating on one side to loyalty, and on the other to continued hostile feeling. In my judgment, every proper incitement to union should be fostered and cherished; and for Congress to limit its own power by constitutional amendment for a period of four years might be deplorable in its results. To those who differ I accord the same honesty, and perhaps greater wisdom than I can claim for myself. As the proposed plan now stands, I am unable to perceive the necessity, justice, or wisdom of the measure; but having no place nor voice in the body before which the measure is pending, I disclaim any purpose to interfere beyond the expression of my own opinion.

"Having thus declared my views, as they have heretofore been declared to those who had the right to know them, on the material questions that have lately arisen, or are now pending, I trust your purpose on this occasion is answered; and I shall be glad if their expression may have any beneficial influence on questions, the right disposition of which is a matter of solicitude to every patriotic man, and is deeply important to the peace and tranquility of the country. Recognizing the constitutional power of all the co-ordinate branches of the Government,—the legislative, judicial, and executive,—and entertaining for each the respect which is due from every loyal citizen, they are entitled to, and shall receive, according to my best judgment, the support which is required by that Constitution, which after an unexampled conflict, has been upheld and sanctified by Divine favor, and through the sacrifice of so much blood and treasure."

Scene in Rothschild's Bank.

Enter an American official. Rothschild sitting at a table writing. He is an aged German Jew, with wrinkled, yellow and withered face, speaking broken English:

Rothschild—Sit down, sir. You's from Indiana, I b'leves.

American Official—Yes, sir.

Rothschild—Is your State good; will she pay?

American Official—Yes, sir.

Rothschild—Ah! Ise glad to hear that; Ise 'bout $800,000 bond on. Ise a man of bisness. (Turns to his writing.)

American official tarries a little, and then rises to leave.

Rothschild—Sit down, sir. You's from Indiana, I b'leves; you hold office there.

American Official—Yes, sir.

Rothschild— Is your State good; will it pay?

American Official—Yes, sir.

Rothschild—Ise glad to hear that; Ise got 'bout $800,000 bonds on her. Ise man o' bisness. (Turns to writing. American about to leave.)

Rothschild—Sit down, sir. You's from Indiana, I b'leves. had some trouble in your country, I b'leve.

American Official—Yes, sir.

Rothschild—Is it all settled up now, so as you think your State's good?

American Official—Yes, sir.

Rothschild—Ise glad to hear that. Ise got 'bout $800,000 bonds on her. Ise man o' bisness. (Turn to writing. American leaves.)

The last dressing for the hair is the "Stephens Pomade." It is a Head Scenter.

Erie Broad Guage Railway.

As the season approaches when almost every one expects a few days or weeks vacation in which to visit the fashionable and attractive resorts of summer, or pay their respects to distant friends, we take this opportunity, when the subject is naturally being talked over and plans matured, to invite special attention to the Erie Railway, as possessing many points of interest, and being the great thoroughfare between the Atlantic cities and the West and South, believing that in so doing we shall promote the interests and comfort of our readers as well as the public generally. No line of railway in the country has made a greater effort to anticipate the wants of travelers than the Erie. Its track and road-bed are unequaled; and trains, with rare exceptions, are always on time. Forty new day coaches, combining all the modern improvements, have been added to the company's equipment the past year; while the sleeping coaches, having the advantage of the broad gauge, and constructed at the company's shops without regard to expense, are far superior to anything we have ever seen of the kind. With clean linen sheets, and a bed in all other respects equal to those one has at home, the traveler has only to resign his cares, and in the arms of Morpheus, journey five or six hundred miles without change of coaches or interruption of any kind. The trains of this line stop at regular hours for breakfast dinner and supper, at eating houses owned and controlled by the company, which are served in a manner that cannot fail to please the most fastidious. Despite the croakings of the "Bears," who seem to have serious forebodings as to the general business for the ensuing year, the Erie property was never before in anything like its present condition for economical working; and even with a reduction in receipts, the net results cannot fail to be quite satisfactory to the managers of the line, who are really deserving of a vote of thanks from the public at large for the permanent improvements they have effected within the past two years. We commend the Erie to the traveler, either on business or for pleasure.—Cleveland Herald, May 10th.

Through tickets for sale at all principal ticket offices in the Northwest, and at the Company's office, No. 64, Clark Street, Chicago.

The Express trains of the Michigan Southern Railroad make a direct connection with the Erie Railway at Salamanca, Dunkirk and Buffalo, forming a delightful route to New York and New England cities.

A Chapter on the "Passed."

The New York Legislature, last session, passed a law prohibiting the free pass system on railroads in that State. By a provision of the law all passes were taken up on and after the first of May. The law must have been a little heavy on such editors as got caught away from home. We understand that a number of these wretched creatures accumulated at the principal points along the line of the New York Central Railroad, principally at Utica and Syracuse. Their passes playing out, and having no money, of course they had to stop over until they could hear from home.

One editor telegraphs to his partner:

"Send me some money. Five dollars will do if sent immediately. Don't suspend the paper in consequence, if you can possibly avoid it."

Another, rendered savage and profane, telegraphs his foreman:

"Sell that office stove and send on the proceeds. We don't need it in warm weather. Discharge the devil.

"P. S.—Give our Legislature h—l for this."

One poor fellow, who is caught a long way from home, it being in a small town on the Illinois river, nearly despairs of getting back again. This is his dispatch:

"UTICA, N. Y., May 13, '66.
BLUE LION TAVERN.

DEAR WIFE—Sell my tother clothes for what they will bring, and remit at once. Had my linen duster for supper, and my spare shirt will have to go for lodging. May be able to make a light breakfast on a German silver comb and a pair of shears that I chanced to have with me. Don't know when I shall get home. It will depend a good deal on the walking. Don't marry for a few months; there is a bare possibility of my getting back.

SIMON."

A St. Lawrence County (N. Y.) editor telegraphs his assistant editor:

"If my letter isn't printed cut out that puff of the New York Central Railroad. Give them something about 'Swindling Monopoly,' 'Dangerous Roadway,' 'Rotten Bridges,' &c.' Send me ten dollars.

The editor of the Podunk Stuffed Club telegraphs his partner—

"DEAR SAM: Forward me at once all the money you have, even if it is five dollars.

"P. S.—The editor of that hireling sheet, whose puny efforts to rival the Stuffed Club have so often excited our derision, the cringing tool of the opposition, whom I threatened to horsewhip, if hedared to address me, has just refused me the loan of half a dollar. Ye Gods! Review his disloyal course during the war in a column leader, double leaded. Make it as able as you can "P. S.—Bring down the Stuffed Club with all its weight on the head of that Giant Monopoly, the New York Central.

"PHIL."

A Buffalo editor, who had his pass taken up at Schenectady, attempted to make his way home on foot. He got as far as Syracuse when he gave out, (his shoes gave out some two or three days before, and he had hoofed it along barefooted,) and dropped by the wayside. He is performing the remainder of the journey on board of a bull head canal boat. Walking from Schenectady to Syracuse on the railroad, (he said he was never passed so much before—every train passed him,) he has obtained some interesting statistics. He says there are nine thousand four hundred and sixty-two ties laid between those two points, only one hundred and thirty-two of them showing signs of decay. There are one thousand seven hundred and one telegraph poles, all being peeled of of their bark except two hundred and thirty-one.

A large number of the press gang who live in Eastern New York, and who had been West, are stopped at the Pennsylvania line unable to get any further. They are anxiously "watching and waiting over the border" for succor. It will require a whole string of suckers to go around. The Atlantic and Great Western Company have very kindly extended to them the use of their water tanks to lodge in.

The following dispatch has passed over the wires from Cattaraugus County, N. Y., to the editor of the Posey County (Ind.,) Blower:

CATTARAUGUS COUNTY POOR HOUSE,
May 15, 1866.

Editor of the Posey County Blower:

SIR—An emaciated and partially demented creature was picked up in the woods in this vicinity yesterday, who had apparently been wandering for some days without food. He could give no intelligible account of himself, but on searching him the following articles were found in his pockets, to-wit:

1 lead pencil, greatly worn.
1 pencil sharpener, patent.
1 pair wooden pocket-combs.
1 paper collar, (been turned.)
An annual pass on the Posey Co. Plank road.
And a letter from the Posey County Blower, indorsing him as an attache of that paper, and requesting railroad superintendents to extend the 'usual courtesies,' &c.

He is quiet and inoffensive for the most part, but is seized with an occasional frenzy, in which he calls for paper, and writes furiously until exhausted. I can only make out a few sentences, such as 'Mr. Editor'—'broad guage a failure'—'Atlantic road'—'higher'n Gilderoy'—'crush it out'—'united press'—'not what we thought it was'—&c, &c. If you know anything of this wretched person, please inform me at once.

"JOHN SMITH,
"Sup't Cattaraugus Co. Poor House."

We offer to our unfortunate brethren of the tripod our commiseration, not having anything else to offer. Let us catch the Ohio Legislature playing such a trick on us, that's all."—Cincinnati Times.

Miscellany.

OVER THE WAY.

Gone in her child like purity
Out from the golden day;
Fading away in the light so sweet
Where the silver stars and the sunbeams meet
Over the silent way.

Over the bosom, tenderly,
The pearl-white hands are pressed;
The lashes lie on her cheek so thin—
Where the softest blush of the rose hath been—Shutting the blue of her eyes within,
The pure lids closed to rest.

Over the sweet brow, lovingly,
Twineth her sunny hair;
She was so fragile, that love sent down
From his heavenly gems, that soft bright crown
To shade her brow with its wave so brown,
Light as the dimpling air.

Gone to sleep, with a tender smile
Froze on her silent lips
By the farewell kiss on her dewy breath,
Cold in the clasp of the angel death.
Like the last fair bud of a faded wreath,
Whose bloom the white frost nips.

Robin—hushed in your downy bed
Over the swinging bough—
Do you miss her voice from the glad duet,
When the dew in the heart of the rose is set,
Till its velvet lips with the essence wet,
In orient crimson glow.

Rosebud—under your shady leaf,
Hid from the sunny day—
Do you miss the glance of the eye so bright,
Whose blue was heaven to your timid sight?
It is beaming now in a world of light,
Over the starry way.

Hearts—where the darling's head hath lain,
Held by love's shining ray—
Do you know that the touch of her gentle hand
Doth brighten the harp in the unknown land?
Oh! she waits for us with the angel band
Over the starry way.

The San Francisco Disaster.

The Nitro Glycerine Explosion.

The San Francisco correspondent of the New York Herald gives the following particulars of the terrible nitro glycerine explosion at San Francisco, on the 16th ult:

At 1:18 on the afternoon of the 16th, I was standing in an office on Sacramento street, near Montgomery, when I heard a tremendous explosion, which I can liken only to the bursting of some monster gun many times overcharged, followed by the roar of falling debris and the rush of men, women, children and horses and vehicles in wild and terrible confusion down the street. The French windows near which I was standing, were driven bodily inwards, and the glass came flying down upon me in a shower. Utterly unable to account for the terrible shock, I ran into the street, and started for the point from whence the report seemed to come.

Going towards California street I met a number of people with bleeding faces and hands, cut by the falling glass, which covered the entire sidewalks and was falling in showers from upper windows, often with large pieces of sash attached, as I passed along. At the northwest corner of Montgomery and California streets stands the fine three-story quadruple front-cut granite block, occupied below as the banking and express office of the great house of Wells, Fargo & Co., the only express company on the Pacific coast and the leading banking house.

Arriving in front of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s building, I found the establishment literally a wreck; doors and windows were gone, mortar and broken furniture covered the floors and indescribable confusion reigned. Pushing my way through the excited crowd I reached the doorway of the Union Club rooms, between the banking and express department, on the Montgomery street side, and clambered up the stairway to the second story, which, with the third is entirely occupied by the Union club. The furniture was in ruins, and the ceilings thrown down. I pushed on to the rear of the building, and, looking out into the area behind, beheld a spectacle I shall never forget. On every side was ruin indescribable—piles of brick and mortar thrown confusedly together, lumber torn into splinters everywhere, and, most horrid of all, great splashes of blood against the walls left standing beyond, the immediate effects of the explosion.

All the buildings had been of brick, and everything fronting on the area was a wreck. The large one-story structure containing the office and billiard saloon of the Union club and arched gateway which leads into the rear of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s from California street, was an entire wreck, the end being blown out, the floor torn into splinters, the iron roof rolled up like a piece of wall paper, the rafters hanging loose in every direction, furniture smashed and billiard tables crushed by the weight of the debris. The brick kitchen of the Union club, which stood in the area of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s, was a heap of brick and mortar and broken beams, from beneath which came the agonizing groans of the wounded and the dying. The whole area was filled with debris. The rear wall of Bell's brick building, used as an assayer's laboratory, in the rear of the assay office, was falling in fragments at every minute, the roof hanging down unsupported on the side next the area.

The outer walls of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s shed were blown to fragments, and the frame structure overhead, outside the main wall of their building, a mere mass of splinters, the rafters lying on the walls which supported the floor.

Blood was visible in many places, and men with heads and hands cut by the falling glass or timbers, were running back and forth in anxious search for missing friends. The main rear walls of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s building were terribly shattered, while fragments of doorways and window sashes only remained in their place throughout the entire building. Two fine horses, attached to the ruins of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express wagons, lay in the agonies of death in the area.

On the western side of the area, near Bell & Co.'s laboratory, lay three bodies, the only ones then in sight.

SEARCH FOR THE VICTIMS.

The first point of investigation was the ruins of the brick building on the west side of the area, under which it was evident, from the cries and moans of distress, a number of sufferers were buried. The first who reached the area made their way directly to the west side, where three bodies lay together, and, with the assistance of a number of other gentlemen, commenced searching for signs of life. Two bodies, not recognized, were quickly ascertained to be lifeless; the third, which lay literally underneath the others, proved, on examination, to be that of Gerritt W. Bell, assayer and member of the board of supervisors for the eighth district. Mr. Bell's features were found to be sadly mutilated and his clothing almost torn off, but he still breathed, although insensible. He was removed to the express office of Wells, Fargo & Co., where he soon expired. Meantime the search went on, hundreds taking part from time to time in the mournful work.

The work of exhumation was thenceforward carried on systematically until far into the evening, when it was ascertained that no more dead or wounded were to be found. Broken walls were cleared away, and the mass of bricks and rubbish where the Union Club house kitchen had stood, beneath which the larger number of sufferers were buried, was removed piece by piece. As the mangled victims were brought out one after another and conveyed away on stretchers or in carriages, the scene was indescribably mournful and impressive. Such another I hope never to be compelled to look upon again.

ORIGIN OF THE DISASTER.

On the last trip of the Sacramento from Panama, two boxes were landed at the Pacific Mail Steamship company's wharf, and left unclaimed. They were each of about fourteen superficial feet measurment, as reckoned in collecting freight. One of these were marked "Wm. Mills, Los Angelos," the other, "88, J. M. Moore, Idaho City." These boxes came into the hands of Wells, Fargo & Co., as freight agents for the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. The first box leaked something, which looked like oil, which had run down upon and damaged the other. They were removed from the wharf, and as it was a case of damage, Mr. Webster, the freight clerk of Wells, Fargo & Co., sent for Mr. Haven, the freight clerk of the steamship company, to examine the same. Both gentlemen lunched at the Union club, and afterwards descended to the courtyard by the exterior stairway. The boxes were in the yard, and it is but natural to suppose that in examining the box which was leaking they proceeded to open the same, when the concussion caused the explosion. This supposition is carried out from the fact that nitro-glycerine only explodes like a percussion cap, on concussion, and that both Mr. Webster and Mr. Haven were absolutely rent to pieces, showing that they must have been immediately over or near the explosive material.

Mr. Bell's servant says that Mr. Bell had given him orders to have his horse saddled and ready at the side door, which led into the yard of Wells, Fargo & Co., at about 1 o'clock, as he was en route for Petaluma. Mr. Bell left his office, came into the yard to mount his horse, the servant still having him by the head, only a few feet from where four men were standing around a box examining it. Two of them were Mr. Havens, of the Pacific Mail Steamship company, and Mr. Frank Webber, of Wells, Fargo & Co., the other two being workmen, one of whom had a hammer or hatchet in his hand, and the other what seemed to be an iron claw chisel. The wooden cover of the case had just been forced off, when one of the gentlemen spoke to Mr. Bell, (he being a chemist,) as if to ask his opinion of the damage. Mr. Bell then turned to his servant and remarked that he might go on to the boat and he would overtake him in a moment; and following his orders he turned the horse and led him towards the gateway on California street.

This person was about the last living man who saw the men and the case before the fatal explosion.

It is now ascertained that the first box contained nitro-glycerine, though it was not so marked.

FORCE OF THE SHOCK.

The solid stone pavement under which a box exploded was driven down into the rocky gravel nearly two feet.

In the debris half dollars were found bent, and as if to illustrate the terrific power of the explosive material, on the body of one the goddess of liberty is indented with the word "America," from the obverse side of the coin.

The new two and a half story brick building of the Spring Valley Water Works company was moved some two or three inches from the line of its foundation, and a glazier, at work under the skylight, was carried upwards upon the roof to a distance of 20 feet. He escaped with a light scratch on one of his legs. Fragments of human remains were found scattered in many places. In the auction rooms of Messrs. Cobb & Sinton, on the east side of Montgomery street, lay a human brain, almost intact, no other fragments of the body near it.

A piece of a human spine was blown over the buildings on the east side of Montgomery street, and was picked up on Leidesdorff street.

A piece of a skull was lying on California street, with other fragments of human remains, and a human arm struck the third story window of the building occupied by Squarza.

Glass was broken as far off as Stockton street on the west, Sutter street on the south, Washington street on the north, and Front street on the east. Within a full block in any direction, from the force of the explosion, hardly a whole pane of glass is left.

A large number of gentlemen were at lunch in the dining hall of the Union Club, immediately north of the kitchen, the doors and windows of which were blown to atoms. They were covered with fragments of the glass, splinters, &c., but, wonderful to tell, none were killed, and but three or four slightly hurt.

The body of a man was found lying at the head of a horse, which latter had been standing in the yard. The body of the man was so mutilated that the remains could not be recognized.

Immediately after the explosion, the concussion breaking all the glass in the vicinity, the latter, in its descent in fine particles, resembled a fall of snow, and passers-by had to shield their eyes.

One curious effect of the explosion was to impregnate every scrap of broken wood around with the compound to such a degree that a blow with a hammer will cause the slightest chip to explode with a report like a musket.

THE KILLED, WOUNDED AND MISSING.

Wells, Fargo & Co.'s establishment, is the most public place in the city, and is always crowded at the hour of the day at which the explosion occurred. The Union Club rooms and the area below contained many people at the moment whose names may be recollected, and it is therefore impossible to say how many were really killed or injured. It is known however that nine persons were killed; 12 severely injured; and more than 50 slightly injured. Two others are known to be missing.

DAMAGES TO PROPERTY.

It is estimated that the total damage by the destruction of glass alone cannot be less than $50,000, and the total loss to property of every description by the explosion can hardly foot up under $200,000; it may reach a far larger figure.

MR. BEECHER'S EXPERIENCE.—Rev. Henry Ward Beecher told his religious experience at one of his recent conference meetings in Brooklyn. He said he was a professor of religion for some years before he was a Christian. After graduating at Amherst he began the study of theology at Cincinnati, and was still not only not a Christian, but skeptical. The influence of his father decided him to study. One of the sons had swung off into skepticism and should another follow it would break the old man's heart. He did not intend to be a minister. The study of theology would not hurt him, and he need not go into the work when the course was completed. Without conversion and without believing in Christianity he became a student of theology. While in the seminary some ladies belonging to the first families of Cincinnati, connected with the Second church, urged him to become teacher in a Bible class. What could he do? He who was not an experimental Christian, but was skeptical, how could he teach in what he did not know, and how could he teach in what he did not believe? He was a member of the church and a theological student. He accepted the trust that he could not honorably decline. All he need to do was to tell the class what the gospel contained. He need not tell them what he thought of them. So he began his work. He studied and collated the Gospel. He took all passages, scraps, hints and facts that bore on the character of Jesus, and his relations to guilty and lost men. Jesus appeared to him in those Scriptures. He smote the rock and the waters gushed out. He saw the Saviour in all his love and compassion, and fell at his feet to adore. "Never till I get home," said Mr. Beecher, "will I have brighter visions of my Redeemer. I saw Jesus in all things—in the flowers, in the fruits, in the trees and in the sky, and above all in the Gospel."

—An exchange tells of a man who stopped his newspaper on Saturday and died on Tuesday. A terrible warning.

CURRENT ITEMS.

Personal and Literary.

EX-SENATOR D. L. YULEE has been elected President of the Florida railroad.

THIRTY per cent. of the beautiful paper on which the Scientific American is printed is of wood pulp.

THE Rev. John S. C. Abbott of New Haven has realized $50,000 from his history of the war.

WILLIE, the only surviving member of the murdered Deering family, is to be supported and educated by some liberal Philadelphians.

BEN. B. BRENCH, Jr., engineer of the Capitol extension at Washington, was married recently. That was a capital extension on his part.

A SAN DIEGO, California letter says that Gen. Rosecrans is daily expected there, and that he will probably become a permanent resident of the place.

GEN. NEAL DOW, of Portland, has taken passage for England, whither he goes upon the invitation of temperance men in Great Britain, to urge the importance of a prohibitory liquor law.

"MARK TWAIN," the Artemus Ward of the California press, was formerly a printer in the office of the Muscatine Journal. His real name is Samuel Clemens, and he is a brother of Orion Clemens, once part proprietor of the Journal establishment.

DR. J. G. HOLLAND (Timothy Titcomb) has retired from the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, with which he has been connected for many years. He intends spending next year in Europe, and will hereafter devote his energies to literary pursuits exclusively, untrammeled by the cares and responsibilities of newspaper connection.

GEORGE PEABODY has received all manner of attention since his arrival from England in this country. The last person who favored him with assurances of high consideration is the Revenue Assessor, who has notified him to make a return of his income since September, 1862, for the purpose of taxation, under the revenue laws of the United States.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT has some curious ways. At odd moments he invites his friends to gymnastic exercise. "Can you do that?" he said to a much younger man, suiting the action to the word by lifting himself to the top of the sanctum doors by his hands, and swinging up and down, and sideways, varying the sport by grasping the door casing, and repeating the feat in a more difficult position.

"ALLIGATOR" (Stephen H.) Branch, announces himself in the New York papers as a candidate for member of Congress. He says: "I am an orator, and yearn to roar in the Capitol, and clap my wings like Shakespeare's rooster or the eagle on his celestial cliff,

Gazing at the prey,
My arrows did slay.

JOHN RANDOLPH is said, upon one occasion, to have visited a race-course near the city of New York. A flash-looking stranger offered to bet him $500 upon the result of the race, and, introducing his companion, said: "Mr. Randolph, my friend here, Squire Tompkins, will hold the stakes." "But, sir," squeaked the orator of the Roanoke, "who will hold Squire Tompkins after I give him my money?"

GOVERNOR SUTTER, the first discoverer of gold in California, is supported by a pension from the State; Comstock, who found and gave his name to the great silver lode in Nevada, is a vagrant trespasser in Montana; Alva Gould, locator of the Gould & Curry claim, is making shingles at Washoe Valley; Marshall and Wemer, who found the first gold on the South Fork of the American River, in 1847, are both reduced to biting poverty. The list might be largely extended, and is not encouraging to gold hunters.

THERE is a magistrate in a town in Indiana named Helser. A clergyman in the same place was called upon by a young couple not long since, wishing him to join them in the holy bonds of matrimony. He asked the bridegroom (a soldier, by the way, (for his marriage license. The man in blue said he had been engaged to his girl for four years, and thought that would do. Clergyman thought not, and remarked as the speediest way to obtain license, "you had better take your girl and go to Helser." "You can go to h—l yourself," retorted the veteran, and without further advice left his presence.

ONLY a day before his death, Thurlow Weed Brown, the great temperance advocate, indited his last editorial correspondence, consisting of the following note, addressed, as he usually addressed his editorial letters, to his sister Emma, who was associated with him in the publication of the Wisconsin Chief:

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

THE OAKS, April 29, 1866.

EMMA: I am told, and readily believe that I walk no more among the living. To those who have been so kind to me and mine, I invoke God's choicest blessings, and give my wasted hand in a feeling good-bye to all. The battle is over. THE SENIOR.

AN interesting question in law, involving a considerable sum of money, has just been decided in Connecticut. By the will of the late Colonel Colt, five hundred shares of stock in the Colt Arms Company were given to his brother, Judge James B. Colt, for life; similar gifts of the same stock were also made to other persons; and by a subsequent clause of the will, all the residue of the stock in that company, of which he should die possessed, was to be distributed among those legatees in proportion to their respective legacies. A codicil revoked the legacy of five hundred shares to J. B. Colt, but did not say anything about the residuary proportion of the stock bequeathed by the subsequent clause. That was accordingly claimed, and the claim has been sustained by the Supreme Court of the State, who have just awarded to Judge Colt, for life, 574 shares of the stock, with the dividends on it since Colonel Colt's death, amounting to $86,000.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Cincinnati Commercial gives this hitherto unpublished anecdote of Abraham Lincoln: Once when conversing with the Hon. J. A. Briggs, the Ohio State Agent, he said: "Why, Briggs, I believe there is even a system of female brokerage in offices here in Washington, for I am constantly beset by women of all sorts, high and low, pretty and ugly, modest and the other sort. Here, yesterday, a very handsome young woman called; she would not take a denial, was admitted, and went straight to work soliciting a certain office for somebody supposed to be her husband. She plead his cause dexterously, eloquently, and at times was almost successful by her importunate entreaties. By degrees she came closer and closer to me, as I sat in my chair, until really her face came so near my own that I thought she wanted me to kiss her; when my indignation came to my relief, and, drawing myself back and straightening myself up, I gave her the proper sort of a look and said: Mrs. ——, you are very pretty, and it's very tempting; but I won't."

Domestic Paragraphs.

A farm of 800 acres in Scott county, Iowa, was sold recently for $50,000. It is said to be the best farm in Iowa.

—A farmer plowed up a shell near Frederick, Maryland, and was instantly killed by the explosion.

—Hartford, Conn., has had only fifteen different town clerks since the town was founded, in 1635. George Willis served sixty-four years, John Allen thirty-seven years, and Hezekiah Willis twenty-seven years.

—A negro girl 18 years old, named Jackson, hanged herself to death recently in the woods near New Richmond, O., because she had been seduced.

A man in Chester, Michigan, owns a cow 3 years old that had her first calf 3 weeks ago. It weighed 105 pounds when 8 hours old.

—In a country churchyard this epitaph may be seen: "Here lies the body of John Robinson, and Ruth, his wife." Underneath is the motto, "Their warfare is accomplished."

—It appeared by the testimony in a case now pending in Connecticut, that one of the parties thereto, a Mrs. Phillips, has had fourteen husbands.

—Swindling by telegraph is in vogue. The sharper watches the hotel arrivals and telegraphs to the home of the traveler for funds, signing the latter's name to the message, and lifting the letter when it arrives.

—The New York Port Society has recently adopted the plan of lending libraries to vessels leaving, the books to be exchanged on the return of the vessel—a movement which will do much to relieve the monotony of a sea voyage.

—The Rev. Dr. Martin, of Tye River, Nelson county, Virginia, has caught a veritable mouse who sings like a canary, only the notes are not quite so loud. The little animal sleeps the greater part of the day, but at night it takes up his tuneful melody, and pours forth his low but sweet strains with little intermission till daybreak.

—It is said that within a month after the opening of the New York State Inebriate Asylum, over 1,500 applications were made by wealthy parents for the admission of their daughters, who had contracted habits of intemperance from the use of wines and liquors at fashionable parties.

—A couple of Captains became desperate in a saloon in New Orleans, a few days since, and their friends provided them with fowling pieces for a bloody duel. They stood apart, and both combatants fell, one covered with mush and the other with molasses, the seconds having loaded the pieces with that sort of "vittles."

—John P. Gray, a lad about twelve years of age, residing with his parents at Providence, R. I., was so much excited by the passing of menagerie and circus a few days since, that he went up into the attic and hanged himself. He was dead when discovered.

—A young lady named Klinefelter, residing in Mifflin township, Cumberland county, Pa., died lately, of voluntary starvation, having for twelve days and nights refused to taste of food. Cause, disappointment in marriage.

—Probst is a puzzle. The divines cannot understand him. A month ago he rolled upon his pallet of straw at night in terrible agony. Now his rest is unbroken. He eats with all the relish of a school boy, and sleeps with all the soundness of infantile slumber.

—Ex-Senator Wigfall of Texas, who succeeded in escaping from the South on the collapse of the rebellion, has been the subject of many surmises and enquiries. A London correspondent of a Boston paper states that Wigfall reached the English capital some time in March.

—The following singular marriage notice occurs in a North Carolina paper: "By Dr. J. A. Sherrill, at twilight on Wednesday evening February 28, 1866, in Catawba county, N. C., Mr. A. A. Gabrille to Miss Lizzie Milligan, after a short but most delicious courtship."

—The New York Tribune, in mentioning the sale of autographs in that city, says it was noticable that well written autographs brought the most money, a fact which great men ought to bear in mind. For such purchasers we approve of the response which Henry Ward Beecher once made to a request for his autograph, which was something like this:

"My Dear Sir:—I take pleasure in acceding to your request for my autograph.

Yours, H. W. BEECHER, per —— —— his Attorney.

—The old fashioned custom of rejecting a man as a juror on the trial of capital offenders, because he has been intelligent enough to read the newspaper reports of the case and sane enough to form an opinion on the basis of those reports, is we rejoice to see, falling at last into disuse. In the choice of the jury for trying Probst, in Philadelphia the Court admitted as jurors those of the panel, who notwithstanding the formation of an opinion, answered that they would be governed in their verdict by the evidence before the Court. This is a decision of common sense.

—The Charleston (Ill.) Courier, mentions the following narrow escape of a minister: Sunday forenoon, just after Elder McCollough, of Terre Haute, took his seat in the pulpit of the Christian Church, and while he was making preparations to open the exercises by reading a chapter in the Bible, a slug off the plastering crumbled off the very highest point of the ceiling overhead, and fell, a distance of more than twenty feet, with a tremendous crash, immediately in the rear of the officiating clergyman's chair. Nothing daunted, the minister arose amidst a cloud of lime dust and stepped down in front of the pulpit and was brushed off, remarking, while undergoing this operation, that "that, (meaning the lime falling) was not near so bad as to have the wrath of God descend upon us."

Foreign Gossip.

—In Canada, if a man tries to kill himself and fails, he goes to jail. Serves him right.

—Governor Eyre, principal officer in the recent Jamaica massacre, has committed suicide.

—A Universal Homoepathic Congress is to take place in Paris during the time of the Exposition of 1867.

—The last wonder of Paris is the equipage of a late seamstress of New York, which in magnificence, surpassed that of the Empress itself.

—The consumption of beer is increasing in Germany even more rapidly than in England and the United States. New breweries are springing up everywhere, and yet it is difficult for the people to procure as much as they desire to drink.

—The Right Honorable and Most Reverend Father in God, the Lord Bishop of Canterbury, in England, has an income of $75,000 a year, besides his private fortune. The Bishop of London has an income of $50,000 a year.

—That was a pleasant and instructive reply made by the chief manager of the immense corporation known as Wells, Fargo & Co.'s California Express, when asked what new lessons his great experience had taught him. "It has taught me," said he, "to trust men. Show confidence in them, and they will prove worthy of it."

—Calino received an invitation to a funeral. "Will you go to this burial?" "I shall take good care not to go." "Why so, the defunct was one of your best friends?" "My dear fellow," replied Calino, "I have traced out a line of conduct which I shall always follow; and that is, never to assist at the funeral of people who will not come to mine."

—It is observed that on Fridays the omnibus travel of Paris diminishes in proportion of twenty-five per cent.—so strong is the superstitious avoidance of doing anything that can be helped on that "unlucky" day. It is also further remarked, that when Friday happens to fall on the 13th of the month, the omnibus receipts decrease at the rate of fifty per cent.

—A few days since a Frenchman and wife gave a dinner party to celebrate the twentieth year of their marriage. Just before dinner one of them broke a tumbler. This led to a discussion, which degenerated into a violent quarrel, which ended in each party expressing wonder at having had the patience to live twenty years with so horrid and stupid an animal as the other. The wife put on her bonnet and quit the house. The husband lighted a chafing-dish full of charcoal in his chamber and lay on the floor. When the guests came and failed to obtain admittance, they broke open the doors, and found the husband a corpse.

—The French Exposition will be the Eastern Hemisphere in miniature. Egypt has given $200,000 for the mere expenses of the installation of her marvels. Turkey intends to have the minaret of a mosque constructed in her part of the building, a mausoleum, and a house, with its divan and baths all complete. Persia will display kiosques, manufactories of indigo (magnaneries) and of opium, and we are even promised an exact copy of the wonderful throne-room of the Shahs, with its splendid gildings, mural paintings, fountains and furniture. The Emperor of Morocco will send his imperial tents. The Chinese, Siamese and Japanese are reported as making great preparations for the display of their wares.

Gen. Grant on the South.

The Lewiston, Maine, Journal, gives a report of an hour's conversation between its editor and General Grant, in which, if the report is correctly given, the Lieutenant General appears to have spoken out more freely than he commonly does. He is reported to have said, there were some parts of the country where our armies had never trod, particularly Texas, which needed to feel the blighting effects of war to bring their people to a realizing sense of the enormity of their crime and the necessity of a thorough repentance. "I find," said he, "that those parts of the South which have not felt the war and particularly those which have been within our lines and have therefore escaped the rebel conscription and taxes, are much less disposed to accept the situation in good faith than those portions which have been literally overrun with fire and sword." Referring to the temper of the Southern people, he remarked: "They are much less disposed now to bring themselves to the proper frame of mind than they were one year since." "A year ago," said he, "they were willing to do anything. Now they regard themselves as master of the situation." "Some of the rebel Generals," he added, "are behaving nobly, and doing all they can to induce the people to throw aside their old prejudices, and to conform their course to the changed condition of things. Johnson and Dick Taylor, particularly, are exercising a good influence, but," he added, "Lee is behaving badly. He is conducting himself very differently from what I had reason, from what he said at the time of the surrender, to suppose he would. No man at the South is capable of exercising a tenth part of the influence for good that he is, but instead of using it he is setting an example of forced acquiescence so grudging and pernicious in its effects as to be hardly realized." "The men who were in the rebel armies," said Grant, "acquiesce in the result much better than those who staid at home. The women are particularly bitter against the Union and Union men." "Of course," he added, "there is some bitterness of feeling among all classes, but I am satified it would soon die out if their leading men had not somehow got the idea that treason after all was not very bad, and that the Southern cause, as they phrase it, will yet triumph not in war but in politics. In my judgment," said Grant, "the tone of certain men and certain papers in the North is such as to do incalculable mischief in making the late rebels believe that they are just as much entitled to rule as ever, and if they will only stand by what they are pleased to call their rights they will have help from the North. "This, significantly added Grant, "is only playing over again the incipient stages of the rebellion." He was confident that the large majority of the Southern people would smother their resentments, and become good citizens, if those mischief makers at the North, the Copperheads, would only let them alone. For himself, if he had the power, the first thing he would do would be to seize the New York News, and kindred sheets, which are giving the South so dangerous an idea of their position and rights.

"Troops," said Gen. Grant, "must be kept in all the principal points in the South for some time to come. This will be necessary to redress the turbulence of a class of the South very dangerous to all well disposed persons, and also to protect the rights of the freedmen, who are looked upon with deep hatred by a very large proportion of the people."

When President Lincoln, in April, 1861, called for 74,000 militia for three months' service, the army of the United States had on its rolls 14,000 men. During the ensuing year 2,588,523 men were enlisted, of whom 2,048,108 left the army alive. Of the remainder, 96,089 died in battle or of wounds, while 184,331 died of disease. The number of white troops enlisted was about 2,500,000. The number of deaths among them was 251,112, or one death out of ten. The number of colored troops was 180,000, of whom 59,298 died, or about one out of six, being nearly double that of the deaths among the white troops. Out of every eight deaths among the white troops, three died on the field of battle, and five from disease. Of every nine deaths among the blacks, one died on the field of battle, and eight from disease. The mortality among the volunteers was nearly 15 per cent. greater than among the regulars. These statistics are taken from official records; but, while they give the number of those who died in the service, they make no mention of the host obliged to leave the army, and who went home to die.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, May 30.
COTTON—Middling	$ .41	@	.42
FLOUR—Extra Ohio	9 00	@	9.05
WHEAT—New No. 1, Milwaukee	2.10	@	2.13
BARLEY		@	.90
CORN—Sound Western	.83	@	.86
OATS—New Western	.53	@	.55
PETROLEUM—Crude	.27	@	.27½
PORK—Mess new	30.25	@	30 62
BEEF HAMS	47.00	@	48.00
BEEF CATTLE—Common to good	14.00	@	17.00
DRY GOODS—Merrimacs	.21	@	.22
Bleached Sheetings—Masonville		@	.37
Brown Sheetings—Amoskeag		@	.23½
Delaines—Manchester		@	.22½
Denims—Manchester		@	.82½
GOLD—Closed 139.

CHICAGO, May 28, 1866.
BREVES—Stock to prime	5.00	@$	8.00
BEANS	.75	@	1.25
BRAN	8.00	@	8.25
BUTTER—Good Tub	.24	@	.25
CHEESE—Western States	.17	@	.18
COFFEE—Rio	.24	@	.28
Java	.36	@	.40
EGGS	.15½	@	.16½
FRUITS—Green Apples—Mich	6.00	@	7.00
Malaga Lemons	7.00	@	7 50
Dried N. Y. Apples	.18½	@	.19
FLOUR—Winter White	11.00	@	15.00
Spring Extra	8 50	@	10.75
FISH—Mackerel, No. 1, half bbl	11.00	@	11 25
Whitefish, " "	8.50	@	8.75
Codfish, per hundred	5.00	@	8 00
GRAIN—Corn, No. 1	.52	@	.53
Oats "	.32	@	.33
Rye	.70	@	.71
Wheat—Spring No. 1	1.64	@	1.65
Northwest No. 1	1.80	@	1.85
Barley Canadian—sample	1.20	@	1.25
HIGHWINES	2.20	@	2.22
LARD	.22	@	.22¾
LUMBER—Common floring, rough	30.00	@	32.00
PORK—Mess	30.00	@	30.50
POTATOES	.60	@	.80
SHEEP—Medium, wooled	5.00	@	5.75
SUGARS—Cuba	.12	@	.14
New York Refined	.17	@	.17½
White B	.15½	@	.15¾
SEEDS—Timothy, ℔ bag	3.87	@	4.25
SALT—Fine	2.25	@	2.40
Coarse		@	2 00
SHINGLES—No. 1, Sawed	3.50	@	3.75
TALLOW	.11	@	.12

A SUBSTANCE is now manufacturing from flaxseed called linoleum. It is said that it will supercede India rubber—which it very much resembles and of which it possesses most of the properties—in the various manufactures in which it is used. Like India rubber, it can be dissolved into a cement and used in the manufacture of water proof clothing.

For Boys and Girls.

THE LITTLE CORPORAL is bright, sparkling, and pure, both in typography, and contents. It already excels every children's paper we know of in this country.—Chicago Evening Journal.

This beautiful child's paper is published monthly by Alfred L. Sewell, in Chicago, in Illinois. Price, $1 a year. Specimen copies, ten cents.

MEANNESS.—The premium for meanness should be awarded the man who for money will poison the sick. Such are the wretches who sneak around the country buying up empty bottles of DR. SWAIN'S Bourbon Bitters and Morning Beverage, refill them with their own vile mixtures, and then palm them upon the public as the genuine article put up by DR. SWAIN. Legitimate dealers should assist to ferret out and expose the guilty.

☞ Use SWAIN'S Hair Balm.

WE UNDERSTAND that "original interests" in the Virgin Gold Mining Company, advertised on ——— page, are in active demand. We have just received the Prospectus, which, on perusal we find presents to subscribers, special attractions. Those desiring to secure original interests, ($100 each), should at once send in their subscriptions.

A SINGLE BOX OF BRANDRETH'S PILLS contains more vegetable extractive matter than twenty boxes of any pills in the world besides; fifty-five hundred physicians use them in their practice to the exclusion of other purgatives. The first letter of their value is yet scarcely appreciated. When they are better known, sudden death and continued sickness will be of the past. Let those who know them speak right out in their favor. It is a duty that will save life.

Our race are subject to a redundancy of vitiated bile at this season, and it is as dangerous as it is prevalent; but Brandreth's Pills afford an invaluable and efficient protection. By their occasional use we prevent the collection of those impurities, which, when in sufficient quantities, cause so much danger to the body's health. They soon cure the liver complaint dyspepsia, loss of appetite, pain in the head, heartburn, pain in the breast-bone, sudden faintness and costiveness. Sold by all respectable Dealers in Medicines.

BUY THE BEST REMEDY.—Morrell's Electro Magnetic Fluid, in all cases where ablution can reach a complaint, has been found the surest and speediest remedy known. Try it. See advertisement.

☞ Household Necessity Exists for the use of Durno's Celebrated Catarrh Snuff.

The best known remedy for "a Cold in the Head," Headache, Snuffles, Sore Eyes, Deafness, and the worst forms of that loathsome disease, CATARRH.

It cleanses the entire head. Its effects are pleasant and wonderful, contains no tobacco, nor injurious ingredient. It has the highest professional testimonials Sold by all Druggists for 25 cents per Box. Can be sent by mail on receipt of 30 cents for one Box, or $1 for four Boxes. Address JAS. DURNO, Postoffice Box 1235, New York City. Wholesale by D. BARNES & CO., 21 Park Row, New York.

DEAD HEADS,

or, in other words, heads whose once glorious locks have

Withered and Whitened,

can in a few moments be re-clothed with all their

YOUTHFUL ATTRACTIONS,

by a single application of that wonderful talisman

Cristadoro's Hair Dye,

Grizzled whiskers and moustaches, ladies' curls into which the snow of age has prematurely drifted, and red, sandy, or whitey-brown hair, receive, as if by magic, the rarest shades of black or brown from this harmless botanical hair darkener. Manufactured by J. CHRISTADORO, 6 Astor House, New York. Sold by Druggists. Applied by all Hair Dressers.

DR. THOMAS ANDERSON of Pennsylvania writes that he uses Dr. Bell's Golden Tonic Bitters extensively in his practice and finds them a much better tonic and stimulant than anything he can prescribe for his patients. He further adds—your Golden Tonic Bitters only wants to be better known to be appreciated—send me 4 Doz. per U. S. Express, and oblige THOS. ANDERSON, M. D.

PEACE HATH ITS VICTORIES.

To prevent or conquer disease is a grand achievement; and as surely as bullet and bayonet will destroy, so surely will HOSTETTER'S BITTERS preserve and prolong life.

This is the most trying period of the year. The stamina of the strongest yields more or less to the consuming temperature of midsummer. Vigor oozes from every pore. The strength of man passes away in invisible vapor, and weaker woman becomes relaxed and nerveless. It was to meet such difficulties that Hostetter's Bitters were given to society. It is to prevent the evil consequences to which an unbraced, depleted, debilitated organization is liable, that they are recommended as a SUMMER TONIC for both sexes. Old people die of exhaustion every day, who might have kept death at bay for years to come by an occasional resort to this powerful and harmless vegetable stomachic.

Nine-tenths of the community, rich as well as poor, work continually. If their hands are unemployed their brains are busy, and head work is as depressing to the vital energies as muscular toil. But tone the system with Hostetter's Bitters and the wear and tear of business life will be comparatively unfelt even in the most oppressive weather. No languor will be experienced, for as fast as the vital forces are expended they will be recruited and renewed by this healthful restorative. As a summer invigorant it is indispensable to young and old. Sold everywhere.

New Advertisements.

☞ THE VIRGIN GOLD MINING COMPANY OF COLORADO. 1250 ORIGINAL INTERESTS—$100 EACH—of which 250 are reserved for working capital. The property of the Company consist of TWELVE Ledges, in extent nearly half a mile in length, situated near Central City, Colorado. Subscribers elect their own officers, and themselves manage the affairs of the Company. Each "original interest" $100, gives a subscriber his pro rata amount of stock in all the Corporations organized on these properties.

The Books for subscription are now open. For a Prospectus, giving full particulars, or to secure one or more of these "original interests," address at once, or apply to DUNCAN M. MUTCHESON,
N. E. corner Fourth and Walnut Sts, Phila.

FAIRBANKS'
STANDARD SCALES
OF ALL KINDS.
Fairbanks, Greenleaf & Co.,
226 & 228 LAKE STREET, CHICAGO, ILL

The "Columbian" Gin.

This Gin is the purest and very best article ever offered to the public. It is the distillation of the best American malt spirits and Italian juniper berries. Those who find a diuretic stimulant necessary, should never be without it.

The proprietors of the Columbian Gin do not undertake to advertise it as a quack medicine; yet they feel guaranteed in saying that for those requiring a pure liquor, no better can be procured.

Imported gins, etc., are now nearly out of the question, on account of the extraordinary high import duties imposed upon them—which are always payable in gold—so that a home-made article, equal in all respects to any imported, should receive the attention of consumers.

Doctor Blaney, the well-known chemist of Chicago says: "It's the very best article, both as to quality, "and strength of flavor, that I have ever tested."

For sale by all respectable druggists and liquor dealers in the United States.

W. T. SHUFELDT & CO.,
Sole Distillers and Proprietors,
49 S. Water St., Chicago

The Little Corporal,

Is acknowledged by the leading papers to be the Best Children's Paper in America!

Published Monthly, at One Dollar a year, (ten cents for sample copy) by

ALFRED L. SEWELL,
Circulars sent free Chicago Illinois

Reduction in Price of the

AMERICAN WATCHES

MADE AT

WALTHAM, MASS.

In consequence of the recent great decline in gold and silver and in all the materials used in the manufacture of our goods, and in anticipation of a still further decline, we have reduced our prices to as low a point as they can be placed

One of the Largest

ESTABLISHMENT

In Southern michigan.

One of the Largest Establishments

A LARGE STOCK,

Most Varied

Stock of Furniture

Is to be found at

G. & H. Smith's

ROOMS IN THE

NEW BUILDING,

South Side Chicago St, Tecumseh,

Great Bargains

Are now offered to wholesale or retail buyers.

Among our assortment of Furniture may be found,

Various Styles and Prices

OF SOFAS,

TETE-A-TETES,

MAHOGANY, EASY,
WOOD SEAT, CANE SEAT

AND ROCKING CHAIRS

FRENCH, COTTAGE,
COMMON AND TRUNDLE,

BEDSTEADS,

MARBLE TOP,
WRITING, CARD AND

TEA TABLES,

What Nots, Cradles, Bureaus, Cribs, Desks, Show Cases, Stands, Book Cases, Cupboards, Washstands, Lounges, &c. &c. &c.

Furniture made to order on short notice by the best of Workmen.

LOOKING GLASSES,

At Low Prices,

A large assortment of Moulding on hand and Pictures Framed to Order.

COFFINS,

We keep constantly on hand a large and full assortment of Coffins and will make to order all kinds either Night or Day, and attended and trimmed in the best style,

A Hearse Furnished when Desired.

G. SMITH,
H. SMITH.

Tecumseh June 11th, 1866.

A. JAMES

is Still at the Old Stand

Corner of Chicago and Evans Streets,

TECUMSEH MICH.

Where you will always find him ready to sell you anything you want in the line of

Groceries & Provisions,

I keep the largest and best assortment of

ERIES,
ROVISIONS,
RUITS,
SALT,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
WOOD,
WILLOW,
STONE WARE,
&c. &c.,

Of any house in town, which I will sell for Cash cheaper than any other man.

Having had eleven years experience in the business, and always buying for Cash I am enabled to offer better inducements to cash customers than new hands in the business. If you dont believe it ask your neighbors where they get their Groceries and where they buy them the

CHEAPEST.

and judge for ourselves.

A JAMES.

☞ Subscribe for the HERALD.

THAT'S RIGHT,
We Have It!!
VARIETY.

We would respectfully announce to the good people of Tecumseh and vicinity that

HALEY & WALTERS

Have now on hand a large and well selected stock of

FAMILY GROCERIES,

Which they are offering very low. They have in connection with their Grocery a

BAKERY,

and having secured the services of a first class Baker, are now prepared to furnish all, with Bread, Crackers, Pies, Cakes &c. They have furnished rooms over their store for the sale of

ICE-CREAM, LEMONADE &c and by strict attention to business, they hope to please all who patronize them.

L. DREW'S
NEW HARDWARE!!

Having received from New York and other eastern cities a large Stock of the following goods viz:

STOVES IN ENDLESS VARIETY!

Iron, Steel Nails, Cutlery, Putty, Glass, Window Sashes,

House Trimmings,

Carpenter's Tools, Farming Tools Coopers Tools and Chain Pumps, Bolts, and a

Variety of SHELF GOODS,

PURCHASED FOR CASH Before THE LATE ADVANCE,

They are offered for sale at prices which defy competition. All kinds of

Tin ware

constantly on hand and made to order of the best material and by experienced workmen, also

Copper, Sheet Iron, and Zinc,

Also the Good Samaritan COOKING STOVE, one of the best stoves in the country.

NEW DRUG STORE.

M. Wright, has just received from New Yisnow opening a new stock of Groceries, Paints, Oils &c.

all of which will be sold very low for cash. Everything new and fresh. Store one door east of Hood's, north side of Chicago st.

The Southern Michigan

MANUFACTORY!

IN FULL BLAST!

T. Cummins, Proprietor,

Would announce to the citizens of Lenawee Co, that he is still located in the Brick Shop on Railroad Street, Where he is now turning out the

Nicest, Best and Strongest,

WAGONS, CARRIAGES, SLEIGHS, BUGGIES, CUTTERS,

and in fact everything in his line from a baby cart to a large Omnibus. His prices are such as defy competition, So call and leave your orders.

DENTISTRY.

DR. A. PELHAM,

Resident Dentists.

Office over Fisher & Baker's Drug Store, Chicago St.

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

☞ All branches of Dentistry performed in the neatest possible manner and at Reasonable Prices

---

ROYAL HAVANA LOTTERY OF CUBA

Conducted by the Spanish Government,

$350,000

IN GOLD DRAWN EVERY 17 DAYS

Prizes cashed and information furnished, the highest rates paid for Doubloons and all kinds of Gold and Silver, also for all government Securities.

TAYLOR & CO., Bankers, 16 wall st. N. Y.
n790lysmp

$1,500 PER YEAR. We want agents everywhere to sell our IMPROVED $20 Sewing Machines. Three new kinds. Under and upper feed. Sent on trial. Warranted five years. Above salary or large commissions paid. The only machines sold in the United States for less than $40, which are fully licensed by Howe, Wheeler & Wilson, Grover & Baker, Singer & Co, and Bachelder. All other cheap machines are infringements and the seller or user are liable to arrest, fine and imprisonment. Illustrated circulars sent free. Address, or call upon Shaw & Clark, at Biddeford, Maine, or Chicago, Ill.

☞ Now is an excellent and fitting opportunity for subscribing for the HERALD.

Farmers! Farmers!

THE

RAISIN MILLS,

is the place to get good grinding done. I pay particular attention to this branch of business,

CUSTOM GRINDING,

keep the Mill constantly in good repair and the 2nd Adam is always on hand with a pleasant smile to tend to the wants

OF MY NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS!

BRING GOOD CLEAN WHEAT, and I will warrant that Adam will give you satisfaction. SOUND

Wheat taken in store for Bread

Good White and Red Wheat Flour for sale. The highest market price paid

In Greenbacks

for good White and Amber Wheat Mill Feed of all kinds for Sale.

SAWING DONE

for Customers on short notice. Bills of hard wood lumber sawed, and delivered if wished.

LUMBER FOR SALE

Cash paid for Saw Logs. Good hard wood slabs for sale by the load. &c. &c

I sincerely thank my numerous customers for their very liberal patronage, and shall endeavor to do as good work, and even better if possible in the future.

Woolston Comfort.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN,—County of Lenawee, ss.—At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 2d day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty six.

Present, Robert R. Beecher. Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Moses Burroughs deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of John P. Silvers praying that he may be appointed administrator on the estate of said deceased for reasons stated in said petition.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday, the eleventh day of June next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That the said Petitioner . . . give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be publised in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. ROBERT R. BEECHER,
(A true Copy) n806 Judge of Probate.
C. C. COATS, Register.

Notice.

At a regular meeting of the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh, held on the 7th day of May 1866, the following By-Law ordinance was duly passed,

Be it ordained, by the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh; That the marshall of the village of Tecumseh, be and he is hereby directed and instructed to notify the owner or occupant of each lot or parcel of land situate in said village adjoining a street along the same side of which street a plank side walk exists which is now out of repair, to repair or reconstruct the same as the case may require, within forty days after such notice, by supplying new material so far as necessary in repair, and to repair, reconstruct, as the case requires, such sidewalk so that said walk shall be in order and durable, observing plan specification and providing material the same as required by the original ordinance requiring its construction, or in default thereof, that the said walk be immediately repaired or reconstructed by said marshall, and that the expense thereof be assessed upon said lot, and payment required of the owner thereof.

CHARLES BURRIDGE, Recorder.

Hear Ye! Hear Ye!!

Do you want the best Card pictures in this section.

Do you want those gems of art, Opatotypes or Porcelains? Do you want work warranted? Do you want to suit yourselves? Do you want the best that Art affords? Then go to Powers rooms over the P. O. Tecumseh, Michigan, and you can find FIRST CLASS WORK, of every description. He is bound not to be out-done in any branch of the business. Pictures of any size done to order in INDIA-INK, WATER or OIL COLORS, on short notice and in the best style

Persons having small Negatives which they like can have pictures made from them life size or smaller as they choose and finished in India ink water or oil colors. Give him a call and examine his work. You will find him gentlemanly, courteous and ever ready to oblige. He is bound to give satisfaction to all. No poor work allowed to leave the rooms He has the best instruments known and acknowledged to be such by all superior Artists. One half of the pictures that took the premium at the last County Fair, over A. J. Hoags name, were of Powers make. Do you want proof, call and examine. Powers has served three years in the army, and deserves the patronage of the public You will find him prompt, active and always at his place of business.

Cash paid for Butter, Eggs, Dried Fruit &c, at

A. JAMES

NEW FIRM,

NEW GOODS AND

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

The subscribers have formed a copartnership in the Dry Goods Trade, and offer for sale, at the old stand of C. Lawrence, next door to the Post Office, an entire new stock

STAPLE & FANCY GOODS,

concisting of Dress Goods, Yankee Notions, Brown and Bleached Muslins, Clothes Trimings &c. Also a large and well selected stock of

Crockery and Glass-Ware.

The above goods were bought for cash and will be sold as low as can be bought in Southern Michigan. Give us a call.

ANDERSON & LARNED.

CURTIS & PARSONS

(DEALERS IN)

Having become well known establishment in Bidwell's Block on Chicago Street, would respectfully announce to the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity, that they are prepared to supply them with everything in the line of Hardware, Tin Ware, Iron, Nails, Chains, Cutlery, Bells, Seelf goods Glass, Cradles, Scythes, Forks, Rakes, Carpenter's tools, Doors, Axes, Hoes Cistern Pumps, Putty, Spades and Shovels, Chains, Ropes and every article usually kept in like establishments.

Especial attention is called to the large assortment of Cook and Parlor Stoves & Fixtures, of which they have a large variety, embracing all the latest improvements, We have also a Tin-Shop in opperation, for manufacturing & repairing all kinds of Tin, Copper and Sheet Iron Ware Stove-pipe, Eave Troughs, Milk-Pans, Dippers, Cups, Oil-Cans, and every conceivable article, from a Large Dish Pan down to a Tin whistle. We are sole agents for the Universal Clothes Wringer, for this vicinity.

GEO. CURTIS. W. PARSONS.

EUREKA.

NOT CALIFORNIA WITH ALL ITS GOLD,

BUT THE PLACE TO BUY

Boots & Shoes at

Prices that suit the times, at

MC'NICHOL & WILSON'S

EMPIRE

Boot & Shoe Store.

We shall keep constantly on hand a full assortment of the BEST

Eastern Work to be Found

Consisting of

LADIES' CALF, GOAT AND KID GAITERS, BALMORALS, SLIPS,

And an endless variety of EVERYTAING usually found in a First Class Boot & Shoe Store. Our manufacturing department will be ably conducted and all work done by us warranted to give satisfaction. Those in want of Boots or Shoes will save money by calling, and will be sure to buy, for they can't fail to "see it."

☞ Remember the place—one door east of Curtis Drug Store,

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.

Publised for the benefit and as a CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN and others, who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay of Manhood, &c., supplying at the same time the means of Self-Cure. By one who has cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery. By enclosing a post-paid addressed envelope, single copies, free of charge, mby be had of the author

NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Brooklyn,
n790lysmp Kings Co, N. Y.

$90 A MONTH!—Agents wanted for six entirely new articles, just out. Address O. T. GAREY, City Building, Biddeford, Me.

---

18 Pronunciemento. 65.

GLOBE MILLS.

This well known and popular Mill is

New in Good Running Order,

and prepared to do Grinding Grists for the farmers in a satisfactory manner, will endeavor to make a good yield and have the flour suit.

Old Customers

I shall be pleased to retain, and would invite others to try and see

How well we can do For them.

To such as

PREFER EXCHANGING THEIR GRAIN,

to having it ground, I shall be ready to accommodate, having always on hand a

SUPPLY OF FLOUR,

There can usually be found at the Mill for Sale

Best White Wheat Flour,
Best Red Wheat Flour,
2nd best Red Wheat Flour,
At Wholesale or Retail.
Corn Meal, Bolted and Coarse,
Fine Midlings, B. W. Flour,
Ship Stuffs, B. W. Bran,
Mixed feed for horses and cattle,
Corn and Oats ground for horse feed

This Mill can more often grind, because of its unfailing

SUPPLY OF WATER,

and does more certainly have a supply of Flour and Feed always on hand, than any other mill for miles around.

Farmers are invited to bring their wheat to the Globe Mill and get THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE. They will always also usually find a market at the Mill for their other grains.

Wm. HAYDEN.

HAYDEN'S

WARE-HOUSE

The Subscriber has for sale at his Warehouse,

AND LUMBER YARD

THE FOLLOWING:

Course and Fine Sat.

WATER LIME

Calcined Plaster, Plaster, Stone Lime,

RED AND WHITE WHEAT FLOUR

COARSE AND FINE MIDLINGS, BRAN, MEAL,

Corn In the Ear and Shelled.

A good assortment of the kinds of lumber usually called for.

Flooring, Scantling, Joists, Oak Fence Boards, Pine Siding, dressed; White wood Siding, seasoned, Barn Boards, Lumber, assorted qualities & thickness,

Doors and Sash

Made of the best seasoned pine of assorted sizes,

SHINGLES

Of different kinds from the best No. 1 pine to the best No. 1 hard wood. Will fill with dispatch any orders for bills of Lumber if practicable. All the above articles will be sold

WHOLESALE And RETAIL

At Reasonable Prices.

STORAGE FOR GOODS

May be had at the warehouse, also goods received and sold on commission. Wheat purchased at the highest market price, also received on storage. Corn, Oats Buck wheat, and Rye usually bought at market price and Cash paid for all descriptions of merchantable Lumber

Wm. HAYDEN

An Old Song, set to a New Tune.

1866.

"As spring approaches
Rats and Roaches
From their holes come out,
And Mice and Rats,
In spite of Cats,
Gaily skip about."

"18 years established in N. Y. City,
"Only infalliable remedies known."
"Free from Poisons,"
"Not dangerous to Human Family,"
"Rats come out of their holes to die."

"Costar's Rat, Roach, &c., Exeter's, Is a paste—used for Rats, Mice, Roaches, Black and Red Ants &c &c.

"Costar's" Bed-Bug Exterminator, Is a liquid or wash—used to destroy, and also as a preventive for Bed-Bugs, &c.

"Costar's Electric Powder for insects is for Moths, Musquitoes, Fleas, Bed-bugs, insects on Plants, Fowls, Animals, &c.

☞ Beware of all worthless imitations.

☞ See that "COSTAR'S" name is on each Box, Bottle and Flask, before you buy.

☞ Address, HENRY R COSTAR,
482 Broadway, N. Y.

☞ Sold in Tecumseh, Mich, by Gould & Waldo, P. N Curtis, and M. Wright, and all Druggist and Retailes.

1866,

INCREASE OF RATS.—The "Farmer's Gazette (English) asserts and proves by figures that one pair of RATS will have a progeny and descendants no less than 651,050 in three years. Now, unless this immense family can be kept down, they would consume more food than would sustain 65,000 human beings.

☞ See "COSTAR'S" advertisement above.

1866.

RATS versus BIRDS:—Whoever engages in shooting small birds is a cruel man; whoever aids in exterminating rats is a benefactor. We should like some one to give us the benefit of their experience in driving out these pests. We need something besides dogs, cats, and traps for this business.—[Scientific American, N, Y,

☞ See COSTAR's advertisement above,

1866.

"COSTARS" RAT EXTERMINATOR is simple, safe, and sure—the most perfect RATification meeting we have ever attended,—Every Rat that can get it, properly prepared, will eat it, and every one that eats it will die, generally at some place as distant as possible from where it was taken,—[Lake Shore, Mich, Mirror,

☞ See "COSTAR'S" advertisement above,

1866.

